The canvassing board was composed of Governor Fort, Senator Harry V. Osborne, of Essex; Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset; Senator William J. Bradley, of Camden; Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union; Senator George S. Silzer, of Middlesex, and Senator William C. Gebhardt, of Hunterdon.

Governor Fort returned from the Interstate Fair grounds, in order to meet with the board at the hour appointed by law for canvassing the returns.

The vote for and against the several amendments in each county is given in the table herewith:

The vote in Union and Somerset counties was as follows: Union—for, 6,554; against, 12,222. Somerset—for, 2,854; against, 2,947.

SALOONS RESPONSIBLE FOR SUNDAY BASEBALL

The Rev. George Mooney, formerly pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, and now pastor of the South Orange M. E. church, who welcomed the county W. C. T. U. convention held in his church in that borough Thursday, placed the responsibility for Sunday sports on the saloon interests.

"In Essex county," he said, "with in the last month there have been 45,000 people assembled at cycle races, baseball games or other sports on Sunday, and every one of these places desecrating the Lord's day are either directly or indirectly the saloon and brewery interests."

MARTHA WASHINGTON STAMP.

Government Printing Shop Has Been Asked to Submit a Model.

The picture of Martha Washington may be placed upon one of the postage stamps of the present series. A number of women prominent in the Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution have requested the Postoffice Department at Washington to take such action. It is suggested that each time an issue of the twelve-cent stamp offers an opportunity to do this. The suggestion is supported on the ground that it would be an appropriate recognition of one-half of the people of the United States.

The Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington has been asked to prepare a model bearing Martha Washington's head, in addition to one bearing the head of George Washington. Both will have careful attention from Postmaster General Hitchcock on his return from his vacation.

Duly—Duffy.

Miss Mary Duffy, daughter of Mrs. Bridget Duffy, 194 Grove street, and Francis Daly, of Elizabeth, were married Wednesday afternoon at St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, by Rev. William H. Miller. Miss Elizabeth Duffy, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, with James Duffy, her brother, as best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride.

Removing the Cause.

Tommy (during a temporary lull in the conversation)—I say, ma, isn't it a pity, you haven't got the toothache instead of poor Jane?

Ma—Gracious me. Why, dear.

Tommy—Why, cos you can take yours out and she can't.—The Sketch.

NATURALIZATION PAPERS ARE DENIED TO 2,067

Naturalization was refused to 2,067 aliens during the past fiscal year—a material increase over the rejection of would-be United States citizens during the preceding year.

These cases have presented many and varied interesting questions. Occasionally the disappointed foreigner has turned to the courts for relief from the action of the Naturalization Bureau of the Department of Commerce and Labor at Washington, and Chief Campbell, of that bureau, is drafting a measure which if enacted would provide for authority for the bureau, through the judicial officers of the Government, to appeal from the action of the State courts.

"When is a foreigner—a Turk, for instance—a white man?" is one of the problems that the naturalization officials have worked out.

In a case that will be tried in the United States Circuit Court at Cincinnati next month the Government has opposed the naturalization of a Turkish citizen on the ground that he is not a white person with the meaning of section 2,169 of the Revised Statutes.

That section declares that its provisions "shall apply to all aliens being free white persons and to aliens of African nativity and to persons of African descent." The courts have construed this as meaning only those so specified, and as barring Chinese and Japanese and their half breeds and Burmese, and have held that an Asiatic is neither a white person nor a person of African descent within the terms of the statute that governs.

The Massachusetts courts have held that Congress, in designating the class of persons who could be naturalized, inserting the qualifying word "white," and so intended to exclude from the citizenship privilege all alien races except the Caucasian.

In its memorandum of cases defining the words "free white persons" the naturalization bureau cites an opinion from Chancellor Kent, the commentator, that "it may well be doubted whether the copper-colored natives of America or the yellow or tawny races of Asiatics are white persons within the purview of the law."

MAN KILLED RESISTING A SQUAD OF POLICE.

Essex County Prosecutor Mott spent a large part of yesterday trying to find out who it was that reported to his deputy physician, Dr. M. Herbert Simmons, of Orange, that a tragedy in that town was a suicide, whereas the facts of the case were that a man who had fired at two policemen in resisting arrest, had been shot in return and so badly wounded that he died a little later in the Orange Memorial Hospital.

The victim was Albert E. Demarest, a carpenter, who had been drinking heavily for months. Demarest, it is alleged, had insulted Mrs. Marshall, with whom he boarded, and Marshall was upbraiding him for it when the first shot was fired. That happened on the front porch of the house. After that Demarest locked himself in his room, while Marshall went and swore out a warrant for his assailant's arrest. Roundsman McGuirk, with Patrolmen John McDonald, John McCormick and James Dignum, were trying to get the man to come out of his room when he opened the door and began firing at them.

A member of the police squad sent a bullet into Demarest's abdomen and one through his chest. Although the circumstances of the case seem clearly to justify the shooting, it is probable that the policeman who *fired the shot will be formally ar*raigned and paroled for the action of the grand jury.

PREDICTS HARD WINTER FROM EQUINOX WEATHER.

Coming out at least two months ahead of the usual crop of weather prognostigators, goosebone prophets and others, John T. Roberts, of Darby, Pa., who declares he has never made a mistake in fortelling the weather for the last forty-two years, makes the unpleasant assertion that a winter of unusual severity is ahead of us, he says:

"I predicted that last winter would be mild with an early spring, despite the fact that the goose-bone prophet of Reading declared a big blizzard was booked for around January 15 or 20, with February unusually cold. I take my observations on the first *three days of the fall equinox, Sep*tember 20, 21 and 22, and base my calculations on the direction of the wind for these three days. The first day, September 20, give us the weather for the first winter month, December; the second, the weather for January, and the third day for February."

A Birthday Surprise.

An enjoyable surprise party was tendered Miss Mary Lannon Saturday evening at her home, 472 West Front street, in honor of her twenty-first birthday. The house was beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers. Vocal and piano selections were a feature of the evening. Luncheon was served at midnight to the guests about sixty in number. An enjoyable evening was spent.

C. B. PIERCE HIGH MAN ON ASSEMBLY TICKET

Of the Republican candidates for nomination at the primaries on Tuesday Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce led his ticket with 3,217 votes. Assemblyman A. W. Schwartz followed him with 2,976, while Lloyd Thompson, a new candidate for the office, polled 2,739 votes.

Harold Depew, with 1,111, ran ahead of Schuyler M. Cady, who received 949. These two independent candidates for nomination were defeated by about three to one.

All the Assembly candidates showed unusual strength in their home towns, although Mr. Schwartz did not quite keep up with Mr. Pierce in Elizabeth. Mr. Cady ran ahead of the whole ticket in Summit, where he lives, with 127 votes.

In Westfield, where Mr. Thompson lives, he ran ahead of his ticket by nearly fifty votes.

The Linden township vote is worth noting. Depew lives there, and he rounded up 122 votes for Cady, 121 for Cady, and Pierce got about all the rest of them—141. Voting was similar in Summit. Cady and Depew drew most of their votes from these two districts and from Roselle, New Providence and the uptown wards of Elizabeth.

Dr. Frank H. Warnecke, candidate for coroner, led the Democratic county ticket with 2,869 votes. John F. Kenah, for county clerk, had 3,798. And George W. Van Cleef, by small majorities, defeating Lewis A. Bellis and William E. Maxwell, present members of the Borough Council on the Republican ticket.

Bellis and Maxwell, however, were nominated on the Democratic ticket and Mayor Charles E. Kenyon and Councilmen Walter Durling, Joseph Barras, Charles Schwed and Albert B. Cline were renominated on both the Republican and Democratic tickets.

The closest contest was between Joseph Fitzga and James Brown, Republicans, for the nomination of borough representatives in the Somerset county Board of Freeholders. Fitzga, the present freeholder, was defeated by one vote and he has declared his intention of applying for a recount.

LEARY, BEATEN, BUT WILL RUN ANYHOW.

In Elizabeth Councilman Jeremiah D. Leary has decided to run independently against his successful opponent, Jeremiah P. McNamara. Mr. Leary's action did not come as a surprise, in view of the fact that he was beaten for the Democratic nomination by only seven votes.

Several of the other defeated candidates are now talking of running independently, including some of the excise candidates. Many of these believe that they would be successful at a general election, and would get bigger support than some of those who won at the primaries. The big vote obtained by some of the successful candidates is due in a great measure to the heavy poll in the First and Third wards in that city, where a general election prevails.

In the other wards, where the defeated candidates had money supporters, there were no contests, hence the vote was light.

Had Experience.

The animal trainer having been taken suddenly ill, his wife reported for duty in his stead.

"Have you had any experience of this kind?" asked the owner of the circus and menagerie, with some doubt.

"Not just exactly in this line," she said, "but my husband manages the beasts all right, doesn't he?"

"He certainly does."

"Well, you ought to see how easily I can manage him."—Tit-Bits.

"Did you enjoy your ride in the taxicab?"

"N-not exactly. I was t-too busy watching the indicator."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LITERARY

Much that is interesting and instructive is found within the covers of the October issue of Physical Culture. Bernarr Macfadden, who is noted for his original and striking ideas regarding the cause and cure of ill-health, has written a series of articles on "The Natural Treatment of Disease," the first installment of which appears in this number.

Rupert Hughes, well known as a dramatist and musical authority, contributes to The Red Book Magazine for October what might be called a love story in philosophy. Its title is "The Most Interesting Thing in The World."

It is now generally known that Scribner's Magazine is paying Theodore Roosevelt the highest price ever paid for any serial in any magazine for his forthcoming articles, which are to bear the general title, "African Game Trails: An Account of the African Wanderings of an American Hunter Naturalist." The editors already have five of these articles in manuscript, the first of which, "A Railroad Through the Pleistocene," will appear in the October Scribner. This article is illustrated by a series of illustrative material from Kermit Roosevelt, the official photographer of the expedition, all systematically arranged and labelled, showing a marked aptitude for detail on the young man's part.

So many alluring books are brought out in the autumn that magazine publishers also use once-in-a-while extra efforts to improve their fall numbers in order to keep their share of the attention of the reading public. One of the October magazines gotten out by wise publishers is Lippincott's, which is sufficiently meritorious of itself to start with the most fascinating of the best sellers.

Writing in Munsey's Magazine for October, Walter Prichard Eaton declares that there is no use in an article on "The Ministry as a Profession:" "The Protestant churches are alarmed over the dwindling number of students in their seminaries, and the increased difficulty of securing worthy recruits for the ministery. The minister's lot, if possible, is to be made easier, no less for practical considerations—even if these are not always confessed—than for ethical ones. We pay the workman $3 a day—or a little more—to build the church; and we pay the clergyman $2 a day—or a little less—to preach in it.

The most timely feature of the October Century is the Clermont chapter of "Fulton's Invention of the Steamboat," written by the inventor's great-granddaughter, Mrs. Alice Crary Sutcliffe. This second of two valuable historical articles is devoted to the Clermont's making, launching and history; and the narrative includes many of Fulton's own letters and manuscripts now published for the first time, in addition to autographs of the first Clermont, recently discovered. Other timely articles of the number include Mr. A. Barton Hepburn's discussion of the question, "Is a Central Bank Desirable?" contrasting the rigidity of the United States currency with the flexibility of the currency of other nations; also two articles on the growing use of the "finger print" system of identification by governmental and business circles. Charles B. Brewer tells of their use in the United States navy and elsewhere.

The October number is the first issue of the larger and amplified Century Magazine, containing additional pictures, new departments and forty pages extra of reading matter. A remarkable new series of articles begins in this issue, by John Kenneth Turner, entitled "Barbarous Mexico." Few people in the world realize that such things as at present not only being carried on in Mexico, but is tacitly protected and encouraged by the government.

The Venturer is one who keeps his eye on the hedgerows and wayside groves and meadows while he travels the road to fortune. That is the difference between him and the adventurer. Eating the forbidden fruit was the best recipe ever made by a Venturer. Trying to prove that it happened is the highest work of the adventuresome. To be either is disturbing to the cosmogony of creation.—O. Henry in Everybody's Magazine.

What do you know of Robert Fulton's title to greatness as an inventor? Read "Busting the First Trust" and see what Ida L. Matthews' research has led him to say. Did you ever read a story which kept your fingers itching to turn over the next page and which left you breathless and thoughtful at the end. "Caught in the Current" is the first installment of such a story by Leroy Scott. It is called the "Shears of Destiny." See October Success.

A great project which has for a year attracted the widest attention is begun in Scribner's Magazine for October. Theodore Roosevelt's first article on his African trip more than carries out the promise of unusual entertainment and interest. It pictures a wild and semi-savage region as it strikes Mr. Roosevelt's unusually receptive and acute mind. He is having a wonderful experience and enjoying every minute of it, and in this article the reader is carried with him through the joy of new sensations and the perception of wild and grotesque animal life as it appears from time to time during his journeys. The article combines the zest of the born hunter and naturalist with the wide experience of a man of great affairs.

Although appearing almost at the end of the number, the feature of the October Atlantic which will attract widespread attention is Congressman Samuel W. McCall's paper on "The Payne Tariff Law." In seven magazine pages Mr. McCall gives a resonant and illuminating analysis of the bill as finally passed, and calls it "the best tariff bill since our first revenue law was signed by George Washington." The paper contains many shrewd observations and is illumined by flashes of genuine humor.

Myra Kelly, the most famous writer of East Side stories, gained her knowledge of the slums of New York while teaching in an East Side school. Now that she is married, she no longer teaches, but her supply of humor and charm has by no means given out, as is tesified by her latest and funniest story "Games in Gardens" in the October Woman's Home Companion.

WEDDING RECEPTION FOR MR. AND MRS. W. F. WILSON

A wedding reception was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. William F. Wilson at the home of the groom's parents, Councilman and Mrs. W. W. Wilson, on West Third street, Thursday. There was a large company of relatives and friends present from High Bridge Somerville, Raritan, Dunellen, and the city. The couple were married a few weeks ago, the bride being Miss Colvin, of Somerville, a niece of James Colvin, of West End avenue.

The feature of the evening was dancing, which was continued until a late hour. At midnight refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were showered with congratulations and were the recipient of numerous gifts. Mr. Wilson is manager for his father's grocery at West Front street and Clinton avenue, and and his wife reside there.

FORESTERS CONVENTION AT MADISON ENJOYED

The High Court of the Independent Order of Foresters met at Madison on Wednesday and about 200 delegates from all over the State were in attendance. Officers for the next two years' term were elected, among whom were Dr. Mark L. Clawson, High Court Physician, and A. M. Vanderbeek, a member of the Supervision of Laws committee. Dr. Clawson and Mr. Vanderbeek were the representatives from Court Watchung, No. 3871. Immediately after the meeting session a banquet was served and the afternoon session resumed at 2:30.

A feature which surprised and pleased the delegates was the street decorations of flags and bunting put up by the merchants of Madison. It was a totally unexpected tribute to the Foresters and much appreciated. Court Plainfield No. 1144, was represented by Chief Ranger Henry Hanson, Lewis J. Feiring, James and Charles McCarthy, Max Winzenried, Fred Brown, James Paterson and Edward J. McCue. Dr. H. H. Lowrie was also among the high court officers present. L. T. Titsworth, of Dunellen, the State organizer, also a high court officer, was present.

The high court will meet in Plainfield in 1911.

PLAINFIELD REPRESENTED AT THE $50,000 BANQUET.

Former Mayor Lewis V. F. Randolph, retired financier; former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House; former Mayor B. A. Hageman, New York manufacturer, and David H. Rowland, banker, were the Plainfielders to be honored with invitations for the sumptuous $50,000 Hudson-Fulton celebration at the Hotel Astor, on Wednesday night. The feast was attended by rulers, princes, kings of finance and the foremost men of brains from all quarters of the earth.

Yates—Valentine.

The Presbyterian church, Westfield, was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday when Miss Marguerite Stores Valentine, of Brooklyn, and Westfield, was married to J. W. Yates, Jr., of Virginia. The Rev. Dwight Hillis, of Brooklyn, officiated. A reception was held at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Lamb.

TALK POLITICS AT FAIR

Carlton B. Pierce is Boomed for G. O. P. Leadership of House.

PLUMS FOR SOMERSET COUNTY.

Frelinghuysen for Presidency of the Senate—Smalley, Maybe, for Speaker of the Assembly.

Fresh from primary battles in which many political heads were thumped, several hundred New Jersey politicians rallied around the president's table at the Inter-State fair grounds Thursday afternoon and hobnobbed with one another.

Union county was one of the many bailiwicks that turned up a slim representation. United States Senator John Kean, who has not missed a Politicians' Day at the fair in fifteen years, was a conspicuous figure in the throng. He wore his usual serene look and maintained his reputation of being a good handshaker. "Union county Republicans have nominated a strong ticket," he said, "and on election day we will send all the candidates through to victory by very comfortable majorities."

Whenever the effect of the primary results on the United States senatorial situation was discussed, it was conceded that Senator Kean had come out of the factional row with flying colors. He was not found in any of the fights as were Governor Fort and former Governor Stokes, who are both considered to look longingly to the senatorial togs now worn by the Sage of Ursino. It was openly admitted, today, that Stokes is nursing a political black eye as a result of the fight in his home county of Cumberland, where the voters rolled up a big majority in favor of the renomination of Assemblyman Isaac T. Nichols against the vigorous and determined opposition of the former Governor.

In a somewhat similar manner Governor Fort undergoes a loss of prestige on the face of the returns in Essex county. The Governor sided with Colonel Austin Colgate in the latter's determination for the chairmanship of the Essex county Republican committee, and the Colonel was beaten by Dalrymple, the "regular" candidate against whom Mr. Fort directed a broadside of criticism in the speech he delivered in Newark last week. On the other hand, contrary to the experience of the present and the former governor, Senator Kean's own county is solidly and harmoniously in sympathy with his being continued in the upper house of congress.

Banking on the assurance that the Republican ticket will win easily in Union county, a number of the present members of the Legislature predicted the elevation of Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Plainfield, to a very influential place in the next law-making body. Assemblyman William W. Smalley, of Somerset county, who has broken political precedents in his section by capturing a nomination for a fourth term, said to The Daily Press correspondent that he believed Mr. Pierce should be made majority leader at the next session.

"How about the speakership for him?" was suggested.

"No, I think we would prefer the leadership," replied Mr. Smalley. "He would make a splendid leader, too," continued the Somerset county legislator; "he has the natural aptitude for the job, he is experienced and he is thoroughly honest. He would make a good speaker, too, but without knowing just how he feels I should say offhand that the leadership would appeal to him."

Mr. Smalley himself was suggested as good speakership timber, assuming that the Democrats would continue Republican in majority.

"Oh, no, I hardly think I could get that honor," commented Mr. Smalley. "Of course, Senator Frelinghuysen will be president of the Senate next session, and in view of this it would hardly be regarded an equitable distribution of honors to accord one county the presiding officer of each house."

So far as the Senate organization is concerned, it is acknowledged that Senator Ackerman will serve as majority leader at the coming session. This will put him in line for the Senate presidency the following year. Senator Ackerman was in town yesterday acting as a member of the State Board of Canvassers to canvass the vote on the constitutional amendments, but he did not arrive in time to go out to the fair grounds.

James E. Martine, of this city, and General Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, were the only Union county Democrats who mingled with other politicians. It was the first time in several years that the "farmer orator" has not come down to the fair as a candidate for some office. He was none the less effusive, however, concerning Democratic hopes.

The Sooner the Better.

"How old are you, Madam?" asked the cross-examining lawyer. The woman blushed deeply, and stammeringly blurted out:

"I—I," and stopped short.

The attorney looked guilty. "Please, Madam, quickly," he urged in a gentle, kindly voice. "It's getting worse every minute, you know."

SOLD LIQUOR ILLEGALLY

Jury Speedily Convicts Siegel Cooper Company's Driver.

ANOTHER PLEADS GUILTY.

Acker, Merril and Condict's Employe, Makes No Defense—R. H. Macy & Co., Next on the Calendar.

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., assistant prosecutor, won a signal victory for the State Thursday in securing a verdict in the first of several cases, in which it is the purpose to stop the practice of the New York department stores from illegally selling liquor at retail in the county. The cause won yesterday by the State was directed against the Siegel Cooper Company, Edward Coleman, a driver for that concern, being the defendant in the action. The jury was out but ten minutes when it returned a verdict of guilty with recommendations for mercy.

Immediately afterward, Alva Dunham, driver for Acker, Merrill and Condit, through his counsel, Frank E. Laughran, of Jersey City, entered a plea of non vult. The cases against R. H. Macy and the Merchants' Express Company will be tried in December.

In view of the fact that Union county is the first of any in the State to secure a conviction in these cases, the result is of the greatest importance. No intimation was given yesterday that the Siegel Cooper Company would take the case up on an appeal, but it is believed that this will be done. The concern was represented by McDermott & Enright, the latter trying the case and representing Coleman.

Mr. Hetfield, representing the State, called among his witnesses, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rainey, formerly of this city, to prove the sale of liquor; that they gave the order for the liquor here and the delivery was made here. Immediately after Mr. Enright moved for a verdict in favor of the defendant on the ground that it was a violation of the Interstate commerce act, known as the Wilson bill. For over two hours this point was hotly contested by Mr. Hetfield and Mr. Enright. The former contended that the liquor was delivered by an agent for Siegel Cooper Co., and the action was not an intervention of a common carrier.

Mr. Hetfield said: "Where the delivery is made the place of sale of a common carrier the place of delivery is the place of sale." He maintained that the goods were in the control of the Seigel Cooper Co., until delivered to the Raineys and the act sustained this contention. Mr. Hetfield admitted that if the liquor had been shipped by express that would be no violation, but it was not shipped that way.

At the conclusion of the presentation of Hetfield, the case was given to the jury and within ten minutes a verdict of guilty was returned. Mr. Hetfield was congratulated upon the splendid manner in which he handled the case.

The New York department stores were discovered taking orders and delivering liquor in this city and steps were taken to stop it. Alva Dunham, driving for Acker, Merrill & Condit; Edward Coleman, driver for the Seigel Cooper Co., Lewis Walker, driver for R. H. Macy & Co., and Thomas Meehan driver for the Merchants' Express Company, were arrested. They were indicted at the May term of court.

The Seigel Cooper Co., filed a bill in the United States District court in effort to restrain the further proceedings against them on the grounds that it was a violation of the Interstate commerce act. Judge Cross in a lengthy opinion decided against the Siegel Cooper Company. Sentence will be pronounced in the case of Seigel Cooper Co., during the week of October 11. Yesterday's case was tried before Judge E. S. Atwater and a jury at Elizabeth.

It is reliably reported that since the indictments were found by the grand jury, the practice of the New York department stores has not ceased here. One taxpayer exhibits a bottle of whiskey which it is stated was obtained from a driver for one of the New York stores contrary to law.

Y. M. C. A. Concert.

The first fall concert will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night, October 19, in the association hall. Miss Grace Carroll, contralto soloist at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will be the soloist of the evening. Both popular and classical selections will be rendered and the audience will be favored with old-time favorite music. Tickets may be secured from the association or Hodge's pharmacy.

Will Become Hotel Proprietor.

Nelson Peterson has given up his position as mail carrier on the rural free delivery route, No. 2, which extends to Watchung, Martinsville and that vicinity, and an examination will be held at the postoffice Saturday, November 6, to fill the position. Mr. Peterson has purchased Binz's Hotel at Mt. Bethel and will conduct that place in the future. Information about the civil service examination can be obtained from W. B. Sharp at the postoffice.

LEGISLATURE'S NOMINEES

Senators to be Elected in Eight Counties, Assemblymen in Twenty-one.

LIST OF THE CANDIDATES.

Judging from Interest Manifested the November Election Will Be a Lively One.

The list of nominees for the Legislature is the chief theme political among the leaders just now. There are comparatively few men in it now serving in the Legislature, and in some cases the nominees are men who have had little or no experience in public office.

At present there is the usual lull immediately following the primaries and the opening of the campaign. Judging from the interest manifested in both parties the strife for victory at the polls in November will be the liveliest one Jersey has seen in a decade.

WHIPPANY RIVER CLUB RACE MEET, OCT. 9 AND 12

The Whippany River Club expects to have a lively race meet at its course, near Morristown, on Saturday afternoon, October 9, and Tuesday afternoon, October 12. The meet will be held under the recognition of the hunts committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, and will probably prove to be a big society event, as well as furnishing a great exhibition of fine horseflesh. There are to be five races each day, some on the flat and some across country, as follows:

Saturday, October 9.

First Race—For galloways, four years old and upwards. To carry 155 pounds. About one-half mile on the flat.

Second Race—Steeplechase, for halfbred bona fide hunters. To carry 165 pounds. About three miles over a fair hunting country.

600-FOOT WIRELESS STATION FOR THE NAVY.

The United States navy department will soon let out bids for the erection of the tallest wireless telegraph station in the world. It will be located near Washington, and will be one of the most modern and powerful stations in the country. Shooting up into the air to a distance of 600 feet, forty-five feet taller than the Washington monument, and only shorter than Eiffel tower, in Paris, and two structures in New York city, the new tower will indeed be a marvel in construction and wireless communication. The tower will be of concrete, according to a prominent naval officer.

At the apex will be a long slender wooden pole, not unlike a flagpole. From the top of this pole, a wire or steel umbrella-shaped frame will be erected for the purpose of attaching wires which will run to the station on the ground floor of the tower. When once the work is started it will take more than six months to complete it.

The most powerful wireless machinery in the world will be installed in the tower. This machinery will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000.—Popular Mechanics.

Invitations have been sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bushnell, of Hartford, Conn., to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jessie Jamison Bushnell, to James Spencer Taintor, on Friday afternoon, October 22, at 3:30 o'clock in the Center church, Hartford.

A reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Bushnell and family were former residents of this city, having their home on Madison avenue and has many friends in town.

THE WIFE.

I stretch out both my hands to you
If pleased you once to call them fair;
Look now and see if anywhere
Are hands more scarred and worn than these
That lost their fairness serving you.

I lift up my two eyes to you—
If pleased you once to call them sweet;
Judge now if any eyes repeat
Their lack of light—poor eyes that wept
Their sweetness out in guarding you.

Oh, hands and eyes once dear to you
I would not they had served you less,
Yet hands like these who might caress,
Nor eyes like these win love again
For all their wistful prayer to you.
—Theodosia Garrison in Harper's Bazar.

WE WANT SOUTH AMERICA'S TRADE.

The people of this country do not understand the enormous value of the commerce of South America. If they did there would be such a clamor at the doors of Congress in favor of subsidizing a South American steamship line that it would compel immediate attention. A former President of Peru, the Hon. Jose Pardo, who recently arrived in New York, said, with a tinge of sarcasm, that "if the people of the United States would turn aside from sentimental platitudes about the closeness of relations between this and South American republics, and do something practical in the way of actually shortening the physical distance between them, the whole of the Western Continent would benefit." Mr. Pardo said that one of the last acts of his official life was to bring about the passage of a bill to create a new steamship company, which will shorten the time between Peru and the United States by nine days. He adding, "If a poor country like Peru can give a subsidy of $100,000 a year to bring us nearer to the United States, it is time for the United States 'to do something of the same kind to make it possible to reach Panama more quickly." Our wisest statesmen are beginning to realize that, with the opening of the Panama Canal, the United States will enjoy a great advantage over its competitors in competing for the business of South America. It is for this reason that Presidents Roosevelt and Taft both urged upon Congress the passage of a subsidy bill to encourage American shipping. Mr. Root, as Secretary of State, was also impressed with the urgent necessity of such legislation, and now on the floor of the Senate will, we believe, be able to champion it to a successful conclusion. — Leslie's Weekly.

LIGHT BREAKFAST DELUSION.

It is customary to make the first meal of the day slightly the lightest and display the plainest and simplest of the three. If there be any deficiency of the appetite breakfast is the meal at which this is most likely to show itself. But this lack of appetite is in nine cases out of ten clearly traceable to sleeping in an unventilated room or for late hours in foul air the night before, or to insufficient exercise the preceding day, and is no indication that the body really requires less food at this time. Perfectly healthy men who sleep with their windows open and go to bed at a reasonable hour will tell you that they enjoy their breakfast as well as any meal of the day, and many even call it their best meal.

Another popular delusion in regard to the lightness and unimportance of the breakfast is that widespread subterfuge, the "continental breakfast," consisting of a cup of coffee and some fruit or a single roll. This is a very pretty breakfast as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far, and the sole basis for its adoption on the continent is that it is only intended as a temporary tideover until the real breakfast of meat, eggs, fish, with beer or wine, which is taken at about 10 or 11 o'clock, the very early luncheon. If you haven't got a good appetite for breakfast make it your business to go and get one instead of allowing yourself to be blinded by this morbid state of affairs and deciding that all you want is a cup of coffee and a roll or an orange or a puff of breakfast bran.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson in the Women's Home Companion.

MOURNING FASHIONS.

The chief materials employed for the mourning gowns this season are silk and wool armures, jet-finished silk voiles and marquisettes, also etamines and dull silks. For the suits and the long coats, jet-dyed serges and an occasional homespun or rhadame are used. Henrietta cloth will be served in very fine grades for the house or receiving dress; or, in its heavier weights, for the street suit. Black China silk is used almost exclusively for linings, and nets of various sorts are used over or with crepe de chine. There are also mourning fringes of crinkled silk, or of strands of sun silk forms, and much dull jet trimming in band and drop form.

A great deal of white crepe is used. It appears in some shops to be superseding the sheer linen cuffs and collars which for years have been the sole bit of white allowed to the widow in her first period of mourning.—Harper's Bazar.

THE KNITTED COAT.

As a sporting garment the knitted coat has its standing. For traveling its worth is not so well known. With it a coat suit of medium weight is available for all weathers.

For warmth on boat or motor (not to mention aeroplane) there is nothing to equal the knitted coat. The best of these are made by hand, and most of them are done with a loose, open stitch that provides for ventilation while yet supplying warmth. One of them, three-quarter length, is knitted in wide ribs, and is a mixture of brown and heather purple, with a little touch of pale amber to brighten it. It is double-breasted, there is a useful pocket on the breast, and there are two larger ones below the waist. The workmanlike character of this coat will appeal to the real traveler who knows what's what.

Many may prefer the shorter coats, also hand knitted, which can be worn either open or closed on the chest. Some of them are provided with roll collars, which can be turned up during a shower and rolled down again when it is over. The sleeves are wide enough to go easily over other sleeves and are caught in at the wrists with more closely knitted bands. Pockets, too, are supplied on these. In everyday life at home we may do without pockets, but when traveling we rebel against tailor and dressmaker who would forbid us these comforts.

HARNESSING THE MISSOURI.

Keen interest is manifested by Congressman Borland, of Kansas City, Mo., in the improvement of international waterways. The Missouri River is going to waste because of the failure of Congress to provide adequate appropriations for the improvement of the "longest stream in the world." At Kansas City and from that point to St. Louis, the Missouri pours along in a generous, if somewhat wayward flood of water. If its banks were protected and its channel cleared the river soon would cut a deep enough channel for any sort of inland waterway traffic.

The field products of Kansas in one year, with bushels as the standard of comparison, aggregate as high as all the coal mined annually in Pennsylvania. It more than equals all the vast traffic which annually passes down the Ohio river. It is not necessary to wait for high water; the water is there. If the government were one-half as generous with the channel as with the work of permanent betterments, as good results for every month from ice to ice would be achieved as the Ohio produces in the few months of the year when it is available for use.—National Magazine.

EMPLOYES AS STOCKHOLDERS.

Professor Graham Taylor, in his department and Industrial Survey, for September Survey, says that the International Harvester Company has advanced in co-operating with its employes far beyond the very successful Benefit Association and Pension Fund.

"The partnership-stockholding-profit-sharing scheme announced by the company July 1, 1909, also seems to us to be in advance of other similar policies in being most justly considerate of the employes' interests and vicissitudes. The company frankly states it to be its own interest to offer to sell stock to its employes as an inducement to remain continuously in the employ of the company, and to have and show the active interest of a stockholder or working partner in the business. But so far from making ownership of stock any bar to independence in continuing in or leaving the employ of the company, the safeguards of the employe's liberty, as well as the money he has invested, seem to be as protective to him as they are liberal upon the part of the company."

THOUGHTLESS CLERKS.

Every business has a good will cap, and every satisfied customer is a feather in that cap. Trained men at high salaries are employed to keep tightly in place the feathers that are already there, and to add new feathers.

It is the advertising department that is most conspicuously engaged in the feathering process, while the adjusting department is most characteristically employed in keeping the plumes firmly anchored. Both of those departments are maintained at a large proportionate expense, which goes to show the value of feathers.

Who then in the organization of a business could be mischevious enough to pluck the feathers from the good will cap? Who, indeed? Let all day long, here and there throughout some stores, Peck! Peck! go ruthless beaks, impelled by raven brains in the heads of vacuous clerks. —From "Plucking the Feathers from the Good will Cap," by George Rockhill Craw, in The Book-Keeper.

"So you left the farm and came up to town?" interrogated the business man. "I suppose you thought every day up here would be a heyday?"

"Yeas, sir," drawled the bumpkin, as he twirled his hat in an embarassed way.

"But why did you leave the farm?"

"Because, boss, every day down there was a hay day. They never would let me stop ricking it, begosh."—Chicago News.

MANY BUILDING PERMITS

Inspector T. O. Doane Reports Unusual Business During Last Month.

ARE MOSTLY FOR RESIDENCES.

Not Enough Houses to Supply the Great Demand, the Local Realty Agents Say.

Building permits have been issued during the month of September considerably in excess of the number usually approved at this time of the year. The most important building to be erected is that now in course of construction on Park avenue for the Courier-News. Nearly all the others are for frame dwellings and are in various sections of the city.

Werner Heidloff is building a two-story frame dwelling on Westerveldt avenue, 200 feet north of Front street, and has a permit for a one-story garage on the premises. W. H. Clum is the architect and Stahl and Kinney will do the carpenter work. Other frame dwellings for which permits have been issued are: To Fred E. Smith, two story and attic, at 605 Central avenue; John Abel, two story house on Everett place; Clare Naylor, two story and attic dwelling at East Second and Washington avenue; Edith M. Partlinger, two story and attic dwelling on Ravine road. The architects for this building are Hollingsworth and Bragdon. A permit for a one story garage has been issued to Minnie J. Marsh, of 106 Westervelt avenue, which will be built by A. P. Marsh.

Among others Charles Loizeaux, of 620 North avenue, will build a two story and attic dwelling on Cameron avenue, for which George Hummer has the contract. W. H. P. Veysey, of 812 Park avenue, will build a square frame garage and Minnie E. Stephenson has contracted for a one story brick store on Madison avenue near Front street. Dr. A. E. Brennan has given the contract for the carpenter work on his new dwelling on Park avenue, to John A. McNally. This will be a two story and attic frame structure. Many permits were also issued for alterations.

Notwithstanding the briskness in building there are not enough houses to supply the demand. One of the best known house agents in town said today that the demand for flats and small dwellings far exceeds the supply and many house hunters are being turned away unsatisfied every week. At present there is considerable demand for flats or small detached houses for rent no to exceed twenty dollars per month.

FLIRTATION BY MAIL BARRED IN PLAINFIELD

Postoffice authorities here and throughout the country have decided to turn a censorious eye on flirtations by mail and the department where this governmental chaperonage will be exercised is in the "general delivery" department. Misuse of the mails in this way will be made as difficult as possible.

Of course there are some people, such as transients, who have their mail sent ahead and get it at the general delivery window, but records show that this has more often been a means used by individuals who have good reason to conceal their real place of residence or else want to get their mail under an assumed name.

The authorities have come to the conclusion that Cupid is spending too much over the general delivery window and that the mischief carried out there are apt to be too burning and often rather misdirected, both from the viewpoint of affection and propriety. It is the foolish young girl who falls a prey to the lure of the general delivery. It is the "sport" who will think to carry on a correspondence under an assumed name or receive letters that would never get through under strict parental supervision.

The rule that has been applied in most of the larger cities is to insist on identification by returning the mail and when letters keep coming for a number of weeks or months to ask the recipients why the mail cannot be delivered at their regular address.

TO BUILD MODEL SEWAGE PLANT

Town of Roebling to Have First Plant Installed by Printz Owner.

The John A. Roebling's Sons Company, of Trenton, has completed arrangements for the installation of a modern sewage disposal plant at its new town of Roebling, down the Delaware River.

This will be in keeping with the policy of the State in preventing the pollution of its potable waters. It will be the first system of its kind and also installed by private ownership. The town of Roebling is owned entirely by the Roebling Company, and is inhabited exclusively by couple will reside in the borough.

MISS PUGH THE BRIDE OF J. PETER KIRCH

Miss Alice A. Pugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Pugh, of 954 West Fourth street, and J. Peter Kirch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kirch, also of this city, were married Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. George S. Bolsterle, of West Lyden, N. Y., brother-in-law of the bride.

The bride, gowned in white silk, trimmed with Irish lace, and carrying a shower bouquet, was attended by Miss Marguerite T. Blair, of Jersey City, as maid-of-honor. She also wore a gown of white silk, and carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. The best man was Fred A. Kirch, brother of the groom. The wedding march was played by Miss Flora Kirch, sister of the groom.

The house was decorated for the occasion with flowers of the season, the arrangement in the parlor and dining-room being especially attractive. After the ceremony there was an informal reception, during which congratulations were offered and supper was served.

Mrs. Kirch was the recipient of a large collection of gifts, including silverware, cut-glass, furniture and four checks for substantial amounts. Later in the evening the couple left on a wedding trip. They will reside in the Necherwood section. The groom is engaged in business as a contractor in Newark.

The bride is a member of Trinity Reformed church and Sunday-school, where she has been active in religious work. Both she and her husband have a host of friends with whom they are popular.

WARREN DIXON AND DETECTIVES SUED.

Four Elizabeth private detectives have been named as defendants to a suit brought by Thomas A. Alton, of Elizabeth, to recover damages for injuries, which he alleged he received when they raided the home of Mrs. Eleanor Dudley S. Dixon, last May, in search for divorce evidence for Warren Dixon, corporation counsel of Jersey City, whose suit is now pending in the Court of Chancery. Alton was arraigned after the raid and placed under bond for a hearing. Sidney Applegate and Alfred J. Stein are Alton's counsel. The detectives' names are Thomas Carey, James Dowd, Edward S. Kenney and Christopher Van Pelt.

Two Jersey City detectives, William J. Thompson and Samuel Stiller, and Mr. Dixon himself are included in the list of defendants. Alton places his damages at $25,000. The declaration is returnable at Trenton on October 7. Corporation Counsel Dixon and some of the detectives were served with the declaration yesterday. In it Mr. Alton sets up that Mr. Dixon and the six detectives pummelled him and bore him to the ground. Mr. Alton further claims that following this assault he was taken to 220 Climton street to Elizabeth Police Headquarters, the route of which carried him through several public streets; that he was confined in a police cell for three and one-half hours, that no lawful complaint was made against him, and that as a result of all that happened he was held up to shame and ridicule, and was greatly humiliated and disgraced.

Alton, it is rumored, after the raid, tried to have Mr. Dixon indicted by the Hudson County Grand Jury, but failed.

LIFE OF RAILS ON ELECTRIC AND STEAM ROADS.

Some interesting statements relative to the decreased length of life of electric rails as compared with those on steam roads was brought to light at a recent meeting of railroad men held in Sheffield, England.

Professor McWilliam, of the Sheffield University, said, in reference to the corrugation of rails on electric roads, he considered it to be a mechanical effect of the mechanism running on the rail.

All the metallurgist can do, he said, is to try to find something that will wear longer under the conditions of this service. Chief Engineer Willox, of the Metropolitan Railway, London, said that on steam roads, with the use of large wheels and heavy trains, rails may be twenty-five years or more. However, with a low centre of gravity, small wheels, the dead weights of motors and the extraordinary acceleration, which are features of electric service, rails of rails comes nearer being twenty-five months. He had found that rails rolled from steel to which silicon additions had been made, had an increased life of about 110 per cent.

MISS MILDRED BOYLAN BRIDE OF J. D. AMMERMAN.

Miss Mildred Boylan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Boylan, of Bergen street, the borough, and John D. Ammerman, of Mountain avenue, were quietly married Wednesday by Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey at his home on Grandview avenue. They were unattended.

The bride is interested in religious work at Warren chapel. The groom holds a position in New York. The

PLAN FOR PUBLIC MARKET

Durlach Estate Arranging to Make Improvement in East Front Street.

DETAILS ARE ANNOUNCED.

J. Fred MacDonald Agent for the Estate—Another Market for North Avenue.

Elaborate plans for the establishment of a public market on the Durlach property at East Front street and Watchung avenue, are now being considered by the Durlach Estate, and if sufficient encouragement is given the estate will erect an attractive and thoroughly up-to-date building on the corner for the purpose.

A preliminary diagram has been prepared and has been shown among those interested in the project. The diagram provides for a building 250 feet long on Watchung avenue and forty feet on East Front street, with thirty-six stalls, fourteen feet long, to rent at $18 a month. According to the proposed plans the building would be unusually attractive for it would have an almost solid glass front on both sides and merchants would have the great advantage of having their stalls face the street in the open.

The details call for a solid concrete floor, with all modern appliances in each stall such as running water and an equipment for flushing the stalls with water. There would be an entrance on Watchung avenue and East Front street as well, with a wide passage way extending the full length of the structure.

The Durlachs did plan to erect about fourteen small stores on the corner, but since reconsidered the matter and now believe that a public market would be more advantageous. J. Fred MacDonald, the local representative of the estate, has the diagram and if a sufficient number of merchants show an inclination to lease stalls the estate will at once go ahead with the building and have it completed before winter sets in. Already several persons have shown an interest in the proposition.

The Quoin Investment Company, of which Ira L. LaRue is a prominent stockholder, has acquired the property now occupied by the Plainfield Cab Company and it plans to convert that building into a public market by December 1. Stalls will be erected in the building extending from North avenue to Second street, and the second floor will be removed, allowing an abundance of light and air.

WINGS AS A FISH-CATCHER.

Habits of the cormorant and of our native fish hawk are generally known. Their methods of taking fish are very much like those of birds of prey. But the cassowary fishes according to a method of its own. A well-known naturalist reports its operations on a river in the island of New Britain.

He saw a cassowary come down to the water's edge and stand for some minutes apparently watching the water carefully. It then stepped into the river where it was almost three feet deep, and partially squatting down, spread its wings out, submerging them, the feathers being spread and ruffled.

The bird remained motionless, and kept its eyes closed as if in sleep. It remained in this position for a quarter of an hour, when suddenly closing its wings and straightening its feathers it stepped out on the bank. Here it shook itself several times, whereupon a quantity of small fishes fell out of its wings and from amid its feathers. These the bird immediately picked up and swallowed.

"Through a Window," a play of San Francisco by Gertrude Andrews, in which Mary Bertrand is to play the leading role, goes into rehearsal next month.

John Slavin in "The Hot Air King," by Harry B. Smith and Raymond Hubbell, will begin his rehearsals next month. This musical comedy will probably open in Chicago for a run.

Klaw & Erlanger have given McIntyre and Heath the best show these clever comedians have ever had. They will leave New York with the prestige of a successful engagement in the John J. McNally musical comedy, "In Hayti," at the Circle theatre. Jerome and Schwartz have supplied in the songs, "Romeo and Juliet" and "Busy Izzy," two melodies that will be whistled wherever lips can pucker and hearts are light. There are one hundred persons in the cast and the chorus is not only pretty, but can really sing.

Charles Frohman has Bernard Shaw's word that if the American manager is able to carry out his plan of projecting a comprehensive season of Bernard Shaw plays for America, the witty playwright will come to America to serve as Mr. Frohman's acting manager in the enterprise. For this purpose Mr. Frohman has secured two new one-act plays by Mr. Shaw. The principal reason for Mr. Frohman's eagerness to get back to London is to produce his Repertoire theatre scheme at The Duke of York's.

Charles Frohman, having now made five productions in America and five in London, has yet into rehearsal "Inconstant George," John Drew's new play; "The Builder of Bridges," in which Kyrle Bellew will be the star; "Your Humble Servant," with Otis Skinner in the chief part; "The Bachelor's Baby," Frances Wilson's new comedy; "Israel;" and "The Harvest Moon," a new play by Augustus Thomas. Through his London general manager Mr. Frohman has begun the rehearsals of "Smith," the new W. Somerset Maugham comedy.

Under the management of Messrs. Shubert, Fred C. Whitney has again come forward as a producer, affixing his name to a contract whereby he will book exclusively through the Messrs. Shubert, and will only play his productions in Shubert and other open door theatres in this country. Mr. Whitney's first production is "The Chocolate Soldier," which is to be seen at the Lyric theatre. The American adaptation of this operetta is by Stanislas Stange and the music by Oscar Strauss, the celebrated Viennese composer. "The Chocolate Soldier" is a musical setting of George Bernard Shaw's great satire, "Arms and the Man," and in the cast are Ida Brocks Hunt, William Pruette, Flavia Arcaro, Jack Gardner, George Gilmore, Henry Norman and others equally prominent. Mr. Whitney will also produce during the season Lehar's newest musical comedy entitled "Gypsy Love," which George Edwards will produce in London, as well as another musical comedy, "The Slave," by C. M. S. McClellan and Ivan Caryll. Another important production will be Paul Bourget's great play "Divorce."

Swans on the Thames.

More than 200 cygnets have been reared on the Thames between Southwark bridge and Marsh lock, Heney, during the last season. The largest brood, says the London Evening Standard, was one of nine cygnets at Hallifford. The black swans at Goring which are owned by the Vintners Company, have also multiplied.

Altogether there are about 500 swans on the Thames between the places indicated, the King being the owner of the greatest number and the remainder being the property of the Dyers and Vintners companies.

Lefferts, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lefferts, of Plainfield, and Miss Frances Benjamin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin, of 165 Ryerson street, will be married this month or the early part of November. Mr. Lefferts is connected with the firm of Jacobs & Berger and is well known in the market."

Mr. Phan (roaring from the top of the stairs)—Mildred! What is that young man doing down there so late?

WEALTHY MAN'S BODY IN A POTTER'S FIELD

The remains of Philip Jahn, the wealthy Cranford painter, were found on Saturday afternoon buried in the Potter's field in New York city. Jahn mysteriously disappeared from his home on August 31, and a large reward had just been offered for any information that would lead to finding him. On Saturday Miss Mary Singer, a relative of his, identified at the coroner's office, in New York, a watch and memorandum book found in the effects of an aged man who died at the Glen Island Hotel, 90 Cortlandt street, New York, as the property of Philip Jahn.

Jahn's body had been interred in the Potter's field as he had no money in his effects when the body was found. He had registered at the hotel as K. Miller, and it was under that name he was buried. Through accident Miss Singer learned from a Elizabeth woman that had seen a body resembling Jahn's description when the woman had visited the morgue in search of a relative who had also disappeared. That led to Miss Singer visiting the coroner's office and identifying the effects of the dead contractor. The body has been removed to Cranford for burial.

Jahn was over seventy years old, and leaves a family. His estate is estimated to be valued at $100,000.

MRS. WM. PALMER SMITH DIES AT HOLLAND HOUSE

Mrs. Georgiana Hoadley Smith, wife of William Palmer Smith, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Hoadley, who resided at West Seventh street and Arlington avenue, for many years, died Saturday at the Holland House, New York following a long illness. She underwent two operations in the hope of saving her life, but without avail.

Mrs. Smith resided on Belvidere avenue for a number of years. Prior to her illness, she was actively engaged in church and charitable work first at St. Stephen's church and later at Grace church. She was married twice, her first husband being William Smalley, a New York broker. During her first marriage she resided at East Ninth street and First place. Mr. Smalley died about six years after his marriage.

Her second husband is a member of the Breese & Smith, bankers and brokers at 96 Broadway, New York. Besides the husband, Mrs. Smith leaves three sons and three daughters. The funeral services was held from the late home at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

POWDER BOY ECLIPSES HIS OWN PACING RECORD.

Powder Boy, the crack Jersey pacer, broke the track record at the Rahway and Woodbridge Driving Club matinee Saturday by reeling off the third heat in the 2:25 pace in 2:17 1-5. This performance eclipses by two and one-fifth seconds the former track record made by the same horse three weeks ago. Powder Boy had little difficulty in taking three heats in a row from Byron Girl. The other three events on the program were all well-contested. Little Jim, driven by J. Watson, ran three good races in the 2:40 trot and pace, defeating Branon by short margins in each heat. THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF SIMON SCHEUER.

Simon Scheuer, one of Newark's foremost citizens, who died last week, and who was the founder of the Scheuer Rubber Shoes bearing his name, was buried with impressive ceremonies of the Masonic rite in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery, Newark, Sunday afternoon.

Four thousand persons viewed the body at B'nai Jeshurun, in Washington street, Newark, where public services were held. One-tenth of the mourners were identified with the great business houses he founded. Hundreds were present at the interment.

A Few Hints.

It is said that a pinch of salt put in a can of tomatoes when preserving time comes will help to keep the vegetables a long time. Every one knows how flat canned tomatoes sometimes taste, and perhaps a little salt will help to overcome this objection.

MISSING WIFE SENDS POSTALS TO CHILDREN

Mrs. Catherine Schuster, wife of Christian Schuster, of 79½ Court street, Elizabeth, who mysteriously disappeared from her home on Monday night, has sent word from Montreal. She wrote postal cards to each of the three children whom she left. The other three are with her. She said nothing on the cards except to ask for the address of a brother, William Grauf, who lives at Stony Plain, Alberta, Canada. She did not address a card to her husband.

Mr. Schuster said today that he believes his wife will go to the home of her brother. He was undecided he said, as to whether he would try to bring her back to this city or allow her to remain there. He said he would send a telegram today to the Montreal police.

He is satisfied that his wife is of unsound mind and for this reason he is caused all the more worry. He says that he missed his wife when he returned from his work in the Singer plant Monday night. He made inquiries and learned that she had been wandering about the street in the pouring rain carrying in her arms a six-weeks-old child.

He went to the station house and told Captain John O'Leary of his plight. The latter advised him to make a complaint against his wife in the City Criminal Court and have her committed to the county jail to be examined as to her sanity. Schuster said he would and left the station house to search for his family.

The fact that the woman had $150 in her possession led the police to believe that she might have boarded a train and taken the children hundreds of miles away from home. She could go to some Western city and with the money she would have left after paying her fare she could easily keep herself and children for several weeks.

Neighbors of the Schusters declared that their home life was very happy. Mrs. Schuster, they say, was a hard working woman and a crank on cleanliness. It is said that for fear of bringing dirt into her living rooms she would keep the doors locked and prevent anyone from entering except when there was absolute necessity. Mrs. Schuster is the mother of six children. Her husband recently purchased the four-family house at 79 and 79½ Court street.

SCOTCH PLAINS' NEEDS AS SEEN BY A PASTOR

An auspicious Rally Day meet was held Sunday at the Scotch Plains Baptist church. In the morning session Rev. Dr. Franklin K. Mathews called for a larger and more enthusiastic attendance and deplored the delinquency that obtained among the members.

At the afternoon vesper service Rev. Mr. Mathiews spoke on "Things Needed in Scotch Plains." He remarked upon the number of licensed saloons, and said that the great need of the town was a Y. M. C. A. or similar association to look particularly after the moral welfare of the young men. An organiation of this order, he predicted, was certain to win out in a fight with the liquor interests.

Mr. Lingus, the well known Brooklyn baritone, rendered several solos that found universal praise.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 10, 1909.

By REV. E. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—How can we help our pastor?—Ex. xvii, 8-13.

The life of the pastor of a church today is one of so many and complex duties that he needs all the help that the church can give him and is especially encouraged when the young people come to his assistance, show their appreciation of his labors and lend a hand to make them more effective. What helps one pastor may by many another. Therefore, before Endeavorers can help their pastors, they must study their dispositions and environments, so that they can exercise judgment in all that they do. Pastors are human. They have hearts. They have feelings. They need help and encouragement as well as those to whom they try, by the grace of God, to administer these same things. Some general principles may here be noted.

A realization of the tremendous issues and burdens that rest upon a pastor's shoulders is an absolutely necessary requirement in the helping of pastors. Many treat their work lightly. They look upon the ministry as one of easiest professions. Their idea is that all they have to do is to talk twice on the Sabbath day and that no preparation is required for that. The facts are that the members of no other profession do so much as ministers and none are so poorly paid. But you say, "The ministers aren't not think of money." Christ never said so. He declared that the "worker is worthy of his meat." Moreover, if because of the insignificance of his salary in comparison to his real needs and, as is usually the case, the pastor-minister comes to owe a few debts the cry goes up that he is no good because he does not pay his debts—and often some of those to whom he is indebted owe pew rent to the church of which he is the pastor, and therefore cannot pay him because they do not pay it. Ministers are men. They should, like other men, be paid what they are worth. They should be paid promptly. When that day comes few will ever be in debt or have any more or richer, should bear these facts in mind. Pay your pastors a living salary. Pay it promptly, as you agree to do in calling him, and you will help him and help your church and the world at large.

If some people with false estimates of a minister's duties could go with one in his work for one week they would certainly have a change of mind —two sermons, which require hours of preparation, are preached in the same people Sabbath after Sabbath for years, in addition to at least one midweek lecture, the sick to be visited, the dying to be comforted, the dead to be buried, the bereaved to be comforted and the living to be helped. He goes with the physician, continues with the undertaker and still continues his visiting after both are done. Many other burdens of sorrow rest upon him through the adversities and sins of his people. The Protestant church has no confessional, but Protestant ministers nevertheless have many secret burdens and trials intrusted to them. And to whom should those in trouble go for help and prayer if not their sympathetic? Who more willing to help in time of need? The world, too, makes many demands upon [the minister. No class of men do more beyond their bounds of labor than the ministers. They are the builders of a church and a pastor during his days of health, but when dying he wants one. He may have never darkened a church door, but when he dies his family wants a minister at the funeral service. Why? Because he is "the" minister. "He is not a member of my church" and declines. It is a part of his larger ministry which in Christ he owes to all men. There are no complaints meant by these statements. Such things are the burdens of the minister, and he does them for Christ's sake and the love of his work. The last profession on earth a young man should choose is the ministry unless his heart's one desire is to perform these duties. Nor does this professional attitude enter into his work. Ministers become deeply attached to their people and enter with sincere sympathy into all their troubles and sorrows. And how may pastors be helped in all the burdens of pulpit and pastoral labors? Realize that their hands comfort and encouragement, and thereby help him. Give him your cordial friendship. Do not hold aloof from him because he is your pastor. The ministry is a lonely profession. He is much in public and much in company, and yet he is lonely. Many hold aloof from him and when he is about are constantly on the "anxious seat." Treat him as you would any other Christian man and you will help him.

STONY HILL MISSION COMES TO A CLOSE

The attendance at the closing exercises on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon of the Mission at St. Mary's church, Stony Hill, was such that notwithstanding the isolated situation of the church, its capacity was taxed to the limit, every available space being occupied.

Saturday night the exercises consisted of the consecration of the parish to the Mother of God with a stirring sermon on the topic, "Why We Catholics Honor the Blessed Virgin," followed with the benediction and the Blessed Sacrament. Yesterday morning the usual masses and instructions were held. At the first mass the Holy Name Society received Holy Communion in a body.

The Mission closed at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon with one of the most impressive services in the history of the church. There was a sermon by Rev. Raymond Walsh, the missionary, and among other things thanked his audience for the zeal and many sacrifices they had made, and admonished them to persevere in their promises made during the Mission. The renewal of the Baptismal vows by the assembled audience, each one holding a lighted candle, was impressive. Four little girls, ranging in age from six to eight years, all dressed in white, were sponsors for the congregation.

Then followed the procession with the Blessed Sacrament on the church grounds, the Confraternity, lead by the Holy Name Society, and those in charge of the Mission, all bearing lighted candles. There were 250 persons in line. The Mission closed with the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and the Papal blessing.

"HARVEST HOME" AT SALVATION ARMY HALL.

The Salvation Army hall was crowded to the door Sunday night at the special harvest home meeting. This service was in charge of Mrs. Adjutant Straubel and was almost entirely one of song. The hall was beautifully decorated to represent the harvest time. The background consisted of sheaves of wheat, leaves from the harvest field. Fruits, vegetables and flowers decked the platform.

The service opened with the congregation singing "Bringing in the Sheaves." This was followed by a program of songs: Solo by Miss Dean, duet by the Misses Boss and Marcrom, selection by the Elita Mandolin club, song by the children, by Adjutant Straubell, song by the Misses Boss and Marcrom and Straubell representing the weary, careless and the laden gleaner; solo by Ernest Straubel; selection by Elita Mandolin club; solo by Miss Straubel; scripture reading by Adjutant Straubel.

ROUTINE OF COUNCILMEN

Matters of Minor Importance Disposed of by the City Fathers.

REPORTS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Paid Firemen Appointed—Petitions Are Filed—More Sidewalks in the East End.

Several petitions for new lights and a re-arrangement of present ones were received at the October meeting of the Common Council, Monday. John R. Dresson and other residents of Woodland avenue, asked for more lights on that thoroughfare, claiming that there are few lamps there and of little benefit.

J. A. Albert petitioned for additional lights at Washington and Richmond streets, and Rev. C. S. Kemble and others asked for better street lighting at West Fourth street and Monroe avenue. These petitions were referred to the proper committee.

Regarding a recent action of the Common Council, in which property-owners were ordered to lay sidewalks, the Central Park Realty Company, offered a word of explanation about Thornton avenue. In a communication, Ernest Sharps, said that the company could not fully comply with the order as it had sold considerable property on that avenue. It was willing, however, to lay walks in front of its property; furthermore it offered to deed the street to the city, provided the would accept and macadamize the same. This matter, and another petition from the company asking that Thornton avenue be macadamized, were referred to the street committee.

Charles H. Hand called attention to a sewer assessment in error against his property on Netherwood avenue, claiming that sixteen feet should be deducted to allow for a bridge in front of the property. This was referred to the finance committee.

F. B. Gilbreth, general contractor for the new Frost building on Park avenue, asked for permission to build vaults beneath the sidewalk and the request was granted.

The resignations of Fred D. Wilbor and C. H. Brown, as call-men in the fire department, were received and accepted.

Mayor C. J. Fisk appointed William Jaeger and Joseph Robinson as full-paid members of the fire department, and George Mehl, Jr., as regular firemen, as captain. The appointments were confirmed. Mr. Mehl has been a regular fireman since May, 1894, and the Mayor called attention to his faithful and efficient service.

Overseer of the Poor Alex D. Ayers reported outside expenses of $286.14 and almshouse expenses of $184.12, for the past month. This was referred to the alms committee.

The report of Clerk Horace G. Adams, of the District Court, for the past month showed the receipts to be $154.19 and the disbursements $42.19, leaving a balance of $112.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported the granting of twelve sewer permits during September, and Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of thirty-five permits during the same period.

The city treasurer was authorized to borrow $2,000 on account of the fire department appropriation, on a resolution of Councilman Buxton.

Mr. Gloak offered a resolution, which was adopted, directing that sidewalks be laid on Woodland avenue, between Central street and Raymond road.

In response to a request from Street Commissioner A. J Gavett, Mr. Montgomery offered a motion, which was adopted, directing a rearrangement of lights on Park avenue between Arlington avenue and Cedar brook. This will place one light on Evergreen avenue.

Mr. Gloak called up the ordinance providing for the opening of East Seventh street from Leland avenue to Terrill road, and it was adopted on two readings, and ordered advertised. Monday night, November 1, was fixed as the time for a public hearing on the ordinance.

A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, directed the New York and New Jersey Telephone Co., to remove fire alarm box No. 15, from a pole on Park avenue, opposite North avenue, to Police, Runyon & Co. building at an expense of $17.46. The box has already been moved and the adoption of the resolution simply sanctioned the action.

Out of Fashion.

"Is my hat on straight?"

"Yes—very, or we'll be late."

"Are you sure it's perfectly straight?"

"Indeed it is—you couldn't get it straighter. Are you ready?"

"No. I'll have to go back and change this hat. You know it isn't stylish to have this kind on straight. —Cleveland Leader.

A Hint to Travel.

Weary Walker—What! Don't look like a sailor? Why, I've been following the sea for thirty years.

Farmer Bayeorp—Well, you keep following it for thirty years more, and perhaps you'll catch up with it. —Life.

FORGED SMALL CHECKS

Police Unable to Find Slick Young Man Who Swindles Tradesman.

USED FRENCH'S SIGNATURE.

Crook Twice Makes Trifling Purchase and Successfully Offers Checks in Payment.

Forging checks and passing them on some unsuspecting storekeeper, the work of one "Elston Strong," came to light this morning w hen two checks each for the sum of ten dollars and signed "Elston M. French, Personal Account," were returned marked forgeries to the people who had cashed them. The writing in the bodies of the checks is identical with that of the signature, which, of course, is not that of Mr. French.

Both checks were passed on Saturday and in each instance the forger made a purchase of some small article and received the change from his victim. Albert Brooks, a bird dealer, of Watchung avenue, was the first one to show up with a check marked "forgery." It was drawn on the First National Bank and purported to come from the office of Mr. French as the rubber stamp on the end bore this legend: "Real Estate, 171 North avenue." Being a neighbor of Mr. French, though not being familiar with his signature, Mr. Brooks did not hesitate to cash the check for the stranger and bought a bird cage valued at one dollar.

Winzel Rayshavy, 220 West Front street, was the next to come out shy in his attempt to collect the check given to him in payment for a whip but, this check was almost identical with the one given to Mr. Brooks, the difference being that it was taken from what is known as a pocket check book, while the other was one of the bank's regular books. There may be others yet to be heard from and Mr. French has made formal complaint to the police asking them to apprehend the slick young man who is apparently working his private mine at the expense of the too credulous merchants of this city.

The description of the fellow are so meagre that the police are unable to say anything about the size of the man or his manner of dress excepting that he is well appareled and is affable and courteous. Mr. French is absolved in the deal as to how the forger obtained the rubber stamp which he is using with such splendid financial results and cannot think of anyone who has recently been in his office that might have stole the stamp from his desk, nor are there any rubber stamps missing, so far as could be ascertained this morning. It is believed that the forger is an old hand at the game and that other checks will shortly come to light.

"DEACON" CONWAY LOSES; OTHER CASES IN COURT

The City Court room was filled Tuesday morning when Judge Wm. Runyon took his seat and five cases were disposed of in record time. Charles Hardaway, colored, complained that "Deacon" Spencer Conway was withholding some of his household goods illegally. The deacon promised to meet Hardaway at noon and deliver the goods and both went away smiling.

Joseph Darmito, thirteen years old, appeared to press a complaint against his little neighbor, Minnie Parsino, for striking his younger brother. Upon the advice of Judge Runyon, they agreed to leave each other alone in the future and peace was temporarily restored.

Arthur Gray, an employee of W. E. Van Court, has decamped from Mr. Van Court's home in Oak Tree, where he has been employed for the past two years, leaving Mr. Van Court to pay a balance of thirty dollars on a bicycle purchased from Jack Horner, for which Mr. Van Court was security. It is presumed that young Gray has gone South for the winter.

Joseph Wilson, a stranger in town, who was arrested last night on complaint of Edward Cowles for assault, was released as no one appeared to press the case this morning.

The police were notified of a burglary committed last night some time after 10 o'clock at the residence of Frank Lawson, 672 West Seventh street. The burglar gained entrance to Mr. Lawson's house through a third story window, stealing a pair of trousers containing about seven dollars in money and without arousing anybody. There are no clues.

Athletic Managers Appointed.

At the last meeting of the athletic board of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association, Thomas Ricketts was appointed manager for the basketball team. Many letters have come in already from various schools seeking games. Howard Runyon was appointed baseball manager for next season. Runyon is well equipped for the position and he should make a schedule as good as the one arranged by Manager Robins last season.

NEWARK PROVIDENCES ARE DEFEATED HERE

The Providence A. C., of Newark, met defeat at the hands of the Plainfield Association football club, on the Clinton avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon by a score of 2 to 1. The contest was one of the best of the season and the Plainfield aggregation is elated over its victory.

The game was called at 3:30 with the Plainfield boys playing against a strong sun. The Newarkers had the sun down the field, but it was lost by the ball going over the bar. During the first half the play was pretty even, but the local club was seen to be a little in the lead as regards play. Half time was called with no scoring.

On starting the second half the home team rushed down the field, and scored a pretty goal by Hosie, during the first two minutes play. On re-starting they again rushed the visitors' goal, but the ball went over. This aroused the Newarkers a little, and they made several attempts to score, but scarcely got over half field. After a half-hour of play they made a fine rush down-field and in a close scrimmage, secured an equalizing goal.

The home team then took a fresh hold on the game and made a perfect target of the visitors' goal. During a scrimmage, a goal was secured by the ball being kicked against a Newark man, making the score 2 to 1 in favor of Plainfield. The home team was playing good football, and put it all over the visitors. No more scoring was done and the game ended in favor of the home club.

The five forward men of the Plainfield team did great work, assisted by their half-back line, and the players of the back backs was so close that McNeice only kicked the ball about three times in the second half. The Newark goal-keeper played as fine football as has ever been witnessed here, making marvelous saves. It was altogether a great game, and was well patronized. The Plainfielders have not lost a game this season, all three contests being victories for them. The lineups of the two teams follow:

BLUE STOCKING SOCIAL OF SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS.

Under the auspices of the Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, a "Blue Stocking Social," was held in the church parlors Sunday afternoon. The affair was largely attended and a great success. The plan was for each person to bring a tiny stocking, containing a sum of money to equal the size of stocking worn by them. In this way a large sum was realized.

During the afternoon there was an informal program, beginning with a piano duet by Mrs. F. J. Hubbard and Mrs. W. C. Hubbard. Miss Marjorie Kimball gave a recitation, Miss Iva Palmer sang a solo and Miss Ruth Potter Maxson read an original story.

The numerous blue stockings were then received and placed in a larger stocking after which the contents were counted. During a social hour refreshments, consisting of tea and wafers were served. The committee in charge comprised Mrs. W. C. Hubbard, chairman; Mrs. Asa F. Randolph, Mrs. Ella Moore, Jr., Mrs. J. E. Kimball and Miss Ruth Potter Maxson.

Struck by Trolley Car.

Mrs. Munson, of 1242 West Front street, was struck by a main line trolley car Saturday night at about 9:30 o'clock, but as the car was moving slowly she was not seriously injured. She was taken to her home. J. F. Broggan was the conductor and Joseph Grantley the motorman. Neither was arrested.

Frank Linke, who is visiting relatives in Germany, has sent his local friends souvenir postals announcing that he is having the time of his life at Weisse. Mr. Linke writes: "I love my Fatherland, but oh, you Yankeeland."

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN TO WEAR DRAB UNIFORM

The members of Co. K will no longer be attired as boys in blue. They will wear the regulation uniform of olive drab, worn by all of the regular troops. The change in the uniforms has been expected for more than a year, but was not made certain until a few days ago when the new outfits were received here, having been shipped by the quartermaster's department at the State.

With the advent of the new uniforms the local companies and all of the Second Regiment, to which they are attached, will be as fully equipped as any body of regulars. Under the Dick Military bill, which went into effect a year or two ago, the State troops become a part of the regular army. They are subject to the call of the President of the United States and are known as the second army of defense. The equipment is as near like the regular army as possible.

The blue uniforms will be worn hereafter only for dress. The new olive drab which is made for service will be worn on all other occasions. Aside from these two uniforms the troops is equipped with the khaki. The khaki will be worn for fatigue in the summer by the soldiers on the march or when on the rifle range.

DESPITE BIG PETITION WON'T ALLOW REFERENDUM

In a lengthy petition, containing thirty-eight foolscap pages of signatures of citizens, the patrolmen asked the Common Council at its October meeting Monday night, to re-consider the question of allowing the people to vote for or against the adoption of a police pension bill. It was argued that a vote of the community is a fair way of ascertaining the sentiment either for or against a proposition and the patrolmen asked that the question be put to a vote at the November election.

Mr. Buxton's motion that the petition be laid on the table for the present, was carried, but after a recess, Councilman Clay moved to refer the matter to the committees on police and the ordinances. Mr. Clay explained that he did not want to be considered as opposing the idea, but he was not sure that the act under which the Council was requested to take advantage of is the best one. He called attention to the fact that in case the people failed to pass the first time, the Council would be required to again submit it to the people three years later.

Mr. Clay called attention to another feature which he considered undesirable and that is that while the present Council is asked to appropriate four per cent. of the police appropriation, there would be nothing to prevent future Councils from increasing the percentage. Mr. Clay then moved that the matter be referred to the police and laws and ordinance committees, which was done. It is the general belief that the question will not be submitted to a vote this year.

HOLY NAME PARADE OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

Judge O. P. Mahon was chosen grand marshal of the Holy Name parade to be held next Sunday in Elizabeth at a meeting of representatives of the various branches of the society in the Y. M. C. L. hall in that city yesterday.

The members of the society from this city, Rahway, Westfield and Elizabeth, numbering 3,000 in number, will parade through that city in the afternoon, starting from the St. Elisabeth Hospital in South Broad street. After the parade there will be speechmaking on the grounds in the vicinity of St. Patrick's church, and the speakers will tell of the great fight being waged against profanity.

Benediction will be given by the Very Rev. Dean Martin Gessner. The Rev. Francis O'Neill, of St. Mary's church, Elizabeth, will officiate at vespers, the Rev. Ambrose Huebner, of the Sacred Heart church, Elizabeth, acting as deacon, and the Rev. James J. Smith, of the Holy Rosary church, Elizabeth, acting as subdeacon.

APPLEJACK REMEDY FOR HIS LAME LEG.

Jeremiah Smith, colored, and James E. Sullivan, white, had an interesting dialogue after being landed in cells at police headquarters Saturday night, in which they complimented their respective ancestors until sleep put an end to their volubility. They were both arraigned being. Smith protested his innocence of the charge of disorderly conduct but admitted the fact of having drunk some beer.

Sullivan acknowledged that five drinks of applejack was the cause of his downfall, but said he took it as medicine for a lame leg. After an apology had been offered on suggestion of the judge both men were allowed to go because of previous good records.

UNUSUAL BILL FOR CITY

Common Council Hears Mayor Gave Verbal Order for Meals for Police.

THE CITY MUST PAY $350.00.

Police and Detectives at Taxpayers' Expense During Charter Day Celebration.

The first echo of expense in connection with the Charter Day celebration there on July 3, 4 and 7, was heard at the October meeting of the Common Council Monday night, when Councilman Herbert Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, presented Thomas Timbo's bill for $350 for furnishing meals to the police and their friends during the three-day affair.

Mr. Buxton explained that Mayor Charles J. Fisk had made arrangements with Mr. Timbo to feed the police and their friends, so that the members of the department would not be obliged to go home to meals and thus be ready for duty promptly and without loss of time. He further explained that the arrangement was merely a verbal one. No definite arrangement was made as to the number of men to be fed or the number of meals to be served.

The finance committee chairman stated further that the matter had been investigated by Chief Kiely, Mayor Fisk and himself and had been discussed at some length. He admitted in response to a question, however, that the bill had not been before the finance committee, and it was referred to that committee on motion of Councilman Clay.

Later it was learned that the number of people fed daily for three days included 25 special policemen, 27 regulars and 10 detectives. Three meals were served each day, making a total of 548, which at seventy cents each would total $384.60, but Timbo presented a bill for $350. In view of the fact that the Common Council appropriated $1,000 for the celebration some of the members believe that that amount should cover the expense.

During an hour's recess, the Common Council summoned Thomas Timbo before them and further discussed the bill. It is understood that Mayor Fisk has not yet approved the bill and in view of this the members are not willing to pay it until he does and the finance committee makes its report.

PLAN TO ERECT MORE STORES ON PARK AVENUE

David C. Smalley and Frank Mobus, who are owners of a tract of land adjoining that of the railroad property near the Eastbound station of the New Jersey Central, are about ready to begin operations for the improvement of the tract. The changes call for the removal of Miss A. E. Lincoln's building, the old police station and the brick building formerly used as a pumping station by the railroad company.

Messrs. Smalley and Mobus will lay a ten-foot sidewalk from Park avenue to the corner of their property near the station, after the driveway is widened and will then erect a number of fine stores there, each about thirty-five feet deep. They will be of the most modern style, fully equipped with all conveniences and will be a big improvement to the property.

John Manley has made an offer to Miss Lincoln, whereby she will have an opportunity to remove her building to his property, adjoining his house. He has suggested that the "L" shaped portion of the house be torn down, which will permit of sufficient room for the building. Miss Lincoln has not yet decided what she will do in the matter.

Recital at Grace P. E. Church.

S. Frederick Smith, organist at Grace P. E. church, gave a short organ recital Sunday afternoon in the church just preceding the vesper services. His remarkably correct technique was observable in the Fantasia in D minor, Merkle; and in Handel Largo he managed the pedals with consummate mastery. All the other works were treated with a sympathetic reading and were greatly enjoyed by a large congregation. Mr. Smith will continue to give these recitals each Sunday afternoon.

SUSPICIONS FAIL TO HOLD ACCUSED WOMAN

There was an unusual scene in the Somerset Court at Somerville, Friday afternoon, when Mrs. Kitty Kean with an infant in her arms and a three-year-old tot tugging at her skirts, was brought from the county jail and placed on trial before Judge Lewis H. Schenck on a charge of stealing $22.75 from the residence of Dr. James J. E. Maher, of South Bound Brook. She was speedily discharged. Her accused was Miss Emma L. Nichols, an attractive young woman, who testified that she was Dr. Maher's housekeeper.

Mrs. Kean and her husband, James Kean, were servants for Dr. Maher's household until last Tuesday, when the woman was charged with theft by her employers, and committed to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Ralph Reed, of Bound Brook, the squire's commitment, had not the attention of the court been called to the lack of evidence in the case.

After a conference between Judge Schenck and Prosecutor Reger, the woman was ordered to be brought from the jail and placed on trial without a jury. Former Prosecutor James L. Griggs was assigned by the court to defend the prisoner, and Assistant Prosecutor E. P. Johnson appeared for the State.

Dr. Maher and Miss Nichols were in court to testify against the accused. When called to the witness stand, Miss Nichols told of the disappearance of $22.75 from a linen closet in the Maher house. She stated that she managed Dr. Maher's farm, and had received money from the sale of milk, which she placed in a box in the closet on Monday morning. Later in the day she found the box on the closet floor and the money gone. Mrs. Kean, she said, came under her employ after she had made a search of the servant's bedroom, and found $4 in an envelope under the bed.

This was the extent of the evidence against the accused, who had spent three days in prison with her baby.

Mrs. Kean, on the witness stand, emphatically denied that she had taken the money from the linen drawer. She also denied all knowledge of the $4 which Miss Nichols testified that she had found under the bed.

Dr. Maher testified that he had found Mrs. Kean in the house alone when he returned from the apple orchard on the day of the alleged theft. Mr. Griggs, in summing up for the defense, said that, from his knowledge of the case, he believed Miss Nichols had placed the $4 under Mrs. Kean's bed, and trumped up a charge against her, in order to drive her from Dr. Maher's home.

Without hearing all the evidence in the case, Judge Schenck promptly discharged the prisoner, with the remark that all the evidence that the State had offered against the woman was the suspicions of her accusers.

HEBREW CHARTER DANCE A BRILLIANT SUCCESS

The charter dance given last night at the Plainfield Dancing Academy by the Hebrew Ladies' Benevolent Society was an auspicious success and realized its projectors a handsome amount for the charity work the society carries on. About 200 were in attendance. Green and white, which are the society's colors, in evidence all over the hall. Special stage coaches from Perth Amboy, New Brunswick and Metuchen brought guests to the academy.

The winners of the prize waltz were the Misses Wyckoff and Maltey, of this city; Miss Rose Bond and Joseph Marcus, of New Brunswick.

Several non-members present became interested in the society and made application for membership during the evening. The society boasts 45 members today, which is just double the number of last year's membership.

The officers of the society are Mrs. K. Rothberg, president; Mrs. L. Steigman, vice-president; Mrs. S. Miller, secretary; Mrs. A. Kunzman, treasurer; Mrs. D. Cohen, Mrs. O. Victorsen and Mrs. J. Shlaren, trustees. The arrangements for the dance were looked after by a committee consisting of Mrs. R. Rothberg, Mrs. O. Victorsen, Mrs. S. Miller, Mrs. J. Gernsman, Mrs. S. Hirsch, Mrs. J. Cohen and Mrs. L. Steigman. A. H. Richards, floor manager, was assisted by Abraham Victorsen and Samuel Rothberg.

M'NULTYS TEAM WINS IN A "PRETTY" GAME

McNulty Brothers' club, of New York, won a close game from the locals Saturday, putting two runs over the pan in the fourth inning and blanking Plainfield for eight consecutive innings. In the ninth Randolph got around on a hit and two sacrifices. Luck played an important part in the scoring, but the way luck broke for the home team was heart-breaking. In three innings Plainfield had the bases full with but one out but could not score. The home team played far and away the better game but they could not get a lead on the hoodoo that works so hard when they are playing against a team like the McNultys.

Barnes and Emery were there with the stick, making five hits between them. Yesterday Plainfield journeyed to New York for a return game with the same team and lost by the score of 4 to 1. Saturday's score:

SCOTCH PLAINS, FIVE; NEWARK GIANTS, ONE

The Newark Colored Giants met defeat in the game at Scotch Plains, Sunday afternoon on the home club winning by a score of 5 to 1. The contest was an interesting one. Mitchell, who was in the box for the Giants, had the right sign on the Plains batters, allowing them but three hits and fanning thirteen men. MacLaughlin allowed but five scattering hits and struck out six men. The Plains won the game by bunching hits and Mitchell's wildness at times. Following is the lineup and score by innings:

ISSUE $43,000 BONDS FOR SEWER EXTENSION

A resolution providing the issue of $43,000 worth of sewer bonds, which later was incorporated in an ordinance, was offered by Councilman Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, at the October meeting of the Common Council Monday. The bond issue is to cover the city's cost of installing the southside sanitary sewer, exclusive of the amount assessed on property-owners.

The resolution was adopted and the ordinance was passed on first and second readings and ordered advertised. The bonds are to bear four per cent. interest and be payable semi-annually and sold for not less than par. The bonds are to date from November 1, 1909, and are to be in denomination of $1,000 each. Six of them are to be retired on the first of November in each year from 1926 to 1941 and seven on November 1, 1942.

DECREASE IN FRESHMEN.

Princeton Enrollment Shows Loss of Eleven Men.

The following statistics of the freshman class of Princeton University have been compiled by Professor Bronson Howard, secretary of the committee on entrance: The total enrollment of the class includes 152 candidates for the degree of A. B., 158 candidates for the degrees of Litt. B. and B. S. and 43 for the degree of C. E., making the entire number in the class 350.

This enfolment shows an increase of 4 men in the A. B. course, 10 in the B. S. course and a loss from last year of 25 men in the C. E. course. This leaves a net decrease of 11 men from last year. In addition to this number 41 more were eligible for admission, but failed to report.

The men from public high schools this year comprise 23 per cent. of the entire class, and increase of 5 per cent. over last year.

BLACKSMITH DIDN'T SCARE AT GUN PLAY.

Fight words and shooting talk spiced two interviews between W. Williams, marshal of Hampton Borough, and Edward C. Greene, the village blacksmith, in Greene's shop at Glen Gardner Friday. Each interview ended with the ejection of the marshal from the blacksmith shop. Williams is something of a character in that section. He is known as the "Cowboy Policeman" and claims to have had thrilling experience in the West. He was made marshal of Hampton a year ago, and ever since has gone about with revolver, billy and handcuffs clanking at his belt.

When he entered Greene's place Friday Greene accused him of being the author of an article in a local newspaper derogatory to the lipstone. Greene declares Williams called him a liar, whereupon Greene put him returned brandishing his revolver and threatening to blow out Greene's brains. "I had to put him out again," Greene stated.

There have been many complaints of Williams' alleged freedom in displaying his revolver and making threats of shooting. Greene declares he will file formal charges with the Hampton Borough officials.

History as Made in New Jersey!

By REV. JOHN KELLER.

Relevant to the Hudson-Fulton celebration, Rev. John Keller, secretary of the Newark Episcopal Diocese, gave a review of a historical nature in Grace church the other day. He told of the pioneer work in this State accomplished by settlers statesmen, scientists, inventors and churchmen, and the leading parts they took in the progress not only of the State but of the country. His subject was "Humane Progress and Great Inventions in New Jersey."

"When Henry Hudson," said Rev. Mr. Keller, "looked upon the shores of what is now Navesink Highlands, he pronounced it a very good place to fall in with and a pleasant place to see. In 1648 it was called New Albion and at that time generous praise was bestowed upon its fertility and its air, so that it is a matter of no wonder that later disputes arose over its possession. When the Duke of York first made known his intention of giving it to Berkeley and Carteret, Governor Nicholls, of New York, protested 'because he would be parting with the best of his possessions in fertility of soil and fair hope of rich mines.'

"A long and bitter controversy over the northern boundary line of the State then took place. Jersey men accepted the two points from which the imaginary line should be drawn and so did the New Yorkers, but the time came when our friends over the river refused to abide by the agreement. Many years and our forefathers thought it better policy to stand a proposed loss and settle the matter; at the same time losing 20 miles of boundary on the Delaware River and 210,000 acres of territory.

"Plentiful and valuable as the territory may be," declared Mr. Keller, "our State can be proud of her dealings with the men who owned the territory by the God given right of possession. The Hon. Samuel L. Southard, in presenting a claim of the remnant of the early possessors of these lands, made the following statement before the legislative committee: 'It is a proud fact in the history of New Jersey that every footstep of her soil has been acquired from the Indians by a fair and voluntary purchase and transfer—a fact that no other State of the Union, not even the land which bears the name of Penn, can boast of.'

How State Eliminated Slavery.

"The history of humane progress in New Jersey should also state that while slavery was early introduced in the province, it was never popular with the people. On April 21, 1784, a motion proposed to exclude slavery from all the West, South as well as North. The effect would have been to confine slavery to the southeastern corner of the country. The measure was lost by a single vote. Had that New Jersey delegate been present, whose illness kept him at home that day, the history of this country might have been wholly changed.

"The slave trafic between this and other States was prohibited in 1798. In 1804 an act was passed for the gradual abolition of slavery, which provided that all children born in the State after that date should be free. In 1860 there were only 30 slaves in the commonwealth. What hundreds and thousands of lives might have been spared, what untold misery and ruin might have been averted if other States had followed where New Jersey led the way?

"The Soldiers' Home, now in Kearny, but established in Newark in 1866, the speaker told, was the first institution of its kind in America, and the life-saving corps along the coast were originated in New Jersey. The plan for operating them was devised and inaugurated by Governor Newell in 1841.

"The familiar red soil reminds me," said the clergyman, "that the life blood of many a patriot and of many a foe has stained the land. Like the Caesares of the olden time, a garrison town on the Mediterranean, midway between Mt. Carmeel and Joppa, and the Nova Caesarea of the Channel Islands, this Nova Caesarea has a glorious history of patriotic deeds and heroic action."

Mr. Keller recalled that when Louis Philippe came from France and was permitted to hold land at Burlington a cry arose that New Jersey was out of the Union, and also that because Newark had a grant with the South when the Civil War broke out, it was inferred that the State would give little support to the Union. The record showed, however, that the people pledged their utmost resources, that the banks were liberal, and that every fireside shone with patriotism.

Record in the War.

The State was called on to supply four regiments of 780 men each, but within a few days 10,000 volunteered, and the Legislature, in the extra session, appropriated $2,000,000 and levied $100,000 annually as a military tax. After Theodore Runyon was made brigadier-general the Federal Government could not furnish equipments and arms, and the State clothed and provided for the men. As the troops were about to move the Federal Government found itself unable to provide ammunition. Then the State provided 5,000 musket balls and 100,000 percussion caps. The troops from this State were the first brigade of volunteers to arrive in Washington, May 6. Their presence inspired security in the War Department, and the State never stood higher in the estimation of the loyal people of the country.

With a population in 1860 of 672,000, the State marshalled 83,304 men, not counting thousands who went to other States to enlist. The State itself gave 10,057 more troops than it was called on to provide. Its troops alone were greater than any English-speaking army Great Britain had ever had. At Gettysburg the State had 12 regiments of infantry and one of calvary, besides two batteries, and the conduct of the men through the war was summed up as excellent.

When the constitutional convention assembled in Philadelphia, May 25, 1787, Mr. Keller asserted, "the controlling influence was that of New Jersey's men." This State was the first to adopt the proposed Constitution without amendment, and this action was taken unanimously by the Assembly, December 18, 1787.

A Victory of Peace.

"Let me, however, recall to your minds a matchless victory of peace," pursued the clergyman. "In 1780, the Supreme Court of New Jersey, after patient hearing of argument and careful deliberation, announced the doctrine that an act of the Legislature when weighed in the balance of the Constitution and found wanting, is no law. This judgment, rendered in a country village in the middle of New Jersey, was the first in the series of decisions which introduced into the American system of government a principle of primal importance, hitherto and elsewhere unknown."

Speaking of the meeting at Annapolis in 1786, called to reform commercial regulations, and New Jersey's demand for a uniform system, became the watchword of Hamilton for the Federal convention in Philadelphia.

"James Madison sketched the national plan," said Mr. Keller; "William Patterson offered the second through the temporary Jersey plan the permanent and equal recognition of the States, and Oliver Ellsworth cleared the way for the blended plan in which the highest life of each of these forces is preserved upon the basis of the other. Madison, Patterson and Ellsworth each received their first lessons in State craft at Princeton.

"While speaking of work of college graduates in national affairs, it is noteworthy that it was Simon De Witt, graduated from the New Jersey College (Rutgers) in 1776, who in 1784 wisely suggested the national system of meridian surveys introduced by Jefferson to promote the development of the West, and to fix the boundaries of the prairie farm by the everlasting stars.

"In the earliest days of provincial life the people of New Jersey contended for the freedom of commerce within national boundaries. After the Declaration of Independence, New Jersey alone, from the first constantly demanded for the central government a grant from the States of power over commerce.

"It was fitting, however, that New Jersey should supply the materials in the case of Gibbons vs. Ogden, in 1824, when Webster pleaded and Marshall held, that commerce between New Jersey and New York and among the several States of all the Union should pass untrobbled.

"In 1860 the representatives in Congress, after a struggle of eight weeks, by a bare majority chose William Pennington, of New Jersey, to be the Speaker. Thus, again, by our State, the even scales of the national fate were tipped."

Pioneers of Industry.

Reviewing industrial progress, Mr. Keller described how the first steam engine on the Western Continent was erected at the copper mines, Arlington, in 1752 by Colonel Hazard 4 years before Watts began his investigations, and told that the first steamboats driven by a single and twin-screw propeller were constructed by John Stevens at Hoboken in 1802 and 1804, and that the Juliana, built in 1811 to navigate the ocean, was designed, constructed and navigated by Jerseymen. John Stevens and his son, Robert L. Stevens, in 1807-08.

The first charter for a railroad in America was granted by the Legislature in 1811 for a railroad from Trenton to New Brunswick during the War of 1812; the machinery of the Savannah, the first steamship to cross the Atlantic Ocean, was constructed at the Vail Works, Speedwell, near Morristown, in 1818; the first steam locomotive in America to convey human beings on a railroad track was constructed at Hoboken in 1825, and the first successful experiments with the electro-magnetic telegraph based upon the discoveries of Professor Henry, of Princeton College, were made by Vail & Morse, at Speedwell Works, near Morristown, in 1838.

Mentioning some of the State's greatest men, Mr. Keller recalled John Stevens, statesman and commissioner to treat with the Indians; Colonel John Stevens, of Hoboken, lawyer, statesman, inventor of many improvements in steam engineering, marine architecture and improvements in railroad construction; Robert Livingston Stevens, of Hoboken, and David Wilson Nevins, engineers and designers, who ably assisted their father in developing transportation facilities between Philadelphia and New York by the famous Union Line and later by the construction of the Camden and Amboy Railroad; Washington A. Roebling, of Trenton, engineer, of Brooklyn Bridge fame; Vail, of Morristown, who furnished Professor Morse, of Princeton, with materials for the first successful experiment in sending a message through a wire.

"The great-hearted Bishop Doane, of New Jersey, who in 1841 officiated in England, being the first American bishop so be permitted to do so, was also one of the originators and an enthusiastic member of the New Jersey Historical Society.

"Time fails to speak more particularly of the work of Commodore Robert F. Stockton, of Princeton; Captain James Lawrence, of Burlington; James Fenimore Cooper, of Burlington; Captain William Bainbridge and R. Earle Anderson, of Princeton, in connection with great historical battles and improvements on the ships of our navy.

Growth of Episcopal Church.

"To us churchmen it is a source of gratification to find that all, with possibly one or two exceptions, were members of the church, and found time in their busy and eventful lives to remember Christ and His church. Of those some were able to give pursuit the clergymen to the gospel and the cause of good manners."

In conclusion the speaker called attention to the fact that the Episcopal church in New Jersey a century ago was very weak in numbers, in 1812, out of a population of 250,000, there were only eight clergymen and 400 communicants. Yet from the earliest times the Episcopal church had within her membership great inventors, statesmen and public-spirited men generally.

Reference was made to the fact that the laymen present at the meeting in New Brunswick, May, 1784—John Stevens, Richard Stevens, John Dennis, Colonel John Formar, Colonel Isaac Ogden and James Parker—were all Jerseymen. It was by their vote that another convention was called for October in the same year to meet in New York. In that body John De Hart, of New Jersey, one of the best lawyers of his day, penned the famous resolution, "That there should be a general convention of the Episcopal church in the United States; that the said church shall adhere to the Liturgy of the Church of England as far as shall be consistent with the American Revolution and the Constitution of the respective States."

"It was the diocesan convention of New Jersey that strongly protested against the proposed adoption of the 'proposed book,'" said Mr. Keller, "and to the conservative laymen of New Jersey we owe the first efforts to bring the church in the United States into national unity. They took deep interest in the organization and work of the general convention, and they strove earnestly to preserve the integrity of the Book of Common Prayer."

PERMANENT INJUNCTION AGAINST CITY OF RAHWAY

In the suit of Mary H. Kidd and John Edward Marsh against the city of Rahway for the pullution of their land and water running through their land, Vice-Chancellor Emery has granted a permanent injunction, restraining the city from allowing its sewerage to run through a creek on the property of the complainants.

The suit brought by Miss Kidd and Mr. Marsh was the result of an attempt on the part of the city of Rahway, in July, 1908, to make a clearing in the Cranford sewer which passes through that city, the sewer having become clogged.

An examination of the sewer showed that the cause of obstruction was the growth of roots within it, and to get at the cause so as to remedy the defect, the consent of the charge of the work diverted the flow, causing it to empty into a stream passing through the property of the complainants. A temporary injunction was at once obtained, although it was not to get at the cause before outward flow could be stopped, during which and for some time after, the stench was almost unbearable.

In making the injunction permanent Vice-Chancellor Emory questioned the right of the city when the sewer was constructed to enter into the agreement with Cranford to keep the sewer in repair at the expense of that city.

COUNTY'S OFFICIALS GUESTS AT CLAMBAKE

The members of the Union County Board of Freeholders, together with other county officials, were guests at a clam bake given at Bungay Hotel, Lorraine, Wednesday afternoon by Clarence H. Winas, of Linden. Mr. Winans, who is a contractor, and who at present is engaged in doing some county work at Rahway, gave the bake as a purely complimentary affair and it was informal.

The bake was prepared by Freeholder George B. Cladek, of Rahway, in his customary first-class style and everyone agreed that they had never enjoyed a better one. There was an abundance of good things to eat, including clams, chicken, fish, squabs, lobsters, together with all the fixins.'

Among those present from Plainfield were Freeholders J. Hervey Doane and S. P. T. Wilbur; County Attorney W. R. Codington, County Engineer Frank J. Hubbard. The invitations to the bake were sent out by County Engineer Jacob L. Bauer, of Elizabeth, for Contractor Winans. During the afternoon a picture of the group was taken by Freeholder Doane.

JERSEY INCORPORATION TO RUN DRUG STORES

The plan to operate a chain of drug stores on the same system as the United Cigar stores has been practically launched by officers of the cigar corporation, who have opened three stores under the management of the Lauer Drug Company, which is regarded as a subsidiary concern of the United Cigar Stores Company. George W. Whalen, of this city, is president of the Cigar Stores Corporation. With one store in Flushing, Long Island; another in Jersey City and a third in Perth Amboy, the Lauer company, of which Benjamin J. Lauer, an expert druggist, is the head, was incorporated in the State of New Jersey with an authorized capital of $10,000.

While the officers of the United Cigar Stores Company have refused to give out the details of their plan to open popular priced drug stores all over the city, it is understood that negotiations are now under way for the leases on stores to be absorbed. William T. Posey, vice-president of the Cigar Stores, is also vice-president of the drug stores. Thomas R. Taylor, a former officer of the retail tobacco concern, is treasurer of the new organization, which has its headquarters in the office of the United Cigar Stores Company, at No. 4 West 125th street.

The United Drug Consumers' Company, which was incorporated under the laws of New York with a capital of $1,000, it is understood has another plan for organizing the individual stores. With both of these corporations in the field, many independent drug store owners are perfecting an organization of their own, which is also expected to operate throughout the city. A committee of the New York Retail Druggists' Association has been appointed to investigate the plans for the new companies.

STUTSMAN LECTURES ON BUSINESS LAW

The pupils in the Plainfield Business College listened to a short talk by Martin B. Stutsman Thursday which Mr. Stutsman outlined the series of lectures which he is to give the students during the fall and winter. Attorney Stutsman was introduced to the seventy-five or more pupils of the school by Professor Herr who said that Mr. Stutsman was a graduate of that college and after graduating from the Plainfield High School took up his studies at New York University, from where he graduated with honors.

In his remarks this morning Mr. Stutsman told the class his first lecture as related to business translations." Then will follow laws relating to the sale and notes, drafts, etc., negotiable and non-negotiable paper;" "agency laws," "partnerships," "real property," "surety and guardianship" and "common carrier" laws. When these topics are properly assimilated there will be a foundation for the study of questions of greater weight, all of which will be of material assistance in a business career.

It is a well known fact that many of the girls who are cruel at athletes in school or college are also honor girls in their studies.

Why is it?

TRAIN WRECKING EPIDEMIC

Another Attempt to Derail Central Railroad Train Late Last Night.

LOCOMOTIVE STRIKES TIMBER.

Twelve-foot Plank Thrust Aside by Pilot of Engine West of Rock Avenue—No Clues.

Another attempt was made to derail a Central Railroad train Wednesday night late after 10 o'clock, just west of Rock avenue. A twelve foot plank was placed on track 4 in front of train No. 216, but the expected crash did not occur. Police headquarters were immediately notified and Chief Kiely accompanied by Sergeant Overbaugh made an investigation without results.

It is believed by Chief Kiely that the attempts of last night and Saturday are the work of a demented man or of some one bearing a grudge against the railroad company. No other hypothesis has suggested itself to him. He said this morning that it is altogether unlikely that boys are implicated in the attempts to wreck trains. The reason the chief assigns for this opinion is that at that time of night boys are at home in bed, and besides it would be impossible for small boys to handle the timbers which have been used.

A force of detectives as well as the local police force are on the track of suspicious which may at once lead to an arrest within a few hours. Every approach to the tracks will be watched with extraordinary care in the hope of apprehending the would-be wreckers. The pilot of the engine of train 216 blew the timber to one side last night, but not so quickly but that the engineer could see it and make a report of the occurrence.

P. C. C. HOUSE OPENING ON SATURDAY, OCT. 9

The Plainfield Country Club has issued invitations to a "house opening and field day" to be held at the clubhouse on Saturday, October 9. Club members and all members of the Park Club, Park Golf Club and the Watchung Hunt Club are included among the invited guests.

The privileges of the golf course and tennis courts will be extended to all guests throughout the day and there will be a house committee reception from 3 till 6 o'clock in the afternoon with music and dancing in the evening from 8 till 11 o'clock. Tables will be reserved for parties, to the full capacity of the club, in the order of application. This entertainment is according to the annual custom of the country club, it serving the purpose of bringing all the members of the various clubs of the city together and the day is usually one of great enjoyment.

"DRYS" OF UNION CO. NOMINATE CANDIDATES

Members of the Prohibition party in Union county got together quietly Thursday at the home of P. N. Dailey, 1147 Mary street, Elizabeth, and nominated a county ticket. A dozen or so of gray-bearded, earnest advocates of total abstinence met early and adjourned early. The only feature of the gathering was the address on the progress of prohibition by George J. Haven, of Camden, the State chairman. The following was the ticket nominated:

Members of Assembly, W. H. Chandler, of Summit; George R. Sayre, of Elizabeth; L. C. Long, of Elizabeth; coroner, P. N. Dalley, of Elizabeth; register, Charles L. C. Reeve, of Summit; county clerk, Edward J. Massett, Westfield. Some routine business was transacted by the exponents of the water wagon route.

R. HENRY DEPEW BUYS A VALUABLE TRACT

The property on Watchung avenue between Marshall's laundry and the tailoring establishment of John G. Bantle, was purchased Wednesday by R. Henry Depew, through the agency of Charles H. Lyman. This tract of land which lies directly in the path of the city's growth was bought as an investment by Mr. Depew and he will prove to be a valuable piece of property within a short time.

It was purchased from a syndicate composed of Harry Marshall, Wootston & Buckle, L. H. Manning, W. R. Codington, George S. Tobin, J. C. Mannion, Laing & Milne and F. L. C. Martin, who obtained the property by purchase from the Catharine Webster estate about six months ago. The consideration involved at that time was in the neighborhood of $25,000. The price of the property as sold Wednesday is not known except by those directly concerned in the transaction, but it is assumed that it was a figure considerably higher than the amount of the original purchase.

OYSTER DEALER FINDS A VALUABLE PEARL

It has been affirmed by some representative theologians that there is no such thing as "luck," and on the other hand poets maintain that "it were better to be born lucky than rich." In either event Garret Van Name comes in for the congratulations of his friends and others. Mr. Van Name opens oysters and sometimes he finds other substances between the two parts of the crustaceous exterior.

That the latter assumption is correct was demonstrated Wednesday when Mr. Van Name opened one of the biggest of the species brought from Great South Bay, and the folds of the fatty part of the bivalve he discerned nestling cosily a substance which closely resembled a brilliantly polished pebble. A closer investigation of the foreign substance developed a pearl which for brilliance and contour is pronounced by judges under similar circumstances in this neighborhood, and, as a matter of fact, anywhere else.

It is related that Mr. Van Name has found other pearls of value in oysters from the same grounds, but he has never come across one of the value of the present one found. It is variously estimated, it is said, to be worth from $250 to $450. Happy man!

WM. E. MARSH DEAD AT SAN FRANCISCO

William E. Marsh, aged 54 years, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Marsh, and brother of A. L. C. Marsh, the architect, of this city, died Wednesday at his home in San Francisco, Cal., following an operation for appendicitis. He was well-known here prior to thirty-five years ago, when he went to San Francisco.

Mr. Marsh was born in Cincinnati and he spent his early life in this city. Thirty-five years ago he entered the engineering department of the Southern Pacific Railroad and was with that road up to the time of his death. He had charge of the many great improvements made by the company during that time, the most important of which was the supervision of the new Lucine cut-off for forty miles across Salt Lake. He was considered one of the most valuable men in the employ of the company.

He is survived by a wife and two sons, the latter being engaged in the same work as their father for the Southern Pacific Railroad; also two brothers, A. L. C. Marsh, of this city, and Richard Marsh, of Spokane, Wash., and one sister, Miss Anna W. Marsh, of this city. The funeral and burial was in San Francisco.

Doctor Hale a Boy at 80.

An example of Edward Everett Hale's light-heartedness is told in Woman's Home Companion for August. One day when he was about 80 years old he and I boarded a surface-car in New York. The car was crowded, but a lad promptly arose and gave him his seat. "Thank you, my boy," said Hale with great heartiness. "I'll do as much for you some day when you are 80—if I'm around then."

Catharine Cahill, an old offender, was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail this morning by Judge Runyon in the city court for being drunk and disorderly on Second street at the corner of Park avenue last night. She was arrested by Patrolman Tobias Nolan by direction of Chief Kiely.

YOUNG HAMILTON SENT TO NEWARK PROTECTORY

Edward Hamilton, the fourteen-year-old boy, who has been on probation for the past few weeks for various misdemeanors, including truancy, was sent to the Catholic Protectory at Newark Thursday by Judge William Runyon, whose parole in this case is exhausted. Young Hamilton was accompanied to court by his mother and the parting between mother and son was affecting.

Judge Runyon in determining to send the boy to a place where he will be compelled to attend his studies, did so with reluctance, but believes that the measure was the only way in which corrective training can be given with some chance of lasting good results. All the other boys who have been on probation, comrades of young Hamilton, have reported regularly and have apparently reformed.

STRIKES HIS MOTHER; IS FLAYED BY JUDGE.

"One year in State prison is not enough punishment for a man who would lay a hand on his mother," declared Judge Mahon Wednesday at Elizabeth, when Thomas Flannigan, of 229 Pine street, was arraigned before him charged with striking his wife, Mrs. Hannah Flannigan, his mother, who was in court. Despite the fact that the blows given her had blackened her right eye, she requested the Judge to give her son another chance.

Flannigan was arrested on his mother's complaint. In view of the woman's request the Judge gave Flannigan his discharge. He warned him, however, that if brought before the court again he would be given the limit of the law.

MAYOR TOWNSEND'S VETO

The Borough's Mayor Does Not Believe in Extravagant Administration.

HIS REASONS ARE SOUND.

He Won't Sanction Improvements When the Taxpayers Can not Stand the Expense.

Two important matters were disposed of at the meeting of the Borough Council Friday, the first being the vetoing by Mayor Townsend of the resolution passed at the last regular meeting of the Council providing for improvements to Regent street.

The Mayor gave several reasons for his action, the principal ones being lack of available funds for the work; posible changes to be made when the sewer question is disposed of, and lack of information as to the cost of the proposed work of macadamizing the street.

The other matter disposed of was the passing to a second and third reading and adoption of the ordinance providing for the laying, repairing and keeping in repair sidewalks on every street and road in the borough. This resolution was adopted without a dissenting voice, and without protest from any property holder. The new ordinance will go into effect October 15 next.

Bills amounting to $3,299.17 were ordered paid and the Council authorized the Mayor to borrow $2,500 to meet current expenses.

Two building permits were granted; one to C. W. McCutcheon for a garage on his property on the north side of Rockview avenue and another to Frank Mobus for a barn on Duer street above Greenbrook road. During September thirty-six arrests were made and $63, added to the borough funds for fines.

IMPORTANT RULING ON FRATERNAL INSURANCE

That life insurance policies in fraternal associations may be rendered void by the failure of the insured to pay a premium on time, to the proper officer, although the money was actually in the hands of an officer of a subordinate court who neglected to turn it over in time, was decided to be the law of this State on Wednesday in the Supreme Court in the case of Peterson against the Supreme Court of the Independent Order of Foresters. Samuel Kalisch, Jr., and Abraham Kalisch, the attorneys of the plaintiff, made a vigorous contest for three days to maintain the validity of the policy, urging alleged custom, waiver, estoppel, the law's repugnance to forfeitures and other similar grounds.

Craig A. Marsh, the general counsel of the company, a Canadian corporation, relied on the terms of the policy and the constitutional provision that no officer has any power to waive any of its terms or conditions. He said that the question was of the greatest importance, not only to the defendant beneficial association, but to all similar corporations in the country, and the duty of the defendant to submit the question to the court was clear, that the chief officers had no right to shirk.

Judge Adams at the close of the argument, delivered an elaborate opinion sustaining the defense and granted a non-suit. He also sustained the other defense that no action could be brought at law without first exhausting the remedies by appeal within the order.

GET IDEAS ON SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT ABROAD

President L. . Woolston occupied his chair at the Borough Council meeting Friday night for the first time since the early summer and presented for the benefit of the Council a letter written by J. E. Wilkes, associate member of the Institute of Civil Engineers of Birmingham, England, in which the latest European system of sewer disposal was made plain. Mayor Townsend in commenting on this very interesting letter said it was a curious fact that the estimates of the cost of the work was very close to the home made estimates. Mr. Woolston took especial interest in the sewerage question while abroad and it was owing to his inquiries in Birmingham that the letter of Mr. Wilkes was written. It covers three pages of typewritten information of much value to the Council in making their plans.

Councilman Stahl was the only absentee at Friday night's meeting, which was brief and concluded at 9 o'clock.

ENDEAVOR HOSPITALITY

Local Committee Arranges for Meals and Lodging for Delegates.

CONVENTION OCT. 6, 7 AND 8.

Hudson, Somerset, Union and Essex Plan to Send Big Delegations —1911 Convention at Atlantic City.

At a meeting of the State Endeavor convention committee, of the Plainfield Union, held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday night, the president of the union was authorized to pledge the support of the committee in assisting the State union in preparing for the International convention to be held at Atlantic City in 1911. This expression of willingness to co-operate will be sent to State President J. T. Sproull in time to be read at the coming convention.

Mr. Sproull is already at work for the big convention which will be of unusual interest, because of its commemoration of the thirtieth anniversary of the organization of the C. E. movement. Among the items of information in the program for the Plainfield convention is a special notice of the gathering to be held in 1911. Another item of interest in the program is the information in regard to the serving of meals to the delegates. These may be obtained for a nominal sum in the Sunday-school rooms of Trinity Reformed church, and will be presided by Mrs. Lindsey of "The Hermitage." Tickets for meals can be secured at the literature booth in the convention church.

The attention of the Endeavor friends is called to the work of the entertainment committee which is now actively engaged in securing lodging for the delegates, who are coming from a distance and will remain over night. All that is required is lodging and breakfast for three days, October 6, 7 and 8. The noon and evening meals will be provided for as previously stated. In this connection especial emphasis is placed on the fact that delegates will not need to be entertained as their time will be fully occupied at the sessions of the convention. The chairman of the convention entertainment committee has received so many requests for lodging for delegates who will remain throughout the whole convention, that if he feared the will not be enough homes offered for their accommodations, and the appeal is renewed for hearty support in this matter.

Hudson, Somerset, Union and Essex counties are making special preparations for large delegations to attend the Friday night session, when "Father Endeavor" Clark will speak. William Russell, president of the Essex Endeavor Union, is arranging for a special train to leave Newark at 7 o'clock.

Percy W. Cannon, the blind man, will be in charge of the prayer-meeting to be held in the Rescue Mission tonight, when special prayers will be offered for the success of the convention.

BURGLAR PROVED TO BE FRENCH POODLE DOG

The police were considerably startled to receive notice of attempted burglary and chicken stealing over the telephone Friday night, but ever alert for just such emergencies, Roundsmen Higgins and O'Keefe and Patrolman McDonald were rushed to 622 East Seventh street determined to capture the intruders. The call for help came from George W. Ord, of the above address and the disturbance resembling burglarious work was across the street.

Sure enough there was something doing when the cops got there, but judging from the sounds issuing from the premises of Robert Everett chicken thieves were at work. Sleuthing up ever nearer and with bated breath the officers formed a cordon around the grounds making he had managed to do considerable damage, even if he was small. Six good-sized chickens lay prone upon the turf, victims of the poodle's prowess as a hunter. He merely had stepped out of his class. The purp is held a prisoner at police headquarters.

Pastor's Farewell Reception.

PYTHIAN KNIGHTS MEET

Delegates from Towns Near-by at Perseverance Lodge Listen to Speeches.

GRAND OFFICERS ARE PRESENT

District Deputy Fred Sears Presides —B. J. Shreiner's Candidacy is Boomed at Meeting.

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of Knights of Pythias, of District No. 26, including Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville, Neshanic and Flemington, was held in the rooms of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74 K. of P., Friday night.

There were about 150 members of the order present, including Grand Chancellor Henry A. Heinrichs, of Paterson; Grand Vice-Chancellor Louis Dracker, of Elizabeth; Grand Prelate Harry Keeler, of Newark; Grand Master-at-Arms William Quick, of Somerville; Grand Outer-Guard George H. Hild, of Morristown; Grand Keeper of Records and Seals Elmer Manderson, of Trenton; Supreme Representative William Shanley, of Jersey City; Judge Louis Schenck and Fred Pope, of the Grand Tribune and Past Grand Chancellor John Ulrich.

During the session there were several excellent addresses by the grand lodge officers; those of Grand Chancellor Heinrichs and Past Grand Chancellor John Ulrich being listened to with special interest. There was class initiation, six members being received. The work was performed by the grand lodge officers in their usual impressive manner. After the meeting all adjourned to the banquet room, where supper was served. The entertainment committee comprised A. D. Pope, chairman; Thomas Calcen and J. B. Higgins.

The meeting was in charge of District Deputy Fred Sears, of this city, who presided. Considerable business of a private nature was discussed. The candidacy of B. J. Schreiner, of this city, for the position of grand outer-guard, was given support by the delegates present, and he will doubtless be elected at the meeting to be held in December. It was generally considered that the meeting was one of the best held in recent years.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Store Order Liquor Sales.

In the Union County Court, before Judge Alvaro Stevenson, the agent of one of the largest of the New York department stores was found guilty, after trial by jury, of selling liquors without a license. This is, as far as it goes, a victory for the local authorities in their efforts to enforce the liquor laws of this State, as against liquor dealers in other States. "

In April last Justice Garrison charged the Camden grand jury against liquor selling in that county by the department stores of an adjacent State, and in May Supreme Court Justice Bergen charged the Union county grand jury on the same subject. In the Union county charge the act of Congress was cited, by the terms of which liquor transported into a State became subject to the liquor laws in the same as if produced originally in the State. It was further charged that where orders were given in a store in another State and the goods were delivered in this State and paid for at the time of delivery, the transaction was indictable.

Several indictments were found, both in Camden and in Union, but trials were held up because of an appeal taken to the Federal court. The disposal of this appeal did not interfere with the trial of all of the indictments in Union county. The evidence was straightforward, the judge's charge was direct and explicit, and the jury agreed upon a verdict very shortly after leaving their seats.

This may possibly put an end to these particular cases. The department stores may pay the fines imposed on their agents rather than go to the expense of fighting the issue through the higher State courts and then in the Federal courts. But it will not put a stop to their selling liquors. It will merely cause them to change their method of selling. Instead of taking orders, delivering the goods and collecting pay at the purchaser's home, they will simply exact payment at the time the order is given. They will simply change their liquor business from the C. O. D. to the cash system.—Newark News.

WOMEN CAN MAKE THEMSELVES ATTRACTIVE

Physical beauty is a gift of nature, but attractiveness lies largely within a woman's own power. There is scarcely a woman on earth who cannot make herself attractive unless she is handicapped by some terrible deformity such as happens to few of us.

The first secret of personal charm has to do with the way in which the body is held. It is with the general carriage of the entire body that we make our first impression, for good or bad. The woman who slinks into a room with drooping head, shoulders down and every sagging line of her figure expressing self-depreciation, will not make a convincing impression. Business women have learned this. The experienced working girl of nearly every grade has acquired a self confidence that lifts her head, straightens her shoulders and makes her step firm and buoyant.

When the head droops, lift it. A face can be transformed from mediocrity to attractiveness by the persistent lifting of the head to a good poise. Neat, shapeless, sagging muscles at the throat gradually take on a smooth line of beauty that reveals visibly a growth in force of character and determination.

Take a handglass and look in the mirror at your profile when your chin rests in its usual slipshod position on top of your collar. Now lift the chin and see how that long, curved line of the throat acquires beauty and how it improves the entire face. You can take a more forceful object lesson on the importance of cultivating a well-poised head and chin.

Next set a watch upon your chest. The habit of lifting your head will help you also to carry your chest up. The sunken chest means inefficient breathing, consequently poor health and no hope of attractiveness. Watch how you stand. Check yourself persistently from falling into slipshod attitudes. You can bring yourself together and force yourself to stand with chest up, abdomen in, head well poised and feet lightly planted with the weight on the balls.

There are many books of exercises in the public libraries which will help you to acquire flexibility and grace of motion. But you can do much for yourself if you will remember to turn all kinds of bodily work into beneficial exercise by doing it as a pleasure and taking deep, long breaths as you do it.

Deep breathing, which is surely within the reach of everybody in any place, is of itself a good exercise, and will develop the chest and figure. Practice breathing slowly, deep breaths as often during the day as you can think of it. On awakening in the morning stretch the entire body, as you have often seen infants do, and draw half a dozen long, deep breaths before you will feel like springing out of bed with energy.

No woman is too busy, either with household tasks or office work, to take ten minutes daily for a sponge bath of the whole body.

Another way in which the busiest woman can get exercise is in walking. She may not have time for the cross country tramps of her more leisurely sisters; but she can at least walk to office, shop, market, and on all her errands. To walk with head up, chest up, breathing deeply as you go, is splendid exercise, within the reach of all.

Of course, if you can play tennis now, swing a pair of lighweight Indian clubs, ride horseback or punch a medicine ball, so much the better for your figure and your complexion. You should do those things if you have the leisure and the opportunity. But if you have not, the situation is not hopeless, for by the very simple means suggested you can improve both your health and your personal appearance.

Funeral of Miss Lord.

The funeral of Miss Blanche Lord, stepdaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Boone, took place Saturday from St. Mary's church at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. Charles E. Boone, son of Dr. Boone, sang the requiem mass Father Bogan, of St. Mary's, and Father D. J. Smith, of St. Patrick's church, Jersey City, took part in the mass. The pallbearers were J. F. Boone, a cousin of the dead young woman, Max Moraler, James Lennon, A. C. Thompson, Lester Clark and W. H. Duncanson. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

War of the Roses.

The members of the Y. W. C. A. have formed themselves into two squads for the purpose of conducting a membership contest. One side is known by the red roses worn, and the other by yellow roses. The side which gets the greatest number of members and above June 1, will be declared the winner and will be given a supper by the losing side. Miss Florence Prior is captain of the "yellows" and Miss Olga Lockert of the "reds." The war ends on October 18.

Those Foolish Questions.

Mother—You were a long time in the conservatory with Mr. Williams last night, my child. What was going on?

Daughter—Did you ever sit in the conservatory with papa before you married him?

Mother—I suppose I did.

ENGAGEMENT RING HAS RIVAL IN BRACELET

Are engagement rings going out of fashion?

A few years ago such a question would have sounded absurd, but today the ring has a serious rival in the "betrothal bracelet," which seems to be becoming more and more popular.

The betrothal bracelet had its origin in a very pretty idea. It was first made in the form of a plain gold chain fastened by a tiny padlock, and this padlock was made with a small spring, which had to be pressed when the owner wished to remove the chain.

It occurred to some fond lover to have this spring filed away, so that when once the padlock had been closed it could never again be opened, but would hold the bracelet on the arm of the wearer forever.

The lock, which could never be undone, was to be a symbol of constancy.

That was the origin of the betrothal bracelet, and other lovers, with quick appreciation of such a pretty sentiment, have asked their respective fiancees to wear them instead of the conventional ring.

In the newest patterns jewelers are making the padlocks in the form of hearts similar to those sometimes worn as charms. The locking mechanism is, of course, quite out of reach, so that it is absolutely impossible to open the clasp when once it has been closed. Made thus, it is an emblem of unchanging affection.

Another idea is to have the heart-shaped padlock fitted with a minute key, which the fiance may wear on his watch chain after he has placed the bracelet upon the arm of his lady but this form is not likely to become so popular as the other, because the real charm of the betrothal bracelet seems to be lost if there is a possibility of removing it.

One young man had a tiny portrait of his fiancee set in a ring, and insisted upon having it covered by a large diamond, which had to be cut in the form of a heavily cut glass. Naturally, this cost a large sum, but the ring, when completed, was a work of art. He wore this diamond-covered portrait of his fiancee, who was an exceptional pretty girl, on the third finger of his left hand.

Most engagement rings cost much more now than formerly. As a rule, however, they are very simple. A signet or diamond ring is the most popular.

One very old design for an engagement ring has recently been reintroduced. This has no stones, but shows two hands clasped together. It is pretty and very simple.

Irish lovers are fond of a shamrock formed of emeralds.

One of the most elaborate engagement rings made recently in London was for a young Scotch lord who wanted his tartan represented in precious stones.

The work cost weeks of labor, for the stones had to be so minute that they were scarcely visible When they were all set the tartan was perfectly represented, and the ring is probably one of the best examples of the jeweler's art ever made.

DIAMONDS PAY THEIR WAY INTO AMERICA

"Very few diamonds are smuggled into this country now, whatever may have been the case in former days," declared the agent of a large jewelry house in this city, who makes a yearly trip to Europe to purchase precious stones. "The amount that is brought in without duty is so small as to have no effect on the market. Uncut diamonds are not taxed. The duty on cut stones is but 10 per cent. Amsterdam, Holland, is the great market for diamonds. Nearly all the New York dealers who import buy from that city. Eighty per cent of the diamond cutting for the world is done at Amsterdam. Few small diamonds are cut in New York city. There are almost no facilities here for doing the work. The experienced cutters at Amsterdam can turn out the work cheaper than it can be done on this side of the water, even when the customs duty is added to the rates paid the Holland manufacturers. Large diamonds, above three-quarters of a carat, are cut here, but most of this work is recutting for the changes in styles of setting."

Satan Terrified.

There is as great genius displayed in advertising as in the higher branches of literature. No problem daunts the modern advertising agent.

In the window of a little book store in Eighth avenue, New York, was recently heaped a great pile of Bibles, marked very low—never before were Bibles offered at such a bargain—and above the pile, in big letters, was the inscription:

"Satin trembles when he sees Bibles sold as low as these."

Coals of Fire.

The druggist at the corner drug store had rolled back the woman's eyelid and relieved her of untold agony by removing several grains of sand that she had accumulated at the seashore. She smiled at him gratefully.

"What do I owe you?" she asked.

"Nothing at all," said she. "You buy nearly all your postage stamps here, you know."—New York Press.

MISS WADSWORTH WEDS

CEREMONY A QUIET ONE

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich Officiates—Informal Reception—Couple to Reside in New York.

Miss Mary Tilney Titsworth, daughter of William B. Wadsworth, of West Eighth street, and William Alsop Bours, Jr., of New York, were quietly married Saturday at the home of the bride, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, officiating. The bride is a member, performed the ceremony. The affair was a quiet one, owing to the death of the bride's mother, and the guests included only the relatives and a few intimate friends. The only attendant was Bertha Tilney, a cousin of the bride, who was a flower girl.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, during which congratulations were offered and there was a wedding repast. Later the couple left on a wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside in New York. The bride has been prominent in society here, taking a leading part in many social functions.

Mr. Bours is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Alsop Bours, of Jacksonville, Fla. He is in the employ of the firm of Carpenter & Baker, marine insurance, New York. The late John T. Baker, of this city, was a member of that firm, and was succeeded by his son, J. Whitney Baker.

MOTHER FINED FOR ASSAULT.

Newark Woman Admits Pushing School Attendance Officer.

Mrs. Ann Pendergast, of No. 366 High street, Newark, was fined $5 Friday by Judge Hahn, in the First Criminal Court, after she had been found guilty of assaulting Miss Ann Spann, one of the attendance officers of the Board of Education. Miss Spann had found Mrs. Pendergast's seven-year-old daughter playing and had ordered her to the Pendergast home to inquire why the girl was not attending school. She said Mrs. Pendergast shoved her out of the house and slammed the door in her face.

The defendant admitted that she had pushed Miss Spann from the hallway and closed the door, but claimed that she was vexed because the woman, who was a stranger to her had said: "When you mothers don't know how to take care of your children we step in."

Mrs. Pendergast paid the fine.

TRINITY'S MISSION BAND PLANS OLD FOLKS CONCERT.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church held its first fall meeting in the Sunday-school room Friday afternoon when plans for the winter were discussed. Mrs. L. S. Smith, president, was in the chair. Among the things decided was one to hold an entertainment on Thursday night, November 4. The event will be similar to an old folks' concert in which members of the Band will take part. The affair will be in charge of Charles L. Lewis, assisted by Miss E. Etta Rayberg.

The Band also decided to make its contributions of clothing and money this year to the usual charitable objects and the members will at once begin active preparation for this work. It also contributes to the support of the church missionary, Rev. Paul W. Harrison.

NEW JERSEY FAIR.

Indications are that the opening day of the New Jersey Fair, which is to be held at Olympic Park, Newark, October 9 to 17, inclusive, will bring together as big and jolly a crowd as ever gathered at one time to enjoy the attractions of any fair in this part of the country.

Especial efforts will be put forth this year to have all the exhibits in place on the opening day and also to make the day just as successful and enjoyable as any of the others during the week of the fair. For this purpose special features are being provided for the opening, including a flower show, at which dahlias are to be a specialty.

In the afternoon there will be a horse racing meet which promises to yield some very entertaining sport. The field in each class will be large, judging from entries already received, and some of the best amateur racing stock in this section of the country will take part.

In addition to the other attractions, there has been arranged for the evening of the opening day a grand display of fireworks. Numerous original designs will be shown and set pieces appropriate to the occasion.

DeBrigard Pays All Creditors.

Louis DeBrigard has settled the claims of DeBrigard & Collier, who made an assignment to William G. DeMeza several days ago. Mr. DeBrigard paid one hundred cents on the dollar and has reopened the art and sporting goods store on Park avenue as its proprietor.

DECISION IS RESERVED

Mrs. Catherine Hone's Complaint Against Her Husband Aired in Court.

MISS HUFF A SOULMATE?

Countercharges of Drunkenness Made by Hone and His Daughter—Hone Released.

Judge Runyon reserved decision in the city court Saturday in the action brought by Mrs. Catharine Hone to compel her husband to support her. Evidence was brought to show that Mr. and Mrs. Hone were married in Brooklyn nine years ago and that she has left her husband twice since that time, both times leaving him for the same reason. The reason claimed by Mrs. Hone is a Miss Jennie Huff, a former silk mill operative of Pottstown, Pa.

Attorney J. Henry Crane appeared for Mrs. Hone and R. Newton Crane represented Mr. Hone. Miss Huff the alleged cause of the trouble between the couple was not in court, and Mrs. Hone had no other witness than herself. She said that she had left Pottstown to come to Plainfield last August and while she had been able to support herself until recently was now unable to work owing to poor health. She knew that her husband was living at 317 Park avenue finding him living at 317 Park avenue in a house owned by John Maxley.

Crossexamined by R. N. Crane she said that she went to the house and was refused admittance and when at last she managed to get in it was through the window. Elsie Hone locked the doors and telephoned for her father who, upon his arrival had the furniture removed from the room and Mrs. Hone was left locked in without even a chair to sit in. She finally got out into the hall where she passed the night.

Hone and his daughter claimed that Mrs. Hone was an habitual drinker and had been the means of causing all the disturbance which has afflicted the family in recent years. Mrs. Hone admitted that she had used liquor, but claimed that she had never been intoxicated, but all this testimony was denied by Hone and his daughter. The point at issue, whether Hone can be compelled to provide for his wife in this city.

Hone claims that his relations with Miss Huff were merely of a friendly nature and that there was nothing criminal in them. He admitted having borrowed five dollars from her one day when he wanted to go to Reading to look for work and explained her presence in his home in Plainfield by saying that he had secured employment for her here in the silk mill over the Marshall Laundry. Miss Hone, his daughter averred that Miss Huff was a boarder and slept with her.

Counsel up had cases of a peculiar one and involves points in law which Judge Runyon will give his consideration before rendering a verdict. Hone was released in the custody of his counsel.

THIS CHURCH BURNED BY THE WILL OF GOD

When the St. James Methodist church building in New Brunswick was badly damaged by fire several months ago a member of the church was heard to remark that it was "the will of the Lord." Yesterday morning George K. Farsell, an architect, remarked: "If you want to know why the Lord burned the St. James church, go and look at the rotten trusses which supported the roof."

The repairs now going on which will again fit the building for religious services are making astonishing revelations of a danger which threatened the destruction of this building for many months, and placed in jeopardy the lives of the entire congregation every time it occupied the building.

The trusses which supported the main roof over the body of the church, four in number, had originally a resting surface of twelve inches on the upright side walls of the building. That some of the trusses resting on the walls had rotted away to such an extent that in one instance only one inch of semi-solid wood was left to support the great weight, and several other ends had become useless except from three to four inches. It was during the time the timbers were placed in position on the brick walls the masons built brick work around them so tightly that the air could not circulate, and dry rot resulted.

It is evident that for months before the destruction of the building by fire the condition was such that an unusual jar, such as an explosion in the vicinity or a conjunction of unusually heavy passing trains on the elevation nearby, would have caused the collapse of the larger part of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carson announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edna Carson, to Harry Jaeger. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride, Tuesday night, October 26.

A SUNDAY AT CLOVELLY

Rev. C. L. Goodrich Tells of the Daintiest, Quaintest Village in All England.

WAS NEARLY KNOCKED OUT.

Low Door Lintels a Menace to Tall People—Some Impressions and Lessons Given.

Following is the text of Rev. Charles L. Goodrich's address to his congregation Sunday night. It is the first of a series of talks on Sundays in England. This one is on a "Sunday at Clovelly."

"Whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward."

Some summer day, if fortune is very kind to you, you will turn a corner by a fountain let into the wall, and look down upon a scene which, however much you may have heard about it, however often heard it described, will still cause you to exclaim with the delight and the unexpectedness of it. For you will be looking down into Clovelly, England's quaintest, daintiest village.

There is no other like it, and it is worth a long journey to find. I said you will be looking down into Clovelly, I might have said, looking down into High street, Clovelly; then I might just as well have said, into the street of Clovelly, for that is its only one. And if I had said that, you might, as you stood there, have exclaimed, "this is not a street, this is a staircase." Certainly; it is a street unique. Paved and narrow, about seven feet wide, with twists and winds, here dodging under an arch and almost through a house it climbs with successive steps its steep way up from the harbor to your feet, between spick and span cottages of whits and yellow stucco, pushing no one above the other up the hill, all dainty and bright with vines and gay flowers. A street on which no carriage can or but only pack donkeys clatter up and down. All to right and left and back now you rise sharply and high the wooded walls of the deep, almost precipitous combe or ravine, in which this village had the temerity to perch itself ten or twelve centuries ago; while far down below is a glimpse of the blue sea with a brown sailed fishing boat slipping past.

A village which one has called a bird's nest town, as it clings like a swallow's nest to a cliffside. But it is more like a decorated birdcage of a town. It is like a toy village. "Jewel dropped in a cleft of the rock, happey hundreds crest builded close by the sea." Alice Brom calls it. And still another writes: "This extraordinary village of tiny white houses appeared to have tumbled down hill like a broken string of pearls fallen from a goddess's neck." And also this: "The white village glimmered in the pearly light like a waterfall arrested in its rush down a cleft in a hill." Not having seen Clovelly you may think that a farfetched simile; but it really isn't. If a young cataract could be turned into a village that would be Clovelly.

Clovelly lays hold of you with more than its quaintness and beauty. It is a fishing village, the tiny harbor, the only dent in a long stretch of the coast, was the excuse for its location in such impossible place. There is always something about an old fishing village which takes hold of you. I hardly know why. A community whose men make their living

The place tingles, too, with associations of England's most thrilling and momentous event, the conquest of the Spanish Armada. One can hardly go up and down that narrow street and stand on the pier, among the boats and men of the sea, without thinking of Salavation Yeo, and Will Cary and other men of Clovelly, who sailed aright or not by Kingsley did have their part with the brave in the memorable sea fight.

Off the coast, in full sight in clear weather, is the Isle of Lundy, with the strange Shutter Rock at its southern end on which one of the Spanish ships was wrecked, and not on land but on the water, whose men must go out onto the deep each day leaving anxious women at home, whose men face hardships and danger daily without concern impresses you differently from other towns. For centuries the brown sailed herring boats have put out from the little cove, not always to return. On one tragic, never forgotten day, they came flying back before a gale to dash themselves on the little shingly beach, unable to make the harbor mouth, and the cruel waves flung three score dead bodies up at the feet of the women weeping on the shore. One can but feel the hardship and heroism, the shadow of tragedy in the constant peril and uncertainty of the life of such a community.

Moreover the place speaks to you also of those adventurous days of the sixteenth century when men from all the Devon churl ports were sailing away westward into the far seas, into the Spanish Main, and over untraversed ways to undiscovered lands.

Three men of Clovelly were with Drake when first of all Englishmen rounded the Horn and circled the globe, which Kingsley in his Westward Ho makes the scene of one of his strongest chapters. Off to the right is a narrow combe where some of the shipwrecked Spaniards are said to have come ashore and remained, and their descendants still live there.

There, as all through along the Devonshire coast, I could but keep saying to myself, O these men of Devon, who lived on the blue edge of the world and looked off and dared to venture forth to find another. Who lived on the edge of the old world and believed in the new, and went forth and fought for it and won it. And who, with their courage, their abomanship their staunch ships, were in larger proportion than from any other parts of England the wall of defense for Elizabeth and protestantism in the days when Spain and Romanism made their fearful onslaught. How much England and America and all the world owes to them. Something of the romance and significance of all this haunts you there and adds to the charm of the place.

It has a further interest also. It is associated with one memorable and loved name, Charles Kingsley. Indeed the historical associations, the spirit of those early days of adventurous voyages, and the conquest of the Spanish Main and the victory over the Armada that are with you there, are yours because of his Westward Ho, rather than of any school histories you have read. It is the magic of his pen, the imparting of his spirit of appreciation of that heroine age, which has made it so real to you.

This was his home through six years, the most impressible years of his boyhood. He was always coming back to it when he could. This was a village of his love. When he brought his wife to visit the place he said to her: "Now that you have seen Clovelly, you know what my inspiration was before I met you." It was out of his experiences at Clovelly, from his feeling for the life and the constant over-hanging of tragedy there, that he wrote his Three Fishers.

"Three Fishers went sailing out into the sea,
Out into the sea as the sun went down.
Each thought of the woman who loved him best
An the children stood watching them out of town.
For men must work and women must weep
And there's little to earn and many to keep,
Though the harbor bar be moaning."

He loved the place and he loved the people. And he made them love him. Miss Alice Brom in her delighful book, "By Oak and Thorn," tells of asking a resident: "Did you know Mr. ingsley?" "We all saw a matter of pride and to remember for the rest of life, that he had carried Mr. Kingsley's satchel to the boat when he was away for the last time. As Charles Kingsley had been for many years an inspiration and strength to me, personally, as he did for me in my earlier years what few other have done, it was a pleasure to be in the little town which he loved and which loves him to this day.

As Clovelly has such a combination of charms, so many claims to one's interest, I did not think the more of one writer who said he would as soon live in a house that was all staircases as live in Clovelly; nor could I sympathize with a clerical friend who said: "I have rarely been so glad to get out of any place as out of Clovelly: there was nothing to do there but go up and down that one steep street." Surely there is no accounting for tastes; for we left it with regret, feeling sure that we should find nothing more charming in all our wandering. And so I say again, if fortune is very kind to you, you will come that corner some day, and look down upon it, and out of every house, as welcome as a bit of sunlight on a wet day, and asking how was this one and how was that, and had the lads got home from the sea? Ah, we loved Mr. Kingsley!"

We chanced to ask the same question of the oldest inhabitant, 96 years of age. He did not make as beautiful an answer, but one that manifested the same sort of feeling for Mr. Kingsley. He recalled as happy day, and look down into the daintiest and quaintest bit of Devonshire. And if fortune is very, very kind to you, you will happen into the lodgings that we found, and be most comfortably and courteously cared for by descendants of the shipwrecked Spaniards from the Armada, in one of the best of the quaint old houses, and be served by the prettiest of Clovelly maids with the soft lest of Devon voices whose sweetest ed "thank you," whenever you let her hand you any delicious dish, will be a constant pleasure. Only you must go soon, for a certain young men seemed to appreciate her as highly as we did.

One warning, I must give you. If you happen to stand six feet in your shoes, you must learn to be humble for the lintels of all the doors of that house will strike such a person right in the middle of his forehead. I could not always hear that in mind, and therefore suffered. Indeed there came near to being no Sunday in Clovelly for me to describe; for setting out for church, hurrying back to our living room for some forgotten article, the door lintel smote me with a blow which nearly annihilated me. Once again did pride go before a fall, and a haughty (or hasty) spirit almost before destruction. It is a wonder that I got out of Clovelly alive for one could not always remember. But that Sunday morning blow has at least served to bring me to my subject, which perhaps some of you have thought I was not to reach at all. A Sunday in Clovelly. The blow did not quite annihilate me, so with dented brow and chastened spirit I again set forth with my fellow travellers, who had been considerate enough not to laugh at me—much—to climb the hill, turn the corner by the fountain, and on by walls bright with fuschias and roses, to the level country above and to the parish church at Clovelly Court, which all lovers of Westward Ho will remember was Will Cary's home, the gentleman's estate to which all the region belonged, a tablet to whose memory hangs on the wall of the church.

To reach the church we went in past the porter's lodge into the grounds of the Court; for the church was a part of the estate. It was our first experience attending service in that old English country church attached to a gentleman's estate and had its own interest. Around the church here, as everywhere, was an ancient cemetery, with moss grown stones dating back to times when America was not known or was but a name of some daring navigator. The church door was approached through an avenue, one may almost call it a tunnel, of yew trees. At the door was a notice for the benefit of strangers telling us that the font within was of Saxon-made of the year 1000, that the pillars were of Lundy granite of the year 1300. To one whose land had not been discovered for so many, many years later, this could but give the feeling that here was a structure hoary with age. Here had men been bowing in prayer through all the years of his own land's discovery and peopling and all its history; here had gathered for prayer some of the very men who had helped to find and to make America, and here, were men and women still gathering to pray. So one might well enter with the sense of the past upon him with a feeling of the continuity of religion, of the oneness of past and present, the debt of the day to the yesterdays. With some swelling of the heart at the feeling of being part of the long procession of devotioners in the ages.

Going within did not tend to lessen these feelings, for all about on the walls were tablets and brasses, memorials of men of former generations, dating far back in the centuries. Here in our first English country church we were impressed at once—and the impression deepened as we went on in our tour—with the way the English churches keep the men of the past in mind. The churches all over England in country as well as in city, the small as well as the great are temples of honor. The names of the honored dead are upon their walls.

Stepping inside the church one felt as if he were in a picture, to see that the square stone tower came down open into the main room and there were six men pulling away at the bells. It was right on an English Christmas card! The English manner of ringing church bells, which I had not observed before, ringing not of chimes, but five or six bells of harmonious tones rung at once, is very pleasing.

Courteously received and provided with prayer and hymnbooks we sat down the better prepared for worship by the impressions already made upon us. We had enjoyed as much the soft voices of the Devonshire people in their conversation, that we looked forward to the singing of these people, and we were not disappointed. We were disappointed, though, in the sermon: very agreeable any how. One has often heard the statement that the sermons in the state churches of England are of a very indifferent character. But this was of a very high order. It was short of course, shorter than this talk seems likely to be; scarcely more than ten minutes. But you would go far to hear a better, ten-minute sermon. Simple enough for the humblest present, but stimulating. Not new altogether in theme or thought, but freshly and aptly presented. If I could give you in any real degree the impression and truths of that brief sermon it would justify my theme.

If you will take away with you only two or three fragments from it you will be repaid for coming here. The theme was "Cups of Cold Water." The text was the words of Jesus: "Whosoever shall give drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water to only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward."

In the hot country in which Jesus spent his life the wayfarer must often have asked the plowman at work in the field for a drink from the goat skin bag which he had brought with him into the field. Jesus himself had doubtless many times requested just such request. This common act Jesus took and made something uncommon out of it. Took it and used it for an undying lesson. It was Jesus' way to take small things and build great upon them. To take the simple ordinary things of everyday and make something high and great to take a simple act such as any person can perform, and show how it may be connected with a motive high enough for a divine being to cherish. He took this common act, done every day by the working people, and connected it with the prophets whom the devout Jews reverenced with great reverence, declaring it may have the same kind of a reward as the doings of the holy prophets of old.

So he set in picturesque unforgetable way the encouraging truth that it is not the magnitude of the deed that counts so much as the motive, not the renown or station of the person that counts so much as the aim that is beneath the deeds. That is in God's eyes. For in this saying Jesus has pictured the truth that God does not look at deeds or persons as most men do. That where others weigh the deed he weighs the motive, where others see the outward he discerns the heart and rewards accordingly. So may everyone be stimulated to do joyfully the deeds he can compass, as his opportunity come, assured that with God it is the willingness and the motive of love that count most.

I wonder if you have ever thought of one meaning of the term "little ones" in the text which he gave? The little ones of Jesus' thought are not only children, though whenever a good deed is done a child angels are hovering near. But in almost any company, where two or three are gathered together, one of them is likely to be less clever, or less interesting, a person whom others are not as likely to defer to, or to pay as much attention or to treat as heartily as the others. So a little one is there and there is opportunity to give a cup of cold water. To show that one attention, draw that one out, make that one glad with genuine friendliness.

Does not that interpretation open to one's thought a field of opportunity for kindness which almost any one can improve and of which perhaps we have not thought enough? In illustration of this he referred to a famous American general, I am ashamed that I do not know to whom he referred, who besides being a successful soldier was a gentleman, every inch of him, and on whose tombstone was placed this singular inscription: "He danced with those with whom others would not dance."

We do not all dance, and we are not all such that anyone would feel in any favor to dance with us, perhaps, but I brought from out that old church that morning, the desire to be of more service to those whom others did not care very much for; the desire to make in any company the least happy one more happy. That desire I could wish you also might catch as an echo of that Sunday.

DOWNS MADE MANAGER OF PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Proctor & Sanderson, lessees of the Plainfield theatre, announced Monday that Emery Newell Downs, who has been associated with Mr. Sanderson at Proctor's theatre here, has been appointed manager of the West Second street playhouse to succeed the late Harry Calvert Egerton, whose death occurred here a week ago. The change is effective at once. When Proctor & Sanderson leased the Plainfield theatre, Mr. Egerton, who had been manager of the Princess theatre, Montreal, Can., was engaged to fill a similar position here. He was not in the best of health and his death occurred about a week ago from neurasthenia.

Mr. Downs is a native of Brooklyn, and prior to four years ago, when he entered the employ of Keith & Proctor at their Twenty-third street house, New York, was engaged in the real estate business. When Mr. Sanderson opened Proctor's theatre in West Fourth street he brought Mr. Downs here to be his right-hand man in the management of the playhouse. Mrs. Downs, who was then in charge of the music at Proctor's theatre, Elizabeth, was also brought here in the same capacity.

During the year that Mr. Downs has been here he has made many friends among the Plainfield people and it is a recognition of his ability and faithful service that he has been put in charge of the Plainfield theatre. The same policy which has made the Proctor theatres throughout the country famous as centres of amusement will be continued here and it will be the constant aim of Proctor & Sanderson to give the people of Plainfield and vicinity the best possible in the way of amusements.

Important, If True.

HE EXPLAINED SOCIALISM

John Spargo Delivered Instructive Talk Before Monday Afternoon Club.

THE CREED AND OBJECTS.

The Socialists Demand Simply an Equal Opportunity Says the Distinguished Author.

The opening lecture of the Monday Afternoon club, by John Spargo, the socialistic author and lecturer, attracted a large and representative audience to the Hartridge School auditorium, Monday afternoon. His subject was "What Socialism Really Is," and was treated with an earnestness so tempered with moderation that he held the close attention.

Mr. Spargo's definition of socialism, the social ownership of all means of production, distribution and exchange, he admitted must not be taken too literally and had a different meaning twenty years ago. The speaker said that the socialistic movement is making universal progress and he considered it in a threefold aspect, first a philosophy of human and third, as a political movement, and thidr, as a political movement.

Mr. Spargo said the socialist believes things are as they are, not by wickedness, but from changes in economic conditions. He did not believe Rockfellow and Harriman were worse than others. They were the product of the economic condifions of the times. Under the second head, Mr. Spargo said that modern socialism was not a scheme, but a spirit and principle of action. As a political movement, Mr. Spargo spoke of socialism as a baby, but the baby of a giant with such power and spiritual strength beyond the material progress that it were well to heed the Hebrew plea, as he called it, "Come let us reason together." Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch, elected president in May, presided at the meeting.

BOARD BILL BORED BILL; NOW IT BORES DUNELLEN

A new wrinkle in civic questions was raised before the Dunellen Com*mon Council on Monday* evening meeting when Mrs. Elizabeth Schenck, a boarding house keeper, presented the board bill of former Marshal William R. Sliney to the Council for payment. The bill amounted to $16 and as it was contracted while Sliney was in the borough's employ Mrs. Schenck thought that Dunellen ought to pay it. Finally, the bill was ordered filed.

Then Constable R. L. Pierce came along with a writ of attachment for the bill and costs on the salary due Sliney as marshal. Lastly Mayor Swackhamer appointed James Benson acting marshal for October at a monthly recompense of $20.

A Matter of Conscience.

NOT CRIMINAL ASSAULT

Domenico Roberzio Released from Serious Charge in City Court.

MISS RUBRA'S STORY ERRATIC

Simple Assault Complaint Suggested by Judge William N. Runyon Not Pressed Today.

Judge Runyon dismissed the complaint made against Domenico Roberzio in the city court Tuesday after hearing the complaining witness tell her story.

Roberezio, an Italian, escaped from this city about the middle of August after a complaint had been made against him of attempted criminal assault on Josephine Rubba. He was arrested yesterday by the police and brought before Judge William Runyon in the city court this morning. Miss Rubba told her story through an interpreter and said that after her father had been arrested upon a minor complaint on August 15, Roberzio told her that she would have to accompany him to the office of a judge or a lawyer so that she could obtain the release of her father.

When on the way and in a place she could not remember she said that Roberzio attempted to assault her and threatened to kill her because she was the original cause of her father's arrest. According to her own story no attempt of a criminal nature was made by Roberzio but he did threaten her and did her some bodily injury. She also declared that she struggled with him for an hour or more in an effort to get away from him, but she could not say or would not remember that her assailant had attempted to overpower with criminal intent.

She also said he only desisted from his attack when two women were seen approaching. She could not scream because he had her nose between his fingers.

In dismissing the complaint Judge Runyon said that the case had not been proven as to the first charge, but that he would entertain a charge of simple assault if the complainant decided to press it. Evidently some understanding was arrived at between the parties as the complaint was withdrawn altogether.

the great battle between the Russians and the Japanese, and then boarded a train on a Japanese railroad, riding in a thoroughly up-to-date Pullman coach with all the conveniences to be found on American roads.

The trip in this train extended to Chang Chung and at the latter place they took a train on the Trans-Siberian Railroad to Moscow, a distance of 5,000 miles. After that they visited Sweden, Denmark, Germany, France, London, then Ireland, Wales, Scotland and back to London, from which place they left for home, arriving in New York on Monday.

In referring to conditions in Siberia, Mr. Reed said that he found cattle and sheep grazing on the beautiful rolling country and near the Russian border he found the country well under cultivation. The country is thickly populated and the government is urging the peasants to go to Siberia. The entire trip taken by Mr. and Mrs. Reed covered about 30,000 miles, half by water and half by rail.

When the interview was completed, Mr. Reed said in parting, "America is good enough for me and both Mrs. Reed and myself are mighty glad to get home again."

BID PASTOR FAREWELL

Park Avenue Baptist Church Congregation's Reception for Rev. and Mrs. Finn.

SOME HANDSOME PRESENTS.

Rev. Mr. Finn Receives Solid Silver Service and His Wife a Silver Toilet Set.

More than three hundred members and friends of the Park Avenue Baptist church thronged that edifice last night at the farewell reception tendered to the retiring pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn and his wife. While the affair was a pleasant one, a feeling of deep regret over the departure of pastor and wife was expressed.

The church was attractively decorated with autumn boughs. A twelve piece orchestra, under the leadership of Arthur S. Mosher and Miss Mamie Clark, pianist, rendered a splendid musical program of classical and popular selections. It was one of the pleasing features of the reception.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Finn were presented with a solid silver service, filled with greenbacks by the congregation. In addition Mrs. Finn was presented with a silver toilet set by her Bible class of the Sunday school. George W. V. Moy made the presentation speech of the silver service to Mr. and Mrs. Finn. Among other things he said: "I have the peculiar sensation and pleasure in addressing you on this, your farewell reception. We have found you to be a good pastor, a good friend ever ready to help and minister unto your parishioners.

"Every beginning must have an end. We had the joy of your coming and now we have the sorrow of your going. Lest you forget the Park Avenue Baptist church and its people, it has been deemed wise to purchase and give you some remembrance of your pastorate here. Once a week, if I remember aright, you will have to clean and polish this silver service. You will then remember and bless the Park Avenue Baptist church and its people. On behalf of your people I present this service to you. May God bless you and be with you in your new pastorate."

Mr. Finn accepting the gift, spoke with intensity of feeling. He said:

"Words fail to convey my feelings and they do fail me now. I am, indeed, sorry to go. When I came here six years ago I didn't know such friendship would be developed. Before I accepted your call, an astute business man here wrote and begged me not to accept, but thank God I did. I am called upon to part with you under the direction of Him, who sent me here. While thanking you for your present, I do not need presents to be reminded of you.

"Friendships have been made which severance of church ties won't sever. The Park Avenue church and all its people will always have a warm spot in my heart. I thank you again for the many kindnesses which you have heaped upon me. Since my resignation, I have realized more and more the love and deep appreciation. Don't make it too hard for me to go. I desire that this church be a mighty factor in the community.

"Rally around your new pastor and give him the co-operation you gave me and you will make it so. The church is in better condition financially and spiritually than when I came here. We shall remember you. We thank you again for your gifts."

Mrs. Charles F. Dayton, in a few well chosen words, then presented Mrs. Finn with a silver toilet set. The latter was overcome with emotion and in a few minutes made a happy response. Refreshments were then served by Mr. Finn's adult Bible class, under the direction of Harry Johnston.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. John Y. Brook, Rev. J. W. Musson, Rev. L. R. Howard and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring were present as representatives of the Plainfield Ministerial Association.

The committees in charge were as follows: Reception, Deacon and Mrs. Theodore I. Runyon, Deacon and Mrs. D. M. Runyon, Deacon and Mrs. Charles F. Dayton, Deacon and Mrs. Isaac Giles; decorations, Miss Mary Giles; music, Arthur S. Mosher and G. W. V. Moy; refreshments, Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry, Miss Carrie Dunham, Mrs. Charles VanWinkle and Mrs. James S. Pray.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS' ASSOCIATION MEETS

The October meeting of the Society of Certified Public Accountants of the State of New Jersey, was held at Truell Hall, last night, after a fine dinner, which was served at 6 o'clock. The feature of the meeting was an address by J. E. Sterrett, president of the American Association of Public Accountants, which has a membership of about 800.

Mr. Sterrett's talk, which was of an informal character, treated entirely with the work of certified public accountants not only in New Jersey, but throughout the country. His words were a source of much encouragement, indicating steady progress in the way of recognition of those in the profession.

Reference was also made to legislation which it was believed would be advisable in this State in advancing the interests of the society. At present there are no laws in force which are of a direct benefit to the society, and it is proposed that some measure be introduced and passed that will accomplish this and bring recognition to the society.

There are about fifty members of the Public Accountants' Society and those present last night were William H. Beidelman, Frank G. DuBois, of Newark; W. Sanders Davies, of New York; Edwin E. Gano, of Bound Brook; August Hartkorn, of Hoboken; Henry C. Magee, of Camden; Benjamin F. Pabodie, of Montclair; Thomas Gullen Roberts, of Hoboken; William T. Sawyer, of Elizabeth; Edward L. Suffern, George Wilkinson, Edwin G. Woodling, of Cranford. Thomas Cullen Roberts is secretary of the American Association.

GREAT GATHERING OF EPISCOPAL LAYMEN

Plainfield is represented by Rev. George A. Warren at the annual convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the United States, which began today at Providence, R. I., and will be concluded on Sunday. Ten thousand delegates are present.

Workers among boys and young men in all sections of the country, including clergymen, lawyers, judges, teachers and probation officers will attend and will make addresses. Among the speakers will be the following: Robert H. Gardiner, president of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew; the Rt. Rev. Robert Codman, D. D., bishop of Maine; the Rt. Rev. William N. McVicker, bishop of Rhode Island; the Rt. Rev. E. M. Parker, D. D., bishop coadjutor of New Hampshire; the Rt. Rev. T. F. Gailor, bishop of Tennessee; the Rt. Rev. F. J. Kinsman, D. D., bishop of Delaware; George H. Randall, associate secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew; Hubert Carleton, general secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew; G. Frank Shelby, New York district secretary; W. A. Cornelius, Pittsburg Local Assembly; F. A. Lambert, Baltimore, Md.; L. V. Webb, field secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew; W. A. Haboush, Central West secretary; James A. Houghteling, Chicago, founder of the Brotherhood; the Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, rector of Holy Trinity church, Philadelphia; H. A. Phelps, Christ church, Junior Chapter, Ansonia, Conn.; J. P. Wishart, Christ church, Junior Chapter, St. Louis, Mo.; C. C. Bentley, Christ church, Junior Chapter, Oswego, N. Y.

The brotherhood was organized twenty-five years ago in St. James' church, Chicago. James Houghteling conceived the idea of forming his little class of young men into an organization which he called the St. Andrew Brotherhood, the purpose of that organization being to bring other men to church. It had two rules, the rule of prayer and the rule of service. The rule of prayer was that each member should pray each day for the spread of Christ's kingdom among men, and the rule of service was that each member should make an earnest effort each week to bring some man under church influence.

From this small chapter, stasting twenty-five years ago in Chicago, has grown one of the most powerful organizations of the Episcopal church, numbering at the present time between 17,000 and 18,000 members.

YOKOHAMA MISSIONARY AT CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH

Miss May Tracy, formerly of Plainfield, but who for nearly seven years has been engaged in mission work in a girl's boarding school at Yokohoma, Japan, gave a delightful informal talk yesterday afternoon before the Women's Foreign Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. There were about one hundred members of the society and friends present.

There was special interest in the meeting because Miss Tracy spent the greater part of her life in Plainfield and was active in the work of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. The school in Yokohoma, where she teaches, is one of the oldest in that place, being established thirty-eight years. It is non-sectarian.

Miss Tracy spoke in an encouraging way of the work, although she said that it was naturally slow. The greatest results are to be found after the girls leave the school and return to their several homes. It is there that their good influence is felt among the people of their race.

While the mission school is non-sectarian, being supported by denominations, the Crescent avenue church has always maintained a deep personal interest in Miss Tracy's work. She was given a cordial reception upon this her first visit to Plainfield since going to Japan.

After the meeting there was a social hour and tea was served, Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch and Mrs. Evarts Tracy presiding. An opportunity was given at this time for those present to personally meet Miss Tracy. During her visit here she is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jewett, of Central avenue.

ARCHITECT'S PLANS FOR PUBLIC MARKET

Architect Fred L. Lancaster has completed the plans for the public market to be established by the Quoin Investment Company on the property now occupied by the Plainfield Cab Company on North avenue, and bids for the work will be asked for at once. The cab company will vacate the property November 1, when operations will begin on transforming the place into a market.

The plans provide that the entire second floor shall be removed and the building opened to the roof, permitting plenty of air and light. A solid concrete floor will also be laid. One of the features of the market will be a women's rest room, with all public comfort conveniences. This will be located near the main entrance on North avenue. It will be furnished with tile flooring and all modern sanitary appliances, making it an attractive place for the women.

The company has already received great encouragement in the project and it is believed that the numerous stalls will be rented readily by the merchants.

Ice at a Fair Price.

It has been, and still is the intention of the Crystal Ice Company to sell ice to the people of Plainfield at a moderate and fair price. The company is interested in doing business so that the public will have the benefit. Farmington is the company, and there will be no monopoly of the business, and the public will receive the benefit. Communicate with MacDonald & Ivamy, sole distributors in city. OBSERVE COLUMBUS DAY

Watchung Council's Knights Listen to Speeches on the Explorer.

AN ENTERTAINING PROGRAM.

Following the Addresses, a Comedian and a Magician Amuse the Members.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, celebrated Columbus Day, with an informal program of entertainment at its lodge rooms on East Front street, last night. It being the first time that Columbus Day was generally observed as a legal holiday, the local knights planned to observe the occasion in a fitting manner.

During the early part of the evening there were two excellent addresses one by Andrew E. Kenney and the other by Arthur A. Cannon. Both spoke of Columbus and his achievement in discovering America. Mr. Cannon referred especially to the voyage of Columbus to America, describing in detail the hardships encountered. He spoke of his perseverance as against the resistance of his crew, which plead earnestly for Columbus to turn back.

In his reference to this Mr. Cannon compared the voyage of Columbus with the trip of Dr. Cook to the North Pole, showing how the latter had the co-operation of a band of Esquimaux, who lent every assistance to his remarkable achievement, while on several occasions Columbus was threatened with his life by his crew, and every obstacle was placed in his way.

The rest of the evening was devoted to entertainment, a program being furnished by a magician and comedian from New York. Johnny Campbell also favored the knights with piano and vocal selections. A collation was served afterward. John Carey, as lecturer of the Council, was in charge of the affair. The rooms were attractively decorated with American flags.

COMMANDERY AUXILIARY HONORS MRS. J. F. BUCKLE

The Ladies' Auxilliary of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., gave a luncheon and euchre party this afternoon in honor of its president, Mrs. James F. Buckle, who with her husband will soon leave on a trip around the world.

Mrs. Buckle was presented to the assembled women by Mrs. Winfield S. Angleman, after which Mrs. James S. Pray presented Mrs. Buckle with a handsome leather pocketbook, on behalf of the auxiliary.

After the luncheon, euchre was enjoyed. The favors were miniature brooms in the shape of candy boxes. The decorations consisted of greens and pink carnations. Novel place cards were used for the members and guests. The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Winfield S. Angleman, Mrs. Arthur McVoy, Mrs. Frank G. Payson, Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Mrs. James S. Pray and Mrs. Elizabeth Woodhard.

G. E. FINANCE REPORTS; RESOLUTION ADOPTED

At the meeting of the general and finance committee of the Christian Endeavor Union, held last night at the Y. M. C. A. building, the finance committee passed on all bills and the general committee ordered William Latourette, treasurer, to pay the same. Chairman Frank Stewart reported a substantial balance on hand, after all bills were paid.

The members of the Union will decide what they will do with the surplus at the next mass meeting of the union which will be held in November. It was found that the delegates in attendance at the session of the State convention, numbered 1,000 and exceeded the expectations of the local committee. The chairman was authorized to send the best wishes of the committee to Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the Endeavor society, who will leave New York on Friday on his fifth world tour in the interest of the Endeavor movement. The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the committee:

"Be it resolved, That we, the undersigned members of the convention committee of the United Christian Endeavor Union do hereby show our grateful appreciation of the faithful service and untiring devotion of our secretary, Charles F. Windham, in the manifold duties incumbent upon him and that we as individuals do thus sincerely thank him for the many helpful suggestions and cheerful assistance he has given us in the performance of our respective duties."

A committee was appointed by the chair to draft resolutions thanking all who assisted in making the convention a success.

CONGREGATIONAL CLUB ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the Men's Club of the Congregational church last night Dr. Frank T. Clawson was re-elected president and J. A. Powlison vice-president. The other officers are D. V. Hubbard, secretary, and C. E. Steiner, treasurer. The executive committee named was M. C. Van Arsdale and A. N. Neilson.

During the past year eleven new members have been added to the club roster and the work accomplished among the men of the church in a social way has been somewhat better than in previous years. All the reports tended to show that the club is in a flourishing condition and that interest in all its various activities has stimulated through the feeling of brotherhood which has prevailed during the many years of the club's existence.

After the business meeting the entertainment committee introduced Emil Closs, a humorist of diversified abilities who entertained the thirty or more members of the club in some decidedly clever impersonations. A light refreshment followed the caricatures by Mr. Closs.

THREE CELEBRATIONS IN ONE BY MR. AND MRS. L. B. HARRIS.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester B. Harris of West Front street, celebrated the twenty-eighth anniversary of their wedding, the bride's birthday, and Columbus Day, all at once, so to speak, with a reception and collation last night. The day also marked the twenty-eighth wedding anniversary of Mrs. Harris' sister, Mrs. John M. Anderson. The sisters were married at the same place and hour at Greenville.

All of the celebrants' immediate family were present. An informal musical program was given, with Hugo Schopenhauer at the piano. The dinner table was decorated with autmun leaves to good effect.

GOVERNMENT EXPERT TALKS ON WEATHER.

The woes of the "weather man" were told in detail to fifty members of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last night by Prof. R. A. Abbey, weather expert. While his address was largely of a scientific nature, he managed to make all of his points clear to his audience.

Prof. Abbey called for and replied to a variety of questions on barometric conditions. A collation was served.

COLUCCI AND AFFINITY HELD FOR GRAND JURY

The case of Ernest Colucci and Mary Jarrell was brought up this morning in the City Court before Judge Runyon for further hearing and the pair were held under $200 bonds each to await the action of the grand jury. A warrant for the arrest of Colucci, signed by Justice of the Peace John W. Young, of Dover, was served on Colucci in the court room by Chief of Police Edward Byram, of Dover, and Colucci was released under a $200 bond to appear before that Judge on Wednesday, November 3.

Alfonso Colucci, an uncle of the prisoner, signed the bonds in the case of Colucci, giving as security the house and lot at 805 North avenue, valued at $4,000. As no one appeared to give security for the Jarrell woman she will be taken to Elizabeth to await the grand jury's action in the case.

Colucci this morning seemed to realize that indifference to the claims of his wife would hardly pay and suggested a reconciliation. Mrs. Colucci, while willing, for the sake of her children, to return to her husband was not ready to take the risk without some security as to the fulfilment of her husband's promises to take care of her and their three children. In the meantime, it is believed, that with the other woman out of the way, the married relations of the couple can be resumed and that they will live happily together. It is quite likely that Colucci's uncle will sign the necessary bond to secure his nephew's good behaviour in the future.

MISS ALICE DE MOTT, G. C. O'NEILL'S BRIDE

Miss Alice Mae DeMott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry DeMott, of Somerset street, and Grover C. O'Neill, son of Mrs. John C. O'Neill, of New Brunswick, were married last night by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ada Belle DeMott, as maid-of-honor. Another sister, Miss Jennie DeMott, and Miss Elizabeth Perrine, a cousin, were the bridesmaids. The best man was Newell L. Powelson, of the Columbia, and the ushers were George Burton, Frederick Ayres, and Arthur Farley, all of New Brunswick, and Arthur Farley, of this city. Little Miss Gladys Brokaw was the flower girl.

The ceremony was performed in a bay window under a bell of carnations, and ferns. Miss Anne Giddis, of Bound Brook, a cousin of the bride, played the wedding march from Lohengrin. The bride's dress was a princess lace robe over satin, with pearl trimmings. The maid-of-honor's gown was lavender trimmed with satin and gold, and the bridesmaid's dresses were of pink satin with pearl trimming.

Many beautiful presents were tendered the happy pair. At the end of the evening, they escaped into an automobile and foiled the rice-throwers by catching a convenient night train to New York, whence they will go to Washington, where the honeymoon will be spent. Before leaving the bride presented the maid-of-honor with a gold necklace, the bridesmaids with gold rings, and the flower girl with a gold bracelet. The groom's present to the best man was a diamond watch fob and the ushers were tendered tie clasps. The groom presented the bride with an upright piano.

Both the bride and groom's immediate families were present. Among the bride's relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Giddis, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Conroy, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Giddis, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Giddis and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Perrine, of Plainfield, and Mr. and Mrs. William DeMott, of Green Village. Among Mr. O'Neill's relatives in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer O'Neill, Mrs. Amelia Price, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Houghton and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ryerson, of New Brunswick, and William H. O'Neill, of New York.

The couple will reside in New Brunswick.

"Our New Minister."

A play that pleases everybody comes along but once in a generation. "The Old Homestead" was this sort of piece. Denman Thompson and George W. Ryer, who wrote that idyl, have certainly done the trick again with absorbingly interesting and wholesomely amusing reflex of life in a small country town which they call "Our New Minister." The piece was one of the biggest hits this season and is at the Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

EVILS OF THE TARIFF TOLD BY JOHN MOODY

Theory That Protective Legislation Encourages Legitimate Business Interests He Says is False.

EXPOUNDS PARTY DOCTRINE.

The evils of a protective tariff were laid bare last night by John Moody, publisher of Moody's Manual, before a large gathering of representatives of both the big political parties at Coward's hall, the regular meeting place of the Democratic club under whose auspices Mr. Moody spoke. The trusts, the labor question, railroad rates, political corruption and the cost of living are the direct results of the high protective tariff with which the people of the country have been saddled for the last forty years.

In an estimated national wealth of 110 billions of dollars about one-half is represented by the capitalization of the trusts. Prosperity is only another name for imposition, according to Mr. Moody's theories, and the proof is very simple of attainment if one will only think. For instance —An article which under the Wilson Bill was sold at retail for 2.25 is now sold for 3.25, and the consumer pays the difference. This notwithstanding the fact that while the article in question had an impost duty of 25 per cent. ad valorem under the old tariff and 50 per cent. under the new.

What Mr. Moody wanted to bring home to the voters was the fact that although the people say they are not affected by the tariff if they do not buy imported goods they are in error for the prices on articles of domestic manufacture are sold at the same prices, practically, as those brought about upon which the protective tax had a considerable influence on the selling price.

Mr. Moody spoke at great length on the relative disproportion of wages and the present cost of living, stating that statistics showed that while clothing and food had advanced in cost to the consumer from 50 to 160 per cent. wages had advanced but a meagre 25 to 50 and this increase of wages does not include the farm laborer. He emphasized the injurious effect of the present protective legislation on all smaller industries and said that it was a mistaken idea among Democrats and Republicans alike that it had been the one big asset which has encouraged "legitimate business interests."

Summarized these are the results of high tariff: The trusts become more formidable every year; labor is not receiving its just proportion of our vaunted prosperity; political corruption is rampant among our law makers; railroad rates, both passenger and freight are a burden to the country. The remedy will be found only in eliminating the trusts and making their existence impossible. This the Democratic party alone can do by electing Democratic Senators and Representatives.

Speaking of the financial disasters of 1893 and 1907 Mr. Moody said both were attributable to the tariff measures known as the McKinley Bill and the Dingley Bill. That of 1893, which was proclaimed the direct result of the Wilson Bill which Grover Cleveland refused to sign was in reality caused by the McKinley tariff which allowed the trusts to give watered stock in anticipation of a prosperity which did not materialize. The Steel trust, a corporation capitalized at one and a half billions, has made good its watered stock only through the protection offered by high tariff. But this great industry is paying a dividend through the enormous demands for its products by the railroads of the country, who in turn derive their revenue from the people who ride in its coaches and pay the freight. If the Steel trust did not charge such high prices for their product the railroads could lower their rates and still pay the dividends to their stockholders.

In his preliminary remarks Mr. Moody defined the difference between Republicanism and Democracy, saying the former means a limited freedom and the latter absolute freedom including free trade. We do not want legislation to regulate the trusts, but we do want the trusts legislated out of existence; then and only then will the people of this country have the real prosperity, he said.

"Why do the Republicans stand so closely together on the vital questions of the day?" he asked, "be-

EASTERN STAR CHARTER

Lydia Chapter, Knights Templar Auxiliary, Entertains Visitors.

—Chapter Is Prosperous.

Lydia Chapter, U. D., Order of the Eastern Star, which was organized here four months ago, received an official visitation from the Grand Lodge officers in the Masonic Hall Association rooms Friday night. In all there were about two hundred women present, including the visiting officers. The chief purpose of the visitation was to ascertain whether the local chapter had progressed sufficiently since organization to receive a charter. It was learned that it had and the Grand Lodge officers spoke words of praise of the work.

During the business session the degrees were conferred on five candidates in a manner that called forth nothing but words of praise. Mr. and Mrs. Donald McInnes entertained the members and friends of the recently-organized Home dep'ter of over one hundred, to the number of over one hundred, at their home, 824 West Third street, Friday night. It was one of the best socials given by members of the chapel, and was a pleasing demonstration of the chapel spirit. In the donkey party game, Miss Ruth Kenney received first honors, Miss Le Poidevin second and Rev. L. R. Howard was presented with the booby prize. He caused much merriment when he opened it and displayed a "lolly pop."

A number of parlor games were played, after which refreshments were served by Miss Kennena Hansen, Miss Florence Millar, Mrs. Thos. Hendry, Mrs. F. A. Weber, Mrs. William Gray, Mrs. Harry Vogel, Mrs. Willard Cook, Mrs. Margaret Hansen, Mrs. Donald McInnes, Messrs. COUNTY ROADS' MONEY

Union's Freeholders to Issue Bonds for $70,000 Worth of Improvements.

MUCH WAS DONE IN A YEAR.

Many Fine Thoroughfares Built and Repaired Throughout Union County.

The Union County Board of Freeholders overestimated the amount of money which the county would be required to pay out this year for road work. At a meeting of the board Thursday a resolution passed on May 9 calling for the floating of bonds to raise $100,000 for road work, was rescinded. Immediately afterward another resolution was adopted which authorizes the issuing of bonds for $70,000.

It was stated in the resolution that the road committee had learned that the amount of work to be done and now being done would not exceed the $70,000 asked for and that therefore it was thought advisable to cut down the original estimated amount to that sum if needed. This was recommended by the bonding company to avoid any complication which might arise.

The issuing of bonds to raise money for road work was begun by the county to relieve the taxpayers of additional burdens. The procedure is taken under an act to provide for the permanent improvement of public roads in the State. This act provides that the county where work is done pays two-thirds of the actual cost and the State the other third.

Instead of restifying to the county board of assessors the estimated cost of roads and having the amount included in the assessment of county taxes, the Freeholders issue bonds to raise the amount required. The bonds are known as "Road Improvement Bonds" and are payable in thirty years. Interest is at the rate of four per cent. and is payable semi-annually.

Road Work During Year.

Since the original resolution authorizing the raising of $100,000 was passed, the Board of Freeholders contracted to construct several roads or sections of roads in the county. Among the work was the improvement of the following highways:

Jefferson avenue, at a cost of $2,471; Terrill road, $26,044.28; Walnut and Central avenues, $15,483; Edgar road, Lemington and Milton avenue, $43,309.64; Washington avenue, Edgar road, $18,949.50.

This work, which called for an expenditure of $106,254.42, was estimated before the resolution was passed. The committee expected to do further work during the year. It has been decided now, however, that Union county's share of the expense for road work will not be within $30,000 of the original estimate.

With an idea of saving money for the county the Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings successfully recommended the installing of a water plant in the Courthouse. The committee was authorized to go ahead with the plans for the plant, and if thought advisable to build it at a cost not exceeding $2,500.

In reporting on the matter the committee said that by owning its own plant the county would save about $1,400 a year. The plant, which will consist of driven wells connected with up-to-date piping and plumbing, will supply the water for all of the county buildings, including the Courthouse and county jail.

Roselle Park Makes Complaint.

Another matter to come before the board yesterday was the consideration of a communication received from Mayor Louis Ebert, of Roselle Park, regarding the payment of money due the county for the building of county roads. Mr. Ebert stated that County Collector Leavitt had urged the borough to pay $8,680, the indebtedness of the municipality for the construction of roads. The Mayor, in behalf of the borough, contended that the amount was larger than the share which the borough should pay.

The county roads, he said, were built when Roselle Park was a part of Union township. When the roads were completed the municipality were to pay one-third of the cost and the county was to pay two-thirds. When the borough was incorporated, Mr. Ebert said, a meeting was held with representatives of the township for the allotment and division of liabilities and liens. It was decided at that time, he contended, that Roselle Park was to pay for the county roads in proportion to the length of county roads within the borough limits, and that the township was to pay in proportion to the length of the county roads outside of the borough limits, but in the township.

The matter was referred to the County Road Committee, the County Collector and the County Attorney. Mr. Edgington, the attorney, said to a reporter after the meeting that in his opinion the county was not responsible for any agreement made between the borough and the township.

The committee appointed to go over the accounts of the Surrogate reported that it had been examining the books in that office for the past month and found everything satisfactory. The receipts of the Surrogate for the month of September were $870.05.

Upon the approval of the supervisor, General J. Madison Drake, the Committee on Soldiers' Headstones asked for markers for the graves of the following soldiers:

Patrick Maran, Company G, Ninth N. J. Vol., St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield; William B. Johnston, Company G, Sixth N. Y. Heavy Artillery, Scotch Plains cemetery; John H. Hoehle, Sergeant, Company H, Fifth N. J. Vols., First Presbyterian cemetery, Rahway; and Minard F. Miller, Company A, Eighth N. J. Vols., Methodist cemetery, New Providence.

The Committee on Jail Inspection reported the number of prisoners in the jail last month as sixty-three; number received during the month, sixty; number in custody on October 1, sixty; cost of maintenance during the month of September, $650.40.

MARRIED FOR 25 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Lindau M. Leek Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary.

THEY RECEIVE MANY PRESENTS

Musical Program Followed by a Supper—Many Relatives at the Celebration.

Some seventy-five friends and relatives, a goodly number of them coming from Newark for the occasion, joined with Mr. and Mrs. Lindau M. Leek in the celebration of their silver wedding anniversary at their home on South Second street Friday. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Martin assisted in receiving. An informal program of music was one of the particularly enjoyable features, the artists being Miss Myrtle Ayres, of Morristown, and Irving Martin, pianists, and Edson C. Martin, of this city, violinist.

Among the guests were Rev. F. A. Johnson, of New York, who performed the wedding ceremony twenty-five years ago, and Mrs. Harvey R. Sturgis, of Basking Ridge, daughter of the celebrants, and their little grandson, Harvey, jr. Other relatives in the party were an aunt, Mrs. A. J. Leek, of Montclair, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Abbey and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Pope, all of Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Leek are natives of Chester, Morris county, where they were married on October 8, 1884, Rev. Mr. Johnston officiating. She was Miss Mary Budd Leek, but the two families were not related. It was on Mrs. Leek's motion that the first C. E. society in New Jersey was organized at the First Congregational church, Chester, when Mr. Johnson was pastor, and several of the guests last night were among the first officers. After the wedding, the couple spent their honeymoon at the home of his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Leek, who then resided at Montrose, Pa., and now live in Newark. The latter were present last night to extend congratulations.

An elaborate supper was served during the evening's festivities. The couple received numerous handsome silver and cut glass gifts.

MRS. MARY KIELY SUES HUSBAND FOR DIVORCE

Through her counsel, Charles Kalisch, of Newark, Mrs. May Kiely, formerly of this city, but now a resident of East Orange, has applied to the Court of Chancery for a divorce from her husband, Charles Kiely, of Plainfield. Mrs. Kiely charges desertion.

In her bill of complaint Mrs. Kiely states that she was married to her husband in New York City on November 7, 1906, and lived with him in New York until December, 1907, when they removed to Plainfield. They continued to live together until January 6, 1907, when it is alleged that Kiely left his wife and has since refused to live with her or contribute to her support.

The petition is accompanied by an affidavit signed by Mrs. Kiely in which she declares that there has not been any collusion between her self and husband in connection with the application for a divorce.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 17, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—"Pilgrim's Progress" series.—X. Doubting Castle.—Ps. xiii, 1-3; ix, 9-12-20; I Kings xix, 1-18.

Doubting castle, one of the obstacles in Christian's progress, was owned and ruled by Giant Despair. Christian and Hopeful, who was with him at that time, slept one night on his grounds. The giant, seeing them the next morning, was very angry, threw them into the prison of the castle, gave them nothing to eat and grossly mistreated them, his wife, Diffidence, suggesting the methods of torture. It was suggested that they take their own lives, and Christian was so discouraged that the temptation was strong upon him to do so. But Hopeful made him ashamed of such a suggestion; but it again returned, only to be overcome again by Hopeful's denouncement. At last Christian though of the key of promise, which he possessed, opened various doors with it, and thus they escaped.

The lessons to be learned from this part of Bunyan's allegory are clearly evident. It is to learn us against doubts, however dark the way may appear in life, and to put our trust in God, who is at all times "our refuge and strength, a present help in time of trouble."

Christian, in despair, almost to the point of self murder in Doubting castle, represents too many Christians. When all is bright and prosperous they are happy Christians, but when the way is dark and rough and hard they sink into doubt and despair. Such actions are strange contradictions. We profess to believe in a personal God who is infinite in power, and yet the moment life grows dark He means nothing to us. Just at the moment when we should lean the hardest upon Him we do not trust Him at all. If faith is given to us it is especially for the times when we are helpless and need God's help. But too often we look at it the other way. Elijah was strong in faith when battling against the priests of Baal, but when threatened by Jezebel he fell into despair and asked God to let him die.

God has given us no assurance that we shall have no dark days in this life. He said, "In the world ye shall have tribulations," says Christ. If we believe Him, let us not be troubled and worried with doubts when they come. Let us use the key of promise set forth in the words that followed: "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." So shall we, but not by doubt and mistrust of God. He will either keep trouble from us or keep us in the hour of trouble. There is a key of promise in the Scriptures for every trouble and need. Let us find it and open all doors of Doubting castle.

Our Technical School.

Recent years have seen a vast development in the education of the hand in connection with the brain. Manual training has been introduced into public schools. There are manual arts high schools alongside the old type of high school, and now technology engineering are rapidly coming to equal rank with the colleges and universities of the arts. Now, all this should have its parallel in religion. The Christian Endeavor society was the first to take up the head and apply it to the religious training of young Christians. Our prayer meetings are where we learn to speak for Christ. Our committees are where we learn to do other kinds of work for Him. The society that allows its committee work to degenerate will soon have no prayer meeting worth the name. Training in committee work is a training in Christian co-operation. A committee must pull together. The same principle necessary to learn if one is to labor successfully in the church. Training in committee work is training in leadership. The trained committee worker is able to get others to do things. This makes him a most valuable worker in the church when he grows up. Training in committee work is training in method. One learns that there is a best way to do everything and that usually it is somewhat better than even the second best way of doing the same thing. The committee trains one in patience. It trains one in fogenuity. It trains one in perseverance. It trains one to look for definite results, and it shows one how to get them. It trains one in the use of tools. In short, it is a complete college of Christian efficiency. If you want to become a well rounded Christian, enter the Christian Endeavor School of Technology and take the entire course.—James R. Wells in Christian Endeavor World.

Prominent Christian Endeavorer.

Charles E. McBurney, who again has been chosen to head the Chicago Christian Endeavor campaign, has been prominent in the society for several years. He was born in Chicago in 1881 and in 1898 was graduated from the Englewood high school. He entered business with an oil company and early became prominent in Christian Endeavor work, his first office being that of president of the missionary department of the Chicago society. In 1906 he was made president of the Englewood division. He lives at 5644 Lasalle street.

ENTHUSIASM MARKS THE CLOSING HOURS OF CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS' CONVENTION

The twenty-third annual convention of the New Jersey State Christian Endeavor Union ended with the benediction at the Union amid an hushed gathering of deeply impressed people in the First Presbyterian church Friday night at 9:30. State President John T. Sproull presided and more than 1,250 persons were in the building when Dr. Francis E. Clark began his speech.

After the song service of fifteen minutes the devotional service was led by Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel. Following this came the presentation of banner, reports of auditors and committees, election of officers and a resolution to be tendered by counties. Many telling points were announced to have been discovered during the smaller conferences, will be used to further the intentions of the various unions to raise a twenty-five per cent. increase in the membership and in the number of societies during the next two years. No accidents nor other mishaps to delegates have been reported and they leave with a kindly remembrance of the hospitality of the "City Beautiful."

The Junior Parade.

About six hundred cheering girls and boys marched in an auspicious Junior parade yesterday afternoon from the Crescent avenue church to the convention hall. With flags flying and headed by a band of a dozen pieces the gallant six hundred passed in review before Dr. Francis E. Clark, who had arrived from Boston and was whirled from the railroad station straight to the starting point of the parade.

Those in charge of the church divisions were Mrs. R. V. Kinney, Trinity; Mrs. Ogden, Miss Addie Brown and Mrs. W. L. Lowrie, Park Avenue Baptist; Miss Sue Valentine, Third Presbyterian of Elizabeth; Miss Ida Spicer and Mrs. Langworthy, Seventh-Day Baptist; Rev. O. L. Goodrich, Congregational; Miss May Randolph, First Methodist; Mrs. Edward Baker, Temple Baptist; Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, Warren chapel; Miss Nettie Beeching, Grace Methodist; Mrs Robert Lee and Miss Charlotte Aldrich, Monroe Methodist; Robert Love, West End Tabernacle; Miss Ruth Gardener, New Market Baptist; and Mrs. Schneider, Dunellen Presbyterian. The children were all provided with American flags. Alice Johnny Cotterill, aides, rode upon cream white ponies.

Greeted the Founder.

They waved their flags with a vengeance when, seated in the convention, they were greeted by Dr. Clark a second time. He told them of a world trip he is going to start upon in a few weeks and declared that it would help him more than ever before in his life that all men are brothers.

Miss Elsie Dayton, a junior, delivered the address of welcome. Mrs. Dukes responded. Then came a pretty drill by the Trinity boys on the platform. Dr. F. Y. Pierce, of New York city, addressed the juniors on "The Life Beautiful," showing crayon illustrations in connection with his talk. "America" and "Onward Christian Soldiers" were the songs of the juniors.

Charmed By City.

Following his talk to the juniors, Dr. Clark made the following statement to a Daily Press reporter.

"I would like on the occasion of this convention to repeat, through the Plainfield Daily Press, to the Christian Endeavorers of America our new motto; One Million New Members and Ten Thousand New Societies by 'Atlantic City 1911.' That is, I want to note that much progress will be made next year.

"Usually a convention is said to be the greatest ever. Sometimes this is true, and sometimes it isn't. But a record of facts and figures in the possession of State President Sproull gives the Plainfield meeting as the bona fide banner convention in the Endeavorer history of New Jersey.

"I hear on every hand of how hospitable and kind your men and women have been to the delegates to this convention. This is but a natural condition, for this is a beautiful city and, it follows, a considerate people. I saw some of the beauties of Plainfield in a short ride around it in an automobile. I am glad I took the ride; the city boasts some fine points that a stranger ought not to miss.

"In the course of my ride I reviewed the children's parade. I marveled at the enthusiasm of the little ones; also, at their orderliness. I trust that when they grow up they, too, will bring a Christian Endeavor convention here, and that I will be able to attend it."

Award Banners.

At the evening session the awards of banners was as follows: Essex County Junior Union won the increase banner with a percentage of 48. The Intermediate banner went to Mercer county. The senior increase banner was awarded to two societies—Emanuel Baptist, of Paterson, and Bergen Reformed, of Jersey City, each to possess the banner for six months their percentages being equal—100. In the award for the largest increase in numbers honors were divided the same way between Emanuel Baptist, of Paterson, and First Presbyterian, of Cape May City.

The auditing committee reported that the examination of the treasurer's books had been made and found correct. The committee on resolutions among other things introduced a resolution thanking the local papers, and the Newark Evening News and the Elizabeth Journal for the splendid way in which the convention had been reported and for the valuable space devoted to it. They also expressed their confidence in State President Sproull, which brought out long continued applause. It was also resolved that the greetings of the convention be extended to the Indian convention to be held in Bombay next November. Dr. Clark will convey the greeting.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, John T. Sproull; vice-presidents, Rev. W. D. Shults, of Manasquan; Rev. George H. Jones, of Atlantic City; and A. Harry Moore, of Jersey City. Secretary, Miss Ida B. Stevens, of Hackettstown; associate secretaries, Miss Emily Edwards, of Hackensack, and Miss Nellie K. Poole, of Elizabeth. Treasurer, A. R. Baxter, of Trenton. It was also voted to hold the next annual convention at Trenton in October, 1910.

Mr. Sproull Accepts.

After the vote had been recorded President Sproull accepted his reelection in a few appropriate words and said he hoped the different societies would stand by him during the coming year as it had in the past. It is no easy task which you have imposed," he said, "but I will assume the risk with your co-operation."

Dr. Clark's Speech.

When Dr. Clark arose to speak he was greeted with a Chautauqua salute. He said he was going to carry the campaign to the far east including China, Japan and the Philippines. He congratulated Jersey for having retained Mr. Sproull in office and said that Jersey had won the distinction of getting the next International Convention away from Texas, Missouri, Indiana and Minnesota, through his great influence. Referring to the site chosen for this great convention in 1911, Dr. Clark said that, notwithstanding its wide-openness, Atlantic City was the most beautiful seaside city in the world and that the influence of the preponderating temperance hotels would offset the bad influence of the others. New Jersey, he declared, would be the centre of Christian Endeavor work for the next two years. Essex county by all odds carried away the honors for attendance at this session. When called upon to respond to the roll call of counties they did so with a hymn, "Throw out the Life Line" and with so much vigor and enthusiasm that the whole convention soon joined in. Newark, of course was there "with the goods." The convention came to a close at 9:30 with the endeavor benediction and a moment of silent prayer. 1,250 delegates were seated when Dr. Clark began his speech and many had to stand.

SNEAK THIEF VISITS HOOK'S APARTMENTS

When Harry Hook, of 147 West Front street, reached home at 10 o'clock Friday night, found the door of his flat open. When he got inside the apartments he failed to find several articles of small value which had been there when he left for business in the morning.

The missing articles were a silver watch and a gold chain, which had been reposing on a bureau, and were valued at about $25 all told. The man that carried them off is supposed to have made his entrance to the Hook apartments in the afternoon with the aid of skeleton keys.

Luckily something happened to scare the burglar away, or his conscience began to bother him, for he neglected to pick up a few other articles of value that were within his reach. In fact, so suddenly did he bid the Hook apartments goodby that he forgot to shut the door.

Chief Kiely received word today that a pair of sneak thieves visited several houses in Easton yesterday.

NEW JERSEY'S BANKS SHOW GOOD INCREASE.

According to a report just made by Vivian M. Lewis, State Commissioner of Banking and Insurance, the assets of the savings banks, the trust companies and the State banks of New Jersey were increased $2,826,183.63 during the ten weeks preceding September 1.

The State banks suffered a decrease in assets in that period, but the prosperity of the savings banks and the trust companies more than offset this and made up the handsome increase shown.

During the same time the deposits in all three classes of such institutions increased, the aggregate increase being $2,879,272.88. The aggregate resources of all the institutions covered by this report amounted to $332,632,667.41.

TRADE BOARD ACTIVITY

Mayor to Deliver Series of Lectures on Municipal Government.

MORE PLAYGROUND TALK.

The Orange Shade Tree Commissioners to Talk Here on Their Work—Factories Seek Sites in This City.

President H. W. Marshall, at the October meeting of the Board of Trade, TThursday, announced that Mayor Charles J. Fisk will give a series of lectures before the board at the December, January, February and possibly the March meetings. The topics will be of general municipal interest.

Among other features for the meetings during the winter will be illustrated lectures by the Shade Tree Commission of Orange, showing some of the remarkable work done in that city.

The question of public playgrounds for Plainfield was introduced by Rev. George A. Warner, and he wanted to know what had been done in this direction. President Marshall explained that he with J. W. Gavett and George P. Mellick had been appointed a playground commission and they intend to investigate the matter.

It is the intention of the commission to secure the use of the public school grounds for the purpose until a tract of land can be acquired, such as the Orange Oval. In referring to the latter playground, Mr. Marshall said that it cost Orange about $54,000, and Mr. Warner added, it has been worth that sum in fun and order to Orange.

George N. Christian, of this city, one of the enthusiastic members of the board, stated that John Barber, of Trenton, and S. M. Simpson, of Yonkers, partners in the famous Pitt Bakery Company, of Trenton, and Yonkers, were desirous of locating one of their modern bakeries here. He explained that the concern is not looking for financial support, for it has plenty of that, but is anxious to know whether conditions here are right for such an industry. He said that the concern if it came here would probably expend $50,000 and would employ a large force of men. Mr. Christian said it is his intention of covering the territory between Westfield and Somerville. The proposition was received with much enthusiasm and no doubt the concern will be assured of the board's co-operation.

Another corporation from New York communicated with the board and wanted to know if it would be willing to raise $35,000 to bring an industry to Plainfield. Through a suggestion of E. M. Laing, the secretary was instructed to refer the New York parties that it is not in a position to perform such a task.

A number of tickets for the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association ball were received and President Marshall said that members could get the same upon application to the secretary.

Lee F. Hammond, of the Municipal Public Playgrounds Association, communicated with the board, stating his willingness to co-operate with the members in the matter.

A. J. BRUNSON ASKS FOR AN INJUNCTION

Augustus J. Brunson, who was an invited guest at the dinner given by Charles P. Sebring at his home in Greenbrook, Thursday, did not arrive in time to partake of the feast, but he reached there later, in company with a representative from the law offices of Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, and papers were served on the county officials stopping them from further work in the intended plan of removing trees in front of Mr. Brunson's property on Green brook road.

The papers summoned the Board of FreeHolders and contractors to appear before Vice-Chancellor F. W. Stevens at Newark, Wednesday morning, October 13, at 10 o'clock, to show cause why an injunction should not be issued to prevent the removal of the trees in question.

Miss Anna R. Bartlan a Bride.

Miss Anna Elizabeth Bartlan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August R. Bartlan, of Richmond street, and Walter E. Lane, of this city, were quietly married Thursday night by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Elizabeth R. Bartlan, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and the best man was Peter Delgyer. The bride was formerly employed as bookkeeper for the Endress Meat Company for eight years, while Mr. Lane is now in the employ of the company.

Communications.

Roselle Park, Aug. 10, 1909.

Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—I have been instructed by the Street Committee of the Borough of Roselle Park to communicate with you and to fix a date to meet your committee to arrange to improve the approach to Walnut street on Westfield avenue, at an early date as possible.

Yours respectfully,

A. M. WOODRUFF,
Borough Clerk.

Received and referred to the county road committee.

August 11, 1909.

To the Honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County N. J.

Gentlemen—During the many years the Central Railroad of New Jersey operated a safe and convenient line of stanch steamboats between Jersey City and New York, touching at Mariners' Harbor and Bergen Point, there was a good deal of talk heard with regard to a bridge between this county and Staten Island.

But when in the year 1890 the boats were abandoned, there were promises made that the proposed Baltimore and Ohio R. R. bridge at Elizabeth, would in time provide some adequate accommodation for the people desirous of crossing to the ocean front.

The present ferry lines are dangerous, as no doubt you are perfectly aware. Since the last one happened to cross the boat was down to its guard in the water, and badly listed to port. I have had many years of practical experience in bridge and dock construction on Staten Island Sound and neighboring waters, at whilst there are many others of greater knowledge of the subject in theoretical standpoint, I know the conditions thoroughly.

My plan when writing to your honorable body a few days ago was entirely practicable, but I have since thought out a better one because it will not only be cheaper but also more suitable in getting safe and reliable results. I propose with your co-operation to hire a few car floats or scows to be moved several days them near the mouth of Morse Creek and the other diagonally across at the mouth of Old Place Creek; to have them securely and firmly connected together and then operated by some suitable mechanism as a floating draw bridge between those fixed piers.

There are good roads leading to both places. I believe the War Department would not have the least objection to a plan of this kind, for the reason, it will not constitute a permanent obstruction to navigation although it will provide a free right of way for the commerce of the bays of this county and Staten Island who may wish to cross these waters for pleasure or business.

If your honorable body could find it within your power to appropriate a small sum of money and entrust this work to me, I will undertake the solution of this problem in very short notice, and also agree to supervise the construction of this temporary bridge in a manner which I am confident will be cheap, effective and satisfactory in every way.

Yours very truly,

WILLIAM H. HOOVER, JR.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on Jail Inspection would respectfully report that has visited the jail and inspected the books of the warden.

That the system now in force whereby the freeholders purchase the provisions for feeding the prisoners will prove successful is evidenced by the fact that, although the salaries have been increased and the prices of provisions advanced, the books show a gain over the old system from November 11, 1908 to July 31, 1909, of $426.09.

By committee on bridges in Westfield.

To the Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to investigate and report as to the need of new bridges on Bradford and Cedar avenues, Westfield, N. J., would respectfully report that it has examined the situation, and finds that these two streets are part of a new subdivision of the town, and are graded and have been accepted by the town of Westfield. The town is about to lay sewers in them, and the owners contemplate extensive improvements, as concrete curbs and sidewalks, macadam roads, etc., when the sewer work has been done.

Your committee is of the opinion that both of these bridges are necessary to the use of the streets, even in the bridge funds your committee would recommend that but one of these bridges, that on Bradford avenue, be built at this time. This bridge will be 66 feet long, and about two feet by three feet in size, and will cost not more than $250. Your committee would respectfully recommend that this bridge be constructed the cost to be not more than $250.

Respectfully submitted,

By committee on Fairview avenue bridge, Westfield:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee would respectfully report that it has examined the site of the proposed bridge and find that the street is newly graded and has been macadamized; it has also been accepted by the town. The stream runs across the street diagonally, and the bridge will probably have to be 100 feet in length, although the street is only 66 feet wide.

We would recommend that a new bridge be built across the avenue, at this point, to be about two feet by three feet in size, and not to cost more than $350.

Respectfully submitted,

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Robert Hilliard in "A Fool There Was," with the entire original cast combined by Frederic Thompson, and the complete scenic production, comes to the Grand Opera House the week of October 11. One of the great dramatic successes of recent years is this odd and powerful play by Porter Emerson Browne, inspired by Kipling's wierd poem of the vampire woman who was only "a rag and a bone and a hank of hair." It runs the gamut from comedy to tragedy and has placed Mr. Hilliard in the front of our representative actors. It is a remarkable supporting company that includes William Courtleigh, Katherine Kaelred, Nanette Comstock, Emily Wurster and all who shared in Mr. Hilliard's original New York success last spring.

Prosperity at the Hippodrome continues in the shape of capacity business which has been the rule ever since the opening week at the big playhouse. The three big spectacles, "A Trip to Japan," "The Ballet of Jewels," and "Inside the Earth" please the public fancy mightily and Messrs. Shubert & Anderson feel assured that the present season will be the banner one in the history of the Hippodrome. Seventeen splendid scenic changes are shown during the performance. Amongst the most impressive being the fine panoramic vista of New York harbor at night, the wonderful waterfall in which the bodies of living women are seen to mingle with the foam of waves. The departure of the giant ocean liner—a remarkable bit of stage mechanism—the Mikado's Garden with the colorful fete of chrysanthemums, the Iridescent Cave of Gems introducing the glittering Jewel Ballet and last but by no means least the mystifying march of an army of men and maids into the sea. The manner in which the armor clad soldiers disappear beneath the water is an ever-recurrent surprise to the audiences.

Margaret Anglin is this season appearing at the Savoy Theatre, New York, in a new emotional play entitled "The Awakening of Helena Richie," dramatized from one of Marion Crawford's novels of Old Chester, familiar to all readers of popular novels. Miss Anglin is proclaimed the greatest emotional actress now appearing on the American stage and in the role of Helena she has made the success of her career. The strong appeal of the play is notable, brought forward as it is by magnificent acting on the part of Miss Anglin, who, never before has had so full an opportunity to give largeness of expression to her intimate powers of emotional feeling. The play is intensely interesting from the rise of the curtain until the conclusion of the fourth act. The heart interest is unusually strong, occasioned by the introduction of an adopted child upon whom Helena has bestowed all the maternal instinct of which a woman is capable and is the cause of separating her from the man she should marry. No play has ever been more handsomely mounted or more capably played.

Alan Dale in the New York American says: "I shan't write a tract about Mr. Leo Ditrichstein's adapted German play at the Belasco Theatre, called 'Is Matrimony a Failure?' I could do it easily, with perfectly brilliant allusions. Although this new play is a laugh from start to finish—and one of the best kind of laughs, for it comes from the very innards—there never was a 'merry comedy,' as it calls itself, or a farce that was really so serious. Philosophers have written many an abstract treatise on the very topic that we roar at at the Belasco. When Ibsen made Nora quit her home, and bang the door after her, every one got up on his toes and discussed the curious ending of 'Doll's House.' The best member of the excellent company at the Belasco is Miss Anne Sutherland, by a long sight. Her work was irreproachable, it was sound, sane and delightful."

Speaking Well of the Dead.

Dennis was doing his best to speak respectfully of the dead.

"Yes," he said, "Mike was a foine man. Honest, strightforward, hardworkin', ginerous—"

"Ginerous?" questioned Barney rather doubtfully. "Did ye ever know of his treatin' anyone in all his life?"

"Well, he nearly treated once."

"Nearly treated?"

"Yis. I remember once he phorped into Cassidy's when th' boys were all there. 'Well, lads,' he sez, 'what'll we have?' Wid a wave of his hand toward the bar. 'What'll we have—rain or snow?' "—Everybody's Magazine.

ELECTION LAW OPINION

Attorney-General Holds That City Clerk Should Have Delivered Boxes.

NOT UP TO DISTRICT CLERKS.

No Obligation on Part of the Local Board to Insure Delivery of Paraphernalia.

In answer to a request from the Union Board of Election and Registry, Attorney-General Wilson has rendered an opinion stating that it is the duty of municipal clerks to deliver ballot boxes to the precinct election officers within the territory served by the former. In some cities a controversy has arisen as a result of city clerks insisting that election officers should call for ballot boxes and the latter maintaining that the law requires that the boxes be delivered to the voting places.

The Attorney-General's opinion was given as a result of two complaints formally made to the county board of conditions existing at the Fourth ward, second district, polling place at the primary election. Because of the absence of the ballot box, then in the custody of City Clerk MacMurray, the polls were over an hour late in opening.

City Clerk MacMurray declined to deliver the box at the polling place, holding that it was the duty of the district's clerk to get it at his office. The district election clerk declared that it was not his duty to go after it though such had been the custom.

The attorney-general's opinion says in part:

"It is true, of course, that the municipal clerks do not provide the ballot boxes, these being, under the law, furnished by the board of chosen freeholders. Still, the municipal clerks are the custodians of these boxes at such times as they are not actually in use for election purposes, therefore such boxes must by some means be transferred from the offices of the municipal clerk to the polling places; and while it is not distinctly and determinately stated, still I am convinced that the purpose of the act is that the ballot boxes be in the possession of the clerk, and must be delivered by the clerk to the boards of registry and election, and that the obligation does not rest upon the board of registry and election to provide themselves such boxes from the offices of the municipal clerk.

"The provisions of the election with reference to all the other paraphernalia of election, ballots, envelopes, books and blanks are very clearly laid upon the municipal clerk the duty of delivering these things to the boards of registry and election at the polling places at the proper time, and the language of Section 62, 'all other blanks and supplies necessary for the due carrying into effect of the provisions of this act,' seem to be broad enough to include unquestionably as 'supplies necessary' the ballot boxes; and when the act provides that the clerk shall cause the same to be deliv red,' it seems to me clear that the duties of delivery is placed on the municipal clerk and that it is his duty to provide the board of registry and election district, at such times as will enable the provision of the election act to be fully carried out, not only with the ballots, envelopes, books and blanks, but also with the other supplies necessary to hold an election, that is to say, the ballot boxes themselves."

FIGURES VERSUS STYLES.

Since the long lines of the figure are being followed by the dictators of fashion, perhaps a word anent proportion in dress may not be out of place. If this important element of beauty was considered when a woman selects her gown, the beautiful in dress would grow conspicuous by its presence on the streets or in the assembly room. The art of the attractiveness of a woman diminished by a frock which emphasizes her shortcomings or exaggerates the long lines of the figure? And how many times is the beauty of a gown lessened because a woman lacking in a sense of the eternal fitness of things has been unfortunate enough to wear it?

There are certain things which a stout woman must deny herself. The draped polonaise, for instance, increases the appearance of width in the skirt and correspondingly cuts down the height. Materials with crosswise designs should be shunned by the woman who must make the least of her embonpoint, and she should not wear horizontal tuckings or trimmings with the lines in designs or trimming running up and down.

The thin woman must not wear a dress that is absolutely plain. It must cover up any angularity, which is certainly not beautiful. This is not decrying the simplicity which is always good form, but an appearance of fullness can be gained by making lines run in a horizontal direction. The bertha effect softens any sharp lines and adds attractively to an angular figure. The draped yoke causes the eye to follow a curved lateral sweep, and this detracts from a painfully thin effect.

ARREST BROKER WILSON

Former Councilman Charged With Alienation of Wife's Affections.

DAMAGES PLACED AT $50,000.

Alleged He Lived With Washington Lawyer's Wife at Deal Lake and Elsewhere.

Former Councilman Theodore D. Wilson, a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange in New York city, was arrested Saturday afternoon by a private detective on a railroad train near Matawan, on a writ issued by Supreme Court Commissioner Daniel Harvey, Jr., to answer a suit for $50,000 in damages brought him by Malcolm Hufty, one of the best known lawyers in Washington, D. C., who charges him with alienating the affections of his wife, Mary Page Hufty. The detective saw Wilson board a train in Jersey City, and when he was sure he was in Monmouth county he placed him under arrest and took him to Asbury Park in the train. Being unable to furnish $10,000 bail, the prisoner was sent to the jail in Freehold.

Theodore D. Wilson has lived here for more than three years. The whereabouts of his wife is not known. Wilson was a member of the Common Council here for two of the five years he lived here. His home was in No. 1132 Evergreen avenue. His wife was a handsome woman and moved in the best society of this city.

The troubles of Wilson and the Huftys have been of long standing. Many years ago Wilson and Hufty were the best of friends and Hufty was the best man at Wilson's wedding. Hufty married several years ago, after obtaining a divorce for the woman from her first husband. Before her marriage, as Mary Page, she was prominent in society in Alexandria, the summer Hufty appeared with two detectives, kidnapped the boys and took them with him to Washington, where they now are living with him. At that time Mrs. Hufty threatened to sue him for divorce, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment.

Following the kidnapping of the children, Hufty made a complaint and warrants were issued for the arrest of Wilson and Mrs. Hufty. Before the papers could be served, however, Mrs. Hufty fled from Deal Lake and her whereabouts is unknown. It is believed she is living in or near Washington. Two weeks ago Wilson was arrested and released in $500 bail on Hufty's charge. Then the suit for alleged alienation was begun, but Wilson did not come to New Jersey until Saturday. The paper by virtue of which he was arrested alleges that Hufty fears Wilson will leave the jurisdiction of the Monmouth county courts and cause the suit to be postponed indefinitely.

HOLY NAME SOCIETIES PARADE IN ELIZABETH

Members of the Holy Name Society of this city joined in the special services held in St. Patrick's church in Elizabeth yesterday. They marched 125 strong from St. Mary's church to the North avenue station, where they entrained for Elizabeth. A band of music from Jersey City headed the procession in this city and played marching hymns throughout the line of march, which was through Eighth street, to Park avenue, to Fourth street, to the station.

On arriving at Elizabeth they joined the other societies numbering two thousand men and marched to the church where services were conducted by Very Rev. Dean Martin Gessner, pastor of St. Patrick's. A large choir of vested acolytes chanted the mass of the service after which the hymn "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name," was sung by the entire congregation.

The committee in charge were assisted by Judge O. P. Mahon, of Elizabeth, who also headed the parade. Speakers were Rev. Edward Quirk, of Newark, and Michael William Byrne, of New York city.

John Duck.

John Duck, who formerly resided on Netherwood avenue, died at his home on Morningside avenue, New York, Monday, October 4. While a resident of this city, Mr. Duck was an active member of St. Stephen's church. He is survived by a widow and four children.

COLONEL WILSON DIES SUDDENLY AT "TUNLAW"

Venerable and Highly Respected Former Mayor Passes Away Unpectedly.

OFFICER OF THE CONFEDERACY

Colonel John Farmer Wilson, one of the foremost citizens of North Plainfield, who was admired and respected by all who knew him for his many sterling qualities, died suddenly Sunday morning at his estate, "Tunlaw," on Glenbrook road. But recently he recovered from a critical illness and had gained sufficient strength to walk and drive about the city. His sudden death was a great shock to a large number of warm personal friends.

Colonel Wilson was taken suddenly ill at 6 o'clock yesterday morning and the members of the family were summoned. He seemed to realize that the end was near, for during his intense suffering, he offered up a short fervent prayer before he passed away about 7 o'clock.

Colonel Wilson was a retired merchant and served one term, two years as Mayor of North Plainfield, being elected in 1897 and continuing in office until 1899, when he was succeeded by Newton B. Smalley, who served the borough as an executive for eight years.

He was at all times actively interested in civic matters and he was elected as Mayor as the candidate of all parties.

During his term of office his administration was marked by an aggressive spirit and a "cleaning up" of a number of things that had long been a stigma on the borough. Perhaps, the greatest achievement was the straightening out of the financial affairs of the office of Newton Spencer, who was tax collector for a great many years. Colonel Wilson's administration was noted for its clean, straightforward methods and numerous reforms were introduced, which redounded to the honor and credit of the borough. He was a man that could not be swerved from his purpose when once he had made up his mind. This applied to his business, as well as private life.

Colonel Wilson possessed a kindly nature and a generous spirit. He was philanthropic and it will never be known how much good he accomplished in a charitable way. He always had a warm greeting for his friends, and visitors to his handsome home were always treated in a princely fashion.

Among the monuments to his name as well as that of his wife, is the Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel, at Watchung, which was established by Colonel Wilson in memory of Mrs. Wilson. He always took a kindly interest in the good work performed there and kept in touch with its progress. Aside from the time he was Mayor of North Plainfield, Colonel Wilson never held public office, preferring to live in retirement and enjoy the fruits of his labor.

Colonel Wilson was born in Baltimore, Md., May 22, 1832, the eldest child of John H. and Susannah Farmer Wilson, and was descended from Col. Benjamin Wilson, an officer in the Revolution and a member of the Virginia Convention. He was a Democrat of the Cleveland type, yet broadminded to a fault. He could always see some good even in those who might have opposed him, and was charitable in his views.

At the age of one year he removed with his parents to Alabama, where he spent the next fifteen years. Returning to Baltimore at the age of sixteen years, he engaged in mercantile pursuits until the outbreak of the Civil War. Immediately after the commencement of hostilities he went to Richmond, Va., and offered his services to Hon. Pope Walker, Secretary of War of the Confederacy, as a result of which he served with the Army of Northern Virginia through the entire war.

Returning to Baltimore, he engaged in business until 1866, when he took a position in New York city with the Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Company. He remained with that company until 1892, retiring from active business in that year. He had been a resident of the borough since 1873, and his handsome estate was one of the show places of the borough.

Colonel Wilson married Miss Mary Elizabeth Farmer, of Baltimore, on April 14, 1855. He is survived by her and of the twelve children born to them, but two survive, W. B. Wilson, of Baltimore, and Mrs. J. P. Truitt, who since her husband's death in Philadelphia, had made her home with her father. There is also one grandson, J. Alexander Wilson, of Grove street.

The funeral service and burial will be at Baltimore, at the convenience of the family, and Maryland Lodge, No. 129, F. & A. M., of which Col. Wilson was a member, will be in charge of the services.

HONE CASE IS SETTLED

Defendant Placed Under $200 Bonds to Pay Wife $5 Per Week for a Year.

THE CASE MAY BE REPEALED.

Affinity in Pottstown Cause of Trouble in Year 1908.

Judge William Runyon rendered his decision in the city court Monday morning in the case of Overseer of the Poor Alexander D. Ayres and Mrs. Catharine Hone against Hone for non-support, in favor of the complainants. Hone was put under $200 bonds to pay his wife $5 per week for a period of one year and was released in the custody of his counsel, Robert Newton Crane, until tomorrow morning to allow time for the getting of a bondsman.

The case has occupied the time of the court for the past three weeks and witnesses for both sides examined, both from this city and Pottstown, Pa., where the trouble between the couple originated in 1908. Hone's infatuation for one Jones, a pretty silk mill operative of Pottstown, was named as the cause of the couple's trouble and A. A. Farringer, superintendent of the mill where Hone and Miss Huff worked together came voluntarily from the Pennsylvania city to testify for Mrs. Hone. It was shown at the hearing of the case on last Wednesday morning that Hone had been unduly intimate with the young woman and he had denied that he was Mrs. Jones's husband while occupying apartments in the house at 317 Park avenue, owned by John Manley.

The case was admirably handled by counsel on both sides, J. Henry Crane appeared for the Overseer and Mrs. Hone. Hone may appeal the case.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS HOLD CONVENTION ON OCT. 21

He will also conduct a conference on the same topic from 5:15 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

The association is in excellent condition financially and spiritually and the coming convention is expected to be one of the best in recent years. All of the local Sunday-schools will be largely represented. The annual convention of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association will be held at East Orange, November 17-19.

Will of Mrs. Caroline Clarke.

Another Auto Victim.

An unidentified automobile struck Harry Hawley, an auto mechanic, while he was cycling from a trolley car at Franklin place and East Fifth street, Wednesday night. The chauffeur put on full speed and got away before his number could be ascertained. Hartley sustained severe bruises about the knee which will keep him confined indoors for several weeks.

FIGHT OVER P. S. C. POLES

Westfield's Answer to Electric Light Co.'s Demand for Injunction Filed.

OF MUCH IMPORTANCE HERE.

Westfield Contends Plainfield Can Also Be Supplied Without That Transmission Wire.

The town of Westfield, through its counsel, Paul Q. Oliver, has just filed in the court of Chancery an answer to the application of the Public Service Corporation for an injunction restraining the municipal authorities from removing a large number of poles from Grove street, Rahway avenue, Alston road and Scotch Plains line, which were erected several months ago for the purpose of carrying wires to convey electric current from the Cranford station to Fanwood and Plainfield for lighting purposes. The town authorities deny the contention of the Public Service Corporation that it has the right to erect the poles without first securing permission from the municipality.

In its petition for the injunction the Public Service Corporation claimed that the charter of the Suburban Electric Company which was later merged with the United Electric Company, the latter concern now being one of the subsidiary corporations of Public Service, possessed the omnibus right to erect poles and string wires without let or hindrance from governing boards of towns and townships. The Public Service Corporation insists that those rights and privileges now belong to it by reason of original company having been merged with the United Company and the latter now being under lease to the petitioner.

In answer to this contention, Westfield claims that so far as it is concerned the right of erecting poles and wires under the Suburban charter ceased to exist when the municipality was organized into a borough form of government, and that under present conditions the Common Council has the right to order down all poles erected without special permit from that body.

It is claimed also by Westfield that Plainfield and Fanwood can be adequately supplied with electric light without the operation of the transmission line from the Cranford station. It is pointed out that the receiving station can still be used for generating current if the Public Service Corporation desires to do so.

MRS. VAN DOREN WAS FOUND DEAD IN BED

Mrs. Emma Van Doren, widow of Charles Van Doren, formerly a resident on North avenue, this city, was found dead in bed on Saturday afternoon, by members of the family upon their arrival to their home in Flatbush, L. I., from business. It is supposed that a final attack of apoplexy, from which disease she had at times suffered, was the cause of death.

When Mrs. Van Doren was found she was lying across her bed, with a book in one hand and an apple in the other, indicating that there was evidently no suffering and that the end was peaceful and quiet. Miss Ada Van Doren, her daughter, returned home about 2:30, instead of 5:30 as usual, when she found her mother dead.

Mrs. Van Doren was, for many years, a member and regular attend*ant of Trinity Reformed church, of* this city, and had been a resident of Plainfield for seventeen years, removing to Brooklyn about a year ago. She is survived by three children, Ada, Clarence A. and Herbert Van Doren, of Brooklyn. The funeral was private at her late home, 300 Lincoln road, Flatbush, Tuesday.

PLAINFIELDERS FIGURE IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT.

An automobile driven by Charles Kingsley, of this city, and carrying six Plainfielders on a trip to Princeton, was wrecked at Somerville, Saturday, when the driver to avoid running down Mrs. Elmira Hoffman, of that place, collided with a trolley car. The occupants of the auto were not injured to any extent, although thrown out. Mrs. Hoffman, who fell through the force of the collision, also escaped injury.

Another machine was sent to Somerville to take the party on and the wrecked car was brought home.

LIQUOR MEN WORRIED

Recent Convictions in Union County Court Causes Some Alarm.

STOPS MANY VIOLATIONS.

Puts End to Wholesalers Selling in Other Counties and New York Department Store Practises.

Members of the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association are showing great concern in the final outcome of the prosecutions instituted in Union county at the instigation of the authorities of the city of Plainfield to enforce the provisions of the Morris act of 1907, which prohibits a licensed wholesale liquor dealer in one county from selling his goods in another county. Interests is also intense in the case of the prosecution and conviction in the Union county court of employes of New York department stores who have delivered and received payment in Plainfield for liquors shipped from New York.

In the convictions recently obtained in Union county under the administration of Prosecutor C. Addison Swift, and his able assistant, W. L. Hetfield, Jr., are sustained in the higher courts on appeal, prosecutors in other counties of the State will then take steps to secure similar convictions. This phase of the situation is an important one to the big Philadelphia department stores which deliver large quantities of liquor all through South Jersey on practically the same basis as has been followed by the New York stores, and which has resulted in convictions when the question was threshed out in court and left to a jury to decide.

It was reported that some members of the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association will make an effort during the next Legislature to secure the repeal of the Morris act, as there is hardly a wholesale dealer in any county in the State that does not do more or less business with patrons located in adjacent counties. While they appreciate that the law affords them protection from competition outside of their own communities, they at the same time feel that at almost anytime under the Morris law they may be hauled up for an accounting before the law for an alleged infraction on their own part. Considering it from the average of conditions that prevail in their trade they would much prefer the law be wiped out. However, it is the general policy of the organized liquor men to discourage tampering with laws concerning their business. As a rule they are content to let well enough alone in matters of legislation, as is evidenced in the fact that they seldom go before the law-making body on any affirmative proposition.

JERSEY CENTRAL CRASH KILLS TWO ENGINEERS.

One of the worst freight wrecks in the history of the Central Railroad of New Jersey occurred at Siegfrieds, near Allentown, Pa., Saturday morning in a heavy fog. A freight train carrying seventeen carloads of coal and twenty cars loaded of grain to tidewater, was run into on a cross over by a drill engine. Two men are dead and one man was injured.

The dead: Peter Young, of Mauch Chunk, married, aged forty-two years, engineer of the stock train, ground to pulp under his engine; Nathan Moyer, of Bethlehem, aged sixty years, oldest engineer on the Central system, died at the Allentown station.

Sarah Brinkman and Alice Dotterer, servant at the Allen house, were gored by the bull that escaped from the train. Miss Brinkman was tossed by one and had both legs injured. Her corset saved her body from being lacerated.

A bull tried to toss Miss Dotterer, and one of its horns tore her shirtwaist and grazed an arm.

A BIOLOGICAL PROBLEM.

Physical Characteristics of Mulatto Practically Unstudied.

The anatomy of the American negro is not well known, and notwithstanding the oft-repeated assertions regarding the hereditary inferiority of the mulatto, we know hardly anything on this subject. If this vitality is lower than that of the full-blooded negro, this may be as much due to social causes as to hereditary causes. Owing to the very large number of mulattoes in our country, it would not be a difficult matter to investigate the biological aspects of this question thoroughly, and the importance of the problem demands that this should be done. Looking into a distant future, it seems reasonably certain that with the increasing mobility of the negro, the number of full-bloods will rapidly decrease, and since there is no introduction of new negro blood, there can be but little or the slightest doubt that the ultimate effect of the contact between the two races must necessarily be a continued increase of the amount of white blood in the negro community.—Professor Franz Boas, in Science.

FINAL GAME OF SEASON

Lost by Plainfield Through Errors — Montrose Contributes 3 Blunders.

ORTLIEB OUTPITCHES BREWER.

Seven Errors Tells the Tale—Brewer Hit Hard by Elizabeth—Boyd's Good Batting.

Plainfield suffered defeat at the hands of the Elizabeth team Saturday in the last game of the season. It was a loosely played game and hardly amounted to a contest, Montrose three errors at short contributing in a large degree to the loss of the game by the home team. Boyd had his eye on the ball making two two-baggers in four times at the bat, and contributing one single when it was most needed. The Elizabethans played a good game all around and Ortlieb held the home team to six hits. Seven errors in one game shows how the chances were all in favor of the home team's opponents. N. Y. STATE CHAMPS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

The Plainfield Association Football club met the Brooklyn F. C., on the Marquette grounds, Brooklyn, Saturday afternoon, when the former was defeated by a score of 2 to 1. The game started at 3:30 o'clock and the two teams seemed to be taking each others measure, for they played carefully. However, the Plainfield boys began to get the better of the play, when a lucky run down-field by Brooklyn was rewarded by a goal, secured by Bidd.

After a half-hour of play, Gould sprained his ankle badly, which handicapped the team greatly. Notwithstanding his accident, Gould would not leave the field. No more scoring was done in the first half, the tally being 1 to 0 in favor of Brooklyn.

On resuming play the Plainfielders put up a fine game, and a clever pass to the centre, was caught by House, who succeeded in equalizing. The Plainfielders continued to press very hard, but could not score, although they were having the best of the game. A long shot from McNeice came into the Brooklyn goal and succeeded in getting past McNeice, making a lead for Brooklyn again. This set the Plainfield team going again, and although they played wonderful football they could not score. Time was called with a score of 2 to 1 in favor of Brooklyn.

The Brooklyns are the State cup holders, and they got the surprise of their career, in such a hard game, and they were lucky to win. A return game is to be played here on November 12, and the Brooklyns will bring their strongest team, for they know that they will have a hard game. This was Plainfields first defeat this season.

Accidentally Shot Brother.

While practising at the target Saturday evening with his brother Fred, Dick Jeffery, son of William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, was shot through the left leg through the accidental discharge of his gun. Dr. Hedges removed the bullet at Muhlenberg Hospital and the boy is doing well.

AUTOS STRIKE BOYS, NONE BADLY HURT

Two boys were struck by automobiles within the same hour and within comparatively short distance of each other Sunday afternoon.

Jack Gough, the eight-year-old son of Thomas Gough, of Grandview avenue, was hit by an auto on Somerset street near Grandview avenue at 4 o'clock. Less than an hour later Morris Bender, twelve years old, son of Henry Bender, of Somerset street, was tumbled from his bicycle by a speeding car on West Front street near Somerset.

Young Gough was crossing Somerset street with a number of playmates when struck. In the automobile were Mr. and Mrs. R. B. McEwan, of Plainfield, and they placed the boy in the car and carried him to his home. Dr. Dundon was summoned and found that the lad had sustained bruises on right arm and leg.

The Bender boy was knocked from his wheel by the auto that hit him and is receiving medical attention, his father has placed the case in the hands of Judge William Newcorn. He says that he is not sure as to the identity of the owners of the offending auto, but that he knows the number of the car.

LOUIS R. ROSS DIES FOLLOWING OPERATION

Louis R. Ross, aged 48 years, of East Seventh street, died at Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday, following a second operation. He was taken ill last Tuesday night with appendicitis and on Wednesday was operated upon at the hospital. Later peritonitis developed and a second operation was performed last night. Mr. Ross lived but a few hours afterward.

Mr. Ross was born in this city and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ross, of East Sixth street. He lived in Plainfield all his life. When a young man he took a position with Wright, Johnston & Co., of London, men's furnishers, being the American representative of that firm. He was held in high esteem and had a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Besides his parents, Mr. Ross is survived by a wife, two daughters, the Misses Alice and Carolyn; one son, John; and two sisters, Mrs. C. Arthur Baymore, of New York city, and Mrs. Frank Runyon, of Skelton.

SATURDAY'S RESULTS AT PARK GOLF CLUB.

Although many members of the Park Golf club availed themselves of the invitation to visit the Plainfield Country club, Saturday, when the "open house and field day" was the attraction at the popular club, a sufficient number engaged in the weekly competition on the borough links to count points for the three cups, the President's, golf club and Oakmont, now in competition.

There were a half-dozen good scores registered for the trophies, and the competition was close. These were posted:

J. B. Betts, 110, 30-80; W. V. Wright, 97, 14-83; H. D. Rowland, 94, 10-84; Nelson A. Miller, 103, 20-83; R. B. Tilsworth, 102, 14-88; Dr. H. K. Carroll.

The next event of special interest at the club will be the final for the championship to be played on election day between Dr. H. K. Carroll and R. B. Tilsworth.

DUNELLEN SECOND DEFEATED BY METUCHEN'S ELEVEN.

The Metuchen Football club defeated the Dunellen second team, at Metuchen, Saturday afternoon by the score of 6 to 0. Although only having two night's practice, the team made a creditable showing. Dodwell and Captain Logan, of Dunellen, played a fast game, as did also Corbin, Peck, Board and Trotter for Metuchen. Metuchen kept the ball in Dunellen's territory most of the time. The teams were evenly matched.

The touchdown was secured by Trotter on a juggling trick. Corbin kicked the goal. Next Saturday Metuchen will play Totteville at the former place.

FINE OF $1,000 ENDS CASE OF MANSLAUGHTER.

Charles M. Streeter, of Pittsburg, who killed Louis J. Selmer, his best friend, in a fight at that place on the night of August 29 was fined $1,000 and costs Saturday by Judge Dewart at Hackensack.

The defendant was pitcher and Selmer was manager of the New Milford Baseball Club, and the fatal fight began at a baseball game. Selmer fell unconscious after receiving a blow on the head. The grand jury indicted Streeter for manslaughter. The trial was set for Friday. Streeter pleaded not guilty. Prosecutor Wright said he did not believe there was any malice behind the assault and believed the State would be satisfied with a fine. Streeter was released in time to be home for dinner.

COUNTRY CLUB OPENING

Fully 500 Attend Reception, Tea and Other Festivities.

THE DINNER WAS A FEATURE.

Golf and Tennis During the Day—Dancing and Music at Night —Biggest Success Yet.

The Plainfield Country club had a formal opening of its enlarged clubhouse on Saturday and the festivities of the day were enjoyed by over five hundred people. It was the largest social event in the history of the club, and the house committee, very ably assisted by Superintendent John Hilton, who had entire charge of all the details, are to be congratulated on the successful way in which everything was put through.

Members and guests, numbering about four hundred, attended the afternoon reception and tea. They found the assembly room beautifully decorated with flowers and fall leaves. There was music on the piazza throughout the afternoon, and refreshments were served indoors and on the verandas as well. At the same time the golf course was crowded with over a hundred enthusiasts from the home club and the Park Golf club, and the eight tennis courts were in constant use, many people being obliged to await their turn to play.

Mrs. Henry C. Irons was in charge of the decorations and entertainment, aided by her associates on the committee, Mrs. Harry V. Borden, Mrs. Daniel C. Ginna and Mrs. Leighton Calkins. The following women assisted: Mrs. John B. Dumont, Mrs. Jabez Gilbert, Mrs. W. L. Righter, Mrs. George A. Beaton, Mrs. W. H. Tyler, Mrs. S. D. Lounsbery, Miss Grace Kaufman, Mrs. A. H. Atterbury, Mrs. John Stevens.

The dining rooms were thrown open at 7 o'clock and there were 150 persons served to an excellent dinner. The chairman of the dinner committee, at this was the first large dinner since the completion of the addition of the clubhouse, and the committee were anxious not to put the kitchen and dining room facilities between the two. This rule disappointed between thirty and forty members who had placed their orders, but another time Mr. Hilton will be able to accommodate about two hundred, when the service outfit has been added to. Everybody commented on the promptness with which everything was served, and on the efficient corps of waitresses, all experienced and about twenty-five in number. An eight course dinner was served and it was an excellent one.

The old dining room, which accommodates about fifty people without crowding, opens into the new room so well that the effect is really that of a large room. The new room is about fifty feet square, held one hundred persons Saturday night, and with little trouble can be made to accommodate thirty more, by a little arrangement of the tables.

This room is also an extension of the assembly room, making it possible to seat as many as three hundred at dinner. Of course, the only limitation is in the kitchen facilities; but the new kitchen is a room forty feet by thirty, equipped with a large new French range with three fires, three large ovens and grill attachments, so that the club is splendidly equipped to handle its restaurant service. The serving pantry itself is a large room, twenty-two feet by eighteen, containing among other things a modern dishwashing machine.

The dinner on Saturday was a two-hour affair. A five-piece orchestra, an unusually good one, too, provided music during the dinner. At 9 o'clock the big dining room was promptly cleared and thrown open, together with the assembly room, for dancing. Three hundred members and guests attended, including the on-lookers on the piazzas. The dance lasted until nearly midnight.

Members of the three invited clubs took full advantage of the hospatalities extended to them and attended the reception and dance, many remaining to the dinner. Those able to spend the entire day at the club for golf and tennis had luncheon there as well, an excellent lunch being served for about fifty members and guests. The officers of the club were well pleased with Superintendent Hilton's able management of the affair. He attended to every detail and overlooked nothing. Plainfield can now boast of having a country club with an up-to-date and well-appointed clubhouse and a high club spirit, as well as a good golf course and tennis courts. It is understood that the courts will be rebuilt in the spring, and another season will also see the links extended to the full championship length.

Approaching Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Murphy have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice M. Murphy, and William F. Brown, which will take place Wednesday evening, October 27, at 5 o'clock, at St. Mary's church. A reception will follow at the home of the bride's home, 180 North avenue, from 8 to 12 o'clock.

INTOXICATED IN SALOON; FLOURISHED REVOLVER

As usual on a Monday morning a number of drunk and disorderly cases came before City Judge Runyon in the city court Monday. Edward Kiley, of 31 Steiner place, North Plainfield, was given a sentence of $10 or twenty days for being drunk and carrying a revolver, which it was said he was flourishing in a saloon on Somerset street Saturday afternoon.

Clarence Johnson, of 1238 Columbia avenue, a youth who should have known better, was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, the latter being attempts to escape from Patrolman Meyers while being conducted to the lockup. He was fined five dollars.

Mike Gaeta, an Italian of Scotch Plains, got in the toils for being drunk on West Front street Saturday night. He was repentant this morning and was discharged, it being his first offense.

NEITHER TEAM SCORED IN BOROUGH CONTEST

A bitterly contested football game between North Plainfield High School and the Holy Cross Club resulted in no score for either side at the Cricket Feld Saturday afternoon. The most exciting stage of the game was toward the end of the first half when the Holy Cross boys brought the ball to the N. P. H. S. ten yard line but lost it on downs. Backer of N. P. H. S. was equal to the first rush of the game and had to retire, thereby weakening his team considerably.

The N. P. H. S. line-up was: H. Smith and Pierson Bailey, r. e.; Percy Bailey, l. e.; A. Stiglitz and J. McCullough, r. t.; L. Zeglis, r. g.; J. Abrams, center; Lindsey, l. g.; E. Scott and Pierson Bailey, l. t.; Conroy, q. b.; Becker and H. Smith, l. h. b.; C. Smith, f. b., and H. Stein, r. h. b.

SPECIAL MUSIC AND ORGAN RECITAL AT GRACE CHURCH.

That interest in organ music is increasing was evident by the large attendance at Grace Episcopal church Sunday afternoon. The large edifice was nearly full when Organist S. Frederick Smith's opening number ended. This pathetic sonata in C minor is a difficult and weird composition, and was played with due regard for the nuances and teemed with human feeling. The chromatic coloring was finely executed.

Of the other compositions Fryslager's Nocturne was full of tender delight, charming in its tenses and soothing the mind, rendering it receptive for the following choral service. A great improvement was noticed in the singing by the male choir, the pitch being maintained to a greater degree. Mr. Smith deserves the encouragement of the music loving public for his meritorious work.

LATTON'S TROUBLES END; WILL SUPPORT CHILDREN.

John F. Latton and his wife Louisa (colored) aired their troubles in the city court Monday before Judge Runyon. Latton claimed that since he has been compelled to live apart from his spouse she has made life miserable for him, tearing his clothing off his back and otherwise maltreating him. He is a small man and has fared the worse in all the family jars. He has, according to his story, offered to support his two children, but wants to do so away from the mother.

After hearing both sides of the story Judge Runyon imposed a sentence of ten days and advised the couple to keep apart from each other. Latton promised to use a third party in sending money for the support of his children, thus ending the controversy.

REFUSE HIS RESIGNATION

Supt. of Motive Power Mc Intoch, of Jersey Central, Granted Absence Leave.

ILL HEALTH THE CAUSE.

Now Receiving Treatment at Battle Creek—Acting Superintendent Is Appointed.

William McIntosh, of Willow avenue, who has been superintendent of motive power of the New Jersey Central for the past two years, has been granted an indefinite leave of absence and is now at Battle Creek, Mich., where he is regaining his health. He recently returned from a sojourn abroad and he went at once to Battle Creek. Charles Chambers, who has been acting with the motive power department of the railroad for many years, is now temporarily the acting-superintendent.

Mr. McIntosh has had an extensive experience in railroad work, particularly in the motive power department. Prior to coming with the New Jersey Central, he was superintendent of the motive power of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, where he became a recognized authority in all matters pertaining to motive power and railroad work. This reputation has been continued during his association with the New Jersey Central.

Before and since coming East, Mr. McIntosh has invented many valuable parts in engine construction and also designed special locomotives for use in drawing the exceptionally heavy trains over the steep grades on the New Jersey Central in Pennsylvania. Several times he has appeared before conventions of railroad men and addressed them on technical questions referring to railroad motive power.

WHAT IT COSTS THIS COUNTRY TO FEED RATS.

In an article on the rat pest in the October number of Popular Mechanics, the following interesting statement is made:

The brown rat is practically omnivorous. Its bill of fare includes seeds and grains of all kinds, cereal and food products made from them; fruits and garden vegetables, mushrooms, bark of growing trees, bulbs, roots, stems, leaves and flowers of herbaceous plants, eggs, chicks, ducklings, young pigeons, young rabbits, milk, butter, cheese, fresh meat, carrion, mice, fish, frogs and mussels. This great variety of food explains the ease with which rats adapt themselves to almost any environment.

Exact statistics show that the average quantity of grain consumed by a full-grown rat is fully two ounces a day, and a half-grown rat eats about as much as an adult. Fed on grain a rat eats forty-five to fifty pounds a year, worth about sixty cents at present, or $1.80 if canned. Fed on beefsteaks worth twenty-five cents a pound, or on chicks or squabs with a much higher prospective value, the cost of maintaining a rat is proportionately increased. Granted that more than half the food of rats is waste, the average cost of keeping one rat is still upward of twenty-five cents a year.

If an accurate census of the rats of the United States were possible, a reasonably correct calculation of the minimum cost of feeding them could be made from the above data. If the number of rats supported by the people throughout the United States were no more than equal to the number of domestic animals on the farms—horses, cattle, sheep and hogs—the minimum cost of feeding them would be upward of $100,000,000 a year. To some such enormous total every farmer, and every householder who has rats upon his premises, contributes a share.

SECOND-STORY MEN ROB POLICE COMMISSIONER.

Second story porch men during the absence of Police Commissioner William R. Hopson and wife, Saturday evening, gained entrance to the commissioner's residence at 155 Fair street, Paterson. They made off with a quantity of jewelry, the total value of which could not be ascertained until the family had inventoried all the household equipment.

Entrance, to all appearances, had been gained by standing on the porch railing, from where an active man might easily draw himself up and then step by the window opening into Mr. Hopson's study. The commissioner said that this window was left unbolted, and it was found open when he returned home.

Another Knock.

Mrs. Stubb—It's queer, John, that you don't hear of many women going trout fishing.

Mr. Stubb—Not at all, Maria. You know a trout fishing at a time,—speak a word for hours at a time.—Chicago News.

Mrs. Mehlenbeck, mother of Chas. F. Mehlenbeck, of East Sixth street, returned to Plainfield Saturday afternoon after a three months' tour of California and Seattle, Wash. She traveled over 10,000 miles without a single mishap.

SCOTCH PLAINS 8, NEWARK GIANTS 2

The Newark Colored Giants proved an easy proposition for the Scotch Plains team in the baseball game at the latter place Sunday afternoon, the Plains winning by a score of 8 to 2. The Plainfield nine shut out until the ninth inning, when two runs were brought over the plate on a hit, a gift by MacLaughlin and two errors. The bad inning was due to darkness. MacLaughlin allowed but three singles and a scratch and fanned eleven men. The support was gilt-edge until the ninth inning. The lineup and score by innings:

Plains—Flannery, rf; Baldwin, cf; Alberts, c; Allen, 1b; Frentz, 2b; Reick, lf; Dodge, ss; Brown, 3b; MacLaughlin, p; Eller, rf; Miller, lf.

Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, delivered an impressive funeral sermon. The pall bearers were Joseph Bogart, Alexander Thorne, Charles Dutcher and Charles Ammerman.

Many friends of the departed attended the services and many beautiful floral tributes were tendered in honor of her memory. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

PHYSICIAN FOUND BEAN IN SMALL BOY'S NOSE.

Harry Schwartz, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schwartz, of Plainfield, underwent a rather unusual and delicate operation, Saturday afternoon, when Dr. P. . Zeglio removed a lima bean form his nostrils. It is not known how long the bean had been in the nose, and it was not discovered until the child member began to disclose a painful sore. The physician was barely able to see one end of the bean.

The child is now improving and will recover speedily.

Visited Old Parishioners.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Condict, of Central avenue, entertained Professor and Mrs. Charles R. Erdman, of Princeton, during the Endeavor convention. Dr. Erdman was Mr. Condict's pastor at the Germantown Presbyterian church, and they are warm personal friends. Dr. Erdman is now professor of practical English Biblical study at Princeton Theological Seminary, and he delivered one of the principal addresses of the convention.

SOMERVILLE BALKS PLAN OF BIG WATER SYNDICATE.

The Borough of Somerville has blocked the work of the syndicate which has expended $360,000 in Somerset county in acquiring water rights with the object of supplying towns and cities along the line of the New Jersey Central with water from the Raritan river.

The syndicate has laid the first mile of its trunk line at a cost of $60,000. Now the borough of Somerville refuses to permit it to lay its thirty-six inch main through the borough until it divulges its plans and assures the Council of an adequate and permanent water supply for fire purposes.

DRAWINGS OF TIME.

Make Them Requires Great Care as to Details.

In apportioning the amount of material for each detail of a piece of machinery great care is taken, in advance, to determine just how small an amount will safely and certainly satisfy the demands which are to be made upon it. But why should not the time for performing each operation on these details also be determined, in advance, and with equal care?

In purchasing the raw material great care is taken, in advance, to purchase only just such quantities and individual pieces as will allow of conversion into detail with the least waste. Why should not the quantity of productive time represented by different types of men, machinery or apparatus also be determined, in advance, and with equal care?

As regards material great care is used in determining, in advance, the necessary clearances between parts, either because some of them are movable or to facilitate construction, and so as to follow just enough and no more. Why should not the clearances between the successive different operations on the same piece of material, and also between successive similar operations on similar parts of different contracts or orders, be determined in advance, and with equal care?

It is just as possible and as vitally necessary to draw, to represent with lines, to make a graphic record, of the results of careful observation, thought and calculation whereby the time which should be, not the time which is, consumed in the performance of each individual operation is determined, as to draw the part itself.—Engineering Magazine.

STATE C. E. CONVENTION

The afternoon and evening sessions of the twenty-third annual convention of the State Christian Endeavor Union came to an end Wednesday after one of the most stirring addresses ever listened to by the members, Rev. J. Douglas Adam, of East Orange, being the last speaker. In the afternoon addresses were made by Karl Lehman, Mrs. James Foster Smith and Mrs. G. D. Baker, synopses of which will be found below.

The services for the day began with a "watch hour" at 6:45 with State president Sproull leading. Devotional services from 9 to 9:15 were in charge of Rev. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. Addresses by Rev. Fleet W. Tomkins, Percy R. Neussel, S. D. Riddle and A. B. Johnson filled up the forenoon.

Dr. Adam's Address.

Following is part of the address of Dr. Adam given before one of the largest audiences ever seen in the First Presbyterian church. The address was preceded by some splendid singing by a choir of forty trained voices under the direction of Charles L. Lewis.

Dr. Adam said in part:

"It is a great sense of privilege and a sense of responsibility to talk to young people. Superstition is passing away naturally. We are living in an age of intense atmosphere, of reality. It is true in every phase of life. We must find all the places of reality wherever we go.

That Word "Consecration."

He said consecration is becoming a moth-eaten word in so far as its meaning goes with the majority of day. We should not use God, but let God use us, that is, surrender and consecration. When we do this we have struck the crisis of our life. God wants you to surrender your element self. A life which does that ends with Him.

"The time has come for all Christian Endeavorers to make an advance to the great goal surrender. Some peoples' claim to goodness is what they don't do. But it is not enough. It is not what you don't commit, but what you neglect to do for the needy and fallen which counts against you. The sermon on the mount is not enough for me. I need someone to lead me to its summit. Eternity has no geography. Christ is here and is the general of the campaign and is giving the marching orders. Are you ready to go forward?

Give Christ Inner Life.

"We do not need to worry about our souls many are too softcentered. They may spend all night in prayer, but be spiritually selfish because they prayed only for themselves. They are narrow-minded, and hard to live with. It is the broad mindedness that will make one say "I have forgotten I have a soul," that shows a Christ like life that Christ has the soul in his possession. Give Christ your inner life, look up. Nothing can separate you from Him. That's what we need in our every day life. In business, at home, everywhere, lose ourselves in Him. It makes us independent of external things. We are delivered from discouragement. And we can draw from the ocean of divine power.

"We must appropriate two things, heart and grace from God's abundance. Around every one of us tonight is the illimitable power of God's love to help us face every difficult path; rest in it. Surrender, companionship, appropriation and expectancy are the elements of Christian life and the endeavorers must have them to succeed.

"Christian Endeavor is not doing things, but moving deeds with the will of God; bringing the ideals of Jesus to the surface and the vitality of His personality in what you do. The will and power of Christ is for you to follow."

Mrs. Smith's Address.

The afternoon session Wednesday was opened with a stirring talk on the value of junior mission meetings by Mrs. James Foster Smith, of the mission committee of the South Branch, Philadelphia Christian Endeavor Union. She urged more missionary work and fewer entertainments by the young people. She asked where the great missionaries of the future were to come from if not out of Sunday schools of today.

"Yes," said she, "I know of at least one Sunday school that has not had a single missionary topic for one year. Many of the great missionaries of history resolved to serve Christ among the heathen while yet boys, as in the case of the immortal Mackay of Uganda. It is up to our junior superintendents to impress the necessity of missionary work upon the juniors."

Mrs. Smith also deplored the lack of what she termed prayer-life in the Sunday school, and instanced two large schools in Philadelphia which boasted but two members who could lead in prayer.

Carl Lehman then again addressed the convention. He gave an interesting talk on boys and their ways. There were no bad boys in the world, he declared, only good boys with bad traits. The task of workers in the junior field was to eradicate the bad traits, which could usually be accomplished with a little patience. There were three big things a worker had to contend with, in Mr. Lehman's opinion and they were "boys, girls and your own nerves," which latter were least troublesome when most ready.

Mr. Lehman's Advice.

The speaker took up the matter of overcoming the objections of a pastor to forming a junior society when such objections existed. He said that where it was manifestly impossible to interest the pastor before hand, the organizer should form the society right in his own home and force the unbelieving clergymen to recognize it through its good deeds.

Mr. Lehman advocated a warm welcome to applicants for membership in a society. He had found instances where an applicant had to literally "butt in," as he put it, to become enrolled in the junior ranks.

He said that a great many pastors did not know how to talk to boys and girls. Getting young people to understand and sympathize with a grown-up's remarks was an art, he declared, and one that the theological seminaries ought to teach aspirants to the pulpit. He thought that the pastor and board should endorse all appointments of junior officers, and that the pastor should give final approval of all plans for socials and general entertainment.

He said that the formation of a junior society should mean little additional work for an overworked pastor. As pastor did not need to attend every junior meeting; a strong interest in the work could suffice. Mr. Lehman suggested that superintendents give their young people plenty of systematic bible drills, and to hold interest with such helps as bible verse contests.

Mrs. Baker Speaks.

Mrs. G. D. Baker, State Superintendent of Intermediate Work, told of the substantial progress made in her field of endeavor in the present year. She said that many who made small figures in Sunday school work made their mark in the Intermediate field.

At the banquet tendered to the State Executive Committee by the local union last evening, State President Sproull presided. The repast was one well calculated to satisfy the hungry and was splendidly served.

Immediately after the coffee, a short discussion of the question of the best means to employ in order to make our Union's work of the county presidents resulted in a unanimous vote to place them on the State executive committee. The purpose in view is to make the 1911 convention at Atlantic City the greatest in the history of the Christian Endeavor movement.

A resolution of sympathy was introduced for Miss Ida B. Stephens, State secretary, who was unable to be present at the convention owing to the illness of her mother. Charles F. Windham, general secretary, made a short address outlining the very successful work of his department during the past year, and was heartily applauded.

Morning Watch Service.

The second day's session of the convention began Thursday with a "Morning Watch" at 6:45 o'clock, led by State President John T. Sproull. Despite the early hour there were nearly one hundred enthusiastic Endeavorers present to join in the helpful meeting. This continued until 7:30, when an adjournment was taken for breakfast.

The convention session proper began at 9 o'clock with a devotional service conducted by Rev John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. He read the Scripture selection and offered prayer.

Addresses of Welcome.

Then followed addresses of welcome, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, extending a welcome as president of the Plainfield Ministers' Association; Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, as pastor of the convention church; Clarence B. LaRue, as chairman of the local committee, with a response by State President John T. Sproull.

Dr. Zelie, in his address, said that he felt sure the Endeavorers would be impressed with the welcome whether anything was said or not, and in fact he hoped that the welcome had already been proved. He said that Plainfield is a good place to be welcomed to, it is a good place for strangers, they are not kept on the anxious seat very long. He referred to the fact that the welcome had been prepared long ago. Dr. Zelie said that the spiritual forces in the city stand behind such movements better than in any place he could think of. Any Christian worker is given a tremendous advantage and helped to do great things.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey,

Liberal Givers.

This is a city where the collection box is seen," continued Dr. Zelie. "We see the subscription list often, but we are use to that. You must feel the note of conquest, so aptly referred to by Dr. Dawson, of High Bridge, London, when attending a council of religious workers at Brighton. We thank you for coming in addition to welcoming you. You no doubt feel discouragements. Work is a discouragement. One often thinks that there is a mighty lot of work done, but little product, but it has always been so.

"We welcome you to a city that has been the birthplace of some religious movements and we welcome you to our homes. In the name of the city, the churches, the homes and the Plainfield ministers I extend a hearty welcome to you all."

Dr. Herring Humorous.

In extending a welcome on behalf of the convention church of which he is pastor, Dr. C. E. Herring remarked that Dr. Zelie had taken his time and he in turn would take the time alloted to Mr. LaRue, which caused much laughter. In trying to explain why the convention met in such a church, Dr. Herring said he thought it must be because of his initials, "C. E." somestimes referred to as "Christian Endeavor" Herring. This provoked laughter.

"I remember the State convention which met here fourteen years ago," continued Dr. Herring, "and I have always been impressed with the interdenominational fellowship shown. I love to think of heaven as a city, where we will enjoy that fellowship and I welcome you to this church with that thought. I love all denominations, but possibly love more the interdenominational idea in the advancement of the cause of Christ.

"You have gathered this week in order that you may go forth with renewed energy and perform better service in the future. The circumstances and conditions today are vastly different from those of fourteen years ago. We now have more modern and approved ideas toreach those who are out of the church and bring them into Christian fellowship, and may your coming together be productive of much good. I greet you heartily as pastor of this church."

Mr. LaRue's Welcome.

On behalf of the Plainfield Endeavor Union, Clarence B. LaRue, extended a welcome to the delegates, and he did not forget to make it broad enough to include all young people of Plainfield, through whom it was made possible to entertain the convention. He referred to the generosity of all who were helping in the work. He expressed the belief that this convention would surpass any held in recent years. He said that two years had been spent in preparation for the gathering, with two objects in view, first, that the young people of Plainfield would receive a great blessing and inspiration, which has been a fact, and secondly, that new ideas would be gained for greater work in the future.

"It is a pleasant duty to receive such words of welcome," said State President Sproull in his response. It means more than words can express. To bring a Christian Endeavor Society thinks that it can get along without a pastor's aid, its days of usefulness are over. We always want the pastors with us. Dr. Herring referred to himself as "C. E." Herring, but he is a dried herring by any means, in fact I think he is a wise Herring.

"It is a pleasure to state that the invitation to come to Plainfield was backed up by deeds, and we as Endeavorers want to get a welcome that is backed up by two years of constant prayer for the success of the convention. We are all fighting in the same cause and your blessings will come through your preparation. We are to thank through Endeavor inspiration received here and may we (through the outpouring of God's Spirit be made better channels for winning souls to Christ."

Mr. Neussle's Report.

Then followed a business session, which began with a report of the introduction department by Percy R. Neussle, of Newark, State Superintendent. He explained that the department is made up of the State superintendents, county or local superintendents and a representative from each society, and it is the duty to provide a welcome for all strangers and to extend to them Christian friendship. Through this plan of co-operation many strangers have become interested in Endeavor work. Mr. Neussle said that eleven counties reported during the year and eighty-eight strangers had become identified with the church. He urged greater co-operation during the coming year.

Mr. Riddle's Report.

S. D. Riddle, of Newark, State superintendent of the fresh air department, gave an interesting account in a general way of the work done during the year. Trolley rides, excursions to the seashore and trips to the mountains had comprised numerous outings under the auspices of the societies in the various counties. Mr. Riddle said that Morris county had taken the lead in this work, closely followed by Hudson and Essex counties. Somerset county as well as some of those in the southern part of the State had also done good work in this department. Special mention was made of the interest taken by Miss Nellie Dodwell, of Dunellen, and Miss Mina Bock, of this city.

Press Department Work.

The work of the press department for the year was prepared by the State superintendent, A. B. Johnson, of Newark. The report was read by Mr. Riddle, as Mr. Johnson could not be present. He briefly told of the work of interchanging ideas and plans among the societies of the State, telling how helpful it had been. Supplementing the report, President Sproull emphasized the importance of this work, adding, "if you have a good thing let us hear about it."

Dr. Tomkins Here.

The "Quiet Hour," fixed for 10 o'clock, was postponed to this time, owing to the inability of the leader to be present at the early hour. Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, S. T. D., rector of Holy Trinity church, Philadelphia, was in charge of this impressive service. Instructions were given to allow no one to enter or leave the church during the hour, as perfect quiet was desired. Dr. Tomkins made a few very helpful remarks throughout the service, counseling the Endeavorers to be natural, to be prayerful, and to seek the Spirit of Christ. He said that a preacher did not love their children as they ought to, simply because they are human. If they get the Spirit and love of Christ in their hearts it will be reflected in their lives.

During this hour the Endeavorers gave themselves entirely to a spirit of consecration and it was the most impressive service of the convention. Following this announcement was made for the various group conferences that were held from 11:25 to 12:15.

Methods Conference.

The conference of the School of Methods was made up of groups some of which met in the Y. M. C. A. building and others in rooms in the church. The Prayer and Lookout committees in charge of Karl Lehman met in the assembly room of the Y. M. C. A. Miss Wyckoff with the Missionary committee in the junior room. Mr. Sproull took charge of the social committee in the body of the church.

The four departments were arranged as follows: Evangelistic, Rev. Abram Duryee, of Hackensack; Bible study, Rev. Walter B. Greenway, of Jersey City; Sabbath Observance and Christian Citizenship, Rev. Dr. F. W. Johnson, of Washington, N. J., and Junior and Intermediate, Mrs. Ida Dukes. The reports of these conferences will be read tomorrow morning.

Rev. J. J. Adams, pastor of the Zion M. E. church, of Red Bank, addressed the convention in the afternoon in the interests of the State colored churches.

Favor Church Athletics.

At the banquet and annual meeting of the executive committee it was suggested by President Sproull that some plan be recommended for the purpose of reaching the unreached in our churches, and it was decided to make the following recommendation to the pastors: "That, wherever and whenever it meets with their approval and seems to meet the needs of their churches, the executive committee suggests organizing baseball, or basketball teams, reading clubs or musical circles, or such organizations, athletic or social as may meet the needs, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society and that this committee will stand back of any such movement."

The invitation of the Mercer County Union to hold the next annual convention at Trenton in October, 1910, was accepted unanimously.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE FRAUD IS EXPOSED

Timely action has been taken by the Montclair Board of Education to prevent an abuse which it is said exists in this city. Like Plainfield's, Montclair's public schools have such a reputation for efficiency that residents of other towns seek to have their children derive the advantage of pursuing their studies in them, and these efforts have led to abuses which the school authorities have been kept on the alert to correct.

It has been decided that pupils who go to Montclair and live with relatives while attending the schools are not exempt from paying the annual tuition fee, which is $50 for the high school, $60 for the grammar school and $40 for the primary schools. Unless the relative with whom the pupil resides is constituted a legal guardian, the pupil will be considered a non-resident and charged the usual rates.

This rule is qualified for the children from Acquackanonk township, in Passaic county, who live nearer to the Montclair schools than they do to the schools in their own municipalities. By an arrangement with the Boards of Education of the two districts, Acquackanonk was charged $17.20 for each pupil it sent to the Montclair schools.

Plainfield's Board of Education makes a fixed charge for pupils from suburbs attending the local schools, but the abuse corrected in Montclair also exists here.

CASHMERE IN FASHION.

The revival of cashmere in a new and lustrous weave was heralded and somewhat adopted last season. It was more widely used abroad than here, and designers say that it will be the leading style in America this season.

It is exquisite in its present form and it is very like crepe de chine that one feels that it is a good friend instead of a stranger, or a Rip Van Winkle come to life.

LEATHER CO.'S TROUBLES

Mr. Harrington Draws Big Salary as President But Duties Nil Now.

JOHN T. GEORGE'S SINECURE.

Elizabeth Man Gets $8,000 for Filling a $10.00 a Week Job —Their Future Plans.

John T. George of Elizabeth, is drawing a salary of $8,000 a year simply for marking leather in the place of the Harrington Leather Company at Elizabeth, although his duties are those of an unskilled laborer who is paid $10 a week for the same work. Sometime ago Mr. George and Frederick Harrington, of Rockview terrace, North Plainfield, who was president of the company, sold out their interests to the Central Leather Company, which operates eighty tanneries throughout the country.

A five year contract was signed, and the terms allowed Mr. Harrington $15,000 a year and Mr. George $8,000. The agreement expires next June. When the Central Leather Company took charge of the plant, Henry Stockman was sent to take charge of the plant and incidentally asked Mr. George, who was vice-president, to get out. He refused and told the new owners that he would hold on as long as his contract was in effect. He was informed his services in the managerial department were not needed and as a result he is now marking leather for $8,000 a year.

Mr. Harrington still holds the title of president of the concern and is getting $15,000 a year, but, according to Mr. George, his authority is almost nil and his duties compare with those of an office boy. After the contract expires in June, Mr. Harrington and Mr. George will go into the leather business for themselves.

Mr. Harrington is prominent in society affairs in the city and borough and is a vestryman of the Church of the Holy Cross.

LOCAL MAN FIGURES IN MILLIONS' CORPORATION

The Continental Telegraph and Telephone Company was chartered at Trenton with $50,000,000 authorized capital, to take over the telephone lines in New York and in New Jersey, but how the charter does not state. The stock is half preferred and half common.

The incorporators are William M. Clark, of Woodland avenue, this city, and Powell Crichton and William Conley, of New York city. Mr. Clark is a son of William A. Clark, president of the Borough National Bank. While it is believed that the company is in opposition to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, no further details are obtainable at present.

The purpose of the new company, as shown in the articles in incorporation, is to amalgamate as many telegraph and telephone lines as possible. Another clause provides for the company to send messages with or without wires. In fact there is hardly any contingency that is not provided for in the articles filed yesterday. The papers state that the new company is organized "to unite and consolidate any telegraph, telephone or cable lines and systems into one or more systems, and to equip, maintain, operate, rent, sell, or otherwise dispose of all or any part of any such consolidated system or systems."

"I can assure you that the company is the real thing and that work will be commenced at once," said William M. Clark, 507 Woodland avenue, Plainfield, one of the incorporators. "I am not at liberty to go further than is put forth in the papers. We will begin at once both to construct new lines and consolidate old ones, but just what these will be I cannot tell you."

When pressed as to who would be the officers of the Continental Telegraph and Telephone Company, Mr. Clark said that all the officers had not been selected.

Price Animals.

A splendid prize for a juvenile party is a box of imported cardboard toys in animal shapes. The figures in the way of playthings and are furnished with joints, the method of which is patented. Six animals come in each set. Some of the boxes contain wild creatures, some our familiar friends of house or barn. On the back of each shape is printed a description in easy English of the animals' habitat and habits. Thanks to the jointing, the creatures can be made to assume diverse and very characteristic attitudes.

CHARTER DAY'S TIDINGS

Mr. Marshall Would "Show Up" the "Souvenir" Program Delinquents.

THE ADVERTISERS WON'T PAY.

The Much Belated Expense Account Won't Be Given to Subscribers for the Time Being.

The previous announcement that a report of the Charter Day committee, including a financial statement from the treasurer, would be presented, attracted a large number of people to the October meeting of the Board of Trade, Thursday. In a measure the long delayed report was a disappointment, for it was not complete. Only the expense account was made public, it being impossible, so it was stated, to prepare the complete list of receipts at this time. This will be done a little later, when the local newspapers will be given the detailed report.

The officers were not willing that the expense account should be made public, until the whole thing is completed, but it was learned that there were expenditures of $7,51 86, with a balance of $33.05, and an indebtedness of $456, which future receipts from the Nation Press, in connection with advertisements in the official Charter Day book are expected to liquidate. It was explained that the $1,000 donated by the city did not pass through the hands of Treasurer E. M. Laing.

President Marshall stated that no settlement had been made with the Nation Press as yet, because of the advertisements had not been paid for. There were twenty-five subscribers and there is a balance of $42 65 still unpaid. He explained that the Nation Press could assign the bills to the board for collection, but this was not thought advisable. Yet every dollar is needed. He decided not say how many or how few of the issue of "Souvenir" booklets had actually been sold or issued. Mr. Marshall stated that the delinquents caused the badge committee "That put us in bad," said the president. The chairman of the committee insisted on securing 15,000 badges. We knew conditions and the chairman didn't, that's all."

Mr. Marshall told the members to know that it was the Gelaschaun and the official Charter Day book that had "pulled the committee out of a hole." If the publishers do not collect the balance due, the board will not call it a day, but out of the net receipts. It was explained that the publishers had had collectors here for days at a time, but the delinquent advertisers always had an excuse to make. Mr. Marshall said he wanted to "show them up" that the committee would not stand for this. "Because a man is a member of the board," said Mr. Marshall "is no reason why his name should not be published if a delinquent."

On motion of Edmund Rushmore, the P. S. C. was thanked for its illumination of the city during the celebration, and all contributors were also thanked.

Upon the suggestion of R. Frank Cordley it was announced that as soon as completed a detailed statement of every expense will be published in the newspapers.

MAJOR LENTZ COMPLAINS.

Gets State Departments to Investigate Assessors' Secretary.

The refusal of Irvine E. Maguire, secretary of the State Board of Assessors, to appear before the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes, last Wednesday, at Hoboken, has three State departments very much "in the air." The two boards are considering the matter, and the Attorney General has been appealed to by President Carl Lentz, of the Equalization Board.

Mr. Maguire holds that the Equalization Board is entirely without authority to compel him to attend its hearings, and that it might be against the best interests of the Boards of Assessors for him to do so. He feels that a precedent established in this matter would have an important bearing on hundreds of cases involving vast sums.

TUBERCULOSIS CONVENTION.

Among the speakers at the mass-meeting arranged by the State Tuberculosis Commission in Taylor's Opera House, Trenton, on the night of Thursday, October 21, will be Governor Fort, State Senator Joseph F. Prelinghuysen, Dr. Henry Baird Favill, of Chicago; Dr. William H. Welch, of Baltimore; Dr. William E. Evans, of Chicago, and Dr. Livingston Farrand, of New York. Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, will introduce Governor Fort, who will preside.

Drs. Favill and Welch are two of the six greatest tuberculosis experts in the United States. Dr. Farrand is secretary of the National Tuberculosis Association. Dr. Evans is health officer of Chicago. It is expected that Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, of Princeton University, will pronounce the benediction. Bishop McFaul will make the opening prayer.

TUNNEL CONNECTION TALK

Board of Trade President Says Jersey Central Will Use Tube Within Year.

CONFIRMATION IS LACKING.

McAdoo People Know Nothing About It—Jersey Central's Plans With Pennsylvania?

Confirmation could not be obtained today concerning the statement made by President Harry W. Marshall at the Board of Trade meeting Thursday that within a year the people of Plainfield would have the benefit of tunnel connections with New York via the Jersey Central. Mr. Marshall told the members of the board that he had the information to impart to them, backed by official authority. He did not mention his informant's name and in explanation of this said that he was not at liberty to divulge it.

When a representative of The Daily Press sought corroboration of the story at the banking offices of Harvey Fisk & Sons, the Hudson Tunnel Company's financial backers, doubt was cast upon it. Vice-president Wilbur C. Fisk, of the Hudson company, said that it would be a physical impossibility for his company to dig a tunnel within a year's time. He added that he did not know what, if any, arrangement the Jersey Central might have with the Pennsylvania railroad company. At the present time the P. R. R. is using the McAdoo tunnels to New York and Mr. Fisk said that his company would be glad to transport Jersey Central passengers, if that road brought its passengers to its tube, which now connects with the Pennsylvania's station at Jersey City.

Vice-president and General Manager William G. Besler was not at his office this morning and could not be located. His chief clerk said he knew nothing about the matter. General Passenger Agent William C. Hope was not at his office and he could not be found. His chief clerk said that he would not be surprised if some arrangement had or would be made for the use of tunnel connection. The rumor is an old one that is not generally supposed that the Jersey Central will have tube service for a long time to come.

GOVERNOR MAY ATTEND CO. K.'S CELEBRATION

Governor J. Franklin Fort will be invited by Co. K to attend a reception which the company plans to give to the members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and all veterans, during November. On this occasion the ride trophies won at Sea Girt and on the company range will be presented and it is hoped that the Governor will be able to make the presentation.

An entertainment, consisting of a drill, dance, to be followed by a luncheon, will be held on Monday night, October 25. It will be an invitation affair and is being arranged by the officers of the company.

The company has eight vacancies in its ranks just now, due to the discharge of members who moved away, and an effort will be made to fill up the ranks. Under the direction of the company a cadet corps, composed of boys from 14 to 18 years of age, is being organized. It now numbers about eighteen members and Co. K will give the cadets the use of its hall and an instructor.

STRAWBERRIES IN JERSEY.

Mild Indian Summer Brings Out a Heavy Fall Crop.

Balmy October weather has brought strawberry festivals into fashion again and strawberry shortcake is a common dessert among the folks who have gardens of their own near Freehold. The fruit common to June has made its second appearance here for the year. Not a strawberry bed for miles around but has a crop. The berries have reached the market in such numbers that they are selling at 10 cents a quart.

The berries on the J. A. Haskell farm, near Freehold, are larger than they were in June and are drawing large prices. Rice A. Brown is also harvesting a gratifying crop of the fruit, which, he says, has a superior flavor to that of the early Summer. He is making a study of the peculiar situation and says he will make an effort to reproduce it next fall.

CASE AGAINST KERWIN POSTPONED BY COURT.

John Kerwin, son of Lawrence Kerwin, proprietor of the "Guinea Egg" Hotel, and John Kerwin, a brother, both of this town, were arraigned before Judge Runyon in the police court Saturday on the complaint of Fred Boland, who alleged that the pair had cursed and threatened him upon the street.

At the request of William G. De Meza, counsel for Boland, the court ordered the case postponed until next Saturday.

GRANTED AN INJUNCTION

Vice Chancellor Stevens Issues Order Restraining Garbage Man's Practises.

NEIGHBORS MAKE COMPLAINT.

George T. Hughes and Howard J. Vail Make Freeman Strait Defendant in Their Bill.

On complaint of George T. Hughes an injunction was issued Wednesday by Vice-Chancellor Stevens restraining Freeman Strait, who operates a garbage collection system in the city of Plainfield, from disposing of the offal on his property in North Plainfield township in such a manner as to allow noxious and unpleasant odors to escape and extend to the premises of Hughes, who resides near the Strait property.

According to the bill of complaint filed by Hughes, Strait occupies the property, consisting of 100 acres, known as the Underhill farm. Hughes avers that for more than a year Strait has been carting from the city of Plainfield swill and decayed animal and vegetable matter which he has dumped in piles on the land and occasionally spreading it about the fields on the farm, leaving it exposed to the elements. Hughes lives only a short distance from the Underhill farm and he alleges that as a result of the nuisance caused by his neighbor life for himself and family has been made almost unbearable by the stench that permeates the air. The smell from the garbage has been so vile, it is declared, that members of the Hughes family have been so nauseated at times that they have been unable to eat.

Howard J. Vail, another resident of the neighborhood, sustains the charges made by Hughes. Vail declares that frequently the stench from the garbage is so vile that he and his family are compelled to abandon the use of their porch as a place to sit in warm weather and go into the house and close all the windows for the purpose of preventing the noxious odors from discomforting them. He also says that Mrs. Vail has been made sick and unhealthful by reason of the nuisance.

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer is counsel for Hughes.

SIXTY-TWO ARE BORN HERE IN SEPTEMBER

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health was held Wednesday, four members being present. Reports were read showing the sanitary condition of the city at the present time.

The following returns were made to the department the past month: Marriages, 22; births, 62; stillbirths, 3; deaths, 19. Of the nineteen deaths, 42 per cent. were of persons over sixty years of age.

The following communicable diseases were reported during the month: Scarlet fever, 4; diphtheria, 1; tuberculosis, 5; typhoid fever, 1. Four of the five cases of typhoid fever were contracted outside of Plainfield. One of these, resulted in death. At the present time, there are three houses under quarantine, two for scarlet fever and one for diphtheria.

During the month, sixty-three samples of milk were collected and analyzed, and also three samples of cream. Samples of milk were collected from stores selling milk, and the result was not as favorable as for the preceding month.

Ninety-five dairies and eleven bottling places were inspected during the month. The condition of the dairies were found in most cases to be very good; however, five dairies supplying milk to dealers in Plainfield were shut off, because the owners were careless and not prompt in complying with our ordinance. The usual sample of city water was taken during the month and the analysis showed it to be of excellent quality. The number of plumbing inspections made during the month of September was 41; the number of general inspections made was 460, making a total of 521.

Cream of Celery Soup.

Rinse and wash half cupful of rice, grate fine a small slice of a head of celery and cook with the rice in one pint of milk with a little salt. Gently simmer them together until the rice is tender enough to rub through a sieve. Return the pulp to the boiler and gradually stir with it one quart of chicken or veal broth, if necessary add sufficient milk to produce a creamy consistency. Season palatably with salt, white pepper and a little grated nutmeg.

To Enforce Shooting Law.

Complaints have been made to the North Plainfield police of shooting on the part of residents of the borough. It is announced that the ordinance forbidding the discharge of firearms within the borough limits will be strictly enforced by the law officers.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY FOR ALLEGED ASSAULT

Justice Snape Wednesday disposed of the cases of Peter Wilson and Frank Gunning, charged with assaulting Patrick Regan on the night of September 16. Wilson was held in $200 bail for the grand jury and Gunning was discharged.

Wilson admitted striking Regan, but said he did it in self defense. Regan charged Gunning with being an accessory to the assault, but it was proved to the court's satisfaction that Gunning took no part in the affair. In fact, William R. Coddington, Regan's counsel, requested that Gunning be released.

Judge William Newcorn, counsel for the alleged assailant's, termed their arrest as a piece of spite work, and showed that the complainant bore both defendants ill will and had spoken slightingly of the wife of one. He showed that Wilson, the man finally held, was of good character and had never been brought into court before.

Wilson, who is a quiet, clean cut young man, took the stand in his own defense and frankly said that he "walloped" Regan. But he claimed that Regan had stopped him upon the street with an oath and then made a swing at him. Then came Wilson's punch that put Regan into the ditch. Drs. Buchanan and Pitts testified that Regan was brought out of the ditch with a broken rib.

Counselor Newcorn said that he thought the broken rib was due to rocks in the ditch and not to kicks from Wilson and Gunning as alleged. Chief Weiss testified to Regan's condition when brought into police headquarters and that the injured man mentioned Wilson alone as his assailant.

RELIC OF REVOLUTION STAGE DAYS FOUND

While digging up the ground in Washington street, between Park place and High street, at Morristown, where a new brick pavement is to be laid, a workman of the street department Tuesday found an old transfer ticket of a stage line, which it is believed ran between Easton and New York a century ago. The ticket is of metal and on the one side bears an imprint of a stage coach with the words "telegraph line," while on the other side is simply the words "Transfer Ticket." Old residents say that after the Revolution a stage line ran between New York and Easton, and they think it possible that Morristown was a place of transfer where travelers put up for the night and where a fresh team of horses was secured to continue the route. The relic is now in possession of Street Commissioner Cole, who is anxious to find out when the stage coach line ran through Morristown. The ticket is the first of its kind ever seen around here by citizens now living.

A FROCK OF KHAKI.

A frock that attracted notice at a popular resort recently was of khaki colored linen elaborately trimmed with black soutache. The skirt was long, perfectly fitting about the hips and quite full around the bottom. It was simply finished with a deep hem. The front gore widened out at the top to form a shaped panel extending to the bust and to points under the arms where it was held by large linen covered buttons, and at the front and just above the waist line in the back there was an elaborate wheel and scroll design of black silk soutache and the design was repeated at the top of the long, plain sleeves. The neck was cut out in a shallow square with a tiny yoke and high stock of white tucked batiste finished with a tiny square bow or black satin at the front.

The sleeves were tightly buttoned over at the wrist with linen covered buttons.

A large black wide brimmed hat, trimmed with a huge yellow plume, was worn with this gown.

A TIP ON TAILORING.

Many persons ordering an autumn suit and intending it to do duty through the winter prefer a medium weight material, sufficiently interlined, to that heavier quality which looks to rough-and-ready for the early fall days.

Women will endure the excess of warmth long before winter makes its necessary, when they will put up with a coat too wintery in appearance. Just by way of suggestion it ought to be generally known that white, woolly felt, which is so generally used for interlining, has, in its loosely woven fabric, great numbers of long white hairs that gradually work their way through the cloth to the surface. The constant picking out of these hairs can be obviated by the use of dark felt interlining, it is well to know an occasional thing and to insist.

"Say, why did you fight so hard to get to kiss that ugly cousin of yours?"

"Well, I wanted to establish a precedent in the family. You see, she has two pretty sisters."—Cleveland Leader.

THEIR RECTOR RESIGNS

Rev. Wm. R. Mulford to Leave All Saints Church, Fanwood, on Nov. 1.

HE GOES TO BOLTON, N. Y.

Generally Popular Clergyman Has Served All Saints' Church for Twelve Years.

Rev. William R. Mulford has resigned as rector of All Saints' church, Fanwood, after twelve years' devoted and appreciated service. His resignation takes effect on Monday, November 1, when he assumes the pastorate of Saint Sacrament church, Bolton, N. Y. His new charge will bring him into a larger field of usefulness.

Rev. Mr. Mulford succeeded Rev. W. F. True as rector twelve years ago. During his ministry the church was dedicated, the debt on the edifice having been discharged. He has been exceptionally successful in his parish work and his loss will be deplored generally at both Scotch Plains and Fanwood, where he was very popular with people of all creeds. Before his departure the townsfolk will show their appreciation of him at a general reception.

All Saints' church was organized by the late much-beloved Rev. Erskine M. Rolman, as rector of Grace church, this city. Its usefulness was great under Mr. Mulford, who is a liberal-minded, wholesouled clergyman, who has endeared himself to his people. The vestry has made no announcement of Rev Mr. Mulford's successor.

SOMERSET POLITICIANS MR. SEBRING'S GUESTS

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders, and in addition many other county officials and a few friends, were guests of Charles P. Sebring at a dinner given at his home in Greenbrook Thursday. Twenty-six guests sat down to one of the finest dinners ever served at the Sebring homestead and nothing but words of praise were heard for Mr. Sebring and his assistants.

The home was elaborately decorated for the occasion by Anthony Zolvolenck, an expert florist and neighbor of Mr. Sebring. There were chrysanthemums, roses and carnations in abundance, while every guest received a handsome chrysanthemum as a souvenir.

After the dinner there were addresses by Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, Director Gibson, of the board, and Abram Story, a neighbor. In addition to the Board of Freeholders there were present County Clerk A. P. Sutphin, County Collector E. B. Allen, William Logan, custodian of the Court House at Somerville; Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, Contractors Frank Mobus, Joseph Burke, John H. Kitchen, A. I. Smalley, Abram Story and John Y. Barrett, borough street commissioner. Greenbrook road was not finally accepted, although another payment was ordered.

HOW QUILTINGS ARE MADE.

Among the finest and most distinctive varieties of textile fabrics are cloths technically known as "quiltings," which, however, have nothing to do with bed quilts, but include such fabrics as piques, diamonds, mattings and materials for gentlemen's light waistcoats.

The important processes in the manufacture of quiltings are zealously guarded as trade secrets, says the London Illustrated News. They represent the finest achievements in cotton cloth.

The extreme delicacy of their manufacture may be gathered from the fact that down to twenty-five years ago they were still largely made on the hand-loom, the work being done not in mills, but given out to the workers in their own homes. By constant experiment and after many failures a quilting loom was constructed which could be driven by power, though its production was only slightly faster than the hand-loom. During the last twenty years great improvements have been introduced, especially at Bury, England, which claims to be the centre for the making of quiltings.

Divided Affection.

"Keep looking young, don't you, old man. It must be fine to be married, like you are. Here I am, an old bach, with not a single woman I can say loves me, while you have a beautiful wife all to yourself—one who concentrates all her love and affection on you!"

"Hold on, old fellow. I know I'm married to a woman with beauty and full of love and affection; but you have to remember she has two pet poodles besides me.—Judge's Library.

"How does your husband manage in the winter when the automobile season is over?"

"Fine. He takes up bowling and tries to kill the pin boys."—Puck.

DUDLEY BUCK, ORGANIST AND COMPOSER, DEAD

Dudley Buck, an organist and a composer of international reputation, died suddenly of heart disease Wednesday in the home of his son, Dudley Buck, Jr., No. 65 Northfield road, West Orange, where he had resided since his return in August from a two years' residence in Europe.

Few Americans have ever held the position in the musical world occupied by Dudley Buck at the time of his retirement from active and public work in 1902. For twenty-five years the musical director at the Church of the Holy Trinity in Brooklyn, his work was looked upon as a standard in devotional music. Outside of his profession he was widely known both in this country and in Europe, where he studied as a young man.

He was born in Hartford, Conn., on March 10, 1839. Queen scarcely more than a boy Dudley Buck went abroad to study music. After a period as a student of various masters he was graduated from the Royal Conservatory of Music at Leipzig, Germany, among his classmates being Sir Arthur Sullivan. From Leipzig he went to Dresden, Germany, and studied composition under the famous Reitz, and later received instruction from the court organist, Herr Schneider. His education was completed in Paris.

Returning to this country for a time he was organist in St. James' Protestant Episcopal church at Chicago and afterward at Boston. From the latter city he went to Brooklyn to accept the position of musical director at the Holy Trinity church of that city. He was one of the foremost musicians in the Apollo Club and was a director in that organization for more than fifteen years until his retirement in 1902.

Friction between himself and the officials of the Holy Trinity church of Brooklyn, regarding the church music, led to his resignation from the musical directorship in January, 1902. Although numerous offers were made for his services by other churches he refused.

In composition Mr. Buck was unusually prolific. With apparent ease he composed songs, chorals, overtures, orchestral pieces, voluntaries, cantatas, oratories and operas. One of his songs sung by the Boston Peace Jubilee, his "Golden Legend" received a prize and his "Light of Asia" created enthusiasm both in England and America. His comic opera, called "Deseret," written to a libretto by W. A. Croffut and dealing with misadventures among the Mormons, was very successful.

THE RUSSIAN CAPTAN.

One of the newest and most practical of fashions that are being adopted to the Russian ceftan, is a coatlike garment which is similar to that worn by Tolstoy, the great Russian author, in pictures with which we are familiar. The waist has a round or square neck, a slightly bloused bodice part and a straight bottom edge that ends just above the knees. It is confined at the waist by a satin belt; or, to make it more realistic, a silk cord. The sleeves are round and without fullness, ending above the elbow. The edges of the coat are bound with satin for winter garments bands of fur will be used. The fastening is of ornamental or perfectly plain buttons and satin cord or loops of buttonholes.

This style may be developed to the extreme, but in its simpler form is more dignified. It is best adapted for woolen material, linen and worsteds, although other fabrics will be used for coats made after this model. The style promises to be popular for smart tall and slender costumes.

DANDRUFF CURE.

A woman who has suffered much from dandruff and has tried many cures—so-called—found greatest relief by the use of sulphur ointment.

She applied the ointment every other night and washed the hair at first twice a week, later; when the dandruff had nearly gone, every week, gradually widening the intervals to three weeks.

Immediately after washing the hair and before it was quite dry she applied a little of the sulphur ointment. This was rubbed in carefully so as not to get on the hair. Used in this way it prevented the scalp from drying out to rapidly.

Though the woman found sulphur ointment a good dandruff cure, she disapproved of the use of sulphur as a shampoo, as it deadened the hair, she found after thorough trials.

"What for?" asked the man.

USED HORSEWHIP ON HIM

School Marm Lashed Her Dismissed Suitor on the Street.

"CHARLES SNYDER" VICTIM.

Alleged Plaintfeider Lashed by New Brunswick Woman in Peaceful Quaker City.

Aiza M. Selton, described as a school teacher at New Brunswick, went to Philadelphia Wednesday night in search of Charles Snyder, a salesman alleged to live here, who she alleges "talked shamefully" about her after she refused to marry him, as told exclusively in this paper yesterday.

She met him Thursday afternoon at Fifty-second and Race streets and without any words she grabbed a horsewhip from a buggy standing near by and thrashed him thoroughly with it. Snyder ran and in his flight boarded the street car. Miss Selton followed him and plied the whip through the car and off the front platform. The race continued until the Fifty-second street station of the Market street elevated railroad was reached, when Snyder ran up the stairs and boarded a train. Miss Selton followed him up the stairway but was unable to get her money from her purse to purchase a ticket before the train started and Snyder was safe.

Miss Selton says she was engaged to marry Snyder, but gave him up on account of his drinking habits. A reconciliation was effected, but he did not improve and she threw him over for good. It was succeeding this that she alleges he said nasty things about her.

The name "Charles Snyder" is believed here to be a fictitious one.

SOME SKIN SIGNS.

The skin is a sort of barometer of one's physical condition and the woman who would keep well learns to read it.

A blotchy or muddy skin frequently indicates a run down nervous condition or a bad stomach. It may also mean poor circulation.

A yellow skin is the hallmark of a torpid liver. Get that troublesome organ in good condition and your fair tints will return.

A florid skin usually bespeaks too great fondness for your food or unwise indulgence in heating liquids.

Gray skin may arise from poor circulation, anaemia or bad digestion.

Coarse, porous skin means not nough attention to keeping the pores in good condition. Pure soap and a scrubbing brush are in order.

Puffy skin, especially around the eyes, may be flabbiness from lack of massage or may mean kidney complications.

Unnatural color, flushes of heat and eruption may be caused by internal disorder, poor circulation or over-tight clothing.

THE WATERSHED.

Black mountains bricked with pointed pine
A melancholy sky,
Outdistanced was the German vine:
The sterile fields lay high.
Through swarthy Alps I journey forth
Aloft; it was the North, the North;
Bound for the Noon was I.

I seemed to breast the streams that day;
I met, opposed, withstood
The Northward rivers on their way,
My heart against the flood—
My heart that strove to rise and reach,
And felt that love of altering speech,
Of frontiers, in its blood.

But oh, the unfolding South; the burst
Of summer! Oh to see
Of all the Southward brooks the first!
The traveling heart went free
With endless streams; tthat strif was stopped;
And down a thousand vales I dropped,
I flowed to Italy.

WIDOWS' FUND.

The Widowed Mothers' Fund has been organized in New York to study and develop a new method of dealing with poor women, with families, whose husbands are dead. Careful survey of the field before them shows many complications. The families where illness has seized several members of the household, others where there is a grandmother to support, too, or a sick son in a sanitorium, or even an insane husband who thus is out of the bread-winning class, all offer peculiar problems. The Widowed Mothers' Fund proposes to establish a standard of living in accordance with which perquisits provided will be made until the children are of such ages as to be contributors. At present the fund is attempting to work with the United Hebrew Charities of New York.—Belle L. Israels, in the Survey for September.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST WOMEN ELECT OFFICERS

The Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held its annual meeting and election of officers in the church parlors, yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance and much enthusiasm was displayed in again taking up the work for the year. It was reported that more than $400 was raised during the year and this was divided among the missionary, educational and tract departments, while some of it was given to local charity.

These officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. William C. Hubbard; vice-president, Mrs. S. L. Wardner; recording secretary, Mrs. O. S. Rogers; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Asa F. Randolph; treasurer, Mrs. F. A. Dunham; auditors, Mrs. T. C. Smith and Mrs. W. H. Rogers. The committees will be appointed at a later meeting.

SEBRING GIVES DINNER FOR SOMERSET OFFICIALS

Following an inspection of Greenbrook road, which is about completed by the contractors, Mobus & Burke, the members of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders were guests at 4 o'clock Thursday at a dinner given by Charles P. Sebring at his home in Greenbrook. Among others present were some of the county and municipal officials, including Assemblyman Smalley and former Mayor N. S. Smalley.

The improvement of Greenbrook road has been underway for some time. The thoroughfare has been widened and macadamized from Gavin's corner to the borough line, making it one of the best in Somerset county. A top dressing of oil completed the work and doubtless the road will be used a great deal by autoists and others Mr. Sebring was one of the inspectors put in charge of the work, and the dinner today was a complimentary one to the county officials.

MRS. EMMA D. POOLE, CHRISTIAN WORKER, DEAD

Mrs. Emma D. Poole, widow of the late John H. Poole, died at her home on Church street at 11:30 Wednesday night after an illness of a few hours—an attack of acute indigestion. The funeral was held at the residence of her son John W. Poole, 617 East Seventh street, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The body was taken to Bridgeton for interment in the family plot.

Mrs. Poole was a well known figure in Plainfield, where she has lived in this city, having been connected with the Christian Alliance for a number of years and was also interested in missionary and charitable work. Her life was devoted entirely to the welfare of others and her greatest pleasure was deriving from alleviating distress. She was not a member of any church, preferring to go wherever the spirit led her to worship.

Her husband died about twenty-five years ago and is buried in Bridgeton. Mrs. Poole has been a resident here for the past twenty years, during which time she endeared herself to many who will mourn her as a great personal loss. She leaves besides her son, two brothers, E. P. Wright, of Brooklyn, and Charles F. Wright, of Bridgeton.

BIRTHDAY DINNER FOR MISS CODY THOMPSON

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Knight, of Park avenue, Wednesday gave a dinner at Truell Court in honor of her sister, Miss Cody L. Thompson, whose birthday occurred yesterday. Miss Cody is a guest at the court. Covers were laid for twelve. The dining room was prettily decorated, the color scheme being yellow and white. Assistant District Attorney G. W. Martin, of Brooklyn, acted as toastmaster. The menu was an excellent one.

Following the dinner, the party adjourned to the Knight home where music and dancing continued until midnight, when supper was served. The color scheme at the house was red and white, the rooms being adorned with cut flowers and plants. The guests were G. W. Martin, William Merlin, Robert Thallon, Robert Parry, Harry Hughes and Mrs. M. F. Graham, all of New York; Miss Julia Wade, of Bayonne; Mrs. Julia A. Thornton and Miss Elizabeth O'Keefe, of this city, and Miss Thompson.

STREET LIFE IN PARIS.

Street Fakirs Plentiful and Have Freedom.

Paris, in warm weather, is an out-of-doors city, the Parisians having no greater delight than gayly traversing the many boulevards, passing himself or herself at the tables that dot the pavements (sidewalks in America) in front of the many eating places, there to satisfy hunger and imbibe cool beverages. The street and vender in Paris are given the freedom of the boulevards in a way that would scandalize an American police department, and hold such a place in the hearts of the people that were they not there, the streets would take on a less interesting aspect. A police officer never once dreams of disturbing them in their sales, even though pedestrians are often obliged to step out on the street to pass.—Popular Mechanics.

CONCERT SEASON PLANS

Fifth Annual Series of Mc Intyre Chamber Concerts Begins Oct. 25.

HIS ARTISTS ARE ANNOUNCED.

Signor Campanari Engaged—Hans Letz Violinist, and Vladimir Dubinsky Cellist.

Plainfield's musical season will officially open on Monday night, October 25, when Joseph McIntyre will inaugurate the fifth season of the McIntyre Chamber Concerts at the Plainfield High School auditorium with one of his characteristically delightful entertainments. That the approaching season is to be a brilliant one is attested by the personnel of the patronesses and subscribers to these concerts, a nearly every woman of social prominence in the Plainfield and North Plainfield having sent in her name as a supporter of this series.

Four concerts are to be given this year. The dates include October 25, November 15, December 6 and January 17. It will be seen from the dates (after consulting the calendar) that Mr. McIntyre has selected Monday evening for his concerts, believing that there are fewer social functions set for these evenings and in consequence lessening the chances for conflicting dates for those who wish to enjoy an evening in harmony's realm.

The personnel of this year's trio will be as it was last season. Mr. McIntyre, of course, will preside at the piano, while Hans Letz, the violinist, and Vladimir Dubinsky, cellist, will complete the trio. Last season marked the debut of Mr. Letz in Plainfield, but his work was so highly artistic that scores of congratulations were showered upon Mr. McIntyre for the acquisition of this artist. Mr. Dubinsky, of course, has been heard here for several years, and like a fine old wine, he seems to ripen and improve with age.

In announcing his list of soloists for the approaching season Mr. McIntyre, with pardonable pride, refers to his achievement in procuring for a Plainfield audience the incomparable artist, Guiseppe Campanari, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera House forces. While not as spectacular in his work, or mode of life, as Caruso, yet his voice has won him bravos and laurels from the crowned heads of the Old World as well as from the most critical of the devotees of music in New York.

Mr. McIntyre feels that he has landed a first magnitude star of the operatic firmament, and Signor Campanari will be heard at the November concert.

Miss Christine Miller, contralto; John Young, tenor, and Sidney Biden, baritone, rounds out the quartet of soloists for the season. Miss Miller created quite a furore here last season when she sang at the Lenten song recitals at Mrs. Stephen A. Ginnas. Her clear, pure and exquisitely placed voice quite thrilled her audience and there were many requests from patronesses that she be included in this season's galaxy of stars to be heard here.

Mr. Biden comes from Berlin and very recently he was heard at one of the Sunday Night Concerts at the Hippodrome, where his beautiful voice won for him a high place among the baritones of the new world, which country he will henceforth call home.

Mr. Young has many friends in Plainfield, who will welcome another opportunity of hearing his beautiful voice.

But it is not the soloists upon whom the success of the these concerts depends. After much thought, and study of the work in which the trio has rehearsed long and arduously all summer, Mr. McIntyre has selected these trios to be presented this winter. The most important announcement in this particular is that of Smetana, it will be readily recalled, is the composer of "The Bartered Bride," which opera was brought out at the Metropolitan Opera House two years ago with great eclat. Smetana is the most distinguished and talented of the Bohemian composer and his works will live long.

The beautiful B major trio by Brahms is another selection for Plainfield presentation, and among the most highly cultured musicians and music lovers it ranks as one among the greatest of this great composer's works. This trio will also be heard in Plainfield for the first time.

Tschaikowsky's trio, a "Memoire d' un Grand Artist," will be the third of the instrumental offerings in this series. This composition was played here by the trio two years ago. It is being presented this year upon the request of a number of Mr. McIntyre's most appreciative supporters.

Elected a Life Trustee.

Lenor F. Loree, class of '77 of Rutgers College, who is a cousin of Edmund L. Pack, of Park avenue, has been elected a life trustee of Rutgers. He is president of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad Company, and was mentioned as the possible successor to the late E. H. Harriman. He has always shown a great interest in the college and made an address at the opening of the new engineering building last spring.

SISTERS-IN-LAW WILL AIR TROUBLES IN COURT

Mrs. Abraham Bender and Mrs. Aaron Bender are sisters-in-law. Their husbands have adjoining shops on Somerset street near Duer street. Mrs. Abraham's husband is a shoemaker; Mrs. Aaron's husband runs a grocery store. The two brothers have always been friendly and still remain so—they refuse to be drawn into their wives' quarrel.

The two Mrs. Benders, it is said, have been finding fault with each other quite frequently of late and they have exchanged many dark and meaning looks. But they never broke into hostilities until Monday when, according to Mrs. Abraham Bender, Mrs. Aaron Bender loudly threatened to do her bodily harm.

Mrs. Abraham Bender decided to take no chances. She had her sister-in-law arrested, and Tuesday the latter was arraigned before Justice Snape in the borough court. The Justice ordered the case postponed until Friday, when Mrs. Abraham Bender, it is said, will tell all about the nature of Mrs. Aaron Bender's, threat, and Mrs. Aaron Bender, it is reported, will say that she doesn't care enough about Mrs. Abraham Bender to waste threats on her.

POLICE PENSIONS AGAIN

Possible That an Enabling Bill Will Be Introduced in Legislature.

FOR PLAINFIELD'S BENEFIT.

The Present Statutes Not Considered Desirable—Laws' Committee to Act.

Although it has been decided by the Common Council that it is too late to submit the police pension proposition to a vote of the people at the November election, the matter was discussed Monday night at some length at a meeting of the Council as a committee of the whole. It seemed to be the opinion that the law under which the city fathers were requested to act, was not a desirable one so far as Plainfield is concerned. In view of this fact, it was thought wise to take steps to have a bill introduced in the Legislature this winter which would meet local conditions more satisfactorily. This doubtless will be done.

The present law, while it provides that four per cent. of the police appropriation shall be set aside for a police pension fund, there is nothing to prevent future councils from increasing the percentage, if it so desires. This was one of the undesirable features referred to at the last meeting of the Common Council by Mr. Clay.

The whole matter has now been referred to the committees on police and laws and ordinances and the two committees will probably hold a meeting next week to take steps to have a bill introduced in the Legislature this winter so that advantage may be taken of it next year, if it is thought wise.

During last night's conference mention was made of the catering bill ordered in the name of the city for policement during the Charter Day celebration but no action was taken.

The city officials do not deny but that the caterer should receive his money for the food furnished. While the city fathers are delaying the payment of the bill by debating by whom and how the expense was incurred, the caterer is compelled unjustly, it is considered, to wait for his money.

MISS CHAPLIN TELLS HOW TO STUDY BIBLE

Miss Lucy Chaplin, of Ridgewood, spoke to members of the Young Women's Christian Association Monday night on "The Best Things Our Association Has to Offer." Miss Mary Hubbell rendered two songs just before Miss Chaplin's address. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Charles Tennant, chairman of the Bible Study committee.

Miss Chaplin spoke of the necessity of careful study of the Bible. She said that it should always be read in an intellectual way as well as in a devotional way. She deplored the fact that the Mohammedan knows his Koran better than the average Christian knows his Bible. Miss Chaplin laid much stress on systematic and regular observation of the "books of books."

Mrs. Tennant told of the new Bible classes at the Y. W. C. A., and predicted popularity for the Bible class suppers to be held on Monday evenings. The first of these suppers will be given next Monday evening at 6 o'clock.

SHE FOUND BURGLAR AT WORK IN PANTRY.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smalley, of Prospect avenue, Dunellen, returned from church Monday night just in time to frighten away a sneak thief who had entered her pantry.

Her entrance was so timely that the marader didn't get a chance to take a solitary thing away with him, or do any damage whatever except to knock over a few chairs that stood in the way of a hasty exit. Mrs. Smalley and her neighbors think he was a prowling tramp of whom several have been reported in the vicinity of Dunellen recently. Mrs. Smalley's adventure has put other Dunellen housewives on their guard and all strangers are being carefully watched.

Indiana Pastor Is Called.

The Rev. Clarence H. Wilson, pastor of the Centre Presbyterian church, Crawfordsville, Ind., has accepted the call to the Congregational church of Glen Ridge. The Rev. Mr. Wilson will begin his duties next month. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. Elliott W. Brown, who resigned nearly a year ago on account of ill health. After the resignation of Dr. Brown the Glen Ridge church called the Rev. Dr. W. R. Nottman, of Chicago, to the pastorate, but he died suddenly of heart disease in Berwyn two weeks before he was to have assumed his new charge.

The class of 1912 of the North Plainfield High School, has elected these officers: President, W. P. Taylor; vice-president, Miss Rose Andrews; secretary and treasurer, Lawrence French.

Union County's Share of Railroad Taxes Aggregate $42,793.25.

SOMERSET'S SHARE $2,665.80.

Elizabeth's Portion $34,610, While Fanwood Township's is $1.90 —North Plainfield Gets Nothing.

Union county municipalities will this year receive $42,793.25 from the State for second-class railroad property assessed in the county. According to figures compiled by the State Comptroller the total assessment of second-class railroad property in the State, as made by the State Board of Assessors and subject to the various rates of local taxation, amounts to $1,265,348.13. Of this amount the State has received $854,-982.14, the balance being tied up in litigation over valuations made in Hudson county. A few small railroad companies are also delinquent in payment of taxes, one of them being the Rahway Valley Railroad, which runs from Aldene to Summit. As a result of the latter's delinquency the borough of Kenilworth and Springfield township have not yet been paid the part of the tax apportioned to them, which amounts to $80.58 and $51.05, respectively.

Elizabeth receives the bulk of the Union county assessment, its share being $34,610.43. Plainfield is next with $2,688.97. The tax is apportioned to other Union county towns as follows:

Rahway, $824.62; Summit, $1,-277.37; Westfield, $434.04; Fanwood borough, $141.77; Garwood, $62.07; Linden, $60.33; New Providence, $37.86; Roselle, $256; Roselle Park, $478.58; Clark, $70.32; Cranford, $883.79; Fanwood township, $1.90; New Providence, $27.21; Union, $249.32.

Under the apportionment of the taxes Somerset county will receive $2,665.89, but North Plainfield borough, the largest municipality in the county, does not receive any benefit from the assessment for the reason that there is not any railroad property situated in the borough. North Plainfield township is also minus benefits for the same reason.

ASKS COURT TO REDUCE OCEAN GROVE LOT LEVY.

Application for a writ of mandamus to compel the Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association to reduce an assessment levied upon property within the campmeeting limits of Ocean Grove, owned by James R. Stewart, of Orange, was made to Chief Justice Gummere, Saturday by James R. Stewart, Jr., a son of the applicant. The court did not act on the application, but advised Mr. Stewart to renew his motion next week. In the meantime the chief justice said he would consider the matter.

The property in question is located at 38 Scarlew avenue, and was purchased by the father at the time the association was formed. A lease was given by the association, and it contained a stipulation regarding the assessments to be made. The lot had been subjected to an assessment of $10.56 this year. Mr. Stewart declared that under the lease this was just three times the amount agreed on when the purchase was made, and that the assessment levied was a violation of the lease. Mr. Stewart added that other assessments for which the property was liable aggregated $26.

GOVERNOR'S WINTER HOME.

Although in his last annual message to the Legislature, Governor Fort recommended an appropriation to be used in renting a house in Trenton for the use of the Chief Executive's family, and later induced the Appropriation Committee to put an item of $2,500 in the supplemental appropriation for such a purpose, it is now understood that the Govenor will not avail himself of the money in the hands of the State Treasurer for establishing an executive mansion.

At present Governor Fort and his family are living at their summer cottage at Spring Lake, and they will remain there until November, when they will go to East Orange for a few weeks. They will probably spend the holiday season and the early part of January with the Governor's son, Leslie E. Fort, at Lakewood. When the legislative season begins the Governor plans to locate in Trenton. It is not unlikely that he will locate at Princeton for the winter.

TO PLEAD FOR PUBLIC BATHS.

Plans are being made for a body of three thousand boys and young men of the "Hill" district of Newark to march to the City Hall tomorrow afternoon, while the weekly meeting of the Board of Works is in progress and make a plea for the erection of a public bath house in that section of the city. The parade will be headed by a platoon of mounted police, and there will be a band. At the head of the marchers will be William J. McKiernan, Supervisor of Playgrounds, and Philip Apter.

As the bridal party entered the church, he played the Loehengrin Wedding March and as it retired the Wedding March from Mendelssohn was rendered.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's mother on West Sixth street, which lasted until 6 o'clock. The bride and groom left during the afternoon for an extended wedding trip and upon their return will reside in New York city.

The bride was a teacher in the Irving Public School for several years, and among the guests at the wedding and reception were her former associate teachers from that school, as well as members of the faculty of the Plainfield High School.

MISS MABEL JENKINS NOW MRS. A. O. KNIGHT

Fined $5 for Unlicensed Dog.

Michael Dellego, an Italian, living and owning property at 1214 North avenue, was arraigned before City Judge William Runyon this morning for having an unlicensed dog on his premises. When asked to explain why he had not taken out a license for the animal he said that he thought that the $1 bill in which he had purchased the dog, Judge Runyon did not believe the man and said that he had wilfully violated the dog ordinance and fined Dellego five dollars which the latter paid with bad grace. In addition he will be compelled to take out a license for the canine which has been complained against times innumerable.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Township Committee has granted a permit to the Telephone Company to erect poles and string wires on North avenue, Graceland. The work will be started at once as several of the residents in that section have been anxious to have telephone communication with the outside world for some time past.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church will hold a social in the church Friday night. The entertainment committe has arranged an interesting program and everyone is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

MEN ARE AUTOMATONS

They Are Run by Push Buttons, Says Dean George E. Vincent.

EXPOUNDS NOVEL THEORIES.

All Their Actions Are Controlled by Pressure, Exclaims Former Plainfielder.

"The man who tips his hat to a woman is not actuated by sentiments of chivalry," said Dean George E. Vincent of the University of Chicago in an address to the Cook County Teachers Association in Chicago.

Dean Vincent spent his boyhood days in this city and was graduated from the local High School. His father, the late Bishop Vincent, was at that time pastor of the First M. E. church here.

"The woman's smile merely touches a button over his heart and off comes his hat. An imaginary button communicates with the machinery of his chivalric make-up and causes him to raise his hat with all the gracefulness of intended and hearty deference.

"Men are made up of a series of buttons, and all their actions are controlled by the pressure brought to bear on them. To a large extent our lives are the lives of automatons. All we have to do is to push the right button at the right time and the right thing is done.

"The well bred person never gives any apparent attention to his grammar or his English, or his etiquette. How delightful it is to meet such a person.

"But there are limits to automatons. I used to go to see a steel image of a man. It wore a hat and had a cigar in its mouth, and there was a door in its back where the coal was shoveled in. There was a place where you started the machinery and off the man would walk until the machinery was stopped.

"But one day there was a hitch in the stopping of the machinery, and it walked straight to the end of the room and stuck its cigar and hat brim into the wall, and its legs moved up and down in automatic attempts to proceed.

"There are lots of people in this world who can get along very well automatically so long as there is nothing to hinder the working of the machinery, and nothing to impede their progress.

"But when they get to a stone wall of difficulties that they are not able to surmount they stick their hat brims and their cigars into the obstruction and their legs go up and down in their mechanical attempts to move ahead."

EVILS OF THE TARIFF

cause they do not stop to think what they are doing. A simpler matter may become complicated through a misunderstanding, but whether you are entitled to your living at a reasonable cost ought to make you stop and think why it costs so much to live. There is too much talk about superficial things and too little about the very fundamentals while the Republicans win because of their cohesion.

"On tradition the protective tariff is a good thing for the country and has been for thirty years, and without this principle of protection there would be no excuse for the existence of the party. The Republican believes in a strong government. His philosophy leads him to a limitation of liberty, while the Democrat stands for the maximum of liberty. The Republican thinks the government is above him while the Democrat should and does think that he is a part of the government.

"When the Democratic party has departed from this principle it has lost in national elections. Since the Civil War the country has been under the control of the Republicans and only by a return to the original principles of Democracy can the Democrats hope to regain their hold. The average American does not think in millions, but in dollars. If he had no protective tariff we would not have any trusts and wages would compare more favorably with the actual cost of living. Each of these difficulties are explainable in the statement of the cost of living and all is due to the protective tariff, and you can't have a protective tariff and not have corruption."

Next Tuesday evening Edward L. Kenney, assemblyman from Jersey City, will address the members of the club. At the business meeting preceding the address by Mr. Moody a platform was adopted by the members in which local extravagances are scored.

Mrs. Arthur Fritts, of Trenton, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. W. S. Decker, of this city. The latter expects soon to make her home in Trenton with her daughter.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Applegate have removed from 507 to 520 East Seventh street.

William Staats, of New York, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

ABANDON JOINT SEWER

City Fathers, 'Tis Reported, Decide Against Proposed Joint System.

THE EXPENSE IS TOO GREAT.

Final Report, It Is Said, Will Be Made at the Regular November Meeting.

At a meeting of the Common Council as a committee of the whole held at the Council chamber, Monday night, there was a thorough discussion of the sanitary sewage proposition, whereby it was planned to adopt a system that would include Plainfield, North Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Fanwood and Dunellen. It was finally agreed that the public affairs committee, in whose hands the matter has been placed, should make a report at the regular November meeting.

It is understood, semi-officially, that the report will recommend that North Plainfield, as well as the other surburban places mentioned in this connection, be allowed to take care of its own sewage and Plainfield will continue to do the same, thereby declining to enter into any agreement to provide a joint sewage system.

It seems to be the sentiment of a majority of the members of the Common Council that Plainfield has about all it wants to do to handle its own sewage through the present system and that the making of an agreement with other municipalities would mean endless conferences and letters and result in an added expense which is undesirable at this time. The report of the public affairs committee in November will contain the findings of the committee and will present a detailed statement of facts as found by the councilmen.

When it is known that Plainfield recommends the above action, there will no doubt be regrets expressed especially on the part of North Plainfield, as they had hoped that they could see a solution to an otherwise difficult proposition.

There were two or three propositions submitted to take care of the sewage of the several municipalities, one being to go to tidewater and also include Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan and New Brunswick. Another plan was to locate new and enlarged sewage beds in the extreme western end of North Plainfield where they could be handled the same as the sewage from Plainfield, North Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Fanwood and Dunellen. By this plan, the city's present bed would be abolished, which was favorably received by the people of Dunellen, who ever since the establishment have complained about the beds as being a nuisance.

Options on farm land in North Plainfield township were secured, but the announcement of these plans caused a great furore from residents in the township. However, it was thought that the objections could be overcome in some way. The representatives of the various municipalities have spent considerable time investigating the proposition, but now, it is understood, that the Plainfield Common Council has reached the conclusion that it would be unwise to enter into any agreement with other municipalities. All of the members of the Council were present except Mr. W. Clay Hall and George S. Clay. Mayor C. J. Fisk also took part in the discussion.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Among Dunellenites employed and doing business in Dunellen yesterday's holiday was but feebly observed. A great many of those working in New York, refrained from labor for the day.

Mrs. William Tinsman, of Port Murray, is visiting her sons William, John and Louis, of this place, and Harry, of Plainfield.

Henry Shugars has returned from Asheville, N. C., where he has been enjoying a southern autumn with friends.

Irving Fenner is no longer connected with his brother, John P. Fenner, in the hardware business here.

Mrs. Hamley, of Glen Gardner, is visiting her son Arthur, cashier of the First National Bank, here.

Miss Grace Burdick, who fell and sprained her ankle recently, is doing nicely.

Miss Fannie Jenner has been stopping with Plainfield friends.

RING REVEALS HER SECRET.

The fact that Miss Emma Teitgens, of 21 West Twenty-ninth street, and John Smith, of 21 Andrew street, both of Bayonne, were married on October 9 last by the Rev. Peter F. Reilly, of St. Henry's church, Bayonne, was learned yesterday, when the bride's mother discovered her daughter's wedding ring tied in the corner of a handkerchief she had left on the piano. At first the girl said the ring belonged to one of her friends, but finally admitted the marriage.

She said she and her husband had intended to keep their wedding secret. The couple have received parental blessings.

PUBLIC SERVICE MENACE

Assemblyman E. L. Kenny Denounces the New Jersey Corporations.

BLAMES REPUBLICAN MACHINE.

Interesting Tale of Bad Legislation Due to Machine Politics—Assemblymen's Records Attacked.

Probing deep under the foundations of the Republican structure as represented by the present Legislature and swayed with the emotion of violent protest against the Public Service Corporation of Harrison, Assemblyman Edward E. Kenny presented to the members of the Democratic club of this city last night a vision of the "throttle hold," which these corporations have on the law makers of the State and revealed what he thinks is the only remedy for the conditions.

In his preamble Mr. Kenny congratulated the club on its growing numerical strength and exhorted them to work hard in the coming election for the success of the ticket. "Every man ought to use his utmost endeavor to place the control of the State in the hands of honest statesmen," he said, "and wrest the control of the State's legislation from the unscrupulous hands of the Public Service octopus." He repeated Bryan's slogan, "the people ought to rule and the people shall rule," and jumped into a scathing arraignment of the so-called State trust known as the railroad interests.

Governor Fort was quoted as being in favor of the rule of the people and his famous speech at Elizabeth, in which the machine politicians were denounced was referred to as a purely Democratic speech, and one that had lifted a veil from the faces of the politicians. Mr. Kenny said that in order to make this speech Governor Fort had hired and paid for the hall in which he delivered it all-the purpose of telling the gathering that they did not have any say in the management of the State, but that they were under the thumb of the P. S. C. And all this was with the connivance of the Republican bosses.

"In the Republican platform of 1907," he said, "it was promised that a Public Utilities Commission would be appointed with ample power to control the machinations of the Public Service companies, but this pledge has been carried out. Attempts were made five distinct times to put through a bill drawn by Assemblyman Martin which would have accomplished the desired object, but four times in succession the bill has been killed in the Senate. Where it is now is a mystery."

Boulton and Brooks were termed mindless men, and were charged with being under the complete mastery of the Public Service corporations. The Trolley Freight bill came next. Mr. Kenny said he wanted to have that bill amended so that municipalities could have something to say in the regulation of the traffic at night, but a trio of "farmers" called upon the Governor and through these farmers the bill was allowed to pass. These were the farmers: Senator Gunn, Frank Bergen, counsel for the P. S. C., and Thomas McCarter, president of the P. S. C. That is the class of farmers who plead for the bill, he said.

"Why was Whitney turned down when he was trying for a renomination?" asked Mr. Kenny. "Because he knew things and was working in the interests of the people and against the railroads, that's why. What happened to the bill introduced to tax the rolling stock of the railroads? It was killed in the Senate like the other measures. And why should not this bill become a law? If a man opens a store in any city or town and if he only remains there a week he will be taxed for a whole year because he is protected by the police, fire department and city government. Yet here these railroads run their cars, lay their tracks and use our streets without paying a single dollar of taxes for the privilege.

"Again, the water you drink is under the control of individuals whom you must pay. Water should be a free commodity. We once managed to get a contract for water for the trifling sum of $57 per million gallons and we tried to get a bill through so as to take advantage of this contract, but Senator Kean blocked the move in his blandest and most polite way, aided by all those who are in cahoots for the despoliation of the people. I tell you you must return Democrats to the Legislature and elect Democrats to the Senate, there will then be some hope for the people to get what they want in the way of government."

Referring to the attempted lowering of appropriations so as to show something of economy, Mr. Kenny

FORTY WILL PRESENT "THE JAPANESE GIRL"

An operetta entitled "The Japanese Girl," by Charles Vincent, is to be produced by the Cup Bearers Circle of King's Daughters under the direction of S. Frederick Smith, organist of Grace P. E. church on December 9 and 10. The soloists for the different parts have not yet been selected, but the chorus of forty voices is now preparing for the presentation of the work and it will be given with a scrupulous regard for the best musical artistry.

The work of the King's Daughters is to be helped by the proceeds of these entertainments, especially that of supporting a trained nurse among the poor of this city. It is needless to say that under Mr. Smith's direction this musical treat will receive the most careful preparation. It is to be sung entirely by women

YOUNG HEBREWS FORM A STATE ORGANIZATION

At a housewarming at the new home of the Y. M. H. A. on Grove street last night, A. Sigmund Kanengeiser, secretary of the Newark Y. M. H. A., made the first public announcement of the incorporation of an organization to be known as the Young Men's Hebrew Associations of New Jersey, with headquarters at 156 Market street, Newark, which will place the Y. M. H. A. branches of the State on the basis of lodges. The idea is to make the branches subordinate lodges, with the supreme lodge at the headquarters in Newark, said Mr. Kanengeiser, to be called "The High School and the National Life." This will be followed by reports from the associations of the State, red by members of the State council. Rev. C. O. Wright, of Ridgewood, will lead the opening evening session and Samuel Brewster, of Montclair; "The Association and the High School," led by G. H. Roehrig, of Trenton, and "The Association and the High School" under the leadership of Mr. Porter. The county and small town associations will meet at the same hour and discuss "The Boy's Strength and Power in the Physical Work," under C. A. Gammons, of Orange County, New York, and "The Boy's Strength and Power in Religious Work," by Rabbi Krauskopf, of Philadelphia. At the Saturday evening session "The Boys' Strength and Power in This and Other Lands," will be the theme and L. E. Hawkins, the State secretary, will be the speaker.

The cup for the association having the greest efficiency in boys work during the year will be presented by John T. Sproull at this session.

On Sunday afternoon in the high school auditorium, Charles A. Green, who has spent several years in the merchant marine service in fast sailing clippers, will speak on "Direlists." The State Boys' orchestra, under the direction of Joseph N. Brown, of Haddonfield, will lead the singing at all of the sessions.

COURT ORDERS RELEASE OF THEODORE D. WILSON

Justice Voorhees, at Trenton, yesterday, filed an opinion in the Supreme Court ordering the release of Theodore D. Wilson, formerly of this city, and later of Asbury Park, and dismissed the order placing him under $10,000 bail to answer a civil suit instituted by Malcolm Hufty, formerly of Washington. Mr. Hufty charged Wilson with alienating his wife's affections and had him placed under bail to answer a declaration in a suit for $50,000 damages in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Wilson, who served one term as a member of the Common Council, was arrested more than a week ago while on a train en route to Philadelphia, on the complaint of Mr. Hufty, who alleged that he had been guilty of alienating the affections of the latter's wife. In default of bail Mr. Wilson was placed in the jail at Freehold. Bail was fixed at $10,000. Justice Voorhees yesterday signed the order placing him under bail and set aside the arrest. Mr. Wilson has been living in New York, where he is engaged in business as a broker.

FOR LAWS' ENFORCEMENT

Demand That Liquor and Amusement Laws Be Obeyed.

TO PROTECT PUBLIC MORALS.

Rt. Rev. Dr. John Scarborough Dedicates Roselle Altar at Convocation's Meeting.

Episcopal clergymen and laymen of prominence from this section of the State attended the convocation of New Brunswick, held in St. Luke's church, Roselle, yesterday, and unanimously adopted a resolution pledging the support of the convocation to ministers of all denominations in an effort to secure a strict enforcement of the laws as to amusements and the sale of liquor.

This action followed an address by Rev. John C. Lord on the topic, "Some Present Dangers to the Morals of the Young." The paper was considered one of the best yet offered. It treated the question of saloons, especially the back rooms, all kinds of theatrical amusements, particularly those of the cheap variety, which appeal to the baser nature of the young, as well as older persons.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson and Rev. Dr. Gifford, of Elizabeth, told of the great amount of work accomplished by them in Elizabeth in this direction and their words of encouragement enthused the convocation. The resolution carried with it provisions that the clergy be permitted to go into theatres and saloons with a view to learning actual conditions, and that the convocation give its united support to all clergy in an united effort to suppress illegal acts.

The convocation met at 10:30 o'clock in the morning with the celebration of Holy Communion, and then followed reports of the secretary and treasurer of the convocation, the mission work of the diocese, the work at the Associate Mission at Trenton. Luncheon was served at noon in the Roselle Casino, about sixty clergymen and lay delegates being present. Rev. George A. Warner, of the Church of the Holy Cross, was the only representative from Plainfield.

In the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. John C. Lord presented his paper which was followed by an interesting informal discussion. Among other things considered as dangers to the morals of the young, were postcards and various kinds of literature.

At the opening of the evening session, Rt. Rev. Dr. John Scarborough, Bishop of the Diocese of New Jersey, dedicated the new altar at St. Luke's church, which was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Macquoid, of Roselle.

Afterward there were two addresses, one by Rev. Mr. Sadtler, of the Associate Mission at Trenton, and the other by Rev. Dr. Gilman, a missionary in China, who is now on a leave of absence. Both addresses were of unusual interest. The meeting adjourned about 9 o'clock last night. The next convocation will be held at Metuchen in January.

LUTHER SHEPPARD WEDS MISS MARJORIE COLLINS

Beneath a bower of chrysanthemums and smilax, Miss Marjorie Morse Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Collins, and Luther L. Sheppard, of this city, were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents, 520 Pacific street, Brooklyn, N. Y. The ceremony was attended by a number of relatives and friends from Ridgewood, Brooklyn, New York and this city. Rev. John Y. Brock, pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, this city, officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was that worn by her mother on her wedding, and was of white satin and moire en train, trimmed with handmade lace, and her veil was of tulle caught up with lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The maid of honor was Miss Maud E. Collins, of Westfield, cousin of the bride, who wore a gown of yellow satin messaline and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were the Misses Edna and Florence Aubrey, who wore yellow silk muslin. They also carried large bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. Miss Helen E. Garretson, niece of the groom, was flower girl. She carried a basket of yellow chrysanthemums.

The groom was attended by Rowland Rockfellow, of this city, as best man. The ushers were William L. Beckert, of New York, Lester R. Radford, of this city, and Elmer V. Young, of Brooklyn. The page, Malcolm Dunn Sheppard, nephew of the groom, carried the ring on a silver salver. Music was furnished by Austin's orchestra.

The usual gifts were exchanged among the wedding party, and after the ceremony a reception was held during which congratulations and best wishes were showered upon the happy couple, and a collation served. The house was tastefully decorated with schrysanthemums, palms and smilax, yellow being the predominating color. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and costly gifts, useful as well as ornamental.

Upon their return from a southern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard will take up their residence at 281 Clermont avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., where they will be "at home" after November 1.

The groom is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, class of 1903, and is well known. He holds a responsible position in the executive offices of the Remington Typewriter Company in New York. The bride is a former resident of Fanwood and will be remembered by her large circle of friends there.

Five Events in All Announced, Including Two Steeplechase and Three Flat Races.

The entries for the fall race meet of the Watchung Hunt Club, to be held Saturday afternoon at the club's grounds on Plainfield avenue, indicate that it will be most successful. In the third race, an open event, eleven entries have been received and it will be necessary to make a division of the horses. There will be five events in all, two steeplechase and three flat, and judging by the entries everyone will be closely contested. It is expected that this meet will equal in interest and sport the annual event in the spring.

Page and William C. Cammann. Frederick W. Jones, Jr., will be the paddock judge and James McAvoy the starter.

In addition to the interest in the meet there will be the usual luncheons, dinners and other social features at the clubhouse. The entries are as follows:

According to the usual custom, the farmers, over whose lands the members hunt during the season, will be extended the courtesies of the club and be admitted free to the races.

The race committee comprises C. E. S. Bellows, chairman; Charles J. Wildey, Jr., Charles W. Fisk, Lewis E. Waring and Rufus C. Finch.

RAHWAY HAS FOUR TYPHOID FEVER VICTIMS.

With four cases of typhoid and four cows put to death for being tubercular victims at the Rahway Reformatory, the State Board of Health has been called to take the matter up with an idea of preventing an epidemic at the institution.

The typhoid matter was reported to the board some time ago, and an investigation made. After the investigation of the institution the cattle were inspected, and the discovery made of the tubercular cows in the stables. The cows were killed and their bodies buried in an isolated spot.

About a year ago there was an epidemic of diphtheria at the institution and the place was quarantined for a time. This is the first since then that any illness of a serious character has occurred at the institution.

Plans were approved for the new sewage disposal plant at Chelsea, a part of Atlantic City.

PRINCETON UNIV. MEN TAKE THE RHODES TEST.

Qualifying examinations for scholarships in New Jersey under the Rhodes bequest were commenced at the Free Public library at Trenton yesterday and were continued today. Nine men, all from Princeton, are taking the examinations, the results of which will not be known until the papers are examined in England. Formerly Rutgers' men competed, but this year the men are all from Princeton. The examinations are being conducted by Professor William Gillespie, of Princeton, and Professor Mulford, of Rutgers College.

The selection of scholars will be completed before the end of January, 1910, and the elected scholars will begin their residence at Oxford in October of the same year.

The scholarships are of the value of 300 pounds a year, this to be paid quarterly. The first payment will be made at the beginning of the Michaelmas term.

WHITE PLAGUE CRUSADE

Big Mass Meeting in the Tuberculosis Campaign on October 21.

THIS CITY TO BE REPRESENTED.

Senator Ackerman Writes Praising the Movement — Great Speakers to Be Heard.

"The situation is serious and demands a remedy," writes State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, concerning the tuberculosis problem in New Jersey. His letter, in which he expresses himself in this manner, is in acceptance of the invitation of the New Jersey Tuberculosis Commission to the State mass-meeting to be held in Taylor Opera House, Trenton, Thursday night, October 21.

"I expect to be present," continues Senator Ackerman, "to listen to and gain information and instruction from those who are giving so much time and attention to the work of preventing the spread of tuberculosis.

"I am sure good results are following the educational efforts of the eminent men of our country and State—the knowledge of how to prevent disease will save many a life.

"All those things tending to more healthful surroundings, both in public and private places, will certainly benefit the people, and too much labor and instruction cannot be given along those lines. The situation is serious and demands a remedy."

Among the list of patronesses will be Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. Albert A. Attenbury, Mrs. Francis De Lacy Hyde, Mrs. Charles L. Hyde.

Among the other Plainfielders interested and identified with the movement are State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, Dr. William H. Murray and Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, all of whom are connected with the Plainfield Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis.

The mass-meeting at Trenton will be primarily educational, and to make this phase of the conference a strong one, two of the greatest tuberculosis specialists of the day will be among the speakers—Dr. William H. Welch, of Baltimore, and Dr. Henry Baird Gavill, of Chicago. The addresses of these men and of the rest of the speakers will be published later by the commission, in pamphlet form, for widespread circulation in New Jersey.

Dr. Welch is of the faculty of Johns Hopkins University and President of the Board of Trustees of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Science. He is a man who has made extensive and highly valuable research in all of the medical ramifications concerning tuberculosis. He is unquestionably the greatest tuberculosis expert of his time.

Dr. Favill is professor of therapeutics at Rush Medical College, professor of medicine at the Chicago Polyclinic, and physician to St. Luke's Passavant and Augustina Hospitals. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and Rush Medical College, Chicago. His specialty is internal medicine. He is a member of the American Academy of Medicine, American Medical Association, Illinois State Medical Association, Chicago Medical Society and Chicago Pathological Society. He is a director of the United Charities of Chicago, and president of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute.

Another of the great speakers will be Dr. Richard C. Cabot, of Boston. He is assistant professor of clinical medicine at Harvard Medical School, and assistant physician at the Massachusetts General Hospital. He has written a great deal along technical lines. His greatest service to medicine has been in research on the blood. His best known social work has been with the out patients at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The great meeting in the interest of the tuberculosis crusade in New York, held last year in Albany, was to New York as this New Jersey meeting will be to this State. As a result of the Albany meeting the tuberculosis fight in that State gained a firm and dignified foundation, and interested influential men and women in the war. The influence of the Albany meeting is already powerfully reflected in the New York Legislature as it is generally known this end that the New Jersey Commission, an official body of the State government, is aiming.

Dr. Benjamin, the celebrated pathologist and meteorologist, Camden, on a recent visit to Wildwood, now the centre of the most thriving part of Cape May County, gave an interesting discourse on "Sea-breezes," a phenomenon more pronounced at Cape May than anywhere along the coast and the chief cause of its superb climate. Under an unclouded sun the surface of the land is quickly heated, and as the hot air rises a vacuum is created, into which the cooler air from the ocean, with the result that the hotter the day the more pronounced the phenomenon. Generally about noon the sun causes the hot air to ascend, forming a vacuum into which rushes a strong stead breeze from the sea, and as night comes on and the land becomes cool, the sea breeze dies down again.

FAKE EYE SPECIALISTS INVADE NEW JERSEY

Eyeglass fakers and peddlers, "eyesight specialists" of a nomadic temperament, who have been driven out of New York State by a new law, are migrating to New Jersey in such numbers as to alarm the optometrists of Newark and other cities. Wholesale swindling in the rural districts by triflers with the eyesight is reported.

Within a few days, however, there will be a meeting of the executive committee of the State Society of Optometrists, and steps will immediately be taken to open a campaign for the enactment of the stringent law which they failed to pass at the last session of the Legislature.

One of the leading opticians of Newark speaking of the abuses which the Legislature will be asked to abolish, said last night:

"The reputable qualified optician and optometrists of New Jersey are determined that a law shall be enacted that will put a stop to the vending of eyeglasses by irresponsible peddlers and so-called specialists. Almost every State in the Union has a rigid law on the subject, prohibiting the practise of optometry by any except regularly qualified and registered practitioners who have taken a course in optics at some recognized college and have mastered the science in all its departments.

"Years of study and practise are required to qualify one for the skilful adjustment of eyeglasses and the correction of eye defects. A thorough knowledge of the anatomy and physiology of the eye is the first requisite. This in itself calls for serious application under competent instructors. Light, and the laws of refraction and refracting constitute a distinct course of study. The cause and correction of the errors of refraction are an important branch of study, without the mastery of which no optometrist can be successful.

Breakfast dishes ought to be easy of digestion and at the same time as nourishing as possible. The principal work of the day is as a rule performed in the morning, and whether it takes a mental or a manual form a supply of blood is needed to give energy.

If a meal is partaken of which is difficult to digest before work is begun, then either the work suffers or the food remains undigested. The stomach does not do its best work while we are performing the hardest of our daily tasks.

Here are some dishes that are excellent:

American Omelet—Beat up five eggs, add a tablespoonful of cream, four tablespoonfuls of fine bread crumbs, half a teaspoonful of onion juice, a teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley, and seasoning of salt, pepper and red pepper.

Melt a heaping tablespoonful of butter in an omelet pan, pour in the mixture and stir over the fire.

When sufficiently cooked shape it, allow it to set, and color, then turn out on a hot dish and serve at once.

Egg and Tomato Custard—Break five eggs into a basin, beat up well and add four tablespoonfuls of tomato pulp (that is, fresh ripe tomatoes rubbed through a fine sieve), one tablespoonful of milk or cream, one tablespoonful grated Parmesan cheese, season with salt, pepper and grated nutmeg.

Butter eight paper cases, fill them with the prepared custard, and bake them slowly in a fairly hot oven for nearly twenty minutes. Dish up and serve hot.

Bacon with Brussels Sprouts—Fry a dozen slices of bacon in a frying pan; when done take up and keep hot. Put into the same frying pan about a pound of cold, cooked, well-drained brussels sprouts, and fry them in the bacon fat.

Season with salt and pepper and toss them a little.

Put the sprouts into a hot butter dish and serve with the fried bacon.

SOFT SURFACES.

It is predicted by those who are wise concerning materials that crepe weaves will have a great vogue, and this prophecy seems to be borne out by the more beautiful gowns of the year.

It is certain that satin in any case will not be nearly so popular as last year. Satin crepe silks have been so much worn that women seem to have tired of them and, for a change, turned to the duller though still supple materials.

Crepe de chine will probably prove the most satisfactory of the handsomer materials, for it is so pliable that it may be used for the many draped cects in vogue, and at the same time it is heavy enough to fall prettily and fraefully around the figure. It is also a material that lends itself well to hand embroideries, and it combines well with all kinds of lace. A new material also promises to make its appearance during the season to come. This is satin, but without the sheen that this material has heretofore possessed. It is called peachblow satin, for the surface is not perfectly smooth, but is slightly downy, like the skin of a peach.

Mr. Frelinghuysen's Ideas.

What should be a profitable rebuke of the too common "point with pride and view with alarm" style of political platform was made the other evening by Mr. Frelinghuysen, the president of the New Jersey State Senate, in discussing the question of the keeping or breaking of platform pledges. Giving such documents the credit—which we are not sure is always due them—of being thoughtfully framed in good faith by the ablest advisers of the party conventions which adopt them, he remarked upon the circumstance that some of those very advisers subsequently urge legislatures to repudiate, or at least to postpone fulfilling, the very pledges which they themselves drafted for the party to make.

Sometimes, no doubt, unexpected changes in conditions, such as lack of funds, make such postponement expedient, if not necessary, though in a majority of cases the changed conditions might be anticipated if proper discretion were exercised. In other cases the reason given is that the pledges were made too soon and in advance of popular demand or readiness for the reforms involved. But that pretext for postponement must be regarded as specious when the people by a decisive majority support the party which made the pledges and do so because of their expectation that it will proceed to carry them out. Nothing could be more illogical than to make promises in order to secure votes and then to say that the voters do not want the promises fulfilled. People do not, as a rule, vote for things which they do not want.

Mr. Frelinghuysen was right, therefore, in urging either that platform makers should be more careful about the pledges which they put into documents or that if laid they find it really undesirable to fulfil the pledges, they should have the manly courage and frankness to confess that they were in error in making them. The radical trouble doubtless lies in the attitude of mind and the purpose of the platform makers. Their chief aim is apparently to frame something which will attract support and win votes, when it should be to outline the policies which the party is prepared to pursue and which it honestly intends to pursue. If platforms were contracted with a view to their use after election as well as before it, there would be fewer complaints of broken faith and more confidence in the integrity of party leaders.—New York Tribune.

That Jersey Central Deal.

There is something peculiar about the fact that the daily papers, through the press news bureaus or otherwise, did not report the most interesting portion of George F. Baker's testimony in the government hearing at Philadelphia against the anthracite railroads a fortnight ago. Mr. Baer's story of the acquisition by the Reading Railroad of the Jersey Central, as told to the Interstate Commerce Commission and now reproduced for the benefit of whom it may concern, constitutes a fairy tale of high finance. It explains how deals involving many millions and vast interests are sometimes put through in a five-minute chat by two or three men.

Providing, of course, there is no distinctly illegal performance in the operation, it may not come in for criticism, but that, as has often been shown, frequently depends upon the publicity or those who undertake the huge transactions, occurrences which sometimes involve public interests in a way which do not always affect the latter favorably. One might instance the notorious Alton railway deal which the late Mr. Harriman put through, if a full list of particulars is called for. As for the case in hand, it had dawned upon Mr. Baer, back in 1900, that if another railroad should get hold of the Jersey Central and opposition to the Reading coal trade develop, the latter might be cut off from its New York harbor connection.

The thought of the possibility of the Reading being bottled up in the Pennsylvania coal regions was intolerable, of course, and the result, as now set forth by Mr. Baer himself, was a hurried trip to New York and an interview with Mr. Morgan. Mr. Baer's proposition was for Reading to buy a controlling interest in Jersey Central. Mr. Morgan told the good deacon to go back, think it over, write down the facts bearing in the case and send them to him. Mr. Baer did so and after waiting vainly a few days he jogged the New York banker's memory and was called up on the telephone and told to come over at once. This the Reading man did and saw Mr. Morgan in the latter's office. George F. Baer, of Jersey Central, was called in and asked what he would take for a control of the latter company and if he could deliver the same. He replied that he would undertake to turn over figure with which Mr. Baer was satisfied. Two of Mr. Baer's associates at Philadelphia were called up on the telephone, said go ahead, and, Mr. Likewise. No Baltimore and Ohio or other opposition could thereafter get control of the Jersey line and check the free entry of Reading coal into New York harbor. Mr. Baer added that the Jersey Central's facilities for terminals in New York harbor are the there; it owns "large areas of land there capable of development to meet the wants of the company for a hundred years to come." The deal thus put through by four men shows a profit today indicated by the price of Jersey Central stock being about double what it was in 1900. It furthermore suggests long-headedness in appreciating what the road's acquisition of valuable New Jersey water fronts mean, and will continue to mean, as Mr. Baer has said, "for one hundred years to come."—Newark News.

MANY ENTRIES FOR NATIONAL HORSE SHOW

There is considerable local interest in the forthcoming twenty-fifth annual National Horse Show to be held at Madison Square Garden, this winter, for among the entries will be those by Charles W. McCutchen, William J. Buttfield, Miss Mabel E. Pooley, Miss Marguerite McCutchen and other Plainfielders.

To make the horse as good as cash in the bank and a dividend earner, as reliable as any gilt edge bond is the object of the men who are now directing the National Horse Show. What passed last year will be especially varied and the cash prizes will be large and attractive.

The officers of the National Horse Show Association include the most prominent men in the country. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, of New York, is the president. Reginald C. Vanderbilt and Robert A. Fairbairn, the latter of Westfield, are among the directors. Lewis E. Waring, of this city, will be one of the judges at the big sow.

FORMER MAYOR OFF ON A WORLD VOYAGE

The Hamburg-American liner Cleveland, chartered by Frank C. Clark, sailed on Saturday from New York for a double cruise around the world. She will be the first liner that ever has undertaken so great a voyage. More than 600 excursionists will sail in her, including Mr. and Mrs. Buckle, Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Pierre Mali and Miss Addie Dietrich, of this city.

All day Friday and last night, Mr. and Mrs. Buckle were kept busy receiving their many friends, and Friday a big delegation from the Plainfield Lodge of Elks, called and wished the travelers bon voyage. During the day a handsome chest, containing cigars and other things to make a man's heart glad, was received it being the gift of the Get-together Club. Mr. and Mrs. Buckle were also the recipients of bunches of cut flowers and baskets of fruit from their many friends. They also go away with a fine pair of field glasses, the gift of the Get-Togethers and the Elks.

All the Cleveland's steerage compartments have been converted into cargo space to carry the enormous supplies necessary for the trip to San Francisco by way of the Atlantic, the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal. Among the good things below ship are hundreds of barrels of German beer, which the Cleveland brought here on her last trip from Hamburg.

The passengers will spend some time in the Philippines, a fortnight in Japan, a fortnight in India and will touch at Java and Borneo. There are large swimming tanks on the promenade deck of the ship and as the weather will be mild most of the trip the passengers may take a sea bath practically every day. Many of the excursionists will leave the ship at San Francisco, the cruise homeward will start from that city on February 5, 1910. Every berth on the ship has been engaged for the journey this way.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 24, 1909.

Topic.—Why some men and women do not succeed in life.—Josh. i, 1-8.

The story of Joshua's life is a story of continued success. In his first appearance as the leader of Israel's army at the battle of Rephidim against the Amalekites he won a signal victory. As one of the twelve spies sent into Canaan, when Israel first reached Canaan, he, with Caleb, brought back an honest report. The majority were against him, and his counsel was disregarded. But his seeming failure was finally a success, for he and Caleb were on the Lord's side, and they of all the original hosts of Israel who came out of Egypt entered the promised land. The mantle of Moses fell upon him when that great leader and lawgiver died, and he was a most worthy successor of his distinguished predecessor. Canaan was conquered. The land was peaceably divided. In good old age Joshua died after delivering to his fellow countrymen a most inspiring address, which has had an influence upon the succeeding generations of his own people as well as upon Christianity, the flower and fruit of Judaism.

Such success in high places is not possible to all. But he who in any sphere of life duly meets the duties and responsibilities that fall to his lot attains as great success in life in degree if not in kind as Joshua did. Success*ful lives* explain the cause of life's failures by contrast. If all men and women had the characteristics of Joshua and wrought into their lives the elements that were woven into his there would be no failures. But, alas, in too many instances such is not the case! The result is that life's pathway is strewn with many wrecks and failures. Contrasting such lives with that of Joshua, let us study the causes of these failures.

1. Joshua was a firm believer in God and a true follower of God's commands. God's writ urge in the entire life of Joshua. Its opening at Rephidim was mingled with an appeal to God. As the successor of Moses he had the promise of God to be with him, which he believed. His life work ends with an appeal to Israel to put away idols and to serve their God. No life is a failure that gives God His proper place in it. Every life is a failure that does not do so. Many keep God out of their life. Disobedience is His command and explains the vast majority of failures. If we would avoid failure let us therefore give God a still larger place both in our inward and outward lives.

2. Joshua had capacity for thought and indeed for unusual ability and used it. He had physical endurance and preserved it. Genius has been defined as "the capacity for hard work." Incessant toil has often accomplished what to the world has seemed impossible. Others have had the gift or exceptional mental power. But how many brilliant men and women have not succeeded in life through failure to use their splendid gifts! They have idly dreamed life away or wrecked it through dissipation. Many have possessed of physical capacity have failed in accomplishing anything in life! Thus talents have lain dormant. In idleness or as human parasites they have made their lives failures. If the Republic and Democracy and Labor idle bums and beggars in the world were put into legitimate channels of business they would produce success.

But some may disclaim the possession of capacity. If this be entirely so they have become the curse of the state and taken care of. But it is not usually so, only an excuse for failure to do life's work. Moreover, capacity increases with use. Christ taught this fact in the parable of the talents. Joshua increased in military mastership, and in that which he possessed. Our capacity for doing things may seem small to us, but having something to do and doing it to the very best of our ability will produce results of which we have never even dreamed.

3. Joshua had self reliance, founded upon his reliance in God. Self reliance, confidence in one's ability to do things, is a great factor in success. The absence of it is a great factor in failure. In this respect Joshua was like his life the Lord said to Joshua: "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee. * * * Be strong and of good courage." And Joshua was strong and courageous. He trusted in God and believed in himself. Success depends upon avowed his labors. God's promises apply also to us. Let us follow Joshua's example—have faith in God and faith in ourselves. The rest will be easy. Put away fears and doubts and murmurings. "Be strong and courageous."

In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,
Be not like dumb driven cattle,
Be heroes in the strife.

BIBLE READINGS.

Josh. vi, 12-21; viii, 1-7; xxiv, 14-18; Ps. i, 1-6; xxii, 1-6; xxxvii, 1-5; Matt. xxv, 14-30; I Tim. vi, 17-19; II Tim. iv, 1-8; Heb. xii, 14-17.

Its Strongest Point.

A minister who was asked, "What is the strongest point in the work of your Christian Endeavor society?" replied: "The number it has added to the week night prayer meeting, not merely of those who attend, but of those who take an active part. There are thirteen or fourteen from the Endeavor society who will lead in prayer at this large service. Besides, it is wonderful how much sympathy in his work the minister gets from these young people, who themselves write papers or otherwise assist in Endeavor meetings. They come to understand how much a minister's work costs."

SHE WILL PRESENT "FLOWERLAND" HERE

The women suffragists of the country are getting ready to sing their new national air, which is called the "Battle Hymn of the Mothers" and was composed by Miss Bertie K. Shipley, of Athens, Tenn., who is now in this city preparing the presentation of "Flowerland," a tableaux in which one hundred children will take part, at Hope chapel on the evening of Friday, October 22, and Saturday, October 23.

Miss Shipley is an ardent suffragist and is well known in New York suffrage circles. Her song will be rendered publicly for the first time at the Suffrage State convention to be held at Troy beginning October 20. The words of the anthem, which are sung to the air of "John Brown's Body," are as follows:

Battle Hymn of the Mothers.

Our eyes shall see "the glory of the coming of the Lord"
When woman is exalted and to her place restored.
And her hand shall cast the ballot that is stronger than the sword,
As the hosts are marching on.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
The mothers marching on.
When the father and the mother shall stand equal in the right
And the little children follow in the pathway of this light!
Then Peace shall wave her banner and bathe all the world in light,
As God shall lead them on,
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah, &c

"Flowerland," the tableaux which Miss Shipley is rehearsing with the one hundred young attendants of Hope chapel, was written under the auspices of the Sunday-school of the chapel and for the benefit of the Christmas fund.

The young players in the piece will be garbed as fairies of the dawn, fairies of the noon, night-roses, chrysanthemums, morning glories, daisies, pinks, rosebuds, nymphs, naiads, pickanninny sun-flowers, tea roses, Greek garland girls, dewdrops and Cupids. The tableaux will be divided into the following scenes: Queen of the Roses, Birth of Babyhood, Death of Virginia, and Hope and Memory.

After the production of "Flowerland," Miss Shipley, in a costume that is said to be an accurate copy of the garb of Daniel Boone, whose descendant she is, will tell stories about the mountaineers of Tennessee.

KERWINS FOUND GUILTY

Two Cases of Assault and Abuse Decided Against Them This Morning.

BLAME LIQUOR REMONSTRANCE.

John, Sr., Gets Suspended Sentence of Thirty Days, While John, Jr., Will Be Sentenced Next Saturday.

Two cases in which the Kerwin family, of West Third street and Rock avenue, were implicated, were heard before Judge William Runyon in the city court Saturday and in both instances the Kerwins were found guilty of assault and using profane language. John Kerwin, Sr., received a suspended sentence of thirty days while John Kerwin, Jr., was found guilty and sentence deferred for one week.

William Burke, of 1134 West Second street, was the complainant in the first case against John Kerwin, Sr., for an assault committed in John Rafferty's saloon on Park avenue last Saturday night. This, as well as the second assault, was alleged to be an outcome of the complainant and his brother, Edward Burke, signing the remonstrance against a liquor license wanted by Lawrence Kerwin.

Preceding a blow in the face which drew the blood from Burke's lips, it was alleged that Kerwin used vile and abusive language and in the scuffle which followed Edward Burke was also struck by Kerwin. The latter denied using the language attributed to him and said that William Burke called him a monkey. The testimony of Rudolph Kampf, manager of the Rafferty place, corroborated some of the testimony of the Burkes and the Judge believed Kerwin guilty. The thirty day sentence followed.

Frederick Bolan, of West Third street, was the complainant against John Kerwin, Jr., in the second assault case and after hearing the testimony the complainant, who said that young Kerwin used unprintable language, and threatned to strike him on Clinton avenue and also tried to run him down with his delivery wagon, other witnesses were heard for both sides, some of which was corroborative of the complaint and that of the two Kerwin boys was directly contradictory.

Judge Runyon, however, was inclined to believe that Bolan had the better of the case and found John Kerwin, Jr., guilty, deferring sentence for a week. Kerwin denied all of Bolan's allegations and was corroborated by his brother Michael.

SINGING TO BIRDS.

The English Sparrow.

Now, what's the use of always grabbing all
And looking for a fight the whole day long?
Nobdy envies you, you are so small,
And cleverer, mayhap, than you are strong.
But you are Anglo-Saxon? So am I;
Yet this round world of ours knows but one sky.

The Jay.

Why dress you like the mocking-bird
Since never singing you are heard?
You mimic me of some dudes I ken
Apparelled as some real men;
Yet, scandalize you as they will
You have the judgment to keep still
Most of the time. Why need you sing?
Your plumage brightens up the spring.

The Mockingbird.

Dear feathered Shakespeare of the grove,
A-singing all the songs we love;
Nor dull nor gay your plumage—thus
It fits the master, pleasing us.
What need you of the peacock's show—
You blind us with our hearing so?
When your full flood of song we hear
The world's all sound and man all ear.

The Yellowhammer.

Say, yellowhammer, knocking on the tree,
You seem like a brother to me.
The tree's a dead one you are knocking on,
As I have knocked the "dead ones" of time gone;
But I hit mine because they had no friends
And you hit yours to serve your selfish ends.

STRAWBERRY PICKERS ARE BUSY ON FARMS.

When Benjamin English, a Bridgeport, N. J., farmer, isn't doing something that keeps his neighbors guessing, it surely is a dull time on the farm. He is picking a wonderful yield of second-crop strawberries. He has just gathered 200 quarts, and it the frost will hold off a little while he will add considerably to this quantity. He finds a ready sale for these at 40 cents a quart.

William Pine gathered ten quarts of fine berries this week on the Davis farm, near Woodbury, and most of the patches in the county are yielding a second crop. But English easily leads them all.

FIGHT FOR HER ESTATE

Judge Schenck Hears More Testimony as to Miss Holton's Will.

THE BATTLE BECOMES BITTER.

The Nurse and the Lawyer Testify. Charles H. Hand Wants Probate of Will Denied.

The taking of testimony in the Mary E. Holton will case was resumed before Judge Schenck in the Somerset Orphans Courts, at Somerville, Thursday, Mrs. Nellie Barnes, the nurse, who cared for Miss Holton, again being called to the stand to complete her story. This led to her correcting an erroneous statement made at the previous hearing regarding the pen she used in signing the will. Previously she stated that it was Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan's pen, yesterday she said that it was one used by Miss Holton.

Reuben Knox, of this city, who drew the will, was the important witness called for the day. He testified to the making of the will. He also said that his first visit to the home of Miss Holton was on April 18, 1909. Previous to that he only had a passing acquaintance with Miss Holton. The last will was drawn on May 5 of this year by Mr. Knox.

It was shown by the examination that between 1902 and 1909, Miss Holton had given away about $67,000 or $68,000 in property to various Baptist societies by deed of interest, and these socities agreed to pay Miss Holton 5 per cent. interest on the investment for life.

On April 6, of this year, the day before the first codicil was drawn, Miss Holton gave away $4,000 in mortgages and $1,500 in mortgages a little later and still later she gave away several additional mortgages.

With the conclusion of Mr. Knox's testimony, the proponents to the will rested. Winfield S. Angleman, who represents Charles H. Hand, who claims a quarter interest in the estate, moved that the probate of the will be refused, and the court fixed Saturday, October 23, as the time when argument will be heard on the motion.

During the taking of testimony yesterday, Mr. Angleman brought out an important point. Mr. Knox testified that the 1904 will and last codicil was not destroyed, although the first was when made, and when asked why this was done, Mr. Knox admitted that he told Miss Holton that if the present will should be set aside the other would hold.

The will of Miss Holton, after providing for just debts and funeral expenses, gives to her cousin, Geraphelia Holton, of Jersey City, and to her heirs and assigns forever, the house and lot at 59 Grove street in the borough. She also gave to Geraphelia Holton all her wearing apparel, jewelry and personal ornaments, together with household furniture, silverware, crockery ware and other household furnishings.

The will further directs that J. Herbert Case, one of the executors, before paying any bequest, shall take out of the estate $2,000, together with the full expense of the first investment and recording of said sum in the following named mortgages, as soon after death as may be and invest said sum in two mortgages of $1,000 each and when necessary reinvest and keep invested on bond and mortgage said $2,000 and collect and pay over until their respective deaths to Mrs. Phebe Marsh, of Manning avenue, and Laura G. VanNuis, the respective net income on one of each of said mortgages unto each until her decease, after which the principal is to be paid to the Women's American Baptist Home Mission Society.

The will also gives to John Newton Holton $2,000 as his absolute property. In addition $3,000 is given to the American Baptist Missionary Union for its general purposes. Miss Holton also directed that the executors convert all her property, real and personal, into cash as soon as it may seem proper. All of the rest of the estate, both real and personal, is given to the American Baptist Home Mission Society formed in New York for general purposes.

John Newton Holton and J. Herbert Case are named as executors. No bonds were required of them and they were given absolute power to follow out the provisions of the will. Mrs. Nellie Barnes and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan were witnesses to the will.

The list of securities, etc., of Miss Holton turned over to the administrator, showing what she had given away, is as follows:

Deposit book Plainfield Trust Company, $540.78; First National Bank, Plainfield, book, $3,380.68; Plainfield Trust Company, executor's account, $99.11; special deposit First National Bank, Plainfield, $1,115.09; bond and mortgage, Thomas S. Alberti, $224; bond and mortgage, Alice M. Hallett, $300; protested check, S. C. Hylain, $35; bond and mortgage, Reuben P. Randolph, $1,600; note, Reuene P. Randolph, $400; bond and mortgage, John R. Mills, $2,500; bond and mortgage, The Mountain Park Land Company, $1,500; bond and mortgage, Charles D. and Harry Baldwin, $3,000; bond and mortgage, Reuben R. Mills, $1,500; bond and mortgage, Victor D. Schomp, $300; chattel mortgage, Harriet Wall, $120; total, $16,614.65.

The receipts of the American Baptist Home Mission Society shows what Miss Holton gave to that society. They are as follows:

June 2, 1903, $4,100; June 14, 1904, $900; July 15, 1905, $1,000; August 9, 1904, $1,000; December 22, 1902, $11,000; June 13, 1906, $4,000; September 5, $1,000; January 1, 1906, $3,000; March 17, 1904, $1,000; June 17, 1907, $3,000; December 23, 1907, $3,000; May 12, 1908, $9,000; July 17, 1908, $6,000; April 8, 1909, $2,575, making a total of $50575. There are also gifts as follows: November 17, 1897, $2,000; December 23, 1897, $4,500; a total of $6,500; also twenty-one sundry receipts.

February 16, 1901, $3,000; April 3, 1902, $3,500; September 22, 1903, $2,500, and the following to he American Baptist Missionary Union: March 2, 1903, $4,500; October 24, 1904, $500.

In this will contest, Nelson W. Dungan and Azariah Beekman represent Mrs. J. K. Arnold and others, who claim a fouth interest; Winfield S. Angleman represents Charles H. Hand, who claims a fourth interest; H. C. Runyon represented a Mrs. Brokaw and A. C. Streitwolf, of New Brunswick, represents a Mrs. VanWinkle. Hugh Gaston represents Edward Cooper, administrator of the third pending settlement. William A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, is counsel for the estate, and yesterday it was learned that Alvah A. Clark had also been retained by the estate.

PLAINFIELD DENTISTS MEET

Banquet at Park Club Enjoyed and Free Clinic for the Poor Discussed.

NORTH PLAINFIELD OUT OF IT.

Doctors Woolsey, of Elizabeth, and Meeker, of Newark, Tell of Work in the Schools.

At the meeting of the Plainfield Dental Association held Thursday at the Park Club thirteen members and guests were present. Dr. Frank Clakson presided. Among the speakers were Dr. Walter Woolsey, of Elizabeth, who has recently conducted an examination of the teeth among the school children of that city. He said that of the 8,000 children examined fully ninety per cent. were in need of dental attention.

Dr. Charles A. Meeker, of Newark, who has established a free dental clinic for the poor of that city, reported that the matter had been received as a great boon by the parents of the children who are showing a great appreciation of the work that is being done for their offspring. Dental clinics have also been established for the children of Elizabeth, Westfield, Plainfield and Somerville, while North Plainfield has turned down the proposition entirely.

The dentists enjoyed a repast prepared by Mrs. Henry Johnson, wife of the steward of the Park Club, which was a gem in the way of banquets. The next meeting of the *society will be held Wednesday, No*vember 10.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON OF LOCAL SALVATION ARMY

A summary of the work done by the Salvation Army at the tent on Watchung avenue during the past summer shows some very interesting figures. The tent was opened on July 1 and closed on Sunday night, September 19. During that time fifty-five services were held with a total attendence of 4,616 and something over $149 was received in contributions.

The fact that eight persons professed conversion is the most satisfying figure of all. It is not always given to the promoters of these services to witness the conversion of many who are attracted to them merely out of what is termed curiosity, but the local section of the Army feels well repaid for their efforts in that eight people have come, seen and been convinced.

Captain Hewitt and Mrs. Hewitt are satisfied that the good work has been maintained because curiosity has been turned into actual search for truth. They also feel largely indebted to all those who have in any way contributed to the work. Among those who spoke during the season were Rev. Dr. J. A. Chamblies, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, Rev. Ora M. Shoop, Rev. J. M. Musson, Mrs. Isabel C. Davis, Miss Emily C. March and Martin C. Korff, whose musical contributions were also greatly appreciated.

CITY FATHERS ACCEPT EAST END FIRE HOUSE

The Councilmanic fire committee comprising Duncan W. Taylor, chairman: F. L. Holt, W. W. Wilson, F. L. Monigomery and C. C. Randolph, met at the new East End fire-house, Thursday afternoon and accepted the building for the city. The structure is now completed and equipped and the new combination apparatus is expected any day. As soon as it arrives, it will be put in commission.

The new fire-house appears to meet all the requirements for which it was intended. Alexander Milne was the general contractor and Harold Hall, of New York, was the architect. The house is equipped with dormitories for the men, with all the modern conveniences such as a shower bath, etc. While only one apparatus will be used at the house now, accommodations have been made for additional apparatus when needed. The house is situated on South avenue, nearly opposite Woodland avenue, and close to the Netherwood station of the New Jersey Central. In the re-arrangement of men the fire committee plans to put Captain William Townley in charge of the house, and William Jaeger will probably be his assistant.

Somerville's Big Time.

The Somerville Civic Society is at work arranging for its big annual carnival and parade for the Hallowe'en celebration. The event will take place Friday evening, October 29. The former successes of Somerville's Hallowe'en parades and the energy displayed by their active workers assures our readers of a most excellent evening of enjoyment should they find it possible to attend. The annual firemen's day will be observed in the afternoon.

27 NEW CONVICTS AT STATE PRISON

With the beginning of winter large numbers of convicts are being received at the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton, twenty-seven having arrived there during the past week. This is a record-breaker for one week.

There were many long-term convicts among the lot. Samuel Layfield, a desperate negro, will serve twenty-seven years. The negro was convicted of several robberies and assault on a Burlington county woman, upon whom he used chloroform after he had bound and gagged her fast to a bed.

In sentencing the man Judge Gaskill said he ought to be killed. Layfield's case resembled the Biddle case of Burlington county a few years ago, when three negroes were sent to Trenton for forty-nine years. There have been many outrages by negroes in that county.

One of the other long-term men was William H. Gray, the Hunterdon county real estate dealer, who got twenty years for killing his father.

Four reformatory criminals were received at Trenton to serve seven years each. Andrew Newlin, a second termer, was sent up from Cumberland for burglary; James Farley, of Hudson, for grand larceny; Charles Taylor, of Passaic, for burglary, and George Milton, of Essex, for uttering. Long terms, men.

Charles Graham, of Hudson, got three years for false pretenses. August Lentz, of Union, got five years for assault and battery. John Milenski, of Hudson, got two years for grand larceny. He has served time in the Clinton and Sing Sing prisons.

There were two women among the new arrivals. Alice E. Benson, of Essex county, got nine months for adultery. Amanda Brown, of Burlington, received a year for keeping a disorderly house. John Brown, a Burlington negro, got five years for burglary.

Henry Anderson, a desperate Cumberland county negro, got a year for assault. He has been in prison before.

Thirteen prisoners were discharged during the week.

P.S.R. BUSY BUILDING "PAY WITHIN" CARS

It is not likely that the trolley cars known as the "Pay Within" type, and devised by P. M. Kling, of Elizabeth, will be used this year in Union county, according to an official of the Public Service Corporation. The cars, 281 of which have been built at the Stephenson Car Works, Elizabeth, and the Plank road shops in Newark, are known as the "900" type. Mr. Kling has been working on the device for them since the invention of the "Pay-as-you-enter" styles now in use in Newark and other sections of Essex county. The chief feature of the new car that accidents are almost impossible when alighting or stepping off. No one can enter them without the conductor's assistance in opening the door.

The new cars have double trucks and are light in weight when compared with the cars now in use. They will be used on the crosstown lines in Newark in a short time, but may eventually be used here, according to Superintendent Gettings.

There is no bulkhead in the new cars, so that as soon as a person enters he is in the car itself. The money is deposited in a slot the same as in the "Pay-as-you-enter," except that in the latter you pay when you are inside.

The cars were built on suggestions furnished by the Public Service to Mr. Kling. Many of them are new; others have been remodeled. The absence of the bulkhead from the car gives the conductor a clear view through the entire car, and he will be in a position to facilitate the exit and entrance of passengers as a result. Altogether the cars are considered a big improvement over any thus far devised.

THE RED CROSS STAMPS FOR WHITE PLAGUE CAMP.

The Plainfield Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis announces that they have secured control of the Red Cross stamps for Plainfield and that they will be placed on sale about November 1. The proceeds of the sale of these stamps will be used for the maintenance of the camp for tuberculosis sufferers and it is hoped that they will be purchased and used generously by the public.

They will be placed with merchants throughout the city, whose names will be published later.

UNION SERVICE PLANNED

All Protestant Congregations to Unite, as Usual, on Thanksgiving Day.

MINISTERS ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Committee for Union Good Friday Service—Regret Over Mr. Finn's Departure.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association at its first fall meeting in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church, Thursday afternoon, decided to unite with the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church in the Union Thanksgiving service.

The officers of the Crescent Avenue church have adopted a rule to hold such a service every year in its church, independent of the action of other churches. The Episcopal prayer book also provides for the observance of the day. Rather than hold several similar services all the churches will unite with the Crescent Avenue church. Rev. Charles G. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will preach the sermon, and Rev. O. J. Shoop will have charge of the arrangement of the program.

There was also a discussion of the work at the Life Mission, and a committee, comprising Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, Rev. J. W. Musson, Rev. C. L. Goodrich and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, was appointed to confer with the committee in charge of the mission, with a view to having it placed in charge of some denomination, instead of continuing it as the work of all denominations.

The secretary, Rev. Mr. Kemble, was directed to send a letter to Rev. A. M. Finn, expressing the regret of the association over his departure and assuring him of its continued interest in his work.

The question of the Good Friday service was introduced and a committee comprising Rev. Dr. J. A. Chamblies, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and Rev. John Y. Brock was appointed to arrange for the details. It was the opinion that if started in time it might be possible to hold a large musical service, instead of following the usual form.

WILLIAM G. MANGAN WEDS MISS ALVINA GIBERSON

Miss Alvina Giberson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Constance Giberson, of Atlantic City, and William G. Mangan, of Plainfield, this city, were married Thursday at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Mr. Surtees, pastor of the Methodist church, Atlantic City, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, including Mr. and Mrs. C. Edward Fincke, of South avenue.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Giberson, as maid-of-honor, while Winfield Steacy, of Atlantic City, was the best man. A reception followed the ceremony. After a wedding trip the couple will reside at 1317 Netherwood avenue. Mr. Mangan, who has been a resident of this city for the past year, is employed at L. W. Randolph's pharmacy, being in charge of the prescription department. He is a brother-in-law of Mrs. C. Edward Fincke. The bride is a most estimable young woman and is popular in a large circle of friends at Atlantic City. She received a large collection of costly and handsome gifts.

EDWARD A. LAING BUYS A VALUABLE PROPERTY.

Edward A. Laing, the newsdealer and stationer, through Charles H. Lyman, the real estate broker, has obtained the valuable business property adjoining that of his own on West Front street, and occupied by J. A. Smith & Bro., the grocers. He purchased the property from Mrs. M. Weinberger, who had bought it from David T. Kenney.

This property originally was owned by the Cutler estate, and was for many years occupied by Joseph Cutter as a grocery store. After the death of Mr. Cutler it was leased by J. A. Smith & Bro., who were then located where D. Schener & Co. are now located. During this firm's possession of the property is has changed hands several times. It is estimated to be worth about $25,000.

RECEPTION AT HOME OF MR. AND MRS. W. FIRSTBROOK.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Firstbrook gave a reception at their home, 302 East Front street, last night. Over fifty relatives and friends were present to extend congratulations to the bride and groom. The couple was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Mrs. Bertram Firstbrook, Miss Helen Johnson and Mrs. David Kelly.

HEARS WILSON'S PLEAS

Justice Voorhees Reserves His Decision on an Application to Quash.

HE WANTS BAIL REDUCED.

Attorney General Wilson and S. A. Patterson Appear for Former Local Councilman.

Justice Voorhees at Trenton, Friday, reserved decision on the application first to quash the proceedings against former Councilman Theodore D. Wilson, at one time a resident of this city, and second to reduce his bail of $10,000. Mr. Wilson was arrested on a charge preferred by Malcolm Hufty, a Washington, D. C., lawyer, that he had alienated the affections of Hufty's wife.

Samuel A. Patterson and Attorney-General Wilson for Mr. Wilson based the double application on the claim that affidavits on which the latter's arrest was based were insufficient to show alienation and also that the order for the arrest was defective.

Theodore Wilson was a resident of Plainfield several years, his home being on Evergreen avenue. He, and his wife, who was exceptionally attractive, moved in the best society and frequently entertained, also attending the leading society functions. Before they left Plainfield there were rumors of family trouble. Later it was learned that Mrs. Wilson had sold all of the personal effects and had left the city independent of Mr. Wilson. Their whereabouts were not generally known here. Mr. Wilson served one term as a member of the Common Council from the Second ward, but he did nothing to particularly distinguish himself in that body, except to cause considerable criticism of certain actions regarding his conduct of the street department.

Mr. Wilson, who is a New York stock broker, it is claimed, induced Mrs. Hufty to leave her husband and go to Asbury Park, where, it is alleged, they lived together since last January.

LADIES AUXILIARY A.O.H. HOLDS ANNUAL BALL

Ladies' Auxiliary, Division No. 4, A. O. H., held a dance Friday at Enengerbund Hall and kept 400 people entertained until 2 Saturday morning.

John Fitzpatrick, a celebrated Irish bag-piper now of New York, was on hand with his pipes and a variety of airs that made everyone present think of the "old sod" and its memories. Those in attendance who were able to dance to Irish music were accommodated by Bag-piper Fitzpatrick, and the others were given American music by Parcebeck's orchestra.

The dance was voted a complete success by those present. It was arranged by a committee consisting of Miss Kate Keogh, Mrs. Mary Bimble, and Miss Kate McGrath. Between dances refreshments were served.

PARK AVENUE BAPTIST C. E. ECHO MEETING

"An Echo" meeting of the recent State Endeavor convention attracted a large number of Endeavorers and others to the Park Avenue Baptist church Friday night. Mrs. Chas. F. Dayton was in charge of the service, which was held under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry and Miss Fimira Runyon reported on the Junior work of the convention, Rev. A. E. Finn on the address of Rev. J. Douglas Adam, of East Orange. Mrs. Charles F. Dayton told of the "Quiet Hour" services and Miss Cora Brokaw gave a synopsis of the excellent address by William Phillips Hall, the business man's specialist. During the evening there were violin solos by Miss Marjory Brown, and a quartet composed of Roland Treadwell, Nelson VanWinkle, Miss Cora Brokaw and Miss Florence G. Hawkins, sang several selections.

WHITE PLAGUE FIGHTERS TO HOLD BIG MEETING.

In order to acquaint the public with the white plague and its dangers, the Plainfield Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis decided at its meeting Thursday to hold a mass meeting here some time next month.

A committee of three consisting of William S. Tyler, William Dutcher and Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, was appointed to draft incorporation papers and a new constitution. The building committee, in charge of the new tuberculosis hospital being constructed, reported that the contractors are making favorable progress and will complete the structure by November, and that the hospital will open its doors to sufferers early in that month.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Minority Party's County Committee Puts Its Candidates on Record.

DEMAND FOR MORE ECONOMY.

They Pledge Themselves to Work for Return of School Fund—For More Direct Election.

The Democratic county committee held a meeting in Elizabeth Thursday night, at which the platform adopted by the candidates for Assembly was approved. Among the declaration of principles are that the voters have a right to know how the candidates stand on the most important issues, that no legislator can well serve his State when possessed with the idea that any such measure can remedy all existing ills, nor can he be just if he holds the narrow view that any one evil, any one body of men, or any one corporation can be responsible for all the poverty and misery of the universe.

The candidates pledge themselves to be loyal to the Democratic doctrine, which declares, "The best government is that which governs the least. The candidates promise to work consciously for a return to economy in State administration that the wasteful extravagance, which has increased within a short period, the State's expenses from $1,857,982 to $3,478,134 may be stopped.

It is further pledged to work to restore to the various municipalities that part of the Public School Fund of which they were "robbed" by the last Legislature, and to advocate the enactment of such laws as will prevent any further attempts to take for any purposes the funds of railroads at the expense of the individual taxpayer. It is furthermore promised to guard the State's interest in the Morris Canal properties, and favor a law providing for a public service commission, also that the direct election law should be improved and made practicable, then extended to the offices of Governor, Congressmen and United States Senators. Equal taxation, an income tax, the largest possible of home rule in all municipalities are among the things promised, and that that the candidates have no rewards to give and no political debts to pay.

WOMAN A PRIZE GARDENER.

Defeats the Commuters of Montclair Who Held Train Conferences.

Montclair commuters who have been striving all summer to win the prizes offered by the Montclair Garden Society for the best garden in the town are puzzled over the announcement that a woman, Mrs. F. Layton Brewer, of 241 Midland avenue, that place, who does not commute, and who, therefore, could not have the knowledge of gardening that comes from a daily discussion of this subject on the trains to and from New York, has received the chief trophy, a sun dial.

Many gardeners who have nothing but the blisters on their hands that came from long evenings of toil in their prized gardens cannot see where a woman had any chance to win, but their solace lies in the fact that the other four prizes went to members of the same commuting fraternity: Edward Livzey, off 11 Upper Mountain avenue; E. J. Oberlander, of 221 Walnut street; W. G. Frost, of 80 Upper Mountain avenue, and W. L. Oliphant, of 26 Madison avenue, all of Montclair.

The committee that awarded the prizes says that Mrs. Brewer earned the trophy because her garden in the largest measure contributed to the appearance of its neighborhood or vicinity.

PROPOSED CITY MARKET STALLS ARE BEING TAKEN.

Ira L. La Rue, the well-known real estate man who has charge of the plans for the proposed new city market, which is soon to be established in the building now occupied by the Plainfield Cab Company, says that nearly all the stalls are already engaged by those who are ready to take immediate possession as soon as the building is equipped for that purpose.

It is expected that the market will be ready for business the latter part of December and a most attractive opening is planned for the holiday season.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1909.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

McIntyre and Heath, in the John J. McNally musical comedy, "Ham Hayti," with music by Jerome and Schwartz, will open their road tour in Philadelphia, October 18. Julian Rose, Marion Stanley and Carrie Reynolds are in the supporting company, which numbers one hundred.

Laura Nelson Hall and Charles Stevenson will be in the cast of "Through a Window," which Klaw & Erlanger and Joseph Brooks will present next month. Mary Bertrand, a player unknown in the East who has achieved distinction on the Pacific Coast, has been engaged for one of the leading roles.

Miss Fannie Ward will begin her tour this season in a new play by Forrest Halsey and Lee Arthur, entitled "Van Allen's Wife," in Rochester, N. Y., in November. The company is now in rehearsal. Promment parts in the cast are H. Reeves-Smith, John Dean, Henry Duggan, J. McKean, V. Benoit, Errol Dunbar, Margaret Fuller and Janet Slater.

Harry Lauder has entered upon his second triumphal week at the Plaza Music Hall, where he has eclipsed the tremendous success which he encountered on his previous visits to America. Capacity audiences have attended each performance, on more than one occasion the overflow being accommodated on the stage. Mr. Lauder has brought some new songs over with him, but most of the old favorites will soon be whistled throughout the city, but the old favorites such as "She's Ma Daisy" and "The Wedding of Sandy McNab" were enthusiastically received, and Lauder was compelled to respond to numerous encores. J. W. Winton, the English ventriloquist, makes his first American appearance under the Morris management, and he will doubtless uphold the enviable record he has won in Europe and Australia.

The acting of Margaret Anglin, remarkable for its intensity, in her new play, "The Awakening of Helena Richie," now playing to full houses at the Savoy theatre, New York, has not only made its impression upon the theatre-going public but has appealed, also, to the most notable emotional actors in this country. Georgia Nethersole, Mrs. Fiske, Virginia Harned and Mme. Nazimova, each in turn have shown their professional appreciation, by attending a performance, afterward calling upon Miss Anglin in her dressing room, to congratulate her upon her achievement. Applause from the public is always an inspiration but applause bestowed by brother professionals, is a mark of appreciation every actor or actress values highly.

Yvette Guilbert, the well-known Parisian chanteuse, will remain for a second week at the Colonial presenting her repertoire of English and French songs in her own inimitable way. Her program will be changed for the forthcoming week. Eddie Leonard, late star of his own minstrel company, will be on hand offering his specialty in which he will be assisted by Mabel Russell and the Field Sisters. Gentleman Roger's comedy skit, "Swat Milligan," an amusing baseball burlesque, will provide a treat for fans, and E. F. Hawley & Co. will be seen in a strong one act dramatic playlet entitled "The Bandit," the balance of the bill includes: Raymond & Caverly, the funny German comedians; The Great Golden Troupe of Russian singers and dancers; The Italian Trio in operatic selections, and The Three Bannons, expert club manipulators. On Sunday concerts will be given as usual.

"I love my Sham, but oh you 'Chocolate Soldier.' It's delicious."—Charles Darnton in the Evening World.

"Music is charming, full of swing and daintiness; lavish settings."—New York Herald on "The Chocolate Soldier."

"No other light opera in New York is so well sung; none is better acted; will please the town for many a night."—Arthur Warren on "The Chocolate Soldier" in the Tribune.

"Strauss' numbers are not only filled with a subtle passion and dreaminess, but his marches and choruses strike a martial note which is electrical in effect."—Acton Davies' opinion of "The Chocolate Soldier" in the Evening Sun.

Recital at Grace P. E. Church.

A large congregation attended the special musical service at Grace Episcopal church yesterday afternoon, when organist S. Frederick Smith gave the third of his Sunday afternoon recitals. It is hardly necessary to comment on the music. It was fully up to the standard set by Mr. Smith in his first recital and was charmingly rendered. The overture in C major, Hollins, was perhaps the most popular of the compositions played and was a delightful interpretation. Mr. Smith played in place of his brother at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church in the evening.

WHAT IS PATRIOTISM?

Rev. Mr. Goodrich Answers the Question from Lessons Taught Abroad.

HIS DISCOURSE INSTRUCTIVE.

Third of His Series of Sermons on Sundays in England Deals With Beautiful Grassmere.

The people of the Congregational church was treated to another of those highly interesting descriptive lectures on Sundays in England, by the pastor, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, last night, who spoke about his experience in Grassmere. This lecture will complete the subject and will with the others in this paper later.

One of the things to which more than passing notice must be given was mentioned and that is the difference of the meaning of "patriotism" as understood in both England and this country, and will with the topic of the address to which Mr. Goodrich listened. Of this Mr. Goodrich said last night: "It gave one a singular feeling to listen to an address on patriotism in a foreign land where patriotism meant loyalty, not to one's own country, but to another. It did not matter much, however, England seems so much like our own country. The spirit and principle are the same which ever side of the water you are on.

"I noticed that English people are still being exhorted with Nelson's words: 'England expects every man to do his duty.' The preacher also quoted Wordsworth's 'Happy Warrior.' There was the same characteristics for which Englishmen are known wherever they go, the world around. To study these characteristics and cultivate such of them as have served to make England honored in the part of patriotism for English people. This was the preacher's picture of English character: 'Somewhat reserved, slow of speech, when readier utterance would remove suspicion, unsentimental, but tender in the heart and sympathetic in the instincts of life; loving liberty with its burdens and perils, rather than the safer state of subjection; self respecting, regardful of his own and the rights of others and always just and honorable.'

"His definition of patriotism is one to set us thinking. Is patriotism for Americans the cultivation of those traits for which Americans are best known? It may well set us asking what are the characteristics for which an American is best known the world over, wherever he is found, and are these the traits for which we would most desire to be known? What special American traits are there for which we are justly proud of our country's past and the cultivation of which we may well wish all our youth to devote themselves with loyal zeal as a matter of true patriotism? It would be a good theme for a Fourth of July oration."

ANNOUNCES ENGAGEMENT AT A DINNER PARTY.

The engagement of Miss Bertha Amelia Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jones, of Essex street, to Clarence H. La Rue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira La Rue, of East Front street, was announced at a reception given to Miss Jones Saturday night, by Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Wharton, of West Sixth street.

The guests were unaware of the engagement and it did not become known until the guests were seated at the table, following a social time. Three souvenir place cards were found at each plate. On one was inscribed the word "betrothed," and on the other two, the engagement of Miss Jones and Mr. La Rue was announced. Covers were laid for thirty and guests were present from New York, Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Shelton, Somerville, Elizabeth and this city.

TABLET GONE; SONS OF REVOLUTION WARNED.

The committee of the New Jersey Society, Sons of the Revolution, has been notified to replace a tablet taken from the Red Bank battle monument, otherwise, it has been asserted, warrants will be issued, and the unveiling ceremonies set for October 23, when four other tablets just placed on the monument by the society, are scheduled to be dedicated, will not take place. There is much indignation over the removing of the monument and the names of the members of the commission who had charge of the erection of the shaft and its dedication in June, 1906.

Those interested declined to throw and further light on the subject.

The tablet was removed last Monday. The monument and grounds belong to Gloucester county and the removal of the tablet was without permission. At the next meeting of the Board of Freeholders the matter of removing the tablet will be discussed.

Sydney Biden, of Berlin, the famous baritone, will be the assisting artist. A large audience is anticipated as the subscription list is a heavy one. The program will be an especially fine one.

WOULD FORCE EXTENSION OF TROLLEY TRACKS.

Justice Alfred Reed granted a rule Saturday requiring the Trenton, Hamilton and Ewing Traction Company and the Trenton Street Railway Company, lessee, to show cause at Trenton on November 3 why they should not be compelled to extend the Trenton Junction trolley line from its present terminus to Ewing avenue in the centre of the village.

At present the line from Trenton stops at the one-quarter mile west of the Trenton Junction depot at the tracks of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, requiring a long walk into the village. The purpose of the suit is to compel the company to complete their line or forfeit their franchise in the township.

When the Trenton junction line was built, it ended at the Reading tracks because the Reading company would not permit a grade crossing. Since then negotiations have been conducted between the traction and steam railroad companies for the building of a tunnel under the Reading tracks through which the trolley line could pass. These negotiations, it is understood, were completed and nothing stands in the way of carrying the trolley tracks under the steam line.

PROHIBITIONISTS NAME LUNGER FOR MAYOR

The National Prohibition party has put a ticket in the field in the borough. The ticket was filed by petition with the Somerset county clerk yesterday. It is headed by William Lunger, for Mayor, and names William J. Trembath and George W. Winans for members of the Common Council.

The petition was sworn to by five ardent Prohibitionists of the borough, namely Manning F. Gano, Robert W. Barnes, Andrew Wilson, William Lunger and William J. Trembath. Mr. Lunger, the mayoralty candidate, has been a Prohibition nominee in the past for Congress, Senator, Assembly and other offices.

WOMAN AND FOOD.

It is to me an appealing thought that practically all the women one encounters know precisely what they are going to eat tonight and most of them realize the burden of that knowledge would suffocate me or any man. Women are only able to support it because food in itself does not appeal to them, says Harper's Bazar. A meal to them is not a surprise or a delight or an occasion for self-gratification. It is a domestic crisis foreseen and prepared for, a coup deliberately planned, and all the satisfaction they get out of it is purely managerial.

Until a woman is able to afford a housekeeper her palate stands a chance, and she is never able to sit down to table in the proper spirit of anticipation. Food has no surprises for her any more than it has for the professional caterer. Full justice has never been done to feminine heroism—it is nothing less—in this matter.

Housekeeping is by far the most difficult of all professions, and a woman who is a good housekeeper would, if she were a man, be a Kitchener or a Carnegie. The distinctive tragedy of her situation is that while one may assume Lord Kitchener to be interested in war and Mr. Carnegie in steel women have no interest in food, which is the pivot of their household work, and only apply themselves to its problems because they are obliged to. The really efficient mistress of a home has thus a moral claim to greatness above and beyond that of any masculine achievement.

Mispah Lodge Social.

Mispah Ladge, No. 1, United Order of Odd Ladies, will hold a social on Monday night, Nov. 15, in Coward's hall.

CAPT. "JACK SMITH" IS FORMER EAST SIDE BOY

Captain Jack Smith, champion revolver shot of the world, who with his partner will give exhibitions of his prowess at Proctor's theatre this week, has a history which is known to but few of his friends east of the Rocky Mountains.

Harry S. Sanderson, partner of Mr. Proctor and former manager of Tony Pastor in New York city, tells the story of Captain Smith's first gallant record in a shooting contest. He was known as "Johnny" Smith on the east side of the big city and one day when shooting at targets was a pastime enjoyed by hundreds of men and boys, Smith approached Mr. Pastor with a request for a uniform with which to properly impress his companions. Mr. Pastor liking the nerve of the would-be warrior, ordered a uniform from Rogers, Peet and Co., which Mr. Sanderson brought, and donning this young Smith put it all over the youngsters in his target company.

With adventure as his main object Smith went west and grew up with the country, not forgetting to annex all he knew he could pick up about the handling of a revolver and throwing the rope over fractious ponies and cattle. He improved his opportunities to such an extent that today he is without a peer as a revolver shot. His exhibition is said to be a marvel of accurate shooting.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE OF A JERSEY FAMILY

Joseph Cortright, of Newark, who is a brother-in-law of Floyd T. Woodhull, of West Front street, accompanied by his wife and daughter, arrived at their home on Plane street, Newark, last night, after the most thrilling experience of their lives. They were passengers on the Steamer Antilles on the Morgan Line, bound from New Orleans to New York, a week ago yesterday, when the boat ran into one of the worst storms known for years.

The steamer ran on a reef and for nearly four hours was being tornadoed about like a toy in the hurricane which was blowing. The boat was equipped with wireless apparatus, and repeated offers for assistance were refused by the captain, it is said, wishing to save the salvage. Finally the Comus, of the same line appeared, and having been given instructions to stand by, succeeded in rescuing the passengers. They were brought to New York arriving late yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Cortright and daughter left Newark June 10 last for an extended pleasure trip which included the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, Denver, the Yellowstone Park and they returned by the way of Texas to New Orleans, where they took the Steamer Antilles for New York. Mr. Cortright is well-known in this city, where he has visited a number of times. Mr. Woodhull went to Newark this morning to meet the Cortrights and learn something about their trip and experiences.

Dr. Louis T. Newman at Westfield.

Dr. Louis T. Newman, son of H. O. Newman, of this city, who has been a practising physician at Brewster, N. Y., for a number of years, has disposed of his practice at that place and has located at Westfield, where his office for the present is at the Westfield Inn. Dr. Newman will be remembered by many Plainfielders. He has been away from the city about seventeen years. While at Brewster his wife died and he afterward decided to make a change

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH UNDER WHEELS

Harry Randolph, of Jefferson avenue, Dunellen, narrowly escaped death under the wheels of a main line trolley car Saturday night about 9:30 o'clock when he attempted to board it in front of Morrison's hotel. As it was he sustained injuries to his head which will confine him to the house for some time. His head was severely gashed and he received contusions of the body and was attended to by Dr. Thomas H. Platt. He was sent to his home.

Randolph hurried down the steps of the hotel and instead of running around the rear end of the car attempted to intercept it via the front. He was knocked down and rolled by the fender just far enough to escape going under the wheels. A little over a year ago young Randolph's father Jonathan, was killed by an automobile while leaving a trolley car at Jefferson avenue. The names of the trolley crew were not obtained. The car number was given as 1922.

KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO, BOY IS IN THE HOSPITAL

Gaville Young, aged eight years, of Oak Tree, was struck by an automobile Saturday afternoon, between this city and Metuchen, receiving slight wounds in the forehead. The autoist stopped their car quickly, picked up the boy and took him to the hospital, where he is still under treatment. The names or addresses of those in the automobile were not obtained and the strangers left the city quickly after learning that the lad's injuries were not of a serious nature.

Just how the accident happened cannot be learned definitely, but it is understood that the boy, who was walking along the road on his way home, stepped from the road and did not hear the approaching machine until too late to escape being struck. The lad will be detained at the hospital a few days.

SLAYER OF PRINCETON STUDENT LIBERATED.

With $60 in his pocket and a brand new suit of clothes, John Collins, a negro, who shot two Princeton students more than fourteen years ago, walked from State prison at Trenton, Saturday, apparently very happy. Collins was known as the prisoner who, by his good conduct, managed to have his term to be shortened during his term to save sufficient money to give him a new start in life, should he take advantage of his opportunity. Prior to his release, Collins had signified his intention of returning to Princeton, though it is not known where he went after leaving the institution.

The double crime of which Collins was convicted occurred in June 8, 1895, following the Yale-Princeton baseball game, which was played on that day. Collins shot and killed Frederick P. Ohl, a son of Senator Ohl, of Pennsylvania, and seriously wounded Garret Cochran, also of Pennsylvania.

Both of the students were freshmen at the time and were well-known football players, Cochran subsequently being elected captain of the Varsity team. Collins had been drinking, and in the earlier part of the evening had had several altercations with the students. The shooting occurred in a narrow alleyway adjacent to a saloon, and the latter is now commonly known in Princeton as "Scuds." Ohl lived for several days after the shooting, and died in the McCosh Infirmary, which had just been opened.

Collins was tried before Chief Justice Gummere, who, as an associate justice, was then presiding in the Mercer Circuit Court.

He pleaded guilty to atrocious assault and battery on Cochran, and was convicted of the murder of Ohl, for which he received the maximum penalty of twenty years. He was given the full allowance of commutation for good behavior, making his twenty year term expire Saturday.

LIPTON AND JEFFRIES COMING ON SAME BOAT.

Sir Thomas Lipton and James J. Jeffries were fellow-passengers on the Lusitania, which sailed from Southampton for New York Saturday. They went to Southampton on the boat train, and Jeffries was introduced to the Irish baronet, who shook hands warmly and said:

"I am very glad to meet you. I guess this is going to be a fine thing to do a sporting thing." Jeffries responded happily and the couple chatted throughout the journey.

Rev. Dr. Zelie as a Writer.

"Lead Kindly Light," is the title of an attractive little volume written by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and just from the press of Dodd, Mead & Co. It comprises invitations from Dr. Newman's hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," and is written "In Loving Memory of My Mother, Caroline Prescott Zelie," as announced by Dr. Zelie.

PASTOR TOLD OF HYMNS SUNG BY CONGREGATION

The service at the First Presbyterian church last night, was one of song, the congregation rendering several favorite hymns and the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring giving an entertaining talk about each writer. He told something of particular interest about the writer and related the circumstances under which the hymn was written. Among the hymns selected for the service were "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," "Jesus I My Cross Have Taken," "Abide With Me," "Rock of Ages," and "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

In his comment Dr. Herring said that he always regretted that the "Star Spangled Banner" had been made the National hymn, for in his opinion "My Country 'Tis of Thee," was more nearly the ideal. He thought it was not the day to have as a National hymn something which recited battles by the British.

The speaker also said that he considered it blasphemous for a person to sing any hymn, unless it was sung from the heart and with its true meaning. He impressed upon all the importance of singing a hymn from the heart. As to the hymn, "Nearer the Cross I Am Coming," Dr. Herring said that should not be sung at all, for he did not believe it to be true in the experience of any true Christian. A experience should be away from the Cross and striving for the Crown. He thought it to be a mistake for anyone to be carried away by the "swing of a song" or sentiment, without appreciating the true meaning. During the evening the quartet choir sang two anthems, one by Dudley Buck.

FORMER PASTOR CHARGED WITH FRAUD AT WESTFIELD

William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, bondsman for the Rev. George R. Francis, formerly a pastor and a licensed preacher, and charged with obtaining money under false pretenses from Jack Capitella, an Italian at Westfield, surrended him Saturday afternoon. Within a few hours Francis was again out on $2,000 bonds, furnished by his brother-in-law, John L. Hetfield, of Westfield, after Judge Vail ordered the sheriff to take bail.

Capitella charged Francis with having obtained from him a power of attorney, on the plea that he wished to eject some undesirable tenants from Capitella's property at Westfield, but that with this power of attorney he disposed of the property without consulting the owner, and did not give him any of the proceeds of the sale. Capitello claimed that the first he knew of the sale was when one day he was walking across what he supposed was his own property, he was ordered off by the new owner.

Francis claimed that he was the agent of the Capital Real Estate Company, of Westfield, and that he had authority to sell the property, for which he received $4,100, and that Capitella had been paid all that was due him. The sale was made in May, 1907.

An indictment was found by the Grand Jury and the case tried in the Court of Quarter Sessions where Francis was convicted. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court which later named Judge Whittemore of the Hudson District Court to hold further hearings in the case which was done last June. The evidence is now in Judge Whittemore's hands, awaiting his examination and decision.

CANADIAN PUBLIC UTILITIES NOT STOPPED BY STRIKES.

"To the question whether the industrial disputes investigation act has been effective," says ex-President Elliot Mc Clure in the September, "the clear answer is that since its enactment in March, 1907, the Dominion has known no cessation in the continuous operation of any of its great agencies of communication —steam railways, telegraph and telephone lines, or other public utilities of the kind—and the national industries and the public have not suffered any inconveniences other than a few of a purely temporary and local nature through the cessation of some one of these agencies. This remarkable record may not be continuously maintained, but it seems quite possible that never again will the interests of the Canadian public be injured through the threatening or actual outbreak of sudden and extensive industrial conflicts, such as frequently occurred in Canada prior to the enactment of the law, and still occur, with enormous and widespread damage, in the United States.

RUSTY NAIL IN HIS FOOT.

William W. Milford, superintendent of the James L. Taylor Manufacturing Company, is confined to home at Bloomfield, suffering from blood poisoning, the result of stepping on a rusty nail. The nail went through the sole of his shoe and penetrated the foot to the depth of an inch. His foot and leg are swollen to twice their natural size and the physician, Dr. Jacob S. Wolfe, fears are tetanus may set in.

DROWNED IN D. & R. CANAL

Isaac Kershaw Loses Life Trying to Save Others— Was Expert Swimmer.

RUSSELL'S CANOE CAPSIZED.

Three Others Narrowly Escape Drowning in Cold Waters Near Bound Brook.

A drowning accident occurred Saturday afternoon in which one man lost his life and another was only resuscitated after strenuous work at the doctors and efforts of the rescuers. The drowned man was Isaac Kershaw, of South Bound Brook and the other was Todd Russell, a guest of the Berkeley hotel at Bound Brook.

Russell, who recently purchased a new canoe, was trying out the little craft in a sail to the Basin. A puff of wind upset the canoe throwing Russell into the cold waters of the Delaware and Raritan canal. John Koeschlein, a big man, six feet five inches in his stockings, who was fishing on the bank of the canal, dropped his lines and swam out to Russell, where he was struggling in the water and endeavored to assist him to right the frail craft. This he was unable to do owing to the struggles of Russell and the interfering sail and ropes.

Becoming almost exhausted both men set up shouts for assistance. Their cries were heard by Kershaw and another, William Morris, who hastened to the rescue. Kershaw, a strong swimmer managed to get to the now exhausted men, but becoming entangled in the rigging was unable to render much assistance. Morris in the meantime had tied a rope around his waist and after making it fast on the bank attempted to reach the other three in the water. The rope was too short, but Russell and Koeschlein had managed to push the canoe in little nearer the bank and with the assistance of Morris managed to reach shallow water.

There Russell was found to be nearly dead and he was rolled over Koeschlein's big bulk and afterwards treated by doctors at the hotel.

Kershaw was found drowned under the sail and entangled in the ropes of the small sails from which he had been unable to extricate himself. Every known device was brought into play to revive the man who had sacrificed his life in vain to save the others, but he did not respond to treatment and it was given up after two hours of hard work. Russell is recovering, but is still suffering from exposure and cold, while Koeschlein and Morris seem to have received no ill results from their cold bath. The accident occurred about 4:30 in the afternoon.

Clark Will Offered for Probate.

The will of Mrs. Caroline Clark, wife of J. Andrew Clark, of this city, was offered for probate in the office of Surrogate George T. Parrot, Elizabeth, today. The value of the estate is not given, but is said to be about $17,000. She leaves a tract of land on Netherwood avenue to her nephew, Cornelius Compton, and the rest of the estate to her husband for his benefit and that of her nephew, Cornelius Compton upon the death of her husband. It is to go to the nephew. The husband is named as executor. Mrs. Clark was the daughter of the late L. L. Compton, for many years a leading confectioner and baker here.

Rewarded Substantially.

William Morris, of Bound Brook, one of the men who did such valiant service in an effort to save the lives of three men in a drowning accident on the Delaware and Raritan canal last Saturday, was rewarded by Todd Russell, the owner of the overturned canoe with a check for $500 yesterday. Morris is the man who finally brought the canoe to shore and helped to restore Russell to consciousness. Nothing has been said of a reward for Koeschlein, the giant fisherman who also lent his aid in the rescue.

Surprise for Miss Conover.

About fifty guests, friends of Miss Isabel Conover, of Duer street, tendered Miss Conover a surprise party last Friday night. The house was tastefully decorated for the occasion with autumn foliage and cut flowers. The occasion was the birthday of the young woman. Games and music helped to pass a very pleasant evening and Miss Conover received a number of handsome and useful gifts. A delicious supper served by Misses Frances Newman and May Mattison.

Pineapple Salad.

Shred two heads of lettuce as fine as you would shred cabbage f or slaw. Have ready one cupful of English walnut meats, one cupful celery cut fine, one small pineapple cut into quarter-inch cubes, one cupful mayonnaise, and one cupful of whipped cream. When ready to serve in the centre of each plate scatter the lettuce, then on this sprinkle a tablespoonful of celery first, then one of pineapple, then one of nuts. Mix the mayonnaise with the whipped cream and put a tablespoonful of this on top of all. A very refreshing salad.

HORATIO S. BILYEU DEAD

Heart Disease Claimed Him as Victim at Stamford, Conn., Last Friday.

WAS A TRAVELING PRINTER.

Well Known in North Plainfield and Washington Valley—Bible Records Prove Identity.

Horatio S. Bilyeu, a former resident of Washington Valley, and who was well known throughout the printing trade of the country, died suddenly of heart disease at Stamford, Conn., last Friday, while in the act of drinking a glass of water in the home of a friend. Bilyeu was well known here and in North Plainfield, where his family resided for many years.

Bilyeu was about sixty-nine years old and had traveled the country over taking positions as a printer wherever obtainable and always enjoying the friendship of the members of Typothetae, being a member of the typographical union. His identity was established through the finding of his family record in the leaves of a Bible found in a pocket of the coat he wore when he died. These records included the marriage of his parents and the deaths of the other members of the family as well as his own birth.

Bilyeu was the son of Levi Bilyeu, of Washington Valley, and lived for a time with his cousin Jerry on Chatham street, North Plainfield. The latter has been dead for fifteen years. He visited Truman Bilyeu, a cousin, who lives in the borough, last spring. This is believed to be the last time he was in this neighborhood.

Besides the leaves of the Bible and his membership card in the union nothing was found on the body and only thirty-five cents in money was in the dead man's pockets. He will be buried by the typographical union of Yonkers.

HE TELLS OF CHINA'S ANCIENT GREATNESS

Theodore G. Davis, field secretary of the George Junior Republic, delivered an illustrated lecture on China and the Chinese at the Seventh Day Baptist church last night. Mr. Davis was born in Shanghai, China, the son of missionaries, and lived there until his sixteenth year.

"It is a wonderful country," he said, "in that it has made so little progress through it is the oldest nation in the world. Away back in the days of Emperor Wu mines were opened, and the Chinese used gold and silver in trade. In 1100 B. C. their mints started issuing coins.

"From 600 to 300 B. C. was China's great literary period. The Great Wall stretching 1,500 miles across the northern border was built 214 years before the Christian Era. Another great engineering feat, the Grand Canal, running 1,000 miles from north to south, was completed in 1280 A. D.

"The Buddists of China have no idea of what a Supreme God means. There is no word in the Chinese religion meaning God in the complete sense that ours does. One of the greatest difficulties of missionaries is to give the Chinese a true idea of the all-powerful, all-wise God. Confusionism, the second great creed of the Chinese, is the faith of the literati. All who would become scholars in China worship according to the teachings of Confucius. The third great Chinese religion, Taoism, was founded by the philosopher Laotsee. Its object is to attain immorality through contemplation of gods, to insure perfect tranquility of the soul by renouncing riches and honor. But it has been corrupted like all such religions.

"The blame for opium smoking, the great curse of China, lies at the door of a Christian nation—England. The terrible drug was introduced into China by British merchants. The Chinese government saw that opium meant ruin to the Chinese people and they prohibited its importation. But England did not want to lose her great opium revenue and forced the drug back upon the blighted land. Today it is forbidden to be sold."

DUNELLEN MARSHAL EXCEEDED AUTHORITY

A situation which stirred up the whole Dunellen police force which consists of the newly appointed marshal, James Benson, occurred in that borough Friday and it is probable that in the future when a contractor goes there to dig a cellar his work will be interfered with.

Alexander Kane has the contract for digging the cellar under the Margentino building on North avenue and sent down his men to perform the work. They were interrupted and sent back to this city and were told to inform Aleck that the work could not proceed until he had taken out a license. As this did not seem to be in accordance with any other previous experience of Aleck's he immediately conceived the notion of making a personal investigation as to his rights.

Arrived at Dunellen he was threatened with arrest if the license was not at once procured. With his usual impetuosity, Aleck told the officers (there were two Dunellen councilmen there) to arrest him, but upon advice of Councilman Gise it was decided to ask Walter Hetfield, Jr., counsel for the borough, how about it. Mr. Hetfield's reply evidently broke up the meeting for Aleck has been able to pursue his excavating way unmolested.

REV. MR. FINN PREACHES HIS FAREWELL SERMON

Rev. A. E. Finn preached his farewell sermon as pastor at the Park Avenue Baptist church, yesterday morning, taking for his topic "Limitations Removed." During the course of his remarks, Mr. Finn briefly reviewed his work and that of the church during his pastorate and commended the members to the care and keeping of God. While he deeply regretted the severance of relationship, he said that he believed it to be God's will that he leave Plainfield, and he said that he would ever remember the church in his prayers.

Mr. and Mrs. Finn will leave here Wednesday morning for Rochester, Pa., where he will at once take up his duties as pastor of the First Baptist church. As yet no arrangements have been made for a successor to Mr. Finn. A pulpit committee has been appointed and for the present supplies will be engaged, until such time as the committee can recommend someone for the pastorate.

UNION STREET WALLOPS THE NETHERWOODS AGAIN.

The Netherwood football club was no match for the Union street team Saturday afternoon on the Union street grounds, the latter being victorious by a score of 22 to 0. In two previous games between these teams, Union street won by scores of 35 to 0 and 17 to 0, respectively. A. Van Zandt and Shark made the touchdowns. The line-up:

NEW VEILS.

The fantastic veil is with us. French weavers have been influenced by the wide range of modes, and have extended the meshes of last season's designs so that original and attractive designs will veil the beauty of the fall. The weave is large, and design is afforded not by a conventional placing of chenille, as in the past, but by the arrangement of the threads. Octagonal meshes, old-fashioned crossbars, coin spots and blocks are appearing before the eyes of fair woman, and she looks more charming than ever. One veil carries out the Scarab idea in a clever way. The mesh represents the irregularity of veins, and leaves at least one inch long are scattered over the surface in shadowy form.

Another veil worn by some ultra fashionables in Paris has but two ivy leaves in the centre. One appears high up on the right cheek, while the other occurs lower down on the left side.

Large silk veils in various colors have attractive designs of hand-run fibre lace. There is generally no conventional balancing of the design, but one place is favored with much decoration. These are worn with the afternoon gowns.

The production of "Wildfire," with Pauline Hall in the leading role at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday afternoon and night, was enjoyed by good-sized audiences, especially at night. Miss Hall was capital and brought to the minds of many her clever work of the past.

MIDDLEBROOK DEFEATS PARK GOLF CLUB TEAM

The Park Golf club engaged in a golf match with a team of ten men from the Middlebrook Country club, of Findern, on the local course, Saturday afternoon, and was defeated by a score of 12 to 6. The match was an interesting one throughout, but early in the play it was seen that the visitors were too strong for the Parks.

Walter C. McNaughton, Charles B. Morse, Rev. C. L. Goodrich and W. E. Lough were the only members of the home team that were up on their opponents. The match attracted a number of spectators to the course. The summary:

Park Golf club—Dr. H. K. Carroll, 0; Walter C. McNaughton, 1; W. R. Faber, 0; A. M. Morrill, 3; W. V. Byard, 0; Charles B. Morse, 1; R. B. Titsworth, 0; Samuel Townsend, 0; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 3; W. E. Lough, 1; total, 6.

Middlebrook Country club—W. V. Gano, 2; W. W. Bailey, 0; L. A. Riffert, 3; Charles Byer, Jr., 2; J. H. Ashley, 2; W. B. Perkins, 0; S. S. Green, 1; A. A. Pfanstiehl, 1; W. C. Richardson, 0; Howard Moore, 0; total, 12.

In the weekly competition for the President's, Golf club and Oakmont cups, these scores were posted:

Walter C. McNaughton, 94, 11-83; J. B. Betts, 109, 25-84; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 94, 9-85; Nelson A. Miller, 106, 20-86; R. B. Titsworth, 101, 14-87; Charles B. Morse, 103, 12-91; W. V. Byard, 106, 14-92; Samuel Townsend, 117, 17-100.

TRIBUTE AS PATRIOT TO EX-CONFEDERATE

Captain Otis A. Glazebrook, of Elizabeth, chaplain of the Second Regiment, New Jersey National Guard, has been retired from active service by an executive order of Governor Fort, the captain having reached the age of 64 years. He is retired under the Vredenbergh act, and should that act be declared unconstitutional in the Court of Errors and Appeals, something which is rather expected, he will be on active duty again.

Notwithstanding that Captain Glazebrook fought in the Confederate army and was on the staff of General Stonewall Jackson when that Southern general was killed, Governor Fort takes occasion to say in the order of retirement: "His patriotism and love of country are unquestioned." This shows that the Governor considers the Civil War as over, and that the great peace which has reunited the country is not regarded as a myth.

During the Spanish-American war Captain Glazebrook served as chaplain of the old Third Regiment of this State. He is rector of Christ church, Elizabeth.

SKIRT DRAPERIES.

Skirt draperies are more wonderful than ever: on one embroidered gown a tulle drapery was carried over the shoulder, fastened to the hip by wreath of gold roses, from whence it hung below the knees. From here it was suddenly turned up and taken across the front of the skirt, so that it lay smooth over the opposite hip; it was draped in the same way across the back. Then it was caught and caught into the wreath of old gold roses.

Every conceivable tunic effect is used. One dress had a fairly long tunic at the back, which only extended to the sides, where it buttoned up with velvet buttons. The front part of this dress was a full tulle drapery, appearing under the back tunic. The front tunic had wide bands of embroidery and cordings horizontally disposed over it, while its hem was edged with a band of sable. The underskirt was arranged exceedingly full beneath the tunics.

Bodice Simplicity—The bodices are generally simple, while a remarkably versatile feature of the newest gowns is the sleeves. These are positively of all shapes and lengths, the indispensable condition being that they shall not be full below the elbow, otherwise the fullest possible license as to design is allowed. The most frequently used idea at present seems to be a very short oversleeve, sometimes set into a narrow band, but the sleeve fashion of this year's gowns is full below the elbow, otherwise the fullest possible license as to design is allowed. The most frequently used idea at present seems to be a very short oversleeve, sometimes set into a narrow band, but the sleeve fashion of this year's gowns is full below the elbow, otherwise the fullest possible license as to design is allowed.

Fur and Embroidery—Little touches of fur are to be seen on many of the frocks, and as to embroidery, very few toilets will be seen without some expensive touch of this description. On some frocks, especially those for evening wear, embroidery simply runs riot.

Approaching Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harrison Bennett, of Hollins, Va., announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Annie Mae Bennett, and Albert Henry Jacoby, of Pittsburg, a brother of Mrs. John J. Shafer, of East Front street, this city. The ceremony will take place at the Bennett home on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 27. Mr. Jacoby is a wealthy contractor.

ORANGE Y.M.C.A., 12; DUNELLEN, NOTHING

In a fast game at Dunellen Saturday afternoon, the Orange Y. M. C. A. football team defeated the Dunellen eleven by a score of 12 to 0. The teams were evenly matched and thrilling plays were the order of the day. Steelman, of Dunellen, made several brilliant end runs, and in one of them he was so vigorously tackled that his ankle was fractured, necessitating his quitting the game. Still, the game was a clean one throughout and both teams were complimented on their fair playing.

After Nolt, the young left back, had fumbled in the beginning of the first half, Lee, the right back, grabbed the ball and carried it 50 yards for a touchdown. In the same half Howe, the full back, made the second touchdown for Orange. Lee kicked both goals.

Dunellen played a better game than the Orange boys in the second half, but although she brought the ball to the Orange 10 yard line, was prevented from scoring.

The line-up:

Dunellen.	Orange.

RAHWAY SHUT OUT BY LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

The Plainfield High School football team won its second game of the season Saturday, deefating Rahway H. S., at Hope Common. The score was 17 to 0. The visitors put up a good fight, but the locals proved too skilful for them. Rahway started the game by kicking off and Phillips caught the ball and ran it to the 35 yard line. Plainfield tried a series of trick plays and then began hitting the line. This was kept up until Nash made a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal.

Rahway kicked off again and Nash rushed it to the 40 yard line. Then followed a lot of scrimmage in which the ball went to Rahway. They tried line hitting and then failed on a forward pass. In a few minutes the Plainfield boys had the ball and started trick plays. There was great enthusiasm when Doane made a touchdown on a forward pass.

In the second half, Plainfield kicked off and the Rahway man went down on the 25 yard line. Rahway soon lost the ball on a fumble and Nash, by constantly hitting the line, made a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal. The whole Plainfield team showed up fine, special credit going to the good interference by Phillips. The line bucking of Nash and backs did splendid work. The line-up:

The weekly chase of the members of the Watchung Hunt club, Saturday afternoon, was one of the best of the season. The hunt extended over a territory of about fourteen miles, starting at the water tower on North avenue and continuing through Scotch Plains, along the mountain valley to Fanwood, the point near Baltusrol, through Springfield and returning to Scotch Plains and the place of starting. The going was pretty stiff.

There were two spills, Miss Mildred Harrison, of Montclair, and Ruppert Anderson, of this city, going off in soft ground, and not sustaining serious injury. They were able to continue the chase. Those who followed the hounds were Miss Mildred Harrison, Miss Mabel B. Hooley, Ruppert Anderson, Charles W. Fisk, Charles P. Wilder, jr., Harry A. Bourne, Richard Waring, Louis Barjer, Chris. Camins and C. E. S. Bellows.

TIED THE EUREKA TEAM

Plainfield and Newark Seen in a Fine Exhibition of Association Ball.

TWO GOALS MADE FOR EACH.

Wind Favored the Visitors in Contest on Clinton Avenue Grounds Saturday Afternoon.

The Plainfield Association football club and the Eureka Field club, of Newark, played an exciting game on the Clinton avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon, which resulted in a draw, two to two goals. The game was called at 3:45 with the Plainfield team playing against a strong wind. The visitors took a long rush down-field and inside of the first five minutes had scored their first goal. This set the Plainfielders going, and they had some hard work, but the wind was so high and strong, that good judgment could be used to little advantage.

The Newark boys, at this stage of the game, were putting it over the local lads, when Sutton caught the ball at mid-field and rushing along the wing, passed two men, and centered the ball, where Hosie caught it, and banged it through. This made the teams equal now and every effort was made by each for the lead. There was no more scoring in the first half of the game.

On resuming play, the wind had gone down a bit, and better play was seen on both teams, Plainfield showed up a great deal better now, and a good try at goal was well saved by the Eureka's goal-keeper, but the ball was immediately returned, and Hosie rushing up, headed it through. With Plainfield now leading, the visitors played desperately, and the spectators showed the greatest excitement. Some clever work by the Eureka's backs, put the ball to mid-field, where their forwards succeeded in making a close try, which was cleverly saved by Jamison, but in was returned and in a scrimmage was put through.

Playing at two goals each now, the play was great, and the Plainfield team pushed for all they were worth, but a great defence by the Eureka back line kept them well at bay and they couldn't score. The time was called with a score of two goals each, and was a fair indication of the play by the teams. Never in the history of the local club has the spectators shown more enthusiasm or excitement, for during the last fifteen minutes of play, they shouted themselves hoarse.

Kenny, the new man in the Plainfield eleven, played a wonderful football, and will be a valuable addition to the local team. Sutton also played a remarkable game, showing a speed with the ball that was truly wonderful. Spalding played nicely during the second half, but the wind being strong, carried the ball out of play. Another match will doubtless be arranged with the Eurekas and it should attract a great crowd. The lineup:

Eureka.	Plainfield.
Gale	goal. Jamieson
Ford	right back. Henderson
Nixon	right half. J. Craig
A. Whiston	centre half. Kenny
Arnott	left half. McComb
J. Whiston	outside right. Spalding
Keller	inside right. Brabyn

STANDARD OIL CO. IS PRAISED BY FULLER.

In an address Sunday before the Men's Association of the First Baptist church, Bayonne, Col. Charles W. Fuller, the Bayonne legal representative of the Standard Oil Company, whose assessment has been increased $5,700,000 by Henry Hinse, jr., declared that the big corporation is not as black as it has been painted.

He declared that between Ida Tarbell, Theodore Roosevelt, Judge Landis and Mr. Hinse, the corporation has suffered more abuse than any other corporation in the United States.

"The abuse culminated," said Col. Fuller, "when Judge Landis, in an attempt to advertise himself throughout the world, decreed that $29,000,000 fine. Everybody has slung mud at the Standard Oil Company, and without just cause.

"In Northern Jersey the city halls have two mottoes tacked over their doors for the benefit of the large corporations. One reads, 'Welcome to our city,' and the other 'Soe et tu um,' which translated means 'Soak it to 'em.'

"All America should be proud of the Standard Oil Company because of its honorable business methods. It is not a merciless, grasping corporation. The men who control it have the tenderest of hearts and every year spend thousands of dollars to alleviate suffering."

TO DEEPEN ELIZABETH RIVER.

Senator Kean, Mayor Mravlag, City Council and Board of Trade Behind Project.

United States Senator Kean is anxious that the Elizabeth river, which is now being cleansed, be made navigable for boats of heavy draught and declares that when the time is opportune he will use his influence to have the government make an appropriation for the dredging of the stream. Heartily in favor of the proposed plan of making the river a source of commercial benefit to the city is the Elizabeth Board of Trade, Mayor Victor Mravlag and practically all the members of the Elizabeth Council.

Mayor Mravlag is an enthusiastic advocate of the plan to deepen the river's channel and straighten the course of the stream. He is also in favor of the appointment of a River and Harbor Commission which was provided for cities of the size of Elizabeth under an act of the last Legislature, and which will have the power to appraise and condemn water front property.

It is expected that as soon as the river is cleansed the City Council will take up the proposition to have the river dredged and its docks and piers improved. Rapid progress is being made on the building of the intercepting sewer, which will divert all the sewage from the stream.

LICENSES TO JERSEY HUNTERS.

Five Thousand Have Papers Necessary Before Going Hunting.

More than five thousand gunners' licenses have been take out in the northern section of the State, where the season, excepting for rabbits, opened on October 15. The season for the southern half opens on November 15, which marks the beginnings of the rabbit season in all parts of the State.

For the first time in six years deer may be shot, the season being limited to the Wednesdays of November. Only one deer may be taken by a hunter, no doe or fawn may be taken no dogs may be used in the chase and missiles larger than buckshot must not be used.

Plainfielders on the Jury.

The following Plainfielders were drawn at Elizabeth today for petit jury duty commencing Monday, October 25: Henry Piper, William F. Oliver, Howard Higgins, Frank J. Hubbard, Henry C. Paul, Chauncey F. Stout, Charles W. Eoff, Joseph Allen and John P. VanEps.

COAL'SBY-PRODUCTS

TAR ONE OF THE MOST VALUABLE IN COKE MAKING.

Splendid Work Done by Chemists in Working Up Useful Substances from This Once Despised "Waste" Material.

Few are familiar with the completeness with which former wasted elements of coal are recovered and transformed into valuable products in the manufacture of coke from hard coal.

It is not so long ago that gas works were paying to have one of these by-products, then called a waste-product, carted away from the works. This was tar. Not only was no revenue derived from it, but it actually cost money to get rid of it. Now, this tar is one of the most valuable by-products in coke making. From every ton of coal converted into coke about nine gallons of coal tar are produced, and the history of chemistry tells of no more skilful work than was done in working up useful and valuable products from this black, sticky mass.

Over 200 separate substances have been isolated from tar. Of the first importance are anthracene and naphthalene. Anthracene, in a pure state, is a beautiful yellow crystal, and is the starting point for a series of the well-known coal tar dyes. Naphthalene is also the basis of a series of dyes, but is better known in the form of moth-balls. Although coal tar is black, the naphthalene comes out of it as white as snow.

Two other important products obtained from the tar are carbolic and cryaylic acids. The uses of these two products as disinfectants and germicides need no description. But there is another use for carbolic acid which is not so generally known, viz., that transforming of it into picric acid by treatment with concentrated nitric acid. This picric acid is the base for deadly "high explosives." And, strangely enough, after you have shot a man to pieces with picric acid, you can allay his pain with the same thing, for picric acid has a place in surgery.

Books have been written on the products obtained from coal tar, but here we can but touch upon the subject, and we may conclude with the mere mention of creosote oil for preserving timber, etc., of pitch for roofs and for roads, of pyridine for denaturing alcohol. We must leave untouched the great number of complex chemicals which are either used themselves or are transformed into other substances in a never-ending cycle.

Besides the tar, every ton of coal made into coke from hard coal produces about 5½ pounds of pure ammonia, which is equivalent to about 22 pounds of ammonium sulphate, a fertilizer of unrivaled merit. This fertilizer is made from the ammonia by combining it with sulphuric acid, or oil of vitriol. Or the ammonia may be converted to the liquid ammonia of the drug stores, or it may finally appear as real liquid ammonia, which is pure ammonia gas liquified by pressure and cold.

Further uses of ammonia are as smelling salts and the carbonate of the baker, which makes possible all the modern dainty confections. The ammonium chloride used in batteries also is derived from the coal which goes to make coke.

Other products of commercial importance derived from the hard coal coke processes are benzol and toluol. From benzol nitro-benzol is made, and from that aniline is made, and from aniline springs a series of dye-stuffs of such importance that millions of dollars are invested in plants for their manufacture. Besides making dyes, benzol and toluol have a multitude of uses. Benzol is the best solvent known for organic compounds, and is used for extracting grease from garbage, in the "degreasing" of hides, in varnishes, shellac, varnish removers; for dissolving rubber, waxes and gums. Toluol in general is used for similar solvent purposes. One important use for benzol is gas enrichment. One per cent. of benzol vapor introduced into ordinary coal gas will increase its luminosity by about 12 candles.

There are many strange things with strange names made from benzol and toluol, and their development during the last century is one of the beacon lights of chemical history.

Jerry and Joe.

Jerry Simpson loved to work off jokes on prominent men who "got after" him. He and Joe Cannon, now speaker, had many lively tilts. One day Jerry made a rip-snorting anti-expansion speech in the house; just the kind that a Populist like Jerry could make.

"Had you made that speech in Manila," said Cannon, getting the floor and leveling his finger at the Kansas congressman, "you would have been tried by a drum-head court-martial and shot."

"Well," replied Jerry, "I would just as leave be shot in Manila for making a speech of that kind as to be shot in congress by an old smooth-bore brass Cannon from Illinois."

That reply tickled Tom Reed so much that he came up to Jerry and said: "That was all right, Jerry. I forgive you a lot of things for that!"—Kansas City Journal.

Not That Way in Life.

"Wives are always so trustful on the stage."

"Which shows that realism on the stage is an utter myth."—Louisville Courier Journal.

HOW TO MAKE FINE BISCUITS

Only Ordinary Ingredients and a Little Time and Trouble Requisite.

These biscuits are delicious, the tops and bottoms being crisp and delicately brown. Take one pint of milk, one teaspoonful of lard, two teaspoonfuls of butter, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, one heaping teaspoonful of salt, half a yeast cake, one egg, six cupfuls of flour. Put the milk on the stove in a double boiler, together with the butter, lard, salt and sugar. When milk has become scalded let it cool to blood heat, dissolve the yeast in a little cool milk and add to the milk in the boiler. Into the bucket or bowl in which the biscuits are to rise sift two cupfuls of flour. Mix to a stiff batter with the milk that has been prepared, beat the egg light and add it to the mixture, then beat the batter as beating for a cake and cover closely; let it rise in a warm place. For six o'clock tea put the sponge to rise about ten o'clock in the morning, at three o'clock in the afternoon have a mold of sifted flour on the breadboard—about three cupfuls—and knead as for ordinary bread until the dough is soft enough to handle easily, then roll out about half an inch in thickness; cut with a small cutter. Brush the tops of the biscuit with melted butter and lard; do not let them touch each other. Set in a warm place and let rise about two hours. Bake from 15 to 20 minutes in hot oven.

A child's broom, purchasable for a small amount at any department store, is an excellent article for cleaning behind the radiators.

Orange Charlotte.

One-third box of gelatin, one-third cup of cold water, one-third cup boiling water, one cup sugar, juice one lemon, one cup orange juice and pulp, whites of three eggs. Soak the gelatin in cold water till soft, add the boiling water, sugar and lemon juice. Strain and add the orange juice and a little of the grated rind. Cool in a pan of ice water, and when it begins to harden beat in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Serve with a custard made with the yolks of the eggs, one pint of milk, three heaping tablespoonfuls sugar and a little salt. Flavorr to taste. Or it is fine cut up in little cubes and served with whipped cream.

Saratoga Chips.

Select potatoes of rather large size, pare them, and, with a cutter or slicer, cut into thin slices. Drop as soon as sliced in cold water. Drain a few at a time and dry thoroughly on a cloth. Have ready a kettle of smoking hot fat. Drop in a handful at a time, stir with a fork to separate them and skim out on unglazed paper as fast as colored. Use a frying basket and the process is quicker. Put away the chips in a tin box lined with waxed paper. Sprinkle with salt the last thing before serving. To freshen, set them spread out in a pan with a moderately hot oven.

Seed Cake.

Half a pound of fine pastry flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one large teaspoonful of caraway seeds, three ounces of butter, three ounces of caster sugar, two eggs, one gill of milk.

Mix all the dry ingredients together. Cream the butter and sugar and then beat in the eggs (well whipped), and half the milk. Gradually sift in the dry ingredients—adding more milk if necessary. Bake in a quick oven for three-quarters to one hour. The oven must be hottest when the cake is first put in.

Rice Water.

An excellent substitute for milk is rice water. When boiling rice use plenty of water. When the rice is cooked drain off the water, setting it away to cool. It will thicken and when used in a cream of soup or puree requires no thickening.

Rhubarb Shortcake.

Make a dough as for strawberry shortcake. Cook rhubarb slowly, using no water, until done. Flavor with lemon or nutmeg and sweeten to taste. Split cake lengthwise and finish as with strawberries.

ELECTING CO. CHAIRMAN

Attorney General Says Candidate Must Be Duly Elected Member.

IS OF LOCAL IMPORTANCE.

Union County Republican Committee Rule Provides That Another May Be Selected.

That the chairman of a county committee must be a member of the committee is the essence of an opinion handed to Governor Fort Wednesday by Attorney General Wilson. The governor noted that the statute was silent on this proposition and put the question to his legal adviser.

The Union County Republican committee's rules provide that one other than a member of the committee may be elected chairman, but the present chairman has stated time and again that if he were not a duly elected member under no circumstances would he accept the chairmanship. As it is the local county's rule is abrogated.

The opinion follows:

"Honorable John Franklin Fort, Governor of New Jersey, Trenton, N. J.:

"Dear Sir—I am writing in response to your inquiry of October 11. You ask whether, in my opinion, the chairman of the county committee may be a person other than a member of the committee. The statute is entirely silent in relation to this matter. I am of the opinion that the chairman of the committee must of necessity be a person who has been elected a member of the committee.

"Very truly yours,

(Signed.) "EDMUND WILSON,

"Attorney General."

OFFERS OPPORTUNITIES FOR ABLE YOUNG MEN

Edmund S. Conklin, M. A., field secretary of the Springfield, Mass., Training School of the Young Men's Christian Association, spoke Wednesday afternoon to the boys of the senior class of Plainfield High School. He told of the good situations the right kind of young men could obtain with the association throughout the country.

Mr. Conklin declared that never before in the history of the association was there so pronounced a demand for skilled men for branch secretaries and physical directors. He said that over three hundred positions in association work are vacant for want of proper material to fill them.

There are no scarcity of applicants, the speaker stated, but the men after the jobs lacked in ability. He said that the Springfield institution boasts of the largest enrollment of its history this year, one hundred and sixty students being on the books. The entering class numbers seventy-two many of whom are college graduates.

Care of Lamps.

It is wise to look to the lamps most carefully, otherwise they not only will not burn brightly, but may emit an unpleasant odor. It is well to take the lamps entirely apart once in a while, and a new wick is not necessary, boil the old one in a solution of vinegar and water. Wash the bowl and burner in a solution of washing soda and water, and dry thoroughly.

Harry McDonough Will Sing.

Ben LaVere, whose full orchestra will furnish the music for the first annual dance of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association at Truell Hall, November 18, has engaged Harry McDonough, the popular singer, and a male quartet, to sing on that occasion. There will be plenty of extra two-steps and waltzes.

WILLIAM MINERD SUES WIFE FOR A DIVORCE

William Minerd, of North Plainfield, has brought action in the Court of Chancery to secure a divorce from his wife, Henrietta Minerd, on the charge of desertion. According to the affidavit submitted by the petitioner the couple were married in Westfield, November 11, 1906, by the Rev. C. J. Greenwood. A month after the marriage, it is claimed, Mrs. Minerd, who was then eighteen years of age, deserted her husband. The wife's maiden name was Henrietta Minerd.

Charles M. Dolliver, counsel for Minerd, submits an affidavit in which he declares that every reasonable effor has been made to locate the defendant so that notice of the suit could be served on her, but to trace of her present whereabouts can be secured.

Miller, of Essex; Walter Heritage, of Gloucester; Archibald E. Smith, of Hunterdon; Benjamin F. Crosby, of Ocean; Edward T. Moore, of Passaic, and Lloyd Thompson and Carlton B. Pierce, of Union. Of the hold-over members of the Senate the Anti-Saloon League leaders say they can depend on Senator E. R. Ackerman, of Union, and Senator William H. Plummer, of Salem.

DISCUSS ICE PLANT FOR LOCAL HOSPITAL

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at its October meeting in the office of Mayor C. J. Fisk, listened to an exhaustive report from the special committee to which was previously referred the matter of the installation of an ice plant and cooling system at the hospital. Final action was deferred until the next monthly meeting. The finance committee was requested to report at that time on ways and means for meeting the cost of this and other needed improvements.

Number patients remaining September 1, 27; number of patients admitted, 61; total treated, 95; discharged cured, 41; improved, 6; not improved, 2; died, 6; total, 55. As to Jelly Bags.

"This is certainly the season of jelly-making," said a Newark housekeeper, "and jelly bags are in frequent use in some households. I wonder how many housewives have found out the wisdom of having a jelly bag pointed instead of straight across the bottom? I know that it was some time before I discovered the expediency of using a V-shaped bag and so bring up one of the lower corners of the bag, and so by this makeshift have a point. Now I make the bag V-shaped, and I find the jelly drips to much better advantage. Another thing: I always use my jelly bag wrong side out. Why? Because then it is easier to wash. If the seam is on the inside, the refuse of the fruit clings to it, and cannot be so quickly dislodged in the washing. But when turned, the inside is devoid of any little catch places."

William G. Mangan to Wed.

William G. Mangan, of South avenue, and Miss Alvina Giberson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Constance Giberson, of Atlantic City, will be married this evening at the home of the bride's parents. They will reside at 1217 Netherwood avenue upon their return. Mr. Mangan is a brother to Mrs. C. Edward Fincke, of South avenue, and is in charge of the soda water department at L. W. Randolph's pharmacy on West Front street.

"Bill Jones,"

"Bill Jones," a story of real life, is the subject of an interesting little story by Charles B. Brown, formerly of Plainfield, but now engaged in Y. M. C. A. work. He is using the story in his religious work.

Baxter, informing them of the recent action of the State Board of Education regarding medical inspection. Heretofore, it has not been compulsory, but under the new ruling it is obligatory upon the school authorities to provide such inspection and in accordance with the rules adopted by the State board. The ruling will not affect Plainfield or North Plainfield.

The action of the State board is for the purpose of securing a uniform rule in medical inspection. It is now compulsory for every board of education to appoint as medical inspectors, one or more physicians of the State board. The ruling will not affect Plainfield or North Plainfield.

SECOND REGT. MARKSMEN AGAIN SMASH RECORDS.

The Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., to which Co. K is attached, broke all records in the State for work on the rifle range this year. Announcement to this effect was made last night by the inspector of rifle practice at the meeting of the board of officers of the regiment in Trenton.

In 1908 the Second Regiment had the highest figure of merit for work on the rifle range ever received in the State, which was 53. In the work on the range this year the regiment made 90.60 for merit, which is an increase of thirty-seven per cent. over the record made last year.

Somebody's Finish.

"But, I say," yelled the "champion of the peepul," "where does the ultimate consumer come in?"

N. P. H. S. DEFEATS SOMERVILLE, 46 TO 0

The North Plainfield High School football team decisively defeated the Somerville High team at Somerville Wednesday by a score of 46 to 0. It was the Somerville boys first game of the season, and it brought out the fact that they lacked proper coaching. Their plays were usually misdirected and they failed to work as a unit. Again, the team is an unusually light one.

Captain Conroy, of N. P. H. S., made a wonderful 80-yard run for a touchdown. Carlton Smith, of the same team, distinguished himself with a number of successful line plunges.

Herbert Stine, right half for North Plainfield, kept the Somerville boys hustling all day. Stine is a rarely failed to gain on his dashes. Considering their rawness, the Somerville boys put up as hard a fight as could be expected and with plenty of the right kind of coaching they should develop into a formidable aggregation.

Three of North Plainfield's touchdowns were made by Carlton Smith, two by Russell Conroy, and one each by Edward Scott, Harry Smith and Herbert Stine.

STELLE PROPERTY SOLD BY 1ST BAPTIST CHURCH

At a special parish meeting of the First Baptist church Thursday, the trustees were authorized to make a sale of the Stelle property owned by the church to the Plainfield Real Estate Improvement Company, of which A. D. Thompson is the president. This tract, comprising about thirty-six acres, was bequeathed by the late Isaac M. Stelle to the First Baptist church, the Old Ministers' Home, New York, and the Baptist Home for the Aged at Roseville. It is situated on Park avenue, near Woodland avenue. A part of it is now used by the Log Cabin Gun Club.

It is understood to be the intention of the realty company to make some improvements in the property, including the erection of several dwellings. The consideration is said to be about $10,000. The property is not far from the Plainfield Country Club tract and is more valuable now than when deeded to the Baptist societies many years ago.

NOVEL DRESS ACCESSORIES.

In the adornment of all dress accessories one sees a lavish use of jet, bugles, beads, braids and small buttons. The high novelty in Paris is an claire de lune, or moonlight effects. These ornaments are not, as one might expect, opalescent, but are of a dullish gray color, and the process of manufacture is similar to that used in the manufacture of jet.

Belts are again worn in all widths of all sorts of wonderful ribbons in cloth of gold and flowered effects, with long-hanging streamers in the back, are once more in vogue. A novelty in gloves is the gauntlet of black kid. Kid gloves show no contrasting welting on the edge of the hand, but the seams of white gloves show black and the black white. The pale yellow chamois glove is the fad for street wear with tailored suits. White glace gloves are always in good taste for dressy wear.

Marabout ruches and muffs are unusually beautiful this season and are frequently brightened, if they are of gray or black, by violets or gardenias near the face. A beautifully gowned woman, the other evening wore a gray marabout ruche and interwoven with it was wide violet-shaded satin ribbon. These ribbons were tied in a huge bow in front, and hung well below the waist, ending in large silk tassels. Her gown was of percenche messaline silk, made cuirasse type, and with this she wore a hat of gray velvet with a percenche underbrim of moire, the only trimming being a large Paradise aigrette in white.

Autumn Hats.

It will be interesting to see, as the winter advances, whether women have really yielded to the ugly in feminine dress as to approve by adopting the queer productions of hatters and milliners which are offered in the early models of this season. It seems to me that only those will do so whose one idea of style is the new and the conspicuous; whose only claim to style is certain daring adoption of the latest, irrespective of its shape, color or becomingness. The new hats are a mere confusion of shapelessness, and I cannot help thinking that the woman of real taste will think twice before committing herself to any but the most conservative of them.—Marie Olivier, in Harper's Bazar.

RETAIL MERCHANTS TO MEET AT ELIZABETH

The next annual convention of the Retail Merchants Association of New Jersey will be held in Elizabeth. That city was selected as the meeting place by the members of the association at their meeting which ended Thursday at Paterson.

At the convention it was decided to endorse the plan of selling all vegetables by the pound instead of by the measure. It was decided to urge legislation making the weight system compulsory.

It was the consensus of opinion that weighing is by far the fairest and most satisfactory. All the members agreed that if vegetables were weighed instead of measured, both the storekeeper and the consumer would get a fairer deal for, scales are not so liable to be incorrect as measures, and there is less room for crookedness on the part of the wholesalers and retailers.

The convention favored strict enforcement of laws designed to prevent the opening of stores on Sunday.

The old officers were re-elected as follows: President, Edward H. Little, Delanco; vice-president, A. A. Smythe, Jersey City; secretary, Edward J. Thompson, Newark; treasurer, Theodore Reed Brunswick. The old committees were reappointed.

FRANKLIN COUNCIL ANNIVERSARY MEETING

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., Thursday observed its twenty-second anniversary in its lodge rooms. There was a large attendance, nearly one hundred members of the order present, including representatives from Somerset and Bellevidere Councils, of this city, and Roselle Council.

During the evening there was an excellent address by C. B. Trimmer, of Roselle Council. Remarks were also made by P. H. Latourette, George Watts and Alfred Branchau. After the speechmaking refreshments were served.

Franklin Council is the oldest and strongest of the Jr. O. U. A. M. in this city. It has a membership of 246, an increase of four in a year ago. The Council is in an excellent condition, financially and progressive.

TWELFTH-NIGHT CAKE.

Beat one-fourth of a pound of butter to a cream, add one-fourth of a pound of fine white sugar, three well beaten eggs, a pinch of salt, two cupfuls of flour in which have been sifted two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, the grated rind of half a lemon, one-fourth of a pound of cleaned currants, one-fourth of a pound of seeded raisins and two ounces of mixed candied peel cut in tiny slips. Beat all thoroughly together. Thoroughly wash and sterilize a button and a dime, and drop them in the dough. Turn into a cake tin lined with buttered paper, and bake in a moderate oven until done. When the cake get quite cold before icing it, then turn it upside down and ice the under side, as it will be even and smooth. For a rich and delicious icing make a thick paste with the whites of seven fresh eggs, two and one-half pounds of powdered sugar and one-half a spoonful of lemon juice. Spread it over the cake with a thin, broad-bladed knife of spatula, occasionally dipping it in cold water. Let the cake stand twenty-four hours until the icing is firm. Ornament the cake in any way preferred. An English Twelfth-night cake is very pretty. After icing it as directed above, small red and white candles are arieing in the form of a star, each candle having a circle of pinkitted icing piped around its base. The cake is garnished around its base with a thick wreath of red-berried holly, and before it is placed on the table the candles are lighted.—Woman's Home Companion.

BURGLARS GET ALL SILVER IN SIGHT

Mrs. Stephen Whitney's House at Morristown Robbed of About $3,000 Worth.

Mrs. Stephen Whitney's home, "Fairlawn," in Morris Plains, was robbed Thursday night or early yesterday morning, and $3,000 worth of silverware taken. The robbers forced open a library window on the north side of the house and then went into the dining-room, where they gathered up everything in the nature of silver they could find. The Whitney's tablecloth was used to cart the silver away.

No one in the house heard any unusual noise during the night, and not until yesterday when servants went to the dining-room was the robbery discovered. There were 150 pieces of silverware taken, and most of it was marked "J. T. W." Pinkerton detectives were sent for yesterday and with County Detective Brennan are working on the case. There is no clue.

The theory of the detectives is that the goods were carted away in an automobile, as one was seen along the roadway late Thursday night.

NEW PRIMARIES LAW DENOUNCED BY STOKES

State Assessor David Baird and former Governor Edward C. Stokes have taken occasion to criticize the direct primary law, and from what they say on the subject it begins to look as if an effort would be made in the coming Legislature to secure a repeal, or at least a modification of the act.

Mr. Baird is especially emphatic in his condemnation of the scheme:

"It makes two elections and doesn't do any good," he declared. "It would be far better if all of the primary election laws were wiped off the statute books. Then let the two parties make their own nominations in their own way. If they made bad nominations they would be defeated at the polls, and that would end it. That is the way it should be."

Mr. Stokes' criticism of the present system is that the primary campaign and election stir up the voters and get everybody interested; and then after the polls are closed there is a reaction and it is doubly hard to get the voters interested in the election proper. He said:

"It isn't so bad where there are only two candidates for each nomination, but when there are four or five it is very troublesome. You might just as well put all their names on the regular ticket, for the successful nominee only wins by a plurality of the votes and does not represent the desire of a majority."

FIGURES VS. STYLES.

Hats are the rocks upon which the large and the small woman come to grief. Hats with immense crowns and brims can be carried with dignity by the large woman. They give a certain proportion at the top which makes for a pleasing effect. But the little woman with the small face should be conservative in her selection and pass by the tempting mammoth styles. She should avoid the broad brim, which will cut off the height. The smaller turbans, with less bulk of trimming, are better.

The girls with large and full face, with soft features and fluffy hair, can wear with safety either a stiff, severe hat or the drooping lingerie. But the woman who has sharper lines of the face and who wears her hair in the prevailing fashion must eschew the inappropriate drooping style. Long faces may be apparently shortened by wide hats.

Probably the best guide in obtaining good lines is the golden mean. Avoid the extreme or the sensational and don't foolishly rush in where the more successful dresser fears to tread. Remember that in following the edicts of any new style the figure of the wearer must be considered. To gain proportion in the ultimate effect a "balancing" treatment of line is good. And, like a golden thread recurring at many points, let the individuality of the wearer be seen in the resultant effect.

NEW YORK IN DANGER OF FOUR-FOOT BALLOT.

The ballot to be voted at the municipal election in New York city on November 2 will be the largest sheet in the city's history, if the Board of Elections decides that all the certificates of nominations that have been filed are valid.

The sheet, which measures four feet five inches wide and fifteen inches deep, will contain the names of 1,000 candidates in twenty-one columns, each column containing a different party emblem. Most of the election booths are three and a half feet wide and it will be necessary to erect larger booths so that a voter can avoid tearing the ballot, as a torn ballot is subject to suspicion and in danger of being thrown out.

CONGREGATIONAL JUNIORS HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church held its annual meeting in the church Friday afternoon, when officers were elected for the coming year and reports of the past year's work was received. The society was found to be in an excellent condition, spiritually and financially.

These officers were elected:

President, Carter L. Goodrich; vice president, Elizabeth Martin; secretary, Florence Neilsen; treasurer, Harold Tomlinson; chairman missionary committee, Esther Helstrom; chairman social committee, Helen Weseman; chairman lookout committee, Holmes Fowler; chairman music committee, Henry Brandt.

Fashionable Autumn Colors.

These greens and blues are voiles, and in evening and afternoon satins and silks.—Harper's Bazar.

CHAS. P. TITSWORTH WEDS

Son of David E. Titsworth Marries Miss Sarah Rebecca Babcock.

AT LEONARDSVILLE NEW YORK.

Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Main Officiates.

Couple to Reside In This City Following Their Honeymoon.

At Leonardsville, N. Y., Thursday afternoon there was a wedding of interest to Plainfielders, when Charles Potter Titsworth, of the Potter Printing Press Company, married Miss Rebecca Babcock, daughter of H. D. Babcock, president of the Babcock Manufacturing Company, of Leonardsville.

The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, which was tastefully decorated with palms and autumn leaves, and was performed by Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Main, a former pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of this city, and now dean of the Theological Seminary at Alfred University, Alfred, N. Y.

The matron-of-honor was Mrs. Ralph M. Briggs, of Ashaway, R. I., who wore a handsome gown of silk green and carried pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Roy Edward Titsworth, as best man. The ushers were Dr. Laurence Saunders, of New York; Ralph M. Briggs, of Ashaway, R. I.; George L. Babcock and Edwin M. Daniel, 2d, of Plainfield.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin princess gown en train, trimmed with duchesse lace, a veil caught up with orange blossoms, and a diamond and pearl crescent, the gift of the groom. Her bouquet was of lillies of the valley. The music was furnished by Mrs. Wheeler and Prof. Asalta, of Utica, on harp and organ.

Just as the bridal party reached the chancel, the sun, which had been clouded for a time, shone through the stained glass windows, flooding the scene with golden splendor, a bright omen of a happy future.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. Babcock, which was largely attended by many guests from Leonardsville and nearby places, and a company who came in a special car from Plainfield. Mr. and Mrs. Titsworth were assisted in receiving by Miss Agnes Babcock, the bride's sister, and Mrs. Titsworth, the mother of the groom. The house was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums, roses and pinks. Refreshments were served by Owen, of Utica. Many elegant gifts, rich in variety, gave evidence of the high esteem in which the young couple are held by their host of friends. After their wedding journey the couple will make their home at 909 Madison avenue, this city.

Among those at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. David E. Titsworth, the groom's parents; Mr. and Mrs. I. Allan Babcock, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Sheppard, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Briggs, of Ashaway, R. I.; Saunders, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Miss Dorothy Hubbard, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard, Miss Ethel Titsworth, Miss Ruth Potter Maxson, Mrs. Arthur L. Titsworth, Miss Mary T. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Babcock, Edwin M. Daniel, 2d, and Roy Edward Titsworth, all of Plainfield.

THOUGHT-DRIFT.

Dim hour by hour through autumn's wane
The silkweed lets her plumes adrift;
They rove—they sink—and yet again
Upon the wavering breeze they lift.

No count is made of where they roam;
They are not lost—yet none may lost—
Soft wanderers without a home,
Yet scathless to the sworded frost.

Not otherwise dim hour by hour
I shed white thoughts into the wind
Sole drift of my life's vanished flower;
They are not lost—yet none may

Wedding Ring Curiosities.

The idea that the wedding ring should be worn on the third finger of the left hand because "a nerve connects this finger with the heart," is, says the writer of an article in Woman's Life, of Roman origin, but, oddly enough, it is not confined on the continent as is England, for in France, Belgium and Germany, and most other European nations, the "engagement ring" finger is the third finger on the left hand, while the "wedding ring" finger is the third finger of the right hand.

Borough Tax Rate $2.18.

The tax rate in the borough for the coming year has been raised from $2.09 to $2.18 on the hundred, because of the fact that the Borough Council has established a contingent fund of $1,000 for the coming year, making the fund rate .51, instead of .51. It has always been the custom to provide such a fund and this year it was decided that $1,000 would be needed.

CITY WON'T ACCEPT PARK

For Several Reasons, Chiefly the Expense—Syndicate's Offer is Refused.

TOO MANY CONDITIONS IN IT.

Realty Concern Too Exacting and Whole Proposition Is Given Up by City Fathers.

Following closely upon the announcement that the Common Council, through its public affairs committee, has decided not to enter into any agreement with North Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Fanwood or Dunellen to establish one large sewage plant, comes the information that a similar action has been taken regarding the city park proposition. The Common Council is of the opinion that not only would the expense be too great, but that the time is not ripe for such an improvement and that the proposition has too many conditions attached to it.

The New York syndicate, which purchased the large tract of land in the West End of the city and borough and then made a proposition to deed a considerable part of it to the city and borough for park purposes, has incorporated a condition in the proposition which the Common Council will not agree to. It is that within one year after the land is taken over by the city it must be fully developed.

Just what is meant by "fully developed" is too indefinite and would likely involve the city and borough in a tangle. Besides, the expense of the whole thing is believed to be beyond reason. For instance, the opening of what is known as the North road, which would extend into the borough, would entail an expense of several thousand dollars, and as the greater part of the road would be in the borough, it would always furnish a question for debate.

Recently, representatives of the New York syndicate, together with members of the Common Council and Shade Tree Commission inspected the land and there was a question of doubt on the part of some as to the wisdom of making the improvement. There is no doubt but that the land in question would make a fine park after being properly developed, but under the present circumstances the proposition does not seem feasible and it would be impossible to secure a sufficient number of votes in the Common Council to accept it. The decision of the members is that the syndicate should make another offer containing more advantageous terms. In view of the high tax rate for the coming year, which has not been received by the taxpayers any too kindly, the tendency of the Common Council is toward retrenchment.

This idea was largely uppermost in the minds of the Common Council when discussing the joint sewage question. Aside from the heavy expense that such an improvement would lead to, it is said that Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh has informed the Councilmen that there is a question of legality involved, that is, it is doubtful whether Plainfield would have the right to make an agreement with the nearby towns to take care of the sewage This being the case the councilmen naturally were slow to take action. The recent decision to drop this matter appears to have met with the approval of a majority of Plainfield taxpayers, even though there is disappointment in North Plainfield and the other interested municipalities.

CUCUMBER PICKLE.

Slice the cucumbers about one inch thick, soak half for one hour in weak alum water; take out and lay in cold water; let remain till perfectly cold; then boil again in fresh alum water half an hour; drain the fruit well; make a syrup of one pound of sugar to each pound of fruit; to four pounds of fruit one pound of cider vinegar; boil the syrup, then put in the fruit and boil it till transparent. Add mace, and if the syrup is not thick enough continue to boil after the fruit is removed. When cold sprinkle in some white mustard seed.

BP. M'FAUL CELEBRATES

Solemn High Mass Marks the Fifteenth Anniversary of His Consecration.

MONSIGNOR FOX'S ADDRESS.

Bishop of the R. C. Diocese of Trenton Responds—His See Includes 135,000 Souls.

Bishop McFaul yesterday celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of his consecration as bishop of the diocese of Trenton, and in honor of the event at Trenton pontificated at solemn high mass yesterday morning at 9 o'clock.

These priests assisted: Rev. Father James J. Powers, assistant priest; Rev. Father Henry Ward and Rev. Dr. Rathner, deacons of honor; Rev. Father Thomas F. Rudden, deacon of the mass; Rev. Father C. P. Prendergast, subdeacon, and Rev. Father Arthur D. Hassett, master of ceremonies. Among the priests in attendance was Rev. William E. Miller, pastor of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield. The music was furnished by the chancel choir, under the direction of Rev. Dr. R. C. Griffin.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor John H. Fox tendered to Bishop McFaul the congratulations and good wishes of the priests of the diocese and of the people following the mass.

Monsignor Fox said it would be a most interesting story and instructive lesson to review the splendid record of those fifteen years, but he would content himself by offering the sincere congratulations of the clergy and laity for the great work accomplished by the bishop and to offer him the assurance of steadfast loyalty for the future as well as hearty co-operation in all his undertakings.

Concluding his remarks, Monsignor Fox said: "Let us thank God today that after those fifteen years the bishop enjoys such splendid health, and let us pray God to give him many, many years of health and vigor to continue his magnificent work."

Bishop McFaul, in addressing the congregation, expressed his gratification at seeing such a large number present, and said he could hardly realize that he has surpassed in years the reign of Bishop O'Farrell, his distinguished predecessor.

Continuing, Bishop McFaul said that in looking over the period of his reign as bishop, and, in fact over the whole term of his priesthood, now amounting to more than thirty-two years, nearly all of which was spent in the diocese of Trenton, he could reiterate the words of Monsignor Fox and say that it was due to the fidelity, loyalty and co-operation of the priests and the people that his priestly and episcopal career has been rendered so happy. He dwelt at length on the press of the State, for which he had warm words of praise.

Speaking of the future, the bishop asserted that he saw a marvelous development for the diocese of Trenton, located as it is between New York and Philadelphia, as it was his opinion that at a day not so far distant there would be one continuous city along the sea coast from Jersey City to Cape May. In his term as bishop the population of the diocese has increased from 60,000 to 135,000.

Frank H. Cole Visiting Here.

Frank H. Cole, son of the Rev. David Cole, who, many years ago was pastor of the Reformed church at Millstone, is the guest of William A. Coddington for awhile. Mr. Cole is a resident of Los Angeles, Cal., having previously lived at Denver, Col. It is five years since Mr. Cole left the East for the West. While in Denver he was on the staff of the Denver Post. He is now in the East on business and will remain here about a month. The annual conference of the New Jersey Methodist Protestant church began today in the First church, Bridgeton. Rev. L. D. BALL PLAYERS BANQUET

Y. M. C. A. Team Holds Its Annual Feast in Association Hall.

G. C. M. SMITH TOASTMASTER.

Speeches Are Made by Herbert E. Parker and George L. Listman—Dinner Served By the Auxiliary.

The third annual banquet to the Y. M. C. A. baseball team, marking the close of the season, was given in the association parlors, last night, under the direction of the physical department, of which George C. M. Smith is the chairman. He acted as toastmaster of the evening. The only speakers were Secretary H. E. Parker and Physical Director George L. Listman, the latter giving some interesting figures by way of comparison, showing the work of the 1908 and 1909 teams.

These showed that the team made the poorest showing this year, principally due to the lack of good pitchers. In many instances the local team excelled their opponents in various departments of the game, all of which proved encouraging to Mr. Listman and the players. They are looking forward to next season in the hope that the best team ever will represent the association.

A fine dinner was prepared and served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the association, those in charge being Mrs. Charles F. Dayton, Mrs. Charles VanWinkle, Mrs. William C. Hubbard and Mrs. H. E. Parker At the close three rousing cheers were given for the women. The dinner included all the good things from soup to ice cream and coffee, with turkey in abundance. While the dinner was in progress, Schuyler Line entertained the company with a number of popular selections on the phonograph, including several good baseball records.

It was expected that James Everitt Kimball, president of the association, would preside at the dinner, but he was called out of the city, and Mr. Smith was asked to take his place.

Secretary Parker, the first speaker, said that he was not present as a guest, but as a fellow-player, he having taken part in one of the important contests of the schedule. He congratulated the boys on their good playing. Lining 3; While pennants there were no "Ty" Cobbs or "Honus" Wagners present, it was not the purpose of the association to develop such players, but rather men in the broad sense of the word.

Those present at the banquet were Secretary H. E. Parker, G. C. M. Smith, Physical Director G. L. Listman, manager of the team; C. W. Bingaman, assistant manager; C. H. Line, assistant physical director; Howard Craig, William Schoonmaker, George Linke, William Coyle, John Fritts, Frank Evans, Louis Slocum, Chauncey Murphey, Fred Stover, James Scott, Ralph Schoonmaker, members of the team; Victor Crook and Harry Dunn, who so faithfully looked after the bats during the season.

Endicott, were married at noon today at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Ella Serrell, 931 Union street. The ceremony was witnessed only by the immediate families. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the first Baptist church, of which the bride is a member, officiated.

The young couple, unattended, entered the room to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, rendered by Master C. Shelton Moora, boy soprano of Trinity church, New York, who was accompanied on the piano by Clifford A. Braider, a cousin of the bride.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Frederick E. Serrell, wore a travelling costume of lustrous silk chiffon broadcloth in canyon blue, made with a braided princess tunic and embellished with silver glace cloth and silver lace. A picture hat of black beaver with long willow plumes and a matching blue shade completed the costume. Bride roses and lilies of the valley composed the shower bouquet carried by the bride.

The house was tastefully adorned with autumn flowers. Yellow chrysanthemums were used in the table decorations, and a profusion of palms and white chrysanthemums were banked in the corner of the living room where the ceremony took place.

In the exchange of gifts, the groom received from the bride a diamond and topaz stick pin, while a silver-mounted shot gun was the groom's gift to the bride, who is an adept in the use of firearms. After a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Endicott will make their home at Cosgin Hall, a plantation in Prince George county, Virginia.

Shifting the Responsibility.

A youthful versifier sought the judgment of a well-known critic.

"Sir," said the poet indignantly when the expert had advised to burn his lines, "poets are born, not made!"

"Young man," rejoined the critic, smiling, "do not try to shift the blame on to your parents!"—Philadelphia Press.

OBSERVE SILVER WEDDING

Relatives and Friends Join With Mr. and Mrs. Blair in Celebration.

SUPPER FOLLOWS THE MUSIC.

Couple Receive Many Handsome Presents and Warm Congratulations of the Guests.

A goodly number of relatives, some of whom came from Brooklyn and Port Chester, N. Y., and a few close friends, joined with Mr. and Mrs. Marcus R. Blair in the celebration of their crystal wedding anniversary at their home on Duer street last night.

An informal musical program was one of the particularly enjoyable features of the evening, the chief artist being Mrs. William F. Stewart, cousin of the celebrants, who rendered some Scottish ballads, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Florence Stewart, at the piano. Several years ago as Miss Jenny Blair, Mrs. Stewart was widely known as the "Jenny Lind of Jersey City." William Stewart, Mrs. Harry DeMeza and Miss Alice Sharkey rendered popular airs at the piano.

Many beautiful gifts were tendered the couple, among them an artistic gas dome, a mission chair, and a pastel of a sunset painted especially for the occasion by an aunt, Mrs. James Craig, of Dunellen, who presented it.

The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Blair, of this city, both of whom are well in the eighties, were present, but the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doud, of Westfield, were unfortunately unable to attend. Among the relatives of the celebrants present were Mr. and Mrs. William F. Stewart, and family, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Anderson and family, of Port Chester; Mr. and Mrs. James Craig and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Craig, Mr. and Mrs. William Craig and family, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Craig, all of Dunellen; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McVoy and family, and Mr. William Doud, of Westfield; and Mr. and Mrs. Adam C. Blair and family, Dr. Thomas Blair, Mr. and Mrs. David C. Boyce and family, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Case and family, all of this city. Of these Mrs. H. C. McVoy, was the bride's sister, and William Doud, her brother. Mrs. David C. Boyce and Mrs. Willis Anderson are the groom's sisters and Dr. Thomas Blair and Adam C. Blair, the groom's brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair were married fifteen years ago by Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and have resided in Plainfield ever since.

LIGHT VOTE CAST HERE

Republicans Make a Clean Sweep at Quietest Election in Many Years.

BUXTON IS BADLY CUT.

As was generally expected there was little interest taken in this city at the general election yesterday. Only about forty per cent. of the total vote was cast and as usual the Republicans had an easy thing of it.

On the city ticket, William R. Townsend, for tax collector, was again high man among the Republicans. Herbert Buxton, nominee for ward councilman in the Fourth, was badly cut but this was no great surprice for it was known that there was an axe out for him.

Frank W. Smith, for county register, made a remarkable run here, his total vote being equal to that of the candidate of coroner, which is an unusual thing. Despite the efforts to defeat Pierce, for assembly, the Cranford man ran but seventy-two votes behind Thompson, who was high man on the assembly ticket The vote cast in Plainfield follows:

SMALLEY EASY WINNER

Republican Mayoralty Candidate Has Walk-Over in the Borough.

G. O. P. VICTORY IS COMPLETE.

As expected Newton B. Smalley had a walkover in the North Plainfield mayoralty race in which his opponent was William Lunger, the nominee of the Prohibition party. Just about half the registered vote was polled and little interest was manifested in the election. Smalley was victorious over the cold water candidate by a majority of 465 votes, the former mayor receiving a total of 582 votes in the three districts to 117 received by Lunger. Former Coroner Henry De Mott, by the way, received one vote for Mayor in the Third district.

As a rule elections in the borough have been very hot affairs but yesterday's election can be recorded as the mildest event in the borough's political history. The apathetic spirit did not only extend to the ranks of the voters but also to the workers. It was a foregone conclusion that Smalley would be elected and the lack of aggressiveness among the Democrats was responsible in a large measure to the inactivity of the G O. P. workers.

In the Councilmanic race M. C. Van Arsdale and Barzilla P. Waldron were re-elected by majorities of 442 and 441 respectively over William J. Trembath and George W. Winans, the Prohibition candidates. Trembath proved a popular candidate and the was responsible in cutting into Van Arsdale's vote considerably.

Interest was also at a low ebb in the Assembly race as the vote shows, but W. W. Smalley, the present incumbent, received a plurality of 285 votes over Charles A. Moran and George H. Murphy, the Democratic and Prohibition nominees. The total vote follows:

THE NEXT LEGISLATURE

The Republicans Will Have Thirty-One Majority on a Joint Ballot.

CONTROL BOTH BRANCHES.

The Republicans won both houses of the New Jersey Legislature yesterday, the Assembly standing 41 Republicans to 19 Democrats, a loss of one over last year, while the Senate showed a gain of two Republicans, now standing: Republicans, 15; Democrats, 6.

Little interest was shown by the voters in the election, as outside of the sixty Assemblymen, only eight Senators were chosen. Six of the latter, who were elected for full terms, will have a vote for a successor to United States Senator John Kean in 1911. The Legislature chosen yesterday will, in joint session, select a State Treasurer, to succeed Daniel S. Voorhees, a Republican.

HOT FIGHT IN DUNELLEN

Republicans Elect Sanford Mayor Over Starker by Majority of 17 Votes.

HAD BIG ROW AT THE POLLS.

Dunellen had a rather hot election, and when the votes were counted last night it was discovered that Republicans and Democrats had fought a drawn battle and divided the spoils on an even basis. The borough placed itself in the Democratic column by giving George Silzer, Democratic candidate for re-election, a majority of four votes over Judge Hicks, the Republican nominee.

In the mayoralty contest, William A. Sanford, Republican, triumphed over Charles F. Starker, Democrat, by a majority of 17. The Republicans also captured the collectorship by re-electing Isaac J. Stites. On the other hand the Democrats re-elected Assessor Peters by a handsome majority and also elected two councilmen, Hebert F. Bogardus and Chas E. Richards.

The election was a great "carving contest." Out of the 644 ballots cast only 216 were straight, while 428 were cut.

With the exception of one incident the election passed off without a ruffle. At 10 o'clock in the morning excitement reigned for a short period when John Y. Wilson, a Democratic worker complained to special election deputy that the Republican headquarters was inside of the 100 feet limit of the polls. Wilson and George Huff engaged in a wordy wrangle on the sidewalk opposite borough hall for half an hour on the subject. The deputy declared that half of the building was inside of the 100 feet and despreated his measurement with a chalk part in the middle of the sidewalk in front of the G. O P. rooms.

Huff, however, refused to accept the measurement and went to his home for a tape rule. In company with Wilson he measured the distance and found the headquarters to be 125 feet distant from the polling place. Wilson accepted Huff's measurement and apologized to Huff for his part in the argument. After this dispete everything was plain sailing.

Interest centered in the election of Mayor and tax collector and candidates of both parties had a small army of electioneers who remained on duty from the opening to the close of the polls. There were scores of small bets placed during the day, the largest wager being made by Fred Vail, who bet $20 with Goldson Smalley, that Starker, the Democratic candidate would defeat Sanford, the Republican nominee.

Those who took an active part in booming the G. O. P. ticket were Henry S. Garretson, Albert N. Randolph, George Huff, Lewis Churchill and Abner Coriell, while John A. Logan, former Mayor William Wyckoff, candidate for collector, Owen Mohan and J. Y. Wilson did missionary work for the Democratic cause.

Republican headquarters, in the Kraisel building were open all day and were in charge of county committeeman Wilson Fredericks. The Democrats had no headquarters and were obliged to do all their work on the sidewalk.

For Mayor—Sanford, R., 216; Starker, D., 199.
For Council—Bogardus, D., 246; Richards, D., 214; Todd, R., 189; Campbell, R., 187.

MILLER P.H.S. CHAMPION

School Sophomore Wins Three Firsts and Two Seconds in Field Meet.

BRINGS VICTORY TO 1910 CLASS.

Seniors and Juniors Outclassed in Annual Interclass Sports at Driving Park Track.

Russell Miller, Class '10, P. H. S., won the championship at the annual inter-class field meet held at the Plainfield Driving Club park Friday afternoon. Ernest Van Zandt was second in points and Nelson Ramsey finished third. The winning class was 1910, while 1911 was a close second. Miller and Ramsey won all the short distance runs and Todd, Van Zandt, Vail and Runyon, were victorious in the jumping and shot put. Owing to the strong wind no records were made.

The meet was considered one of the best in recent years and attracted a large and strong list of entries from the High School classes. It was held under the auspices of the athletic association of the school. The summaries:

50 yard dash—Won by Ramsey; second, Runyon; third, Hanhahan; time, 7 1-5 seconds.

100 yard dash—Won by Miller; second, Vail; third, Ricketts; time, 11 3-5 seconds.

220 yard dash—Points divded between Ramsey and Miller; second, Vail; time, 25.3 seconds.

440 yard dash—Won by Miller; second, Ramsey; third, Earle; time, 1 m., 1 1-5 seconds.

880 yard run—Won by McDonough; second, Miller; third, Earle; time, 2, 40.2 seconds.

Running high jump—Won by Runyon; second, Van Zandt; third, Todd; distance, 5 ft. 9 in.

Running broad jump—Won by Van Zandt; second, Miller; third, Ricketts; distance, 17 ft. 7 in.

Pole vault—Won by Van Zandt; second, Todd; third, Riffert; height, 8 ft.

The tug of war was won by the class of 1910. For the first three winners of the meet the points are; Miller, 20; Van Zandt, 16; Ramsey, 12. The starter was Paul Collier; timer, Roy Woodhull; announcer, John Riffert; linesmen, Smith and Hamilton; clerk of the course, Bullock.

WARM SHIRTWAISTS.

The dotted challis waist is very new, very light in weight and very warm. Indeed, it is well forth a second thought, and it invites the sensible woman or, better still, the sensible mother. Daughters are not very warmly clad these days, and it might be well to take some time for the consideration of the daily warm winter waist, be it shirtwaist or blouse.

There is not the least objection to the non-washable blouse if it be made of material that is not bulky, and worn on the right occasions. It involves more care than the durable white linen waist, and should be made with the idea of an occasional bath in warm, soapy water. Almost all challis will stand this treatment occasionally. This year there is a beautiful little model shown at an exclusive store that is made of this pretty, soft material, embroidered by hand over its entire surface; but there are evidences of carelessness in its make-up.

The little dots have, quite apparently, been embroidered first, since the seams cut them off at certain points. The ideal way to get around this difficulty, which really amounts to a defect, is to first cut out the blouse and fit it; then, with the seam lines marked, to embroider the separate pieces and remake the blouse. The small dots on the pretty sage-green challis were done in darker silk to bring it into harmony with its skirt.

On some woolen shirtwaists a single line of dots only appears down each side of the centre box pleat and on the cuffs. They are larger, the size of a pea, and are worked in a quite dark shade of the color shown in the material.

SLENDER FIGURE.

A pretty robe for a thin figure is in one of the new Nile tints shades in chiffon-cloth. The bodice, with a square-cut opening at the top, shows the body gathered quite full around the neck, except across the centre back, where a plastron of embroidery is set, and it is also gathered quite as full into the arm's eye seam, the edges being finished with half-inch cord covered with satin.

The skirt is also gathered full and hangs in straight folds with the overdrapery carried from the left side across the back to the right, where the folds are tucked up under and the wide end falls in a sash effect over the foundation.

The girdle is a sash knotted loosely at one side with fringed ends, and the guimpe is of cream lace over wisteria shaded chiffon, the lace ruched full to better supply any lack in the arms.

WEDDED FIFTEEN YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Bicknell Observe Happy Event at Their Home.

CONGRATULATIONS AND GIFTS.

Couple Was Married October 10, 1894 by Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson at Mt. Horeb —The Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Bicknell, of South avenue, celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding at their home, Friday, these being the fifteenth seventy-five relatives and friends present. Yesterday was not the exact date of the anniversary, it being October 10, but it was not convenient to hold it on the latter date and the plans were changed.

The home was tastefully decorated with autumnal foliage, cut flowers and chrysanthemums. During the *evening there was a program of vo*cal and instrumental music to enliven the occasion, while phonograph music added to the pleasure of the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Bicknell received a large collection of useful and valuable gifts from relatives and friends, many of whom were present at the marriage of the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Bicknell were married at the Mt. Horeb M. E. church, October 10, 1894, the Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson, formerly of the borough, but now of Nutley, performing the ceremony. The bride was Miss Ardana Codington, she being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barthalew Codington. Her father has since died, but her mother was present at the celebration last night. At the time Mr. Bicknell resided at Watchung, he being the son of Mrs. Stephen Bicknell, of that place. She was also present last night. Mr. Bicknell is now engaged in business as a wheelwright and blacksmith on South avenue.

Among those present last night were Mrs. Christiana Codington, mother of Mrs. Bicknell; Mrs. Stephen Bicknell, mother of Mr. Bicknell; Charles A. Codington, Reuben Codington, W. B. Codington, Mr. and Mrs. George Nuse, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer G. Smith, of Mt. Horeb; Miss Lillian Bicknell and Alfred Bicknell, of Watchung; Mrs. M. E. Smith, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. William R. Codington, Mrs. Eugene Gildes, Mrs. James Cashin, Miss Evelyn Cashin, Miss Gertrude Cashin, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cranston, Edward Cranston, Miss Grace Cranston, Alexander Dressler, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. CIVIL SERVICE LAW PROVES A BENEFIT

The New Jersey Civil Service law, which was fathered in the Legislature of 1908 by Senator Ernest R. *Ackerman, of Union county, and en*acted in the closing hours of that law-making session in face of fierce opposition by both Republican and Democratic politicians of great influence, has just rounded out its first year of administration by the bipartisan commission appointed by Governor Fort.

The application of the law during this initial twelve-month period, dating from October 10, 1908, to October 10, 1909, has resulted in putting 11,000 persons employed in the public service in New Jersey under protection of the legal barriers raised to nullify the traditional political war cry "To the victors belong the spoils of office." Of this total, 3,000 are engaged in work for the State government.

The balance is made up of employes engaged in duties for five cities—Jersey City, Newark, Bayonne, South Orange and New Brunswick—which have availed themselves of the option of taking advantage of the law, and one county—Essex. Under the Ackerman law it is compulsory for the State to surround its employes, excepting heads of departments, with civil service restrictions and regulations. With counties and cities the application of the law is optional.

ENGAGEMENT OF N. C. HILL AND MISS HELEN BOYD.

The engagement has been announced in Peekskill, N. Y., of Miss Helen Boyd, of that city, to Norman C. Hill, of 35 Westervelt avenue. Mr. Hill is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, of the class of '03, and of the civil engineering class of '07 of New York University.

Since finishing his course he has been a member of the engineering corps on the new Catskill aqueduct.

A Palm Suggestion.

Before taking the palms which have been outdoors during the summer into the house, carefully examine the back of every leaf to see if there are any scale bugs. If these tiny brown spots are the evidence, remove them with a blunt toothpick, so as to do as little harm as possible to the texture of the plant.

Reconsidered

By Nellie Cravey Cillmore

The girl hurried swiftly along the pavement. Her full red lips were pursed into a jacquemiot rosebud, while a tiny frown drew her black brows together in a way that boded no leniency toward the offender.

At the end of the square she paused and glanced anxiously up and down the intersecting street. With some impatience she drew forth her watch; but before she had had time to restore the jeweled timepiece to her belt, a man rounded the next corner, and came directly toward her. He, too, was walking swiftly, and with head bent. Within a few feet of the girl, he glanced up intuitively, a look of surprise chasing the latent gloom from his face.

"Zarelda?"

"I was obliged to see you," she remarked, icily, "to—to return—this. I wanted to be certain it was delivered safely." She drew from her bag a small square package and held it out to him.

Hayburn whitened. The ring! Not the one he had hoped to give her before long, but the little turquoise thing he had slipped upon her finger in the dear old boy-and-girl days, and which had been waiting there ever since to be returned by another.

"I—I'm afraid I don't quite understand, Zarelda," he said, hoarsely. "Has anything—gone wrong?"

"I have accepted Harry Borden," was all she said.

"At least I should think—don't you think—that you owe me some sort of explanation?" His eyes deepened.

The girl colored with her ready flush. "I have written," she faltered, "you will find the letter awaiting you at home. I omitted to—to inclose the ring, and that is why—why I came here."

The girl hesitated for an indeterminate second; the blood rose darkly to her temples. Then, with a little hi catch of her breath, she demanded: "Why did you take Lily Lester to the Carson's cotillon when we—"

"Why did you go there with Harry Borden?"

"I understood—from him—that you had asked her—"

"I asked her only when I learned that you and he were going together."

For an instant they stood there with locked eyes.

"It was all a horrible mistake, Zadie," Hayburn said at last, "for which our life's happiness will have to pay the penalty."

To his astonishment the girl turned from him abruptly. "You were ridiculously attentive to her, anyway," she hurled at him angrily over her shoulder. "Good-by." She walked rapidly down the avenue and left him standing there. He waited a moment, and then crossed the street mechanically and caught a car for home.

Sure enough, the girl's letter was waiting for him there. He tore it open avidly and read:

"Teddy: under separate cover I am returning to you your ring. As I am soon to become Harry Borden's wife I do not feel as though I ought to keep it, even if it was but a simple token of friendship between us. . . .

Hayburn flung down the letter shuddering. "Friendship! It cut like a knife. And what was worse, she had loved him, and in a fit of pique had gone deliberately to work and betrothed herself to that cad! He had seven-eighths of a mind to run that individual down and tell him the truth—and if he still refused to give up the girl, to choke him to death on the spot. But the rational eighth probably saved his life, for he proceeded to calm himself immediately, and read the remainder of the letter: ". . . You must not attempt to see me, for we shall in all likelihood be married to-morrow and sail at once for Norway."

Again he threw down the crumpled sheet, and straightway called a cab and drove to her home.

She did not keep him waiting.

"As you are leaving so soon," Hayburn began when she came into the room, "I shall try not to detain you longer than is necessary. But there was something I was obliged to return to you, and that is why I am here," he hurried on, mockingly, but courteous to a degree. "This little photograph you gave me several years ago."

A little involuntary exclamation escaped the girl's white lips. She half swayed as she put out one slender hand to the back of a chair for support. But in a moment she had collected herself and held out her hand matter-of-factly for the picture.

"Good-by, Zadie," he said, and held out his hand.

She raised her eyes with a look that was in every way cool and undisturbed. "Good-by," she answered steadily.

He crushed her fingers and turned toward the door. Half way there the sound of his name, called in a sweet, quavering treble, caused Hayburn to turn with a swift heart-beat.

"Oh, Zadie!" he cried; "why did you?" He looked at her with heart-broken eyes.

"I—I didn't," she whispered with her face in her hands.

"But Borden—you told him—"

"I—wrote him," she interposed, tremulously.

"Why?" Now he's got it in black and white."

"Not—not yet!"

"What do you mean?" he demanded fiercely; his unconscious hands gripped her delicate wrists till she winced.

"I—I might tear it up," she sobbed, against his coat.

WALTER IRVING TALKS TO TRINITY'S PEOPLE

Home department work of the Sunday school, its advancement and good results, was the theme of a talk given before the members of the home department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday school Thursday by W. Irving, of Cranford, one of the leading spirits in New Jersey Sunday school work. In conjunction with the address there were other features, the affair being in the nature of a Hallowe'en sociable.

Mr. Irving's talk was plain and to the point, and was especially interesting to local Sunday school workers who took advantage of the opportunity to hear him speak. The Home department, Mr. Irving said, is the greatest development in modern Sunday school work. He quoted statistics that indicated a remarkable growth of this feature throughout the State and country.

Trinity's Sunday school workers were complimented on the big increase during the past year, when 126 new names were added, making the total enrollment 324. This fine showing he ascribed to the indefatigable and faithful work of the officers and thirty visiting assistants. The officers of the department are Mrs. Henry Van Name, superintendent; Mrs. George W. Saums, assistant, and Mrs. M. Julius Williams, secretary and treasurer.

Following Mr. Irving's address, the pastor, Rev. John Y. Broek, and Mrs. Henry Van Name also made remarks along the same lines.

Then came the Hallowe'en celebration. The interior of the Sunday school room presented a typical country scene with the autumn decorative arrangement. There were browned corn stalks surrounding the pillars and jack-o-lanterns, pumpkins and squashes galore.

Fun and merriment reigned supreme, when Mrs. Orpie Runyon made her appearance gowned in a costume which brought to minds the weirdest witch tales. Mrs. Runyon was ably assisted in her role by pastor Broek, Judge Dolliver, F. E. Smith and others. All of the old fashioned songs were sung by the audience and the young people added to the merriment by competing in potato and peanut races.

Following the entertainment refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Albertus Swain and a corps of able assistants.

HIGH COURT OFFICERS VISIT PLAINFIELD FORESTERS

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, held a large and enthusiastic meeting Friday night, when one applicant was received and fifteen new members were initiated, twelve being received during the summer months. The goat was rather frisky from its long period of inactivity and a lively time resulted.

P. A. Mackenzie, high secretary for New Jersey, exemplified the work and Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger W. T. Bingham gave an excellent address on the merits of the order, which was well received. Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, of Court Watchung, high physician for New Jersey, also made a few remarks of interest to the members.

District Deputy Charles J. McCarthy was in charge of the initiatory team. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the Court's annual entertainment. During the social hour which followed, a collation was served under the direction of Edward J. McCue, John R. Cline and Fred Breem. Vocal solos were rendered by William Teddy and Miss Vardon, while a phonograph operated by one of the members entertained with popular airs, during the spread and passing of cigars. The vocal selections rendered by the Court's quartet, with the members as a chorus, was a pleasing feature.

Timbo Club in Line.

A good sized representation of the Timbo Club were participated in the annual Hallowe'en parade at Somerville Friday. The local column was led by Big Chief Timbo Ignatius, the goat mascot of the club, was led by First Lieutenant Will Doud, and was one of the unique features in the parade. Other Timbo members were James J. Kane, Raymond Hodge, E. H. Bennett, J. Percival Hall, Marcus Hoyt, J. Archie Davie, Harry Blimm, Bert Firstbrook, Richard Biddle and John Todd.

MISS KAMPMAN A BRIDE

Charming Young Woman Weds Harold M. Pitman at Brilliant Ceremony.

REV. DR. ZELIE OFFICIATES.

Miss Carol Kampman Maid-of-Honor and Mrs. Hugh C. Pierce Matron-of-Honor—W. A. Long Best Man.

Miss Marie Louise Kampman, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Kampman, of Madison avenue, and Harold Marshall Pitman, son of James M. Pitman, formerly of Brooklyn and Plainfield, and now of Chicago, were married at 8 Thursday night, at the home of the bride's mother. Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the presence of about 125 guests from New York, Brooklyn, Chicago, and this city.

The bride, gowned in white messaline duchesse satin, draped with duchesse and rose point lace and carrying a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley, was attended by her sister, Miss Carol Kampman, as maid-of-honor; Mrs. Hugh C. Pierce, of North Plainfield, as matron-of-honor, and Miss Virginia Benson, of New York, as flower girl. The maid-of-honor and matron-of-honor were gowned in pale green crepe de chine draped with pearl spangled gauze and pearl trimmings. They carried large bouquets or ping chrysanthemums. The flower girl wore white and carried flowers. The bride's mother wore a gown of corded lilac silk, trimmed with velvet and embroidered bands.

The best man was William A. De-Long, Jr., of New York city, and the ushers were Hugh C. Pierce, of North Plainfield, and Frederick Smith, of New York.

*The home was elaborately decorat*ed for the event, the prevailing colors being pink and white. In a bay window, where the ceremony was performed, flowers were attractively arranged with striking effect.

The music for the occasion was furnished by Charles Suhr's Imperial Orchestra, and was greatly enjoyed. As the bridal party entered the parlor the orchestra played the wedding march from Lohengrin, and during the ceremony, "O, Promise Me," was rendered softly, while the wedding march from Mendelssohn was played during the ceremony. During the reception which followed, the orchestra gave a choice program. At this time congratulations were offered and supper was served.

The bride was the recipient of a large and beautiful collection of gifts from relatives and friends. In the exchange of gifts among the members of the bridal party, the bride received from the groom a chain and pendant of diamonds and opal. The gift of the bride to the groom was a pair of sleeve buttons, with diamonds, and the attendants received chains and pendants. The groom gave his best man and ushers scarf pins.

Following the reception the bride and groom left on an extended wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside in Chicago, where the groom is engaged in the manufacture of engravers' supplies. Mr. Pitman resided in North Plainfield prior to five years ago, when he re*moved to Chicago.*

THE CHINESE TEAPOT

Philip Harding glanced at his watch after having said good-by all around to the home folks. He saw he had still three hours to train time. His trunk was already at the depot and his affairs were in shipshape order, save one, and this one was causing him more widely than all the others, for on it depended his present happi*ness and future plans.*

As he swung along in the direction of Helene Thornton's home he debated within himself as to his chances. As he reviewed the two years in which he had known her he could not remember of any time when by word or sign she seemed aware of the deep admiration and love he had for her. He laughed a little nervously as he remembered a certain day when they had wandered into a Chinese curio shop. An odd Chinese teapot had pleased her and he bought it and told her to keep it as a souvenir. She laughingly turned about and bought him a tiny vase in return. He remembered how he treasured it. The choicest spot on the mantel was its seat of honor, but he never saw the teapot, and one day, being curious, he said:

"Helene, do you remember the day we bought the Chinese souvenirs?"

It seemed to him that it took her an unnecessarily long time to remember, but finally she did, and then he said:

"I have treasured that vase ever since."

He remembered he had waited for her to say something, and at last she said, rather indifferently:

Oh, the teapot; I broke it a short time afterward."

It was like a dash of cold water, and now as he strode along it gave him a chilly feeling of doubt. However, the question must be settled today, for he was to be gone four months and he could not leave it unsettled. He had tried for a week to see her alone, and last night he told her that he was going to say good-by to-day, and so it was with a feeling of determination that he rang the bell.

Her 12-year-old brother opened the door.

"Come right in, Mr. Harding. I'm awfully glad to see you." He closed the door and led the way to the sitting room.

"I'm all alone. My cold is much better and I'm busy working for Aunt Jane." He showed Phil a collection of broken china that he was gluing together.

Phil stammered: "Isn't your sister in?"

"Helene? No, she went out, but said that she would be back at half past five."

"Half past five," echoed Phil. At that time he would be on his way to the train. He knew that she had gone out to avoid him and for the instant he was angry, then he resolved des*perately to wait, even if he missed the* train, and sent a note.

Henry chatted away as he worked and finally surveyed his finished task with pride.

"Helene has an old dish upstairs that she thinks a lot of. It's broken and she'll be delighted to have it fixed."

He ran upstairs and came back with the "old dish," and Phil's heart gave a leap, for he was holding the Chinese teapot.

"Did you say that your sister valued it?" he said quietly.

"Well, I don't say that she valued it. It doesn't look worth much, but she thought a lot of it. Perhaps some one that's dead gave it to her."

The bright thought settled everything to him.

"It's full of truck," he said as, he proceeded to dump a miscellaneous collection of things on the table. Such things as tumbled out! A dance order, a knot of ribbon, a snap shot which Phil recognized immediately, a faded rosebud, a worthless charm, etc.

Phil felt a little guilty as he glanced at the pile. It seemed as though he was intruding on sacred ground. Still he had not been to blame; it was the brother who had unconsciously laid bare her secrets. He resolved to wait; if a fortune depended upon his getting that train he would rather lose it than miss seeing her.

He persuaded Henry not to light up and they sat in the twilight. Every nerve was strained for the sound of a well known step. At last her cheery voice sounded in the hall.

"Sitting in the dark, brother?" She turned on the light in the sitting room as she passed it. Then she caught sight of Phil.

"Why, Mr. Harding"—she started forward with outstretched hand, but followed his glance to the table. She gave a soft little exclamation, she was off her guard. She turned pale and grasped the table to steady herself, then her face flushed red; she was beginning to get angry.

Phil turned to Henry. "Say, Henry, there's a boy in the library called 'The Cruise of the Firefly.' Find it, and here's a dollar for your trouble."

After a search of 15 minutes Henry returned to the sitting room. He had heard the hall door close, and saw Phil hurrying down the street.

"I'm sorry I couldn't find it for him," he said.

"Are you pleased with the way I mended the dish?"

"Very much, you dear bungler," she said with a happy laugh.

"Funny girls think so much of old truck," he thought as he watched her carefully putting away her treasures in the Chinese teapot.

ENGLAND'S PRE-EMINENCE

In Literature and Art, She Has Led the World for Centuries.

JOHN BUTLER YEATS' LECTURE.

Helped to Greatness by Ireland—The End of Life Is Neither Virtue Nor Happiness.

A society event of note Thursday night served to introduce to a select Plainfield audience John Butler Yeats, R. H. A., the famous Irish lecturer and reader. Mr. Yeats spoke of his impressions of England, Ireland and America, of which only a brief resume may be given here. The quaint humor of the man is indescribable. The natural wit of the true Irishman is his to the last degree and the points made in his descriptions of types of the three na*tionalities* created the feeling that Mr. Yeats had not only observed, but had retained his impressions to a remarkable degree.

Mr. Yeats told his audience in the beginning of his lecture that if they were looking for statistics they would be disappointed as he was an impressionist, an artist, if you will. England, with the help of Ireland, he said, has established the great colonial empire over which she holds sway. She has produced the greatest literature in the world as well as the greatest painters, painter, Turner. The literature was produced under the power of Mediaevalism and its traditions. Puritanism was disastrous to England, although it made her great commercially and de*stroyed her affection. Banyan twice*ed every text in the Bible to turn it to ignominy. He liked to pitch upon some little quality and build a structure to show human nature in its most pathetic phase.

England was great because she adopted the doctrine of liberty but she never let her neighbors in, stood and retreated behind her own nat*ural bulwarks. In England they* lived in those days in happy liberty and out of it sprang John Bull's present selfishness. Not having any altruistic feelings John Bull doesn't understand the change. He writes it as it is for himself. It was a time of curious isolation when each man lived for and by himself. That was England's merry time, but Puritanism came in and spoiled the whole scheme. Then commerce entered distrust and suspicion and on a recent visit to England Mr. Yeats was surprised to discover that every man hated his neighbor. They hold Wordsworth as the parish priest, but the "encircling gloom" is not relieved.

Speaking of America Mr. Yeats said that nobody can forsee what the nation will come to. Her destiny is hidden. "You are living under incessant change;" he said, "and continual alterations are going on among you. The reason America is to have a the race is that the people who come to your shores are from the peasantry, and the European peasant is the sturdiest class of people in the world, for weaklings among them are soon snuffed out and only the strong survive. He compared the American woman to Rosetti's Kate Barlass, a type of strong, capable and handsome women the finest in the world. Du-Maurier drew his pictures of women too tall.

Four things that Mr. Yeats mentioned as being desirable were free*dom of mind, idleness, and plenty of* it, conversation, and plenty of it and the love of the drama of life. He touched on the religious relationships of the different races and said *he could never understand the ma*terialness of saints. Religion, he said, without the supernatural constitutes literature. The end of life is neither virtue nor happiness, but growth.

EVERY VOTE COUNTS.

Every vote will be needed in this city on election day. If you are a good Republican and a good citizen you will make it your duty to spare a few minutes on Tuesday to cast your ballot. Both the county and city tickets are excellent ones and the Independent man will vote it with the Republicans.

Plainfield's usual majority is needed. The Democrats in Elizabeth are strongly organized and are making strenuous efforts to elect their county ticket. Don't let it be said on Wednesday morning that "Plainfield fell down." Every vote counts. See that yours is cast!

A Time-Saving Hint.

In packing away summer clothing, do not fail to label each package or box as it is stored away. This will save a great deal of bother when the time rolls round for bringing the contents of these packages to light again.

TO SERVE AS SURPRISE DISH.

Combination That Is Known as Italian Cheese Is Appetizing and Healthful.

Chop one pound of veal, 1½ pounds of calf's liver and half a pound of ham, all uncooked. Before chopping the liver cover it with boiling water for five minutes and dry it.

Add two tablespoons chopped parsley, one teaspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful pepper, a dash of cayenne, half a teaspoonful of powdered sage and one small, grated onion. Mix well. Grease a plain mold well with butter, press the meat tightly into it, cover and steam or boil three hours.

When the lid is removed you will find that the meat has shrunk, leaving an inch of space partly filled with liquid, carefully remove this liquid, put it into a saucepan on the fire, add to it one-fourth of a box of gelatin (which should have been covered with cold water and soaked half an hour), and sufficient water to fill the space and cover the meat.

Stir until the gelatin is dissolved, add salt and pepper to taste, pour back into mold, around the "cheese," and set away to cool. Turn out of the mold when cold, and cut into thin slices. If properly made the meat should be encased in jelly.

KEEPS THE BOTTLES SWEET.

Simple Scheme of Housewife That Seems to Promise Much in the Line of Results.

To keep bottles perfectly sweet, especially those which contained milk, requires more than careful washing, and should also be well aired and drained.

One ingenious housekeeper has hit on a novel plan which has much simplified her bottle washing. She had a narrow board about three inches wide bored full of holes, like a kitchen window that had a sunny exposure.

At intervals along the length of the board were made screw holes just big enough to hold a child's drum stick, the bottom of which was likewise prepared for screwing. This could be done at home by anyone slightly skilled in tools, but a carpenter would charge little for it. The drum sticks were painted white, with a coat of enamel, so they could easily be kept clean.

When bottles were to be aired the sticks were screwed in the holes so they stood upright and a bottle, first cleaned in hot soda water, was turned upside down on each stick to drain, and sun.

A Good Cake.

Two cups of butter and two cups of sugar, creamed; six eggs, well beaten; one cup syrup, one cup good brandy; one nutmeg, one teaspoon cloves, three of cinnamon, two of soda, three of baking powder; grated rind of two lemons, juice of one; one tablespoon of vanilla, one of lemon extract; two pounds of raisins, one of sultanas, two cups of walnuts, one of citron, one of orange peel, one of figs, one of dates, one of preserved strawberries (drain off the juice); five cups of flour sifted with the soda and baking powder. Prepare the fruit the day before making the cake, stone the dates fine with the scissors; also the raisins, and be sure there are no seeds left in them; shave the nuts with a sharp knife and the citron and orange peel as fine as possible. Dredge the fruit with flour and add just before putting in the oven, which must be hot at first and then moderate. Bake in two loaves, and ice.

English Orange Marmalade.

Two dozen juicy oranges, six lemons (only use juice of), cut rinds of oranges in quarters, put in pan with cold water. When hot empty water out, lay rind on board, white side up, and with small knife cut all white out, then slice rind in very thin, narrow strips. Peel off all the white of the orange, then quarter in small pieces and put on to boil until cooked. This, run through a sieve; pulp, throw away. The juice and the sliced peel measure and put equal sugar; boil this all together until thick; stirr often.

Ideal Cream Toast.

Cut stale bread one inch thick, trim off crust and cut into even cubes. Toast these in a hot oven or under gas flame so that the inner portion will be dry and the outside a light brown. Serve these cubes in small bowls or cereal dishes and turn hot thin cream over, which should be served in a small hot pitcher. Instead of cream use a thin white sauce cooked in a double boiler not less than twenty minutes.

Californian Tarts.

Required: Half a pound of prunes, quarter of a pound of sugar, half a pint of water, one pound of apples, lemon peel, pastry.

Stew the prunes with the lemon peel, sugar and water till almost soft. Next add the apples pared and cored, and all together until perfectly tender. Place the stewed fruit in a pie dish, add a pinch of mixed spices. Cover with pastry like an ordinary tart and bake for half an hour.

Delicious Dish of Apples.

Take two pounds of apples, pare and core them. Then slice them into a pan. Add one pound of granulated sugar, the juice of three lemons and the grated rind of one. Let these boil about two hours, when turn into a mold. When cold serve with a thick custard or with cream.

Honey Pop Corn Balls.

Take a pint of honey, put in agate dish and boil till thick, then stir in freshly popped corn, and when cool mold into balls.

GROWTH OF THE MOVEMENT.

State Constitution Originally Conferred Franchise on Women, But Was Arbitrarily Limited by Legislative Action.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield held its first meeting of the season Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William H. Rilley, on Myrtle avenue, and there was a large attendance of members and friends.

The interesting feature was the presence of Mrs. Clara Laddey, president of the New Jersey State Suffrage Association, who gave an account of the forty-first National Suffrage convention held this year in the beautiful exposition grounds at Seattle. The delegates to the convention were feted all along the route to Seattle and were royally received when they arrived there, the western men vieing with the western women to entertain them.

Mrs. Laddey spoke of the growth of the suffrage movement in colleges, asserting that the National Collegiate Suffrage association has twenty-four branches in seventeen States. In New Jersey the State Federation of Women's clubs has shown an increased interest in women's suffrage.

It was announced that the Trenton Contemporary club is to have a lecture by Rev. Anna Shaw, president of the National American Women's Suffrage Association, and the Atlantic City Suffrage club has invited Mrs. Laddey, of Seattle, to address that body. Mrs. Lafferty is the only woman member of a State Legislature.

In closing Mrs. Laddey bade the New Jersey suffragettes to take heart. In the discussion which followed her speech, the fact was brought out that when the New Jersey State Constitution was drafted it conferred the franchise on women and was the only State to do so. The women voted for a few years. In 1807 the Legislature, by which act was considered arbitrary action, limited the suffrage to "white male citizens." This was considered an usurpation of authority as the Constitution can be changed only by action of the voters.

Mrs. C. L. Riles gave a short description of the mass meeting in Carnegie Hall, New York, on Monday, in honor of Mrs. Pankhurst, whom she described as slight, beautiful and very spirited. She said that the English suffragette had been about an hour and a half and held the attention of her audience by her close argument and clear statements. To many she seemed to justify her methods as necessary to obtain the end.

The next meeting of the local league will be held Monday night, November 2, at the home of Mrs. Samuel Huntington on Franklin place. At that time Miss Crystal Eastman, a well-known lawyer of New York, will engage in a debate with Mrs. Hugh Fox on the question, "Resolved, That suffrage be granted to women on the same terms on which it is granted to men." Miss Eastman was appointed by Governor Hughes as a member of the committee on the unemployed and she has also performed notable work in Pittsburg.

GOOD TASTE IN VEILS.

"The mission of the veil is to keep the hair in order and to enhance the brilliancy of the complexion," says the Woman's Home Companion for October. "It should not be striking in itself. Heavily-spotted nets and lace veils with conspicuous pattern should be for this reason tabooed. They are trying to rise above their sphere, trying to be something on their own account, and so they conceal the face, and incidentally ruin the eyes.

"Nevertheless, it is the veil with the large, conspicuous mesh that Fashion is specially favoring both in Paris and New York just now.

"For the perfect complexion the best veil is perhaps the plain, fairly large-mesh net which is hardly noticeable and only serves to keep the hair in place. Most of us, however, require in the hard fight of out-of-doors some simple beautifier, and for us the spots and lines of the patterned nets are a boon.

"The most generally becoming veil has a black figure on a white ground; the white net coming close to the skin heightens its fairness, while the black spots accentuate its brilliancy. A veil of this type is becoming at any angle and any arrangement of its spots. The black chenille dots with a generous space between act like the old-fashioned 'mouche,' the touch of black courtplaster at the side of the chin or near the outer corner of the eye, so much affected by the clever beauties of the time of Marie Antoinette. When these spots come closely together the white spaces are not sufficiently large to do their work and the effectiveness of the spots is almost, if not entirely, nullified."

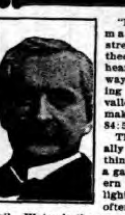
WELLS IN THE DESERT

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D.
Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.



"Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee; in whose heart are the highways; who passing through the valley of Baca, make it a well;" 84:56.

The desert usually lacks but one thing to make it a garden. In southern climes it has light, heat and often very fertile soil. Water is the one need. And frequently there is abundance of water a few feet beneath the surface, rivers that flow through their hidden channels. The thirsty traveler has only to dig deep enough and he will find the cool, refreshing stream.

Christians come to desert valleys in Baca in their experience and there is a process by which the wells may be made and their thirsty, drooping spirits refreshed. The secret is in the words, "Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee, in whose heart are the highways." No human strength can dig such a well. It is our reliance upon the strength of God that makes a well in the desert, and if in our hearts are the highways of love, peace and joy the well will never go dry.

Sin wastes and withers every flower and shrub. After the murder of Abel the ground refused to bring forth its fruits for Cain, and up to that time he was a prosperous farmer. Sin made earth a desert for him. A prosperous merchant forges the name of his rich neighbor to just one check; his reputation for honesty is lost and his business goes to pieces. Sin has made a desert for him. The home which is a very garden of God can be turned into a desert by sin. The fairest fields and flowers of spring can be turned into a desert full of loathsome reptiles. Drink, lust, lying, any sort of sin, can turn any life-garden of purity and beauty into a desert of vileness and moral ugliness.

But a well can be made even in the desert caused by sin. "If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Confession is the well of forgiveness and cleansing, which fills our souls with the refreshing waters of peace and joy. "He that believeth on the son hath everlasting life." Faith in Christ dies in our hearts the well which springs into eternal life. "Behold the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world." A vision of Christ as sin bearer digs in our hearts the well of consciousness that the sin question has been settled, our guilt is removed, and there is now therefore no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus."

A friend of mine, prosperous in his profession, discovered that he had a bad case of tuberculosis, and, leaving his beautiful home, went to Arizona to seek health, while his business fell to pieces. Life, at first, seemed a desert waste; but when I saw him a few weeks ago he was drinking of the waters in the wells of resignation and patience, which God on whose strength he leaned had made in this desert experience, and in his heart were the highways of faith, hope and joy. There lived in New York city a young woman who had given herself to Christ, and was anxious to be useful. But disease paralyzed her hand so that she could not rise from her bed, though she could use her hands in writing. For more than 40 years she lived in a little brick cottage without leaving her room a single time. The city of New York built a high house around this little cottage with its helpless invalid, and the friends who would see her must pass through the side door of a saloon. It was like going through hell to reach heaven. That room of invalidism was a holy of holies, a miniature paradise. One could easily imagine the rustle of angels' wings as he listened to the mellow, sweet voice from the pillow telling of God's abiding presence with her, and when she prayed it was like talking face to face with friend, so real that when you opened your eyes and looked up you almost expected to see God with whom she spoke. The rich and learned came to that little room for comfort and strength, while the poor of the neighborhood knew who was their best friend, and every Christmas the turkey came as the gift of the Christ child through her. Men and woman who believed in the power of God to heal urged her to seek healing of him, but she refused, saying that it was clearly revealed to her that her mission was to witness the fact that one can be sick and at the same time happy and useful. God was her strength and in her heart were the highways of contentment and joy. The faith and love of Bella Cooke made wells in the desert of invalidism from which her own soul drank.

God never fails to hear the prayer of him whose strength he is and in whose heart are his highways. The seeming evils from beneath combine with the good from above to bless him. Get right with God through Jesus Christ, keep right through constant fellowship with him and every desert will have its well, while the showers of grace from above will refresh your soul.

"AVIATOR" ANDY MUIR'S "FLIGHT" 40 YEARS AGO

Recent flights of airship experts in New York and other parts of the country, revived the memories of W. W. Warnock to such a reminiscent stage yesterday that he related an interesting narrative to a Daily Press reporter about the day when Andrew Muir, of Essex street, made an unsuccessful attempt to soar through the air with a home-made airship of the latter's "patent."

The incident occurred nearly forty years ago and according to Mr. Warnock, "there was tremendous excitement in the village when it became known that 'Andy' Muir was going to make an attempt to fly out of the roof of the former's father (the late Alec Warnock's barn, in the rear of the Warnock bakery, which at the time occupied the site where George Voehl's store is now located.

"Aviator" Muir announced that he would make the ascent on Friday afternoon, 2 o'clock, "on the dot." At the appointed hour nearly two hundred Plainfielders were on hand and "Andy" was also there, and there was no disappointment.

Assisted by several of the spectators "Andy" succeeded in getting the apparatus to the roof. It was a crude affair made of wire and wood. It was cage shape in appearance with a leather seat and "wings" made of heavy wire protruding from both sides.

At the crucial moment "Aviator" Muir made his way into the cage and strapped himself to the seat. Two boys fastened his arms to the "wings," and then the near-by "strickken crowd looked on with expectancy.

"All right, I'm going up;" shouted "Andy." "everybody be careful."

In three more seconds there was a crashing sound as "Andy" flopped his wire wings three times and struck the space. In a few more seconds Andy had descended to the ground in a pile of boxes and barrels, after a fifteen feet trip downward.

Luckily "Aviator" Muir escaped with a few minor bruises but the failure of this attempt discouraged him from making future flights.

According to "Historian" Warnock, "Andy's" sole comments after he alighted and found himself unharmed were:

"Cuss the luck I ought to have known better than to try to fly on a Friday."

THE MAKING UP OF VELVET.

Velvet is to be such a very good material for the winter that some points toward its manufacture into the afternoon costume should be understood.

It is highly necessary to avoid handling the half-made gown whether it be velvet or velveteen. There is a certainly which counts for much in the result.

To prove this certainty, it is advisable to make a perfectly fitted model of your velvet gown or suit in canton flannel, to rop it and use it as a pattern, and thus to save an excess of handling in the fitting of the velvet.

Pinning is a great source of difficulty, each pin leaving its mark upon the nap of the velvet. Only round-headed black pins should be used for what fitting remains after this cautious beginning.

Basting requires care, because the threads, if drawn too tightly, will press a line into the surface. They should be removed only after clipping each stitch, so that there will be no long pull to cause this defect.

The pressing of velvet being quite out of the question, a substitute is demanded to replace the flatiron. The kitchen poker is one very ordinary weapon. A long velvet seam, turned with its wrong side up, is first rubbed by its use and it is a heavy ironing board and then held in midair, and the point of the slightly heated poker is run evenly along the line of sewing, just sufficiently to press the seam apart.

It is quite inconceivable that any one, not knowing these slight first helps, would undertake the making of velvet.

NEW BLOCK TO BE ERECTED AT CHURCH AND E. SECOND STS.

Miss Clara V. Biddle, of Philadelphia, has bought of George E. Sovereign, through theagency of George B. Naylor & Co., real estate brokers, the plot of ground at the corner of East Second and Church streets, consisting of twelve lots on which E. C. Biddle, of Philadelphia, will erect eleven very attractive Philadelphia brick dwellings with all modern improvements.

There will be one store building on the corner, owing to the fact that such buildings are needed, and that they will be in a central location there is no doubt these buildings will meet with ready sale or rental.

Local School Eleven Triumphs Over Opponents by Score of 11 to 6.

MANY CLEVER TRICK PLAYS.

"Clam-Diggers" Amazed at Brilliant Work of Plainfield Boys —Hard-fought Contest.

The Plainfield High School football team defeated Perth Amboy High School on Hope Common Wednesday afternoon by a score of 11 to 6. Both teams put up a fine game, but Plainfield's trick plays were too much for the "clam-diggers." The Amboy backs were all good players and did fine line hitting, but were utterly at loss when trick plays were called.

Schwartz, Hultz and Crowell played the best game for the visitors and Riffert and Doane distinguished themselves by their touchdowns for P. H. S. The line held the heavy Amboy backs well and Smith made some fine line plays. Phillips played a star game at end.

The game started with Plainfield making a short kick to the right. Phillips caught the ball and ran with it to the 10 yard line. Then the local boys tried line hitting. Riffert kicked and Amboy recovered the ball, but was soon held for downs. P. H. S. tried a forward pass and fumbled it. Amboy tried a forward pass, but Riffert ran out and caught the ball, running it to a touchdown.

Plainfield then kicked off and the Amboy man ran with the ball to the fifteen-yard line. Then followed line hitting and then fumbled the ball. Ricketts recovered it and P. H. S. made twelve yards on a pass to Phillips. When time was called, the ball was one yard from goal.

On the second half, Amboy kicked off and Clark ran with the ball for twenty yards. A poor forward pass was then tried and P. H. S. was penalized. Clark then punted and Ramsey downed the Amboy man on the 30-yard line. Hultz and Allen tried an end run on which Carpenter lost the ball on a fumble. Clark next worked a forward pass to Doane, and Ricketts followed with a nine yard line plunge.

P. H. S. was then penalized on a poor forward pass. Clark kicked and Doane picked up the ball, ran 35 yards, making a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal. Amboy kicked off and P. H. S. lost on a fumble. Amboy then settled down to end runs and line plunging and Crowell made a touchdown. He kicked the goal. In the remaining few minutes the ball went back and forth between the teams, neither side gaining much ground. The lineup:

MOVE FOR SEWAGE PLANT

Joint Sewer for North Plainfield and Dunellen is Proposed.

TOTAL COST TO BE $270,000.

The Sewage Commission Makes Report With Recommendations to the Borough Council.

A sewerage system, entailing an aggregate cost of $270,000, is the recommendation submitted to the Mayor and Council of the borough, by the sewerage commission of that municipality, at a special meeting of the borough fathers on Monday night. This outlay, assuming that the borough can sell its bonds on a 4½ basis is equivalent to .32 increase in the tax rate. Two sites are considered by the commission, both being in North Plainfield, in the vicinity of Sebring's Mills. The commission, in its report, suggests that negotiations be entered into with the borough of Dunellen so that some understanding may be arrived at for the joint use of the system.

After the report was unanimously accepted and placed on file, Councilman Woolston declared that he believed the situation was ripe for immediate action. "The borough has expended a lot of money for engineering fees during the past ten years and has got nothing to show for it. It is now time to get busy and I am in favor of getting the matter in shape so that it can be submitted to the voters at the earliest possible date."

Mr. Buttfield, chairman of the commission, who presented the report suggested that the initial steps would be to secure a permit from the State Board of Health and also from North Plainfield township. Councilman Van Arsdale's resolution that the commission be continued and that two new names be added was adopted. Two new members will be appointed at the regular meeting of the Council on Friday night. The commission's report in full follows:

October 26, 1909.

The Hon. Mayor and Council of the Borough of No. Plainfield.

Gentlemen—In submitting this report it might be well to revise the steps taken during the past three years to secure a system of sanitary sewerage for our borough.

Under date of July 24, 1907, a sewage commission, theretofore appointed, rendered a report recommending the consummation of a tentative agreement reached with the city authorities, whereby the city undertook to dispose of the borough sewage for a term of years at a rate of $25 per million gallons, with the sole proviso that the borough's collecting system should be installed with due safeguards against admittance of ground water.

The report of said commission was accepted, its recommendations approved and its work completed.

Unfortunately no active steps were taken by the borough Council to formally conclude the contract with the city, until November, 1907, at which time [illegible]ing to the nearness of the time [illegible]eemed proper by new year it was [illegible]reement the city that the final [illegible] should be left with the incoming Council and committees.

During January, 1908, the matter was taken up afresh. In February, 1908, the personnel of the city's committee was again changed necessitating negotiations entirely de novo which resulted in a proposition in terms entirely prohibitive.

At this juncture the Hon. Mayor Fisk proposed to the various municipalities along the Greenbrook valley and the Raritan river that they should each appoint a committee to confer with one from Plainfield to consider the feasibility of a joint district sewer and disposal works to serve all of such communities. In accordance with this suggestion the undersigned were requested by your honorable mayor to act in conjunction with other committees similarly appointed.

Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Dunellen, Bound Brook and East Bound Brook joined with Plainfield and North Plainfield in securing the services of Messrs. Hering and Fuller to make preliminary surveys, plans and estimates.

On January 28, 1909, Messrs. Hering and Fuller's report was received and it was at once realized that the project was impracticable both on account of its heavy first cost and by reason of its excessive maintenance expense due to the necessity of pumping.

Your committee at once took steps to evolve some alternative to include Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen alone and on April 13, 1909, there was obtained from the same engineers a report outlining the plan which in respect of first cost and maintenance, appeared entirely reasonable. The estimated cost of disposal works at Sebring's Mills and trunk line thereto to accommodate the needs of the three committees named the price at $284,000.

Negotiations were at once entered into with the township of North Plainfield, and at a public meeting of those most interested in the township a resolution was adopted favoring a conditional permit to the location of disposal works within the city a yearly rental based upon interest, sinking fund and maintenance incurred and volume of sewage delivered by each. We further suggested that, if such terms were not acceptable the city and the borough acting in concert should construct separate but contiguous outfall sewers and disposal works.

Without further conference in the matter the city's authorities decided last week to abandon the project and continue the use of their present disposal works.

Until last week your committee had, during the past twelve months, received repeated assurance from both the city's counsel and its sewer committee of their desire and intention to co-operate with the borough in this much needed improvement. While we cannot but believe that the city will in the near future realize the necessity or wisdom of removing its disposal works from the midst of a thickly populated district, its decision does not admit of further negotiations, and—assuming that the borough's needs for a sewage system is imperatively urgent—we are forced to the conclusion that steps should now be taken to install such with the co-operation of Dunellen alone.

From an engineering and economic standpoint a site about 3,500 feet west of the Warrenville road would be suitable for disposal works, but the township has evinced a strong objection to the location of such anywhere east of Sebring's Mills.

The cost of disposal works erected west of Sebring's Mills and outfall sewer west of Rock avenue of sufficient capacity for the borough's own needs is estimated at $95,000 and the estiamted cost of a collecting system (including 1,200 house connections from street sewer to curb line) and outfall sewer east of Rock avenue is placed at $175,000; making an aggreggate cost to the borough of $270,000.

Of this amount there might properly be assessed against property owners $70,000 leaving $200,000 to be raised by an issuance of bonds.

Assuming that the borough can sell its bonds on a 4¼ per cent. basis, the estimated annual charge for interest, sinking fund and maintenance will be $13,786 (equivalent to .32 advance in the tax rate) as follows:

Interest 4¼ % on $200,-
Interest 4¼ % on $200,000 $	8,500
Sinking fund to retire bonds in 40 years	2,366
Sewer attendant for collecting system	720
Extras including water for flushing	700
Cost operating disposal works	1,500
	$13,786

It will be seen that—apart from any help that may be secured from Dunellen—the extra cost to the borough over that which would have to be in curred with Plainfield's co-operation is approximately $25,000 for first cost and $700 per annum for maintenance.

We have received assurance from Dunellen of its willingness to join with North Plainfield in the establishment of disposal works at the westerly end of said township, but no terms have yet been considered.

We recommend that an application be made at once to said township for permission to locate disposal works at either of the two sites contemplated and to this end we submit herewith necessary form of resolution and application prepared by our counsel Sherrerd Depue, Esq.

The expenditure of the large sum required for this public improvement should be undertaken only the most stringent safeguard of the borough's interests. A large amount of detail and painstaking work must be assumed by some person, or persons, and it seems to us, that this could best be accomplished by the appointment of a special sewerage committee whose recommendations, step by step, would be subject to the approval of the Mayor and Council of the borough. There would thus be always a double check before final action.

We recommend—That a system of sewerage with disposal works at some point west of the Warrenville road be constructed by the borough in accordance with the plans and estimates of Messrs. Hering and Fuller.

That requisite steps be taken to secure the consent of the township and State Board of Health as to location of disposal works at one or the other sites considered.

That negotiations be entered into with Dunellen to arrive at some understanding as to its joint use of the outfall sewer and disposal works.

That there now be appointed a special committee to formulate the various steps incidental to the completion and financing of this proposed improvement and from time to time to make its recommendations to the borough Council.

Respectfully submitted,

W. J. BUTTFIELD.

AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

Prayers for the Dead at St. Mary's Cemetery Said Yesterday.

FATHER BOGAN'S ADDRESS.

Men of Two Parishes March to the Catholic Grave Yard for Annual Service.

It has been customary for some years for the Catholics of St. Mary's parish and nearby Catholic parishes to assemble at St. Mary's cemetery on the Sunday nearest to All Souls' Day to join in religious ceremony of prayers for the dead. The favorable weather Sunday brought out more than a thousand members of the various parishes to take part in this striking ceremony.

The men assembled at half-past one o'clock at St. Mary's church and others at St. Joseph's church, where, after a short prayer they formed in line and proceeded to the cemetery on Buchanan street. There, the altar boys, forty in number, in scarlet, purple, black cassacks, gathered at the upper part of the cemetery.

Precisely at 2:15 the procession of men headed by Cross-bearers and two acolytes and thurifer began the march of prayer around the cemetery, reciting the Rosary and prayers for the dead. At the central mound, known as the "Priests' Plot," the procession halted and the double quartet of men from St. Mary's choir sang the Benedictus. The prayers of the dead were recited and the responses made by the assembled multitude.

The address was in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion. Father Bogan is taking for his text, words from the Second Book of Macabees, chapter XII: "It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead that they may be loosed from their sins." His words were in part as follows:

"In accordance with a time-honored custom, you have assembled this afternoon in this spot hallowed by sacred memories, to kneel about your dear ones' graves and pray that God will lend them temporal punishment and bring their immortal souls to the bliss of His home in heaven. To the teaching of our holy religion we owe the significance of this ceremony, for it is our belief that sin deserves punishment, and that punishment is measured by the degree of sin's malevolence. The soul stained with grievous sin, unrepentant and defiant, is banished from the sight of God to suffer the endless pains of hell. The soul whose spiritual beauty has been blurred by slight, yet deliberate transgressions against God's known law, is not banished forever from the sight of God, but enters, at death, an existence where the sentence of Divine Justice is fulfilled in pain that shall certainly end when God in His inscrutable will shall so decree.

"Sin being a deliberate offence, an insult to the LordGod Almighty, none but God Himself can pardon. Hence our belief that God alone can forgive sin. Through the redeeming act of Jesus Christ on Calvary the sins of Pope and peasant alike find atonement. Yet it is, and always has been, the belief and teaching of the Catholic church that the application of the atonement comes to us through a divinely appointed medium —the Sacrament of Penance, wherein the self-imposed humiliation of the penitent is augmented by divine grace, the friendship of God restored and the claims of eternal punishment rescinded. Though sin and the eternal punishment it deserves, are remitted in the Sacrament of Penance, there remains a punishment to be endured here in earthly time or during the time of purgatorial suffering. That prayers for the dead are effectual and accepted in the stead of purgatorial suffering is the teaching of our holy religion, and, in a word, is the reason for our gathering here today. That the consolation of this doctrine finds acknowledgment in other than Catholic hearts, the words of the late English Poet Laureate Lord Tennyson attest: "I have lived my life and that which I have done may He within Himself make pure! But thou, if thou shouldst never see my face again, pray for my soul. More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice rise like a fountain for me night and day. For what are men better than sheep or goats that knowledge not, nor I myself, if within the brain, if, knowing God, they lift not hand of prayer both for themselves and those who call them friends? For so the whole round earth is every way bound by gold chains about the feet of God."

The ceremony concluded with the invocation: "May the souls of those whose bodies lie beneath this consecrated sod awaiting the final summons, and the souls of all the faithful departed rest in peace. Amen."

King's Daughters Tea.

The Charity Circle of King's Daughters has sent out invitations for a tea to be given at the home of Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna, 1127 Watchung avenue, on Friday, November 5, from 3 until 6 o'clock. Twenty-five cents will be received at the door. Useful articles and home made candy will be for sale.

SUPERINTENDENT HALL GIVEN WARM WELCOME

George E. Hall, superintendent of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday school, was given an enthusiastic "welcome home" by members of the school and church Sunday afternoon. Mr. Hall, with his wife, were absent for the past two months, traveling through the States of Washington, Colorado, California and Nebraska. The regular lesson was omitted and a program of unusual interest rendered by members of the school.

Mr. Hall entertained the school with a short account of his trip, describing vividly the magnificent scenery, the grand old mountains, the interesting people, etc. At some time in the near future Mr. Hall will undoubtedly give another chapter on his delightful trip.

Several of Mr. Hall's personal friends were present, including Walter M. Irving, of Westfield, chairman of the executive committee of the New Jersey State Sunday School Association. Mr. Irving's talk was very pleasing, and referred to the Sunday school work of our county and State, but more especially to that of the Park Avenue Baptist school, and the happy relations that exist between the school and its superintendent.

Another speaker on the program was Mr. Hall's associate in business, George Krause, of Cranford, who referred most beautifully to the friendly relations which they enjoy in their business life. Both Mr. Irving and Mr. Krause are close, personal friends of Mr. Hall, and both speakers dwelt on the splendid service Mr. Hall is rendering the Union County Sunday School Union, also the State Sunday School Association as its president.

A pleasing feature of the program was furnished by the primary department, when fifty little ones, at a given signal, marched downstairs into the Sunday school room and up to the desk, to the accompaniment of "Onward Christian Soldiers" by the orchestra, and there stood facing Mr. Hall while they sang a welcome song in honor of his return.

Miss Elma Runyon, superintendent of the primary department, then told Mr. Hall that they had been waiting for his return to the school in order that he might present the diplomas to the children who had been promoted into higher grades.

Splendid work was done by the Sunday school orchestra, which included the following selections: "Church Rallying Song;" "Autumn Breezes;" "Home Sweet Home," and "Our Ancestors." The members of the orchestra are: Arling S. Mosher, Miss Arline Brown, Miss Marjorie Brown, Miss Mary E. Clark, Whitney Frazee and Elmer P. Wheeler.

The room was made especially attractive by the use of a number of large American flags. The floral decorations were tastefully arranged by Mrs. Charles VanWinkle and consisted of hydrangeas, roses and chrysanthemums.

As a souvenir of his trip, as well as of the session that had been planned in honor of his home coming, Mr. Hall presented every one present with a handsome view of some place of interest in the far West.

FATHER BERNARD M. BOGAN BESTOWS PAPAL BLESSING.

Large congregations marked the attendance at the masses in St. Mary's church Sunday morning, the occasion being one which was the bestowal of the Papal blessing by the rector, Rev. Bernard M. Bogan. The ceremony was brief and impressive and was conducted at the close of each celebration.

Father Bogan was enabled to impart the special blessings to local Catholics as a result of his visit to Pope Pius X at Rome last summer when the local priest received the high dignitaries. The service was not marked by any special features owing to the solemn purpose of the service.

Church Celebrates.

Sunday was the fortieth anniversary of Trinity Reformed church, of Newark. Elder Robert Clark, Jr., of Trinity Reformed of this city, one of the oldest Sunday-school superintendents of the Reformed church, delivered an address in the Newark church yesterday and today George L. VanEmburgh, one of the first elders of the church, is to address a meeting of the old church in Newark. The entire week will be given over to a celebration of the anniversary.

Randolph Drake, one of the oldest and best known residents of Scotch Plains, died at his home on Bartle avenue Saturday afternoon, aged seventy-nine years. Mr. Drake was a life long Republican until a few years ago always took an active interest in the work of the party in Fanwood township, he was also an exempt firemen, having joined Excelsior H. & L. Co. at the time it was organized. He is survived by a sister, Miss Louisa Barr, his wife and daughter dying nearly twenty-five years ago. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home, interment being made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery.

Hallowe'en Pranks Too Naughty.

Forty-eight colored boys and two whites were before City Judge Runyon Monday for destroying property on Saturday in celebrating Hallowe'en, they took a wagon belonging to W. Sternberg, a grocer of 401 Plainfield avenue and dumped it in the brook at Washington street bridge. Another of their pranks was to take a wagon from the premises of George Zepp, a blacksmith, at 421 West Second street, and dump it at Seventh street near Liberty. They also ran away with a grocery wagon belonging to J. S Dasker, doing considerable damage to the wagon. The boys will be given a hearing by City Judge Runyon on Saturday morning.

BALKED AT PROPOSING

So Papa Green Had Carrono Haled to Court Alleging Assault.

SHAVES AND BEER STOPPED.

Disillusionment of Scotch Plains Barber Who Even Chopped Wood.

Frank Carrono, an Italian barber, of Scotch Plains, was discharged in the city court Monday by Judge William Runyon because a complaint against him, made by Lawrence Green, of 36 West Second street, was not proved.

Green said that Carrono had attempted to assault him, but it was proved by witnesses that the boy was on the other leg and that Carrono was the aggrieved party. The complaint was dismissed.

According to the story of Carrono he was a constant visitor at the home of Green who has two attractive daughters, but when Green asked Carrono if he was going to marry one of them he balked at the question, telling Green that his matrimonial projects were a matter of his own personal convenience and he did not care to have his personal business interferred with by any one.

During his many visits to the home of the Misses Green, Carrono, so he asserted, had provided the old man with beer, tobacco, etc., but when he ceased to supply these necessary adjuncts to sociability his presence become obnoxious to the whole family. Carrono said that he even went so far as to chop wood for the family stove, even though he is a barber, besides shaving the father of the family and contributing an occasional haircut.

Judge Runyon believed Carrono and his witnesses regarding the story of the alleged attempted assault after hearing "Jim" Grolley and William Stansbury, who were present when the trouble occurred.

CITY WILL IMPROVE FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

The firealarm system is to be changed in this city so that it will be on a par with the systems in vogue in all the big cities of the country. A resolution was introduced by Councilman Taylor at the meeting of the Common Council Monday night, which authorizes the city to install at fire headquarters a six-circuit system of alarms which will be an adequate protection and will cost but little money.

The resolution provides for the installation of a six-circuit switchboard with automatic controlling batteries; a six-circuit, automatic fire alarm repeater and the necessary batteries, back supports and wiring, all of which is to cost $2,735.

Under the present system a crossed wire could put the system out of order so that signals could not be received at headquarters with any degree of accuracy. The Gamewell system is the recognized standard of the world and it will be an economy in the end to have this sextuple system installed in the city. Underground conduits laid wherever possible, materially in the work of a perfect system of calls and obviates the danger of crossed wires which so often cause serious interference with signals.

A resolution, also introduced by Mr. Taylor, and which was adopted, was the installation of a fire signal in the home of Adolph Kahrman, on Jackson avenue.

HALLOWE'EN DINNER AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Faber, of Park place, gave a Hallowe'en dinner party to a number of friends on Saturday night. The dinner was held at the Park Golf Club which was artistically and appropriately decorated with a Hallowe'en effect. After dinner some unusual Hallowe'en stunts were engaged, followed by dancing.

Covers were laid for fifteen. Those present: Miss Mildred Berry, Miss Ruth Van Vleet, Miss Helen Moody, Miss Mal Faber, Miss Helen Cutler, Francis Anderson and Von Anderson, of Passaic; G. Sterling Karck, of New York; Ensign Ralph Needham, of U. S. Battleship Connecticut; Gurth Williams, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Berry, Charles Faber and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Faber.

RIBBONS GAIN FAVOR.

Ribbons play a large part in the small things of dress. They are woven and interwoven in all of the neck-pieces of malline, chiffon, net and mull and in the fine front with huge bows and long ends. Ribbon is used to connect the largest of the jabots, and there is usually a bow set at the top.

Large bows of malline at the throat are again in vogue. Ornamental bands to wear around the neck with dangling ends down the front of the blouse and finished with tassels or large pieces of jet are the fad in Paris. Many of these bands come in antique silver effect.

DUNELLEN'S ELEVEN MAKES POOR SHOWING

The Acorn A. C., of Brooklyn, played the Dunellen F. C., a fast and exciting game of football at Dunellen, Saturday afternoon, winning by score of 16 to 0. A few weeks ago when these teams met, Dunellen shut out the Acorns, but Saturday the visitors came prepared. They outweighed Dunellen and were stronger in all departments of the game, although the locals put up a plucky fight.

Two touchdowns were made in the first half and one in the second. Orr kicked a goal. There were two twenty minute halves. The lineup:

Acorn A. C.	Dunellen F. C.
Orr	Rutledge, Loughlin right end.
Charles	Weber, Gray right tackle.
Dalton	Hurtt Martin right guard.
Hallam	Fountain centre.
Adams	Lake quarterback.
Spokes	J. Manning right halfback.
Gillan	Maltbie fullback.

Referees, L. T. Churchill and Chester Bates; linesmen, H. Orr and S. T. Kennedy.

NEW BRUNSWICK HIGH NO MATCH FOR N.P.H.S.

North Plainfield High's football eleven added another victory to its string on Saturday when the borough gridiron warriors triumphed over New Brunswick High by a 30 to 0 score. The boroughites excelled the Middlesex team in every department. They found little trouble in ploughing through a weak line for gains on every attempt while the New Brunswick boys were unable to advance through the N. P. H. S. defense.

Scott and Percy Bailey executed some clever forward passing and Conroy and Stine made some creditable runs around the end. Smith also did some classy work at fullback. North Plainfield took the lead in the first half by scoring 10 points and twenty more in the final round. The line-up:

N. P. H. S.	New Brunswick.
Smith	Griddle fullback.
H. Stine	G. Wilmot right half.
Scott	D. Wilmot quarterback.
Taylor	Eldredge
Stiglitz	Hoagland centre.
Zieglow	Dalrymple right guard.
Dunning, McCullough	Watson right tackle.
Townley, Pierson Bailey, Lapore	Howell right end.

Birthday Surprise.

A birthday surprise was tendered Miss Tina Voehl at her home on Grove street, Saturday evening. Hallowe'en games and dancing were the features. Supper was served, each guest receiving an apple jack-o-lantern with a fortune concealed inside, which were read aloud, causing much merriment. The other decorations were pumpkin jack-o-lanterns. Miss Voehl was the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

Miss Edna Sebring arranged the affair. Those present were the Misses Della and Tina Voehl, Florence Nichols, Edith Mager, Irene Voehl, Edna Sebring, Ada Van Horne, Mr. and Mrs. William Cochran, Frances Merritt, Ben Schuck, Raymond Miller, Elliott Taylor, John Lambexton, Bud Howard and David Smalley.

Carbide Tank Explodes.

An explosion of a carbide tank on Alden Ten Eyck's automobile caused a lot of excitement and incidentally brought the fire department to the Ten Eyck home on Watchung avenue Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ten Eyck had returned from a ride and as the latter alighted from the car the tank exploded and burst into flames. A phone call brought the department to the scene and Chief Doane brought the excitement to an end by the use of an extinguisher. The damage to the machine was slight.

Borough Police Court.

Aaron Reed and Samuel Moran were arrested in the borough on Saturday night for disorderly conduct by Chief Weiss. Reed was let off with a suspended sentence of ninety days hanging over his head and ordered to report to Chief Weiss every Saturday night for the period of one year. Sentence was also suspended in Moran's case.

DEDICATED MEMORIALS

Impressive Service at Grace Church, When Windows are Unveiled.

BISHOP SCARBOROUGH PRESENT

Two Beautiful Works in Stained Glass Unveiled—Rev. Dr. Douglass Preaches the Sermon.

With the Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D. L. L. D., bishop of New Jersey, and prominent Episcopal clergyman present, the dedication of the All Saints' memorial and the Van Buren memorial rose windows took place Sunday morning at Grace church. The congregation was so large that every available seat was occupied and many communicants were obliged to remain standing during the service.

The dedicatory address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. George William Douglass, for many years rector of Trinity church, New Haven, and now canon of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, of New York. Dr. Douglass' theme was "The Mind of Christ." Dr. Douglass held up the life of the Saviour to the congregation as the one great example to follow. Other visiting clergymen on the platform included Rev. Dr. Aspinwall, pastor emeritus, of St. Thomas church, Washington.

While the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, directed the service, Bishop Scarborough was in charge of the celebration. The bishop celebrated the Holy Communion and also delivered a brief congratulatory address. The music was appropriate to the celebration, the choir rendering Old Saints' hymns. The complete program and a description of the windows were published on Saturday. The organ recital at 4 o'clock was also largely attended.

Miss Ida Mae Clark a Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Clark, of Orchard place, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ida Mae Clark, to George R. Oakes, of Newark. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. W. T. Sleman, of the Presbyterian church, Westfield, at his home, Friday night, October 22. The bride held a position at the Misses Gorsline's store on Park avenue, and did not want to announce the marriage until she left there, which was Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Oakes will reside in Bound Brook, where the groom is engaged in business.

Grass Fire in Borough.

The borough fire department responded to a 'phone call from Edwin N. Hooley on Saturday afternoon to extinguish a grass fire that was raging at the corner of Rockview avenue and Rockview terrace. The flames were put out by the use of chemicals with a slight damage to a fence.

Another Hallowe'en.

The Misses Dorothy and Gladys Lee, daughters of former Councilman and Mrs. Charles A. Lee, gave a delightful Hallowe'en party to a number of their friends on Saturday evening.

STATE C. E. UNION OFFICERS TO MEET.

The State Executive Committee of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union will meet Monday afternoon, November 8, at the Y. M. C. A., Newark. The meeting will be particularly important to the interests of Christian Endeavor in the State, as plans for the forward campaign will be formally launched.

The presidents of the county unions will be present as members of the committee, having been admitted to a membership through a resolution passed at the recent State convention in Plainfield, whereby they will constitute a committee on extension.

In order that the plan of the Rev. Dr. Francis Clark, for 1,000,000 new members and 10,000 new societies before the 1911 convention in Atlantic City, may receive the co-operation of New Jersey workers, a definite plan has been devised by State President John T. Sproull, of Arlington. Mr. Sproull has communicated with the county presidents, and details will be considered at the Newark meeting.

Appointments to the several departments will be made, the question of prison work will probably be taken up, and there will be other important business transacted.

FOURTH TYPHOID CASE AT STATE REFORMATORY.

The general health of the inmates of Rahway Reformatory is not good, according to Superintendent Frank Moore. Saturday, who said that there is typhoid fever in the institution, the last case developing Wednesday, and the source of the disease is yet undetermined. There have been four cases of typhoid within six months, he said, and Dr. A. C. Hunt, secretary of the State Board of Health, had been notified.

In a communication to Dr. Hunt, Dr. Moore said he thought an investigation should be made to ascertain the exact cause of the disease.

"I don't want to take the responsibility of one case every two months or so," wrote Dr. Moore, "which it seems to me, is altogether too much to continue in a State institution."

The State board will meet there next Wednesday, at which time, it is believed, a number of improvements will be authorized, which may remove the source of the disease.

PRISONER FREED; WANTED OVERCOAT.

Trenton, Nov. 1.—George Stevenson, sixty-eight years old, was released from State prison Saturday morning, after serving a three-year term to which he was sentenced from Hudson county, for larceny. Stevenson, who has spent twenty-eight years of his life behind the bars, complained bitterly of the cold and the fact that he was set adrift without an overcoat. He made his way from the prison to the State house and called upon Governor Fort, who promised to take up his case with the prison authorities.

The rules of the institution only provide for giving discharged prisoners overcoats after November 1, and from this regulation no exceptions are made.

BOTH COUNTY CHAIRMEN EXPRESS SATISACTION.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith declared Saturday when asked as to what he thought of the chances of the Republican party carrying Union county, that it was simply a question of getting out the full Republican vote. "If we get out the full vote, and I don't see why we should not," he declared, "we will pile up our usual majority of 2,500.

Chairman of the County Democratic Committee W. E. Tuttle when asked the same question said: "Our chances were never better. The voters are dissatisfied with the records of Assemblymen Schwartz and Pierce and I don't see why we should not win. Everything looks rosy."

WOODROW WILSON'S TALK

Denounces the Aldrich Tariff Bill as a Menace to American Industries.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE FILLED.

Party in Power Has Lost Its Freedom of Choice, Says Princeton's President.

The main body of the Plainfield theatre was filled Friday with an audience composed of men and women interested in the speech delivered by Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University. On the stage were about a hundred of Plainfield's solid citizens, including most of the clergymen of the local churches. It was an enthusiastic gathering and the speaker was frequently interrupted by applause.

Among those on the stage were W. J. Saunders, A. H. Atterbury, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, Rev. Dr. A. C. Nickerson, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Dr. F. C. Ard, James E. Martine, W. H. Reville, Franklin S. Halliday, Joseph Hague, W. E. Tuttle, James Cowdin, Corporation Counsel of Elizabeth, James McBride, president of the Jefferson Club of Newark, and many others.

Dr. Wilson said that the Aldrich bill is radically different from the original principle of protection and that tyranny menaces our industries great and small. While Dr. Wilson was waiting to be called on for his speech he was asked how it felt to be a director of a big corporation like the mutual Life Insurance Co., to whose directorate he was elected on Thursday. His answer was evasive, as was to be expected. He said the thing was too new yet for him to have formed any opinion and therefore did not care to express one at this time.

The speaker was introduced by Leroy J. Ellis, president of the Democratic club, and Dr. Wilson was applauded for fully five minutes before he was allowed to proceed. In his preliminary remarks Dr. Wilson said it was perhaps an unusual thing to see a college teacher speaking at a political meeting, but that as the colleges do not govern the country but rather furnish the raw material from which the country's governors are made the college man has the wrong instinct who does not grasp the meaning of his opportunities. His speech follows:

"The Democratic party is now facing an unusual opportunity. It is very seldom that the party in power becomes entangled with all sorts of interests, great and small, has lost its freedom of choice in a hundred ways, and may be said by reason of its peculiar policies to have allied itself with something less than the nation as a whole. The Democratic party, on the other hand, is free from entanglements and is at liberty to choose policies suited to the national conditions as a whole and all those new questions of politics which have revealed themselves in recent years. It is free to make a program for the general good, if it will with perfect candor and simplicity.

"But it should do this without allowing itself to be embarrassed by old formulas. Most of the old formulas of our politics are worn threadbare and have lost their significance, having been formulated for another age which had other and very different circumstances and which has settled them with a sincerity which we can imitate only by translating our principles into new form and statements.

"Take, for example, the old formulas with regard to strict construction and the old ideal of 'as little government as possible.' The indisputable fact is that the Federal Government has in recent years been launched into many fields of activity even the statesmen of which previous generations did not foresee. We should not now stop to be pedantic about the way in which we shall construe the fundamental law of our government or attempt the impossible task of forcing its present activities into old statements. We should seek the best construction, should direct its activities toward the objects which clearly lie within its province by means which we are convinced to be just and efficient. It was inevitable, in our changed conditions, that the Federal Government should come out into many new fields of power. I for one am very jealous of the separate powers and authority of the individual States of the Union. It is no longer possible with the modern combinations of industry and transportation to discriminate the interests of the several States as they could once be discriminated. Interests once local and private have become unified and national. They must be treated upon a national scale, in a national spirit, and by the national government. The Federal Government must, if possible, be kept to its old temper of restraint and carefully studied constitutional right, but it cannot be kept to a little field which the field is in fact great and must be occupied by some common authority. Our principles are not new, but the forms in which we should express them must of necessity be new, and they are so novel indeed as often to make the principles themselves bear an appearance of radical novelty. There should be no limitation of the functions of the Federal Government by number, but only limitation by carefully considered principles and carefully studied instrumentalities of action.

"The party has always stood for a careful restraint of the powers of government, and the position I am advocating is not in derogation of its ancient principles in this matter. But it should, whenever national action is necessary, be shy, not of governmental power, but of its organization in the wrong way and its use to the wrong ends. The debates of our coming campaign must centre upon the means we are to use in accomplishing ends which the whole country sees that it is necessary to accomplish. There are Democratic means which we can conscientiously and earnestly advocate, and there are radical undemocratic means which should oppose with every article and power that is in us. The democratic means are those which serve the interests of parties or of groups of men which ignore the essential rights and opportunities and responsibilities of individuals. The Democratic principle is that government should stand for only regulation but individual liberty and individual responsibility and that no regulation incompatible with the *freedom and development of the in*dividual is tolerable. This principle, rightly interpreted, leads to many interesting conclusions.

"Stated in general terms, our principle should be: Government, not for the sake of success at whatever cost and the multiplication of material interests, but for the sake of men, but for the sake of discriminating justice and the wholesome development as well as regulation of the national life.

"Apply these doctrines to the great questions of the day and see what it will yield you. Apply it, first of all, to the great questions which center in tariff legislation. The orignal principle of protective tariff in this country was that laid down by the great statesmen who may be said to have originated it. I mean Alexander Hamilton. His argument for protective tariffs turned at every point up this single object; the calling out of all the resources and energies of the nation, and their pro*tection against foreign competition* so long as they should be unable to bear competition. He thought always of the general development and never of the particular interests of those who were engaged for their own profit in furthering it. The principle upon which the Aldrich tariff is based is a radically different one, as sharply contrasted with the principle of Hamilton as private interest is contrasted with public benefit. The object of that tariff, of those which immediately preceded it, is not the benefit of the country at large and the careful stimulation of its many and various industries, but the benefit of those engaged in the protected industries, the incompetent along with the competent. It is a means of insuring profits to certain bodies of manufacturers on the plea that what they are doing adds to the wealth and trade of the nation, but without any regard to the question whether they are adding to the wealth and trade of the nation in the way which is most wholesome and most suited to the common benefit.

"Again and again there have been instances in previous revisions of the tariff in which when certain duties were lowered the manufacturers directly affected found themselves face to face with certain loss, but turned loss into profit by a reconsideration of their whole business, the institution of selected economies, the installation of improved machinery, and the careful stimulation of all their business processes. Recent tariff legislation seeks at every point to relieve them of such necessities of vigilance and improvement, seeks to protect those who have not put their business at its best against foreigners who have. The whole system is a system of favors, by which not the country at large is profited, but those perfectly distinguishable beneficiaries of the government and the party which grants the favors. The demoralization of the whole thing, its corrupting effect upon our politics, its enfeebling effect upon our industries, its sinister effect upon our political principles is now evident to every man who allows himself to think without obscuring his view by private considerations of self interest. A day of reckoning upon this matter is at hand, and it will be an unjust reckoning, namely a reckoning which will render their business unprofitable, but the government which dictates consents to no responsibility in the matter and has calmly adopted the policy of rule even if it involves ruin.

"We do not see the significance of this method of control at present because the commissions so far appointed have generally consisted of men of some wisdom and great honesty, and the information that has served the processes of control with a constant critical scrutiny. But the method is only in its infancy. The opportunities it offers for political influence and individual tyranny, which are the basis of graft, every man who is well read in the history of government can easily perceive. By this method of control we shall presently run into choices we have never dreamed of, into nothing less than the fundamental choices of governmental ownership and direction, so that responsibility shall not be divided from power.

"There is only one principle in regard to these matters which the Democratic party can consistently or conscientiously adopt. It is this. That control shall not be managed in such a way as to increase the powers and temptations of those who administer governments, but in such a way as shall make law supreme through judicial instrumentalities, and which apparently do not spring out of the natural conditions and capacities of America which can be maintained, it is said, only by a constant aid or subsidy from the government. Of these the people must ask themselves the question: Do we wish to maintain them? Can we afford to pay for things not naturally or advantageously produced in Amer*ica when we could get them as well* and much cheaper by importation? Shall we saddle ourselves forever with this systematic charity? There are other industries not yet fully developed, to which protection can honestly and consistently be extended until such time as they shall seem ready for independence. There are resources not yet exploited whose exploitation may take time and may need the covert of tariffs. What we need, in brief, is knowledge of the actual facts in respect of each industry and the honesty to act upon those facts when we have ascertained them. Can we get the facts and handle them? Certainly not by rapid and radical changes in our present tariffs, but by such a prolonged and steady change as will bring about an adaptation of the fiscal policy of the government to the altered and altering circumstances of our manufacturing and laboring classes, with a view ultimately to get upon this basis: the taxation for the support of the government of things for which it will not be needed hardest to pay. High taxes upon these do not suffice, the taxation of those things which it will burden the people to pay for, things not absolute necessaries, things which they can do without when they cannot afford to pay taxation, and throughout the whole process an honest seeking for the things which will yield the most revenue with the least burden to the people.

"It is necessary under our dual system of government that we should depend upon taxes of this sort for the most part for its support, and that almost all direct taxes should be left to the States for their maintenance and development. And it seems a perfectly legitimate and legitimate principle to allow the element of incidental protection to come in, wherever it may be brought in without being a mere subsidy and without cramping and embarrassing the life of original purchasers. There seems to be no injustice in a policy such as I have outlined, if it were undertaken by a responsible party and adhered to with courage and consistency. The chief thing is that the process gradually adjust themselves, if proper time be allowed, to the new principle.

"Apply our principle of government for the sake of justice and development to the trust question and observe what it will yield. We are at present trying to check hardships and abuses of regulating trusts in one or other of two ways. In the first place, we are attempting to restrain them from forms of organization and course of action which are against the general interest by the compulsion of fines and penalties. Thes fines and penalties generally fall, not upon the individuals responsible, but upon the stockholders who, under our present extraordinary methods of business, have, of late, without any real power to control the businesses they nominally own. Fines also operate to take out of legitimate business large sums of money of which the public treasury is in fact the beneficiary, and which embarrasses the general processes of trade and manufacture. It is a means of regulation which so far has certainly not accomplished its objects.

"The other means by which we seek control is the government of public service corporations, as we have cause to call them, through commissions. We have carried this method so far that we have virtually set up a fourth civil division, a management, which carries us very much beyond the point of mere control. We undertake through commissions, to dictate to those corporations the methods and means by which they shall conduct their business, and we threaten them with penalties of the severest sort if they do not obey the directions given them. These directions may or may not have regard to the possibilities of the case, may force upon those corporations policies and measures which will render their business unprofitable, but the government which dictates consents to no responsibility in the matter and has calmly adopted the policy of rule even if it involves ruin.

"We do not see the significance of this method of control at present because the commissions so far appointed have generally consisted of men of some wisdom and great honesty, and the information that has served the processes of control with a constant critical scrutiny. But the method is only in its infancy. The opportunities it offers for political influence and individual tyranny, which are the basis of graft, every man who is well read in the history of government can easily perceive. The Costitutionalist.

AN INDEPENDENT WEEKLY.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

Plainfield, N. J., November 4, 1909.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. Forbes-Robertson's New York season at Maxine Elliott's theatre, which was scheduled to terminate last week, as the end of a month's run, has been so successful in Jerome K. Jerome's symbolic play that the run of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" has been indefinitely prolonged. At every performance since the start, without exception, Forbes-Robertson has played to the capacity of the house, money frequently having been turned away from all parts of the theatre. In consequence of the great demand for seats at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees, it has been decided to give a ninth performance on Election Day, November 2, in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinee. It is extremely unlikely that the desire generally expressed for Mr. Forbes-Robertson's revival of "Hamlet," can be consummated this visit, owing to the absence of his scenery, properties and costumes, and his great and gratifying triumph in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

What promises to be one of the dramatic sensations of the season is to have its first New York presentation at the Bijou theatre next Monday, November 1st. It is "Idols," a dramatization of W. J. Locke's famous novel of the same name. The play was produced on the road a week ago and so great was its success that it was decided to bring it into New York at once. With this end in view arrangements have been completed between the Walter N. Lawrence Company, the American producers of the play, and the management of the Bijou theatre. "Idols" is the strongest and most dramatic of all the novels written by the famous author of "The Beloved Vagabond," "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne" and other popular novels, and tells a gripping, heart-reaching story of modern life and modern people that is well adapted for stage uses.

Kyrle Bellew's "Builder of Bridges" company, now playing at the Hudson theatre in New York, is the champion aggregation of theatrical golfers. Every man in the cast plays the Scottish game and carries his bag of clubs about with him on tour. Edna May's sister, Miss Jane May, who is also in the company, is likewise a devotee of the game.

An American, recently returned from London, reports witnessing a novel application of the overflow meeting idea. Henri Bernstein, author of "The Thief" and of "Israel," which latter play is now running at the Criterion theatre, New York, has been the social lion of the recent London season. One day he was seen lunching tete-a-tete with Lady De Grey at the Ritz while the daughter had a party at the next table, the members of which neither ate nor spoke, but "rubbered" at the brilliant Frenchman.

DEATH OF M. C. DOBBINS

Highly Respected Citizen Passes Away in His Seventy-Third Year.

AFTER THREE WEEKS' ILLNESS.

Veteran Tobacconist a Man of Sterling Christian Character—Funeral Tuesday Afternoon.

Matthias Clark Dobbins, for over forty years a well known tobacconist and prominent resident of this city, died Sunday morning in his seventy-third year, of septic pneumonia. Mr. Dobbins was born at Caldwell and was in the employ of the Campbell-Lane Tobacco Company, of Caldwell, where he learned the trade of cigar maker which he followed the rest of his life.

Mr. Dobbins was a man of splendid Christian character and was beloved by all who knew him. He was a man of integrity and was an example to the young. He had a sunny disposition and had always a kind word for everybody.

When the Civil War broke out Mr. Dobbins organized Co. D., of the Twenty-sixth New Jersey Volunteers, of which he was elected captain. They were mustered in at Camp Frelinghuysen, in Newark, and Mr. Dobbins served one year when he was invalided home. He was an Internal Revenue collector under George Halsey, of Newark, under the Republican administration in that city. He came to Plainfield in 1870 and open d a cigar store in the old building which was torn down later to be replaced by the Plainfield Trust Company's present structure. He then had another store on the same block, afterward moved to the store on North avenue, where he continued the business of making and selling cigars.

Mr. Dobbins married Miss Anne Elizabth Storms, of Caldwell, February 16, 1859, and celebrated their golden wedding on February 16, of this year. Five children blessed the union of which only one son survives, Walter C. Dobbins, a reporter for this paper. A widow also survives him. He was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, F. and A. M.; New York Commandery of the Loyal Legion and Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R. He was for many years a member of the First Baptist church, and served as a deacon for two years.

Kuropatkin, General. Russian Army and the Japanese War. "It is a matter of singular interest, to note that Kuropatkin has not made his memoirs the vehicle for a protest against his government for the latter's cavalier treatment of him during the course of the war. The book is thus not, as might have been expected, a sort of 'apologia,' but it is a straight, impersonal handling of a great historical theme. It brings nearer to a realization of her future ambitions in the Far East."

MacKaye, Percy, The Play House and the Play. "There is a great deal of earnest thought and a sincere devotion to the drama to be found in Mr. MacKaye's book. But it leaves the reader cold, for many of the reforms urged are purely Utopian."

Munsterberg, Hugo, Psychotherapy. "Takes up the phenomena blindly used as blindly misused in the various systems of 'mental healing' and 'faith cure,' frees them from mysticism, fanaticism, and fraud, and presents them as they are, with their possibilities and limitations definitely formulated and in some measure explained."

Pratt, James B., What is Praxmatism. MRS. A. H. LEWIS DEAD

Widow of Well Known Minister Succumbs After Long Illness.

IN HER SEVENTY-THIRD YEAR.

Though An Invalid She Was in Fine Spirits Only a Few Hours Before Summoned.

Mrs. Augusta M. Lewis, widow of the late Rev. Dr. Abraham H. Lewis, died Monday at an early hour at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Kimball, 632 West Seventh street. Mrs. Lewis had been an invalid for many years and the end came without warning.

Mrs. Lewis was Miss Augusta M. Johnson and was born at Berlin, Wisconsin, and was married to Dr. Lewis in 1855 in that city. Six children survive her. They are Professor Edwin Herbert Lewis, of Oak Park, Ills., Mrs. W. L. Russell, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Mrs. James H. Parsons, of Austin, Ill.; Mrs. F. B. Langworthy, of River Forest, Ill.; Mrs. B. W. Spencer, of Delaware, Wis., and Mrs. J. E. Kimball, of this city. Upon the arrival of the relatives from out of town, final arrangements will be made for the funeral.

Mrs. Lewis seemed to be in fine spirits Sunday when she apparently enjoyed the pranks of the children gathered at Mrs. Kimball's to celebrate Hallowe'en. In fact she seemed to be very cheerful and entered heartily into the enjoyment of the occasion and when she retired was happy. Mrs. Lewis was in her seventy-third year and only survived her husband for a little less than a year.

Rev. Dr. Lewis died at Westerly, R. I., November 4, 1908, of pneumonia. He was at the time of his death the dean of the clergy of this city. He was pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church from 1880 to 1886, when he retired to enter the service of the American Sabbath Tract Society as its corresponding secretary. He was editor of the Sabbath Recorder for fourteen years. The handsome Seventh Day Baptist edifice was erected under his direction.

"I really feel highly gratified over my election. I take it as an evidence that the citizens of the borough have confidence in me and that the result is a commendation on my record during the years I served as the borough's chief magistrate. I have always aimed to do what I thought was for the best interests of the municipality and will continue the same policy. I am in favor of a sewerage system, as everybody knows, and I will lend my support to secure this needed improvement. I intend to carry out all the pledges made at Saturday night's mass meeting in Saengerbund Hall in relation to street improvements, etc."

M. C. DOBBINS' FUNERAL

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss Pronounces a Splendid Eulogy at the Service.

INTERMENT IS AT HILLSIDE.

The funeral of Matthias C. Dobbins was held yesterday afternoon from his late home on Elmwood place and was attended by representatives from all the organizations of which Mr. Dobbins had been a member, as well as many friends of the man who was known as the quiet Christian. Many beautiful floral pieces were presented by friends and relatives. Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, assisted by Rev. M. W. Vaughan, pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist church, conducted the services.

Dr. Chambliss spoke briefly of Mr. Dobbins' life, dwelling much on the high Christian character of the man and his way of always keeping Christ before him as an example to copy. Dr. Chambliss said that some men's lives are on a large scale, but the men of great importance are those of lowly heart who live the life of purity and gentleness. Mr. Dobbins was one great, full to reach the great white light.

His friends recognized in Mr. Dobbins a friend who was true in even the smallest of life's duties and his unquestioned work for the church of which he was a member. Mr. Dobbins was for thirteen years superintendent of the Sunday school of Mt. Olive church and a communication from the Sunday school of that church was read by Dr. Chambliss. The letter was a set of resolutions expressing the sympathy of the members to the bereaved family and their sense of personal loss.

The interment was in Hillside cemetery. Following were the pall bearers: E. S. Bonney, George Batchellor, F. S. Thompson, Theo. Aldrich, Robert Barnes, Reuben Knox, L. W. Randolph and Frank Jones.

CARL LEHMANN IS COMING TO NEW JERSEY

The interstate field secretary for Christian Endeavor, Karl Lehmann, will visit New Jersey in December. Under the auspices of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union he will speak at three meetings in Rahway on Friday, December 3—an afternoon meeting with Junior boys and girls and their superintendents, a supper conference on committee work, and an evening rally with an address on "Individual Work for Individuals." He talks on the meeting will be arranged shortly by the county union office and the district secretary for the county.

On Monday, December 6, Mr. Lehmann will address the Paterson C. E. Union at Paterson and on the seventh will speak in Hackensack before the local union there.

The interstate field secretary is one of the best-informed workers in Christian Endeavor ranks. For four years he has given excellent service in his own State, Colorado, as field secretary, and in consequence Colorado is one of the leading States in the Union as regards young people's work in the churches, ranking close to Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

At present Mr. Lehmann is doing field work for the New York State Union, having begun on September 18 a series of remarkable meetings there. The energetic committee of the State Union is behind him in a campaign that for the four weeks closing December 1 includes visits to fifty-two centres with three meetings in each place. Much success is attending the effort.

The visit to New Jersey comes between Mr. Lehmann's New York engagements and his work in Tennessee, which will begin December 8. All of his time until June is engaged, and the New Jersey Endeavorers are fortunate to be able to secure his services during what was intended to be his vacation week, December 1-8. He is a young man, of keen, quick mind and strong executive ability. During the recent State convention at Plainfield he gave valuable help to the delegates and also in the district secretaries' conferences. It is expected that the meetings in Rahway will prove an impetus to the work of the county union in that section, for which Frederick L. Mintel, of Rahway, is the efficient vice-president.

Mrs. Anna Walker.

In Newark, last Tuesday Mrs. Anna Walker after a long illness entered into rest. She was the mother of D. F. Godown, of North Plainfield, and of Mrs. Caleb Dickinson, a former resident of this city. There is also a grandson now living in New York, and two great-grandchildren, Hazel and Isabel Godown, of West Second street. Mrs. Walker was about eighty years old.

Fires in the Trolley.

The Public Service Corporation started fires in its trolley cars on Saturday for the first. Although it is possible to get along without the heat sometimes during the day, it is necessary at this time of the year to have it during the evening.

HIS FAREWELL SERMON

Rev. Wm. Remsen Mulford Says Good-Bye to All Saints' Church.

HE GOES TO BOLTON, N. Y.

The Clergyman Has Done a Great Work in the Parish He Reluctantly Leaves.

Rev. William Remsen Mulford ended his active work as rector of All Saints Episcopal church, of Scotch Plains, when he bid good bye to his people at the afternoon service Sunday, in his removal to Bolton, N. Y., the parish he has vacated has met with a severe loss. Ten years ago he took up the work of the parish and during his rectorate the church has been cleared of debt, the Sunday school has flourished and every department of parish work kept alive and healthy, so that today the church is in a better condition in every way than ever before in its history.

Mr. Mulford is an M. A. of Bellevue College, University of Omaha, and is a man of culture and scholarly tastes. His well known popular lectures on "The Pilgrims and Plymouth," "Fenimore Cooper," "Washington Irving," and "Oliver Wendell Holmes" display great research, analytical skill and refined taste, and are a treat to hear. He is also an antiquarian of some note and has been secretary of the U. U. Genealogical and Biographical Society, and has contributed to the New England Historical Genealogical Register of Boston. He is also a strong and attractive preacher, a faithful and sympathetic pastor, and a staunch and loyal friend.

The Mulford family settled in Long Island in 1640 and have been prominent in social, intellectual and commercial life ever since. Mr. Mulford's grandfather was a merchant in New York before the Civil War, and he is related to the Rev. E. D. Mulford, LL.D., the celebrated author of "The Republic of God." His going from All Saints church to St. Sacrament leaves a blank hard indeed to fill, and his sympathetic presence in the homes of the sick and suffering will be much missed. But all denominations unite in bidding him God-speed as he was greatly beloved by all.

Improvements at Netherwood Church

Enoch Brown, of Leland avenue, has the contract for the addition to be made to the Netherwood Reformed church, which is to house the Sunday school and other classes. Work will be started at once. HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Hypnotist Held When His Subject is Pronounced to Be Dead.

HIS MAIN AORTA RUPTURED.

Fellow Hypnotist Tried in Vain to Revive Victim—Somerville Is Stirred by Fatality.

In a state of almost complete collapse, "Professor" Arthur Everton, of Newark, is locked up in the Somerset county jail, at Somerville, facing a technical charge of manslaughter in being responsible for the death of Robert Simpson, his subject in a hypnotic exhibition given by Everton Monday night at a Somerville theatre.

Simpson lies at the Somerset Hospital morgue, where he was pronounced officially dead and an autopsy was performed. Everton said earlier in the day yesterday he was not convinced that his late subject was dead, and, continually pleaded for another chance to bring him out of the catalpotic state into which, he asserted, Simpson had fallen.

The subject had been placed on two chairs on the stage of the Somerville theatre, his head resting on one and his feet on the other, while Everton stood upon the rigid figure. When through with this experiment Everton snapped his fingers as a signal for Simpson to regain his feet, but there was no answering movement from the hypnotized man. Despite all his efforts, Everton failed to revive the man, and finally Dr. Long, the county physician, who was in the theatre, was called to the platform. The efforts of the physician proved unavailing, and Simpson was hurried to the local hospital, where doctors worked all night over him, aided by Everton, with the same result.

The physicians then announced that the man had been dead since midnight Monday night. Everton was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Arthur P. Sutphen, who held him on the charge of manslaughter to await the action of the grand jury.

Dr. Long informed Everton that he was at liberty to call in any hypnotist he desired and allow him to work over Simpson. The "professor" summoned William E. Davenport, secretary to the Mayor of Newark, and a student of hypnotism, to assist him.

Hypnotism and Death.

Simpson's body, covered with a black cloth, lay in the morgue at the hospital when Davenport arrived. He went in silently and in the presence of W. H. Long, county physician; Dr. Charles H. Halstead and Dr. Francis McConaughy immediately began his attempts to revive the unfortunate man. First he felt of the body to detect any possible heart beat. Failing in this, he placed his ear to the victim's chest; then, invoking the power of suggestion, he spoke in the dead man's ear.

"Bob," he said, "Bob,' your heart action—your heart action—your heart action is beginning. Is beginning." Slowly and dramatically Davenport repeated this in the ear, then, changing histone of voice to an imperious command, he cried, sharply:

"Bob!' Bob!' Can't you hear me? Your heart is beginning to beat. Your heart is beginning to beat.' Again and again he repeated this assurance to the inanimate form, while the medical men looked grimly on. Not a muscle of the body stirred and there was absolutely no sign of animation.

Again Davenport changed his methods. Leaning over Simpson's right ear, he spoke confidentially. "Oh, I say, 'Bob,' he said, in a quiet conversational tone; "look, your heart is beginning to beat." He repeated this soothingly time after time, but without effect.

While this was going on a brilliant incandescent lamp shed its binding glow on the dead man's face, but the eyelids did not flutter. Disheartened, Davenport turned to go, but Dr. Long called him back.

"What is your opinion?' he asked.

"I did not come to form an opinion," replied Davenport.

"But we insist," said the county physician.

"Well," replied Davenport, after a pause, "he's dead."

Results of Autopsy.

At 8 o'clock last night Dr. Long, assisted by Dr. A. C. Stilwell and six local surgeons, performed an autopsy on the body of Simpson, which occupied almost three hours. Afterward the physicians issued a statement, saying that Simpson had died from the effects of a rupture of the aorta, the large blood vessel in the thorax. The autopsy also disclosed that the organs were in poor condition, due, it is said, to the effects of alcohol.

Everton has employed counsel and

SAYS U. S. NEWSPAPERS LEAD CANUCK JOURNALS

Frank S. Jones, Plainfield's pioneer linotype operator and a former employe of The Daily Press, returned to town yesterday after an absence of nearly four years, during which time he was linotype expert for the Halifax Herald, Halifax, Nova Scotia, accompanying Mr. Jones was his wife and daughter.

In comparing notes on American and Canadian journalism Mr. Jones declared that the newspapers in Uncle Sam's domain are far more enterprising than the Canuck journals, not only in the gathering of news, but also in the general makeup of the papers. Mr. Jones explained, however, that Canadian papers as a rule, especially in the larger cities of King Edward's North American domain, are making rapid strides. This he attributes to the fact that American ideas are gradually being copied.

Mr. Jones, whose patriotism has never been questioned, declares that the United States is the greatest land of all. "Never again will I leave the land of the Stars and Stripes," said he to a Daily Press reporter. He admitted, however, that he had been accorded the best of treatment during his sojourn in Halifax and incidentally threw numerous bouquets at the Land of Evangeline. It is the intention of Mr. Jones to settle here permanently.

BAIRD NOT OPPOSED TO ACKERMAN FOR PLACE

A good deal of the opposition that has been working secretly since election day against the candidacy of Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, for the majority leadership in the upper chamber of the incoming Legislature, failed to come out in the open yesterday in the gathering of legislators and politicians at "Governor's day" in the State House. As a result of this development the friends of Mr. Ackerman returned to their homes much more confident than they left them to come to Trenton yesterday to get a line on the probable organization of the Legislature.

State Assessor David Baird, of Camden, the acknowledged Republican leader of the South Jersey counties, who last week solicited several of Mr. Ackerman's Republican colleagues to vote against him for the majority leadership, was more cautious yesterday. He denied that he had any personal opposition to Senator Ackerman, and insisted that he was not exerting influence to beat him for the leadership which the Republican hold-over Senators tacitly agreed to accord him when they voted him the titular honor in the closing hours of the last session on the elevation of Senator Frelinghuysen to the presiding officer's place.

Mr. Baird and Senator Ackerman had a brief talk together in a corner of the corridor during the day, but nothing transpired bearing on the situation. Frank H. Smith, chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, who was busy among the legislators and politicians ascertaining their sentiment toward Mr. Ackerman, said later that the understanding the opposition that had developed the Union county man would be continued as leader when the time came for his party colleagues to decide the question in caucus. After County Chairman Smith left the State House, Hamilton Kean, brother of United States Senator John Kean, appeared on the scene and talked with several Republican leaders.

Unless the demand for Ackerman's selection for the Senate leadership complicates matters for Union county's delegation, Assemblyman Pierce will also prove a strong candidate for either the speakership or the leadership.

It was evident that Moore, of Passaic, will not have the backing of even his own county for the speakership or the leadership, the latter post, according to his own confession, being his real goal.

Willie Day a Bad Boy.

William Day, fourteen years old, of Harmony street, appeared before Recorder Dolliver this morning charged with mischievous doings in a vacant house on Race street. Young Day is a bad little incident and was released on parole, the understanding being that he report to Chief Weiss every Saturday night for a period of one year.

Anybody Lost a Wagon?

The borough police department has in its possession a topped buteher delivery wagon which was brought over there on Hallowe'en by a company of youthful celebrators from this city. The vehicle was evidently taken from a carriage repair shop. Chief Weiss is willing to turn the wagon over to its owner on receipt of satisfactory identification.

TO HOLD CHARITY BALL

Board of Governors to Conduct Social Affair for Hospital's Benefit.

MORE MONEY IS NEEDED NOW.

Monthly Report Shows That 103 Patients Were Treated at the Institution in October.

For the purpose of assisting in the raising of funds for general operating expenses at Muhlenberg Hospital, the Board of Governors has decided to hold the annual Charity Ball on the night of December 21. It was thought that a sufficient sum would be contributed by the people of Plainfield so that the charity affair would not be necessary, but according to the board, they have not.

When the board met Monday night consideration time was devoted to a discussion of finances. It was the sense that the people of Plainfield ought to increase their subscriptions and that an effort should be made to reach those who do not now contribute to the support of the institution. It was believed that there are many residents interested in the hospital who do not support the institution financially, and that no doubt a number of subscriptions could be secured from them, amounts ranging from $1 to $5 a year. In the meantime the Charity Ball will be given to secure funds for general operating expenses.

The report for October showed that 103 patients were treated at the hospital during that time, of which 56 were cured, 8 improved, 2 not improved and 5 died, leaving 32 patients remaining on November 1. There were 46 operations performed, and 62 regular dispensary patients, 203 daily visits, 10 out-of-door operations and 5 cases of contagious diseases. The total number of hospital days for the month was 1,224.

WHERE IS W. E. THOMAS? MOTHER IS ANXIOUS

Chief Weiss today received a request from Erwin Council, No. 44, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Irwin, Pa., for any information regarding the whereabouts of William E. Thomas, who has been missing from home for four years. The circular stated that the council has interested itself in the search for Thomas at the request of the latter's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, also of Irwin.

Thomas is 33 years old, weighs about 140 pounds, and has black hair. He lost an arm in an accident on the Union Pacific Railroad in 1898. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American war and saw service at Santiago with Company A, Fifteenth Regiment, Minnesota Volunteers. John S. Irwin, secretary of Irwin Council, will also be glad to receive any information as to Thomas.

MRS. DUPEE BORNE TO GRAVE BY NEIGHBORS

A large gathering of friends assembled in Holy Cross church this morning where the funeral service over the remains of Mrs. Josephine Hubbard Dupee was conducted by the Rev. George A. Warner. The service was of a simple character and confined largely to remarks by the rector who eulogized the Christian life of the departed.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, including pieces from the King's Daughters' Circle, The Monday Afternoon Club, the Woman's Auxiliary of Holy Cross church, in addition to a profusion of individual tributes.

Interment was made at Hillside, the casket being borne to the grave by neighbors of the deceased, Mayor Samuel Townsend, Henry McGee, Henry Phillips, Augustus Vandeventer, A. E. Faber and Charles Horne.

Rabbit Season Near.

Borough sportsmen are oiling their guns in preparation for the rabbit hunting season which opens on Monday, November 15. Reports from Mt. E. H. HARRIMAN'S LIFE

Described by Alexander Millar, One of His Most Intimate Friends.

HE WAS A RELIGIOUS MAN.

Grit and Determination His Characteristics—Loved the Little Memorial Church at Arden

The Men's club of the Congregational church with a large number of guests, listened to an entertaining and illuminative talk on the great financier, the late Edward H. Harriman, by Alexander Millar, secretary of the Union Pacific Railroad, and intimate friend. After Mr. Millar's speech the guests enjoyed listening to some vocal selections by Charles L. Lewis, and partook of the ice cream and cake provided by the club.

Mr. Millar's speech was purely reminiscent and because of his intimate acquaintance with Mr. Harriman and his long association and knowledge of the man, was able to give a clearer insight into his character and life. Mr. Harriman started with but much encouragement as a clerk in a Wall street concern and in a comparatively short time began to make his influence felt in the Street. No man can do justice to Mr. Harriman, said Mr. Millar, but neither could the newspapers make a cut-lossly out of him. He shunned publicity.

Mr. Millar dwelt at length of the early struggles of Mr. Harriman's father, who was a clergyman, and told of the attempt he made to obtain a charge in California during the gold excitement in 1848. The elder Harriman preached at Stockton, but was obliged to leave there because of the outbreak of cholera. He finally located in Jersey City and became rector of St. George's church there.

Mr. Harriman began his life work at the age of fifty and it was a pity that he was unable to see the fruition of his labors. His work in upbuilding the decrepit finances of the Union Pacific railroad in the panic of 1893 called forth the exclamation of the foremost men in New York "another Jay Gould has arrived." He could see farther into the future than any other man of his time.

In 1898 Mr. Harriman went to the Pacific coast and on this trip studied the needs of the railroads and formed his plans for the changes which have placed them on a firm financial basis. His roads clashed with the interests of James J. Hill, who was a power in the Northern Pacific and these two had a tussle which Wall Street still marvels at, and, although apparently worsted, Mr. Harriman is believed to have won a moral victory. Grit and determination were Mr. Harriman's chief characteristics and to these are credited his huge financial successes.

When asked how he got into politics Mr. Harriman replied that it was because he was appealed to in 1904 directly from C. N. Bliss, who was managing the Republican campaign, for funds, and of the $250,000 raised at that time $50,000 was Mr. Harriman's direct contribution. Out of this campaign came the great controversy between Mr. Harriman and former President Theodore Roosevelt, the interested itself in relation to this controversy could be published it would shed new light on the characters of the two men.

Mr. Harriman's religion was of the unostentatious type and was more frequently seen at his home and on the farm. His interest was great in the little church at Arden and here he did what he could for his employees, urging their loyalty to the chapel. Mr. Harriman was always chaste in his language and was a home loving man. The most touching thing noticed at the funeral was the tribute of real grief shown by these employees who familiarly called Mr. Harriman "Uncle How."

Mr. Millar illustrated the great works along the routes of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific lines with a map and drew especial attention to the building of the great cut-off at Salt Lake and the reduction of grades on the Union Pacific. He also showed very interesting pictures of Mr. Harriman and several noted caricatures, one of which showed Mr. Harriman as the "Colossus of Roads."

Mr. Millar was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his speech.

Married in July.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Emma J. Dilsworth and William Boyd, both of this city, the ceremony being celebrated at Westfield on July 17. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. W. D. Robenson at the latter's home. The bride was formerly employed by Mr. Hopkins, at Watchung avenue, while the groom is a well-known local gardener.

PULLED A KNIFE ON KANE

Drunken Negro Gets a Jail Sentence for Threatening to Carve Waiter.

WANTED SOME MORE BREAD.

Wilkes Was Drunk and Created a Disturbance in Timbo's Restaurant Last Night.

Threatening to carve anyone who attempted to prevent him getting what he wanted in Timbo's restaurant last night Henry Wilkes, a negro, created a disturbance which finally landed him in a cell at police headquarters. Wilkes was drunk. Judge Runyon sentenced him to sixty days in the county jail.

James Kane, a waiter in Timbo's restaurant, told the story of Wilkes' violence. He said the negro came into the restaurant and asked for a plate of beans, afterwards asking for a cup of coffee, a piece of mince pie and more bread. The "more bread" was the bone of contention. Mr. Kane told Wilkes that he had not yet eaten the portion of bread originally placed before him and that perhaps when that was consumed he would supply more. Wilkes was not satisfied with the promise and began to curse the waiter and swear that he would get even and invited Mr. Kane out to finish the argument.

As the men were about to go out into the yard to settle matters Wilkes drew a knife with a blade about six inches long, but his action was noticed and in a minute the negro was disarmed and landed on the sidewalk.

Constable Weaver attempted to arrest the man, but he broke away and was continuing the disturbance when Patrolman Messler appeared on the scene. Messler managed to get the fighting black to headquarters, after a struggle and locked him up. Judge Runyon in sentencing Wilkes said that he was too dangerous a character to have around a peaceable neighborhood, and it was best to send him where he would be out of the way of temptation for a couple of months.

The commission appointed by Governor Fort to further the plan of establishing a national park where Washington crossed the Delaware organized today by electing United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, of Trenton, president; Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, vice-president; Prof. William Libbey, of Princeton, secretary, and William L. Doyle, of Trenton, treasurer.

Governor Fort told the commission he had received assurances of the co-operation of Governor Stuart in the movement.

NOTORIOUS TOOL THIEF CAUGHT AT SO. PLAINFIELD

The Lehigh Valley Railroad police at South Plainfield, made an important arrest Saturday night, when a man named Fields, who is wanted in many cities throughout the country for thieving, was picked up just as he alighted from a freight train. The man insisted that his name was Harrison," but when confronted by Robert Hamilton, of South Plainfield, he was promptly identified as Fields. While being held in custody, Chief P. S. Kiely, of this city, was sent for and he further confirmed the belief as to the real identity of the man.

The railroad authorities took the man to Phillipsburg, where he is said to have operated extensively and there he was identified as Fields.

Fields is known as a tool thief and it is said that he has operated in Plainfield. It is believed that he left the train at South Plainfield to resume operations. As Fields is wanted in so many places, he stands good to serve a long time in jail. He is now being held a prisoner in Northampton county, Pa., where it is believed he will get a ten year sentence for his operations in that part of the State.

ARRESTED FOR TAPPING CITY WATER HYDRANTS

Thomas Burke, a contractor, living at 905 West Third street, was arraigned in the city court this morning before Judge Runyon on a charge of violating a city ordinance in taking water from a hydrant near his house. Burke's hearing was postponed until Friday morning in order to allow the police department to round up the witnesses in the case.

The continual fracture of this ordinance which makes it a misdemeanor to tap any of the hydrants in the city except upon specific permission from the fire commissioners or in case of an actual fire has roused the ire of the neighbors of Burke as well as the water company.

The complainants in this case are determined to make an example of the violator of the ordinance and as Burke, has, according to some, been the most frequent cause of complaint he will have to explain on Friday. Burke said this morning that he, personally, had never touched a hydrant and as a matter of fact does not know how to open the "pesky" thing. However that may be it is believed that Charlie Barnes, the colored man who works for Burke, can shed some light on the subject when he tells what he knows of the case next Friday morning.

EVANGELIST WILLIAMS TO OPEN CAMPAIGN HERE

Bradford Williams, Bible reader and evangelist, whose Bible recitals and addresses in scores of cities within the past ten years, has been secured by the Young Men's Christian Association for a week's campaign, beginning Sunday, November 14.

Where Mr. Williams has worked, there has resulted a religious awakening that has made for the good of the community. During the last week in September his meetings in Lima, Ohio, drew over 10,000 people. Frequently his visit to a city is followed by a city-wide revival.

He is a many-sided man, of unusual adaptability. He stimulates and encourages the church worker, inspires the Bible student, arouses the indifferent through his plain and searching message and his wonderful recitals. Daily he is busy by working men among whom some of his best work has been done. He often preaches to thousands from street-corners and from his favorite pulpit, his so-called "portable" pulpit, the automobile, and counsels with men individually. With boys he is a great favorite, with his wholesome personality, his enthusiasm and his directness.

BONFIRE GATHERS VICTIM

Five-Year-Old Fanny Donato Dying in Hospital as Result of Burns Today.

ONLY SLIGHT HOPE FOR LIFE.

Girl Stole Matches and Set Fire to a Pile of Straw in Rear of Father's Store.

Lying in a little white cot in Muhlenberg Hospital, awaiting death to relieve her sufferings, is five-year old anny Donato, a little black-eyed Italian girl, of the borough, who was nearly burned to death this morning, as the result of building a bonfire while at play. The victim is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Donato, of Somerset street, and according to reports given out by the hospital authorities early this afternoon, the little girl is in a critical condition with only a slight chance of recovery.

Nicholas Donato, the girl's father, conducts a fruit store in the building situated between borough fire headquarters and Debele and Stahl's store. A few days ago he burned up a lot of straw picking while his daughter looked on. Yesterday he made another pile with the intention of burning it, but this morning, his daughter secured some matches without the knowledge of Mrs. Donato, ran to the yard and lighted the straw.

A slight breeze fanned the flames toward the girl's clothing and in an instant she was enwrapped in one solid blaze. Agonizing screams of the girl attracted the attention of her parents and neighbors who finally smothered the flames by the use of blankets, but not until the entire body and face of the victim had been scorched and blackened by the flames.

Dr. Zeglio was summoned and did what he could to give temporary relief to the child. At 10 o'clock the ambulance arrived and conveyed the girl to the hospital.

Mrs. Donato, the girl's mother, collapsed over the shock, and Dr. Zeglio was also obliged to render assistance to her.

ALLEGED CROOKEDNESS IN SCHOOLS AROUSES MT. BETHEL

At an enthusiastic meeting held at Mt. Bethel last night nearly 250 voters from Warren township were present. A committee of five was appointed to investigate the schools of the township. It was said that the State authorities would withdraw the State support of the schools unless something was done to correct the abuses in the system.

Residents of the township made speeches in favor of a thorough cleaning up and in one of the speeches it was said that Joel Codington had borrowed school funds to the amount of $800. It was further intimated that "Circles on the Square" would soon put the politicians who have mismanaged the township affairs where they belong.

ITALIAN "JUMPS" A FREIGHT AND BREAKS COLLAR BONE.

An Italian about thirty-five years old, employed on the section gang on the Lehigh Valley R. R. at Potter's Crossing, jumped off a freight train in front of the South Plainfield station, last night, and broke his collarbone. He was takes to his home, where he is now under treatment. He will recover.

The man has been in the habit of "jumping" a freight to ride home every night, and last night he misjudged the rate of speed the train was going. When he struck the ground he rolled over and over and was picked up in an unconscious condition. A physician was summoned to set the broken bone.

Burglar Scare at Oak Tree.

Chief Kiely and Patrolmen Payne and Anderson answered an appeal for help from the employes of the Judge Steel estate near Oak Tree at about 7:30 last night. Stablemen in the employ of Judge Steele thought they had burglars to deal with. When Chief Kiely and his men arrived on the scene a cordon was made around the house and the Chief with his men entered, making a thorough search. No burglars were found, neither were there any indications of any one having entered the house by forcing an entrance. They returned without seeing any suspicious characters.

Borough Taxes Coming in.

Assistant Tax Collector Frederick J. Martin is highly gratified over the promptness of taxpayers in that vicinity. Up to date $20,000 has been received.

Sesame Club to Meet.

The Sesame club will meet tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. Walter Freeman, 1008 South avenue.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

A new pipe organ, purchased at a cost of $2,100, has been installed in the Methodist church at Swedesboro.

There is scarcely an acre of ground in Gloucester county that is not placarded with caution notices to gunners.

Rev. W. E. Allen has resigned the rectorship of the St. John's Episcopal church, Salem, to take effect December 15.

Bayonne's Board of Education has established a class made up of incorrigible children. Miss Heinze is the teacher of the class.

Mayor Ellis, of Camden, Friday appointed Frank West, colored subpoliceman, as a regular to succeed former Policeman Kaplan, discharged from the force.

Representative Eugene F. Kinkead, accompanied by Mayor Wittpenn, of Jersey City, has been to Lakewood, where they will spend several days in rest.

Despite Professor Godfrey's statement that he has not resigned, nor does he intend to resign from the principalship of the Walnut Street School, Salem, the Board of Education elected Miss Emma Burt, of Woodstown, to the position.

Marcus N. Carroll, one of the detectives connected with the Camden county prosecutor's office, is in the Medico-Chi Hospital, Philadelphia, after undergoing a delicate operation. Word from the hospital last night was to the effect that his condition, while serious, was favorable to an early and complete recovery.

Rev. Dr. A. G. A. Buxton, who has received a unanimous call to become rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Camden, and whose resignation was accepted by the vestry of St. Mark's church, Lewistown, Pa., has received another call from the vestry of St. Matthews' church at Sunbury. The new offer carries a larger salary, and Dr. Buxton has not yet decided what his ultimate destination will be, but St. John's vestry say Sunbury cannot have the Lewistown rector at any price.

Several relatives of Rev. T. C. Parker, pastor of the Methodist church of Lakehurst, died recently in quick succession, each of them leaving him a substantial bequest. In consequence he has resigned his position as pastor and moved to Swainton, Cape May county, where the property is located, and will devote his time to the settlement of the estates. Rev. Dr. John Mandley, district superintendent, is arranging to have the pulpit filled until the next meeting of the New Jersey Conference in March.

John W. Barr, a justice of the peace of Camden, was taken into custody Friday by Constable Hiros at his office, opposite the courthouse, on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Schmitz, on a charge of embezzlement. The complaint against Barr was made by David V. Meyer, of Finderne, Somerset county, who alleges that between August 15, 1909, and the present time, while Barr was acting as his agent, the latter collected $515.69 in rents of property he owned in Camden. Barr was taken before Justice Schmitz, who held him in his own recognizance. Barr says it is all a mistake. It is said that a number of Barr's checks, now in the possession of the complainant, will figure in the case.

SWAYZE TAKES THRUST AT SHORE CONDITIONS.

Lawyers and visitors in the Supreme Court room were amused one day last week by a brief colloquy between Justice Swayze and J. Wharton Stokes, of Atlantic City. Mr. Stokes was renewing before the full court an application for a certiorari under the Lord and Tennant act which had been refused by one of the justices, with leave, however, to apply to the court in bank. During his argument Mr. Stokes remarked:

"Atlantic County has been ignoring the act of 1893."

"The court is fully aware," remarked Justice Swayze, "that Atlantic county has been ignoring several of the acts on our statute books."

"Yes," replied Mr. Stokes, "but we understand perfectly well that in Atlantic county we are outside the State of New Jersey."

"Atlantic county may have occasion to change that understanding before long," was the parting thrust of Justice Swayze before Mr. Stokes resumed his argument.

At Proctor's.

The vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre this week will be one of the most expensive yet engaged for the playhouse, including all headliners. Today, tomorrow and Wednesday there will be The Michaelangelos, European rag-picking and novelty artists; Harvey and Harvey, grotesque artists; Francis Elliott, character impersonator and Milton's dog circus. The bill for Thursday, Friday and Saturday includes Frank Mayne & Co., in "The Tipster," Maud Muller, songs and dances; Moran & Moran, comedy pair and the famous Alabama Comedy Four. There will be a change of films d'art every day.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet tomorrow night.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O U. A. M., will hold a musical in its lodge rooms tonight.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., will hold a regular communication tomorrow night.

CURRENT VERSE:

Italy.

Our Italy's the darling of the earth—the treasury, piled
With reveries of gentle ladies, flung
Aside, like raveled silk, from life's worn stuff—
With coins of scholars' fancy, which being rung
On workday counter, still sound silver-proof—
In short, with all the dreams of dreamers young.
Before their heads have time for slipping off
Hope's pillow to the ground. How oft, indeed,
We have sent our souls out from the earth,
On bare white feet which would not print nor bleed,
To climb the Alpine passes and look forth
Where the low murmuring Lombard rivers lead
Their bee-like way to gardens almost worth
The sight which thou and I see afterward,
From Turacan Bellosguardo, wide awake,
When standing on the actual, blessed sward
Where Galileo stood at nights to take
The vision of the stars, we find it hard,
Gazing upon the earth and heaven, to make
A choice of beauty.
—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Bondage.

I am the slave of day,
And underneath the sun
I play my part with stubborn heart
Until the day is done!
I do the part I hate,
I earn the grudging pay,
And none can guess I wear a mask
Indentured to the day.

But when the sun has set
And labor ends again,
How easy to forget
The walks and ways of men!
Deep in my bed I seek
The lilac and the rue,
The white rose and the rose of red;
The memory of you.

What though the miles divide,
What though the years are past?
Across the night I dream aright,
And am myself at last;
A bondsman of the day,
While day is on its throne,
The secret I am still know I am
Your slave, and yours alone!
—Reginald Kauffman, in Smart Set.

The Helpless Ones.

I have to weep o'er stories that they print in magazines,
So full am I of sympathy with all those woeful scenes
In which the authors mix the folks—poor souls!—that they put through Such dreadful complications full of misery and rue.

In real life you can help a man, no matter what his pains,
'Tis possible to lift him up onto his feet again.
If he does wrong, there's hope ahead, if some one points the way,
Or if he's plunged in darkness you can lead him to the day.

But in the magazines, alas! there's no escape at all,
Once printed, bound and published and spread upon the stall,
Their doom is sealed forevermore, and of their bitter cup
They drink, and drink, and drink, and drink and drink, until one burns them up.
—Wilberforce Jenkins, in Smart Set.

The Man Who Sulks.

The world has little pity and few favors to be spent
For the man who is disgruntled and sits sulking in his tent;
If your ventures have not prospered do not idly curse your luck,
But get out and make the people wonder at your manly pluck.

Men will never come to coax you, if you hang back in despair,
To have courage and keep trying to put off the frown you wear;
They will not arrange new chances to replace the ones you lose
While you hunt a gloomy corner clinging to a case of blues.

They are foolish self-cheated who keep parties on their woes
After they have been defeated, thinking all men are their foes,
And the praise the world is willing to bestow is never meant
For the man who is disgruntled and sits sulking in his tent.
—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.

The Thunderstorm.

A moment the wild swallows like a flight
Of withered gust-caught leaves, serenely high,
Toss in the windrack up the muttering sky.
The leaves hang still. Above the weird twilight,
The burrying centers of the storm unite
And, spreading with huge trunk and rolling fringe,
Each wheeled upon its own tremendous hinge,
Tower darkening on. And now from With the long roar of elm trees swept and swayed,
And gathered waters, on the vanished plain
Plunges the blast. Behind the wild white flash
That splits abroad the pealing thunder-crash,
Over bleared fields and gardens disarrayed
Column on column comes the drenching rain.
—Archibald Lampman.

If I Were King.

If I were king—ah love, if I were king—
What tributary nations would I bring
To stoop before your scepter and to swear
Allegiance to your lips and eyes and hair;
Beneath your feet what treasures would I fling—
The stars should be your pearls upon a string,
The world a ruby for your finger ring.
And you should have the sun and moon to wear
If I were king.

Le these wild dreams and wilder words take wing,
Deep in the woods I hear a shepherd sing
A simple ballad to a sylvan air,
Of love that ever finds your face more fair;
I could not give you any goodlier thing
If I were king.
—Justin Huntley McCarthy.

Each Other.

Let us help each other:
Thine, day must see thy;
Wait not for another,
Time is flitting by.

Let us cheer each other—
Give the ready smile;
Thinking of another
Shortens every mile.

Let us love each other,
'Tis a rule of gold;
When we love another,
Love doth us enfold.
Helen Elizabeth Coolidge.

LURE OF FOREIGN LANDS

Emerson E. Parvin Gives an Illustrated Lecture on Travel.

LIFE ABOARD PASSENGER SHIP.

The Beneficial Effect of Seeing Something of the World and How it is Done.

Emerson E. Parvin, of this city, delivered a lecture on the subject of "Over the Seas and the Lure of Foreign Lands," before an audience of over 200 people at Hope chapel Friday night. Thelecture was illustrated with superb views, many of which were taken by the speaker. Mr. Parvin is an interesting talker and his lecture was well received, being frequently interrupted with applause.

Mr. Parvin took his audience to the big shipyards and showed views of many large vessels in course of construction, including the "Olympic" and "Titanic," which, when completed, will be the largest trans-Atlantic liners afloat, being 840 feet long, with small coal consumption and speed of 21 knots and having accommodations for about 5,000 people, a number equal to the population of a small town.

As an idea of their size, it would require about forty-five city houses twenty feet wide to fill the space. Having conducted his audience through the shipyards the speaker explained the details of building, the preparations necessary for a single trip across the big pond, telling of the commissary department, giving an adequate idea of quality and quantity of supplies needed for the trip.

The audience was then taken from New York to Liverpool, London, through principal cities of England; Paris and other important points in France, then through Spain, Morroco, Egypt, the Holy Land, through Turkey and, Persia and returning through Germany, Holland and returning to England and bringing them back on one of the big ocean steamers.

The speaker explained in full the life on shipboard, views being shown of state rooms, smoking rooms, the salon and dining room, the culinary department, the crew and officers and the passengers busy and interested in games on the trip.

In describing the journey, Mr. Parvin said:

"We can conceive of one who has no interest in the land of his ancestors, who does not care to take the trouble to view the scenes made familiar by the pen of the historian, the story-teller, or the poet; who has no desire to enjoy the art treasures of the old world, but such cases are rare indeed.

"To be sure, travel for its own sake is beneficial, as all wise men have agreed from time immemorial. Home-keeping youths have ever homely wits, and though travel will not make a gem of a pebble, nothing else will so quickly cut the face of a diamond mind.

"It is far from useless to journey through a foreign land with no other idea than to enjoy its scenery, but the buildings and its art, to observe the customs of its people and to live for awhile as they live. Yet there is greater satisfaction in returning with the belief that you have done something. little it may be towards mastering some one branch of knowledge.

"The purposeless traveler may come home conscious that he is a wider, broader, more cultured man than when he went away, but he should not be satisfied if he cannot say to himself, 'I can tell what a handsome church it is, and why it is a handsome church. I know several kinds of architecture.'. As a business man he may observe men in similar trades display their goods, and how they otherwise advertise them, and in countless ways the man with a purpose can come home amply rewarded by a trip to a foreign country."

HELD FOR GRAND JURY ON YOUNG WOMEN'S CHARGE

Russel DeCamp, the young man complained against by Miss Anna Burdick, of Fanwood, Friday was held in $1,000 bonds this morning to await the action of the grand jury.

Miss Burdick told her story in court this morning, but those present were not impressed with the narrative. She acknowledged that she had informed DeCamp that she was sixteen and to others had said that she was seventeen years old. She was also mixed as to dates and alternately named a day in December and September as the day on which the alleged offense occurred.

The woman who yesterday posed as the girl's mother declared this morning that she was only her foster mother. The girl's mother went on the stand and gave her name as Winfred Thompson, of Westfield, and her age as twenty-nine.

The case will come before the grand jury in the January, 1910 term, meanwhile DeCamy will be released on a bail bond which was furnished this morning by friends.

PATROLMEN'S BALL TO BE A BIG AFFAIR

The program for the coming ball and entertainment of the Plainfield lodge of the Patrolman's Benevolent Association have appeared and judging from the list of things that are to happen on the night of November 18 there will be something doing all the time.

Among the attractions to be offered will be the singing by the Dixie Quartet, which combination needs no introduction to Plainfielders. Harry MacDonald, too, is on the program for some songs. All the dances are named for officials of the State, county and city, from Governor Fort down to Tom McCue, the veteran, and a good time is assured for the night.

The dance will take place in Truell Hall and the music will be by La Vere's string band. During the evening Mrs. Truell will furnish light refreshments for those who want them at moderate cost. A banquet will be held in the dining hall of Truell court, at which several prominent speakers, including Mayor Fisk, Judge William Runyon, Chief of Police Monahan, of Jersey City, the founder of the association; Henry W. Weller, of Newark, and others will address the members present. From present indications there will be a large attendance at the ball. The banquet will be limited to thirty-six persons including the officials and speakers.

STONE THROWER CAUGHT; PUT ON PROBATION

Throwing stones at passing trains is becoming such a nuisance in this city that the Central Railroad has had its detectives on the lookout for the stone-throwers. Officer Regan of the road found the boy who struck an engineer of train No. 528 on the evening of October 27 by some clever detective work and the boy, John Stromberg, was arraigned in court Saturday before City Judge Runyon.

Stromberg bears a good reputation and it not known as a trouble seeker. In his own behalf this morning he told the judge that he did not throw the stone with the intention of hitting anybody, but simply threw it at a huge lump of coal on a passing coal train. He did not know that the flyer was coming along. Two small colored lads who were witnesses of the throwing told just how it happened and it was shown that young Stromberg told the truth about the incident. He was put on probation.

John Hasker, of McDowell street, spoke a good word for Stromberg, and the judge was favorably impressed with the boy's neat appearance He lectured him some on the evils of stone throwing and allowed him to go, with the understanding that he come to court on Saturday mornings for a while.

FIVE KILLED IN WRECK

Locomotives on Pennsylvania Come Together with Fatal Effect.

TWO ENGINEERS MEET DEATH.

Trainmen Are Killed in Crash at Jersey City—No Passengers Seriously Hurt.

Five men were instantly killed shortly before 9 o'clock Friday morning on the Pennsylvania railroad when Engine 2768, drawing train 104, made of a steel baggage car and four steel day coaches ful of men and women passengers, jumped the switch on the thirty-foot embankment near Railroad and Brunswick avenues, on the outskirts of Jersey City, and crashed into light engine 3175, which was running on the adjoining track in the same direction. The train was running at express speed from Philadelphia and was due in Jersey City at 8:58 o'clock.

The heavy passenger locomotive side-swiped the lighter locomotive and cut off completely the cab and buckled up the locomotive proper, and turned it over on its side on the high trestle work. The engineer and fireman on this engine did not have a chance for their lives and were buried in the wreck of escaping steam, fire and twisted steel.

It was the same fate for the engineer and fireman of the passenger engine. They met death instantly, without warning, and although the men were dead they were carried along in the wild dash of the engine as it tore down the trestlework for 400 yards, where it finally came to a stop after leaping on the rails of the adjoining track and standing there upright, without, however, the tender, which had been left far up the road at the wreck.

The towerman, Daniel Harrington, of Monmouth street, Newark, who was in charge of the switches when the accident occurred, was arrested.

HOLTON WILL CONTEST DECISION IN 2 WEEKS

Argument in the Miss Mary Holton will case was heard at Somerville Friday before Judge Schenck, and the court informed counsel that it would take the matter under advisement and probably give a decision within the next two weeks.

Winfield S. Angleman, of this city, and Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, appeared for the caveators and spoke against the admission of the will to probate. William A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, of this city, and Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, addressed the court in behalf of the will and its admission to probate.

It was the contention of counsel for the caveators that Miss Holton never declared or acknowledged her will according to the statutes, and this argument, it is said, was not refuted by the opposing counsel. The argument of counsel took practically the whole morning and proved interesting to all concerned.

CHARITY CIRCLE NETS $175. FOR THE UNION

Under the auspices of Charity Circle of The King's Daughters, of which Mrs. D. N. VanVliet is the president, a tea and sale of fancy and useful articles and candy were held at the home of Mrs. Daniel Ginna on Watchung avenue, Friday afternoon. The affair was very successful, netting about $175 to be used for the King's Daughters' work.

The large and spacious home of Mrs. Ginna was thronged with members and friends of the Circle. Tea was served in the dining-room where Mrs. Harry Johnson, who presided, had wrought an attractive decoration of chrysanthemums. She was assisted by other members of the Circle, as were also Mrs. William A. Connor in charge of the useful and fancy articles and Mrs. Julius E. Erickson the candy table. During the afternoon a number of children assisted by selling ice cream.

STATE ELECTION SIFTINGS

In Clifside, Bergen county, Major Steven W. McClave was re-elected Mayor of that borough. The major had a hard fight on his hands this time. Several land companies were bucking him pretty hard and real money was spent in an effort to defeat him.

Rev. James E. Lake, a Methodist clergyman, who was defeated for Mayor of National Park by one vote by Charles H. Fetters, may contest the election.

Mayor J. M. McGowan, Republican, of Pitman, was re-elected.

Wilmer Lepo, Republican, will be Swedesboro's Mayor, having 63 majority.

Hammonton, Atlantic County, had the hottest contest evere witnessed there, and it was practically a Democratic victory. John M. Austin was elected Mayor by 147 over Michael J. Boyer, Republican. Every Republican nominee was buried under an avalanche of votes, with the exception of Edge for Assembly, who received a majority of two over Bergen in the latter's home town.

Burlington County Republican politicians feel keenly the loss of two Republican members of the Board of Freeholders. Director Joel Horner, of Palmyra, was beaten by Winfield T. Land, a Democrat, by 28 majority, and Clayton H. Brick, of Marlton, by Alfred W. Lofland, a Democrat, by 21 majority.

Thirty members-elect of the House were not in the 1909 session, although two of them, Ramsay, of Middlesex, and Ridgway, of Salem, were Assemblymen in 1908.

Atlantic City Republican organization members are arranging an elaborate banquet in honor of Commissioner Frank Shane, whose candidates for Council won in every ward of the city Tuesday. Tickets will cost $15 each.

Charged with vote buying and vote selling, Isaac Brown and Sydney Butler were held under bail at Atlantic City by Magistrate Jagmetty.

It is said that Assemblyman Isaac T. Nichols, of Cumberland, is likely to be a candidate for the Senatorial nomination next fall. This talk is the outcome of his remarkable run for re-election Tuesday.

In Gibsboro, Albert Repp, Prohibitionist candidate for Assembly in Gloucester county, received 176 votes, running ahead of the Republican candidate, Assemblyman Walter Heritage. Mr. Repp was active in closing the hotel at that place. The Prohibition vote elsewhere in the county was very light.

Glassboro voted by a large majority to build a $5,000 firehouse.

Speaker of the House John D. Prince (Rep.), who made a successful fight against John Hinchliffe for State Senator in Passaic county, lost Paterson by a plurality of only 543 votes, that city giving Hinchliffe a Democratic majority. This is, so far as old politicians remember, the first time a candidate who carries Paterson and Passaic, as Hinchliffe did, has lost the rest of the county. John Rancier, Republican candidate for sheriff in Passaic county, secured 4,065 plurality, the largest ever given in that county to a shrevalty candidate.

Allan B. Walsh is the first Democrat elected to the Assembly from Mercer county in fifteen years. As Walsh defeated Assemblyman Edwin H. Ginnelly, who aspired to the Speaker's chair, Ginnelley is a director of the Trenton Trolley Corporation. The declaration "that the people will soon get used to it," as they would have to sooner or later, when he defended the action of the company for abolishing the strip tickets, six for a quarter of a dollar, caused his defeat.

Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray's announcement of his retirement from politics has caused some influential talk of the announcement of the Republican leader in Mercer, coming right after the defeat of the party in Trenton, and the loss of an Assemblyman, caused some to view the retirement as a sort of desertion. C. Harry Baker, chairman of the Republican county committee, yesterday announced that he had received General Murray's resignation as treasurer, as well as a member of the committee. In relation to his retirement, General Murray said that the result of Tuesday's election proved conclusively to his mind the people want a change in municipal affairs—not a change from Republicanism to Democracy.

MISS FLORENCE AUSTIN TO APPEAR AT Y. M. C. A.

Miss Florence Austin, the brilliant New York violinist, who was heard last season in one of the concerts given by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, will give a concert in Y. M. C. A. hall on Tuesday night, November 30. Miss Austin ranks among the leading violinists of America. Competent critics declare that she ranks with the few great players of her sex. A writer in a recent issue of the "Musical Courier" accords her a place among the greatest of the pupils of Ovide Musin.

In order to give as many as possible of the music lovers of Plainfield an opportunity to hear Miss Austin, seats for this concert will be sold at popular prices.

LOCAL SHOP'S BIG JOB

Potter Press Works Secures Contract to Build Postal Card Presses.

LOCAL CONDITIONS IMPROVE.

Pond Tool Works Working Overtime For First Time in Two Years—Scott's Shop Also Busy—Prosperity In Sight.

The tooting of the factory whistles on their old time schedule is evidence of returning prosperity in the local industrial field. All of the shops are filling up with orders and the indications are that in another six months the era of belated prosperity will be in full blast. The period of financial depression hit the west end hard and the business men of that section have been the largest sufferers of the hard times.

Business is booming at the Potter Printing Press Works where the full time schedule has been in force for some time. This company has just been awarded an important U. S. Government contract, which calls for the erection of the much talked of presses for printing U. S. postal cards.

The Potter company has contracted with Uncle Sam to erect two of these machines which will have a capacity for printing 4,000,000 postals a day. The company is also busily engaged in manufacturing the rotary offset press which is rapidly superseding the flat-bed lithographic press.

David E. Titsworth took an optimistic view of the improved business conditions in an interview with a Daily Press representative this morning. "There is a better tone all over the country and the feeling is much better among manufacturers. Conditions are greatly improved, the Potter plant is working on full time and increasing its force almost every day"

Business has also taken a big jump at the Pond Tool Works, which was also staggered by the period of depression. This week marked the resumption of the old prosperity schedule of 55½ hours a week at the plant for the first time in over two years.

Probably the plainest indication of hard times in the west end was the large number of empty houses for months ago, but the improved conditions at the Pond plant and other factories has resulted in the return of bustle and activity in that section of town. Houses are filling up again and everything is looking better.

A representative of the Pond factory, in an interview with a Daily Press reporter said this morning: "There are nearly 500 old employes now working on the full schedule which went into ofperation last Monday for the first time in two years. The iron and steel manufacturing business is showing improvement everywhere and I am confident that within six months our plant will be as busy as it ever was. Conditions are gradually improving that end now. While we are not working on any especially big orders we have a big run of general business and that is a healthy sign of improved conditions. We are running in every department, including the foundry, which for a time was totally idle."

At the Scott Printing Press Works, business has taken such a brisk turn, that the company is experiencing difficulty in making prompt shipments. Mr. David L. Scott, stated today, that the firm is away behind on shipments, although several carload assignments, of 150,000 pounds each, were put in transit during the past few weeks.

The plant is running full-handed and according to Mr. Scott there is plenty of work on hand for some time to come. The company now has in hand orders for nearly fifty machines many of which are for export to England and South America.

The same encouraging conditions prevail in other local manufacturing plants. At the Hall Printing Press Works and Levering and Garrigues plant in Dunellen business conditions were never better than now.

Darling Little Willie.

Little Willie was missed by his mother one day for some time, and when he reappeared she asked:

"Where have you been, my pet?"

"Playing postman," replied her "pet." "I gave a letter to all the houses in our road. Real letters, too."

"Where on earth did you get them?" questioned his mother in amusement.

"They were those old ones in your wardrobe drawer, tied up with ribbon," was the innocent reply.—London Opinion.

Busy.

"Your father's a very busy man, nowadays, isn't he?"

"I should say he is. It's all he can do to finish his work in time to go to the ball game."—Detroit Free Press.

SCHOOL PRINCIPALS MEET FOR DISCUSSION

Supervising Principal Edward V. Walton, of the Springfield Township schools, was unanimously elected secretary of the Union County Principals' Association, at a meeting held Thursday night at Van Court's Inn, Roselle. County Superintendent Dr. J. J. Savitz was among those who attended the session. The new county study was discussed, principally the subject of geography. Dr. Savitz gave a practical talk on the defects of the grade teachers in the ordinary presentation of that subject.

Dr. Savitz declared that after years of teaching pupils cannot interpret the commercial facts of physiography, nor account for many of the most interesting and familiar facts of climatology. He deplored the superficiality of preparation and the ignorance of suitable material and aids that are shown by so many grade teachers. Dr. Savitz urged the principals to encourage their teachers to do better and more effective work in geography by teaching the pupils to understand the nature of their surroundings and environment.

Dr. Savitz inquired carefully into what is being done in the way of medical inspection of school children in the different municipalities of the county. The fact was brought out that most of the districts have employed physicians to perform the work for the present school year.

The question of remuneration was discussed, and it was found that in inspecting the eyes of children, it was from thirty to fifty cents per pupil, although in one case the rate fell as low as twenty cents.

The organization and increase of the Union County Pedagogical Library came in for consideration. It is proposed to raise $100 which will be duplicated by the State. After the new books have been purchased, it is likely that the library will be placed in the county superintendent's office in the courthouse, at Elizabeth, where it will be available to principals, teachers and boards of education. It is the intention to make the library more helpful and useful in the future than it has been in the past.

Principals were present from Unionville, Roselle, Springfield, Roselle Park, Linden, Cranford, Westfield, Kenilworth, Scotch Plains, Garwood and Lyons Farms.

HOLLOWE'EN HILARITY COSTS 'EM A DOLLAR EACH

Perhaps the reckless youths who so wantonly destroyed the wagons belonging to Jacob Steinberg, of Plainfield avenue and John Hasker, of McDowell street, will think twice before repeating their pranks in the future. Forty-eight of them, colored and white, were fined a dollar each Saturday by City Judge Willis. Hereafter the fines money will go to reimburse Steinberg and Hasker for the damage to their vehicles.

Steinberg estimated his loss at twenty-five dollars and Hasker said it would cost ten dollars to repair the damage done to his truck. Judge Runyon severely denounced the practice of destroying property on Hallowe'en and lectured the boys on the matter of malicious michief. Many of the boys had anticipated the fine as they produced the necessary dollar before leaving the court room. Those who did not have the money will have to pay up before noon on Monday.

GAY FARMS OF JAPAN.

Acre or Two in Extent, Made Up of Bright Little Patches.

Land is so scarce in Japan and the people are so numerous that a farm rarely consists of more than an acre or two. These little farms are divided up into tiny fields.

During the season of the year in which we made our journey, says a writer in the Montreal Standard, one of these fields was filled with sprouting barley, light green in color; another field—perhaps the next—with vetch, a lavender-colored, clover-like fodder.

A neighboring field was covered with a dark green grass, from the seed of which a lamp oil is manufactured; another with a pale yellow flowers of the mustard, and scattered here and there fields with what looked like a variety of lily—some white, some red, some yellow, but all equally brilliant.

Then add the complete picture you must imagine patches of flowering azaleas dotting the roadside; towering, round-topped camelia trees breaking the skyline with frequent spashes of bright green, usually in the vicinity of these trees houses with white-plastered walls and tiled roofs; about the more pretentious of these houses white-plastered walls, above which appeared a profusion of palms, roses and strange native flowers, and in the doorways or the garden walls the monocled Japanese girls—the kimonos are many and as gaily colored as the gardens that framed them.

The North Plainfield Council Takes Steps for a Sanitary System.

ASK TOWNSHIP'S PERMISSION.

Need Permit to Install Plant and Lay Pipes for the Proposed Improvement.

North Plainfield's proposed sewerage system scheme took another step forward at the meeting of the Borough Council Friday. Resolutions were adopted authorizing the Mayor and Council to petition North Plainfield township for permission to erect a plant and establish the necessary pipe lines in the confines of the township. Three distinct sites were named in the petition. Another petition was in the form of a resolution requesting permission from the North Plainfield Township Board of Health to go ahead with the plans. With the exception of reading the resolution and delving into the technical details there was no discussion on the subject. The resolutions were presented by Councilman Nichols and were unanimously passed.

The transaction of miscellaneous work kept the borough fathers busy for some time. On the recommendation of the fire, water and light committee additional electric lights will be installed on DeLacey avenue, between Fairview and Grandview; Greenbrook road, near Somerset, and on Verdon street, between Fairview and Grandview avenues.

James Simpson, on the recommendation of Councilman Stahl, was given permission to erect a barn on Westervelt avenue. Samuel Taub, of Warren street, asked permission to transform a barn on that thoroughfare into a dwelling. If Taub's proposed alterations meet with the approval of the building committee he will be given official permission to go ahead with the improvements.

The street committee was authorized to have a crosswalk laid on Fairview avenue at the head of Verdon street. The matter of making some repairs to the interior of fire headquarters by fire committee was given an appropriation of $35.

A communication was read from the Plainfield Board of Trade thanking the borough authorities for their assistance in making the Charter Day celebration a success.

Recorder Dolliver's monthly report showed sixteen arrests in that period and the collection of $9 in fines. Borough Clerk Fred Martin reported the collection of $14,131.61 in taxes during October. Miscellaneous bills amounting to $2,589.39 were ordered paid.

17 YEARS UNDER GROUND.

Brood 22 of the So-Called Locusts Growing Under Our Feet.

One of the insect marvels is the life story of the cicade, commonly and erroneously called the seventeen-year locust. The famous brood twenty-two appeared in the summer of 1902. It extended over a territory from Long Island west to Wisconsin and south to Georgia. No harm is done by these insects, except that the females lay their eggs in bunches in the soft twigs once in seventeen years. The next visitation of these insects is due in 1919.

It is interesting to note that brood twenty-two is now in the process of youngsters developing right under our feet, says Country Life in America. They are seven years old this year and have ten years yet to grow before they come to light as winged adult insects.

The life story of a generation begins when the females flock to the treetops and lay their egg masses in the twigs. In a few weeks the eggs hatch and the fat, antlike larvae wriggle out and fall to the ground. Immediately they burrow below the surface and establish themselves each alone in a little chamber near the root of some plant.

In the years of inactive life that follow the insect feeds upon humus—possibly also on sap from rootlets. The front legs are developed into tools like cutting jaws for burrowing and getting food.

The insect moults its skin five times during its life underground. These changes occur during the second, fourth, eleventh and fifteenth years. When the seventh year is reached ambition of a new sort is born. The creature, now a pupa, crawls out of this special exit into the open for the final moult.

AN INDEPENDENT WEEKLY.

Plainfield, N. J., November 11, 1909.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Lew Fields' famous production of "The Midnight Sons," at the Broadway theatre continues as the most phenomenal spectacular success of years. With its company of more than 200 people, its many wonderful scenes, including the one greatest scene of all, which shows the entire interior of a theatre with an audience attending a performance, it easily takes rank as the most amazing revelation of modern stage-craft as applied to musical productions ever attempted. Among the leading members of the company are Maud Lambert, Lotta Faust, Lillian Lee, Florence Morton, Gladys Moncrieff, Linden Beckwith, Hazie King, Maybelle Meeker, Billee Seaton, George Schiller, Joseph Ratliff, Harry Fisher, Denman Maley, George Monroe, Taylor Holmes, Vernon Castle and Gus Mack. Regular matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays. Best seats Wednesday matinees $1.50.

A first night record for curtain calls was made at the end of the second act of "Israel," Charles Frohman's production of the new Bernstein play at the Criterion Theatre in New York. Exactly thirty times, as counted by the critic of one of the morning papers, was the curtain raised and the actors were compelled to bow their acknowledgements until at last from pure weariness the audience relaxed its applause and the happy but exhausted actors were allowed to withdraw to their dressing rooms. Perhaps a better way of measuring this extraordinary burst of enthusiasm and approval is by the statement of the time it lasted. At the lowest computation, there was a full ten minutes of consecutive applause.

Of all the exclusive little group of men whose names are associated in the public mind with the writing or production of modern drama, that of David Belasco alone stands out in unique and picturesque isolation. About none other of these men has there been so much said, so much written, and about none other of them is there really so little known. Indeed, one might almost say that the character and personality of David Belasco have become legendary, and that quite in spite of the fact that unlike the heroes of most traditionary romance, David Belasco is not only still alive and very much alive at the age of fifty, but is in reality just entering the heyday of his brilliant career.

WATCHING HUNTERS FOLLOW THE HOUNDS

Members of the Watchung Hunt club to the number of about twenty enjoyed a chase after the hounds, Saturday afternoon. They met at the Westfield railroad station and covered a distance of nearly twenty miles, taking in Baltusrol, Cranford and Hillside surrounding country and bringing up at Kenilworth Inn, from which point the riders returned home.

The going was fine and there were no spills or accidents worth mentioning. The hounds are in especially good condition at present and they led a merry chase from start to finish.

Charles W. Fisk was acting master, and among others who rode were Miss Gertrude Noe, Miss Waldey, Lewis E. Waring, Col. C. E. S. Fellows, Rufus C. Finch, John Dieterle, Ruppert Anderson, C. F. Wildey, Richard S. Waring, Hart Parlee, Frederick Bull and Cris. Cumins

An Old-Time Publication.

Among the old-time publications held by Plainfielders as souvenirs, is a copy of the "New Jersey Advocate and of Middlesex and Somerset Advertiser," owned by Jeremiah Van Winkle, of East Seventh street. The issue is on June 28, 1831, and although published at Rahway, contains news of much interest to Plainfielders. It is printed in the old-fashioned style, so curious to present-day readers. James A. Bennett was the proprietor of the paper.

Harry Baylor's Clever Win.

Hugh Gormley's Harry Baylor won the Claret Cup over the hurdles at the meet of the United Hunt on Saturday at Belmont Terminal, L. I. Baylor had four opponents and carried 185 pounds, but he was rated along nicely until the stretch was reached when he was let down and galloped home a winner by a length with lots to spare.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED WILL BUILD A CONVENT

Miss Louise Saunders Gives Brilliant Luncheon for Miss Marion Hall.

NOVEL FEATURES ENJOYED.

"Cut Out of the Bag" Tells of the Bethrothal of Miss Hall and Jac. Van Deventer —The Guests.

Miss Louise Saunders, daughter of William L. Saunders, of Rockview avenue, gave a brilliant and novel luncheon at her home Monday, at which time the engagement of Miss Marion Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Hall, of Belvidere avenue, to Jac. VanDeventer, of Woodland avenue, was announced.

The spacious dining-room, where the luncheon was served, was lavishly decorated for the happy event, the table being handsomely garnished in an appropriate manner. A novel method was adopted to make the announcement of the engagement. After the young people were seated at the table, a maid entered the room with a large burlap bag and placed it in the centre of the table. When the string was cut out jumped a large cat and about its neck was fastened two heart-shaped cards bearing the names of Miss Hall and Mr. VanDeventer.

Another pleasing feature was a large leghorn hat, used as a centerpiece, which was filled with pink roses. When this was lifted numerous tissue paper slippers were found filled with confetti and Miss Hall was showered with this by her friends. The favors were miniature kittens about their feet being fastened little bags, emblematical of the large burlap bag. During the festivities a wedding march was played.

The guests were Mrs. J Hartley Mellick, Miss Anna Garrigues, Miss Helen Timpson, Miss Mabel Hooley, Miss Ray Hooley, Miss Verna McCutcheon, Miss Frances VanDeventer, Miss Elizabeth Flanders, Miss Florence Stewart, Miss Josephine LaTourette.

P. S. C. TO CONSIDER SO. PLAINFIELD AGAIN

It has been hinted that at the next meeting of the trolley department of P. S. C. the question of extension of the line from this city to South Plainfield will come up. Just how much possibility there is for such extension cannot be predicted but it is said that some of the officials are in favor of it. The project as stated unofficially is for a private right of way instead of by the highways. Efforts in the past to extend the line outside the city limits have met with opposition from Middlesex freeholders whose consent was needed for a franchise to use the highways.

It was stated some time ago that the trolley company did not want to extend the lines in that vicinity without a perpetual franchise, and since then very little has been heard about the subject until now.

A. G. HOOLEY'S SETTERS NOTICED BY BELGIAN

Field and Fancy, a recognized periodical publication relating to thoroughbred dogs, in its issue of November 6, publishes the following of interest to many Plainfielders:

"The following notice of A. G. Hooley's great English setter Ch. Meadowview Rock, accompanied by a half-tone reproduction of G. Muss-Arnolt's pen portrait of him, appeared in the 'L'Elevour Belge,'" the Belgian periodical devoted to doggy interests, issue of October 17, the most prominent paper on the continent devoted to dogs:

"The subject of our illustration this week is a pen sketch of Ch. Meadowview Rock, the elegant English setter of A. G. Hooley, Meadowview Rock was first shown at New York in February last, and there gained winners, also Mr. Thompson's special for best English setter in the show. Since then he has been exhibited at different shows, winning under seven different judges. He is white coated dog, with lemon about the muzzle and eyes; the feet and body are not marked. His owner thinks that the drawing of G. Muss-Arnolt, which we reproduce is one of the best and most life-like ones of the kind ever seen. Meadowview Rock is by Sealthwaiterigg Spot of Ch. Lady Allister, and was bred by its owner. He is a very intelligent dog in the field, and is built to hunt all day with the vim and intelligence characteristic of the products of the Meadowview Kennels."

BUILD A CONVENT

Father Bogan Says Work on Structure Will Begin in the Spring.

TO RAISE FUNDS HERE NOW.

The Site Not Yet Selected but Will Be Announced at an Early Date.

A new convent, modern in construction, and replete with increased accommodations for the local Sisters of Charity and other church purposes, will be erected by St. Mary's parish next spring, Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, made the announcement Monday and he stated that the plans of the structure are now under consideration.

The site of the proposed building is yet unsettled but it will probably be erected at the corner of Liberty and West Fifth streets, which is the corner lot on which St. Mary's Assembly, formerly the Washington public school, is situated. But according to Father Bogan, it may occupy the site of the present convent, corner of West Sixth and Liberty streets, which is directly opposite the entrance to St. Mary's church. Should the latter site be selected the present building will be removed to some other property in this city owned by the church.

Plans are now underway for the raising of funds to pay for the new building. The initial move has been made by the various societies of the congregation and which are concentrating their efforts toward the holding of a mammoth fair and bazaar in St. Mary's Assembly rooms during the latter part of this month. The dates for the event will be fixed at a joint meeting of the societies this week.

A friendly rivalry exists between the societies that will assume the leading part in the affair but all will be organized in a few days, according to Father Bogan. Of the six societies interested in the movement the T. A. B. society will unite with the Young Ladies' Sodality, the Knights of Columbus and Children of Mary will combine interests, while the Ancient Order of Hibernians and Ladies' Auxiliary will unite interests.

As announced at the services Monday, one of the features of the bazaar will be a competition for a $100 commercial course in Drake's Business College. This will be in the nature of a voting contest and the winner will have an option to take either a day or night course. It will be open to all former pupils who left school without taking up a commercial course. The scholarship is given in aid of the new convent fund by J. H. Fogarty, principal of the institution.

TRANSFERS ARE MADE IN FIRE DEPARTMENT

An expected shakeup and a wholesale transfer of men to different houses interests the members of the local fire department up to a high degree. Rumors of the coming shakeup have been current on the street since last Wednesday, when Chief Doane announced the appointment of Captain George Mehl to assume command of Hose Company No. 3 in the West End to succeed Captain William Townley, who was shifted to the new East End house. It was also expected that the new transfer order would also effect Captains George Feiring and James Daley, but so far this shift was not made.

There were two more transfers recorded on Saturday. Yens Claasson, of headquarters, was switched to Hose Company No. 3 and Wesley Dunn, who was formerly stationed in the West End, was dispatched to the East End house.

Speaking on the transfer question the chief stated: "None of the captains' locations are permanent, they are liable to be switched to different houses at any time." From this is taken to mean that a much different policy will be in vogue in the department in the future. It is also taken to mean that the men are also in line to be changed from house to house at the behest of the chief and fire committee.

SALOON THE BIG ENEMY A MISSIONER FROM JAPAN HEBREWS TO ORGANIZE MURPHY'S STATEMENT

Declares Rev John Y. Brook and Drunkenness the Modern Sin.

LINCOLN'S PROTEST QUOTED.

Appeals to Christian Men to Take the Burden from the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Declaring that the saloon is an enemy to good citizenship Rev. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, preached a powerful temperance sermon to his congregation last Sunday. Dr. Brook, in the course of his remarks, declared he was opposed to the rum traffice in every form, whether a hotel, cafe, tavern, a coffee house, or a plain beer saloon." During the sermon, he also quoted the views of Abraham Lincoln and Von Moltke, the great German statesman. Dr. Brook based his sermon on the text "For the drunkard and glutton shall come to poverty." In part he said:

"Drunkenness is no modern sin and the dramshop is no modern institution. It is as old as Noah and possibly older. Undoubtedly it inflamed the human race before the flood. The lamentable thing is that each succeeding generation has been poisoned and bitten by this vice and has suffered from this dreadful woe.

"The vice is running riot today. Solomon's faithful but horrid likeness of the drunkard is as true today as it was thirty centuries ago, when it was written. The woe of drunkenness is eating the marrow and bone out of society under assumed names. I am opposed to every form of the dramshop. Under whatever name it may be called, a hotel, cafe, tavern, or coffee house, dramshop or a plain beer saloon, it is the same old vice doing business at the same old stand, crushing life blood out of humanity, destroying the home and ruining souls.

"The verdict of the world's greatest statesmen is opposed to the dramshop, Abraham Lincoln said: 'Reasonable men of the world have long since agreed that drunkenness is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of all evils among humanity.' Von Moltke, the German statesman, says: 'Beer is a far more dangerous enemy to Germany than the armies of France.'

"The dramshop is a menace to society and to public morals. Good citizenship is dead and buried in the dramshop. The dramshop produces drunkards, make imbeciles and fills up the poorhouses. The dramshop is one of the greatest causes of crime. It is estimated that 750,000 men and women pass through our jails and prisons each year. The cost of crime in the United States is $600,000,000 a year. It is further estimated that the largest percentage of crime is caused by the dramshop.

"The idea is ridiculous that the dramshop is essential and necessary for the success and prosperity of a city. Think of the growing tendency for temperance throughout the United States. It is for the best interests of a city to have sober, decent, self-respecting citizens.

"In brief, temperance is raising the standard of men all through this land, in minor offices and every walk in life.

"The breaking up of the curse should not be left to a brave band of Women's Christian Temperance Union workers. It is a man's job and Christian citizens should take hold of it."

BURGLAR NABBED AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD

Thomas Fields, aged fifty, was arrested Saturday night in the Lehigh Valley Railroad yards by Constable William Reilley. He is wanted in a number of places for burglary. A grip containing a complete set of burglar's tools was in his possession. Fields is well known in almost every city in the State.

He has been connected with several robberies in South Plainfield. He was taken to Phillipsburg, where he is wanted by Detective Chief Haynes. Chief Reilly has stated that Fields be turned over to him after the local authorities are through with him.

He was driving into town from his home, when his horse became frightened at an automobile and started to run away. Pisky was thrown out. The horse was caught a short distance away and was not injured.

"K. R. C." Entertained.

The members of the "K. R. C." were entertained by Frank Rimmer at the home of his parents on Essex street Saturday night. It was one of the best meetings of the society.

Borough firemen were called out at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening to extinguish a grass fire at the corner of Rockview avenue and Rockview terrace. No damage ensued.

MISSIONER FROM JAPAN

Sister Mary Louise, Superioress of the Catholic Sisters, Here.

JAPANESE QUICK TO RESPOND.

Visit to St. Mary's Church Yesterday Gave Satisfactory Results for the Work.

In the person of Sister Mary Louise, Superioress of the Catholic Sisters, of Yokohama, Japan, St. Mary's congregation had a distinguished visitor Sunday. Sister Mary Louise, during her visit to this city, was the guest of the local Sisters of Charity. Her mission here was to raise funds for the support of an orphan's home in Yokohama, in which she is deeply interested. Her visit to St. Mary's yesterday netted $100 to the fund. The liberality displayed by the local parishioners was considered remarkable in view of the fact that the total collections of the day at the different masses, about $480, was the largest monthly collection in some time.

A Daily Press reporter, who interviewed Sister Mary Louise before her departure from town this morning, discovered her to be a highly educated and very fluent talker. She is about forty-five years old and is a master of the Japanese, American, Italian and French tongues. She stated that she has been in the United State collecting for the Yokohama orphans fund for six months and that she is going to return to her native land about April 1.

In her talk with the Press' representative she related several interesting incidents concerning religious work of all denominations in the Flowery Kingdom. In her own words she referred to that country, as a "fair field with no favors."

"The conditions are favorable to all denominations," continued Sister Mary Louise, "it is just a matter of making the truth known, a good example speaks far more forcibly than words."

Sister Mary Louise also commended the policy of the Empereror in glowing terms for his recent edict which gives permission to the natives to embrace whatever faith appeals to them. She also illustrated the progress being made by the empire under religious freedom. The Catholic church, she declared, had been under a severe handicap until recently, but now that faith is making fast headway.

In describing the work connected with the Orphan's Home, in which she is interested, Sister Mary Louise said her labors brought her into contact with 10,000 or more needy cases. "I am greatly pleased with the reception and kind treatment received at the hands of American Catholics and I can truthfully say, I do not believe there is a city or state that responds so quickly to missionary pleas," she added as about to take the train.

BLOCK HAS HIS TROUBLE; PROMISES TO BE GOOD

Blaming domestic troubles for his fall from grace, Joseph Block was given a chance by Judge William Runyon in the city court Monday to go away and behave himself. Mrs. Block appeared against her husband to press the complaint. She said through an interpreter that Joseph had been in the habit for the past five weeks of coming home and beating her while under the influence of liquor.

Block alleges that his wife showed a preference for the society of a boarder and that was the reason he took to drink. Thursday night he took exception to the boarder's presence in his home and put him out. Trouble followed with the result noted above.

Judge Runyon advised the couple to let their son be the preserver of peace in the family and took occasion to say that the Hebrew colony in this city have the finest record for sobriety of any of the foreign element. Joseph promised to be good, now that the boarder had been eliminated.

They were guests of friends at Daytona, Lake City, St. Augustine and Jacksonville and Charleston, S. C.

HEBREWS TO ORGANIZE

Several Hundred Attend a Big Meeting to Discuss the Plan.

PLAINFIELD IS REPRESENTED.

Much Enthusiasm Shown at Newark Convention—A Committee Is Appointed.

Several hundred delegates from all parts of New Jersey were present in Newark Sunday at the first annual convention of the newly formed Young Men's Hebrew Association of New Jersey, which is composed of the associations of that character in many cities of the State formed during the last few years. Plainfield was well represented. The gathering was held in Elsner's Hall, at No. 94 Market street, and was presided over by Rabbi Solomon Foster, of the Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, of Newark, who made an address telling of the great good which it was hoped to accomplish by the taking of further steps for the permanent formation of a State wide organization.

Delegates were present from Trenton, Camden, Woodbine, New Brunswick, Plainfield, Perth Amboy, Elizabeth, Hoboken, Jersey City, Passaic, Paterson, Newark and several smaller places.

Both Rabbi Foster and Mr. Konengeiser explained the object of the State association.

Other addresses were made by Charles Ellis, a Newark lawyer; Benjamin A. Kaufman, Felix Younker, of New York, secretary of the Young Men's Hebrew Association of Manhattan; Samuel Rothberg, of Plainfield; Louis Levy and Dr. George Polaner, of Newark.

There was enthusiasm throughout the meeting and plans were completed for the carrying out of the whole scheme of State organization which had been tentatively adopted for presentation to the convention. After the business meeting there was luncheon. A general committee is in charge of completing the affiliation of all the associations in the State.

UNIQUE BARN SOCIAL; MISS RAYBERT ENTERTAINS

One of the jolliest and most unique socials held in many a day was that which took place at the residence of Charles M. Raybert, of East Second street, Saturday night, when Miss Raybert entertained friends in the number of eighteen from Brooklyn, New York and this city.

A picnic in the woods could have been no more natural than the picnic held in the dining room of Miss Raybert's home. The floor was strewn with straw and the walls decorated with oak boughs, variotinted leaves and branches artistically arranged. The novel preparations were for a "barn" social, a feature of which was the trip to the "barn." Refreshments were prepared in baskets and bundles of all descriptions which the guests carried on the trip. Upstairs, downstairs and around the house until they finally landed in the room prepared for the picnic.

Merriment reigned supreme after the goal was reached and the games played evoked the heartiest laughter, everyone joining in with zest and appreciation of the opportunity for pure fun.

MRS. McAFEE DID NOT SURVIVE SECOND PARALYTIC STROKE.

Mrs. Mary McAfee, widow of the late Sylvester McAfee, died Monday morning at her home, 112 Oxford place, from the results of a second stroke of paralysis, in her sixtieth year. Mrs. McAfee suffered a stroke about a year ago, but had recovered her usual health and was preparing to attend a social Saturday evening when she was stricken.

Mrs. McAfee came here from Annandale about five years ago to make her home with Mrs. Robert, an employee of Otto Arens, on Rahway road. She leaves two sons and two daughters, one of the latter living in North Carolina. One daughter, Miss Grace, is a member of Trinity Reformed church and several grandchildren attend that Sunday school.

The arrangements have not yet been made for the funeral, but announcement of them will be made tomorrow.

D. C. Smalley Begins Operations.

David C. Smalley, owner of the property on Park avenue and Fourth street, adjoining that of the railroad, started a gang of men at work there Monday for the purpose of carrying out extensive improvements as planned. In all about twelve stores will be erected. Some of them will be on Park avenue and along the driveway leading from Park avenue to the eastbound station of the railroad and the balance will be on the strip extending from a point near the old police station to Fourth street. A spacious concrete walk will be laid in front of the new building.

STATEMENT

State Chairman Proposes New Party Creed Taken as Declaration of His Candidacy.

HE HITS AT GOVERNOR FORT.

Former Governor Opposes Direct Primary Law and Election of United States Senators by the People.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy of New Jersey, member of the Republican National Committee and chairman of the Republican State Committee, who cherishes the hope that the Legislature chosen a year hence will select him as the successor to John Kean in the United States Senate, in a letter printed Sunday gives what he believes to be principles for a sound political creed. The first article of his creed is the immediate repeal of the present direct primary nominations law. The second opposes the selection of United States Senators by the people.

"I believe that every officeholder that owes his position to the fact that he is a party man should contribute annually to the support of his party. And this applies to every officeholder, including the judges of our highest court, governors, mayors and the great number of salaried employes, who owe their living to their party identification."

Mr. Murphy looks upon the results of the recent election in New Jersey as a vindication for the organization, for he says:

"Perhaps a day it has been for the blatherskite! From the highest official to the lowest, their blatant noise has resounded, accomplishing, let us hope, some good, but at a great cost.

"Because some corporations are dishonest all corporations have been slurred by the defamer, and no utter a word in favor of corporations has been sufficient to consign one to outer darkness. Matters have gone so far that membership in the Ananias Club is regarded as an honorable distinction, and its diploma is hung in the best room and pointed to with pride.

"Those of us who have been camping out for a while and have folded our tents and returned to our homes should not be afraid now to state our belief squarely and strongly."

Mr. Murphy's opinion of the direct primary law is as follows:

"The direct primary law is the most allurisg and insidious device ever invented to take the power of nomination for office—the most important foundation stone of our political structure—out of the hands of a representative convention of the people and place it in the hands of a few men, who will use that great power as they see fit.

"And it is done under the cry that 'the people must rule.' That is why so many are reluctant to attack it. They do not want to be misunderstood, and they stand with all their strength for the principle that really and truly the people must rule. Yet they see that under the primary law it is not the people but the few who rule.

"The direct primary is a delusion and a snare. It is worse. There is nothing that was hoped for from the direct primary that without it cannot be accomplished by personal service."

In his letter the State chairman also refers in sarcastic terms to Governor Fort.

NUPTIAL KNOT TIED IN BRIDAL COUPLE'S HOME

At their newly furnished home on Westervelt avenue on Saturday evening Miss Nancy Ottalie Lockert was united in marriage to James Alexander Simpson. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, in the presence of a small assemblage of friends of the couple, in the midst of tastefully arranged decorations of southern smilax and chrysanthemums.

The bride was prettily gowned in white crepe meteor with pearl trimmings. She also wore a veil and carried a shower boquet of lillies of the valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Olga Lockert, as maid of honor. She was attired in a creation of cream crepe de chine with gold lace trimmings. Paul Paulsen, a cousin, gave the bride away in marriage. Joseph Dunham was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Simpson left town on Saturday night for an extensive honeymoon through the southern States. The bride is well known in New York railroad circles, being employed in the transfer department of the Union Pacific Railroad, at that corporation's offices in New York.

DR. STILLMAN RETIRES

Former Plainfielder, Stevens Professor, Placed on Carnegie Foundation.

AFTER 31 YEARS OF SERVICE.

Brother of William M. Stillman—Stevens Institute Paper Praises Him For His Work.

Dr. Thomas Bliss Stillman, M. Sc., Ph. D., professor of engineering chemistry, and a brother of William M. Stillman, of this city, after thirty-one years of teaching at Stevens Institute has retired under the provisions of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, the Stevens Institute of Technology being on the accepted list of the Foundation.

Dr. Stillman is well-known in this city, where he lived for many years. He is the son of the late Dr. Stillman, for so many years Plainfield's leading physician and who was so much interested in public school matters here.

Dr. Stillman, after studying a year at Alfred University, entered the scientific department of Rutgers College in 1870, having obtained a State scholarship by competitive examinations at Elizabeth. While in college he held exceptionally high rank, receiving membership in Phi Beta Kappa and securing two of the three prizes offered at the commencement.

During the summer following his graduation, he was engaged upon work in connection with the proportion at Franklin Furnace. He pursued a special course in analytical chemistry at Rutgers and assisted in instructing in the analytical chemistry department in the fall of 1873.

In the spring of 1874 Dr. Stillman received his appointment in the chemistry department at Stevens Institute, under Prof. Leeds. He continued teaching in this department until the latter part of 1878, when he accepted the offer of a relative to send him to Europe for a two years course in research chemistry under Fresenius, the father of analytical chemistry, in his private laboratory at Wiesbaden, Germany.

After returning to Germany, Dr. Stillman took up his work at the Institute as instructor in qualitative and quantitative analysis and in 1882 moved his private laboratory from New York city to the Institute.

President Morton offered Dr. Stillman the professorship of analytical chemistry in 1886, and he accepted, receiving also the chemical work of the department of tests. Since that time Dr. Stillman has worked hard and faithfully as the head of the department of engineering chemistry.

Industrial and research chemistry has been the doctor's specialty and he desires to confine himself solely to those objects. Dr. Francis J. Pond, A. M., Ph. D., formerly associate professor in the department of engineering chemistry, has been appointed professor to fill Dr. Stillman's place and he will be assisted by J. J. Morgan, B. S., and L. H. Backer, M. E., as instructors.

The Stute, the college paper published at Stevens Institute, in its last issue has the following to say editorially about Dr. Stillman:

"In retirement of Dr. Stillman, Stevens Institute loses a man whose good qualities will cause him to be remembered as long as there exists a department of chemistry. The advancement of that department during his time of service stands as a great monument to his memory.

"All who came in contact with him, professionally or socially, were immediately impressed with his strong personality, his loyalty to his work, and his whole hearted cordiality. In short, he is one who, as a man, a teacher and a friend, will forever hold the love and respect of the students of Stevens Institute."

BISHOP SELECTED FOR NEWARK CONFERENCE

Bishop William Anderson will be the presiding officer at the next session of the Newark Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, the stated time for holding which is the first week in April. The Board of Bishops met on October 30 at Binghamton, N. Y., and fixed the appointments for the thirty or more conferences of the church.

It is probable that the Newark Conference will meet in Newark next year, as it has become such a large body that entertainment in a smaller, less central city is almost an impossibility. The conference last April was held in the Centenary M. E. church, Newark, Bishop Thomas B. Neely presiding.

Queer Company for Lawyers.

N.P.H.S.—BATTIN GAME ENDS UP IN WRANGLE

North Plainfield and Battin High School football elevens played to a standstill at Elizabeth on Saturday afternoon, and to top off a fierce battle in which tempers were above even the contest terminated in a wrangle, in which Captain Conroy of the borough eleven called the locals off the field. Neither team had scored and the row occurred over a dispute three minutes before the close of the second half. According to the rules North Plainfield High forfeited the game to the county seat warriors by a 1 to 0 score.

Captain Conroy claims that the borough team was the victim of two raw decisions in the second half. The dispute which ended the game hinged on the last play. Ross, the Battin quarterback, tried for a field goal on North Plainfield's twenty-yard line. Ross made the kick all right, but the officials disagreed as to whether the ball went over the goal in bounds or not. One half of the officials claimed it did, while the other half declared vice versa. After a lot of haggling Captain Conroy refused to continue the game.

Captain Conroy also claimed another rough deal in the early part of the second half, when Harry Smith got possession of the pigskin on a trick play and passed it to Conroy. Two Battin players got in the way of the ball and it fell to the ground. Conroy, however, made a pretty run and again secured the ball and ran it for a touchdown. Referee Snyder, however, declared the play illegal and penalized the boroughites fifteen yards. They were also a big kick on this decision but play continued until the second dispute.

In the first half both teams waged a hard fight but neither was able to gain an advantage. There was no pretty forward pass maneuvers by Pierson Bailey and Scott, but the locals were unable to penetrate the Battin line. The lineup:

N. P. H. S.		Battin.
Townley		Boller
Pierson Bailey	right end.
Dunning		Craig
	right tackle.
Zeglow		Cammann
	right guard.
Stiglitz		Grossman

Percy Bailey		Davidson

Scott		Ross

HIGH CLASS ATTRACTIONS COMING TO PLAINFIELD

Among the many high-class attractions to appear at the Plainfield theatre in the near future are Daniel Sully, the inimitable Irish comedian, for a return play. The Brothers Bryne, pantomimic artists in their newest version of "Eight Bells," Lyman H. Howes' moving pictures showing the dash to the North Pole and wonderful aeroplane races; also Elsie Ferguson in "Such a Little Queen," which has been at the Hackett theatre, New York, since the opening of the present season, and is still playing there to crowded houses.

Thomas Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle," will be an attraction on Thanksgiving Day. Mr. Jefferson is well-known here and the fact of his having been here several times will not make any difference in the reception which the theatregoer never tires.

Miss Blanche Bates in "The Fighting Hope," Chauncey Olcott & Co., "The Thief," by Henry Bernstein, which was seen here last season and which has scored such a remarkable other strong attractions booked for the near future.

There will also be Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead," The Henry Miller Associate players in "The Servant in the House," which has been hailed as one of the greatest plays of the present century and Al. G. Ields and company of one hundred minstrels, which was seen here last season, and which the play-going public pronounced as one of the best minstrel organizations in America. A little later in the season, Charles Klein's latest play, "The Third Degree," will be presented at the local theatre. The fact that the playhouse has been closed for the past week or so should insure a hearty welcome for the strong attractions booked.

DRAKE ESTATE A MYTH

American Heirs Can Hope for Nothing from the Alleged Fortune.

MRS. DUNN IS IN ENGLAND.

No Unsettled Chancery Cases Amounting to More Than $75,000 Left.

Contrary to the expectations of many who are interested in the mission of Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, who recently went to England to attempt to recover for the American heirs of Sir Francis Drake some of the supposedly great accumulations of wealth the plan can hardly have the desired results.

Recently articles have apepared in various newspapers ridiculing the belief that any such estate exists and it remained for the New York Sun to make a final and decisive statement of the chances of anyone ever recovering anything from this source. The following taken from the London correspondence of the Sun of Sunday explains fully why those who have expected something from the mythical estate will be disappointed:

"A despatch from New York announces that Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, of Plainfield, N. J., is now on her way to England for the purpose of commencing a suit on behalf of her son, who was a descendant of the famous Sir Francis Drake is, it is alleged, entitled to the Drake estate, now in Chancery and "estimated to amount to the sum of $125,000,000."

It is interesting to note that several years ago, when the "Drake millions" were first discovered, not less than 146 descendants of Sir Francis were promptly forthcoming among American citizens. One estimate at that time put the value of the estate at $185,000,000. Inquiries concerning these 'millions' have been arriving in England ever since, and so much trouble has been given the American Embassy in London that a printed circular is sent out to all seeking information. This document is very much to the point, as these extracts will show:

There are no large unclaimed estates in Great Britain.

The name constantly spoken of as "dormant in Chancery" or "awaiting claimants in the Bank of England" are purely imaginary and are only too often the invention of swindlers who obtain money for the prosecution of worthless claims to these fictitious fortunes. The funds in Chancery open to claim are few, average less than $1,800 each (two only approaching $75,000), and most of them would inevitably consume their own value in the expenses of recovery.

The fullest proofs of genealogy are demanded, are always exceedingly difficult and expensive to maintain, and where as is usually the case the family records have been confused by removal to the United States, are often impossible to establish.

Also the statutes of limitations almost invariably bar recovery. The passage of twenty years—often of a far less period—is as a rule sufficient to destroy the clearest right.

I have therefore earnestly to advise you against incurring any expense unless your claim is based on the clearest documentary evidence, but especially I must warn you against remitting money to advertising agencies for the recovery of estates. These are often grossly fraudulent and many of their promoters —such as those who invented the "Towneley" claim—have at last, after years of successful fraud, been convicted and punished. In general you will do well to send no money for such purposes to any one who is neither personally known nor reliably recommended to you."

PROVIDENCE, OF NEWARK, FAILED TO APPEAR HERE.

The officers of the Plainfield Association Football Club regret the disappointment given to its followers on Saturday when Providence F. C., of Newark, failed to put in an appearance. They will investigate the matter with a view to putting a stop to this sort of thing. It is a serious matter with the local club and a great disappointment to its supporters.

Fully two hundred people were present Saturday expecting to see a game and the club asks the indulgence of its patrons, and will do its best to make amends by booking games with the best teams. No word was received from the Providence F. C. explaining its failure to come here. The same thing occurred a week ago when the Kearney F. C. also failed to come to Plainfield.

Fake Health Officer.

Chief of Police Kiely warns the public that there is a fake health officer doing the rounds in this city with the evident intention of robbing the unwary. He is described as being about five feet six inches tall with brown hair and eyes, smooth shaven and extremely polite. Housekeepers would do well to ask for the credentials of any one representing himself as an officer of the city Health Department and to refuse admittance to him without it.

POST OFFICE CHANGES

Stamps to Be Sold Until 9 o'Clock at Night After December 1.

OTHER IMPROVEMENTS THERE.

Superintendent of Carriers to Be Appointed—Good Work of Postmaster Bird.

Several changes will be inaugurated at the local postoffice beginning December 1, which are sure to be appreciated by the many patrons of the office. The changes which will make it possible for people to purchase postage stamps as late as 9 o'clock in the evening, are the result of a trip of Postmaster Elias H. Bird to Washington. He explained the fact that the business of the office is increasing rapidly and was able to convince the postal authorities of the necessity of the change.

Another change secured by Mr. Bird is the appointment of a superintendent of letter-carriers. There are now twenty-four carriers attached to the local office and the business is of such large proportions that it requires a superintendent to give his time to that department. Mr. Bird has not yet announced who will receive the appointment. Mr. Bird has been congratulated upon the success of his efforts which means that the local mail service will be more up-to-date than ever before.

NEW JERSEY IS NOW THIRD ON THE LIST

In preparation for the annual meeting of the American Automobile Association, which will be held at the end of November, Secretary Frederick E. Elliott has been compiling a complete list of State associations and clubs affiliated with the national body. The growth in State associations during the past year has been particularly marked, there now being associations in thirty-one States, this including, however, the Hawaiian Association.

In respect to membership the New York State Association leads with 4,818 members, the Pennsylvania Motor Federation coming next with 3,112 and the affiliated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey third, with 2,156.

Six other organizations have a membership of over 1,000—Minnesota, Ohio, southern California, Illinois, Massachusetts and Connecticut. Quite large the number of clubs affiliated with the national body, the latest statistics show that forty have a membership of over one hundred. The Automobile Club of Buffalo heads the list with 1,850 members, followed by the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club of this city, with an even 1,800, while the Automobile Club of Philadelphia is just short of 1,000.

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE Y. M. C. A.'S LINE-UP

Y. M. C. A. basketball players are putting in strenuous sessions of practise in preparation for the opening game on Saturday night with the Business Men's team. Manager G. L. Listman today issued a schedule which shows that the local five will clash with some of the strongest aggregations in the metropolitan district. There are a few open dates which will be filled later and it is possible that a contest will be booked with one of the big college teams.

There are only two holiday dates in the program but both are strong attractions. On Thanksgiving day afternoon the Millburn A. C. will be the opponents of the locals and on New Year's day, the strong Williamsbridge five will visit the local courts. No contests have been arranged for Christmas or Washington's birthday.

Manager Listman declares the outlook is rosy for a strong combination this season which he believes will be able to cope with all opposing teams. The line-up is not yet definitely decided on but it is certain that four veterans will be on the regular team. These players are Denton, Miner, Rumsey and Collier.

The position of center is still an open question but there is a likely lot of athletes striving for the place in Cahoone, Linke, Whitford, Fritts and Aalholm. The schedule follows:

November 13, Business Men, at home; November 20, Leads School, at home; November 27, Millburn A. C., at home; November 27, Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., at home; December 4, Orange Suburbans, at home; December 11, Eastern Dist. Y. M. C. A., at home; December 17, Elizabeth at Elizabeth; December 18, Millburn, at Plainfield; December 27, open; January 1, Williamsbridge, at home; January 8, Orange, at home; January 15, Suburbans, at home; January 22, open; January 29, open; February 5, Williamsbridge, at home; February 12, open; February 19, Orange, at Orange.

SALARY LAW EFFECTIVE

On November 15, Act of Legislature Passed Last April Will Be in Force.

SURROGATE AND SHERIFF GAIN.

County Clerk Calvert and Registrar Frank H. Smith Not Affected by Change.

Under the law passed by the State Legislature in April, 1909, there will go into effect, November 15, a change in the pay received by the county clerk and registrar of deeds.

The act is entitled, "An act to amend an act respecting the fees of surrogates, registrars of deeds and mortgages, county clerks and sheriffs in certain counties of the State, and providing salaries for such offices," approved March 30, 1906.

Surrogate George T. Parrot and sheriff Robert J. Kirkland were elected under the act approved in 1906. In lieu of fees those holding these offices throughout the State now receive salaries. The amount of salaries is regulated according to the population of the different counties.

The law did not affect the offices of Frank H. Smith and James C. Calvert because they were holding office when the original act was passed.

In counties having between 125,000 and 200,000 population the salaries of the sheriff, county clerk, registrar of deeds and surrogate are fixed as $6,500, and for counties with less than 125,000 population, $5,500.

The law says the salaries shall be paid by the county in regular monthly payments. Heretofore out of the fees received the county clerk and the county registrar received their salaries and paid their assistants.

Under the new law Frank H. Smith and James C. Calvert will receive each a yearly salary of $5,500. Their assistants and deputies will be paid by the county and the salaries will be approved by the judge of the Court of Common Pleas.

HEAR SPECIAL MUSIC AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Special music marked the services at the Congregational church Sunday afternoon. The augmented choir led by C. L. Lewis rendered anthems and special hymns and Mrs. Bender sang a solo. Rev. Charles F Goodrich preached about the only two shipwrecks mentioned in the Scriptures, that of ships of Tarshish and the disaster which overtook Paul at Crete.

Mr. Goodrich said that if newspapers had been published in the years a century after the death of Solomon there would have gone forth scare heads announcing the terrible loss of life which accompanied the wrecks of the fleet of Ahaziah and Jehosephaj. The fleet of specially built ships sailed from the eastern coast of Arabia to bring to the king the gold of Ophir, but they were never heard from. This wreck was presumably due to the alliance between the Good man and the evil one which Ahaziah had formed. The sinking of Paul's ship could not be attributed to such a cause as while Paul was a people of Christ the others aboard being prisoners and men who had not yet made it their purpose to openly defy God.

Paul was there by the Providential ordering of his life and through his influence saved the lives of all on board, so that no life was lost although the ship sank. No one in business can afford to disregard the religious side of things. While "honesty is the best policy" is a splendid maxim, "religion is the best policy" is a better one. All the motives of association for ages past prove that without a fixed purpose and that purpose allied with the doing of right nothing succeeds. "Let your ships return to port with the unsearchable riches of Christ rather than the sordid cargoes of gold."

FINE ORGAN RECITAL AT GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Another large congregation gathered in Grace Episcopal church Sunday afternoon, many of those present being attracted by the program offered by Organist S. Frederick Smith for his sixth recital. Mr. Smith provided a delightful half hour of music, rendering gems from some of the best composers in a manner calculated to enchral music lovers. Rheinberger's sonata in G minor was the first selection played and as said before, it was rendered in an effective thoroughly artistic manner peculiar to Mr. Smith.

The entire list of four selections was played so as to leave nothing to be desired but more of the same beauty.

DEFEATED BOUND BROOK

Plainfield High School Eleven Won a Well Played Game.

THE SCORE WAS 11 TO 5.

Bound Brook Good on the Defensive —P. H. S. Fine on Offensive—The Contest in Detail.

The Plainfield High School football team defeated Bound Brook High School at Bound Brook, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 11 to 5. At the end of the first half Bound Brook was ahead by the score of 5 to 0; which showed that Bound Brook was playing a far better game than was expected. In consequence P. H. S. had to do some hitting in the second half.

Overton and Smith played the star game for P. H. S., while Ricketts and Phillips did splendid work. One of the ways in which Bound Brook made its gains was by a ride formation in which they circled around the man with the ball and practically rolled them over the line.

The game started with P. H. S. kicking to Bound Brook. The man went down on the 25 yard line and they soon lost the ball on a fumble. P. H. S. then tried line hitting and ended by losing the ball on a forward pass.

Several times P. H. S had the ball very near the goal, but was held for downs. Bound Brook was held for downs in the last part of the first half and kicked. Plainfield got the ball on the 25 yard line, but lost it on a fumble. Bound Brook then kept up line hitting until they made a touchdown. No goal was kicked.

Bound Brook next kicked off and P. H. S. rushed the ball to the 15-yard line and then tried end runs, but time was called. In the second half, Plainfield kicked off and Bound Brook was held for downs on the 25 yard line. In a very few minutes P. H. S. rushed the ball down the field and Overton made a touchdown through the line. No goal was kicked.

Bound Brook kicked off again and Nash ran the ball to the 30 yard line. P. H. S. lost the ball on a fumble, but soon regained it. They tried a successful pass to Doane, gaining 15 yards. They then made about 20 yards by a trick play and next settled down to line hitting. This was kept up until a touchdown was made. Phillips kicked the goal.

Plainfield next kicked off to Bound Brook. They lost the ball on the thirty yard line. P. H. S. then got busy and rushed the ball to the 10-yard line. Just as they were going to make another touchdown time was called. The lineup:

P. H. S.		Bound Brook.
Phillips		Trezza
	right end.
Van Zandt		Koechlem
	right tackle.
Thompson		Falls
	right guard.
Bristol		Schure
	centre.
Ramsey		Mason
	left guard.
Carr		Biglow
	left tackle.
Doane		Rose
	left end.
Nash, Overton		Gillespie
	right halfback.
Rifferts		Baxter
	quarterback.
Ricketts		Osnato
	left halfback.
Overton, Smith		Feston

MRS. N. PENDLETON ROGERS RESUMES THE GAME OF GOLF

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of East Front street, famous as a golf player, who has been kept out of the game by the illness of her son, Lieut. N. Pendleton Rogers, Jr., has resumed play again on the links. This has been made possible through the excellent progress of her son. He is now able to get about and yesterday for the first time walked with the aid of crutches. There is every assurance that he will again be perfectly well and strong.

Lieut. Rogers was injured on January 7 last while coasting at Tuxedo, N. Y., and since that time has been helpless. Dr. G. W. Endicott, his physician, was obliged to perform numerous operations, and the broken bones are now knitting so well that the return of perfect health and strength is assured. His mother is now planning to resume golf at both the local and Baltusrol Golf club links.

HOLY CROSS ELEVEN MEETS WITH DEFEAT

The Holy Cross football team lost its first game of the season on Saturday, when the Dunellen F. C. won by a score of 6 to 0 on the Cricket Field. The game started with Holy Cross kicking to Dunellen, who brought the ball to centre field by end runs and line plunges. Holy Cross held for downs for several times. Dunellen made the first touchdown by Giddes, quarterback, who played a brilliant game throughout.

Holy Cross gained small distances in line plunges, but could not make end runs on account of the weight of Dunellen's back field. The visitors outweighed the Holy Crosses by ten pounds to the average. But who were crippled by the absence of two of their best players. Miller, Tillotson and Vail were the stars for Holy Cross. Giddis and Nontemaker did the best work for Dunellen. Weber and Taylor, who acted as referees, seemed to favor Dunellen, especially when Vail made the touchdown.

Tillotson in the second half was badly injured by a wrenched neck, but the injury is not a serious one. A great deal of betting was witnessed on the field after the game started and this led to numerous arguments. Next Saturday Holy Cross will meet Raritan A. A., on the Cricket Field.

OPPOSE GASOLENE TANK

Board of Trade Makes Protests Against a Proposed Fire Menace.

COMMON COUNCIL HARKENS.

President Marshall to Appoint Committee to Prevent Installation of 10,000 Gallon Tank in Centre of City.

Aside from the presentation of the much belated Charter Day report, and a general discussion of the proposition of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company to install a 10,000 gallon gasolene tank on the property on Park avenue, in the heart of the city, there was no special business at the November meeting of the Board of Trade, Thursday night.

In the absence of President H. W. Marshall, who held a conference with Councilman Duncan W. Taylor early in the evening regarding the gasolene tank matter, B. Frank Coriell presided.

Mr. Marshall returned before the meeting was over and reported that Councilman Taylor had assured him that as chairman of the fire and building committee, he would withhold Mr. Marth's application for permission to erect a gasolene tank for one month. The action met with the approval of the board members, all of whom entered a protest against establishing what was considered such a dangerous thing in the business part of the city.

Among those present were a number of property-owners in the vicinity of the Martin garage, and they all entered their protest. It was the sense of the members that a committee be appointed to represent the board in the matter, so that if a hearing is granted by the Common Council the board will have some standing there. F. A. Duttenhoffer offered a resolution that a committee of three be appointed for that purpose. President Marshall said that he would name the committee today so that no time would be lost.

Secretary A. S. Herr read a communication from J. Schmaltz & Sons, bakers of Hoboken, in which the firm called attention to an item in the Saturday Weekly to the effect that Hill Brothers were planning to locate here. The firm desired further information. George M. Christian, of this city, through whom Hill Brothers became interested in Plainfield, forwarded his former statements regarding the reliability of Hill Brothers and favoring their intended action of establishing a large bakery in this city.

Before the meeting closed, it was announced that at the December session there would be a "smoker" and lunch would be served.

ASSOCIATION SUSTAINS MOON'S POLITICAL WORK

Joseph D. Moon, president, of the Union County Association of the Jr. O. U. A. M., was practically vindicated last night by that association's committee on legislation for his action in causing a circular to be issued in the name of the organization requesting members of the order to vote against the Republican nominees for the Assembly. It is said that this committee alleges that it has in its possession a letter from State Council Secretary Miers in which he in effect approved of the idea of issuing the political appeal. The letter, however, could not be obtained for publication, but it is said to contradict the rebuke administered by Mr. Miers to Mr. Moon in a letter written by the former just before the circular in question was spread broadcast.

The association met last night with Somerset Council, which had received a letter from Cranford council making charges against Mr. Moon for introducing practical politics in the order. The charges were returned without action with the explanation that Mr. Moon is not a member of Somerset council. He is a member of Benevolent council and according to members of the order it is expected that charges will be preferred before that council.

GEBHARDT READY TO OFFER OPTION BILL

Senator William C. Gebhardt, fresh from his victorious fight for re-election in Hunterdon county, where the final count shows that he won by a majority of 2,196, the largest ever given a Democratic candidate in that county, was at the State House, Trenton, Thursday afternoon and declared that he did not know whether the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League would ask him to father a local option bill in the next Legislature. "But I will say this," said Senator Gebhardt said that he was prepared to renew his fight in the Senate for the passage of a law creating a public service commission, and that in all probability he would offer for introduction a bill on this subject, which in the two last sessions of the Legislature was smothered in committee.

Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan, of Hudson county, who has served with distinction in the House for two years, and will probably be selected for the same post at the incoming session, said yesterday afternoon he feared that now that the Democrats will have nineteen members the Republican "regulars" will abolish the rule by which in the last session twenty members could compel the chairman of a committee to report a bill even if a majority of the committee were hostile to it. "Of course, if last year's rules are adopted without change all we Democrats will have to do to get any bill on the floor of the House for discussion will be to induce one Republican to sign the petition to that effect," said Mr. Sullivan. "But I anticipate the Republican majority will this year go back to the old system of leaving the question of reporting a bill to the chairman of the committee handling it."

"If any attempt is made to repeal or modify the direct primary act, will it receive any Democratic support?" Mr. Sullivan was asked.

"Not if I have anything to say about it," he promptly replied. "The Democrats of Hudson county are well satisfied with the present primary system as it is now applied."

BRITISH FRUIT MARKET.

Hull Has Special Facilities for Receiving Foreign Shipmen's.

Consul Walter C. Hamm, at Hull, writes that during August delegations of growers and exporters of fruit from France and Belgium visited that English city to inquire into the market for fruit and the facilities for handling it. The consul mentions the following points for the benefit of American fruit growers:

Two delegations came from France and one from Belgium. The fruit crop in both countries this year is reported to be very large, and producers and dealers are seeking foreign markets for their surplus. They have come to Hull because it is considered the best import centre for fruit in Great Britain, outside of London. Hull has special facilities for receiving fruit from abroad and distributing it over the central and northern half of England. For example, in August is the vessel arrived with 12,000 barrels of pears, 6,000 sieves of plums, 6,000 packages of bilberries, cherries, etc., 14,000 of gages, plums and pears from the continent. It is stated that the railroads in southern France are assisting in the sending of these deputations to England in order to aid the exporters in finding a market for their products, and getting their return in freight carriage.

Large prices have been arriving in England in large quantities from France, where the harvest is said to be unusually heavy and the shipments correspondingly large; plums are said to be a record crop. France raises a large variety of fruits of all kinds and exports large quantities to other countries, the surplus this year being exceptionally large.

A ship recently arrived in Hull direct from Santa Marta, Colombia, with a consignment of 21,000 bunches of bananas, the first consignment of such fruit direct to this city. Usually bananas have been distributed from Liverpool or Manchester through central and northern England. It is hoped, however, that Hull offers a much more convenient point for such distribution. If the present effort succeeds a considerable trade in this fruit will be built up between Hull and South America.—Consular Reports.

PIN NOVELTIES.

Jewelers have crystallized the graceful lines of Psyche's wings in some attractive pin novelties for dainty neckwear. They represent light wings of pearl which follow the outline only. In little settings delicate stones glint and shine in contrast, giving an effect of a spotted butterfly.

So light and airy are these clasps that their ability is hard to realize; but they perch over a fluffy tulle or lace bow with a firm hold, and fly from their fastenings only at the wearer's wish.

'GENTLE SHEPHERD' SEEN

College Bred Actresses in Pastoral Comedy Delight Audience of Women.

THE CAST WAS WELL CHOSEN.

Scottish Costumes, Scottish Songs and Scottish Dances Help to Make the Performance a Great Success.

One might go far to see so pretty an lay as that given Thursday afternoon by the College Club of Plainfield in the Hartridge School auditorium. The play was "The Gentle Shepherd," an 18th century pastoral comedy by Allen Ramsey. The scene was a shepherd's village and fields, a few miles from Edinburgh. The Scottish costumes which are always "fetching," the Scottish songs always charming, and the Scottish dialect always winsome, made a combination of attractions that could not fail to delight a house packed to the doors. The cast was as follows:

Patie, the Gentle Shepherd, in love with Peggy, Elsie Goddard; Roger, in love with Jenny, Margaret McCutcheon; Peggy, thought to be Glaude's niece, Louise Curtis; Jenny, Glaud's only daughter, Eva Browne; Glaud and Simon, two old shepherds, tenants of Sir William, Isabel Ashwell and Ellen Osgood; Madge, Glaud's sister, Elsie Burke; Bauldy, a hynd, Mabelle Phillips; Mouse, an old woman, supposed by Bauldy to be a witch, Mrs. Van Ness De Lamater; Elspa, Simon's wife, Phebe Lovell; Sir William Worthy, Mrs. Richard Boardman; prologue to each act pronounced by Margaret Meeker; other shepherds and shepherdesses, Katherine Ball, Daisy Day, Mrs. Albert Kenelly, Helen Moody.

All the parts were exceptionally well taken. The pretty scenes between the lovers, Patie's confidence and Roger's blunt heartiness, Peggy's womanliness, and Jenny's coquetry were effectively acted, and an occasional Scottish song, either as solo or duet, added its tone of beauty to the scene.

The comic relief, Bauldy, the hynd, master, Sir William Worthy, were fine specimens of Scottish tenantry, as they planned for his coming after a long absence. Mrs. Richard Boardman took the part of Sir William, first as Scottish farmer, later as the "Laird," with fine effect. Mabelle Phillips as Bauldy was irresistible and Mrs. De Lamater made an excellent witch with her cracked voice and cackling laugh.

The unfailing romance of the play was the prediction of Sir William in disguise, that Patie, the gentle shepherd, should become laird of the estate, and later acknowledged him to be his son. The faithful Peggy, she is acknowledged of equal birth later and all ends well. A brief synopsis of the play can give little idea of the pretty scenes and situations. There were choruses, sword dances, the Highland fling by Miss Mosher, and beginning, ending and occasionally accompanying the incidents of the play, the real Scottish bag pipes, played as few can play them by Mr. Donal Thornburn, of New York.

That there may be a repetition of this play is the sincere desire of all *who saw and of others not so fortu*nate as to see the dainty bit of acting that gave nothing but pleasure.

ADDRESSES FEATURE OF MISSION SESSION

The afternoon session of the Women's Baptist Home Missionary Society of the East Association, held at the First Baptist church, Friday, was largely devoted to two addresses, one by Miss Annie Barclay, who is a missionary in Cuba, and the other by Mrs. N. N. Bishop, of Boston.

Miss Barclay gave a most interesting account of her work in Cuba, and while she told of many discouragements, she said that the encouragements more than offset them and made it worth while for all the efforts put forth there. She said that she had found the natives in a receptive mood and anxious to learn about Christ. During her stay in Cuba she said that it had been her privilege to witness many conversions.

The talk by Mrs. Bishop was of the soul-stirring sort that aroused the great audience of women. Her remarks were more general in character and covered a wide scope of mission work which she has been personally in touch with for several years.

The speaker told of the great progress being made in the South among the colored people and in Alaska, as well as other western points and those nearer home. She said that the Baptist women are doing more today in the cause of missions than ever and even more is planned for in the coming year. Mrs. Bishop was listened to with more than usual interest.

The missionary society decided before adjournment to unite with the Baptist Missionary Union and hold but two, instead of three, conferences a year, one in the spring and the other in the fall.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PUPILS DON'T LIKE TOOTH BRUSH

At the Board of Education meeting held Thursday no action was taken on the bids recently submitted by the contractors for the new Dunellen avenue school house. An interesting report of the results of the dental examination of pupils in Bryant school was submitted by Doctors Stelle and Hillman, which showed that the condition of the teeth, in that school at least, was not any different than that which exists generally throughout the schools in the east.

The figures taken from the report of the two dentists show that of the 174 pupils examined they found the teeth of nine in "very good" condition, 157 were found in good condition, while only 113 were fair. Those termed "poor" amounted to 90 and the "very poor" only five. Of these, 249 use tooth brushes while 125 do not.

All the members of the board were present excepting Mr. Buckle, who is traveling East. The collector's report showed that $1,324.91 had been collected during October for the school fund, $26,358.60 still remains to the credit of the board. The medical inspectors reported having examined 1,060 pupils during October.

A letter was read from Harry W. Marshall, chairman of the Playground Commission, asking that the board give permission for the placing of certain playground apparatus in the school yard of Bryant school subject to the permission of the Common Council. It is desired to instal this apparatus between now and spring. Action was deferred.

BIG SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET DRAWS NEAR

Delegates from every part of this State will meet in East Orange for the fifty-first annual convention of the New Jersey Sunday School Association, which will be held in the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church on November 17, 18 and 19. There will be representations from Sunday schools of nearly all denominations and it is expected that more than 1,000 will be in attendance.

The convention will open Wednesday afternoon, and later an address of welcome by Governor Fort, which will be followed by the convention sermon by the Rev. Dr. John Douglas Adam, pastor of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church, where the meetings are to be held.

There will be a night session Wednesday and sessions in the morning, afternoon and evening the two following days. Prominent speakers have been obtained, and the various phases of Sunday school work will be discussed.

It is believed that this year's convention will be the largest in point of attendance that has been held by the New Jersey Sunday School Association, and elaborate preparations are being made to entertain the guests and delegates.

Besides Governor Fort and the Rev. Dr. John Douglas Adam, other speakers will be the Rev. Dr. Frank-lin Wells Fow ks Hago on Edward W. Dunham, Miss Margaret Slattery, of Fitchburg, Mass.; the Rev. Dr. Homer C. Stuntz, the Rev. P. H. Welshimer, of Canton, O., and the Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, of this city.

DEER KNEW ITS RIENDS.

Wild Doe Helped Woman to Take Care of Wounded Fawn.

An incident in animal life which possibly may never be duplicated occurred a few weeks ago on the estate of George W. Watson at Eastern Point.

Soon after Mr. Watson arrived at his Eastern Point residence a fawn was born in the grass land around the residence. During the winter of course there was nothing to disturb the deer and they wandered at will around the estate. When it was time to cut the grass a mowing machine was put to work and the sharp knife of the machine injured the little fawn while it was cuddled up in the herbage. One leg was cut quite badly—so badly that the baby deer was unable to get away. It was taken care of by Mr. Watson and the injured leg treated.

The little chap seemed to understand that it was in good hands and responded to the treatment. It was left where found and each day the mother doe came along, and attended to the provision of food, the youngster gaining in health and strength daily. Now the little chap has fully recovered and is able to fight its own life battle. Mr. and Mrs. Watson are well pleased to know that the fawn they cared for is able to follow its mother and enjoy the freedom of Groton woods.

It has been accorded to very few, even those who spend much time in the wilds, to see baby deer nurtured as Mr. and Mrs. Watson saw their little pet.—New London Day.

NOTED DIVINE WINS SUIT HE HAS EVER SEEN

Rev. Dr. Chas. A. Eaton Defendant in Trial Heard at Somerville Today.

MR. GOLDSTEIN WANTED $2,000.

The Counsel for Defense Practically Told Jury the Case Was But a "Strike" Suit.

The $2,000 alleged damage suit instituted by Samuel Goldstein against Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, which was begun before Judge Benjamin Vail and a jury in the Somerset County Court, Wednesday was finished Thursday afternoon.

Judge Vail after hearing the evidence produced by Goldstein and his witnesses instructed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant. According to judge's charge there was nothing to show that Dr. Eaton was in any way responsible for what happened to the house after it was properly moved to its new site. Winfield S. Angleman represented Dr. Eaton, and Robert Newton Crane appeared for Goldstein.

The action against Dr. Eaton is the result of the removal of an old house, occupied by Goldstein, from the former's property at Watchung, to another piece of land opposite, it being the desire of the clergyman to get the tenant off his farm. Goldstein had a lease on the house when Dr. Eaton purchased the farm, including the house. Rather than have any trouble, the minister agreed to pay for the removal of the dwelling and for Goldstein's the occupancy of it free for one year, or until his lease expired.

In addition to that he paid masons and carpenters to make the house tenantable, expending in all about $700. After the house was removed Goldstein complained that it was not habitable, declaring that it had settled on its foundations, that a cook stove, as well as dishes, chairs and other household furniture were ruined. Then he started the suit for $2,000 against Dr. Eaton in his opening address to the jury, the counsel for the defence, practically asserted that it was a "strike suit."

The case opened yesterday with the calling of Goldstein and William Barlow. They endeavored to show that Dr. Eaton was responsible for the alleged damage. Among the witnesses called this morning for the defense were Dr. Eaton, Augustus Mobus, Harry Johns and Isaac Shepard. The latter three named were employed to do work for Dr. Eaton and they testified to the fact that the house was properly moved and put in tenantable shape. There appeared to be an abundance of proof that Dr. Eaton was in no way responsible for such conditions as claimed by Goldstein.

The house in question is said to be about seventy-five years old. It was built in three sections, two of which did not connect with the third. However, at considerable expense, Dr. Eaton put the house in good condition so that Goldstein might be able to remain there during the length of the lease.

Dr. Eaton was formerly pastor of John D. Rockefellow's church, the Euclid Avenue Baptist, in Cleveland, Ohio, and during the past year accepted the call to the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, where he is now pastor. He purchased the farm at Watchung, that he might have a home in the country for himself and family, and a suitable place to raise his five children. It is said that he has the sympathy of practically all his neighbors in the defense of the action brought against him by Goldstein.

G. O. P. VICTORY IN UNION UNUSUALLY DECISIVE.

The Union county leaders are jubilant over their victory at the polls last week, which surpassed their most sanguine expectations. The plurality of County Clerk James C. Calvert, of Elizabeth, was 4,253, the largest ever given in an off year, while County Register Frank H. Smith, of this city, who is also county chairman of the party, is re-elected by 3,996.

The surprises of the election in Elizabeth were the defeat by 18 votes of Alderman James H. White, General Dennis T. Collin's candidate in the Sixth ward, and the defeat of Alderman Conrad Hall, another strong supporter of Collins. Hall was beaten by a very small majority in the Fifth ward. These were the only two aldermen the Democrats lost in the city.

The McNamara faction, victorious in a factional fight in the First ward, held a parade last night to celebrate the overthrow of Alderman Jeremiah D. Leary, who was defeated by eighty-nine majority by Jeremiah J. McNamara, the regular Democratic candidate. He won at the primary by only seven votes.

Ladies' Auxiliary to Hold Bazaar.

The members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Trinity Commandery, No. 17, R. T., held a regular meeting in the Masonic Hall Association rooms yesterday and decided to hold a tea and bazaar on Friday afternoon and evening, November 19.

"Oklahoma is a fine country and the Indians are, too; there are good neighbors," said Harvey Reger, a septuagenarian, who arrived in this city Friday morning. Mr. Reger has been visiting his relatives in Whitehouse for the first time in thirty years, and stopped in Plainfield long enough to satisfy himself that it is the most up-to-date city he has ever seen.

Mr. Reger said he had started out to find Laing's old hotel but had given it up as a poor job. Mr. Reger formerly handled grain through this section from Whitehouse to an old mill. He is a relative of the Felmey family and has a nephew of that name living here.

He started west without a dollar and has more than a dollar left now besides a farm at Hobart worth a thousand dollars, and which he has paid for in cash. He has come here this time to settle up the estate of his father and was inquiring the way to the office of a lawyer, when he was discovered by a Daily Press reporter.

Mr. Reger has great respect for his one Indian neighbor. This red man, who was educated at Carlisle, has been a great help to Mr. Reger in his work at home and has refused to take compensation for his services on numerous occasions. He is strong in his praise of Carlisle. Mr. Reger will begin his homeward journey by the new year.

GIRLS' MISSION CLUB HALLOWE'EN SUPPER

The essentials of good service, pretty waitresses, well cooked and tempting viands in abundance, together with cheerful surroundings, combined to make the Hallowe'en supper at the Congregational church, Thursday, a great success. It was held under the auspices of the Girls' Mission club of the church, the proceeds to be used for the Albuquerque Mission.

All the decorations had a Hallowe'en effect and were unusually attractive. There were jack-o-lanterns, varied colored candles and the adornments on the tables were effective. Miss Edith Bentley, assisted by Alfred Evans, was the originator and sponsor for the typical Hallowe'en decorations.

During the evening over one hundred suppers were served and the parlors were crowded from 6 to 8:15 o'clock. Miss Marguerite VanZandt was at the piano and the selections were appreciated by the patrons of the supper.

Miss Lillian Whitall was the chairman of the committee in charge, her chief assistant being Miss Edith Bentley. The waitresses were the Misses Laura Baker, Bessie Wikoff, Edith LaRue, Ethel VanZandt, Ida Dealman, Myra Emmons, Dorothy Johnson, of Nassau, Bahama Islands; Alice Matt, Marguerite VanZandt, Mary Becker, Margaret Tuhbs, Margaret Wesson, Alice Morgan, Mrs. Charles Whitall assisted the committee in serving. The profits will be directly expended for a scholarship for Polonita Mastas, of the Albuquerque Mission, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

NO REDRESS FOR MAN LISTED AS A DRUNKARD.

Circuit Judge Lloyd, in the Gloucester County Court, Wednesday quashed the suit brought by James Arthur Johnson, of Franklinville, against Glassboro, and the Board of Protectors of Franklinville Township, to recover $10,000 damages for the listing of his name as a drunkard. Judge Lloyd announced that the case had been non-suited because there was no evidence that the members of the board had acted with malice. As soon as they discovered that Johnson's name was on the list by mistake, he said, the list was withdrawn. Johnson is likely to carry the case to the Court of Errors and Appeals.

By mistake the board placed Johnson's name on a list furnished to Henry Finger, hotel-keeper in Franklinville. When Johnson, who is a department manager of the Whitney Glass Works, and a veteran in the Elwood M. E. church, Glassboro, heard of the list, he brought suit. On the witness stand he told of the embarrassment to which he had been subjected by persons on the street making fun at his expense. Boys shouted "jag" at him, and when he reproved his employes for drinking they retorted: "Your name's on the jag list; quit your kiddin'." He said he had never been drunk in his life.

Rev. Charles Q. Dubell, rector of the Glassboro Episcopal church, and George D. Whitney, proprietor of the Whitney works, testified to the good character of Mr. Johnson.

The testimony of the defendants was to the effect that they had received Johnson's name for the list from persons whose word they thought was not to be doubted. They admitted that they had not investigated the charges against Johnson, or given him a hearing.

JOHN RAFFERTY BURIED

Bars are Closed as Mark of Respect to Model Saloon Keeper.

A GREAT FUNERAL CORTEGE.

Solemn Requiem Mass Said at St. Mary's by Rev. B. M. Bogan—Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery.

One of the longest funeral corteges ever seen in this city followed the remains of John Rafferty to their final resting place in St. Mary's cemetery Thursday. It was with difficulty that enough conveyances could be obtained to accommodate the friends who wished to attend the funeral. Westfield and other nearby towns were called upon to furnish carriages after the local supply was exhausted.

The funeral left the late home of Mr. Rafferty at 22 Sandford avenue, at 9 o'clock and at St. Mary's church, of which he had been an active member, at 10 o'clock a solmen requiem mass was said for the repose of his soul.

During the church services nearly all the saloons and bars in the city were closed out of respect to Mr. Rafferty, who was known as one of the most consistent men in the business. It was a characteristic of his that no matter who, nor the excuse offered, no one under the influence of liquor could obtain another drink in Mr. Rafferty's place. It is said that even an entirely sober man stumbling through the entrance to the saloon was sure to have his request for liquid refreshment denied.

Mr. Rafferty published excellent rules at his place of business which he rigidly enforced. His peculiarly firm character was most noticeable in his home, where he has brought up a family of large proportions with the scrupulous care another might have devoted to other purposes. He is survived by two sons and eight daughters and his wife.

Rev. Father Bogan was assisted in the church service by Fathers Hogan and Sciola. Following were the pall bearers: John F. McIntyre, Joseph Blatz, Jacob Blimm, James E. Martine, A. F. Raymond and former Mayor P. J. Ryan, of Elizabeth

CARNEGIE HERO MEDAL FOR BORDENTOWN MAN.

The Carnegie hero fund commission held its fall meeting in Pittsburg Wednesday and issued fifty awards for brave acts. Besides medals, an aggregate of $34,650, was voted out of the fund to heroes and heroines.

One of the most interesting awards was that of a silver medal and money to the widow of Rev. Robert L. Mitchell, of Plymouth, Conn., who, on August 3, 1909, lost his life in Fishers Island Sound, N. Y., while trying to save Clarence B. Blakeslee, sixteen, who had fallen into the water from the latter's organist in the minister's church, and both were drowned. The commission gave Mrs. Mitchell $300 in cash and allows her $70 per month as long as she remains his widow, and $5 per month for each of her three children until they reach the age of sixteen years.

Ralph H. Reeder, of Bordentown, N. J., is given a bronze medal for saving the lives of Bessie L. Lewis and Katharine M. Kaine there, July 4, 1908. The girls were drowning when Reeder went to their rescue. Miss Lewis had sunk to the bottom of the Delaware river, and when Reeder was struggling with Miss Kain, his foot became entangled in the clothes of Miss Lewis at the bottom of the stream, and he could not disengage it. By main strength he managed to swim with one arm and drag the other along with his imprisoned foot until help came, saving each of the drowning women.

Another case of interest was that of the children of Peter L. Collins, of New York. Some months ago the children of Collins $50 per month for the use of her husband, who lost his life, but since that the widow died, and the commission yesterday gave $20 per month to each of the two minor children.

One Good Laugh.

A man went into a chemist's shop and bought a bottle of some patent stuff, which was advertised thus:

No More Coughs.
No More Colds.
4s. a Bottle.

Three days later he went to the chemist, complaining that his throat was stopped up, and that he could scarcely breathe. "I've drunk all that patent stuff you sold me," he said.

"Drunk it?" yelled the chemist. "Why, that's an India rubber solution to put on the soles of your boots to prevent your catching cold!"

Sesame Club Entertained.

The Sesame club was delightfully entertained Thursday morning at Miss Kate Biglow in her studio in the Babcock building. The subject for the day was "Germany's Instrumental Composers." Miss Biglow gave an interesting sketch of the lives of several of the most noted composers, also some pleasing selections from their compositions. Mrs. Harry Johnson and Miss May Vincent Whitney assisted at the piano.

B. S. ROCKWELL FINDS BRIDE IN CALIFORNIA

Miss Dorothy Hilda Barnicott, of Newcastle, California, and Bertram Stanley Rockwell, of East Front street, this city, were married Wednesday afternoon at home of the bride's parents, Somerset Orchard, Newcastle, California.

The bride and groom will come east on their wedding trip and visit for a few weeks at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rockwell, of East Front street, before returning to California, where the groom is in business.

TABLET TO HONOR A WOMAN PATRIOT

In the historic graveyard adjoining the First Presbyterian church, in Broad street, Elizabeth, Wednesday afternoon, was unveiled by Budinot Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, a tablet to the memory of Hannah White Arnett, a patriotic resident of Elizabethtown during the old Colonial days.

The tablet is thus inscribed:—

Near Here Rests
HANNAH WHITE ARNETT.
Died 1823, aged 90 years.

Her patriotic words, uttered in the dark days of 1776, summoned discouraged men to keep Elizabethtown loyal to the cause of American independence.

Erected by
BUDINOT CHAPTER,
Daughters of the American Revolution, 1909.

The welcome to the guests was by Mrs. E. Gaylord Putnam. The Rev Dr. William Force Whittaker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, followed with an address. A message was read from Hannah Arnett Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Vineland. The address of acceptance was by Walter B. Timms, trustee of the First Presbyterian church.

Prior to the unveiling special services were held in the chapel of the church. Mrs. E. T. Tomlinson, regent of Budinot Chapter, presided.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS ON THE PACIFIC COAST

The migration of a number of New Market families to Ocean Park, California, during the past couple of years has resulted in the establishment of a healthy Seventh-Day Baptist colony on the Pacific coast. As all of the former Piscatawayans are becoming prosperous in their new abode another exodus is expected next spring.

The pioneers were W. J. Davis and family, and they were followed by Fred Ward and family, Charles Ward and family, William Ackerman and family, Willard L. Larabee and family, and Merle Larabee and family. The most recent arrivals from the colony were Mrs. Clark T. Rogers and Charles Rogers and family. The latter contingent, however, expect to return next July.

Ocean Park is in the heart of the fine orange growing district, in addition to being situated on an attractive point of the Pacific. Since the first contingent of New Market residents invested their land has increased a hundred fold, and some of the colony it is said have cleared up big sums in land speculation and fruit raising.

As all their investments are still reaping huge profits there is little chance of any members of the party returning to New Market for a time. Gossip in the village says that all are sure to return millionaires in less than ten years if the present good era continues.

"What part of a railroad train do you regard as the most dangerous?" inquired the nervous man.

"The dining car," answered the dyspeptic.—Washington Star.

42ND YEAR OF Y. M. C. A.

Observance to Be Marked by Addresses in Evangelical Churches.

THE SPEAKERS ARE ASSIGNED.

Week's Program Arranged for the Institution's Annual Celebration to Be Held Here This Month.

Final arrangements have been made for the observance of its forty-second anniversary by the Young Men's Christian Association. Nearly all the exercises to be held in connection with the celebration will occur during the Association week of prayer, November 14-21, and will consist of services in many of the evangelical churches of the city and special meetings in association hall. The program is a notable one because of the participation of several of the most prominent association workers in the country, including John R. Mott, of New York, Associate General Secretary of the International Committee and chairman of the World's Christian Student Federation, and Dr. Herbert Welch, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, and member of many state executive committees of Ohio Young Men's Christian Association.

On Sunday morning, November 14, the following speakers will occupy different pulpits: First Methodist church, President Herbert Welch; First Baptist church, Lewis E. Hawkins, of Newark, State Secretary for New Jersey; First Presbyterian church, Bradford Williams, of Newark, association evangelist and originator of the automobile evangelistic campaign idea; Congregational church, H. W. Merroll, general secretary of the Atlantic City Association; Park Avenue Baptist church, B. C. Pond, General Secretary of the Paterson Association; Warren chapel, John Schroeder, general secretary of the Hoboken Railroad Association. In the evening, at Trinity Reformed church Rev. John Y. Brook will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion. At Grace M. E. church, C. W. Bingham, boys' secretary of the local association, will be the speaker.

Sunday morning, November 28, John R. Mott will speak at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Saturday afternoon, November 13, H. E. Parker, secretary of the local association, will be the speaker at the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

In addition to speaking at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday morning, November 14, Bradford Williams will speak to men in the afternoon at 4 o'clock in Y. M. C. A. hall and again to men and women at 9:15, following the evening service in the churches. These two meetings will mark the beginning of a week of evangelistic services and Bible recitals to be given by Mr. Williams.

JEWELED TRIMMINGS.

For evening gowns the newest idea in trimmings is that which employs jewels to give contrasting color. Gold or silver mesh forms an elegant warp upon which are woven silken thread and jewels. What can be more charming than a dull metallic lace with a turquoise or opal here and there? Turquoise stones? Gold embroidery is wonderfully rich when combined with coral and pearls. Occasionally the weaver has incorporated clear crystal beads on a machine-made background, and in many new laces pearls, turquoises and corals are combined on one mesh.

These colors echo the shades of the new brocades and solve the problem of a necktie to which always confronts a designer.

Amethysts cluster in conventional bunches on a background of dull embroidered leaves, tiny golden disks shine out in brilliant contrast to the dull blue of night.

"All the wonder and wealth of the mine" are offered to the woman who wishes to give a rich and colorful touch to her costume. These newest ideas are supplying just the beautiful accent for which an artistic, womanly eye strives when planning a gown to be worn on great occasions.

Church Men Active.

The second entertainment of the season under the auspices of the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church, Westfield, will be held on Friday evening, November 26, when a literary recital will be given by Walter Howe. The other entertainments of the course will be: Friday, January 28, 1910, lecture on "The Making of a Magazine," S. S. McClure; Friday, February 25, musicale, Charles N. Granville, baritone, and Paul Kefer, 'cellist; Friday, March 25, stereopticon lecture, "The Jordan Valley and Dead Sea Region," Dr. Putman Cady, F. R. G. S.; Friday, April 22, concert by New York Concert Company.

Cuff Pins of All Kinds.

The assortment of cuff pins never has been so varied. They come in the most fascinating of enamels, is well as in jet. Then, they may be had in plain gold or set in jewels of every kind. These cuff pins are essentials in every women's toilet, and, seemingly, milady cannot have too many of them.

MONTHLY REPORT OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH

The reports presented at the November meeting of the Board of Health Wednesday showed the sanitary condition of the city to be excellent. During October fifteen cases of communicable disease were reported, as follows: Scarlet fever, 8; tuberculosis, 3; diphtheria, 2; chicken-pox, 2; total, 15.

In all thirty-one samples of milk were collected and analyzed, the quality of which proved to be better than last month, and the number of bacteria per cubic centimeter much lower. Eighty-four dairies and bottling places were inspected during the month, with gratifying results. Two dairies were, however, prohibited from shipping milk to Plainfield because of the unwillingness of the owners to comply with the requirements of the board. One of the five dairies shut off the previous month has since been allowed to continue supplying milk here, the owner having complied with the necessary conditions.

The new rules and regulations concerning the production and transportation of milk have been printed on cloth and during the month have been posted in about half of the dairies supplying milk in Plainfield.

During the month the work of the sanitary survey of the city was continued. In all 275 inspections were made in the districts included in East Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh streets, between Park avenue and Richmond street. Forty nuisances were found on the above properties, but the majority of them were of a minor character.

Milk permits were granted to the following applicants to sell milk from their stores: Neuman Brothers, No. 1 H. Keenan, South Second; H. Brook Farms and Charles J. Feller were granted renewal of their permits to sell milk from wagons. The application of B. C. Firstbrook for a permit to sell milk was laid on the table for one month. An application for a permit to collect garbage, submitted by H. D. S. Marshall, was referred to the assistant health officer with power.

The total number of inspections in connection with plumbing, etc., was 658. Those returns were made to the office of the board: Marriages, 20; births, 26; still-births, 1; deaths, 23.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS OF THE LOCAL Y.W.C.A.

Reports were read at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Young Women's Christian Association showing the unusually good local and educational department of the association.

In the domestic science department the registration for cooking, taught by Miss Mary Farrell, is so large that there is a waiting list for nearly all classes. In the morning class there is a registration of fourteen, afternoon of thirteen, evening of fourteen. In dressmaking, taught by Miss Isabel Scarborough, the morning and evening class each register nine and the afternoon six.

Miss Scarborough also gives her services for an afternoon junior sewing class. Under the direction of New York city, the evening millinery class of twelve members is doing good work. Miss Lough teaches seven in the afternoon and nine in the evening embroidery. An afternoon class of seven and an evening French class to be started soon are taught by Miss Zoe Bateman. Frau Haugh has a good German class meeting on Tuesday evenings.

The department of English for foreign speaking girls has five classes: One Monday evening, taught by Miss Humphreys in English grammar and correspondence; one Wednesday afternoon for Swedish girls, taught by Miss Weaver, and three graded classes Wednesday evenings. One of these is a beginning class for girls unable to speak English, and is taught by Miss Ellen Merrell with a new method successfully used by the New York city Y. W. C. A. The two other Wednesday evening classes are taught by Miss Theo. Campbell and Miss Ada Clarke.

Wednesday under the direction of Miss Helen Brown, the girls in the English department have games and enjoyed a social hour. Two courses in "get ready for Christmas" work are very popular and one course in stenciling and metal hammering, the three classes taught by Mr. Bostwick of the high school, and a course in the making of raffe grass is deservedly popular. The committee also decided to issue at the close of a term's work a card of recognition of work accomplished, and also to issue at the end of a course a diploma. The fine work in this department is due to the efforts of Mrs. Wm. L. Murray, chairman, with her able committee. The report of the physical department showing 126 girls registered in gymnasium classes was also most encouraging.

What's in a Name?

"Why did your firm back out of that deal?"

"Well, the silent partner made an awful roar about it, and we had to."—Cleveland Leader.

CAMPANARI'S PROGRAM

Famous Baritone's Selections to Be Sung Here Include Toreador from "Carmen."

SERENADE FROM DON GIOVANNI

Favorite Songs of Italy Will Be Included in Recital to Be Given November 15.

Ever since the announcement was made in these columns that Signor Guiseppe Campanari, the incomparable baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was to make his initial Plainfield appearance at one of Signor Guiseppe Campanari.

Mr. Joseph McIntyre's series of chamber concerts, speculation has been rife as to the selections the great singer would present here on Monday, November 15.

Mr. McIntyre today announces Signor Campanari's repertoire, which is replete with operatic and concert gems. All lovers of good music, and especially those who have followed the successes of New York's two great opera companies, know that Campanari, with his Toreador song, has made a name for himself in Carmen quite as great as that of Calve, the greatest of all living Carmens. This song is Signor Campanari's masterpiece and it is with pleasurable pride that Mr. McIntyre announced it today as one of the great baritone's numbers to be sung here.

Then, too, Campanari will sing Rossini's Tarantella and the serenade from "Don Giovani." Also included in his program, are a number of old and modern Italian songs, for the most part favorites of Campanari and selected by him, well knowing that his adulence in Plainfield is not only an appreciative but a highly critical one.

This program is remarkable inasmuch as Campanari's talents, both in operatic and concert work, will be given full scope and his audience will not only have an opportunity to judge of the exquisite calibre of his voice, but to pass upon his dramatic abilities as well. He has long been known as the actor-baritone par excellence and Plainfield's most discriminating devotees of music will soon be given a chance to pass on these claims.

EUGENE P. EDWARDS GIVEN BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

A surprise was rung in on Eugene P. Edwards, of 255 East Second street, Monday, when a party numbering a score of his friends caught him leisurely reading his evening paper after supper. The occasion was Mr. Edwards' fifty-third birthday.

After the invaders had made known their purpose Mr. Edwards descended to the parlors and entered into the enjoyment provided with spirit. He received a Masonic charm as a gift from his wife. After enjoying an informal program of music and parlor games, the party adjourned to the dining room, where Mr. Edwards assisted in the cutting of a fifty-three candle-power cake. The party broke up just after midnight after enjoying a very pleasant evening.

Conversion at the Mission.

Hughes Fawcett made a strong address at the Plainfield Rescue Mission Sunday night, and the Misses Burnett gave the message in song. After the service a Plainfield man came forward and made an open confession of faith which proved a source of much encouragement to the workers.

KREBS DRAFTS NEW BILL

Borough School Supt. Favors More Effective Legislation for Compulsory Education.

MANY HOLES IN PRESENT LAW.

New Jersey State Council of Educators Will Discuss Proposed New Act at Jersey City on Saturday.

The New Jersey State Council of Education, composed of the leading superintendents and principals in the State, will, at a regular meeting at City Hall, Jersey City, on Saturday morning, November 13, take up for discussion a proposed revision of the compulsory education act. This revision has been drafted by the committee on school law, of which Supervising Principal H. C. Krebs of the borough schools, is chairman. The other members of the committee are J. Brognard Betts, assistant State superintendent; H. Brewster Willis, of Middlesex county; John Enright, of Monmouth county, and Superintendent Charles B. Boyer, of Atlantic City.

The proposed bill offers several important changes. Under the present law complaint can be made only to a justice of the peace, police justice or city or town recorder. It is proposed to include in this list any judge of the Court of Common Pleas or judge of a city or district court, the process to be served by a court officer. It is believed that a case conducted before a judge in open court will be more impressive and effective than if taken before a local official.

The present law provides that negligent parents shall be punishable as disorderly persons. The proposed bill provides that they shall be punishable as provided in an act entitled "An act concerning disorderly persons," revision of 1898, and the supplements thereto and the amendments thereof.

Under the proposed law each district is required to appoint a truant officer. At present such appointment is optional.

The proposed measure defines a truant as follows: "Every child required by the provisions of this article to attend school, who shall be repeatedly absent from school, shall be deemed to be a truant, and shall be proceeded against as such."

The ages to which compulsory attendance shall apply, and the provisions for exemption from attendance by the board of education, are unchanged.

MRS. H. D. CORBUSIER ELECTED HEAD OF MOTHERS' ASSN.

The Plainfield Mothers' Association held its first meeting of the season Monday afternoon, when the resignation of Mrs. E. J. Hamilton, as president, was presented and accepted. Mrs. Harold D. Corbusier was elected to fill the vacancy. The resignation of Mrs. Andrew J. Gavett as first vice-president and Mrs. Fitch as chairman of the bureau of speakers were also read and accepted with expressions of appreciation of services rendered the association. Mrs. William Sandford, Jr., is the second vice-president.

It was suggested that from time to time the association should cause to be published in the Plainfield daily newspapers articles or addresses on the care and raising of children, and that leaflets along these lines should be reprinted and distributed throughout the city. The meetings of the association will be held monthly during the winter.

CHRISTIAN SOLDIER'S LIFE

Story of Gen. O. O. Howard's Life as Told by His Nephew, Rev. L. R. Howard.

FOUNDED HOWARD UNIVERSITY.

Military Activities Did Not Prevent Christian Endeavor Among All Classes of People.

Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, delivered an eulogy of his uncle, the late General O. O. Howard, on Sunday evening, of which the following is an extract.

The text for the sermon was from Psalm 18:32-35. "The God that girdeth me with strength * * * He teacheth my hand to war * * * Thou also hast given my the shield of thy salvation and thy right hand hath holden me up, and thy gentleness hath made me great.

These words, said the speaker, might almost have been the life motto of General Howard, the Christian Soldier. Favorite themes of his addresses were, "Loving kindness," and "The Father Love of God." This was a reflection of the strong influence on his life of his experience of the divine love. In truth it was God's gentleness that made him great.

At thirty-two years of age Howard was a major-general. He was twice wounded by Minie balls and once by a piece of shell, and at Fair Oaks, after leading a successful charge and having two horses shot under him he was obliged to submit to the amputation of his right arm. In the four years of the Civil War he was in over sixty engagements, being successively advanced all the way from the command of a regiment to that of the great army of the Tennessee, with which he defeated Hood before Atlanta; the same army with which Grant captured Vicksburg, and which was with Sherman on the March to the Sea.

With no interval of rest General Howard was hurried from the field, in response to one of Lincoln's last requests, to take charge of the immense task of caring for the four and a half millions of liberated slaves. Considering the prejudice against the race, and the turmoil of political conditions the task was one of unparalleled difficulty. Nevertheless, hundreds of schools and Sunday schools were established, thousands upon thousands of homeless wanderers were started on the way of self-respecting manhood, and the efforts of a large group of philanthropic societies were carefully directed toward the end that the work by the time the seven years life of the Freedmen's Bureau was closed by Congress as suddenly as it had been begun.

Again without a day between tasks, not even time for completely rounding out and finishing up the work of the Freedmen's Bureau, the young officer was hurried off to the west on a peculiarly difficult and dangerous mission, to a rebellious band of Apache Indians, in which he succeeded remarkably. This was the first of many important dealings with the Indians in which he gained the same sort of result.

Finally, when after years of incessant activity for the nation, the time came for the General to retire, there was even then no resting from public service. He remembered how President Lincoln had said to him during the war: "Howard, if you come out of all this horror and misery safe, and I pray, God that you may, I want you to do something for those Mountain people that have been shut out of the world all these years." Consequently, when most men expect to enjoy a life of well-earned rest, Gen. Howard plunged into the almost heart-breaking task of raising money for a great educational institution, and for the ten years before his death was incessantly at work on this last great task of love.

To have founded Howard University alone, the great negro school in Washington, which is the most conspicuous remaining result of his work in the Freedmens' Bureau, would have been enough to have set any man's name high among those who have served their fellow-men. To have added to that another university, established by his labors when past seventy years of age, is surely an astonishing achievement. Lincoln Memorial University, at Cumberland, Gap, Tennessee, the old soldier's tribute of layalty to his great Chief, as Howard Naiversity is the monument to the faithful performance of the task laid upon him by that loved leader in his youth.

But all these things together do not begin to count up the sum of Gen. Howard's claims to greatness as a Christian soldier. His activities in the way of religious service, from the time of his conversion to his death, were such as most laymen usually think of as possible only to a Christian minister. He constantly visited hospitals, comforted the sick, and sat by the dying. He established Sunday schools and even raised most of the money for building a great church. He preached and he prayed, even as he fought and labored, in public and in private, wherever there seemed an opportunity to do good and help his fellowmen.

Among the outstanding Christian characteristics of the general, Mr. Howard named the following illustrating each with various interesting anecdotes from his uncle's life, or quotations from his writings.

First, was his self-control. One illustration of this was his behavior under criticism. A second trait was his sympathy. There could be no pain or sorrow in the lives of those whom he could reach which he did not wish and try to meet with help and comfort. His treatment of the Negro and the Indian was largely controlled by this strong Christian trait, and several striking instances were told in illustration of it. Then were named and illustrated, his generosity toward his rivals, his noble fearlessness under the greatest variety of dangers, and finally, his "religiousness," or positive Christian faith and activity.

The General once said his ultimate philosophy was very simple, as seen in practice: "Study the Scriptures; read them daily; have family reading and prayer; ask God's blessing at meals; spend the Sabbath in seeking spiritual benefit; try every day to make somebody happier and better; go to the meeting for prayer, to meet the great King and put in with others our petitions."

At the close of his autobiography General Howard wrote: "My part in the world's work will soon be finished. I will now in strongest desire, it is that all people, and especially all children, may receive into their minds and hearts that teaching which shall make for their present and future good, which embraces attainable knowledge and loving kindness, whose pattern is in the life of Jesus."

In conclusion, the speaker made a simple appeal for Lincoln Memorial University and circulars with stamped envelopes were distributed, by which small contributions could be sent toward this last monument, not only of President Lincoln, but of the Christian Soldier, General Howard also.

SEWAGE QUESTION STIRS DUNELLEN TAX PAYERS

While Dunellen taxpayers are a unit toward the proposition of uniting with North Plainfield in a sewerage system, the plans of the borough solons in reference to the sites for the location of the disposal plant and bed is not likely to go through without opposition.

It was learned today that the Watchung Water Company, of Dunellen, while not antagonistic to a sewerage system, will oppose the establishment of the plant on all of the three sites under consideration. The water company is opposed to the location of the beds at the points designated in the resolution fathered by the sewerage commission for the reason that the sites are situated quite near Greenbrook in the vicinity of Spring's Mills.

The objection, will be made on the grounds that the sewerage would be passing through the ground too near the company's well, which would place the streams in danger of contamination. The company furnishes water through its pipe lines to Dunellen, New Market, Piscataway township and Bound Brook.

Another objector is said to be Mrs. Helen Sites, owner of Brown Hall, or the old Rice place. This property is considered one of the most valuable in that section. It is of the old mansion type and was erected about twenty-five years ago by lawyer Patrick, who is now serving a life sentence in the Trenton prison for the murder of Robert Rice, the old millionaire, for whom he acted as counsel. This property is said to be worth $40,000 and is near the Trust and Cramer farms, the latter being adjacent to the Brown farm on the west.

Dunellen residents as a rule favor the Zolenach farm as the ideal site for the plant. It is also understood that the Watchung Water Company and Mrs. Brown have no objections to offer provided that site is selected.

Tax Collector Isaac Sites, who is one of the most energetic advocates for a sewerage system in Dunellen, sounded his views yesterday to a Daily Press reporter in the following words:

"We want sewerage in Dunellen here bad enough but we don't want to place it in our backyard. We want to put it where it would do the least injury." Mr. Sites entertains the opinion that the Zolenach farm is the ideal site for the plant.

RATS IN THE HAY LOFT

They Nearly Frightened Jackson to Death; was Collapsing When Rescued.

NEIGHBORS WERE SCARED, TOO.

Street Commissioner Barrett Relieves Shouting Negro in North Plainfield Barn.

Regent street and vicinity, in the borough, is generally considered to be a quiet neighborhood, but from 8:20 to 8:50 o'clock Monday night there was an exception to the general rule. It was all due to the misfortune of Gus Jackson, a colored driver in the employ of Street Commissioner J. Y. Barrett, getting lost in the hay mow of the latter's barn.

Barrett delegated Jackson to go to the mow and get a bundle of straw on the eastern end of the barn. It was the negro's first trip to the hay depository and he ascended the stairs minus the services of a lantern. It was dark as pitch and Jackson floundered about in the hay in a vain attempt to locate a bundle of straw.

As the hay loft covers a space of about 60x90 feet it was not long before Jackson lost his bearings. He labored without sounding an alarm until a couple of huge rats descended from the rafters and collided with his head. This proved a too chilly proposition for Jackson and he immediately began to exude loud wails for help.

Jackson has a powerful pair of lungs but not for half an hour did he attract the attention of a pedestrian. By that time several of the neighbors had heard the frenzied yelps of Jackson and soon a score had gathered outside the barn. Visions of a cold blooded murder and other weird crimes filled the sidewalk brigade with fear and trembling. Nobody had the courage to approach the barn.

Relief did not come until Street Commissioner Barrett returned to the scene. He surmised what the trouble was and hastened to the barn. His shout to Jackson was answered by the imprisoned negro.

"I am lost boss, hurry up git me quick, 'cause de rats will soon eat me up."

Barrett lighted a lantern and ascended to the hay mow where he discovered the frenzied negro in a state of collapse half buried in the hay.

When Jackson partly recovered his equilibrium over the sight of his employer and the rays of the lantern he made a mad leap to the latter.

"Praise de Lawd, I am delivered at last, boss, I dun thought I was a gonner for good. Lead me to the light. I will never go up dar in dat hay mow again."

A few moments later when Jackson reached solid earth he made a wild dash and ran directly home. Up to 10 o'clock this morning he had failed to report for duty.

HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

will fight the case. It has been suggested that he will make the novel plea that the man was still alive when the autopsy was performed, citing various cases of suspended animation as proof of this.

Dr. John D. Quackenbos, of New York, an hypnotic expert, when seen last night by a reporter concerning the case of Robert Simpson, said that the man could not have been killed by auto suggestion. He said that if Simpson were in a hypnotic trance he might remain in that condition for several days, without visible signs of life.

"It is time that a stop was put to this practice of allowing quacks and amateurs in the art of hypnotism to conduct these experiments," said Dr. Quackenbos. "It can only lead to more such cases, and only qualified physicians who are skilled in the science of hypnotism should be permitted to make use of it. I do not know the conditions in the Simpson case, beyond what I have read in the papers, but from what I can understand Simpson died as the result of the severe strain to which he was subjected when forced to sustain the weight of a man's body on his chest. The autopsy discloses that he died from a rupture of the aorta, and I believe that it will be found that this rupture was caused by the physical strain he underwent."

Cafe Chantante Netted About $375.

The Cafe Chantante which was held last week at the Park Club under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters, was a great succes financially. The gross receipts were $490 and the net about $375. Several requests were made to have the affair repeated for the benefit of the Plainfield Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis, but instead the Silver Cross Circle has voted to contribute $100 to this work.

The Union County Board of Elections have completed the official count of the votes for the Assembly, county clerk and county register in the county. It shows that Lloyd Thompson, Republican candidate for the Assembly, was the high man on the Legislative ticket, polling 11,774 votes. This is gratifying to Mr. Thompson as a well directed effort was made on the part of the Jr. O. U. A. M., to bring about his defeat.

Assemblyman Augustus Schwartz, also Republican, was next highest with 11,721 votes and Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce received a total of 11,331 votes.

MRS. DUPEE SUCCUMBS TO A BRIEF ILLNESS

Mrs. Josephine Hubbard Dupee, widow of the late George P. Dupee, died Tuesday at her late home at 29 Washington avenue, after a brief illness. Mr. Dupee was taken ill on Friday, and as no serious results were anticipated, the fatal termination of her illness caused a big surprise among her large circle of friends in the borough and this city.

Mrs. Dupee was a member of Holy Cross church in which parish she had been an indefatigable worker for years. She was born at Clinton, Oneida county, N. Y., in 1846. In 1874 she was married to her husband, and after residing in New York for a couple of years, Mr., and Mrs. Dupee removed to the borough. Two years ago Mr. Dupee, who was a prominent New York business man, passed away.

Four children, Charles, the former noted Yale athlete, and George H. Dupee, survive the dead mother. The funeral service was conducted at the Holy Cross church at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday morning and the interment was made at Hillside.

PLAINFIELD CLERICUS HOLDS MEETING HERE

The Plainfield Clericus, comprising the clergy of the Episcopal church of this city, the boroughs as well as surrounding nearby towns, was entertained yesterday afternoon by Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson, of East Ninth street. The clergy were first invited to luncheon at 1:30, after which Rev. Dr. A. A. Gondon, of Bernardsville, presented a paper on the topic of "Religious Education." The paper suggested new and approved methods and favored rather the inductive than the deductive method of religious training.

The paper was listened to with unusual interest and was followed by an informal discussion. There were about sixteen members of the Clericus present. Rev. Harris C. Rush, of Somerville, is the president, and Rev. Clarence C. Sylvester, of Somerville, the secretary. The next meeting will be held at the home of Rev. Dr. Otis T. Glazebrook in Elizabeth, on Monday, December 6.

Special Musical Service.

The vested choir of the First M. E. church under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist, took part in a special musical service Sunday night. Bertram Tallamy sang as an offertory "Rock of Ages," and the choir sang these anthems: "Love Not the World," "The Comforter Came to My Soul," "O for the Wings of a Dove," and in addition Gounod's "Gallia." The service was greatly enjoyed by a large congregation.

New Apartment House.

Mrs. Matilda E. Squires has filed an application with Building Inspector Doane for a permit to transform her property at 73 Watchung avenue into a three-story brick apartment house. The alterations will entail an expenditure of $8,000. The plans passed the requirements of the State building department in Newark and they are likely to be approved by the local building authorities.

NEEDLEWORK GUILD MEETS

Women of Crescent Avenue Church Ready to Distribute Clothing to Needy.

MANY INSTITUTIONS HELPED.

Organization in Healthy Condition —Officers Re-elected for the Coming Year.

The annual meeting of the Needlework Guild of the Crescent Avenue church took place Monday afternoon and in the absence of Mrs. John B. Dumont, the president, Mrs. Ryder, the vice-president, took the chair. Reports of the past year's work were received and accepted. The society is in a flourishing condition and has a small balance in the treasury.

According to the presiding officer a wrong impression has got abroad that the organization has received more garments than it can dispose of. Mrs. Ryder in speaking of this said that the impression is altogether at variance with the facts. More articles are needed, especially underwear for both children and adults. At least 3,000 garments can be used to advantage among the poor and other institutions and there is no wish on the part of the members to limit anyone so disposed to add to the gifts which will be so much needed during the coming winter.

When The Daily Press reporter visited the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon he found six tables heaped high with useful garments, including inner and outer wear for women and children, the distribution of which was begun today.

Among those who benefitted during the past year and from whom letters of appreciation were received were Muhlenberg Hospital, Charity Organization Society, Warren Chapel, St. Mary's Convent, Hope chapel and the City Union of the King's Daughters. It is expected that the distributions of clothing, sheets and pillow cases will be even larger this year than last and of course larger contributions are looked for from those who are in sympathy with the work. Many of these things find their way to the half-clad mountain whites of Tennessee.

The election of officers of the local association was concluded rapidly, the former incumbents being retained in office. Mrs. Dumont, president, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. John Edgar Coriles. The vice-presidents elected were Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Miss Ida Wilson and Mrs. D. Warren. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $30.33 on hand, of which $10 was voted to be sent to the parent organiaztion.

VALENTINE M'LOUGHLIN GETS DUBLIN LEGACY

Valentine McLaughlin, a Dunellen barber, is a happy man these days. On Saturday last McLaughlin received information that a relative in his native town of Dublin, Ireland, had died and bequeathed to him about $23,000 in cash. McLaughlin took a half-day off yesterday and visited town to look up the ocean line timetables for Dublin, where he plans soon to collect his legacy.

McLaughlin left Dublin when a small boy. He came to the United States and settled in Chicago, and seven years ago he struck Dunellen, where he has since been located, working at his trade of tonsorial artist in the shop of Assessor John H. L. Peters.

McLaughlin did not lose his bearings when informed of his good luck. He did not give up his job as hair and whisker trimmer, nor does he intend to give up his means of livlihood until he is cocksure of getting the $23,000. Should re decide to go to Dublin, he announces that he will simply take a vacation; if he decides not to go he will employ an attorney to investigate the case and look after his interests.

He was loath to talk about his intentions when in town yesterday. "There is one thing I will do if I land the coin," said McLaughlin; "I will surely own a good ball team next season. I'll give Dunellen fans the best article of baseball they ever saw."

"You'll get married, too, of cause?" inquired his inquisitor.

"Not on your tintype," replied McLaughlin. I've been a bachelor for forty years and I guess I can go forty years more without a wife."

Second Story Men at Work.

The season for the operations of "second story" men has arrived and reports are coming in from the suburban towns of their successful work among the houses at the time of the evening meal. Chief of Police Kiely believes it would be well for people to guard their houses at this time of the evening more carefully than usual. It may save property.

Mrs. Charles L. Sykes, of "Red Cottage," Fanwood, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Abi Caroline Sykes, to Francis Asbury Waterhouse, of Newtonville, Massachusetts.

CHINA MISSIONS WORTHY

Dr. Mary Carleton and Miss Jennie Hughes Tell Experiences.

EVANGELICAL WORK GOOD.

Medical Missionaries Co-operate With Bible Teachers and Make Progress.

At the afternoon session of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Elizabeth district, in the Monroe Avenue M. E. church yesterday, two missionaries from China, Dr. Mary Carleton and Miss Jennie Hughes, formerly of Trenton, spoke. Dr. Carleton passed the last 22 years among the Chinese as a medical missionary and her tales of conditions now as compared with former years show a wonderful change in the attitude of the Mongolians toward the Western races.

Dr. Carleton amused her audience for a few minutes in telling them what had been her experience in counteracting the effects of the superstitious doctrine of so called medicine men or priests of China. But, she said, there is so much to be learned from the Chinese that we Americans apparently are away behind the times in our notions of what may be done in the way of healing, provided, of course, we believe in our doctor.

No science of medicine is practised by the Chinese, what they do have is a superabundant superstition. The priests are called just as often as the doctor, and ninety-five times in a hundred the priest's advice is taken in preference to that of the medical man or woman. Their treatment consists of attempts to keep away the "evil spirits," which are constantly surrounding the sick person rather than the administration of the proper medicine. Of this latter few if any have any proper knowledge.

Surgery is a science which stands by itself and the native surgeon thinks his work well done when he has cured the stalk of a stem while the head is still emberred in the flesh of the patient. Here is where Western methods get the practitioner into trouble. A woman who had attempted suicide by cutting her throat, was brought to Dr. Carleton with the positive instructions that the throat should be sewed up. Dr. Carleton thought that it would not do to sew the injury and said it would be necessary to insert a silver tube and sew the lacerated ligaments around the tube. The family or the woman would not stand for that because "silver tubes are not fashionable" in China. When she told the family that the method suggested for saving the woman's life was the only feasible one, the male members of the family decided that they would pursue their own methods and called in a cobbler to do the stitching. This completed the work which the unfortunate woman had started out to do and she choked to death immediately after the operation.

Many other instances of the cruel practises of the Chinese father and brother were graphically described including the methods in vogue of scaring away the evil spirits. The progress which has been accomplished in this immense country is that done by the medical missionary. They combine the Gospel with their labors of restoring the sick and injured and China is beginning to have a respect for the life and work of missionaries than in any other. The effects of the work can best be seen in the hospitals established by all denominations and to this alone may be attributed the success of work among the idol worshippers.

Relating her experience with a native doctor, Dr. Carleton was asked one day what crime she had committed that she should be banished from her native land. Of course, the answer can only be conjectured as it was not vouchsafed by the lecturer. The Chinese belief would indicate that she must have been dreadfully bad to have had to go to China to expiate her sin. Other things of interest held the attention of the 200 delegates until a late hour yesterday afternoon. Miss Jennie Hughes, a young missionary, who went to China nearly five years ago, took up the story where Dr. Carleton left off and told of the struggles in the ministrations to the spiritual welfare of the country to which she is devoting her life. According to her tale the mission to the Chinese a success regardless of the criticisms constantly being hurled at the missionaries and their supporters.

Miss Jennie Hughes, who is an evangelistic missionary supported in part by the women of the Elizabeth district, said she did not believe that the medical missionary was one bit more happy in her work than the evangelistic missionary. Their work is carried on in most intimate co-

It was the regular meeting of the chapter and Mrs. MacClymont invited the members to meet at her home. Mrs. M. C. Thomas, regent of the chapter, presided at the business session.

There were about thirty members present to enjoy the hospitality of Mrs. MacClymont. The home was attractively decorated with American flags, and during the serving of refreshments, patriotic music was rendered to the enjoyment of the guests.

Middlebrook Chapter is one of the strongest in the State. Ten meetings are held every year and the officers are unusually active in preparing a fine program for each meeting. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. E. Westervelt on Putnam avenue.

CAN'T CHANGE RATABLES

Court of Errors Confirms Decision in Kenilworth Borough Case.

THE DELAY WAS FATAL.

Should Have Made Objection Promptly to the County Board of Taxes.

The delay on the part of the Borough officials of Kenilworth is held to be the cause of their losing their suit for a readjustment of the ratables in that borough and the decision of the Court of Errors and Appeals handed down yesterday confirms the opinion of Judge Minturn of the Supreme Court and means that the borough board had no case after letting the matter go so long that no possible error could have occurred when the assessments were confirmed by them and allowed to stand without protest.

Codington & Swackhamer, of this city, were counsel for the Union County Board of Taxation and the matter was thrashed out thoroughly in the lower courts before being taken to the Supreme Court. The notable feature of the case is that Governor J. Franklin Fort was the counsel for the borough of Kenilworth and was worsted in the arguments, both by brief or orally, by the counsel for the county.

Kenilworth, through its counsel, Governor Fort, asked to have eliminated from its total taxable valuations $322,754. The decision of the court was that many taxpayers were aggrieved by the valuation of their property and prayed for the reductions which have been denied by the courts. The borough board jumped over the head of the county board and took up the matter with the State board, clearly a wrong way in the court says. Justice Swayze in rendering his decision said that the borough failed to object to the apportionment of taxes by the county board of taxation before that board, and failed to do other municipalities in the county and the orderly administration of the tax laws, requires that a municipality should object promptly if it questions the return of ratables. This Kenilworth failed to do. Messrs. Codington & Swackhamer were busy receiving congratulations on their success this morning.

REV. DR. C. E. HERRING PICTURES PALESTINE

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Baptist church, who, with Mrs. Herring, took an extended trip abroad last summer, gave the first of a series of three illustrated lectures on "Palestine" at the church last night. There was a large audience present and nothing but words of praise were heard concerning the delightful talk and the beautiful views shown by Dr. Herring.

The doctor has the happy faculty of describing his travels in an entertaining manner and held the close attention of all for an hour and a quarter.

Dr. Herring displayed in all last night sixty-five fine views, the majority of which were reproductions of pictures taken by himself abroad. They gave all an excellent idea of the country traveled. The speaker started at Jaffa and then spent the greater part of the evening going through Jerusalem, describing scenes and incidents in and around the city; passing through the "Sorrowful Way," and visiting the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. He had just commenced his description of the walls around the city, when he decided to stop, leaving a small portion of Jerusalem yet to be shown.

In all Dr. Herring has about 200 views and the remaining ones will be divided into two lectures. Many of the best ones are yet to be shown. The silver offering received last night was for the benefit of the Men's Club to cover the expense of publishing the weekly church bulletin.

WILLIAMS GREAT STUDENT

Local Church Workers Greatly Impressed with Personality of Y.M.C.A. Evangelist.

SHOP MEETING TOMORROW.

Local Campaign Will be Concluded With Rally for Schoolboys on Saturday Morning.

Those who have heard Bradford Williams, the Y. M. C. A. evangelist, deliver his recitals and addresses during his campaign in this city have been impressed with the remarkable personality of the man. (Without doubt he is one of the greatest student in the religious world.

That he has an extraordinary and powerful memory is disclosed in his style of reciting long chains of scriptural passages, and that he is a thorough student, is shown in the mammoth task he is now engaged; that of memorizing forty-two recitals for his 30 sessions, which will include the entire book of Acts and several of St. Paul's epistles. A unique feature of Mr. Williams' methods in memorizing the scriptures is that he practically does all of his studying out of doors, and does very little reading indoors.

Mr. Williams makes his appearance at Scotch Plains today. In the First Baptist church this afternoon he gave a recital while he will deliver an address at the same place tonight. Tomorrow afternoon he will give a recital at the local Y. M. C. A. and in the evening in the association's hall he will deliver an address, his theme being "The Undiscovered Country."

Shop noonday meetings will be inaugurated tomorrow at noon when Mr. Williams will address the employes of the Quincy, Manchester and Sargent plant, corner Front street and Clinton avenue. On Friday he will conduct a meeting at the Potter Printing Press Works.

Mr. Williams will conclude his local campaign on Saturday morning at the Y. M. C. A., when he will address a boys' rally, his subject being "The Magicians of the Bible." Secretary Parks is directing his efforts toward making this one of the most important of meetings and invitations have been extended to all schoolboys, twelve years and older, to be present at the service.

Following his Plainfield engagements Mr. Williams will journey to Michigan and later go to Pittsburg.

ANNUAL RECEPTION FOR PASTOR AND WIFE

The annual reception of the Seventh-Day Baptist church and congregation was held at the home of the pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw, on Central avenue, when he and Mrs. Shaw received a large number of members and friends of the church. The affair was strictly an informal one, it being more in the nature of a quiet "at home."

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw received guests alone in the parlor. Mrs. G. G. Negley was in charge of the dining room, and she was assisted in serving by Mrs. Sarah Wardner, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard and Mrs. Clarence Spicer.

The whole evening was given up to sociability and the exchange of good wishes, while the pastor and his wife were assured of the continued hearty support of their people in the good work they are doing here.

SHAKESPEAREAN SCHOLAR TO LECTURE AT COLLEGE.

Dr. William Callan, of New York, an eminent scholar and teacher, will give the first of a series of Shakespearean lectures at Mt. St. Mary's College tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, in the college auditorium. The Plainfield Auto-Bus Company will have a bus at the North avenue station from 3 to 3:15 to convey the invited guests to the college.

Among the subjects of the lectures to be given are "Macbeth," "Hamlet," "Julius Cesar," "Henry V.," "The Idols of the King" and "The Silas Marner." It is hoped in this way to get the Plainfield people interested in a course of studies on this and similar topics.

Half-Year Meeting of Friends.

The half-yearly meeting of the Religious Society of Friends will be held tomorrow and Friday at the meeting-house on Watchung avenue. The religious meeting will be held at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. The afternoon session will be under the care of the philanthropic committee. In the evening at 8 o'clock, Henry W. Wilbur, of Philadelphia, will give lantern views of his trip to England.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION ON SUB-SURFACE WATER

In the decision handed down by the Court of Errors and Appeals at Trenton on Monday, it is made plain that the diversion of sub-surface waters for foreign consumption will eventually become illegal. The suit brought by Frank W. Meeker to restrain the Hudson County Water Company from using the sub-surface water on his farm to supply a water system of Staten Island makes it likely that some legislation will be necessary in the near future to prevent the future depredations of that particular water company.

Governor John Franklin Fort in discussing the matter yesterday said that he believed that the Meeker suit clearly established the doctrine in this State of reasonable use in connection with sub-surface water and should prevent their diversion. Governor Fort declared that he was not sure that special legislation was necessary and it was because of his awaking the decision in the Meeker suit that a special session of the Legislature was not called for November 9. Governor Fort and Attorney-General Edmund Wilson, held a conference on the water question late yesterday afternoon.

CHARLES N. CRITTENDON DEAD AT THE AGE OF 76

Charles N. Crittenden, the well known New York philanthropist, died in San Francisco yesterday. Mr. Crittenton was more specially known through the establishment of the various Florence Crittenton missions throughout the country. The missions were established as a monument to Mr. Crittenton's daughter Florence, who died at the age of five and who was her father's favorite child. The rescue mission as a monument to her memory and it is safe to say no such monument was ever erected in the name of another child.

Mr. Crittenton established missions in all the large cities of the world even in Japan, China and Mexico the monuments to this child are to be found. It was the dying request of little Florence that something be done for the children and the mothers of the slums and Mr. Crittenton filled his time to the uplifting of the fallen from the time of his daughter's death in 1882 until he himself was taken. He was seventy-six years old. He was born in Henderson, N. Y., February 20, 1833, and early in his life went to New York, where he soon gained recognition as a business man. His store at 115 Fulton street was one of the most widely known drug stores in this country.

MISS WILSON TO WED LESLEY WILLIAM HALLOCK.

At a luncheon given today by Mrs. Charles L. Wilson, of Park Lane, announcement was made of the engagement of her daughter, Marjorie Irene, to Lesley William Hallock, son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Hallock, of Willow avenue, the borough.

Miss Wilson was formerly of Brooklyn, having resided in Plainfield but a year. The guests at the luncheon included Miss Frances Van Deventer, Miss Bertha Letcher, Miss Caroline S. Martin, Miss Angie R. Budiong, Miss Helen W. Stevens, of this city, and Miss Ida Raymond and Miss Marguerite Gale, of Brooklyn.

Is Mentally Unbalanced.

Charles Jefferson, colored, about thirty years old was brought before City Judge Runyon this morning on complaint of some of his neighbors, who believe Jefferson is not mentally right. Judge Runyon engaged the man in conversation and concluded to hold him for an examination as to his sanity. Jefferson appears to think his honesty is the cause of the action o. his friends and tells incoherent stories of his employment and attempts to satisfy his boarding mistress. He will be examined by City Physician Lufburrow today.

Two Bicycles Await Owners.

The borough appears to be a dumping ground for stolen wheels. Last night Chief Weiss picked one up in the middle of Craig place, while John Hummel, of Linden avenue and Duer streets, found a boy's wheel in his front yard. Both wheels were evidently stolen and thrown away by the thieves.

Daley Fined Five Dollars.

JACKSON JURY DISAGREE

After Being Out 20 Hours, They are Discharged by the Court.

A NEW TRIAL FOR NEGRO.

Colored Man Indicted for Assaulting Policeman Nolan Will Face Jury Again.

The jury in the assault and battery case of William Jackson, colored, which went out at 12 o'clock yesterday, returned to court at 10 o'clock this morning. Being unable to agree, the court discharged the jurymen, which means that there will be a new trial.

Shortly after the jury went out yesterday it was reported that it stood 9 to 3 for conviction and when the last ballot was taken it was 7 to 5 in favor of the defendant. It was also reported that the first ballot stood 11 to 1 for conviction.

William G. DeMeza represented Jackson, and in his closing speech to the court yesterday in behalf of the negro, he made an especially strong plea. This was based on the apparently good character of his client as shown by the many witnesses. It was evident that his earnest words had great weight with the jury.

Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., handled the case for the State in a masterly way, leaving no stone unturned in his efforts to secure conviction of the man charged with a brutal assault on Patrolman Tobias Nolen. His address to the jury was particularly effective.

Jackson had a mixup with Patrolman Nolen in July last, when it is said he not only used vile and abusive language to the officer, but took his club away from him and beat him over the head and then hit him on the thumb. The assault aroused unusual interest, because of the fact that many wealthy residents of North Plainfield, by whom Jackson had been employed, voluntarily offered testimony in his behalf. They told of his good character and said that he had always been a steady reliable workman.

LUMBERJACKS' SKY PILOT

Rev. Frank Higgins Tells of Evangelistic Work in the Lumber Camps.

'IN THE GREAT NORTHWEST.

All Sorts of Hardships and Trials of a Missionary to the Lumbermen in Minnesota.

Rev. Frank Higgins, who carries the title, "sky pilot to the lumberjacks," in connection for his religious labors among lumber camps of the Northwest, gave a vivid account of his work before an interested audience at the Crescent Avenue church Wednesday. Those who are familiar with conditions in the lumber camps expected to behold a giant in Higgins. In this the audience was not mistaken, as the lumber camp evangelist is a round stocky man.

Mr. Higgins in his remarks refrained from making direct plea for financial aid to carry on his work but the audience was thrilled to such a degree with his narrative and earnestness that a voluntary collection of bills of almost every denomination were forced on him. This display of liberality brought forth a profuse expression of thanks from the speaker.

In relating incidents connected with his work of soul saving among the lumbermen the speaker told some stirring tales, which showed that it is necessary for preachers to mix in with truth with facts/ in order to get his subjects to accept he gospel. In reality Mr. Higgins contended that it is really essential for a successful preacher to be a boxer in that country.

A Daily Press reporter in a talk with the lumberjack discovered him to be a clean cut athlete, imbued with a fearless nature, and thoroughly earnest in his work. Unrolling a map of the United States, he gave a graphic account of his work and experiences.

"This is my country"—he pointed to Minnesota—"west of Duluth for 200 miles and south of the line for 200 miles. In that square nothing but pines and loggers, and loggers and pines.

"It's a great pioneer's industry. Minnesota, you know, produces 2,000,000 feet of lumber a year, most of it right in this 200 miles square. There are 30,000 men in those woods, many of them American farmer boys, all single, fine, strong fellows.

"It was to, in part, pay the debt, it seemed to me, society owed to them that I jumped into this work.

"At first I had some difficulty in making the boys take me right. The saloons have gone wherever the lumberjack goes and the proprietors curse out the missionary to the men the moment they hear of him.

"I've packed my grips blocks by dog sleds in mid-winter and was trying to hold a prayer and song service in, I think, the Clayton Lumber Company's camp not far from the Canada line.

"Now, the lumberjack is a decent, courteous boy when he's sober. But there was a French-Canadian named Joe who, whenever I started to talk, just out of liquor and mischievous started in to grind an axe. My congregation was going into guffaws. I just had to go down and remonstrate with him.

"Before I knew it we were fighting all over the floor. Well, I beat him. And there were five men joined the church next Sunday, and I never had any more trouble in any of that surrounding country after that.

"I found the work of a missionary not at all simple. The task I set myself was to become not merely the clergyman, but the friend, doctor, beseecher—everything I could be to the lumberjack.

"It was by doing anything like that I could that I got known as a man who could take care of myself and of my friends, the men. I took medicated gauze and splints and carbolic acid with me and treated their wounds and sores; I got them out of jail; I went to the front for them and continually swung through the camps, sometimes against the opposition of the owners, preaching, holding it up to the men to live clean men's lives.

"And so I got to be known as the lumberman's sky pilot, the preacher that never turned a lumberjack down. My work began to flourish."

"Some of my assistants will seem rather unusual fellows to you in the East. Just as, I suppose, my methods were and had to be. The first thing a preacher or any one else must find in the north woods is a man of his hands. They like a man.

"John Sornberger was a man. He was hired more for his fighting ability than anything else. He had a ring roped off at the end of the bar, and when a "jack" came to town at the end of the week, John would begin to josh them, and they would trot out the bully of the camp, and make their bets, and he John would have it out in the ring. John—he didn't weigh more than 160 pounds —never got licked.

"Well, I converted him. picked him up when he was down and out, pulled him over the delirium tremens and set him on his feet. He's now the finest missionary in the whole North Woods."

MISS BESSIE BOLMER IS NOW MRS. VAN NEST

Miss Bessie V. Bolmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bolmer, of Basking Ridge, and Joseph T. Van-Nest, of Martinsville, were married at the home of the bride's parents at 4:30 Wednesday night. Rev. William Nesbit, pastor of the Methodist church at Basking Ridge, performed the ceremony in the presence of about 125 guests from all parts of Somerset county, Plainfield and Newark.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Florence Bolmer, as bridesmaid, and Frances Coddington, a cousin, as flower girl. The best man was William Zimmerman, of Martinsville, and the ushers were John D. Roberts, of this city, and Lefferd C. Waldrop, of Martinsville.

The bride wore a white French embroidered robe, with tulle veil, caught up with orange blossoms, and she carried a large bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaid's also wore a rench embroidered robe and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The flower girl was dressed in white and carried flowers.

The home was attractively decorated for the occasion in green, with a profusion of white chrysanthemums. The arrangement in the parlor and dining room was particularly effective and greatly admired by the guests.

As the bridal party descended the stairway entering the parlor, the wedding march was played by Miss Edith Bolmer, sister of the bride. After the ceremony the couple was showered with congratulations and a bountiful supper was served. During the reception the occasion was enlivened with music by the Basking Ridge Fife and Drum Corps, which gave the couple a serenade. While there were about 125 guests in the house, it is estimated that there were fully 300 people outside joining in the celebration.

The bride, who was a teacher in the Sussex Avenue Public School, Newark, received a large collection of gifts, including cut-glass, silver, china, furniture, linen, pictures and rugs; also from the principal and fellow-teachers in the Newark school she received a large and valuable clock.

After the reception the couple left on a wedding trip to Washington. Upon their return they will reside at Martinsville, where the groom has furnished a home for their occupancy.

STIRLING POSTOFFICE LOOTED BY BURGLARS

Burglars visted Stirling Wednesday broke into the postoffice and secured booty amounting to about $100 in cash and stamps. The intruders during the night turned over a box, the noise of which awakened Mrs. Clara Mondich, the postmistress.

When the burglars heard Mrs. Mondich coming down stairs, they stopped operations and rode off in a carriage. They also took with them a pocketbook, belonging to Mrs. Mondich's daughter which contained a commutation ticket and some loose change.

The robbery was committed shortly before 2 o'clock. Previous to visiting the postoffice eatrance was gained to the blacksmith shop of Joseph Germershauser. There they secured the tools with which they pried the door of the postoffice open. The men made their escape and the Stirling authorities up to noon had no clue to their identity.

Cold Slaw.

This is a creole dish and very delicious. Cut very fine a quarter of a head of firm white cabbage. Put it into a covered dish, pour over it one-half cupful of vinegar, one-half tablespoonful of salt and toss it about lightly with a fork. Into a skillet pour one-half scant cupful of milk, a teaspoonful of butter and one-quarter cupful of sugar. Beat one egg light. Let the milk come to a boil, add sugar and butter, allow it to cook until a custard is formed, then pour over the sliced cabbage. Allow it to become very cold before using. As vinegars differ, do not use so much if very strong.

Time to Be Weaned.

"What age?"

"Forty-five."

"Then it's time you were weaned. Thirty days without the bottle."—Life.

Miss Adele von Ohl, Plainfield's horse queen and daring bareback rider returned home Wednesday from a six months tour with Buffalo Bill's Wild West show the bride of D. L. Parker, Jr., of Sheridan, Wyoming, who is also a member of the show. Miss von Ohl was married at Kankakee, Illinois, on July 29, but the event was kept a secret from her friends until her return.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker will probably remain in Plainfield for a couple of months at the home of the latter's mother. During her absence she traveled through all parts of the far and Middle West. It is probable that next season Mr. and Mrs. Parker will star in a special act which will be arranged by Ray Thompson.

MANX CATS RARE.

Believed That They Are Altogether Extinct Now.

More than fifty years ago the real Manx cat was becoming very rare in the Isle of Man, owing to interbreeding with common cats from the mainland. The pure breed was easily distinguished by the great length of its hind legs, because, although the natives used to cut out the tails the hybrid kittens soon after birth, in order to sell them as "Manx cats," they could not avoid totally eliminating the long hind limbs. These gave to the real Manx cat more the appearance of a hare than a rabbit, especially when sitting upright; and its sand-colored fur increased the likeness, insomuch that my correspondent tells me that, going out shooting one morning soon after he had joined his regiment in the island, was about to fire at what he thought to be a hare sitting on its hind legs, when a sentry at the gate yelled out, "That's our cat, sir!"

Subsequently he procured a real Manx cat and brought it to England with him, but it soon died, as I believe almost always happened with the original Manx cats when they were brought from the island. Whether any pure Manx cats exist at the present day I do not know, but I should say not, from the fact that the animal figured as a "Manx" in "Living Animals of the World" is a tabby-marked creature with hind legs of the ordinary length. A tailless cat is not, however, necessarily a Manx. It is worth noting that 100 years ago the Manx cat was known in England as the "Cornish cat," and it was in Devonshire that its enthusiastic cat fancier some years ago found a previously unknown colony of "bunny cats," which are exactly like the Abyssinian cats of our cat shops and have fur closely resembling that of the Manx cat itself. It is not impossible, perhaps, that in some isolated corner of Cornwall or Devonshire the pure-bred Cornish or Manx cat may still exist.—County Queries and Notes.

Delightful Musicale.

Brightside Circle, King's Daughters, conducted an enjoyable musicale at the home of Robert W. Barnes, on Mountain avenue, Thursday night. A delightful program was rendered which included orchestral selections by Messrs Coucher, Wheeler, Conger and Dr. Berg; vocal selections, by Miss Belle Carkhuff, who was accompanied by Miss Frances Carkhuff; piano solo by James Vail; recitations by Miss Alice Hooper and violin solos by Mr. Edward Spier.

"Have you got your house insured, mum?" asked an insurance agent at Guildford last Saturday, insinuatingly.

"No," replied the lady, indifferently.

"Then what if it caught fire?"

"Oh, well, we just trust in Providence."

"But that's an awful risk," said the agent. "You had better trust to the Bonus Fire Insurance Company, which I represent, mum."—Tit-Bits.

HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATED

Wilson Military Academy Trounces Local Eleven at Finderne.

THE SCORE WAS 23 TO 5.

Fast Game Wednesday Replete with Many Spectacular Plays—The Contest in Detail.

In a fast game between the High School football team and Wilson Military Academy at Finderne Wednesday, the high school lost by a score of 23 to 5. Wilson Academy played better than they have ever done before and outclassed Plainfield all along. They made touchdown after touchdown and the high school was utterly at loss how to stop them. Higgins played the star game for the Academy, making every touchdown but one. Doane made the touchdown for P. H. S. on a forward pass.

The game started with P. H. S. kicking off. The Academy caught the ball on the 25-yard line and the man was downed within 15 yards of the goal. With one more centre rush Higgins rushed the ball over the line. No goal was kicked.

The Academy next kicked off and Plainfield rushed the ball to the 30-yard line. They then lost the ball on a fumble and in a very few minutes the Academy was working the ball down the line for a touchdown. Higgins then made another touchdown and kicked the goal.

The Academy kicked off again and the high school was soon held for downs. Higgins then tried a line plunge and they were penalized fifteen yards. High school next regained the ball on a fumble and Overton made a gain of six yards through tackle. Ricketts also made a pretty end run of fifteen yards, but lost the ball on a fumble. The Academy then made gain after gain, during which time Overton and Thompson made some pretty tackles. Higgins next made a touchdown and kicked the goal.

P. H. S. next kicked o and the ball was fumbled back and forth until time was called. The score then stood 17 to 0.

In the second half Wilson kicked off again and Ricketts rushed the ball to the 30-yard line. The ball was then lost on a fumble and Higgins made a gain of 15 yards. He then kept it up for five minutes and made a touchdown between the goal posts. He kicked the goal.

Finderne kicked off again and the ball went down on the 15-yard line. The high school then lost the ball on a fumble and Finderne rushed it down the line. They would have made a touchdown but fumbled the ball on the goal line. The high school then got busy and by a series of trick plays and forward passes rushed the ball down the field to the 15-yard line. A forward pass was then made to Doane, who made a touchdown just as time was called. No goal was kicked. The lineup:

OPERA SINGER ENGAGED TO A GERMAN PRINCE

Plainfielders are interested in the reported engagement, of Miss Josephine Schafer, an opera queen who formerly resided with her parents on Liberty street. At the present time she is appearing in Berlin and her prospective husband is said to be Prince Gustav, of Lippe, Germany. The prince, it is said, is one of the prominent figures in the German Empire, and is a former member of the Reichstag. He is credited with being wealthy, and is an advisor to Kaiser Wilhelm on war department matters. Prince Gustav resides on a beautiful country place at Detmoid, Lippe.

Miss Schafer's success in the operatic world has been marked by rapid strides. Fifteen years ago while a resident of this city, she appeared at local concerts and entertainments, and the rich quality of her voice attracted the attention of musical critics.

Her first step in the operatic world was made when she sought an introduction to Mme. Nordica, who was appearing at the time in New York. The prima donna took an interest in Miss Schafer and assisted her in her efforts to secure a musical education. Later Miss Schaefer prepared herself for the stage before noted instructors of France, Germany and Italy.

With her education completed Miss Schaefer returned to America and affiliated herself with the Metropolitan Opera Company. For the past three seasons she has been in Berlin, appearing in Italian opera. She has a rich soprano voice of great range. At the beginning of the present German season Miss Schaefer is reported to have signed a contract calling for $25,000.

SOMERSET COUNCIL NO. 104, HAS SOCIAL AND DANCE

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., entertained their friends at a box social and dance Friday night in Jr. O. U. A. M. hall. There was a fine company present, many members of other councils with their wives and sweethearts and one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season in fraternal circles was the result.

P. H. Latourette opened the entertainment with a characteristic speech in which he welcomed the guests and told of the object of the association on this particular occasion. He told of the illness of Brother Vail of Dunellen and of the efforts of Somerset Council to help him. He announced that the packages of good things brought by the members and their friends would be auctioned and the proceeds devoted to relieving the pressing necessities of Mr. Vail. A parlor organ was auctioned also and the amount realized was highly gratifying to the members.

A good vaudeville program was much enjoyed and after the supper a dance finished up the evening's enjoyment. It was one of the most homelike affairs ever held in Jr. O. U. A. M. hall and shows how Somerset Council is growing in popularity and membership.

Several new members will be added to Somerset Council at its next regular meeting.

NEARLY KILLED GUTTRIDGE

Schoolboy the Victim of Wild West Sport; Nearly Choked to Death.

NECK WAS BADLY LACERATED.

Two Colored Boys and a White Lad From Bryant School Put on Probation for the Offense.

Sport which is not sport nearly cost Kenneth Guttridge, son of Robert Guttridge, of 1237 South avenue, this city, Wednesday, and in future it is quite likely that the "playing cowboy" will cease to the most attractive game at the Bryant school. Master Kenneth was nearly choked to death with a lasso by three of his companions and they were haled to court this morning to explain how they did the trick without committing actual murder.

Victor Crook, a white boy, and Peter Gillette and Clifford Tilton, both colored boys, were the wild western desperados in the little act in which turned out so seriously for little Kenneth, whose neck was lacerated by a tightly drawn rope thrown and tightened by the above mentioned youths.

Kenneth's parents made a complaint to Judge William Runyon in the city court Thursday and the three would-be cowboys were sent for to explain. Their story of the roping did not differ much from that told by the little victim and Judge Runyon gave them a lecture which will do them a deal of good and at the same time put them on probation for continued good behavior.

In telling the boys what a serious thing they had done Judge Runyon declared that sport of the kind which is liable to jeopardize the lives of those who indulge in it must be stopped and every boy will be better off who confines himself to legitimate play. He also told the boys that they were lucky that Mr. Guttridge had decided not to push the case to the limit as there would be a severe penalty for their act. Young Guttridge bore the marks of the rope on his neck this morning and they show plainly that it was a miracle that the rope was loosened in time to prevent strangulation. Crook, Gillette and Tilton will have to report weekly to Judge Runyon, who will keep tabs on their behaviour in school.

PARISH MEMORIAL FOR THE DEPARTED RECTOR

In memory of the Rev. Cornelius G. Bristol, son-in-law of Dr. H. H. Lowrie, of Park avenue, who was rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, at Hartford, Conn., for eight years, new choir stalls have been erected in the church. This memorial was set in the church and used for the first time on Sunday, October 10, and the work was completed two weeks later. The special service of blessing was held in connection with the regular morning service on October 21, the eve of All Saints' Day, the hymns and the sermon being made appropriate to the occasion.

Mr. Bristol, after a service of eight years as rector of the church, died in 1901. Announcement was made by the rector of the church last winter that it had been decided by the vestry to ask from friends of Mr. Bristol, contributions to a memorial to him to be erected in the church. Dependence was placed on free will offerings entirely from those who knew the late rector. Later on it was voted by the vestry that the memorial take the form of improvements in the chancel.

All the furniture in the chancel is now arranged symmetrically on each side and produces a very beautiful effect. The wood is chestnut finished in light color which is the case throughout the church. The chancel is now more open than before and the altar more prominent in appearance as it ought to be. On the stone pillar back of the pulpit is placed a brass table etched and with this inscription: "The Choir Stalls in this Chancel are Erected to Cornelius Gardner Bristol, Priest, Rector of this Parish 1893-1901. A Faithful Minister of Christ."

Mrs. Bristol, wife of the late rector, who now lives with her father, Dr. H. H. Lowrie, was present at the services on Sunday, October 31.

In view of the fact that American factories could probably comply more promptly with the requirements of Sir Ian for armament factories, it seems that, despite the fact that an official from India would naturally show preference to British manufacturers of armament machinery, American manufacturers, by quoting suitable terms and seeking the business immediately, should be able to enter into the competition with considerable chance of success.—Consular Reports.

OPPOSE SEWERAGE PLANT

North Plainfield's Township Committee Hears of Objections.

A PETITION IS PRESENTED.

Mayor Samuel Townsend Makes Plea for the Necessary Permit From Township Authorities.

That North Plainfield will face some strong opposition in its effort to establish a sewage disposal plant in North Plainfield township was manifested Thursday afternoon at the meeting of the North Plainfield township committee at Watchung. The borough was represented by Mayor Townsend and Clerk Frederick J. Martin, while Mayor elect William A. Sanford and Dr. Pennock were on hand to look out for the interests of Dunellen.

The petition of the borough as adopted by the Council in the resolution passed last Friday night was read to the committeemen by Clerk Martin, and on motion of Committeeman Theodore Leuersen the document was ordered filed. It is not likely that the township committee will take any definite action in the matter until a public meeting is held for the purpose of getting the sentiment of the taxpayers on the matter.

Following the presentation of the petition by Clerk Martin Mayor Townsend was given the privilege of the floor by the borough's chief executive made a brief speech to the committee, in which he asked for a prompt decision on the subject.

"We are close neighbors," said the mayor, "the township and borough have always had close and pleasant relations, and I ask you to consider this matter as a friend and neighbor. The borough does not seek to injure you, but we want to do something that will be a big benefit to you in the future. Look at the matter calmly and dispassionately and take the matter up for the best interests of the community at large. The officials of the borough will appreciate a prompt answer."

After Mr. Townsend's address, George Mobus, the township clerk, presented a remonstrance from Carrick and Wortendyke, of Jersey City, attorneys for Mrs. Helen Brown, who is the owner of the old Rice estate, in close proximity to the Cramer and Trust farms, which are two of the properties named in the borough's petition. Mrs. Brown, whose property is valued at $40,000, through her attorneys stated that she was prepared to offer legal objection if an attempt is made to establish the plant near her property.

Senator M. Smith, also addressed the committee, in behalf of the property owners of the Greenbrook section of the township. Mr. Smith, who was formerly a professor in the Brooklyn Institute of Technology, declared that the taxpayers of this district would oppose any move to establish the plant on the Cramer and Trust farms, but added that he believed if satisfactory damages were paid by the borough, there would be little objection to the location of the plant on the Zovoienck farm, which is the extreme western site, and which adjoins Bridgewater township.

Professor Smith, it was learned, represented about $200,000 worth of property at the meeting. In addition to speaking for himself and Mrs. Brown, he also remonstrated for Stephen Palmer, a New York banker, who is a large property holder in that section of the township, Mrs. Harris, Dr. Bunker, of Brooklyn, and Dr. Tuttle, a member of the medical examining board of the Metropolitan Insurance Company. Edward F. Feickert, of the Plainfield Trust Company, is another taxpayer of that district. Robert Fleischmann, of the former chewing gum plant, and the owners of the Conover farm which skirt Greenbrook, it is understood, will also oppose the scheme.

There was little objection forthcoming on the Zovoleseck site, but it was rumored at the meeting, that property owners of the Beechwood Height's section of Bound Brook are preparing a remonstrance. It was also stated that the Bound Brook people have the support of President Herbert, of the local board of Health, who is a resident of the Beechwood Heights district.

Dunellen went on record, through Mayor-elect William A. Sandford, as against the Trust and Cramer farms, "Dunellen is decidedly opposed to the plant being located on either the Cramer or Trust farms, the residents of that borough preferring the most remote site.

"Dunellen has been patient and long suffering," continued Mr. Sanford. "We have endured one plant on our eastern border (referring to the Plainfield beds), and we do not want another one at our back door. Dunellen will vigorously object to all except the remotest site."

Mr. Sanford closed by declaring that Dunellen wanted sewerage, and he implored the township committee to consider Dunellen's wants as well as the interests of the township and North Plainfield.

It was the intention of Mayor Townsend to place the matter before the township board of health, but this part of the program was not carried out, owing to the failure of the clerk to arrive until late.

SOCCER TEAM PLANS TO CELEBRATE DAY

As the question is of vital importance to the taxpayers in the western end of the township it is probable that a public meeting will be held at Greenbrook some time next week in order to give the interested parties an opportunity to voice their sentiments on the question.

Thanksgiving Day will be observed by the members of the Plainfield Association football club. At a meeting of the club on Thursday it was decided to have a dinner on that occasion in celebrating the day in appropriate fashion.

Another coming social event of interest in the club is the annual dance and entertainment which will be held on Friday, December 17, in a hall to be decided on later. The committee in charge is President Tom Chamb[illegible]n, George Gray, Thomas Cro[illegible] William Spaulding, James Lamic[illegible] Andrew Crowley and William Stroud.

There was a total of forty members at the session and three were added to the enrollment. The billiard and pin[illegible] committees reported that the tournaments are progressing satisfactorily.

ARTISTS ARE HEARD AT PRIVATE MUSICAL

The private musicale given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Lipsett, 32 Mountain avenue, Thursday, was a great success from a musical point of view, although financially it was not all that was expected. The home was comfortably filled with lovers of music and it was the general opinion that the program was all too short.

The affair was arranged by Clifford A. Braider, organist of the Presbyterian church; Miss M. Florence Nicholls, of this city, was the pianist, and Miss Jessie Utter was the accompanist. Miss Edith Rubel, of New York, was the soloist, and Miss Anne Browne, also of New York, was the soprano. All the artists fulfilled the highest expectations of the guests. The work of Miss Rubel and Miss Browne being of a high character. They were obliged to respond to several encores. Miss also was Miss Nicholls, whose work as a pianist is well known here.

The musicale was given to raise a fund for the purpose of a piano for a struggling Methodist church at Steedsville, Tompkins county, N. Y., but unfortunately the patronage was not large enough to result in any profit. Mrs. Lipsett is planning to give another musicale at her New York home, when she hopes that the desired amount will be realized.

NORTH PLAINFIELD TWP. MAY LICENSE CANINES

North Plainfield's township committeemen are trying to devise ways and means for the adoption of an effective dog law. At a meeting of the committee Thursday the dog question was discussed at length. The present ordinance provides that owners of dogs pay an annual tax of one dollar per canine, but from all that was said on board at the monthly conclave of the township solons, the ordinance is ineffective, chiefly because no efforts have been made to enforce the law. Now the committee has in view the adoption of an ordinance similar in constructions to the Plainfield ordinance requiring owners to pay a two dollar license.

The speeding of automobiles through the township was also discussed. According to the views of the members the speed law is being violated every day. To enforce the law on this point it was suggested that the committee authorize the appointment of special constables to act as pickets along the highways, for the purpose of timing the machines as they travel over the township roads.

Widows.

Widows make the most contented wives. They know what not to expect.

A widow and her weeds are soon parted.

A widow is never more dangerous than when she tells a youth that she has never really happy in her married life.

Behold the difference: For consolation the widow has her weeds, the widower his weed.

Never tell a widow that you are not worthy of her. She knows better.

Why isn't a grass widow green?—Smart Set.

Vegetable Soup.

A clear beef stock is best with the vegetable flavored soup. Tomatoes are important and carrots, turnips, leek, celery, cabbage, lima and string beans, corn and sometimes barley are used in the combination. All the vegetables are neatly cut into cubes and should be added according to the length of time required for cooking of the various kinds.

TRINITY SINGING SCHOOL ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON "BOXER UPRISING"

Crowded Auditorium Greets "Professor" Lewis' Willing and Smiling Pupils.

AN UNIQUE MUSICAL TREAT.

Whiskers With Hay in 'Em and Costumes of a Century Ago Create Fun.

The real charm of the "Old Fashioned Singing School," given Thursday in the Sunday school room of Trinity Reformed church, lay in the sweet singing of the old songs which live forever in the hearts of Americans. "Auld Lang Syne," "Cousin Jedediah" and "Sweet Afton" bring to memory the "days of long ago" as no other melodies can.

An audience numbering nearly 500 listened and applauded the contributions of the chorus of twenty-two voices. The soloists came in for a double share of aprobation. From the Quakeress "Ebenezer Doolittle," with a wisp of straw in his whiskers, all the quaint costumes of a century ago were represented and added a piquancy to the singing that was undeniably good.

"Ichabod" Dolliver perhaps failed to see the glances of the waiting maidens as he passed out the music, but there were those who didn't and the laugh was on Ichabod. Many were puzzled to know what the singing master meant when he told Miss Harmony Joy Ticklenotes to pull out the "Nux Vomica"—stop on the harmonium, but it didn't prevent a scream from the audience.

If the round, "My Dame had a Name" sounded like a funeral dirge, what can we say of "Peter Gray," as sung by the old music master? Only those who were present can answer this. "I Wouldn't Would You," sung by Miss Roberts, was perhaps one of the best solos of the evening. Miss Roberts has a charming voice, sweet and pleasing and she added the touch of naive originality that is above the average.

Another number, a quartet who couldn't sing "A" properly, received a well deserved encore. A lesson, "When the Corn is Waving, Annie Dear," by E. D. Young, of the church quartet, was nicely sung as was a duet between Sister Ruth and Ebenezer Proudfoot Delling. The entertainment ended with the old round, "Come, Let Us Join Merry Glee" and left the genius of the evening standing alone oblivious of the fact that his pupils had departed.

Miss Harmony's objections to the soap box piano stool; the excruciatingly funny antics of Pompanus, Apollitus and the abundance of good nature displayed by the much tried singing master were features not to be overlooked.

Mr. Lewis deserves credit for having given an entertainment of a pleasing kind. It was well worth attending if only for its reminiscent value, and must have netted a neat sum for the missionary workers. The ice cream booth was crowded and all the refreshments were sold.

Following were the pupils:

Abijah Bumpers, Fred Cutter; Consider Ruth Fisher, Edna Dilts; Abigail Prue, Mrs. E. Young; Melelusedek Tubbs, Mr. Dorringer; Phoebe Ann Starbright, Edna Cole: Ebenezer Proudfoot Delling, Mr. Bellerjean; Harmony Joy Ticklenotes, Illian Force; Symantha Hopkinson, Miss Randall; Dame Patience Delling, Mrs. Bellerjean; Phineas Pootygood, Mr. E. Young; Soundwell Watts, Mr. Dorringer; Lavina Highnotes, Helen Roberts; Reason Harwich, Cyldo Doane; Comfort Boddkins, Lucie Corriell; Isibel Arise and Tell the Glories of Emanuel Stillwell, Gertrude Schlief; Joshua Barebones, Mr. Van Zandt; Dame Matilda Mobcap, Mrs. Farnham; Temperance Doolittle, Emma Kinkaid; Uncle Bill Smilax, Mr. E. Honeyman; Demetrius Dewsnap, Mr. Ed Shephard; Ichibod Slicks, Chas. Dolliver; Matthew Hale Apostle Paul Caleb Afterall Bowhall, Charles L. Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mauhart, of 327 Manson place, today announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Anna Mauhart to Max Vincenz, of Nyack, N. Y. The ceremony was performed on November 5. The announcement was a pleasant surprise to the friends of the bride in the West End.

WATCHUNG COUNCIL, K.C., DANCE AT TRUELL HALL

Truell Hall was the scene of a highly successful subscription dance, Thursday, the affair being held under the auspices of Watchung Council, No. 552 Knights of Columbus. The Knights are well known for their faculty of entertaining and they fully sustained this reputation last night. There was one of the best affairs yet given by the council.

Palms and ferns were used for decorations in the ballroom, while the Japanese room, attractively decorated, was a favorite retreat for the dancers. About seventy-five couples were present. The music, which was a feature, was furnished by Charles M. Suhr's Imperial Orchestra. The program included two-steps, waltzes, shottishes, the popular Paul Jones and other numbers. Between 11 and 12 o'clock there was an intermission when supper was served.

The committee in charge comprised Arthur A. Cannon, asistant chairman, the chairman being unable to be present; Charles Kling, Daniel Courain, John J. Carty, Frank McEnaney, Michael Daly, O'Keefe and Francis J. Blatz. The affair was so successful that plans are now being considered to hold another dance. There were guests from New York, Newark, Elizabeth, Roselle, Dunellen, Cranford, Somerville, Westfield, Raritan, South Plainfield and this city.

WANTS AUTOISTS TO PAY FOR KILLING CHICKENS

In the opinion of Mayor-elect William A. Sanford, of Dunellen, the owners of chickens should have some means of redress for the wholesale killing of members of the feathered tribe by automobilists. Sanford declared Thursday that he has lost fully a dozen choice chickens during the past summer which were run over and killed in front of his home by automobile speeders.

"Only today," said the Mayor-elect to a Daily Press reporter, "an automobile killed one of my finest hens, and I was going to partake of a chicken dinner against my will."

For the protection of chicken owners Mayor Sanford offers what looks to be a wise solution of the matter. He suggests that a law be passed whereby chicken raisers can recover the market price of all chickens killed by autos from the municipality or State, the money to be forthcoming from the receipts made possible by the collection of automobile tax money.

COLLUCI MUST SUPPORT WIFE AND CHILDREN.

Ernest Colluci, who has been a source of annoyance to the Overseer of the Poor Alexander Hamilton Ayers, because of the squabbles with his wife, who with her three children are likely to become public charges, was put under a bond of $250 Friday morning by City Judge Runyon this morning to furnish seven dollars per week for the support of his family.

Colucci is already under bonds for his appearance at Elizabeth on a charge of improper conduct with Mary Belan, of Dover.

Bremer—Schmidt.

At the home of her uncle, Alfred Seidel, on Park avenue, Thursday, Miss Gertrude Schmidt became the bride of John Bremer, of the borough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace P. E. church, in the presence of a small gathering of friends. Miss Margaret Scholtz, of this city, was maid of honor and Harry Bremer, a brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Following a reception the couple left on a wedding trip.

"All gambling must be stopped within the jurisdiction of this court," thundered the judge.

"Yes, you know it can't be done!" said the district attorney.

"Put up your money," said the judge, reaching for his roll.—Public Ledger.

FIRST M. E. WOMEN HOLD TEA AND SALE

The tea and sale held Thursday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Nelson A. Miller on Washington avenue, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, was a great success, both as to attendance and financial results. The affair was held to raise money for the "renovation fund" with which to improve Vincent chapel and a large amount of money was realized as profit.

Mrs. Nelson A. Miller was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. Charles M. Anderson and Mrs. George H. Whitney. Mrs. J. C. Peck and Mrs. H. A. McGee presided at the tea table and the Misses Bingaman, Edgar and Campbell assisted in serving

Mrs. J. H. Howell was in charge of the fancy articles, Mrs. Nelson T. Hull the cakes and Mrs. Maurice McGrath the candy, and they were assisted by other members of the society. The women have been engaged for sometime in raising a fund with which to completely renovate Vincent chapel and they have been very successful.

SOCIAL EVENING SPENT BY TEMPLE BAPTIST L.A.

An enjoyable evening was spent by the Ladies Aid Society of Temple Baptist church Thursday, the occasion being the annual meeting of the society at which the reports of the year's work were read. These reports showed that the society is in a flourishing condition and the members were warmly congratulated by L. W. Randolph and the pastor, Rev. John W. Musson, for their work.

A musical program in which several members of the society took part was a pleasing feature of the evening's entertainment. After an organ voluntary by W. A. Conger, Scripture reading by Edward Baker, Jr., and prayer by U. B. Crane, the following program was rendered: Piano duet, Mrs. W. Crow and Miss Marie Viebrock; vocal duet, Mrs. Oliver and D. C. Paterson; song, Miss Lottie Conger.

Following the above selections the roll call was read including active and honorary members. The reports of the missionary work and treasurer were read and the treasurer reported a balance of $159 on hand.

Another piano duet by Mrs. Crow and Miss Viebrock; a solo by Miss Conger and addresses by Mr. Randolph and the pastor followed. Mrs. Valentine Utzinger was presented with a new quilt as a mark of appreciation of her work for the society and Mrs. Utzinger responded to the gift in a happy speech. The meeting was one of the most pleasant in the history of the society.

WHITEWASHING COAL.

Not Done for the Sake of Neatness, but to Prevent Thefts.

Persons who have been somewhat astonished by having whitewashed coal delivered to them will be interested to know that the whitewashing is not done to improve the appearance or to increase the burning qualities; the treatment neither improves or harms the fuel.

It is a detective scheme on the part of the railroads to locate and to prevent theft of coal as it is hauled from the mines to the consumer. These depredations amount to thousands of tons annually and the railroads are the sufferers, as it is up to them to deliver as many tons at the destination, often a thousand miles away, as weighed in when the car was turned over for transportation.

Two or three tons may be removed from a carload containing forty tons without attracting attention to its decreased quantities until they are again placed on the scales. To locate the loss, says Popular Mechanics, lime water is sprayed over the carload of coal. In a short time the water has evaporated, leaving a load of white coal. Then removal of any coal leaves a big black spot which is quickly noticed by inspectors and the station agents and the leak found and stopped.

BIG PLANT REOPENS.

Milliken Steel Works to Resume in December.

Although the Milliken steel plant on Staten Island, opposite Elizabeth, will shut down on December 1, it will reopen within a few days and all the old employes will be taken back. The purpose of the shutdown is in line with the reorganization of the plant, a settlement having been reached with the creditors.

It is now reported that the plant will be operated as a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation.

Investigating School Affairs.

The Society of Circles on the Square of New Providence township has appointed a committee of nine to investigate the public school conditions in the township. Although school was opened on September 4 supplies for the year have yet been received. The investigating committee is trying to discover where the responsibility lays for the delay.

HE GAVE UP BUSINESS TO PREACH X-SCIENCE

Prof. Hermann S. Hering, C. S. B., a native of Philadelphia, Pa., and one of the late Dr. Constantine Hering, whom Hahnemann called "The Father of Homoeopathy in America," who speaks tonight at the Hartridge auditorium on Christian Science, is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania from the department of mechanical engineering, receiving the professional degree of M. E. in 1886. He was made professor of mechanics and electrical engineering by the Philadelphia board of public education in 1887, and 1891 was called to the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., as associate in electrical engineering, where he remained eight years engaged in lecturing, and in conducting laboratory and research work.

In 1899 he gave up his profession for the purpose of devoting himself entirely to Christian Science work, and was a practitioner, reader, and teacher in Baltimore, and Publication Committee for Maryland and the District of Columbia. In 1902 he was elected first reader of the Mother Church in Boston for a term of three years, and subsequently was made President of the church and a lecturer.

In 1906 he was called to Concord, New Hampshire, to become the First Reader of the Christian Science church of that city, and has recently completed his three-year term of office there.

LOCAL MEN TO SPEAK AT SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING

Several Plainfielders will take part in the fifty-first anniversary meeting of the State Sunday-school convention to be held in the First (Munn avenue) Presbyterian church, East Orange, Wednesday to Friday, November 17, 18 and 19. George E. Hall, of this city, is the president of the State association.

Church, of this city, will also address the convention on "Organized Adult Class Work," Thursday morning in the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church. All of the local Sunday-schools will be well represented at the convention.

FORT BEATS TAFT IN PROCLAMATION

Although it is customary for the Governor of New Jersey to await the outcoming of the Thanksgiving Day proclamation of the President of the United States, Governor Fort has this year written his and it has gone to the printer and will be mailed shortly.

For some reason this usual proclamation of the president has not been printed, and there is no hint when it will make its appearance. Heretofore the document has been before the people at least three weeks before Thanksgiving day. It is customary to name the last Thursday in November, but the president can name any day he pleases.

Governor Fort waited as long as he thought advisable for the president to make the first salutation to the people, and then he wroe his message. For the first time in the history of New Jersey this forthcoming message does not mention the president's message, because there is no presidential message of thanksgiving to the people. Of course, should President Taft send out his proclamation before Monday, the message of Governor Fort will likely be recalled and mention of the fact made. But at present the governor of New Jersey is on the job with the call for Thanksgiving and prayer, and the President of the United States is strangely silent.

Mrs. Newed—George, dear, that range we bought last week is no good. We'll have to get another one.

Newed—Why, darling, what's wrong with it? It's one of the best made.

Mrs. Newed—Well, I can't help that. I tried to bake a lemon pie in it this morning and it came out a pudding.

FOR WHITE PLAGUE WORK

Dr. Frederick J. Hughes to Have Charge of Tuberculosis Camp.

WILLIAM C. KINNEY TALKS.

Hospital's President Tells of Plans For the Crusade Here Against Dreaded Disease..

Dr. Frederick J. Hughes, of Somerset street, who has made a thorough and exhaustive study of tuberculosis, will be the physician in charge of the "camp" for the treatment of the disease which has been erected near Muhlenberg Hospital, and a graduate nurse will devote her whole time to the care and attention of the work.

This work for those suffering from tuberculosis and consumption, will be inaugurated this winter. William C. Kinney, president of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, in discussing the work said:

"Heretofore the by-laws of the Muhlenberg Hospital have not allowed us to treat consumptives, but this rule has been modified lately and we are now at liberty to do so and are making arrangements to that end with the Tuberculosis League of Plainfield. The League is erecting a suitable building for this purpose on ground loaned by the hospital. It is hoped that the building will be ready to receive patients the first of December. This building is largely experimental and will accommodate but eight patients. At the request and expense of the League the hospital will take and care for these patients for six months, at the end of which time, a permanent decision will be reached as to the future sharing of work and expense.

"I think that the paramount value of open air treatment has been thoroughly demonstrated, this will be followed, supplemented by nourishing food and cheerful surroundings. The general control and management will be by the hospital under the direction of the Superintendent, Miss Josephine Lee.

"A graduate nurse will devote her whole time to the care and attention of the Tuberculosis 'camp.'

"I wish to say that the Hospital Board of Managers is in entire sympathy with the aims and purposes of the League, and sincerely hopes that the end of the six months sufficient money will be forthcoming to carry on the work as planned; that people will be aroused to the great importance of it, and enable it to be enlarged accordagly, and thus more fully meet the needs of the community."

MILLIONS OF ONIONS.

Fourteen million bushels of onions were raised in the United States last year and so great was the demand that fourteen hundred thousand bushels more were imported from Spain, Egypt, Bermuda and the South Sea Islands, asserts a writer in Van Norden Magazine. The value of America's crop was $10,000,000, and the Department of Agriculture believes that of 1909 should be worth twice as much. It has just issued a bulletin on the subject as a help to greater profit to the average farmer and truck grower that they are overlooking the onion—as if any one could do such a thing.

For many centuries this vegetable thrived only in the valleys and lowlands, but improved agricultural methods have made it possible to raise it with profits on the hilltops. The Bermuda variety is being grown with tremendous success in all of the Southern States, especially along the Gulf Coast.

Each succeeding year brings new ideas as to marketing, and the danger of having the fruit rot in transit is fast becoming a thing of the past. Onion raising is the most important industry around Laredo and Cotulla, Texas.

MONUMENT COMMITTEE FINDS UNMARKED GRAVES.

Freeholder J. Hervey Doane, chairman of the Soldiers' Monument Committee accompanied by General Drake and Freeholder Joseph Perry, made an inspection of the local cemeteries Thursday with the following results: In Evergreen cemetery fifty-five soldiers' graves were found, thirty of which were unmarked; two of which were graves of Spanish American Volunteers.

In the Friends Meeting House cemetery three graves of soldiers were found one of which was unmarked. In St. Mary's cemetery thirteen graves were discovered one three were marked and among the graves were four Spanish-American War victims. All of the graves found unmarked will receive monuments and will be properly marked.

Buttons for Trimming of Gowns.

Buttons are more a trimming this season than a necessity. Some of the tailored suits have such handsome buttons that they may be classed as dress accessories. They come in many shapes, high flat-topped and semi-globular styles being the newest. Metal rimmed, antique gold and jet effects are also smart. In braided and crochet buttons one sees an intermingling of tiny beads as a new feature.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

The Hippodrome continues to attract record audiences to the three big spectacles, "A Trip to Japan," "The Ballet of Jewels" and "Inside the Earth." The big playhouse begins the ninth week of its most prosperous season on Monday next. Bostock's scenic investiture and bargain ballet in which each corypheе represents a glittering jewel and wherein every precious gem known to the lapidary is represented in wonders of the costumer's art; lively melodies, hundreds of pretty girls and a tribe of brown Maori warriors from New Zealand are features in a list of attractions such as would furnish material for half a dozen shows. Among the wonders of the scenic investiture may be mentioned the actual departure of a ship of the line from the dock; the Mikado's garden in Tokio with the fete of chrysanthemums in progress; the U. S. battleship fleet on the move; the palace in the centre of the earth and the waterfall of living women and the sensational finale when an army of silver clad soldiers, men and women, march into the water disappearing from view.

HERE'S A QUINTET OF AGED MASONS

Among the members of Masonic fraternities much interest is evinced in the announcement that at the annual reunion and banquet of Northern Lodge No. 25, Free and Accepted Masons, of Newark, to be held in the New Auditorium in Newark, on November 22, next, there will be present five members whose affiliation with the lodge aggregates 257 years. Each of the quintet of aged men entered the Northern Lodge more than fifty years ago, and from that time up to the present the five men have been actively engaged in promoting the welfare of the organization.

The quintet of veteran Masons is made up of Elihu B. Baker, of Newark; Viner J. Hedden, of East Orange; Joseph M. Smith, of Newark; William T. Rae, of Newark, and Charles H. Bishop, of Glen Ridge. Although each of these men has passed the "three score and ten" period of life, their Masonic interest is still strong, and they are looked up to and pointed out as "the prides of old Northern."

While the exception all of the five members first entered Masonry through the doors of Northern Lodge. The exception is Mr. Baker, who came to Northern from a New York lodge, entering the local fraternity on June 22, 1857. The books of the lodge show that it cost him but $3 to have his membership transferred and that his affiliation was allowed the same night that his transfer application was received.

Mr. Bishop, who has been living a retired life in Glen Ridge for many years, also sought membership in Northern on June 1, 1857. Three weeks later his application was acted on favorably and he was admitted, being "raised" on July 6 of the same year. At that time the entrance dues were $20 and the books of the lodge put that amount opposite Mr. Bishop's name.

Mr. Hedden's application was similarly received upon payment of the same fee on September 1, 1856, but, unlike the other four, it took him several months to get "through." He was "passed" on December 1 of the same year, but he was not "raised" until July 20 of the year following.

Mr. Smith "traveled" more smoothly than did Mr. Hedden, or, in fact, any of the others, getting his entrance degrees the same month in which his application was received. Officials of the lodge speak of this as unusual and refer also to the fact that Mr. Smith was "passed" and "raised" the same night. This is said by masons to be an unusual proceeding. Mr. Smith "entered" the lodge October 4, 1858, and four days later was "passed" and "raised."

Mr. Rae, who retired last May from active firm bearing his name, is seventy-six years old. At the time he quit business in Newark he had been actively engaged in the jewelry trade for fifty-two years. He "entered" Northern Lodge March 14, 1859, was "passed" May 2 following, and on the thirtieth of the same month was given his degrees.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TALK

Prof. H. S. Hering Makes Address on "The Science of Salvation."

HE EXPLAINS THE BELIEF.

Marked Attention Is Paid to Lecturer at the Hartridge School Auditorium.

Herman S. Hering, professor of Christian Science, delivered a lecture Saturday night in the Hartridge Auditorium. A large audience was on hand to hear Prof. Hering and they listened with profound attention to his erudite exposition of the fundamentals of the cult. Carrington Hening, of Orange, introduced the speaker, who said incidently:

In addressing an intelligent audience upon the subject of "Christian Science: the Science of Salvation," it is well, first of all, to reach a mutual understanding as to the meaning of the terms. Science means exact, systematized, and demonstrable knowledge of facts, laws and causes, while according to Smoth's Bible Dictionary salvation means "deliverance from temporal evils and earthly destruction." In other words deliverance from evil. Hence "The Science of Salvation" means in substance that demonstrable knowledge which affords deliverance from evil.

St. Paul admonishes us to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. This Scriptural command means far more than the common belief that salvation is assured by simply having belief or faith in Jesus as the Son of God. Such saving faith is vitally necessary, but it is only the beginning of our salvation—its spiritual basis.

Then must follow the working out of our deliverance from evil, our separation from sin, from the bondage of this world, from limitation, failure, sickness, disease, death.

In working out our salvation we must first see that salvation or deliverance from evil is a mental process, takes place in mind; that it is a transformation through Mind and that it is both ethical and philosophical.

The Bible declares that "to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." Christian Science teaches that matter and material existence are phenomena or mortal mind, a concept of existence obtained through the physical senses, a misapprehension of reality held by human consciousness when uninstructed by Science, that appears instead of an actuality. It is simply an imitation or counterfeit.

Now it is not the appearance but only the original that has power, intelligence and substance. The manifestation of growth, action and being in matter is but a material concept of spiritual facts,

When we recognize God as the only Mind, the only cause, Truth is reflected in consciousness and existence is harmonious. When we believe causation to be material or in mortal mind, we put our trust and dependence in a shadow, a false belief, and existence so-called, is discordant, liable to disease, disaster, death. In order to work out our salvation we therefore need to understand causation.

The ordinary human concept of mind is that which thinks, feels or wills, the intellect, or the activity of the brain. Christian Science reveals the fact that Mind is divine principle, the infinite Life, Truth Love, omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent, the all-inclusive, eternal, unchanging, all-wise being, the only cause and creator.

Christian Science makes it clear that material existence is not the manifestation of this divine Mind, but the phenomenon of the counterfeit, called mortal mind.

It is this false concept of existence that does all the wrong thinking; that believes in sin, disease and death; that claims there is life and intelligence in matter.

The difference between the method of healing through mental suggestion, or hypnotism, and that of divine Mind, the Christ healing, must be clearly seen.

When the effort is made to heal by suggestion, the operator endeavors by means of hypnotism to make the patient believe that he is not sick. He attempts to change the belief that the cause of disease remains and in time manifests itself even in worse forms. The patient is no better off, he has not risen in the scale of being, he has no more manhood, or moral courage, and does not know any more about God and His Christ than before.

The true Christian Scientists reflects the divine Mind, stands on the basis of God, man and the universe of Spirit and spiritual, as Love and its manifestation, as Mind and its ideas—perfect and harmonious. Hence he understands the unreality of matter and evil and knows that man is not sick but that the patient is simply suffering from a false mesmeric belief. From that standpoint he proceeds to correct the errors of belief with the Truth of being and thus establishes harmony on a spiritual, scientific basis.

It is not to be wondered at, indeed it is inevitable, that Christian Scientists should love Mrs. Eddy for having brought to the world this Science of Salvation, the true knowledge of God and man. The spiritual understanding of the Holy Scriptures which enables them to know themselves and to demonstrate that "saving faith" which alone leads to heaven.

Mrs. Eddy did not simply state her discovery to the world; she first demonstrated it and then offered it as a demonstrable Science for all mankind to profit by. This Science overcomes evil, by giving a true knowledge of God and His Christ, it enables all humanity to work out their own salvation and reach that pure consciousness, which Jesus called the "kingdom of heaven."

DISCHARGED WITH WARNING; GANG IS LUCKY

The case of the assault on the Greek bootblacks on the corner of West Front street and Somerset, which occurred Saturday night, November 6, came up before City Judge Runyon Monday and for lack of direct evidence of the actual happenings on the night in question the whole gang was allowed to go. But not without a warning. Two of the young men have been before the court before on similar charges but their actions on the night in question were so skillfully hidden by the rest of the men that Judge Runyon was unable to fasten anything on them. The warning, however, will undoubtedly act as a deterrent for the future, as the court promised to make it decidedly uncomfortable for them if they are again brought before him.

The cause of the original trouble was the upsetting of a pail of water with which the Greeks were cleaning out their bootblack stand on the night in question. According to the stories of the men in court this morning the individual who kicked over the pail was not present but his brother, who is known as "Edmondson." Joe Monahan said he saw the Greek approaching him with a knife in his hand and didn't care to take a chance of going to the hospital, so took one of going to jail instead by slugging the Greek. Thomas Lunn, who was arrested by Patrolman Nolan on the night of the fracas, was apparently exhonorated by the testimony of the other men.

JERSEY MUSIC LOVERS HEAR MME. SEMBRICH.

Charles Jerome Boyd, of East Orange, deserves high compliments for the great success of the music recital given by Mme Marcella Sembrich, at Krueger Auditorium, Newark, Sunday evening, which was attended by a large and cultured audience, including a number of Plainfielders. Mme. Sembrich was assisted by Frances Rogers, baritone, who is well-known here, while a noteworthy feature was the work of Frank La-Force, pianist, who accompanied Mme. Sembrich in a faultless manner.

Mme. Sembrich was down on the program for ten numbers, all of which she sang in a delightful way, while she and Mr. Rogers gave two numbers as a duet. It was a rare opportunity to hear a great singer and those present enjoyed it to the fullest extent.

SHAW'S OWN MIRROR.

Wit Turns Glass on Himself with Characteristic Reflection.

Like all men, I play many parts; and none of them is more or less real than another. I am one audience to the occupier of a house in Adelphi terrace; to another I am "one of those damned Socialists." A discussion in a club of very young ladies as to whether I could be more appropriately described as an old josser or an old geezer ended in the carrying of an amendment in favor of an old bromide. I am also a soul of infinite worth. I am in short, not only what I can make of myself, which varies greatly from hour to hour and emergency to emergency, but what you can see in me.—George Bernard Shaw, in the London Nation, in reviewing G. K. Chesterton's "George Bernard Shaw."

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR DUDLEY BUCK.

The quartet choir of Trinity Reformed church, under the direction of Arthur L. Tilworth, organist, is planning a memorial day to the late eminent organist and celebrated author of church music, Dudley Buck, who died October 7, 1909. The musical program, instrumental and vocal, will be rendered at the morning and evening services next Sunday, and will be selected from Mr. Buck's works, and the evening service will be devoted to a special musical program of Buck's compositions. In this connection the pastor, Rev. John Brock, will preach a sermon in the morning appropriate to his first anniversary as pastor of the church.

Martin Is Quoit Champion.

Charles Martin, of the local Y. M. C. A., was the winner of the State championship title for quoit pitching on Saturday afternoon and returned home with the silver cup, which is emblematic of the championship. Before winning the State championship Martin also annexed the championship of Camp Waywanda, by defeating Albert Winan, of Orange, in two contests, the scores being 21 to 13 and 21 to 18.

WILL NEW MARKET BE IN DARKNESS?

New Market citizens are in a quandary how the village will be lighted after November 30. The appropriation for electric light purposes will be depleted when the bill for this month is paid, and as Township Attorney William A. Coddington, has handed down a legal opinion that the appropriation cannot be increased at a special election, the village is therefore doomed to go without electric lights after this month, it is said.

The present predicament in which the village finds itself in is directly due to a petty squabble last June, when the present light commission was elected and an appropriation of $250 voted. Until this year the appropriation had been fixed at $700, which was just about sufficient to pay for the thirty-two lights now in commission.

Although the appropriation was cut more than half the commissions did not reduce the number of lights, instead, they decided to furnish light on the old scale as long as the funds lasted. With the payment of this month's bill the treasury will be empty, and the only alternative citizens of the village have to continuance of electric lighting service is to raise the necessary funds by subscription, and an election, or additional appropriations be made, will be illegal until next June, the date set for the annual election of lighting commissioners.

Efforts are now being made by some of the dissatisfied citizens to establish two lighting districts, one on the north side of the Lehigh Valley tracks and one on the south side of the tracks. It is as a majority of the citizens realized that electric lights would be eliminated after November 30, steps were taken by several citizens on the north side of the track to establish two separate districts, but the plan met with strong opposition when it was placed before the township committee. F. P. Vall, C. E. Kelly and Dr. Nelson are the leaders in the movement to secure two districts, while the scheme is being opposed by former Assemblyman vonMinden, John Evans and John I. Nelson.

PATIENTS WHO PREVARICATE.

In one of his inimitable sermons the eloquent Father Fuler is at some pains to discuss the varieties of untruthfulness, says the Hospital. The enumeration of these various kinds of degree of lying are in a way as amusing and as practically interesting as Touchstone's list of the species of insults in the giving of the lie.

There be those that lie because they will not, that lie because they cannot, and those that lie because they may not speak truly, and with each and all of these varieties the practitioner has made acquaintance to his great distress of mind and no less disturbance of temper.

We all know of the truthfulness of patients, and at some period or other we have all of us had cause to regret that (to quote our Elizabethan preacher once more) men hold not dearer than verisimilitude of fact to the despising of counterfeits and colors.

To large extent patients lie because they cannot speak the truth. The other two classes may be easily disposed of. Those that will not are usually exposed with facility, and the very small section of those that may present no great difficulty at least to the general practitioner. But there is a very large class of patients who cannot speak the truth. Their bent is toward exaggeration, the suppression of fact and the suggestion of the plausible. They are the interesting class, and in a way we should be grateful for their existence, for they present us with a constant reminder of the fact that imagination is not yet extinct in these isles.

Second to truthfulness, to abide by Fuller's classification, in the majority of cases is not so much an immorality as a lesion. Many of our patients cannot speak the truth; either through lack of courage or through excess of self-love. They must lie, they must, suppress and dissemble. It is useless to appeal to their better feelings; to tell them that they are placing their health in jeopardy by treating their medical attendant like a man whose eyes have to be dust-dimmed. They are incapable of imparting these facts, and they will continue to stick to their versions till the end of the chapter, even though their untruthfulness may be made "transparent to the world and trebly exposed."

A Musical Treat.

A musicale will be given in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian church, on Monday evening, November 29, at 8:15 o'clock. Miss Justine Roberts, the well known entertainer, will be heard in some of her latest "hits." Miss Florence Nicholl, a favorite pianist, will render selections. Townsend H. Fellows, the baritone soloist of the Church of the Incarnation, New York, will sing, and William N. Hutton will render Scotch songs in dialect.

The Hero.

"So Bliggins has written an historical novel?"

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne.

"Who is the hero of the book?"

"The man who has undertaken to publish it."—Washington Star.

MRS. MARIA NOBLE, AGED 82 YEARS, DEAD

Mrs. Maria Noble, aged eighty-two years, widow of the late Orman Noble, died at the home of her son, Morton C. Noble, at Newark, early Saturday morning, after an illness of several months, from a complication of diseases, the end being hastened by a stroke several weeks ago, since which time no hopes have been entertained for her recovery. She was one of the oldest residents of Scotch Plains and had been identified with the town for many years.

Mrs. Noble was the oldest member of the Baptist church, being identified with the historic church for sixty years past, and until a few years ago an active worker in the church and its several societies. Since the death of her husband Mrs. Noble has made her home with her two sons, Morton C. Noble, of Newark, and William B. Noble, of Scotch Plains.

COMMEMORATE NAMING OF NEW PROVIDENCE.

Sunday evening in the Methodist church, at New Providence, a special service was held to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the naming of New Providence. Long before the Revolutionary War, when the sturdy settlers settled there, they found it well wooded and watered, and thousands of wild turkeys. So they called their small settlement "Turkey," and by that name it was known for over one hundred years.

The Presbyterans were the first to establish a place of worship on the site of the present edifice, and as time went on the roof of the old church succumbed to decay and one week day fell in. When the congregation assembled the following Sunday they were so thankful that the disaster had not happened while they were worshipping that they then and there resolved that it was the hand of Providence that protected them, and renamed the town New Providence, the name it bears today.

Rev. Jesse L. Peck, pastor of the church, preached an historical sermon commemorating the event, and the choir rendered a special program.

JOSEPH G. ROBINSON JOINS THE BENEDICTS.

Cupid invaded the ranks of the local fire department about three weeks ago but the fact did not become known until today when Joseph G. Robinson surprised his associates by announcing that he was married on Saturday, October 23. The bride is Miss Nancy Ackerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ackerman, of West Third street. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of the Central Methodist church, Jersey City, the nuptial knot being tied by the pastor, the Rev. H. E. Spencer.

On their wedding day Mr. and Mrs. Robinson left ostensibly on a trip to New York, and it was while they were in the metropolis, that they decided to get married. The secret was kept intact until today. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will reside at 308 East Front street.

CLEAN $40,000 FROM RICH ORE CRUSHING.

A great crushing of gold ore has just been finished in Nevada City Cal. It was in progress for two days and more than $400,000 worth of amalygam was secured. Last night the specimens of ore from the Sixteen to One mine which have lain in the vaults of a bank in the city for several months were crushed and reduced at the customs mill, which was heavily guarded.

E. H. Wilson, manager of the mine, brought sixty sacks to Nevada City for safe keeping. It is stated that the ore was so rich the mill was forced to stop hourly to allow the batteries to be cleaned, immense quantities of amalgam clogging them.

In Examination Time.

Miss Clara Evelyn McHugh, a teacher in one of the Topeka schools, read at a recent teachers' meeting from a collection of quaint examination answers that she had been gathering for some years.

The gems of Miss McHugh's collection were:

"A blizzard is the inside of a hen."

"The equator is a menagerie lion running round the earth."

"Oxygen is a thing that has eight sides."

"The cuckoo never lays its own eggs."

"A mosquito is a child of black and white parents."—Indianapolis News.

A Slight Jolt.

Brown had just finished a narrative that was tedious and long drawn out.

"Say, Brown," exclaimed one of his audience, "you'd make a good bank cashier."

"Why do you think so?" queried Brown.

"Because," answered the other, "you are never short in your accounts."—Chicago News.

Freeholder Andrew E. Lutkins left last week for Florida, where he will spend three weeks shooting game in the southern section of that State.

MRS. LAWRENCE MYERS DEAD IN 78TH YEAR

The sudden death of Mrs. Lawrence Myers at her home, Sunnyside, East Front street, late Sunday afternoon came as a great shock to her many friends. Although Mrs. Myers had not regained her entire strength since she suffered a stroke of apoplexy several years ago, she continued in perfect health until within a few hours of her death.

Mrs. Myers was born at Plattsburg, N. Y., August 23, 1832, and was therefore in her seventy-eighth year. She was a daughter of Rev. Frederick Halsey, the first pastor of the First Presbyterian church of that city. In 1858 she married Lawrence Myers, Jr., and they came to New York to live. In 1866 they moved to Plainfield, where Mrs. Myers has made her home ever since.

Of her three children, Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, Lucy Platt Myers and Frederick Halsey Myers, Mrs. Myers survives. Mrs. Myers was a devout member and supporter of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and one of the founders of the Medal Auxiliary of this city. She was interested in all good work here and the world over, including Home and Foreign missions, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. work and many other educational and charitable institutions. Her beautiful character, warm sympathies and universal interest in all mankind and especially in her wide circle of friends and relatives won for her the love and admiration of all.

MORRIS D. SHANNON HAS PASSED AWAY

Morris D. Shannon, one of the best known residents in the west end died at his home on West Third street Sunday. Mr. Shannon was a native of Ireland and a resident of this city for forty-two years. He was a tailor by trade and for a period of twenty-five years he was an employe of the C. Schefyplin, manufacturers of clothing on West Front street.

Mr. Shannon is survived by a wife and five children, two daughters and three sons. The daughters are the Misses Margaret and Catharne, and the sons, William, Clinton and Harry Shannon.

CREMATION AMONG THE YUMAS.

The greatest display of natural intelligence seen among them is their tribal custom of cremation, writes E. S. Curtis, of the Yumas in Scribner's. This according to their legends, was taught them by their creator, Matevilye, and they follow his instructions with the true Indian tenacity. One of my Yuma interpreters of the past season came to me with considerable anxiety: "Missioner wants me to come to church, I go to church, when I die then you put me in the ground to rot. I no like that. Burned up the way Matevilye say, just ashes. That all right. What you think?" I must confes, as one rather favoring this way, to not being able to see why the old chap should be punished for going to church by being buried against his will.

It is likely that an enthologist would make a poor missionary. How ever the missionary has something of an argument for his desire to change their ways of disposing of the body, as it is certain that we see in the Indian cremation much that is not a part of the modern method, as it is here that he pays the greatest attention to the teachings of the Yuman creeds as taught them by the Creator. The days of mourning for death, relatives, friends and neighbors gather about, waiting for the soul to take its flight to the sand-hills of the afterworld, a land of plenty, where when one melon is picked another comes, "no one sees it come; you just pick it, another one there." The body is prepared at once after death and carried out in blankets to the place of cremation which has in the meanwhile been prepared.

A shallow hole has been dug in the earth and the fuel piled high on this. The body is placed on top of the fuel, after which fire is applied at the four cardinal points. During the time the burning the multitude stand about and wail in the most melancholy fashion, continuing until the fuel and body are but a mass of embers and ashes. These are pulled into a pit and covered with earth. And so are the rites to the departed among the tribes of the Yuma stock.

Miss Cora Burns Entertains.

The will of the late John Rafferty has been filed. It leaves an estate valued at about $120,000, all of which is bequeathed to the wife of the testator. After her death it is to be equally divided among the children. There were no public bequests.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

In All Protestant Churches Y. M. C. A. Celebrations are Held.

THE WORK WAS EXPLAINED.

Encouraging Addresses Are Made by Men Prominent in the Work—The Annual Report.

Services commemorative of the forty-second anniversary of the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association were inaugurated Sunday in the local churches, when special association speakers occupied the various pulpits presenting the work. The local association was organized November 18, 1867, and since that time has been a power for good in the community and made steady progress along religious, educational and physical lines.

The pulpit at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning was occupied by Louis E. Hawkins, State secretary of the Y. M. C. A. He gave a masterly address, his subject pertaining wholly to the spiritual, educational and physical development of man. He said that men's clubs are all right and doubtless fill a need, but they cannot take the place of the association which is engaged in a distinctive work. He said that there are three kinds of men, the movable, immovable and the kind that move, or do things. That is the class of which the association is comprised. His talk was listened to with close attention throughout.

At the Methodist church Sunday morning, B. C. Pond, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., of Paterson, spoke to a large audience. He took for his text Mark 6:30:44: "Give Ye Them to Eat," and he said that Jesus recognized physical needs and His worked through men. The Y. M. C. A. is a co-operative enterprise of Christian churches which recognizes the multiform needs of men and places human resources at the disposal of Jesus Christ to meet all such needs.

An organization in harmony with this age's passion for efficiency and economy. He exemplified in some well chosen terms this Christian co-operation and showed how the Y. M. C. A. was an interdenominational activities with many worthy followers. He showed it to be an organization with a definite spiritual aim which recognizes the fact of the unity of man and the importance of helping body and mind as well as the spirit. "All of man for all of life." It is an organization which has met success, because of its fundamental loyalty to the church and its agreement as to the essentials of belief.

It is an organization which merits the interest, influence and support of well meaning men, because of what it has done and does do. He also emphasized the need men have for the church and the church for men. Rev. C. Herbert Welch, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, spoke in behalf of the organization in the First Methodist church. His sermon was an eloquent appeal to the church to claim the interests and meet the needs of the young men of the city. He took for his text: "Is the young man, Absalom, safe?" Dr. Welch said among other things that there is altogether too prevalent a motion that religion and the church are for women and children, but not for strong men. Christ if He be King, must have these strong men to rule over.

To save an old man tottering into the grave is a startling work, but to save a young man means something to the work of God's Kingdom in this world as well as the world to come. The Y. M. C. A. is not a substitute for the church but a part of it. Churches are not constituted by the presence of the preacher or priest, but by the presence of Jesus Christ.

The Young Men's Christian Association is but a part of the church, established so that all denominations may meet on common ground for the doing of a special work which no one of them could do alone.

LIVELY BIDDING FOR EAST END PROPERTY.

About fifty persons attended the auction sale of lots conducted on North avenue, in the east end, by Elston M. French on Saturday afternoon. P. H. LaTourette acted as auctioneer and the bidding was spirited. Five lots were sold at prices considered to be good.

Alphonse Colucci was the purchaser of the plot situated at 625 North avenue, and James Brown bought the lot situated at 629 North avenue. Three lots on St. Mary's avenue, 150 feet total frontage, were purchased by Joseph Stroke, of Richmond street.

Four Cement Houses.

Today L. W. Randolph gives out contracts for four cement, or stucco, houses—two of which will be situated on East Second street near his garden, and two on Midway avenue. They will be similar to those he built last fall, and which found ready tenants. The new houses will be for rent about April first. The builders are John Abbott & Son and Wyman & Haberle.

SCHOOL BOY MINSTRELSY BOROUGH BOYS ARE DEFEATED AT LAST

P. H. S. Pupils Appear as Burnt Cork Artists Before Big Audience.

THE SHOW A GOOD ONE.

Topical Songs, Hits and Sketches All Effective—The Coach Is Given a Present.

An enthusiastic and thoroughly appreciative audience attended the minstrel show given at the Plainfield High School, Saturday night, by the pupils for the benefit of the athletic association fund. The entertainment opened with a chorus, "In the Evening by the Moonlight," after which the curtains were drawn showing the minstrel troupe in gorgeous array.

The show was considered the best ever given at the school. There was an abundance of real good musical numbers, the songs, soloist work and chorus being perfect, while the jokesmith was evidently working overtime, for the jokes were above the average.

Roy Titsworth made a capital interlocutor, as a soloist he came in for plenty of applause in the rendition of several popular songs. The solo work of James Maurer and Ernest Van Zandt was also well received. The big hit of the show was the singing of the topical song, "Comparisons," composed by Alden E. Moore and sung by Jack Riffarts. It was received with great enthusiasm as the gentle "knocks" were handed out to the Board of Education, as well as the pupils.

At the close of the first part, S. B. Howe, Jr., was presented with several handsomely bound volumes of "Contemporary History." Roy Titsworth made the presentation, and Mr. Howe made a brief response.

Miss Elsie Knowlton was at the piano, and her work was entirely satisfactory. She was presented with a bouquet of American Beauty roses. Part two comprised specialties, songs, and comedy sketches. The P. H. S. S. quartet made a hit with its songs. Ramsey and Sewall were down on the program for a side-splitting musical farce, "Romeo and Juliet," and it was fine. Charles R. Bostwick gave an excellent exhibition of club and torch swinging. "Can You Beat the Dutch," a one-act musical comedy in which Doane and Ricketts appeared, scored a big hit. It was one of the best features of an exceptionally good show.

The candy tables were in charge of Miss Madeline Durrar, Miss Frances Newell, Miss Margaret Hutchinson and Miss Annie Johnson and the entire supply was sold out early.

ASKS CANNON TO PROVE CHARGE AGAINST RIDDER.

A demand has been made on Speaker Cannon to furnish the names of the men whom, he says, with Herman Ridder, offered to pledge certain metropolitan newspapers to boom him for the Presidency if he would use his influence to have the duty on white print paper removed. The charge was made by Speaker Cannon at a banquet in Bloomington, Ill., and was his explanation of the criticisms of his public acts.

Mr. Ridder was interested in the tariff on white paper as president of the American Publishers' Association. He yesterday characterized the charge as both false and ridiculous, and now insists that Speaker Cannon make known the names of the members of the delegation whom he claims were present when the offer was made.

"Cannon must be crazy to make such an absurd statement," said Mr. Ridder. "The story is absolutely false and ridiculous. It did not please him the support given of his own paper, and never talked to him about securing newspapers' support in any shape or manner. If I went to him in the Speaker's room, accompanied by certain representatives of metropolitan newspapers, as he says, and made the offer that he claims I made, let Speaker Cannon make public the names of these men who were the witnesses."

ANTHONY PHILLIPS' STORE AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD ROBBED.

Burglars effected an entrance to Anthony Phillips' candy and cigar store at South Plainfield, Friday night, and got away with a quantity of tobacco and candy and about $3 in small change. The robbery is believed to be the work of two young fellows, who were seen hanging about the place on Friday, in company with a negro.

Phillips says that the two strangers visited his store during the day begging. He gave them a coat and some change, and it is his opinion that they returned late that night and burglarized his store. There is little chance of capturing the guilty parties.

Will Form a Senior Order.

A movement is on foot here to form a council of the Senior Order, Jr. O. U. A. M. James E. Church is the moving spirit in the affair and already several men have signed the charter roll. There is practically no difference between the Junior and Senior orders, the objects being almost identical.

North Plainfield High School's sturdy eleven met its first defeat of the season at the hands of the Wilson Military Academy eleven at Pinder's Field, Saturday afternoon, the score being 11 to 9. Superior weight of the team counted heavily against the locals and was largely responsible for their downfall.

SONG FROM THE GARDENER.

Wee, pretty boys have I three,
Frolicking under the chestnut tree.

Two are my diamonds, one my pearl
Those are my boys and this is my girl

My oldest shall be a sergeant tall
With a walk and a beard like a general:

And an army for his king and a heart for a wench,
And an itch for his bones to stick the French.

My second shall learn the ways of peace,
Of spreading bloom and field's increase,

Of spade and hoe and clod and seed,
Of dropping fruit and clinging weed.

Not much he'll know of war and fame,
But every bud he'll call by name.

Oh, and the youngest, oh, my pride,
'Tis she will stay at her mother's side,

With broom and kettle and rag and pan
Till the good Lord send her a gardeneman,

And a lodge and children two or three,
Frolicking under a chestnut tree.

RUTGERS AND PROHIBITION.

Rutgers College has been admitted to membership in the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association and will compete in the association's journalistic contests. The purposes of this organization is to give a broad and practical study of the liquor problem, and related social and political questions, the promotion of the application of the principles of prohibition and enlistment of students for service and leadership in the overthrow of the liquor traffic. Already twenty students have joined the Rutgers club.

In the contest that college getting the most matter relating to the prohibition or anti-liquor reform published during a period of two months in any newspaper or magazine having second-class postal entry privileges shall receive ten dollars in cash and ten dollars' worth of books bearing on the liquor problem. All matter must be written or prepared by the students.

The Rutgers club has elected the following officers for the year. Henry [illegible] Frost, '11, president; Andrew [illegible]nsen, '10, vice-president; Edwin [illegible]n Chedsey, '11, of Newark, secretary; Rudolph Stein, '12, of Sayreville, treasurer; Max Nelson, '11, New Brunswick, reporter.

Had Cause for Alarm.

An elderly patient in the Tennessee mountain region was suffering from a malady, the remedy for which the doctor prescribed in the form of capsules, relates the San Francisco Star. The old woman trusted her medical adviser, but for the medicine she refused much suspicion.

Some time after she had taken the capsules she was asked by her son how she felt.

"Porely.

"Don't want nuthin' to eat?"

"Don't

Soon, however, the old woman arose from her bed and took her seat in a rocking chair. Thinking that she already received the son filled her pipe, lit it and handed it both to his mother, saying, "Take this, away, son!" yelled the old woman in the utmost fright, "how better'n to come at I've got them cartridges in my pipe!"

Slightly Changed.

Said the magistrate to the policeman, "But this man doesn't correspond to the description. He has no scar on his forehead."

"Well," replied the bobby, "that can be easily remedied. I think I could get a portion of the scar by striking him [illegible]

They met at Dog Tavern and hunted through Fanwood, Westfield and returned to Netherwood. The going was fine and the chase was exciting from start to finish. There were three spills, Miss Gertrude Noe, Miss Mildred Wildey and Frederick Bull taking tumbles. Neither one was seriously injured.

Those enjoying the chase were Miss Gertrude Noe, Miss Mildred Wildey, Rufus Finch, Hart Farlee, Charles Wildey, C. W. Fisk, C. E. S. Bellows, Ruppert Anderson, Richard Waring, Paul Harrison and Cris. Cumins. On Wednesday the members will meet at Netherwood for a short chase.

FINE OF $100 FOR RED BANK SOCIALIST

Edward M. Myer, a Red Bank Socialist, was fined $100 by Judge Cross in the United States District Court yesterday for illegal use of the United States mails. About a year ago a Socialist editor in Kansas was convicted by a jury for a like offense.

After Myer learned of the conviction he sent defamatory postal cards to each member of the convicting jury. On each of the cards appeared the names of Judas, headed by such famed traitors as Judas Iscariot and Benedict Arnold. These postals also contained the expression: "A fine bunch."

Myer told the jurors on the cards that he had made out a list of the names in duplicate so that he might have it in his room to look at before going to bed each night. That he received so mild a sentence was due to a number of letters from prominent Red Bank residents attesting his past good reputation.

Edward Myer is the inventor of an aeroplane with which he has made three unsuccessful flights. He is identified with the Socialist party, and is one of the local party leaders.

AUTOMOBILISTS INSPECT CONDITION OF ROADS.

An impromptu meeting of automobile owners and drivers was held at the Hotel Windsor, Washington, yesterday, at which a most favorable discussion over the condition of the roads in Sussex and Warren counties. As a result of the meeting the attention of the Boards of Freeholders of both counties, and incidentally that of the good roads associations of automobile clubs, will be called to road conditions.

Some of those in the party were Judge David W. Lawrence, of Jersey City and Swartswood; Dr. P. W. Levering, of Atlantic City; F. W. Bietz, of Jersey City; John Burns, of Dingmans Ferry, and others. It appears that the last named had just completed an extensive tour across the State and down the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware. They reported many excellent stretches of good road, but found that the connecting roads were in bad condition.

The road from Swartswood to Newton could be greatly improved at small expenditure by a little blasting of rock at some of the sharp turns. The grading would open up to New Jersey automobilists the excellent shade roads of Pennsylvania. Upon leaving the Branchville road for Dingmans Ferry, the descent might be made more easy and at present is really dangerous.

The party returned to New Jersey crossing the Delaware at Phillipsburg and reported the turnpike in splendid condition up to and for a distance beyond Washington. The road becomes dangerous again after leaving the splendid macadam. In need of grading at German Valley for a distance of several miles, until the Morristown road is reached, after which better conditions prevail.

Albert Cable, proprietor of the Windsor, tendered the gathering or automobilists a banquet, and as a result of the meeting a complete report of the condition of the various roads in that section will be forwarded to the State Road Commission and the Boards of Freeholders.

BRASS JOURNAL THIEF IS TAKEN TO NEWARK.

Frank Brittimus, who was arrested at South Plainfield on Friday on suspicion, was taken to Newark, Saturday, where he is wanted for wholesale brass journal thieving.

The man is said to have taken hourly aggregating many thousands of dollars in value from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and it was because of the fact that the company wanted him that he was taken to Newark, where he is now being held at the request of the company.

STATE GAINS $35,000 BY HUNTERS' LICENSES

The State Fish and Game Commissioners are more than pleased at the working of the new law requiring a license fee of $1 for a resident gunner to go afield for game, the season opening yesterday for this sport.

There has already been received in the State treasury over $11,000 from these licenses, and as the rabbit season opened all over the State yesterday, and as interest in the licenses has been intense lately, it is expected that when the returns for the month are in there will be received more than twice the $21,000 now accounted for.

In all, the commissioners believe there will be received from this source a revenue of $35,000. This money is clear gain to the State, nothing of the kind having been heretofore received, and its receipt would indicate that the commissioners knew what they were talking about when they told the legislators that if the law was passed the State would get a revenue which would go far towards supporting the fish and game commission and stocking the State with game and fish.

The commission in the State House supplies the county clerks with blank licenses, the county clerks in turn supplying the municipal clerks, so that it is an easy thing to get a license. Because of this system it is impossible to now tell how much money will be received, but it is believed that the known total will not fall short of $35,000, and this is all clear gain to the State.

KNIGHTS ATTEND SERVICE

Watchung Council Listen to Eloquent Sermon at St. Mary's Church.

EXERCISES ARE ELABORATE.

Rev. Father Bogan Celebrant—Rev. Father Dillon Preacher—Splendid Musical Program.

A half hour before beginning the religious exercises at St. Mary's church Sunday every pew was occupied excepting those of the middle aisle reserved for the Knights of Columbus and parish and visiting societies of men. The occasion of the gathering was the annual vesper services at which knights attended in uniform. At eight o'clock the procession of men from the parish assembly hall, entered the church. The members of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, marched to the entrance of sacristy and acted as guard of honor to the clerical officers of the vesper service.

The celebrant, Rev. B. M. Bogan, deacon; Rev. Edward J. Dunphy, subdeacon; Rev. Daniel Hogan, master of ceremonies; Rev. Vincent Sciolla, with a chancel choir of thirty boys, left the sacristy, chanting the processional, "Onward Christian Soldiers," and entered the sanctuary between the lines of assembled knights whose drawn swords formed an arch for the procession. A splendid musical program was rendered by the choir, under the direction of Miss Mary A. Sweet, the soloists being Miss Mary Lannon and Mr. Campbell.

The sermon was preached by Rev. John Dillon, of Elizabeth. He said in part:

"In keeping with the religious spirit that prompts your presence here this evening, I have chosen the topic 'Christian chivalry' for this sermon. Knighthood of old upheld the dignity of manhood and as champions of womanhood guarded the shrine of human love from vulgarity and vice. Knighthood of which you are representatives is the champion of Christian principles defending the cause of the faith of God. The trend of thought in this our day of astounding human progress is directed in matters religious not so much by what men say as by the influence of what men do. Champions of the noblest cause that ever moved human energy to action, you have entered the arena of human influence to cast the weight of your example in the scale of Christian progress. Your leader, in whose principles you hope to follow, is none less than the King of kings, whose manhood exemplified in His Eternal Son is the inspiration of your living. In your fellowship of knighthood the practical character of your faith demands that every man reason for the moral helps and restrictions in your living. Yours it is to give proof to an inquiring world that your knighthood excels not only in ideal, but in fact the boasted knighthood of the ages long gone by. So let your life be that both in State and church it will reflect the standard of Christian prudence and God-like energy for the betterment of your fellowmen. It is this that must foster, sustain, and perfect in the individual and the community, the Church and the State. If you are to preserve and increase your rich inheritance and hasten the coming of the Kingdom of God in yourselves and the world around you."

JUMP FROM A TRAIN NEARLY COST HIS LIFE.

While trying to save time of walking from the Clinton Street Station, Trenton, to the home of some friends, Harry Robinoughtach, twenty-one years old, of Beatty street and Smith Terrace, made a jump for a passenger train in South Trenton Sunday night and was hurt. Besides having one toe cut off, he sustained a crushed foot, lacerations of the hands and head and was badly shaken up. That he escaped instant death was miraculous.

At the train near Trenton Robinourtsch decided to jump off somewhere in South Trenton. At the Jersey side of the Delaware bridge the train was moving at a speed.

Robinourtsch ran to the platform while the train was yet running at a good rate of speed. He held fast to the iron railing alongside the steps and tried to step off. He slipped, and one foot went under the wheel and was crushed.

The pain caused him to loosen his hold, and he jumped and rolled close to the tracks. When the train passed called for help, but no one responded to his appeal. With one shoe torn off, he managed to crawl down the embankment to a cigar store on South Warren street. With blood flowing down his face and his mangled foot showing, he hobbled into the store and badly frightened a number of customers.

A little later he was removed to his home.

She Knew.

The Man—You don't know how beautiful you are!

The Girl—Look here, I'm a mirror, and I've known other men. What I don't know is, how rich you are. Do you want to talk business?—Cleveland Leader.

TRAINS PLOW THROUGH LAKE.

Trains on the Central Railroad of New Jersey ran through several feet of water Sunday as they passed the Communipaw Avenue Station, Jersey City, as the result of a bursted water main. As each train passed a cloud of steam arose and thousands of spectators watched the big passenger engines plowing through the water.

The local water authorities were notified and the nearest water gate was shut off, but not until a large lake was formed in the cut. The trouble was caused by the employes of the railroad company. At the Communipaw avenue crossing the company in order to widen its roadbed shifted the bridge about a hundred feet north of the old street line and widened the road about five feet more at that point. A water main was laid over the new bridge, but the water was not shut off. Sunday afternoon the railroad company was operating the bridge about as the crossing and while operating the shovel picked up the old water main and snapped it as if it had been a pipe stem.

HELIGOLAND WELL FORTIFIED.

Heligoland guards the entrance to Germany's two greatest ports, and is probably that one of her possessions which she regards with most complacence, as having been obtained from England for the asking, says the London Mail.

But although Germany obtained this beautiful and useful island so easily and cheaply, she does not hold it the less dear for that. She is fortifying it—has indeed fortified it—after modern ideas, so that it will indeed be a formidable obstacle in the way of any power threatening the approaches to Hamburg and Bremen.

What, however, will strike an impartial observer most forcibly in the contemplation of Heligoland today will be the mysterious way in which it has become completely Germanized in the short space of nine years.

Under German rule, however, Heligoland has prospered, has been made to feel that its circumstances could not fail to be bettered, by its inclusion in the mighty German Empire; and although the conditions of individual freedom are certainly far less easy than they were, there are no signs that the people resent this change.

The comfort, yes, prosperity, exhibited by the islanders is very marked, especially in comparison with the islands of the Netherlands, which, like Heligoland, gain their livelihood by fishing and the money spent by visitors during the summer. There are no beggars here and no appearance of either poverty or squalor. All, men, women and children, are well dressed and appear to be well fed, also to have an air of independence that sits very well upon them.

This is shown also by the great number of large, well-built fishing boats lying upon the strand and anchored between the two well-built piers, a number out of all proportion to the tiny population of 4,000. Fishing is a really prosperous industry here, the fishermen's gains ranging between five and ten shillings a day each, and in the summer, when, as most seaside visitors know, coastal fishing is suspended by the working of natural laws, which draw the fish off into deeper water. Their numbers average 30,000, and where on each they are all bestowed seems a mystery, although no doubt it is easy of solution by the trained caterer for the wants of seaside visitors.

There must be something extremely fascinating in a place which without any natural advantages, such as are possessed by Jersey and Guernsey and the Isle of Man, for instance, can draw so large a concourse of people to face an open sea journey of thirty miles in comparatively small steamers, if they can come from Cuxhaven, while if the whole journey is made along the Elbe from Hamburg it takes from seven to eight hours.

All the amusements and recreations, have such as the modest Kurhaus affords, belong to the sea. There are no cricket or lawn tennis grounds and the one pier, as distinguished from the unfinished breakwater, is just a pier and nothing more; there is not even any efficient shelter upon it. And the walks are severely restricted to a few hundred yards, unless the visitor be energetic enough to climb a great many steps up to the summit of the red rocks. There he will find a magnificent view over the North Sea on every side, but he will also find it well, especially if a stranger, to read most carefully the notices which abound, to refrain from carrying a camera or making notes of however innocent a nature. Neglect of these simple precautions is certain to lead him in serious difficulties, from which, if he is an Englander, he will find it difficult to extricate himself, even with much loss of time, money and temper.

For it cannot be too widely known that the doctrine of British citizenship in the sense that it was once understood is now entirely inverted. Should the visitor to foreign lands or even the United States imagine that the statement of his being an Englishman is sufficient to help him in any difficulty with the authorities, and act upon that idea, he will receive such a lesson as will last him the remainder of his life.

It is perhaps hardly necessary to say that the notices I refer to above are for the purpose of warning every one not entitled to an entry away from the fortifications, and that the infringement of any of these prohibitions is unthinkable without the penalty immediately following. The German military and naval organization is nothing if not thorough, and has no more use for magnanimity than it had for carelessness.

THE YOUNG GIRL'S CAPE.

Even though capes have been worn during the last summer for afternoon and evening, the cool days recall to many minds the fact that opera capes should be added to their wardrobes. The young girl needs a cape as much as her older sister; her dresses are very precious and dare not be crushed by the sleeves and weight of a coat. But her cape should be made in a style suitable for a young girl, and not loaded down with expensive decorations.

If the cape is to have hard wear, a color not too somber, yet durable, should be chosen. A soft, deep garnet or a dark shade of green or blue would make an attractive yet serviceable cape.

The best material to use for such a wrap is a light-weight broadcloth or a diagonal serge.

LITERARY

The November Strand Magazine contains some excellent fiction and a number of articles of a unique and interesting character. Short stories are provided by W. W. Jacobs, Morley Roberts, Richard Marsh, C. C. Andrews, and other popular authors. There is also a long concluding instalment of "The White Chess," by Hall Caine. Caruso, the idol of the musical world, writes his "Reminiscences" and illustrates them with some clever sketches.

The November "Success Magazine" contains a collection of humorous, hitherto unpublished stories of the San Francisco Earthquake by Will Irwin under a title, "Human Nature Under Fire." In the same number, women finds a voice in Inez Haynes Gilmore's article "Man—as Women See Him." Walter Weyl's article, "The New Problem of the Old," discusses the question "How shall our nation take care of its aged mothers and fathers?"

In the November Wide World Magazine appears the first of a series of articles dealing with "The Great Feuds of Kentucky." According to the Editor no effort has been spared to make the narratives as accurate and fair as to all parties as possible. The stories themselves have been obtained from the official records of the trials, and from people who participated in the actual warfare.

The man who wrote the "Confessions of a Best-Seller," the leading article of the November Atlantic, is obviously a past master of the art he tells of. In his paper he gives the complete list of the ingredients necessary to make a novel which will pass the 100,00 mark. The November instalment of the "Diary of Gideon Welles" deals with the circumstances surrounding the death of Lincoln.

The American flag remains firmly planted at the South Pole, regardless of the decision reached on the question of precedence among American explorers. It is not surprising that polar talk has quite submerged other topics for the month, and the National Magazine for October clears the decks for action, and proceeds to scroop the field for the latest data and photographs, being the first October periodical to furnish reliable articles and thrilling pictures of adventure in the Arctics.

Faithful to its old traditions, The Youth's Companion nevertheless keeps abreast of modern needs. Its purpose is to be solid but not heavy, informing but not abstruse. It shuns the sensational and the superficial—all those things that are designed to excite rather than to inform, to please rather than to convince, and that are without authority and resuonsibility.

It has come to this, that his fellow countrymen in general, even those that dissent from his political opinions, recognize in Grover Cleveland a man, who, being mortal, was not without fault and limitation, yet who was, nevertheless, free from unfeigned purity of intention, for singular frankness, for scrupulous and unusual honesty, for faithfulness to duty, for resolution, for courage and, above all, for absorbing, dominating patriotism. It is not strange that almost the last words that were heard to fall from his lips were these: "I have tried so hard to do right."—From Richard Watson's Gilder's "Grover Cleveland; a Group of Letters" in the November Century.

It you can imagine the wonder and the complications that would ensue on discovering a girl-aby stowaway on a manof-war you can partly realize in advance the delight that will follow the reading of a story by D. E. Dermody which appears in The Red Book Magazine for November. It is entitled "Wherever They Roam."

Appropriately enough, both love and politics figure in the plot of Mary Imlay Taylor's new novel, "The Magnate of Paradise"—politics being appropriate to the season, and love *to all seasons. The story is publish*ed complete in the November Lippincott's which is the way, in an extraordinarily fine number. The scenes of "The Magnate" are laid in the nation's capitol and in a live town in Missouri. While the name given to the latter is fictitious, the place is quite likely to be recognized by those who live or have lived there.

A musical comedy or comic opera of the first class averages a cast of about seventy-five people, while I suppose about seventeen is the aver*age number for a dramatic company.* A prima donno, who is not a star, gets from $100 to $350 a week, the principal soubrette from $150 to $500 a week, the tenor from $75 to $300, the bass about the same. The minor characters range from forty to a hundred dollars a week, while show girls get twenty-five and thirty dollars, and the chorus men from fifteen to twenty-five dollars, the average salary being about eighteen dollars.—Hartley Davis, in the November Everybody's.

Miss Ida M. Tarbell begins her new historical serial in the November American Magazine. This will be the most important work Miss Tarbell has undertaken since her "History of the Standard Oil Company." Its theme will be the American woman anr the important and heroic part that she has played in shaping the destinies of the nation since the revolutionary days of 1776. The series will be illustrated with many beautiful portraits.

No magazine feature for years has met with such immediate and enthusiastic appreciation as Theodore Roosevelt's account of his African adventures in Scribner's Magazine. The demand for the first article of the series in the October number was so great that the entire and very large first edition was called for within three days after publication. The second article, in the November number, gives the author's impressions and experiences on an East African Ranch, which in many ways reminded him of early days in the plains of the great West, and the account of his first successwul Lion Hunt on the Kapiti Plains. His preliminary comments upon the big game of Africa, especially his conclusions most dangerous to the sportsman and the natives, will be read with much interest.

CLAM FISHING.

Catch from Canadian Waters Nearly All Shipped to New York.

Consul Frank Deedmeyer, writing from Charlottetown under the date of September 8, gives the following account of this season's clam catch around the Canadian maritime province of Prince Edward Island:

"The yield of the quahoge or Venus mercenaria), also called hard-shelled clams, in the waters of Prince Edward Island for the year 1909 promises to reach 12,000 bushels. Nearly all of them are shipped to the port of New York, the proportion consigned to this island being very small. The localities where this clam is found is near Summerside and Charlottetown. They are gathered in the months of May, June and September.

"The catch of the latter month was superior in quality to the two spring months of 1909. Shipments from Summerside in the spring amounted to 4,500 bags, containing one and one-half bushels. New Brunswick fishermen, supplied with motorboats, take them out of the waters with rakes and carry their loads to Pointe du Chene, where they are assorted and put up for shipment.

"Charlottetown expects to ship 2,000 bags during the month of September and Summerside 4,000 bags. Spring clams cut of the waters with were from $1.10 to $1.90 per bag; at Charlottetown, from $1.30 to $1.50 per bag. September prices at Summerside range according to the size from $1.50 to $1.80 per bag. The same prices cut of Charlottetown."—Consular Reports.

ANCIENT NUMANTIA.

Scientific Excavation Lays Bare Remains of Oldest Roman Camp.

The Cologne Gazette publishes an account of some remarkable excavations made at Numantia by Professor Schulten. His discoveries comprise both the remains of the city of Numantia itself and also of three superimposed Roman camps on the hill of Garrinjo, including the camp of the Roman Consul Mancinus, whose army suffered in 137 B. C., one of the worst disasters in Roman military history.

The camp is nearly identical, says the News and Sun, with the present village of Renieblas, from five to six kilometres east of Numantia, a position which agrees with the description of Appian of the armed camp which Pyrrhus Nobilior in 153 B. C. The camp covers some forty hectares, and it lies on the slope of a long hill facing Numantia, whence the Romans could overlook the *whole Numantian plain and the en*emy's town without themselves being seen.

The location of the Roman camp was facilitated by the fact that the fortifications are still above the general level of the ground and are generally well preserved, a fact which does not obtain in the absence of trees. From a neighboring hill the whole line of fortification can be seen, running in straight lines without regard for the inequalities of the soil.

The gate apertures, flanked by powerful towers and covered by transverse walls at a distance, can plainly be seen. The walls are two and a half meters thick and extend for about five kilometers.

The barrack walls are partly constructed of large blocks of stone, some being as big as two metres long by one metre high, the material used being easily-worked limestone found near the camp. The camp is described as the oldest Roman camp in existence, and its remains as being of unexampled importance for students of Roman military history.

The excavations are proceeding rapidly. Already several barracks have been uncovered and every day brings some relic of importance, the iron finds being particularly well preserved owing to the dryness of the climate. It is said, however, that the funds supplied by the Kaiser, the Ministry of Cults and the Archeological Institute are exhausted and that more money will be needed to complete the excavations.

HE SEEKS TO SOLVE DESTINY BY STARS

Does death mean the rising or setting of the sun, the end or the beginning of life? Through a daily study of the heavens with the aid of a powerful telescope in his observatory, Upper Mountain avenue, Montclair, the Rev. Dr. Isaac K. Funk hopes to determine the matter to his own satisfaction.

Dr. Funk, who is head of the publishing house of Funk & Wagnalls, in New York city, believes that after he has died he may be privileged to become an inhabitant of one of the worlds supposed to comprise the universe.

The veteran publisher has rounded out three-score and ten years of an active life, and realizes that he has passed the milestone of earthly existence. In his study of the stars he seeks food for reflection anent the future life, although he says that he has arrived at no conclusion as to whether death means preparation, an unbroken sleep or endless existence.

"Personality is directing the stars," said Dr. Funk yesterday. "And what is personality? One may *call it God, another will call it na*ture."

Continuing, Dr. Funk referred to the argument made by scientits that if one is to live in another world, personality, that which makes us what we are, that which is our very self and distinguishes us from others, must continue.

There are many astronomical theories which Dr. Funk deals with, although he says it is merely scientific recreation for him.

"It gets one away from the dollars," he said, "and I like it better than 'aptos' and other pleasures, although a game of golf suits me nicely."

The possibility of rebirth after death, involving not an act of creation, but an act of preservation, did not come in for serious discussion. In fact, Dr. Funk laughed at the stories which some newspapers have published in referring to his alleged ideas of further life.

He is kindly appearing man, always affable and genial. He enjoys a good joke, and in referring to amusing incidents said that one New York newspaper had said that he had "encountered the shadow of the North Pole in Mars, but that despite the clearness of the view from his telescope he could discover no flag placed upon the pole by either Dr. Cook or Lieutenant Peary.

"There is no truth in the story, and I absolutely refuse to be drawn into any North Pole controversy," said Dr. Funk, with a merry twinkle in his eye.

"It is wonderful this study of the universe," added Dr. Funk. "It is an intellect which affords a real enjoyment for me. I am waiting to get a look at Halley's comet. Of course you know that comet plays havoc with superstitions that there is to be a pestilence or something dire when it comes.

"I have read that the comet is to collide with the earth and jar us off, but we will all have to take chances. Halley was the first to discover the laws that govern comets. He said that the comet appearing in 1531 would return in seventy-five years, and it will. My telescope, which was recently purchased from Brashler in Pittsburg, is not powerful enough to get a glimpse of Halley's comet yet, but I may be able to obtain a view in a few weeks."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Ackerman a Safe Leader.

In the candidacy of Senator Ackerman for majority leader of the upper branch of the incoming Legislature there is not only a fair tribute to the party claims of Union county, but the recognition of a worthy and alert Republican. Most of the senior members of the Senate have been thus honored, and the logical course of the majority is to raise Ackerman to his post in a natural advance to the Presidency in 1911, particularly as the Republicans of Union expect to return him to the Senate. Senator Ackerman's conservatism is one of his chief qualifications, and there will be need of such a temper in the deliberations of the next Senate, if present signs of party turmoil are to be considered.—New York Press.

GEORGE LEMATTY HAS A NARROW ESCAPE.

George LeMatty, of the borough, had narrow escape from injury Friday on Park avenue as he was returning from Metuchen. Mr. LeMattey was in a surrey, and near Randolph road, an automobile collided with his vehicle. LeMatty's surrey was badly damaged and his horse cut about the knees and body. LeMatty was hurled to the street by the force of the collision but he escaped without a scratch.

LeMattey was unable to ascertain the number of the auto, as the party continued on their journey without stopping. The figures the damage to his rig, and the injuries to his horse, to be about $100.

AS A WOMAN SAW LINCOLN.

He was in the red room, and his towering, slightly stooping form as he leaned against the grand piano that faced the door appeared of heroic mold, writes Edna Dean Proctor in The National Magazine. Speaking with us pleasantly, he made no allusion to the disastrous news, but it was soon evident that, while he stood there with courteous greetings, he was almost oblivious of his surroundings, and that his soul was filled with contemplation of the country's peril. It was my first view of him, and I have never forgotten the infinite dignity of his presence that evening and the melancholy, far-off look in his eyes—a dignity and elevation quite beyond and above what any mere manly beauty could give. As I watched him I thought no words could better describe him than these: "A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief."

There was little conversation, but one of the party remarked: "I hope, Mr. President, you are able to sleep, *notwithstanding your heavy bur*dens."

At that moment General ——, "just from the front," was ushered into the room—short, stout man in uniform, with a blustering, pompous manner as if he thought the whole army was centered in himself. He heard the remark, and immediately added in a bold, confident tone. "I presume, Mr. President, you sleep as well as the private soldiers on the Rappahannock."

Mr. Lincoln looked down upon him with a loftiness which was almost scorn, and said slowly and distinctly, and with indescribable pathos:

"You are that matter, sir, I would gladly change places with the poorest soldier in the ranks!" and turned away with the far-off look in his eyes.

There was silence in the room. Every one was impressed with the beautiful solemnity of the moment. Even the pompous general felt it, for without a word he retreated and was seen no more.

We soon made our own adieus, but the glimpse we had had of the great President was so sad and tender that the brief interview has remained a treasured memory.

SPANISH ETIQUETTE.

From what we saw, and from what happened to us, I made up a page of Spanish etiquette, says a writer in Outing. It is probably not correct, but I offer it as the result of our experience. Other people may have had different impressions. If you are of the female sex, never wear a short skirt, a sailor or English walking hat, unless you are willing to have people stare at you, and sometimes call after you. If you have red hair dye it, or be prepared to be saluted as "Rubia." Never bow to a man unless he lifts his hat first.

If you are a man, you may dress as an Englishman, an operatic tenor or a chorus singer from Carmen, with exciting trousers, and never wear glasses; if you are blind, take a dog on a string. When you sit down at the table, or arise, always bow and say, "Zuenas," this is imperative. You may jostle people without apology, but never speak to any one without saying "your grace," be he noble, friend, or beggar. "Will your grace do me the favor to bring me coffee at 1 o'clock tomorrow?" would strike an American bellboy with dismay. It is the literal translation of the Spanish request.

Never tell a beggar to clear out, but say that you have left your purse at home, and that you will remember him tomorrow; or, gently murmur that God will reward him, whereat he will smile, thank you and depart.

These same beggars, which spring up on every side, seem to have a code of etiquette we could not fathom. After two or three days, there were no beggars, only one, two, or three others who besought Jean. Evidently we were understood to be the patrons of certain beggars who, out of a crowd of mendicants, were the only ones to approach us, who would take their dole with thanks, or if we said "tomorrow," would, smilingly, back away at once.

A trip into Spain ought to mean more than sketches of life, as we saw it in a single city. Yet it was our pleasure to remain on the Alcazar —with the exception of three days spent in Toledo and the Escorial—for the whole of our two months' holiday, and to return direct to Paris without seeing any of the southern country beloved by other tourists. So, can any one name that, Madrid? Spain means Madrid, the city of marvelous contrasts.

Will Debate Suffrage Question.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield will meet with Mrs. Samuel Huntington, of Franklin place, Monday night, November 22 at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be in the form of debate, the question being, "Resolved, That the suffrage should be granted to women on the same terms on which it is granted to men." Miss Crystal Eastman, of New York, will argue the affirmative side of the question and Hugh Fox, of this city, the negative side.

FREEHOLDERS INSPECT UNION COUNTY ROADS

Before the first of December the work of building the four new county roads will be finished. This was ascertained Friday by the members of the County Road Committee of the Board of Freeholders, who, accompanied by Director Benjamin King and County Engineer J. L. Bauer, made a tour of inspection. All the new roads were visited and were found to be in satisfactory shape.

The roads are Jefferson avenue, between Union county and Middlesex county at Plainfield; Edgar road, between Elizabeth and Rahway; Walnut avenue, in Cranford and Terrill road in Fanwood. Two sections of Edgar road are being built.

Contractors informed the committeemen yesterday that all the roads, with the exception of Terrill road, are about complete. All they need is a little work here and there.

The new roads are all built with experimental material and were constructed with the idea of doing away with the dust nuisance as much as possible. Jefferson avenue, Terrill road and Walnut avenue have been constructed with bakelite, while Edgar road is built with asphaltum. County Engineer Bauer said last night that he is very much pleased with the appearance of the roads, and thinks that they will be durable and stand the heavy traffic. The members of the committee, he said, are entirely satisfied with the work done.

LEAL'S BOYS DEFEATED BY PINGRY'S ELEVEN

Pingry School's blue and white waved triumphantly over the maroon flof Leal's school on the gridiron Thursday afternoon on Cricket Field when the Elizabethans won a 6 to 0 victory after a gallant fight by the local schoolboys. Leal's eleven contested with two handicaps. The lol cals were outweighed by a big margin, and were also minus the services of Dallis and Leggett.

There was no scoring in the first half although the whistle blew when the ball was on Leal's five yard line. At this period there was a fifteen minute wrangle between Referee Smith and Timekeeper Smith over the time allowance.

J. Jewett kicked off for Leal's but the visitors gained possession of the ball and by a series of rushes and forward pass plays the ball was pushed down to Leal's 20 yard line. There, Best, Pingry's right end, made a brilliant double pass around the Leal's end which carried the ball to the five yard line, with ten seconds to play. At this juncture the argument took place and the half ended.

Blatz and Chaffe were big factors for Pyingry in the final half and it was due to this pair's fast work that Pingry secured its touchdown. Bonnell kicked off for the visitors. Chaffe got in the game right at the start. Getting possession of the ball he made a run to Leal's 55 yard line. Brown punted to the 20 yard line and then the visitors inaugurated a series of mass plays which eventually resulted in the visitors score.

Twenty yards from Leal's goal, Chaffe and Blatz started their plunging tractics. The latter, the blonde haired Chaffe and then the wiry Blatz. Leal's guards were unable to withstand the onslaughts of this pair and finally Blatz ploughed through the entire local team for the touchdown. Leal failed in an attempt to kick a goal.

The vistors made a hard attempt to increase the score but the splendid defensive work of the locals prevented more scoring. Driscoll was the star for Leal's. His superb tackling brought forth continuous cheers from his school mates.

Starkweather also shone. His brilliant tackle of Chaffe, when the latter was heading for the local goal, prevented a score. The line-up:

OLD SCHOOLHOUSE SOLD

Piscataway Township Disposes of Maple Grove and Raritan Landing Bldgs.

OUTLIVED THEIR USEFULNESS.

John Cumberson, a Charter Pupil, Relates a Prank in Which He Figured Thirty-eight Years Ago.

Two old educational landmarks of Piscataway township, the Maple Grove and Raritan Landing school houses, have outlived their usefulness and have given way to more modern institutes of learning. Both structures have been sold, the Maple Grove school, which is situated on Clinton avenue just outside of the city limits, to J. Martin, an adjoining property holder. The price paid for the building was $675. J. Lillian, of New Brunswick, was the purchaser of the Raritan Landing school. The receipts from the sales of the pair of landmarks will be utilized by the township school board for educational purposes.

With the close of the June session the Maple Grove school completed its career. Its former pupils are now being educated at the new brick school house, located corner of Foster and New Brunswick avenues. It also provides for the children of Kerwin's corner, who were formerly obliged to go all the way to New Market school.

Like all district schools the old Maple Grove institution of learning had its bright sides of school life. John Cumberson, of Foster avenue, who was one of the charter pupils of the school when it opened its doors nearly two-and-forty years ago, was in a reminiscent mood when he talked of the passing of the old school to a Daily Press reporter yesterday.

He related incidents of the "ghost scare" when hatred school for a week when he was a boy of nine years of age. Cumberson smiled broadly when he mentioned the fact that the pupils received an extra week's vacation as a result of the fear on the part of the teacher, Miss Matilda Farr (now dead) which resulted in her refusal to resume her duties until the supposed spooks were put out of commission.

"It was like this,' said Cumberson, "Ben Elliott, who is now living in Kansas, and myself thought we would scare our teacher. There was a spelling bee on hand one night, and according to our plans, we hid in the closet while the spelling match was going on.

"In the closet," continued Cumberland, "Miss Farr kept her coak. Elliott and I procured a quantity of white wearing apparel belonging to the members of our families and uni*formed ourselves accordingly.* We were aware that after the spelling match the teacher would go to the closet for her cloak.

"Our plans worked in tiptop style. She came for her cloak, but when she opened the door and beheld Elliott and gue attired in our spook uniforms, she fell to the floor in a faint. Elliott and I ran out into the schoolroom which was only dimly lighted and scared all of the men folks. They all took to their heels and left our teacher alone.

"Well, Elliott and I were so scared that we cut the joke short and disposed of our spook attire and went to the assistance of our teacher. She soon recovered and we escorted her to her boarding house between Samptown and New Market. That was the end of the spooks, as I wasn't any more school 'till the next Monday because Miss Farr refused to enter the school again until the trustees got rid of the spooks.

"That was the biggest joke I ever participated in," remarked Cumberson, as he ended his yarn to the reporter.

PLANTING FOREST TREES.

The State of Pennsylvania has started one enterprise of which Maryland should take notice, says the Baltimore American. The Quaker State has made a practical beginning in the matter of forest restoration that will surely atract very wide interest.

Two years ago, in Tioga County, a nursery for forest trees was started. Only about 46,000 trees were ready for transplanting this spring, but there will be 1,000,000 others ready for transfer to various State reserves by the fall of the present year, and afterward a large annual supply.

The majority of the trees that are being put into forest reservations this spring are white pine, the finest of all timber trees, and which, though once abundant in the Keystone State, have been practically exterminated, as in every other of the States, by fire.

The State nursery will supply many varieties of trees, however, so that soils peculiarly adapted to a particular variety of tree may be utilized. There are now forest reservations in many Pennsylvania counties. Maryland also has a few such reservations, but why should there not be a special forestry area set apart in every Maryland county?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 21, 1909.

Topic.—The blessing of a thankful heart. —Neh. viii, 1-12.

The last month in the temple of Jerusalem at this part of Jewish history had been rebuilt by Nehemiah and Ezra, who had each made two trips from Babylon to do this work. The law of Moses had been arranged by Ezra, the priest, and the people of Israel had become possessors of their various homes. Under these auspicious circumstances "the people gathered themselves together as one man into the street that is before the water gate." They asked Ezra to bring the book of the law of Moses. This he did and, assisted by others, read it and explained it to the people. "They read in the book in the law of God distinctly and gave the sense and caused them to understand the reading." Nehemiah and Ezra and the Levites therefore declared that day a holy day, or holiday, and urged them to joy and thanksgiving, "and all the people went their way to eat and to drink and to send portions and to make great mirth because they had understood the words that were declared unto them"—joyous thanksgiving and gratitude that the law of God, so long lost and forgotten, had been read to them and explained to them in such a way that they could understand it. Would that the American people at this season of thanksgiving would more fully appreciate the word of God and be filled with greater desires to have it read and explained to them.

The duty of thanksgiving requires no argument. Ingratitude, whether to God or man, is looked upon as a trait of baseness in the character of any one who practices it. This is especially so in relation to God, from whom in this final analysis all blessings of life come. The appropriateness of appointed thanksgiving days is also recognized, particularly as applied to nations. But our individual lives or hearts every day should be a day of thanksgiving to God. Israel had regular days for national thanksgiving. The Passover was in reality a thankful remembrance of their deliverance from the land of Egypt and from the house of bondage. Pentecost was a feast of thanksgiving for the first fruits of the harvest, which were a prophecy of a full harvest, and when the increase thereof had been gotten in the feast of the tabernacles expressed gratitude to God for it. Then, upon particular occasions, such as the one before us, especial days of thanksgiving were appointed. Our national Thanksgiving day is a permanent one by an unwritten law of our land. The nation should make it not merely a holiday, but a holy day, when in the midst of our feasting and mirth we should acknowledge the hand of God in our mercies. We should express our sincerest gratitude unto Him for blessings past and present and implore before His throne their continuance for the future.

Thankfulness of heart and of life have a reflex influence. They give to the one who is thankful increased blessings. Every time we recall the blessings of God and thank Him for them we experience again the joy that possessed us when they were first bestowed upon us. The thankful heart increases in thankfulness, while the unthankful one diminishes them. There is joy in the possession of a spirit of thankfulness and also a joy in expressing it. If we would get the very best out of the good things of life we should therefore be constantly thankful for the benefits and blessings divinely bestowed upon us.

But thanksgiving must not end with the heart or the tongue. It should extend to good deeds. The Israelites were not exhorted to "eat the fat and drink the sweet" alone, but to share with those who were not provided for. This they did, and their joy was increased thereby. Are you thankful for the many privileges and benefits of past year? Then express it by sending portions to others not so richly blessed. In so doing you will receive a blessing and give another cause for joy and thanksgiving.

BIBLE READINGS.

The Church's Factory.

No church can live long that lives on its past, however long that past may be. A church lives through the supply of fresh workers, just as a body lives through the supply of fresh blood corpuscles. And just as the body must have a factory—the stomach and the heart and the lungs—for making the fresh blood corpuscles and distributing them where they are needed, so the church must have a factory for producing new workers and fitting them into their places in the church, the places that the older church workers are so rapidly leaving vacant. And so a society in Christian Endeavor is of value not in proportion as its members make eloquent speeches, but as they are training themselves to speak for Christ in the years to come. We are not to consider the amount of their gifts to missions, but whether they are training themselves to give liberally and wisely as their power to give increases. We are not to regard the value of what they do in their committees so much as the efficiency of that committee's work in training them for similar work when they grow up. And so of all the rest of our Christian Endeavor activities. What is the product of our Christian Endeavor factory? The church has a right to know. We shall be wise if we look to it with care.—Amos R. Wells in Christian Endeavor World.

GERMAN EMIGRATION.

Wanderlust Now Declining in Empire —Population Going Up.

It is admitted on all sides, writes Counsul-General T. St. John Gaffney from Dresden, that Germany owes its present commanding position among the nations of Europe to its high birth rate. For recent years there has been a surprising decrease in the volume of emigration; in fact the German Empire has the lowest emigration returns of twelve countries of Europe. Mr. Gaffney presents the following comparisons:

In 1881 the emigrants from Germany numbered only 19,880, which was 11,[illegible] fewer than in 1907. For the first [illegible] since the German Empire was [illegible]ded, in 1871, the number has fall[illegible] below 20,000. The Franco-Prussian war was followed by an e[illegible]ne crisis, and the people emigrated in large numbers, and in 1881 the number of emigrants had grown to 262,900 for that year. Then the number began to decrease yearly, until in 1893 an average of 100,000 was reached. But after 1893 the German industries began to develop a great; and the people were not driven to seek new homes across the seas. In 1894 the number of emigrants fell suddenly to 40,944, in 1895 to 37,400, and to 33,820 in 1896. From 1897 to 1907 the yearly mean average was 27,526, or 0.47 per cent. of the population. Altogether since 1871 the German Empire has lost 2,750,000 people by emigration, or as many people as can be made good in four years by the excess of births over deaths.—Consular Reports.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To wash painted walls and woodwork or anything that is greasy and grimy. Take a soft sponge, dip in soapsuds, rub soap on and saleratus on top of the sponge when wash. Wet the sponge again and wash again with soap and saleratus. Now rinse with soapsuds and at last rinse with clear water and dry with a cloth. Do not leave this wash on the walls too long, as it takes the paint off if left to dry on. Try it once, and you will wonder how you ever cleaned walls and woodwork without saleratus.

To [illegible] white enameled sinks and the ga[illegible]ed plate that lies under the ga[illegible] of the gas range. Wet with [illegible] cloth, rub on soap and saleratus; [illegible]hen rinse with clear water. RUBBER FORESTS.

Steps Which Must Be Taken for Their Exploitation.

In answer to an inquiry concerning the wild rubber forests of the Orinoco River, Consul Isaac A. Manning, of La Guaira, furnishes the following report, prepared by Consular Agent Robert Henderson, of Ciudad, Bolivar:

"The elastic products, or two kinds of rubber, are shipped from southeastern Venezuela—the Castilloa elastica, rubber used where great elasticity is required, and balata, a class of gutta-percha. The prices paid for these coasts per pound in Cuidad Bolivar are 22 to 40 cents for balata and 65 to $1.10 for India rubber.

"The products are brought from the district where they are collected to Ciudad Bolivar either on mule-back or in ox carts, at a cost of $2.40 to $4 per 100 pounds. To reach the Cassiquiare district a number of portages would be necessary, on account of rapids. Ciudad Bolivar is closely connected with Port of Spain, Trinidad, and with Europe by steamship communication with the port of La Guaira, thus giving it easy communication with the United States.

"The districts of Jeres and the Orinoco delta produce the greater part of the balata, while the production of India rubber is from Sucre and the Amazonas territory. The lands from which these products are collected belong to the Government of Venezuela, although many concessions have been granted in this district, some of which are in dispute. One entering there for the purpose of exploiting either of these products would have to be careful to keep free from trespass suits for having worked within the unmarked boundaries of some concessionaire.

"To exploit either rubber or balata, one must first get permission from the government of the State where the product is to be taken, according to the law covering the matter, which fixes the amount of local tax to be paid the State by each collector, and requires that the tapping shall be done in a manner calculated to prevent injury to the tree, and during certain months of the year, usually from April to December, the full yield of the output is gathered during this period. One man can collect the sap from only one balata tree a day, while a day's work among the castilloa or India rubber covers ten or twelve trees. The balata tree produces three to five pounds of gutta-percha, and the india rubber tree about half a pound of dry coagulated rubber.

"Coagulation of the balata is brought about by boiling; that of the rubber by smoking or by the use of acids. No established formula seems to be in use by any rubber hunters.

"The product is sold freely, is rarely contracted for before gathering, and no syndicate exists or monopoly of this industry. Concessions granted vary from two to twenty-five square leagues. The rubber hunters usually sell their product for cash, although where the purchaser is also a merchant a good part of the money is turned into merchandise."—Consular Reports.

LESSON FOR A CABMAN.

Philadelphian Learns How Efficient N. Y. Government Is.

At least one man in Philadelphia says that if the New York city government is looking for somebody to say a good word about it he's willing to help out.

Not long ago the Philadelphian was in Manhattan and in one of those spurts of recklessness in which the true loving Quaker occasionally indulges he took a cab to the station when he left.

When he got out the cabman contemptuously refused the regular fare, which the Philadelphian happened to know was fifty cents, and demanded $1.20 instead. His passenger protested, but the cabman had found out he was in a hurry and stood out for the sum named.

The Philadelphian called a policeman, but before some opportunely visible, and stated the situation. The policeman said it was a plain case of extortion and if the Quaker would say the word they'd both take a ride with cabby to the station and have the thing over. The man from Philadelphia considered.

"No," he said, "I've got to make this train. Now I am going to pay this man what he has demanded. I will take his number and yours. You are a witness that I have paid him this illegal fare, aren't you? Well, I'll attend to the rest."

Cabby by this time would gladly have taken the fifty cents to which he was entitled, but he had to take what he had demanded instead. The Philadelphian caught his train and went home. Within a few days he wrote to the Mayor of New York giving an account of the affair.

He promptly received an acknowledgement of the letter, with the assurance that it would be referred to the proper department. The following day he received from that department a letter saying that his complaint had been received and would be acted on at once. Inside of a few days he received a third communication, inclosing eighty cents and the information that the cabman's license had been revoked. To this were added the thanks of the department and the assurance that if every victim of a similar gouge would follow the Philadelphian's example the New York cabby would become a chastened creature.—New York Sun.

HINTS ON JELLY MAKING.

There are many ways, declares the Boston Cooking School Magazine, of sealing jellies. The old-time way of using a paper wet in rum or brandy directly upon the surface before covering the top of the glass with a paper tied with string is still a favorite one. Paraffine wax has its advocates and opponents. Some good housekeepers say that, since jellies harden with a concave surface, the wax settles there thicker with less around the sides of the glass, while the paraffine cools, it shrinks away from the glass, and so it fails to fulfill its mission.

A new method is to cover the top of the jelly, when perfectly cold, with pulverized sugar, a half-inch or more deep. Over this goes the paper, excluding air and dust. Instead of tying the paper around the glass, it is easier to paste it; and this met od is quicker and gives prettier results. Other glasses may not look quite as pretty and the contents are concealed more, but label the glasses upon the top, and you will not need to hold them to the light to identify the desired kind. Use a rather thin, raw paste. Use a strong, pliable, yellow paper. Cut it large enough to adhere well down the sides. Dip it in the paste, which is convenient to use if placed in a shallow dish or deep plate. Brush off any extra paste, and place the paper over the glass, pressing it in pleats firmly down around the sides of the glass. No string will be needed. When the top is dry, it will be as tight as a drumhead, for the paper, when wet, stretches as those used to prepare paper for water-color painting well knows.

To open when wanted for the table it is easier to cut around the edge, inside the glass, and remove the circle. Instead of slipping the contents out, the glass may be put into water, where the paper will soon soak off from the sides.

If you do not wish to make jelly because of the heat, or because sugar is high or glasses fail to come, or if you do not care to invest in many dozens of them, or if your jellies are apt to crystalize, or if your house is damp and they do not keep well when it is closed, or for any other reason, you can still enjoy the concentrated juice of fruits by canning it. Pasteurize it, and it will keep for a number of years. Use it for flavoring ices, sherbets, puddings, sauces, gelatine desserts, and many other dishes. Use it for making fruit punches, or simply iced or chilled, and taken in place of wine. Serve it in wine glasses, lemonade glasses or small tumblers. Strawberry, blackberry, raspberry, gooseberry and almost all fruit juices make a delicious beverage.

SIAM'S ARMAMENT PLANT.

The King Plans Installation of a Modern Factory.

Consul Albert Halstead sends the following abstract from the Birmingham Dail Post concerning the establishment of an armament plant in Siam, together with a comment:

"Some time since reference was made to the anxiety of the King of Siam to establish armament factories in his country after the European plan. I am now given to understand that this desire has assumed definite shape. It is probable that the king will follow his own example in connection with his reorganized finance and the formation of a responsible official in order to initiate his scheme. Where possible, native ingenuity and labor will be requisitioned, but it is also certain that this Anglo-Indian official will desire to have British associates. At all events, the scheme is apparently to be carried into effect, and it may be assumed that it will be under British auspices."

CHILDREN OF MARY'S BAZAAR A SUCCESS.

The bazaar and dance conducted by the Children of Mary of St. Joseph's church in Saengerbund hall Thursday was a complete success in every detail. One of the interesting features of the affair was a guessing contest for a handsome doll. The rules governing the contest was that the doll would be presented to the person guessing the name given the doll. The honor fell to little Miss Barry, daughter of Charles Barry, of Howard street. Its name was Margaret, the world name of Mother Raymond.

The cake and ice cream booth which was in charge of the Misses Kate McMahon and Justina Smith was freely patronized as was the fancy department which was conducted by Miss Agnes Fitzgerald. Dancing furnished enjoyment during the evening, the bazaar coming to a termination at 11 o'clock.

A CLAY-WORKERS BOON.

Novel Method of Measuring Plasticity Discovered.

An explanation of what appears to be a satisfactory method by which workers in clay can accurately ascertain the plasticity of any given clay has just been published by the Geological Survey in a bulletin (No. 381) prepared by H. N. Ashley.

Heretofore an accurate judgment as to the qualities of a particular clay could be formed only after long and costly experiments. Clays, apparently similar in nearly all respects, were found to actual manufacturing to give results very different from those expected; and of late years it has become increasingly important to devise some test by which their qualities could be quickly and easily determined in advance of expensive installations.

Mr. Ashley, acting for the Geological Survey, under an appropriation by Congress for the investigation of the structural materials of the United States, has discovered that when to some aniline dyes, one of which malachite green seems to be the most satisfactory, are absorbed by a given clay furnishes a very satisfactory index of its plasticity, which of course, is the most important of all its qualities.

Adsorption is the property by which dyes and other substances are extracted from solution and incorporated into the thing dyed. It differs from absorption, which is incorporation of a liquid as a standpipe receives water, in that adsorption is especially characteristic of the peculiar substances known as colloids, which form the bulk of clays, and on which their plasticity is believed to depend. The amount of dye, therefore, which a given amount of clay will adsorb from a standard dye solution indicates pretty accurately the proportion of colloids that the clay contains.

Tests by Mr. Ashley of most of the well-known commercial clays with a standard malachite green solution have shown that their adsorption of the coloring of the dye corresponds very closely indeed with their actual working plasticities. As tests with malachite green give expected results where the plasticity is already known, it is inferred that they will prove equally accurate in describing those properties where this has not yet been ascertained. The bulletin can be had free by applying to the director of the United States Geological Survey at Washington, D. C. Its nature is highly technical.

ENEMIES OF GAME FISH.

Destructive Work of Cormorants, Heron and Gulls.

The common herons are, to my mind, one of the most destructive agents of fish life, living as they do entirely in the vicinity of fresh water and fishing not only in lake and stream, but in estuaries as well. To the herons must be of course added the various sea birds equally destructive to our fisheries, gulls of various sorts and the cormorants (green cormorant or shag), and the only extenuating circumstances I can possibly see in favor of the latter birds is that fortunately the bulk of their kind keep on the salt water.

However, I may add that I have seen a cormorant eject a trout of twelve inches in order to facilitate flight, and I have also seen other cormorants so gorged with sea trout as to be unable to escape without great difficulty, and one was knocked on the head by an angler while in this condition. In these instances the birds were probably ten miles from the sea.

As to the gulls, the damage done by them to fresh water fisheries is undoubtedly great, and only a few weeks ago I watched a gull (herring gull) at work in a trout stream, and a herring gull is capable of easily swallowing a trout larger than a herring. Now what is the remedy, and I do not for one minute suggest or wish for extermination? What I would suggest is that all rivers and estuaries controlled by fishery districts should be kept as clear as possible of cormorants in particular, and these birds would soon leave any particular district if much disturbed; at any rate, drive them out to sea, as owing to the depth of water once outside they would be much less detrimental.

Gulls have their uses in clearing a harbor of garbage, etc., and act as scavengers, and they do not dive, but when they stray from the paths of duty, as in the case of the cod, and go inland and attack our trout streams a charge of shot is the best corrective. Herons, too, are easily scared and would soon leave a district if much disturbed, but the shag or cormorant I would give no quarter to, personally under any conditions, and I believe that not long ago the Exe fishery authorities gave a reward of one shilling for every cormorant killed.

As a proof of the destructive powers of sea birds, I once shot an adult great northern diver and took from it five freshly swallowed fish, each fish being about five inches in length, and of the kind locally known as "stingers." The full amount of fish at this rate taken by one bird during a day therefore be left to the imagination, but in any case must be enormous.—Fishing Gazette.

FAVORITE DISH OF MEXICO

Enchiladas Not Very Well Known in the North—Directions for Its Preparation.

Boil six large red chills until tender, pour off water, take out core and seeds and rub through colander with spoon, adding a little water from time to time until separated from skins. Heat a large tablespoonful of lard in granite pan until smoking hot; then throw in two sections of garlic (which are to be taken out when chili is done) and pour in the chili, adding a teaspoon of Spanish sage rubbed until fine. Salt and pepper to taste and let cook slowly; chop two onions very fine, season, sprinkle with Spanish sage and let stand in vinegar. Grate a quarter pound Edam cheese. Now make the tortillas as follows: Work a large cold boiled potato, a large teaspoon of lard and a teaspoon of salt into about a pint of flour, add water until dough is consistency of light bread dough and knead thoroughly. Divide into balls about size of an egg and roll very thin; spread one at a time on a smooth hot stove. They should brown quickly and be turned over and over until light brown and placed between a cloth. All being ready, dip a tortilla in chili, spread on a plate, spread a teaspoon each of onion and cheese, add two olives and a tablespoon of chili and roll the tortilla. As each tortilla is made place on platter and sprinkle onion and cheese. After all are made pour on remaining chili and garnish with olives and cheese.

GOOD LEMON SQUEEZER.

Stationary lemon squeezer. The cut lemon is placed over the glass grooved and the crank is turned to exert a pressure.

Fried Cucumbers.

For this dish select cucumbers a little older than those to be eaten raw, but do not use any that have hard seeds. Cut off the ends to remove the bitter, then peel lengthwise. Slice across in one-third inch slices if large, lengthwise if small. Dip first in egg, then in fine bread crumbs. Set in a cool place for one hour. Have ready some lard heated until it just begins to smoke; it is now at the boiling point. (Test by dropping in a bit of the soft part of bread; if the lard is ready the bread will begin to color immediately. If the lard smokes too long it will burn.) When certain the lard is boiling lay in the slices of cucumber. In about three minutes turn them. In about ten minutes more, when tender, remove to a brown paper in the mouth of the oven. When dry, serve on an open platter.

Baked Potatoes.

Do not have the oven too hot for baked potatoes. If done in a moderate oven for a longer time they will cook more evenly.

Pricking the small ends of a potato with a fork before putting in the oven will keep the skin from bursting.

A German cook noted for her baked potatoes, washes them carefully, dries them, and then rubs the skin with a greased paper and bakes in the usual way.

A pleasant variety of baked potato is to peel them, rub them over with a greased paper dipped in butter and bake in the ordinary way.

Macaroni with Meat.

Chop about a pound of meat from the round, shoulder or neck with meat chopper, brown in a little fat, season and cover with boiling water and cook about an hour. Break a quarter package of macaroni into inch pieces and boil rapidly in plenty of salted water from 20 to 30 minutes. When done drain off the water and add the meat with its juices and enough water to make it more than cover. Thicken with heaping tablespoonful of flour and boil about a minute.

Good Quick Bread.

To a cake of compressed yeast dissolved in two cups of milk or water (or both in any proportion) and one tablespoon of olive oil, add enough flour while stirring a small tablespoon of salt and two or three of sugar, to make a stiff dough. Put in a clean dish and rub a little lard over the top. Set aside for two or three hours, then mold in loaves and let rise an hour more. Bake in slow oven about one hour. This makes four loaves.

One of the greatest dishes of the Italians is polenta. They often serve it to guests, but it is nothing more than cornmeal mush, one of the dishes of our forefathers, yet always one of the best in the winter.

"KNOCK IT OFF, PARTNER."

Cry Familiar in Ocean Game Echoes on Hotel Roof.

"Four to them—now knock off."

Ocean travelers are familiar with this cry. It goes on all day long, with intermissions for meals, on the decks of ocean greyhounds. There are various names for it, but "deck billiards" is the most popular. It is one of the best games ever invented to dispel the ennui from the lives of travelers by sea. But as a land amusement it has had no place until some recently returned tourists called upon the management of a popular hotel in Philadelphia for the material for a game of "deck billiards."

The employee who responded to the call that resulted in the singular request for a "deck billiard" outfit did not know what was meant, but in a modern hostelry any novelty that the guest really desire can be obtained sooner or later. A sporting goods house was requisitioned for the simple outfit required to play this travelers' game and a course was marked off on the roof of the hotel.

The game became popular at once not only with those who had played it at sea, but with those who had never seen it played at all, and now the "cues" are in demand all day long and at night the game is played by electric light. As it is exceedingly simple to learn, and the outfit can be made by any one with the least handiness with tools, there is no reason why the prediction that "deck billiards" will be a popular fad this winter should not come true.

The length of the course is regulated by the space available. On board ship the deck does not always permit of a long course, so a space about thirty feet from end to end is used. A course of this size is marked off in squares, each of which is numbered. The cues are forked sticks that fit the rounded sides of disks that are smooth enough to slide a long way when they receive an impetus from the cue, which is like to place the cue against the disk (it is not permissible to jerk the disk—it must be pushed) and slide it down the line until it rests on one of the numbered squares—the highest number, of course, counting.

On board ship all the greater skill is required to do this, because an allowance must be made for the rolling of the ship, which sometimes sends a well-calculated shot wide of the mark or by the force of it on to the scuppers. On the roof of a hotel, or on a homemade course, it is easier to acquire skill, because the course does not wabble at the precise moment when it is expected to be stable.

It will be found at first trial that to lay one's cue on to plant the disk on the right spot. It will be pushed too far and overshoot the mark, or insufficient motive power will be used and the disk will stop short of the goal. The players, two or more at each end, take turns at shooting. Partners play on opposing sides of the course, so if the first player places his disk on a high figure the remark quoted at the head of this column will be heard:

"Four to them—knock it off."

Then the player who follows will try to so place his disk that he will not only knock the first man's disk out of the figure space altogether, but that in doing so he will insure his own disk remaining on one of the figure spaces. It is this uncertainty, the hope and the possibility of wresting victory from the other players' hands that lend zest to the game.—New York Tribune.

POPULAR BRAIDING.

There is ample opportunity for braid on the princess dress. Almost every form of this popular gown offers some space for clever and interesting braiding, whether the gown be loosely or closely fitted. The pleats appearing on the lower portion in no way interfere with decoration, because the front panel and the bodice, which are also seen are usually plain, as a whole, and positively in need of ornamentation.

Braid will undoubtedly be the favored trimming, because it is more easy of accomplishment than embroidery, and more suitable for the plain blue serge, which is exceedingly popular.

The dark-blue serge dresses, in one piece, for the young girl from 14 to 18, can hardly be improved upon. The best types of them are decorated with black soutache braid in a little more than cover. Thicken with heaping tablespoonful of flour and boil about a minute.

Surprised Miss Maass.

A pleasant farewell surprise was tendered to Miss Carol Maass at the home of Miss Ada Dennis, of East Seventh St., Thursday night. YEAR'S WORK OF Y.M.C.A.

The Activities in the Various Departments are Reported in Detail.

BY SECRETARY H. E. PARKER.

Religious, Physical, Educational, Social and Boys' Sections Are Stated in Full.

The following report was read in the churches participating in the anniversary celebration of Sunday.

Because of the close and helpful relation in which the churches sustain to the Young Men's Christian Association, it is fitting that on this forty-second anniversary occasion we should express to you our appreciation of the leadership and support you have furnished us, and that we should report to you some of the achievements you have thus helped to make possible.

Religious Work.

During the year, sixty-six men and fifty boys have been enrolled in the Bible classes. The work of the Plainfield High School Boys' Class, taught by Mr. Murray, was particularly gratifying. The principal of the school has stated that the influence of this class was such as to raise the moral tone of the entire student body. Several of the members of the class have become Bible class teachers.

The Sunday meetings of the year had an average attendance of 119.

It is one of the functions of the Association's religious department to promote the extension of association ideals and methods among the young men of other lands. Aided by the generous co-operation of two friends, we are now providing the salary of a foreign representative, Mr. A. C. Hull, recently appointed Secretary of the Association at Santiago, Chile. Much as we need the association here, the odds against Christian life and activity are much heavier there, and such an organization as the association is mightily to the Latin American young man in his fight for character. Splendid results have already been achieved by Mr. Hull and his associates. With them, decisions for the Christian life are of most daily occurrence.

Another new enterprise undertaken during the year, in connection with our religious work, was the bringing of Dr. Lyman B. Sperry to Plainfield. Dr. Sperry is the most eminent lecturer in the country on personal and social problems growing out of sex relationships, and his plain, searching and instructive talks had in them an immeasurable character-building power. Especially so did his talks on the true significance of sex and the dangers of narcotics given to all the boys of the two high schools.

Physical Department Activities.

We are now entering on the best season in the history of our physical department. Over two hundred and sixty-two men and boys are making use of its privileges. Nearly two hundred men and boys are enrolled on amateur athletic teams. The extension work of the department has continued to grow in strength and value. In the Plainfield Sunday School Athletic League, organized and directed by the association physical director, Mr. Listman, nine Sunday Schools, represented by two hundred and fifty boys, are enrolled. Eighty high school boys will participate in interscholastic contests to be held in the gymnasium during the season.

An eight-acre athletic field has been acquired by the association. This will be developed as a playground and athletic park for the boys of the city as soon as the necessary funds may be secured. The possession of such a field will enable the association to exercise a wholesome controlling influence in outdoor sports.

Educational Work.

The evening classes maintained during the past year included Mechanical Drawing, orchestra and English for Italian speaking men. These groups had a combined enrollment of fifty-six men, each doing excellent work. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. M. A. Korff, has given a series of free concerts with a total attendance of 2,500. In addition, it furnished music for the Lincoln's Birthday celebration and the Fourth of July celebration.

Boys' Work.

Both the scope and the efficiency of the work of this department have been increased under the direction of its new secretary, Mr. Bingeman. Besides the usual work with school boys in the membership, the association has undertaken to meet the needs of a large class of boys outside the membership who can not join because they are unable to pay even the small fee charged. On two evenings a week, under the supervision of two of the secretaries, a group of twenty-five are allowed the use of all the association privileges. This is preventive work of the most valuable kind, inasmuch as the majority of juvenile delinquents come from the class thus cared for. In a few cases, "big brother" for delinquent boys have been found; the rescue of two boys in this way has been effected.

The boys in the membership, now numbering 131, are better cared for than ever before. With adequate supervision at all times, brightened and newly equipped game and reading rooms, improved locker facilities affording absolute security, and an interesting program of wholesome amusement, athletic enjoyment and service, the department is worthy of the loyal interest of any boy and the fullest confidence of any parent.

Not the least of the privileges offered by the association to its 623 members is that of friendship with men and boys who are worth knowing. The association recognizes the determining influence of fellowship in the building of character, and offers many opportunities for it in connection with the work of its organized groups and classes, and thru informal suppers, socials, and other gatherings. Through the co-operation of the Ladies' Auxiliary, the association parlor has been entirely re-furnished. This room, with its fine open fireplace, is always open to all senor members and is also used frequently as a meeting place by committees and board of other organizations.

Association Support.

The results reported would not have been possible without liberal support on the part of many Christian men and women. The association could not maintain an effective work if it were to depend solely upon the limited resources of its members. Its necessities, however, are not those of a club conducted for the profit and enjoyment of its members, but those of a Christian enterprise serving the young men and boys of the city. Giving to the association's work is, therefore, a Christian service and this support is accompanied by the prayer that whenever its needs are presented to you, they may have the consideration they deserve.

HERBERT E. PARKER,
General Secretary.

LITTLE "REGGIE" SAW CITY ALL BY HIMSELF

Little Reggie Squires thought it would be a fine thing to take a trip all alone, by himself, to the city, which appeared to him to be the biggest thing in a city way that had ever impressed itself on his immature mind, so he wandered away from his home on Clinton avenue Monday afternoon bent on exploring this fine town.

Of course he was reported lost, but he didn't know it and he kept on going until he had rounded Cape Horn as exemplified by the corner of Park avenue and West Front street, and there the swirling currents of traffic untempered by any southerly wind pushed his little craft across the seething seas of moving humanity and landed him close to Brokaw's creamery on East Front street. From there he was steered due west until he was safely anchored at home. This is the first voyage of exploration that Reggie ever took and it is safe to say he won't go on another without a pilot.

PLAN GENERAL STRIKE AS SENTENCE PROTEST.

Plans for a general strike of wage-earners throughout the country for a period of two weeks, beginning on the day the officers of the American Federation of Labor are imprisoned for contempt of court, were suggested in Philadelphia, yesterday at a meeting of the Central Labor Union. Resolutions favoring the scheme were unanimously adopted by the union, which represents about 75,000 workers in many lines of employment.

Copies of the resolutions were sent to the convention of the American Federation of Labor, now in session in Toronto, Canada, and it was decided to appoint a committee of five to perfect plans by which general and unorganized wage-workers would unite to make the strike effective.

New Missiles for Weddings.

It is quite singular how of late years a decided objection to the ancient custom of rice and slipper throwing after the bride and bridegroom has sprung up, so much so that several comparatively new ideas have of late come almost universally into vogue.

Instead of the hard rice pellets, which occasionally are thrown with too much vehemence to be pleasant, some brides go in for substituting the tiniest ladies' slippers as well as horseshoes made of soft silver paper. These resemble a sparkling shower of silver. Other brides lean to providing their friends with dried rose or other sweet smelling things to be thrown after them.—The Gentlewoman.

Congress of Mothers.

The New Jersey Congress of Mothers held its ninth annual meeting at the Trenton Hitch School, Trenton, on Friday and Saturday. The Mothers' association of Plainfield was represented by Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, Mrs. William Sanford, Jr., Mrs. S. H. Woodruff, Mrs. G. S. Simmons and Mrs. George B. Wean.

Canna Bulbs Free.

Last year L. V. F. Randolph gave away to his friends and neighbors and the public generally several thousand canna bulbs. He has now about two thousands bulbs and will give them to the earliest applicants.

ELECT MRS. HALL REGENT

Daughter of Julia Ward Howe Heads Continental Chapter, D.A.R.

WAS ALSO CHOSEN DELEGATE.

To Continue High School Prizes—Washington Rock—Memorial Plans Are Reported.

Continental chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at its annual meeting Tuesday at the home of the Misses Sarah and Harriet Manning, at 518 West Front street, elected officers and discussed matters pertaining to the chapter in an informal manner. Officers were elected as follows:

Regent, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall; first vice-regent, Mrs. E. G. Reed; second vice-regent, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen; registrar, Mrs. Charles Leggett; treasurer, Miss Sarah Manning; secretary, Mrs. S. R. Struthers; board of management, Miss Harriet Manning, Mrs. N. C. Currie, Mrs. D. H. Rowland, Mrs. C. S. Rocap.

As delegate to the next national congress, which will be held at Washington, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall was selected, and the Misses Sarah and Harriet Manning named as alternates.

Three new members were elected and two members were dismissed to othr chapters. The newly elected members are Mrs. George A. Seyfreis, of this city, Mrs. Sarah Clark Provoost, and Mrs. H. J. Babin, the wife of Admiral Babin, of the United States Navy.

The chapter voted to continue the standing prize to borough school pupils for the best essay on American history.

The committee on the proposed Washington Rock memorial reported progress.

MERCHANTS RE-ELECT FORCE AS PRESIDENT

Officers were nominated and the annual banquet committee appointed at the November meeting of the Plainfield's Merchants' Association, Monday. The election will be held in January. These officers were nominated without opposition:

Sentiment for Husbands.

"When a man really loves his wife he ought to confine all his nicest sentiments toward other women into one big sentiment for her."

"He should show her the respect he feels toward his mother, the politeness he shows other women and the responsibility he feels toward his sister."

"In all of that he should add the great love he should feel for a wife."

A Progressive Euchre.

Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Commercial Travelers, will hold a progressive euchre on Saturday evening in its council chambers over Drake's Business College. The committee reports a big sale of tickets.

SERVANT LOOTED HOUSE

Former Crittenden Home Inmate Suspected of the Theft.

HEERING FAMILY THE VICTIMS.

Almost Everything Movable Is Missing from a Sherman Avenue Residence.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Heeron on Serman avenue, just outside the city limits, was completely stripped of valuables shortly after luncheon Monday afternoon. A servant, Mrs. Margaret Reiger, has disappeared. She is suspected of having taken the booty. This is substantiated by the fact that the servant's old clothes and hats were found at the house, while everything else was taken.

The theft was discovered Monday night, when Miss Minnie Christoffersson, who boards with the Heerons, returned from her work at the Woodhull & Martin Company store. She found the house locked and for a time was unable to get inside. When she did she was amazed to find everything ransacked.

A search through the rooms showed that there had been a general "clean up." The booty included everything in the clothing line, underwear, jewelry, umbrellas, pocketbooks, rings, hats, cloaks, and in fact nothing but the heavy furnishings remain. It is the opinion that a horse and wagon must have been employed to carry the stuff away. There is no clue to the woman's whereabouts, although it is the belief that she will be easily found.

As an opportune time was taken to make the theft complete Mr. Heeron was in Philadelphia on business, while Mrs. Heeron was out of town on a visit and not expected home until last night, and Miss Christoffersson was also away from the house during the greater part of the day. She was home for luncheon and everything was all right then. The sudden disappearance of the servant leaves no doubt in the minds of the family that she is the guilty one, and every effort will be made to locate her as soon as possible. Today it was necessary for the family to purchase new clothing before they could leave the house, as all of the necessary wearing apparel was taken.

Mrs. Margaret Reiger, who gave her age as twenty-one years, is a widow, and prior to being engaged by the Heerons a month ago was an inmate of the Crittenden Home in Newark. She was recommended to the Heerons by a friend of the family and she had every appearance of being honest and trustworthy. During her short stay she became strongly attached to the members of the family and was never suspected of being dishonest.

The robbery was not reported to the Plainfield police, because the family is out of the city, but a member of the household said today that she would take the matter up with the police of Dunellen.

MONROE AVENUE CHURCH RAISES $630 IN FEW MINUTES.

For the purpose of meeting certain church needs the members of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, adopted a novel method on Sunday to raise money. The sum of $570 was required and the scheme worked so well that $630 was subscribed. A large chart was marked off in squares, each one representing a different amount.

The congregation was then asked to purchase these squares, which they did promptly. The money was raised after an earnest sermon by the pastor, Rev. C. S. Kemble on the theme, "Every Man His Own Millionaire."

The jury which tried the suit of Solomon Morrell against Minna Preiskel, in Circuit Court at Paterson, rendered a verdict for the plaintiff in the amount of $1,750 yesterday. Mr. Morrell bought a piece of property in Passaic from Mrs. Preiskel, paying $11,500 for it, and after he had improved it he found one of the Passaic city's sanitary drains several feet below the surface. As the transfer stated that the property was free and clear of all incumbrances Mr. Morrell brought suit to recover the damages done to the land by the presence of the drain. The defendants Monday admitted the presence of the drain but the dispute was over the amount of damages that should be paid.

Not a trace of Miss Mae McLaughlin, who left her home in North Woodbury, nearly a week ago, on an errand and failed to return, has been found, although her brother-in-law, James Mitchell, with whom she made her home, has been in constant search, with the aid of officers.

County Detective Lore, of Cumberland county, has gone to Canton, O., to secure Tyler Gibbs, who was arrested there charged with being a fugitive from justice. He was arrested in Bridgeton some months ago charged with falsifying accounts of a construction company, and bail to the amount of $1,000 was furnished by Nathaniel Atkinson, a local liveryman.

DEFECTS OF SOCIALISM

Prof. Daniels Says Big Business Men Could Better Manage Government.

SELF INTEREST IS FIRST.

Princeton's Political Economy Scholar Talks Before the Monday Afternoon Club.

The Monday Afternoon Club in its study of Socialism, having heard three lectures, setting forth the claims of socialism listened Monday to a lecture on "Defects in the Socialist Program," by Winthrop More Daniels, professor of political economy at Princeton University.

Professor Daniels, admitting the different standard on a program that differed in the minds of its representatives, and took the color of the mind through which it passed confined himself to a single aspect of the socialist program, the psychological. The motive of self interest, the lecturer claimed, was the compelling motive of the world's work and the motive of acquisitiveness was not to be discountenanced and reprobated, as socialists would have it. While it is true that mankind responds to altruistic motives Professor Daniels termed it the consummation of folly to claim for them in the world's industries a superiority over the motives of acquisitiveness, which are more constant, more powerful and more intense in their energy.

The competitive instinct, absolutely inadicable, he said, did not engender bitterness if the competition were fair and above board. Most of the heads of large business interests, he added, could manage the government better than it is now done, and he claimed for most of them integrity and honor.

The lecturer closed with a transposition of Saint Bernard's sayings on knowledge. Some desire to be rich for the sake of riches, which is selfishness; some desire to be rich that they may be known as rich, which is base ambition; some desire to be rich that they may sell their riches, which is miserliness; some desire to be rich that they may use riches wisely, which is prudence, and some desire to be rich that they may do good to others, which is charity.

There is a mission training school which is in fine rented building, but it is expected that through the loyal support of the Elizabeth District women to have a new building where the work may be continued uninterruptedly. Miss Hughes' report showed that she saw no Chinese women in any of the mission meetings because up to that time there were no Bible women. Now there are seven of these women and the work of the mission is carried on with satisfaction to everybody.

Miss Hughes said that the hope of evangelizing China is in the women, native mothers who have learned the *meaning of love through the minis*trations of the missionaries. While she is here the women thus instructed will carry on Miss Hughes' work. The audience was greatly moved by Miss Hughes' fervent talk about the Chinese and their needs.

The next convention of the society will be held in St. Paul's Methodist church at Tottenville, Staten Island, in November, 1910.

WINTER IS ON THE WAY, SAYS WEATHER BUREAU.

Rain, snow and disagreeable weather throughout the country generally, and frost in the Gulf and South Atlantic States during the next week or ten days, was the prediction of the weather bureau yesterday. Cooler weather is indicated for the Eastern portion of the country during this time.

Two disturbances are approaching the West. These will be attended by rain in the southern and snow in the northern districts. The first disturbance will advance from the Rocky Mountain St. to the Atlantic coast, starting today in the West and reaching the Atlantic States about Thursday or Friday. The second storm will start on its cross-country run from the Pacific coast about Wednesday and is due to reach the Atlantic seaboard by the Sunday next. Following these disturbances the frost line probably will be carried into the Gulf and South Atlantic States, the weather forecasters declare.

Coming down a hill with a wagonload of furniture at Beverly, a horse belonging to C. H. Chesseman ran away, dashed into a brick house, broke its back and had to be killed.

Dr. Samuel P. POLITICIAN MAY BUY A FAMOUS HOSTELRY

John Harkins, the New Brunswick politician, and former baseball player of note, has taken an option to purchase Thornton's Hotel at New Market. The option it is reported will expire on December 3. The amount of the transaction is said to be close to the $12,000 mark. Mr. Thornton's reason for disposing of the business is due to ill health. The deal is the most important realty transaction in Piscataway township, in some years. It is reported that negotiations are practically completed whereby Harkins will take possession of the place on the above named date. Harkins up to five months ago conducted a cafe in New Brunswick, opposite the Pennsylvania railroad station. This he sold for $35,000.

The hotel, was conducted for years by Lloyd Nelson, and previously by the latter's father, was one of the oldest hostelries in the State. It was erected on the site of an old tavern about 125 years ago which was destroyed by British soldiers during the Revolutionary War period. For years it was known as Nelson's tavern.

John Dent, steward at the Elks' clubhouse, was proprietor of the hosterly about six years ago, when he sold out the business to "Mayor Bill" Smith, when the latter was basking in the limelight, after he received his share of the Fair millions. Smith acted as boniface for only a short period and he later turned the business and property over to his brother-in-law, the present owner and proprietor.

The hosterly is rich in historical history. Ever since its establishment it has been the headquarters for political gatherings and township meetings and elections. In the old days before the ballot box was brought into local elections the citizens of Piscataway township gathered there and voted on public questions of the old colonial standing system. Those voting in the affirmative side of questions would take their position in a line on the right side of the street while those voting in the negative would line up on the left hand side of the street.

Harkins, the prospective proprietor of the old inn, is well known to Plainfielders and in the world of baseball. In the early days of the old Crescents in the early '90's will remember how he terrorized the batters of the local team when rivalry was keen in this city and Somerville on the diamond.

It is reported that Harkins intends to make a number of improvements to the hotel and will make a special effort to establish a halfway headquarters for automobilists.

DAILY PRESS CARTOONS ARE NOW IN BOOK FORM

The cartoons which appeared daily from early in June to the middle of last month in The Daily Press, have been collected in book form by H. B. Thomson, of New York, and are being delivered to the many subscribers in this city. The cartoons, have received such wide-spread commendation and the witty jingles furnished them by Judge Wm. N. Runyon, are in keeping with the subject of each picture. Many of the cartoons are the work of Peter G. Thomson, of Brooklyn, who is recognized as one of the foremost men in the profession in that city.

The book is being delivered by the compiler and he says that in place of one, in many instances the order has been increased to five copies. The book is handsomely bound in flexible calf and is a masterpiece of the bookbinder's art. Ninety familiar faces are depicted.

Interment was made at St. Mary's cemetery, the casket being borne to the grave by Patrick Muldoon, Edward Smith, James Whelan, James McAvoy, Richard Waldron and Peter Galbraith. Sixteen carriages were in the funeral procession to the cemetery.

A large delegation from Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, attended the service and the council also gave a beautiful floral tribute. The pall-bearers were Patrick Muldoon, Edward Smith, James Whalen, James McAvoy, Richard Waldron and Peter Galbraith.

Digging Wells Deeper.

The wells at the Plainfield-Union Water Company's plant in the Netherwood section are being sunk deeper. This is made necessary because the rainfall during the last two years has not been up to the record. The present drought is largely responsible for the water company's activities.

CAMPANARI HEARD HERE

Famous Baritone's Only Appearance Outside of Grand Opera.

HANS KRONOLD'S WORK FINE.

Joseph McIntyre Superb as Accompanist—Exceptional Audience Charmed With Program.

For appreciation, enthusiasm and brilliance the audience which crowded the high school auditorium last Monday to attend the song recital of Signor Guiseppe Campanari, arranged by Mr. Joseph McIntyre, exceeded all bounds and accorded this great artist a welcome second only to those vouchsafed him when he appears at the Metropolitan Opera House.

When the announcement was first made that Campanari was to appear in Plainfield it was accompanied by the statement that he had forsaken grand opera for the concert stage. This was true; but only yesterday Andreas Dippie, administrating director of the Metropolitan Opera House, realizing the void Campanari's desertion had caused in the ranks of his song birds, re-engaged him and at his own terms. Therefore Campanari's first and last appearance on the concert stage this season was made before a Plainfield audience.

Rarely has an artist received so vociferous a reception and rarely has an artist of Campanari's calibre responded so graciously and so generously. Several of his best numbers he repeated, among them, of course, the Toreador song from Carmen which he rendered with all the vim and fire of a victorious bull fighter. Could Calve have but been present to sing its ditie role Plainfield's cup of happiness would have been full to the brim, for Campanari was at his best.

His repertoire included twelve numbers, many of these were Italian and Spanish songs of the old and modern schools, while three were operatic gems such as "The Serenade," from Don Giovani, "Non piu andrai" from the Marriage of Figaro and the Toreador song. One especially delightful and graceful number was Buzzi-Peccia's "Lolita," and so delightfully was it rendered that after allowing the rapturous applause to subside Campanari sang it again with equal charm and effect.

Harold Land has appeared to better advantage and it is extremely doubtful if he ever sang to an audience more appreciative.

It had been the purpose of Mr. McIntyre to present to his Plainfield patrons Mr. Lichstein, a young Russian violinist, who comes highly to this country heralded as one of Europe's most finished artists. Illness overtook Mr. Lichstein yesterday and at the last moment he telegraphed that he was ill. By a stroke of rare good luck Mr. McIntyre communicated with Hans Kronold, the 'cellist, and he consented to appear. No sooner had Kronold caressingly drawn the first few notes from his mellow old instrument than his audience settled back in its chairs, content and well realizing that a fine artist was before it. The reception tendered Kronold was enthusiastic, and he too, was compelled to repeat several of his numbers. Not only is he an artist of ability, but a composer as well, two of his numbers being his own. His "The Religeuse" was sweet and dainty and contained a wealth of exquisite melody, while his "Spinning Wheel" afforded his excellent technique and execution full scope. His concluding number Chopin's Nocturne, was one of the most beautiful of the evening.

After last night's concert, Campanari was enthusiastic in his praises of Joseph McIntyre as an accompanist. He warmed up on his subject when telling how clever the pianist is and declared that he considered Mr. McIntyre the equal of any accompanist he had ever come in contact with. In fact he said that he was the best.

THANKSGIVING IS HERE

City and Borough School Children Observe the Festal Occasion.

ELABORATE CELEBRATIONS.

Rev. L. R. Howard and Rev. George A Warner Make Addresses To High School Pupils.

Thanksgiving's advent was heralded by song and story by hundreds of pupils in city and borough schools today. In nearly all of the institutions elaborate programs marked the exercises of the approaching holiday, while in some of the schools, celebrations were conducted in the classrooms under the direction of teachers. At the conclusion of the celebrations all of the schools closed their doors to reopen again next Monday.

A marked feature of the observance at the city high school was the presentation of a program which consisted of poems, stories and declamations, which were representative of the literary genius of the pupils. This part of the program included the following selections:

Poem, "Thanksgiving," by Miss Elsie Bird; story, "Thanksgiving at Dr. Birnbaum's," Miss Oulda Hetfield; "The Turkey's Thanksgiving Sprint," by Wilbur Tovell; poem, "The Tale of the Pumpkin," Miss Helen Pierce; story, "That Turkey," Sewall Ulrich; story, "Alphonse Le Despote, Miss Kathryn Stalnck; a composition, "A Dictionary Dissertation," by Alfred Clarke; "The Modern Pilgrims, as written by Miss Katherine Moynihan, was recited by Miss Kathleen Phillips.

Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope Chapel, made an address to the pupils, in which he referred to old fashioned celebrations in the early days of New England. A number of anthems were rendered by the school. The musical program also included a solo by Clyde Doane.

Bryant School.

An attractive program was presented by the pupils at Bryant school this morning. The singing was spirited and the recitations and declamations were cleverly rendered.

"November and the sad little maids," was an interesting tale of Thanksgiving. Participating in this dialogue were Margaret Hanson, Marguerite Johnson, Florence Brick, Helen Wooton, Helen Sanllippo, Beatrice Waters, Helen Scribner, Jennie Peacock, Elsie Dayton, Elsie Townley, May Martone, Nannie Brinkley, Maud Edell, Marie Walsh and Jennie Dayton.

"Facts about the turkey" were presented by Irving Wilsale, Margaret Dealing, Harold Seal, Hazel Edell and Ethel Dendell. "The Martyr St. Turkey" was told by Dorothy White, Mildred Clark, Elizabeth Moyer, Charlotte Taylor and Helen Edwards.

Isabel Harvey read a story entitled "The Wild Turkey" and Thanksgiving recitations were given by Arthur Dayton and Daniel Clarke. In addition to the rendition of patriotic songs Charlotte Verscheur rendered several violin selections. The exercises concluded with a salute to the Stars and Stripes by the entire school.

Irving School.

Under the direction of Miss Genevieve Petrie, principal, an interesting program was rendered at the Irving School, consisting of recitations and appropriate musical selections. Recitations were given by Alice Kelly, Marion Stine, Constance Durrant and Elizabeth Lawson.

The Thanksgiving Proclamation was read by Florence Boulter; "Thanksgiving Pop Corn" was the title of a song given by Madeline Davis, Jessie Ross, Elsie Leigh, Eleanor Blake, Theodore Seals and Kenneth Spratt. There was a violin solo rendered by Albert Rowe and a Thanksgiving exercise given by the pupils of Fifth Grade B. Helen Able also recited.

Stillman Grammar School.

Appropriate exercises were held in the Stillman Grammar School. A most interesting part of the program was the portrayal of scenes of "The Courtship of Miles Standish," which were presented by Elston Hoagland, taking the part of Standish; Murdock Hetfield, as John Alden, while Jennie Peacock characterized Priscilla. There were two scenes in the presentation, the home of Miles Standish, and the home of Priscilla.

Piano selections from the opera of Martha were rendered in an exquisite manner by Justin Baker. Margaret Tubbs also rendered a solo, "Come ye thankful, people come." Carter Goodrich also read an essay on Early Thanksgivings.

Borough Schools.

Appropriate exercises also marked the celebrations in the borough schools. At the high school anthems

Prominent Plainfield Democrats will hold a meeting here tonight to consider a proposition submitted by The Elizabeth Evening Times to give the party representation in this city. Invitations have been issued to Democrats to be present at the meeting tonight, when Editor William Russell, of the Times, will explain the proposition. It is expected that a decision will be reached at that time. Among those who are interested in the plan is Frank Shattle, of this city.

WAR AGAINST CIGARETTES

Middlesex County Authorities Will Stop Sale of "Coffin Tacks" to Boys.

BETTER CONDITIONS HERE.

Campaign on at Dunellen and New Market—Grand Jury Will Act at Next Session.

War has been declared on the cigarette by Middlesex County authorities. Storekeepers at Dunellen are considerably exercised over the presence in that borough during the past few days of a detective from New Brunswick, who was engaged in collecting evidence which will be used in an effort to prosecute storekeepers who have been in the habit of selling the "coffin tacks" indiscriminately to minors.

While stationed at Dunellen and New Market the detective, it is said, secured the names of a number of youths who experienced no trouble in purchasing cigarettes. These boys, it is said, will appear before the grand jury next week.

The task of collecting evidence was conducted quietly, not only at Dunellen and New Market, but in other sections of the county. It is the general impression that the movement to enforce the law is backed up strongly by the Middlesex County W. C. T. U. and also the county educational authorities.

A member of the Dunellen school board admitted yesterday to a Daily Press reporter that a campaign is on to stop the sale of cigarettes to schoolboys, and that the school authorities are assisting in the fight. He said that the cigarette smoking evil was one of the worst with which the teachers had to contend, and that there was absolutely no trouble in picking out the children who were slaves to the habit. Almost without exception they were the boys who were stupid in their studies.

Inquiry at the city and borough schools as to local conditions today made it plain that the law here is generally observed by storekeepers, although they are a few scattering violations now and then.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the city schools, is speaking on the subject of cigarette evil, stating that many boys smoked cigarettes, but the law in this city was fairly well adhered to. He said whenever a case came to his knowledge that a minor was purchasing cigarettes, he has secured the names of the sellers, and issued warnings to them. This course, he said, had always been effective against the further sale of cigarettes to the boys involved.

Superintendent Henry C. Krebs, of the borough schools, declared there was little abuse of the law in that municipality. He admitted that occasionally violations had come under his notice, but conditions were generally good. Mr. Krebs also said that the Somerville authorities have instigated a anti-cigarette war, and that it was not unlikely that all schools in the county, would follow the example sooner or later.

COLORED HIGHWAYMAN USED WHEEL IN THE GETAWAY.

While returning to her home at 449 West Fifth street at about 6 o'clock last night, Miss DeKlyn was accosted by a "tall colored man" and robbed of the black hand-bag which she was carrying. The bag contained a small amount of money.

The highwayman seized the bag when he met Miss DeKlyn near the railroad bridge on Central avenue. According to the woman's story, she narrowly escaped being run down by the man as he rode out of an alley on a bicycle. Seeing her, he stopped and approaching her, seized the bag, and jumping on his wheel, rode rapidly away. Miss DeKlyn was too frightened to scream and can give no description of the man, aside from the fact that he is tall and slightly built. She went to a nearby house and told of the hold-up and the police were notified by telephone. No arrest has been made. There was less than a dollar in the bag.

Jaunt for Y. M. C. A. Boys.

The second "hike" of the season for the members of the Boy's Department and their friends will be held Thanksgiving morning. The boys will meet at the building and leave promptly at nine o'clock for a cross country tramp. A level spot will be chosen along the line where the boys will be led in a few games by Mr. Charles Line. The Association's yells and the new "Service Song" will be rehearsed and following the walk they will take a dip in the plunge and be ready for a big dinner at the different homes.

—Neuman Brothers' store will be closed all day tomorrow, Thanksgiving Day.

SERVICES OF TOMORROW

Observance of Thanksgiving in Churches and Schedule of Sports.

MEMORIAL MASS TO BE SAID.

Hunt Club Run, Soccer Football Contests, Basketball and a Shooting Match.

Thanksgiving Day will be generally observed in Plainfield, as usual, when the people will devote the time to attending various services in the morning, and throughout the rest of the day there will be sports and varied entertainment throughout the city and borough. The merchants of the city will close for the entire day, according to custom, and The Daily Press will not be issued. There will be numerous private dinner parties and in many instances family reunions will be the order.

There will be a union service of several churches at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, when Rev. Dr. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will preach the sermon. Other ministers will take part in this service.

The usual services will be held in the Episcopal and Catholic churches. At Grace church there will be morning prayer with sermon by the rector, Rev. R. Vicars Stevenson, at 10:30 o'clock. At St. Stephen's church, there will be holy communion at 7:30, and morning prayer with sermon by the rector, Rev. Morgan Ashley, at 9:30 o'clock. There will be holy communion at the Church of the Holy Cross at 7:30 o'clock, and at 10 o'clock morning prayer with sermon by the rector, Rev. George A. Warner.

Thanksgiving celebrations in St. Mary's church will begin at 6:30 a. m., when mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Vincent Sciolla.

The pupils of St. Mary's parochial schools will assemble in the church at 8 o'clock for religious exercises in keeping with the spirit of the day. A Mass of Thanks will be celebrated by the Rev. Daniel F. Hogan during which the children will render hymns of praise and thanksgiving. The music of the mass will be rendered by the Junior choir and the Rev. Bernard M. Boyle will follow with a short sermon befitting the occasion.

A mass in memorial for the dead members of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, will be celebrated by the Rev. Daniel F. Hogan will be the celebrant, assisted by Father Hogan, as deacon, and Father Sciolla, as sub deacon.

The solemn chant will be conducted under the direction of Miss Mary A. Smith, the church organist, while the rendition of the vocal parts will be made by a selected choir from Watchung Council.

P.H.S. HAS ANOTHER FRAT.

Mu Sigma Boys Rival Rival Delta Phi and "Black Handers."

THEY HOLD "BIG FEEDS."

Principal Best Ignores Two New School Greek Letter Clubs, Despite Recent Agitations.

O tempora, O mores! There's another Greek letter fraternity at the Plainfield High School. And a second organization, known in its embryonic state as "The Black Hand," may soon select a more classic name and its members appear at school with calabastic signs of pin and hat.

But the "Black Handers" are said to be mostly freshmen and current Hellenic laurels must go to the Mu Sigmas, who have already selected their pins. Even its members don't recognize it by that name, because the Greek lexicon didn't give the pronunciation of the two mystic letters selected by the organizers as "the most frat-looking" in the alphabet.

The boys call themselves "The Wing-Wang's"—a term derived directly from the original Greek—and there are about twenty-five of them. Among them are several who were most envious of the Sigma Delta Phi boys, when they appeared at school about two years ago with the white hats and Greek bill-board hat bands. The Wing-Wang's organized nearly a month ago and the roll includes prominent members of the senior and junior classes. It has as yet not been active as an organization in school politics.

When Sigma Delta Phi organized, Principal Best Travell brought the matter of school fraternities before the members of the Board of Education, and each and every School Father frowned on such organizations. Sigma Delta Phi still flourishes and holds regular meetings, the members say, but there are now only two undergraduate members.

Although both the "Wing-Wangs" and the "Black Handers' post notices of their meetings on the school bulletin board, and although the fraternities looked up the letters on Mr. Its badge in the school lexicon and held its organization meeting in one of the class room, Principal Lindsey Best has ignored the organization. There are no by-laws or constitution, it is said, but a feature of each meeting is a "big feed." "What harm," the boys say.

WM. C. CARL'S NEXT ORGAN RECITAL.

The list includes Bach's famous "God Goth Up," for baritone solo and chorus, and Motets by Vittoria, Wermann, Arcadelt, Rousseau, Franck and Guilmant. Andre Sarto, baritone, recently of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will appear. The concert is free to the public; no tickets required.

SNAKEBITE AND WHISKEY

Another Popular Theory is Smashed in Mr. Williams' "Truth About Snakes."

TUCKABACHEE CLASS LECTURE.

Only Two Varieties of Poisonous Reptiles in New Jersey—Copperhead and Rattler.

A novel entertainment was enjoyed at the Congregational church last evening under the auspices of Mr. McClymont's class of boys in the Sunday-school. The class was organized is called the Tuckabachee Class, which is from an Indian name meaning "Add one and stick together." The class had arranged for the snake expert, Allen S. Williams, of New York, to lecture. Mr. Williams showed the unreasonableness of the popular antipathy to snakes and the general fear of them, maintaining that they are clean, good natured, easily tamed and should be treated in a friendly manner. There are only two kinds in New Jersey that are venomous; the copperhead and the rattlesnake. Both are slow moving snakes and not disposed to attack. Both have flattened arrow-shaped heads.

The rattlesnake is known by its rattle, the copperhead by its copper-color and saddle-shaped markings. Some other kinds of the larger snakes can bite in a feeble sort of a way, but their bites have no venom and are not as dangerous as the scratch of a cat. If one is bitten by a snake there will appear two red spots if the bite is from a venomous snake.

Mr. Williams declared that the popular remedy for snake-bite, whiskey, is wholly useless. The proper course to pursue if bitten by a poisonous snake is to prevent the flow of poisoned blood to the heart by making a ligature bound as closely as possible about the bittet member; then suck out the blood; making slits in a penknife by the wound will make this more effective; then as quickly rub permanganate of potash into the wound.

After showing many stereopticon views, Mr. Williams produced seven live living snakes from bags and exhibited them to the audience. Selecting a seven-year-old boy, who seemed to have a readiness for the experiment he gave him one snake after another to handle and place about his neck and then put back into the bag. The lad showed no fear and boy and snakes in combination afforded the audience much amusement. Some of the snakes were four or five feet in length and very prettily marked.

The proceeds of the entertainment are to be used for Thanksgiving dinners for the poor.

SHOOTING SQUIRRELS SHOOTS HIMSELF.

It was a curious accident that happened to Marcus Waldron, of Carlton avenue, the fifteen-year-old sportsman who shot himself in the foot on Monday. Young Waldron had been hunting squirrel and having shot one, wounding it, he noticed a fire of leaves at the entrance of a hole in the tree in which the little animal had taken refuge. Assured that the squirrel was dead Waldron stood his rifle up against the tree and stooping down attempted to pull the squirrel from the hole. As he bent down the gun, cocked for another victim, fell over and was discharged. The shots entered his foot mutilating the first and second toes of the right foot.

Young Waldron was able to mount his horse and return home after receiving "first aid" from a chum.

Among those at last night's meeting were United States Senator John Kean, J. William Clark, Frederick Frelinghuysen, Benjamin Acker, Dr. Leslie Ward, former Senator James Smith, P. EPWORTH LEAGUERS ENJOY OLD FASHIONED SOCIAL

Under the auspices of the social committee of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, of which Miss Helen Whitney is the chairman, there was held an old-fashioned country social in Vincent chapel night. The young women appeared in genuine country style with their sunbonnets and gingham dresses and aprons, while the men came in overalls, straw hats, etc., presenting a picturesque picture.

The evening was taken up playing all kinds of old-fashioned country games, and an art exhibit was a feature. "Sweet Sixteen," was represented by sixteen lumps of sugar, but fortunately this information did not reach the Government authorities who are investigating the "Sugar Trust." "An Open Letter" was represented by a large letter "O," and there were many other equally good features. This was in charge of Miss Ethel Pryor.

Candy and peanuts were distributed and one of the happy diversions enjoyed were the several see-saws. It was an informal and enthusiastic gathering and the affair was considered one of the best of the kind ever held. Refreshments of yee olden times helped to make the social complete.

SCRIBE MAKING FORTUNE

"Lew" Thomas Strikes Gold as a Trader in the Philippines.

PILING UP HIS WEALTH FAST.

Former Plainfield Reporter As a Trader with Filipinos Soon To Be a Millionaire.

Lewis Thomas, of Dunellen, formerly a local newspaperman, is rapidly making a fortune in the Philippine Islands according to letters written by Thomas to his relatives and friends at Dunellen. A couple of days ago Wilson Frederick received an interesting letter from Thomas in which he said: "Well, old boy, when I blow into old Dunellen again I expect to be a millionaire. I am having all kinds of luck and am getting rich as quick as chain lightning."

Thomas, at the present time is engaged in the trading business on the Island of Luzon. He is gathering in the shekels in trading United States products in the natives for sugar, coffee, furs and tobacco, chiefly. According to reports there is a big margin of profit to be made in the swapping business with the Filipinos, and Thomas is "making hay while the sun shines." In a recent letter to a friend at Dunellen, Thomas modestly admits that he made close to $25,000 in one little deal.

Mr. Thomas left Dunellen about eight years ago. When Uncle Sam advertised for 300 school teachers Thomas quit his reportorial position on a local paper and went to Manila. The school teaching business, however, proved a bit slow for the energetic "Lew" and after one year's work in that capacity he resigned from the service and engaged with a large American mercantile house.

At his new vocation he was successful. The position carried him to remote parts of the islands and chiefly to the Island of Luzon, where he is now located. Thomas readily acquired a good knowledge of the business methods of the natives and this alone explains his big success.

While Thomas has been engaged wholly in business enterprises during the past seven years he has had a chain of thrilling experiences on the different islands he has visited, especially after the period of unrest after the Spanish-American war.

In his letters Mr. Thomas is lavish in praises of Uncle Sam in the methods employed in bringing about many wonderful improvements since that country was wrested from Spanish rule. Thomas declares, while there was some hostility to American sway on the part of the Filipinos at first, all of it has passed away.

Thomas is a graduate of Princeton University.

WHITE PLAGUE MEETING HERE ON DECEMBER 14

When the committee on publicity from the Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis, met at the office of Dr. F. E. DuBois Friday, Miss Mabelle Phillips, who was appointed to secure speakers for the mass meeting to be held at the Plainfield High School auditorium on Tuesday night, Dec. 14, reported that the following would probably be present.

Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf, one of the foremost authorities on tuberculosis and the author of the book, "Tuberculosis, a Preventable and Curable Disease," a copy of which can be found at the public library; Dr. James Miller, who is in charge of the tuberculosis wards at Bellevue Hospital; Homer Folks, secretary of the Charitable Aid Society of the State of New York; Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, whose interest in the work is well-known and who is the chairman of the State commission appointed by Governor Fort to consider the subject. There will also be local speakers.

The purpose of the meeting is to interest the residents of Plainfield in both the means for prevention of the spread of tuberculosis by those already suffering from the disease and the best method of treatment of those affected and to appeal for financial support of the sanatorium, which has been erected on the hospital ground.

Efforts will be made to secure a city-wide membership. Those desiring to assist in the work are requested to send $1 the annual membership charge to J. P. Murray, 737 Watchung avenue.

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

The form of superfine language is getting to be a virtual confession that we are either losing, or ashamed of, our mother tongue. A swimming bath calls itself a natatorium, in Chicago a theatre is an auditorium, our linen must be laundried, laundered, or anything equally elegant, now that washing is vulgar. We see our public "sports" in the stadium now, give our carriages Frenchified names, and revel in horseless spectacles in a sham Hippodrome. What a treat it is to dwell in a place of city dignity and garden beauty, that bears its natural plain English name with quiet pride and lives up to the modern ideal of an Eden town. To one of the none too numerous tribe of ancient Druids, who love old Mother Nature above all the fal de rals of the sons and daughters of Art, this Plainfield, with its thousand lives and homes nestling in groves and sheltering trees, allures with the charm of a restful paradise after the demoniac din of the rock-crushing, heart-racking torture machine called New York.

Last week's joyous outbreak of sunshine recalled a famous Gipsy wedding in another plain field long ago and far away. The hardy patriarch skipped in the merry dance as lightly as if he had been the twin of his dancing bride in her teens, and here came grim November in his nineties capering with juvenile June, all forgetful that her sunny flirt with him will die with the turnkeys. So, even more fascinatingly than in summertide when sunshine is common, verging on superfluity, the Druid blood was set a-tingling and feet a-fidgeting to roam the pleasances of Plainfield, the good town whose people are in happy ignorance of the ups and downs of life. Their crooked places have been made straight and their ways are all smooth. One was sure that the natives must all be of the Walker family, and it was a bit of a shock to note that there is actually a mixture of Wheelers, Rydens, Stokers, and even a few Swifts. Now this is a sad sight for the ghosts of the old Druids who ironed out the once crumbled field and made it plain that health, happiness and long life are the heritage of the wise Walkers.

Charming, too, was last week's revival of the ancient Druidical mysteries. As one lovingly threaded the leafless aisles of Uncle Sam in the methods employed in bringing about many wonderful improvements since that country was wrested from Spanish rule. Thomas declares, while there was some hostility to American sway on the part of the Filipinos at first, all of it has passed away.

Moving Picture Entertainment.

The North Plainfield High School Athletic Association has arranged to conduct a moving picture entertainment at Debele's Hall on the evening of December 4.

Interesting, very. Here stands a church, Crescent Avenue church. Was it a minister, or a loyal deacon, who in naming the streets did so to the honor and glory of his favorite preacher? Just past the church we arrive at First Place, so does the preacher in his preachment. Then comes Second Place, and then Third and last Place. But the crescendo of Crescent avenue solaces the slight feet upon the dwellers in Second and Third, reminding them of the prophecy that the last shall be first.

As we recall certain notorious cases in courts of what is supposed to be just justice, the wonder grows that so smart a nation as this does not do away with courts number one, two and three, and hold the first trial in the last court. The waste of legal talent is ridiculous, the waste of public money is shocking, but the waste of public respect and faith is tragical. Once upon a time it used to be a wicked sneer to say that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. But now, on our twentieth century pinnacle of blessed Progress, the libellous sneer has come to be a universally admitted fact and scandal. What's the remedy? Doctors' prescriptions are not the actual medicine, Pulpits, forums, editorial sanctums, and the million oracles of the streets, clubs and dinner tables are handing out splendidly worded prescriptions. Who takes them to be filled? Does the right drug store exist? If it does, can the owner advise us to hand out the remedy? Who is to administer it?

WOOD'S ANNUAL VISIT

Congressman Meets His Somerset County Constituents Today.

HE LISTENS TO THEIR VIEWS.

No Objections to His Course at Washington—He Receives Many Compliments.

Representative Ira W. Wood, of the Fourth New Jersey district, spent Saturday at the Hotel Kensington parlors in conference with his North Plainfield constituents as is his annual custom. This afternoon he will complete his tour of Somerset county, after visits to Bound Brook, Somerville and adjacent districts. He is accompanied by his secretary.

Many prominent boroughites greeted the Congressman when he appeared here and warmly commended him for his record at Washington. Not one objected to his course in any matter of National moment. He was highly complimened on his custom of appearing annually before his constituents.

"I realize that it is impossible for my constituents to spare the time every year to meet me in Washington, and besides it would not be just to expect them. So I have solved the matter by coming to all of once a year, at their own homes. This I do to learn their views on current political matters. I am their servant and therefore to properly represent them I must know their opinions on matters of great moment. That is why I am here today. You see every year I go about my district and get in touch with the people. When I get to Washington I know just where by people stand and I can act accordingly. See the point?"

The representative of The Daily Press told the congressman that he did see the point and that his methods were highly creditable.

Gathered about the Congressman at the Hotel Washington this morning were a group of boroughites. They asked him many questions and he answered frankly and fully. No objection was heard to anything he had done at Washington but many were the praises heard.

"I want to do what you want me to do," said the Congressman, "and it is up to you to give my the why and wherefore."

DUNELLEN OFFICIALS TAKE OATH OF OFFICE.

Successful candidates at the recent election at Dunellen were sworn in at a special meeting of the Common Council of that place Thursday. They included Mayor-elect William A. Sanford, Councilmen Robert F. Bogardus and Charles E. Richards, Assessor H. L. Pratt and Tax Collector Isaac Stites. The newly elected officials were administered the oath of office by Borough Clerk Abner S. Coriell, Jr.

The Council also settled the controversy with the New York Telephone Company by accepting a resolution which gives permission to the corporation to attach its wires to poles belonging to the P. S. C. Such being the arrangement the company were obliged to erect only two poles.

NEW CATHOLIC EDIFICE

St. Joseph's Parish is Planning to Erect Finer House of Worship.

ITS COST MAY REACH $40,000.

Increase in Congregation Makes New Building Necessary—Father Miller Admits Project is Underway.

Having outgrown their present edifice, the members of St. Joseph's church, of the north borough, are laying plans for the erection of a new church with a seating capacity of 1,000 persons.

The church now has seating accommodations for about 600, but as there are more than 1,200 communicants, the space is not ample to supply the members that attend the Sunday morning masses.

Father Miller when questioned on the matter today by a Daily Press reporter, said: "Yes, it is true that our congregation is contemplating erecting a new church, but no definite plans are yet completed, but it is certain that we will have a new edifice in one or two years."

A leading communicant of St. Joseph's in talking on the subject to a Daily Press man today said that a new stone church will be erected here at a cost of between $25,000 and $40,000.

The tea and bazaar held Friday afternoon under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., was liberally patronized and a generous sum was made for the fund to endow a bed at Muhlenberg Hospital. The affair held in Masonic Hall two banquet rooms, which were attractively decorated by the women. It opened at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and continued until 10 o'clock at night.

In addition to the money received from the sale of useful articles, cake and home-made candy, a silver offering was received at the door. In this way the receipts exceeded expectations.

In the tea room everything was Japanese, the decorations and Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Mrs. Elizabeth Woodhard, Miss Elizabeth Jarrett and Miss Edna Hyatt, who were in charge wore Japanese costumes. Miss Hazel Williams was a flower girl, while the Misses Anna and Ray Warnock were sachet and chrysanthemum girls.

Those in charge of the candy booth were dressed in Dutch costumes, and one presiding were Mrs. James Shores Pray, Miss Lalla Druse, the Misses rGace, Eleanore and Mabel Stutsman. Mrs. Edward A. Laing appeared as a Spanish girl.

A feature was the appearance of Madame Fortuna and Madame Nemo, who delighted all telling fortunes and displaying their powers in palmistry, occultism, etc. They did a rushing business during the afternoon and evening.

The decorations consisted chiefly of American flags, bunting and flowers.

DUTCH ARMS AIDING MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL.

At the meeting of the men's club of Trinity Reformed church, Friday night it was decided to join forces with the men's clubs of other churches in this city in a concerted effort to raise funds for Muhlenberg Hospital.

It was first proposed that each club subscribe a certain amount to be paid by the members, but a new scheme was presented to the club last night by Harry Marshall and it was unanimously adopted. It is that all the clubs acting as solicitors for funds shall have the city divided into sections and each member will be assigned to a certain district in which he will make a house to house canvas for funds. In this way the burden will bed istributed fairly and more people will be reached. Morgan Ashley, rector of St. Stephen's church, this city. The house was decorated with a profusion of pink roses and chrysanthemums, many of which had been sent as gifts to the guest of honor. The table was decorated with white chrysanthemums and was presided over by Mrs. William Runkle and Mrs. Alfred B. Jenkins. The affair was purely for East Orange folk.

HOME DEP'T WORK DISCUSSED BY THEM

Under the auspices of the recently-organized home department of Warren chapel Sunday-school, a social gathering was held at the chapel, Thursday, for the members and a few invited friends. The department now has a membership of about forty-five, with ten visitors.

The program last night was in charge of Joseph W. Gavett, superintendent of the Sunday-school. During the evening he introduced F. E. Smith, superintendent of the Trinity Reformed church Sunday school, who gave a helpful and interesting talk on home department work, showing what a benefit it had been not only to his church, but others in the community.

An excellent musical program was rendered to the enjoyment of all. The first number was a vocal solo by Miss Florence Straubel, who sang "Anchored," accompanied by her father on the piano. This was followed with a mandolin and guitar duet by Miss Straubel and Theodore Lupser, and then a 'cello solo by Miss Straubel. The concluding number was a vocal solo by Master Ernest Straubel, aged 10 years. Mr. Straubel was the accompanist for the evening.

After the entertainment an adjournment was taken to the parlors, where games were played, a social time enjoyed and refreshments were served. There were about fifty persons present.

EAST END CHURCH MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT

The first musical entertainment under the auspices of the Netherwood Reformed church, was given in the church Thursday and was a decided success. A large audience gathered, every seat in the edifice being taken. The program was an excellent one throughout.

Vocal solos were rendered by Miss S. Etta Raybert, the soprano soloist of Trinity Reformed church, and James T. Veneklasen, of the New Brunswick Seminary. Two numbers were rendered by a mixed quartet, composed of Miss Maude Bush, Miss Maude Berry, James T. Veneklasen and A. H. Stevenson. Mrs. Una Searles recited several selections, following the piano solos by Mrs. Samuel O. Rush. Miss Raybert was accompanied in her singing by Miss Lillian A. Force on the piano.

That the entertainment was a success, was proven by the generous applause of the audience and every number was encored. The concert is one of several such forms of entertainment that the church has on a firm social and religious standing in the community.

After the entertainment, refreshments were served to those who had taken part in the entertainment and a social time was enjoyed. The concert was of unusual interest, in that it was the first attempt to give such a high-class affair in that community, which is becoming more and more a social and religious centre and shows that the Netherwood Reformed church is filling a long-felt want.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF WEST END TABERNACLE

The third anniversary of the West End Tabernacle was observed at the tabernacle Thursday. There was a large attendance of members and friends to enjoy the program. In the absence of Superintendent Robert Love, who was ill, George Robbins, assistant, was in charge of the program. The report of the Sunday school was read by Frank C. Platt, and Fred Lancaster, tersurer, gave his report. Mrs. H. H. Pennoyer, secretary, and Mrs. Frank C. Platt, treasurer, reported for the Ladies' Aid Society. Mrs. George Robbins is the president.

The program opened with an instrumental selection by Martin A. Korff and Charles Spier, violins, followed by these numbers: Recitations, Mary Norguard, Lillian Titus; reading, Minnie Bibom, vocal solo, Harry Lady; recitation, Mrs. Mattoy, William Leech; vocal solo, Herbert Pennoyer; reading, Harold Rockafellow. Interspersing these numbers the orchestra rendered selections. Th work of the past three years was reviewed and proved encouraging to all the workers. The efforts of Mr. Love were especially praised.

Reception for Fiancee.

A reception was given Thursday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Ashley at their home in East Orange, in honor of Miss Elsie Howell Miller, of Sparkill, N. Y., the fiancee of their son, Rev. Morgan Ashley, rector of St. Stephen's church, this city. The house was decorated with a profusion of pink roses and chrysanthemums, many of which had been sent as gifts to the guest of honor. The table was decorated with white chrysanthemums and was presided over by Mrs. William Runkle and Mrs. Alfred B. Jenkins. The affair was purely for East Orange folk.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS' HEAD

George E. Hall Re-elected President of State Association.

THE CONVENTION HAS CLOSED.

There Were Eight Hundred and Fifty Delegates Present at Annual Meeting at East Orange.

George E. Hall, of this city, was re-elected president of the State Sunday-school association at its session in the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church, Thursday. Evidence of the fact that the Sunday schools of the State are very much alive was given when Edward W. Dunham, of Trenton, treasurer of the organization, in twelve minutes yesterday raised a budget of $7,735. Of this amount Mercer county pledged $500, the largest sum the county has ever contributed.

Treasurer Dunham made a plea for a five-cent appropriation from each member of the Sunday-schools and stated that if this plan was carried out there would be raised a sum amounting to $17,000. He also stated that eighteen counties of the State have received silk flags during the year for paying their appropriations in full, and that this is more than ever before. He reported a balance of $21.68 and remarked that it is the first time in the history of the organization that a balance existed.

There were 725 delegates in attendance yesterday. This number is the largest in the history of the association and by noon today it was reported that 850 were in attendance. During the past year the membership has increased over 700 and while some schools in remote districts have gone out of existence, the schools in large cities have offset the loss.

Rev. E. Morris Fergusson, general secretary, tendered his resignation that he might take up a branch of work with the Presbyterian Board of Publication in Philadelphia. No successor has been chosen as yet. The superintendents' Union held its banquet Thursday when Edward W. Dunham was re-elected president.

REV. T. MOORE-SMITH IN A NEW CHARGE

Rev. T. Moore Smith, formerly pastor of the Baptist church, Scotch Plains, has accepted the call to the pastorate of a Reformed church between Spring Valley and Suffern, N. Y., and left Thursday for that place. The church of which he is to be in charge has a large membership and is in the centre of a prosperous section of the country.

Mr. Smith severed his connection with the Scotch Plains church because of a disagreement between himself and members of the church over a number of prize-winning dogs owned by the parson. The parishioners felt that the minister was devoting too much time to his dogs, the neglect of his pastoral work.

Since that time Mr. Smith has supplied various churches and has also acted as a judge at the big bench shows held throughout the country. He has now decided to return to the ministry. He preached for the church in New York State last summer and made a favorable impression.

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE SUBJECT OF DEBATE

Should women be granted the privilege of voting? This question was debated by the Dutch Arms, the Men's Club of Trinity Reformed church, Friday, and in the opinion of the judges female suffrage, notwithstanding the arguments in its favor, is a long way off. During the evening Dr. Buchanan's "bunch" furnished some delightful music and after the judges had rendered their decision ice cream and cake were furnished the fifty members present.

The question before the debaters was "Resolved, That suffrage should be given women." Russell Doeringer, Edgar F. Sheppard and Charles M. Dolliver took the affirmative, while Harold Schenck, Cornelius Schenck and Fred Smith, Jr., opposed them. The judges were Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, Harry W. Marshall and W. A. Woodruff. Edgar Sheppard summed up for his side and Fred Smith, Jr., did a like service for the negative.

Harold Schenck and his brother were quite ready with their arguments against the women on the grounds of unconstitutionality and termed the idea as a mere expedient.

Will Give Japanese Operatta.

The operatta entitled "The Japanese Girl," to be given by the Cup Bearer's Circle of The Ing's Daughters, on December 9 and 10, will be followed by an informal dance after the last performance. As the reserved seats for that evening are nearly sold, extra seats will be furnished which may be paid for at the door.

MOTHERS CONGRESS WORK

Instructive Talks Heard at Annual Meeting of N. J. Association.

The New Jersey Congress of Mothers held its ninth annual meeting at the Trenton High School on Friday and Saturday, November 12 and 13. The Mothers' association of Plainfield was represented by Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, Mrs. William Sanford, Jr., Mrs. S. H. Voorhees, Mrs. G. S. Simons and Mrs. George B. Wesan.

Friday morning was given over to a meeting of the board of managers. On Friday afternoon an address of welcome was delivered by John Hartpence, president of the Trenton Board of Education, to which the president of the New Jersey Congress Mrs. Thomas B. Holmes, responded.

The principal address was given by Prof. William S. Monroe, of the State Normal School of Montclair, whose subject was "Mental Effort and Mental Fatigue." His main points were these: All effort, mental, as well as physical, causes fatigue, owing to the fact that both forms of effort are brought about and directed by the central nervous system. It is a physiological fact that every act of the day causes an actual diminution or shrinkage of the cells of the brain. This loss in actual size of the individual cells, is, however, made up and normal energy is replenished by rest. When, however, the strain has been too great, the shrinkage can not be entirely replaced.

But effort is necessary to development. The child is born with about as many nerve cells as he will ever have, but exercises and training increase the capacity of these cells and enlarge their power of endurance. It is only the over-strain and the too great fatigue which are injurious. When active cells are replaced beyond a certain point they break up and disappear and are gone forever. Over-fatigue is a danger also, because it produces, by the breaking down of these cells, a poison which is carried in the blood and unless long periods of rest are taken the relow of recuperation this causes a lasting injury.

Some fatigue is a necessity in the training of a child and to increase his capacity. On the approach of fatigue, if an effort is made to overcome the next time the child can do more and accomplish more before reaching the point of fatigue but if we go too far and become too tired, we even lose what skill we have gained.

Frequent rest periods are an absolute necessity. Experiments carried on in Munich have proved that a small child in school should have a rest pause at the end of every thirty minutes, and older children should rest more than fifty minutes without a rest.

The gymnasium can never be a substitute for the recess. The sustained attention necessary for doing gymnasium work in a class or under the direction of an instructor is in itself a cause of fatigue. This sort of physical training is good, but can never take the place of recreation or frequent rest pauses.

Prof. Monroe made a plea for short recitation periods, saying that by far the greatest number of mistakes is made at the end of the period. He spoke of the relation of fatigue to the weather; to periods of rapid growth in the child; to food and to sleep. "A second word of recognition of these things and arrangement of work with reference to them. Place the more difficult and mentally fatiguing subjects like mathematics in the winter months and see that the child gets plenty of sleep. This is a necessity and lack of a proper amount of sleep will surely have bad its bad effect, if not now, at some future period of life. Prof. Monroe said that all the cases of break-down in high school that he had investigated were brought about not by school work, but by home work; too many social pleasures and not enough sleep. The young man or young woman of high school age requires at least nine or ten hours of sleep every night to recuperate and replenish the actual wasting of his nerve cells during the day.

In regard to food, he said that the great trouble with most people and most school children is that they have not enough food, and this not of the most nourishing kind. Let the food be plain and good; insist upon plenty of sleep; and we shall have done much toward solving the problem of mental fatigue.

Friday evening was given over to an address by Hurman Mueller on "True Art in Home Decoration."

Saturday afternoon there were a number of short addresses. S. Bolton, secretary of the National Congress of Mothers, reported on the recent conference on infant mortality, which was attended by five hundred physicians in New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. Edwin C. Grice, of Riverton, honorary president of the New Jersey Congress and ex-president of the National Society, made a plea for religious training in the home, closing her remarks by quoting the motto to which is on the walls of the Delbridge Library: "It is noble to be pure; it is wise to be temperate; it is necessary to be industrious; but to know God is the best of all."

Mrs. Frederic Schoff, president of the National Congress of Mothers, spoke of the desirability of offering help to individual mothers in training their children, saying: "Every mother can do better by studying than by trusting to mere instinct and chance to bring up her children."

Miss [illegible] M. Williams, of the State [illegible] School of Trenton, gave the principal address of the afternoon, closing the program with a forceful talk on "The Positive and Negative." She plea for developing the affirmative attitude toward life; the value of "Do this" rather than "Don't do that." "Show a child the right thing instead of pointing out the wrong. When faults are emphasized they are remembered while the correct ones are forgotten."

MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL ANNUAL HARVEST HOME

The annual harvest home festival for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, held at the Nurses' Home, Thursday afternoon, was a great success. There was an unusually generous contribution of fruits, vegetables, jellies, apples, breakfast foods, preserves; also a considerable sum of money, while the contribution from the Needlework Guild was one of the best and largest in recent years.

During the afternoon there was a large number of visitors and everyone brought something for the storeroom. Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton and Mrs. [illegible] Kleinecke poured tea and the [illegible]e assisted in serving by [illegible]rs of the Women's Auxiliary [illegible] under whose direction the affair was held.

Among those who assisted in receiving [illegible] attending to the donations were Mrs. Frederick W. Butler, Mrs. W[illegible]. Glenney, Mrs. Stuart H. Pa[illegible]n, Miss Imogene Bass, Mrs. Frank [illegible], Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard, Mrs. Ethel Titsworth and Mrs. C. E. Yoder.

DRAGGED TO DEATH UNDER TROLLEY CAR.

While returning to his home from Newark, Charles Wilbur Wade, a young carpenter, of Elizabeth, was run down at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday night by a Newark-Elizabeth trolley car and instantly killed. His skull was crushed like an eggshell, and his body frightfully mangled. It was dragged nearly half a block before the car stopped.

He was left an hour later before the dead man was identified as Jacks had to be procured to raise the car. The victim was taken to Engel's morgue. The accident happened at East Jersey street and the new direct road in Elizabeth.

Wade got off the rear platform of the car and went around its end in order to reach his home, 447 New Point road.

At that moment another trolley car bound for Newark came rushing along. The motorman of the car was William F. Nevins, of Elizabeth, while the conductor was Solomon Freiman, of Newark.

Both men were arrested at 11:15 o'clock by Police Captain Peters at the company's car barns, and taken to police headquarters. The accident caused much excitement on the car and a couple of women fainted from the shock. Wade was a native of Elizabeth, twenty-seven years old and single.

He was a powerfully built young man and resided with his parents, Charles F. and Emma Wade.

His mother was completely prostrated by the tragic event and her grief was heart rending. Wade belonged to the Carpenters' Union, and so to Opechee Tribe No. 92, Improved Order of Red Men, and the Haymaker's Association, a branch of the Red Men. He was a communicant of Christ Episcopal church, where he was to be wed.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon. County Physician Westcott, of Fanwood, was notified and is making an investigation.

Odd Pronunciations in England.

Below are a few names of places that often puzzle a stranger, says London Tit-Bits. Happisburg, in Norfolk, is pronounced "Hazeboro." Abergavenny simply drops a syllable and becomes "Abervenny," and it is alleged that St. Neots sounds more like "Snoos" than anything else. Cirencester seems to vary from "Sisseter" to "Sizzeter." In Suffolk, Whelpdingfield is "Wepenfurl," and Chelmondiston "Chimston," while in the adjoining country of Norfolk Hunstanton is "Hunston," and in the West Country Badgeworthy is "Badgery," and Cornwood "Kernood." Buckinghamshire claims the purest English, but they call Papworth "Parpoor." And not far away is another village of beauty. The motorist turned upon a rough road and asked the intelligent laborer what was the name of the hill. "That road," said the boorish countryman, wiping his brow, "will take you to Ell, sir." The courteous motorist went on and found Elsworth, which is pronounced "Elser."

PLAINFIELD'S PATROLMEN HAVE A JOLLY TIME AT THEIR FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET AND BALL

Thursday will long be remembered as the night of the first annual ball of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association for many reasons. First, because it was the largest dance ever held in tais city and because it was one of the most successful from a financial viewpoint. City officials from Mayor Charles J. Fisk, down were on hand to make the occasion an enjoyable one. Speeches by the Mayor and the visiting police chiefs were heard at the banquet which took place in a private room while the dance was in progress and it is safe to say that more was done to cement the friendship between the chiefs and their men than anything else in the nine years of the existence of the association.

The dance and banquet were held at Truell Hall where everything necessary for the comfort of the guests was provided by a thoughtful committee. Mayor Fisk, who was toastmaster, made a few introductory remarks in which the personnel of the force in this city was praised and he took pride in calling himself one of those who were responsible for the efficiency of the men. He said the quiet work of the men is the work which keeps and their high plane of effectiveness is something the city is proud of. Speeches were made by James Beggans and Chief Monihan, of Jersey City, two of the most influential men in the organization, the latter being its founder. Chief Monihan's speech brought out the fact that the heads of the departments are not all in the organization, but that they might better be and he urged the chiefs present and those who were not to join and help make the association because of its magnificent scope from a purely benevolent point of view, to say nothing of the better results which may be obtained from a closer fraternal relationship.

Henry Weller, of Newark, one of the organizers and the man who has done so much to make the association a success, spoke as did Chief P. S. Kiely, of this city. The speech of the evening came from the lips of Judge William Runyon, city magistrate. Judge Runyon's was an earnest and carefully prepared discourse upon the subject of Police Protection. It was masterly and to the point, giving the policeman a position in the community which many had not previously vouchsafed him. He said there were no better men in the world, no matter what their vocation. Other speeches, all of them complimentary to the association, were made by C. R. White, of East Orange; William G. Messler, president of the local association, and others.

The success of the entire event was due to the efforts of Patrolmen Messler and McDonald. They have worked hard in the interest of the organization and deserve all the praise bestowed upon them in the speeches, for a great crowd which more than filled the hall pronounced the affair the best ever. Two hundred couples enjoyed the dance. During the evening Herry MacDonough, the famous tenor, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., rendered some splendid songs and the Dixie quartet, famous for their negro melodies, also contributed to the pleasure. The music by La Vere's orchestra in itself was an entertainment worth attending. The dance broke up at an early hour this morning with three hearty cheers for the men and their association.

The table decorations in the banqueting room were green and red with handsome candelabra. Each guest wore a white chrysanthemum while red and white roses were provided for others. There was nothing left undone that would in any way contribute to the pleasure of the people present. Among the guests at the banquet were: Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Judge William A. Runyon, Chief of Police P. S. Kiely, Chief Monihan, of Jersey City; Chief O'Neill, of Westfield; Chief Thadreus Doane, of the fire department; County Registrar Frank H. Smith, William Dey, Assessor Jacob V. Arnold, Councilmen George W. Clay, Charles C. Randolph, William S. Gloak and D. W. Taylor; Julius J. Stahl, of North Plainfield; James Beggans, State President of the P. B. A.; John O'Brien, of Elizabeth; C. R. White, of East Orange; William H. Goodwin, of Trenton; H. B. Weller, of Newark; Patrolmen William G. Messler, president of the local association, and Daniel J. McDonald.

SHE SPEAKS AGAINST THE LICENSE SYSTEM

Mrs. S. B. Parsells, a W. C. T. U. worker from Philadelphia, visited this city Thursday under the auspices of the local union, and appeared at a parlor meeting in the afternoon at the home of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Anderson, and at the Seventh Day Baptist church in the evening.

The afternoon session was attended largely by members of the Plainfield union who enjoyed a pleasing talk by Mrs. Parsells, who reviewed the general the progress of the temperance work being conducted by that organization.

In the evening Mrs. Parsells was greeted by an interested audience at the church. For nearly an hour she dwelt on the liquor problem in which she explored the evils of the present license system. Mrs. Parsell's topic was "Victory draws near."

Musical Service.

The choir of Grace M. E. church will give a musical service next Sunday evening under the direction of the organist, Miss Alice Carroll. The following numbers will be sung: "From Every Earthly Pleasure," Liest-Shelley, soprano obligato and chorus; "Ye Shall Go Out With Joy," Barton; soprano solo, "My Redeemer," Mrs. E. D. Young. Buck; "Magnificat," Berthold Tours.

The annual meeting of the Charity Organization society of Plainfield and North Plainfield will be held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Monday night, November 29, at 8 o'clock, for the election of a board of fifteen trustees for the ensuing year and the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

REV. GEORGE F. GREENE HAS ACCEPTED CALL

The trustees of the First Presbyterian church, Cranford, have extended an invitation to Rev. Gordon M. Russell, of Oyster Bay, N. Y., to become assistant pastor to the Rev. George F. Greene, and he has accepted. Besides being an assistant at the Cranford church, he will also have charge of the Garwood chapel, the position made vacant through the death of the late Rev. Edward Love, of this city.

Mr. Love started this work at Garwood and was instrumental in securing the erection of a handsome chapel there. Mr. Russell comes to Cranford well recommended as a theologian. His father, Rev. Alexander G. Russell, has for many years been pastor of the First Presbyterian church, at Oyster Bay. He is a native of Oyster Bay and received his early education in private schools, later entered Princeton University, graduating in 1901; teaching for four years after graduation from college.

In 1905 he entered the Theological Seminary at Princeton, graduating in 1908. He was a Fellow in apologetics for 1908-09, studying in Berlin and has just recently returned from his European trip. It is not known just when he will enter upon his new duties.

Harmless Opposition.

"Your political antagonist is calling you every name he can think of," said the agitated friend.

"Don't interrupt him," answered Senator Sorghum. "It is better to have a man searching the dictionary for epithets than going after your record for facts."—Washington Star.

HE TALKS ON HOLLAND

Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan Lectures on "A Yankee in Dutchland."

HE GIVES HIS IMPRESSIONS.

Minister Describes the Beauties of the Country and Its Honest and Cleanly Folk.

The second of the series of splendid lectures under the auspices of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, was given at that church, Thursday by Rev. Dr. W. H. Morgan, pastor of the Central M. E. church, Newark. His subject was "A Yankee in Dutchland." He was introduced by the pastor, Rev. C. S. Kemble.

The lecture was a descriptive exposition of a ten days' trip through Holland and the Netherlands. In it Dr. Morgan gave his impressions of Holland from books he had read and from observations taken in his travels. The speaker possesses a rare personal charm, which held the close attention of his audience throughout.

Dr. Morgan dwelt particularly on the solidity, the industry, thriftiness, cleanliness, the unchanging characters of the people, in regard to dress, styles and customs; the courageous and valiant battles in the great reclaiming projects for which the Hollander is noted throughout the civilized world; their unswerving patriotism to their country; the wealth of art treasures in pictures and paintings and portraits by Rembrandts, Rubens and VanDyck and other famous Dutch masters, whose pictures are prized and valued highly.

The lecturer said that the art galleries of the world are not complete without one or more of their paintings in them. He took his audience through Antwerp, The Hague, New Amsterdam, Leighton and Brussels, relating interesting facts concerning each place.

In concluding, Dr. Morgan laid stress on the fact that the United States owes the Dutch nation a debt of gratitude impossible to repay. The speaker claimed that America copied the first public system, the Supreme Courts and the great irrigation and reclamation projects from Holland.

After the lecture, Dr. Morgan held an informal reception with a number of friends and was congratulated for his excellent lecture. Rev. Dr. George C. Wilding, a well-known preacher and humorist, will deliver the third and final lecture in the series on Thursday night, December 16, the subject being "Riding the Virginia Circuit."

WIRE THIEVES CLEVER IN STRIPPING POLES.

Wire thieves, on Wednesday night, stripped the poles of the Western Union Telegraph Company and the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company of about 1,500 feet of copper wire and temporarily crippled both lines in Linden Township, between the old racetrack and the Linden and Roselle cemetery.

The thieves rigged up an ingenious device in the shape of a boatswain's chair, by which one man was hauled to the top of the pole and then clipped off the wire. The thieves were evidently scared away in time for in their hurry they left this apparatus behind.

TRAIN WRECKED; RIDE IN ENGINE.

The South Amboy-New Brunswick accommodation passenger train on the Raritan River Railroad was wrecked Thursday morning about a half mile from New Brunswick by the derailing of a coach. No one was in the derailed car. The engineer, not wishing to see commuters delayed, invited them aboard the engine and the four passengers rode into New Brunswick on the engine. They were John A. Coan, South Amboy; John Delaney, a friend of Senator George S. Silzer's office; Thomas Burden, a clerk in Judge C. T. Cowenhoven's office and Lewis Woods, of South Amboy.

The Raritan River line runs between New Brunswick and South Amboy. Its business has been cut down considerably by the trolley line which parallels it.

Harry W. Leek, aged 39 years, who was taken suddenly ill on Election Day with a hemorrhage, while performing his duties as a member of the election board in the second district of the Second ward, died at his home East Fifth street Friday morning. Since being taken ill on Election Day he failed gradually and did not respond to the best of medical treatment obtained.

TROLLEY SQUABBLE IN DUNELLEN AGAIN

Dunellenites are filling their powder horns with ammunition for what appears to be another heated controversy with the Public Service Corporation. About five years ago the famous "loop war" created a lot of excitement and the present squabble gives evidence of equalling that in interest.

The first gun in the battle will be fired at the December meeting of the Common Council when the P. S. C. will present a petition asking for permission to remove the switch, which is now situated at Rock avenue, to some point between Washington avenue and Taylor's hotel in Dunellen.

Constable Robert L. Pierce, who is obtaining signatures of citizens who favor the proposed move to the P. S. C. is evidently meeting with success, as up to yesterday he had secured about 150 names to the petition.

The main opposition to the plans of the P. S. C. appears to rest with the business men and merchants of North avenue, who claim that a switch in the business section, would tend to block the thoroughfare, and that it is reported that they are also preparing a petition against the scheme which will also be presented to the Council.

One business man, however, who is in favor of having the switch removed to a central point in the borough is Alvah A. Gray. He has stated that he is willing to permit the P. S. C. to establish it in front of his office on North avenue, which is a little east of Washington avenue.

While the merchants are prepared to offer a stiff opposition, it is the general opinion that the Borough Council will grant the request of the trolley company as it is admitted that traveling conditions between the borough and this city would be greatly improved. Under present condition there is generally a five-minute delay on every trip owing to the cars going west reaching the Rock avenue switch ahead of the cars going east.

MERCHANT OF VENICE THEME OF LECTURER

"The Merchant of Venice," was the title of the lecture delivered at Mount St. Mary's College, Thursday, by Dr. William Calian, of New York city, in the presence of the faculty, students and many prominent women of Plainfield, Westfield and Elizabeth.

The able manner in which Dr. Calian handled his subject, his clear enunciation and perfect portrayal of the several characters of the play, made it at once interesting and instructive. The hearty appreciation manifested by his audience makes it reasonable to consider that Dr. Calian will be cordially welcomed on the occasion of his next lecture, which is set for December 9. The theme will be "Psychology," and will precede the third lecture on "Hamlet."

New Yorker Buys Summer Home.

George Beebe, a New York business man, has purchased the A. D. Cook farm on Park avenue, near Oak Tree, consisting about thirty-five acres, and intends changing it into a summer home. It adjoins the Woodruff farm. The consideration is said to be $8,000. Matthew J. Giles, who recently removed to Clinton avenue and West Eighth street, occupied the farm for twenty-two years.

PARK AVENUE BAPTIST ENDEAVORERS ANNUAL

Vocal and instrumental music, interesting reports and an address, combined to make the twenty-first anniversary meeting of the Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church a delightful occasion Friday night. A feature was the reading of a letter of congratulation from Rev. A. E. Flan, former pastor, who is now at Rochester, Pa. This was read by Miss Cora Brokaw, and was much enjoyed.

The meeting began with a fifteen minute song service, followed with a prayer by Clarence B. LaRue, president of the local C. E. Union. As president of the home society, Chas. F. Dayton was in charge, and he made a few remarks of welcome. Miss Cora Brokaw, corresponding secretary, then read the birthday greetings.

The address of the evening was made by J. Harry Manning, former general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. He spoke on "The Blessing of a Thankful Heart," and his talk was well received. He encouraged the members by his earnest words.

Then followed a violin solo by Miss Arline Brown, with closing words by President Dayton, prayer by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, and the Mizpah benediction. A social hour was then enjoyed, during which refreshments were served. Miss Mamie Clark presided at the piano and Miss Arline Brown played the violin.

The social committee in charge comprised Miss Mary Giles, chairman; Miss Anna W. Clark, Miss Mamie Clark, Miss Sarah Boyd, Miss Hannah Boyd, Mrs. C. Dalby and Miss Bessie Giles.

In the fall of 1888 a number of the young people of the church organized themselves into an Endeavor society with the purpose of fitting themselves for greater usefulness to Christ and His church. The history of the society shows that the purpose has borne abundant fruit and many of those who have since gone out into the activities of life, both secular and religious, owe their present ability to the early training received in the society.

Some of those who when they entered the society were backward, have since become some of the most useful and helpful members. Starting in the pastorate of the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts, the society has enjoyed the ministry of three pastors—the Rev. H. Price Eells, Rev. J. W. Richardson and Rev. A. E. Flan, who has recently been called to Rochester, Pa.

The presidents and other officers have included men and women engaged in Christian work both in the home church and in county and State circles. During his connection with the society, Mr. Richardson was active in the State work of the Endeavor society and among those who also have been identified with State, county and local Endeavor work are Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry, Miss Florence G. Hawkins, Miss Cora R. Brokaw, Joseph M. Hawkins and others who are no longer connected with the society, having left town.

Among those who have served as phesidents, are Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Dilts, Mr. Van Sciver, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. C. Skadden, Miss Emma V. Fish, Mrs. W. S. Lowry, David M. Runyon, Miss Alma W. Wyckoff, Miss Cora R. Brokaw, Joseph M. Hawkins and Charles F. Dayton, who now fills the office. Mr. Dayton is active in all brances of religious work, being a junior deacon of the church and engaged in its departments. He has also served for some time as vice-president of the Y. M. C. A.

The other officers of the society at present are: Vice-president, Geo. B. Cratsley; recording secretary, Miss Florence G. Hawkins; corresponding secretary, Miss Cora R. Brokaw; treasurer, Miss Elmira C. Runyon; junior superintendent, Miss Alice L. Brown. The society now numbers about forty members, several charter members still being on the roll.

Remotely Related.

The lawyer eyed the woman in the witness-box in patient despair. Then, says the Detroit News, he rallied visibly.

"You say, madam," he began, "that the defendant is a 'sort of relation of yours. Will you please explain what you mean by that—just how you are related to the defendant?"

"Well, it's like this," replied the witness, beaming upon the court. "His first wife's cousin and my second cousin's first wife's aunt married brothers named Jones, and they were cousins to my mother's aunt. Then again, his grandfather on his mother's side and my grandfather on my mother's side were second cousins, and his stepmother married my husband's stepfather after his father and my mother died, and his brother Joe and my husband's brother Harry married twin sisters. I ain't ever figured out just how close related we are, but I've always looked on him as a sort of cousin."

"I see, myself," assented the lawyer, feebly.

"A Trip to Japan," "The Ballet of Jewels" and "Inside the Earth," the New York Hippodrome's three big spectacles continue their prosperous course in what has proved thus far to be the record season of the big playhouse. "The Ballet of Jewels" with its gorgeously clad corryphees, the Maori Village introducing an entire tribe of wild New Zealanders in thrilling native dances, the Wonderful Waterfall of Living Women, the panorama of New York harbor at night, the feast of ten thousand lanterns and the startling finale when an army of men and women marches into the water disappearing entirely from view; these are a few of the sensational features of this season's sumptuous show. Twice daily the New York Hippodrome is filled by enthusiastic crowds of patrons which is the real test of the popularity of the present series of scenic spectacles.

DIDN'T HE RAMBLE—UNTIL HE WAS PICKED UP

William L. Cramer, a barber in the employ of Edward Kelly, of Somerville, was picked up by Patrolman Payne Sunday night at the corner of West Third street and Fillmore avenue, for acting in a suspicious manner. The barber had more money than men of his trade are credited with carrying and the fact that he carried it in several pocketbooks and in every pocket of his clothing led the police to believe that it was not all obtained honestly.

When arrested he was in a condition bordering on dementia, but had not committed any overt act. He was taken into custody for safe keeping. He was allowed to go Monday morning and seemed pleased that he had not been robbed.

Inquiry at his place of employment elicited the fact that he was in the habit of wandering away in the manner in which he did in this city. Mr. Kelley said this morning that Cramer was all right, but had the habit of wandering off by himself and seemed to enjoy the experience.

EBENEZER AMMOKOO'S VISIT TO PLAINFIELD

Ebenezer Ammokoo, a native of the gold coast of South Africa, who arrived at Hoboken Sunday on the steamship Pennsylvania, made his first public appearance in America Sunday afternoon and evening at the services in the Seventh-Day Baptist church at New Market. He was accompanied by the Rev. E. B. Saunders, general secretary of the missionary society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, which has its headquarters at Ashaway, R. I.

Young Mr. Ammokoo came to this country to be educated by the Seventh-Day Baptist Missionary Society, and at the completion of his studies, in three or four years, he will return to South Africa and engage in missionary work with the natives. He paid a visit to Plainfield this morning and inspected the local Seventh-Day Baptist edifices. Tomorrow he will go to Ashaway and thence to Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. While in town he was the guest of N. O. Moore, business manager of the Sabbath Recorder.

CHARLES A. DUNN DIES AT EAST MILLSTONE.

Charles A. Dunn, a former resident of this city, died suddenly of heart failure at his home in East Millstone, Sunday. Word of his death was received by his sister, Mrs. Robert Pierce, of New Market. They both at one time lived in this city, where they have many friends. Mr. Dunn was seventy-five years old and for a number of ears had been living at East Millstone.

Mr. Dunn leaves a widow and three daughters, Mrs. Theodore Welsh, of Highland Park; Mrs. William Redfield, of Centreville, Mich., and Miss Margaret Dunn, who lived at home; also two brothers and a sister, Jeremiah, of Newark; William P., of Stelton, and Mrs. Robert Pierce, of New Market.

J.R.O.U.A.M. AT SERVICE

Preacher Says Bible Should Be Read at Home as Well as in School.

PRAISES THE ORDER'S WORK.

Some Advice Is Given by Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey to Local Councils of the Order.

Members of the four local councils of the Junior O. U. A. M. to the number of about one hundred attended divine service at Warren chapel Sunday and listened to an instructive sermon by the pastor, Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, in which he urged all members of the order to see that the Bible occupies the same important position in the home as it does in the public schools.

Mr. McKelvey lauded the order for its accomplishment in having laws passed which provide for the reading of the scriptures to children in all of the public schools in the State every day in the school year. Mr. McKelvey contended that it was just as important for members, who have families, to insist that the Bible is read daily to their children in the home with the same vim which characterized the campaign, which resulted in the passage of laws, which made it compulsory to have the Bible read in the public schools.

"Don't make use of the Bible as the magic book in the Order," admonished Mr. McKelvey, "but be consistent, and have it read to the children in the home as well as in school."

Mr. McKelvey in his remarks referred to the life of St. Paul and his preaching, taking for his text, "King Agrippa, believest thou the prophet. I know that thou believest," as found in Acts, twenty-sixth chapter and twenty-seventh verse.

In addition to the delegation of Juniors at the service the members of the Boy's Signal Corp, of the chapel, attended in uniform, and occupied seats in a body.

SIGNOR GOGORZA HERE NEXT TUESDAY NIGHT

Music lovers of Plainfield are looking forward with great interest to the recital by Emilio de Gogorza, which is to take place under the auspices of the Musical Club on Tuesday night, November 30. Signor Gogorza arrived from Europe two weeks ago, and has been giving recitals in the West. The program for the recital here has not been announced but it is understood to be practically the same as for his opening recital in Carnegie Hall a week later.

A leading critic recently said of him: "Two things make Gogorza's singing so attractive, a beautiful baritone voice and exquisite art in using it. He has all the command of every tone that only the long and earnest training will give, and this training has enabled him to produce the tone with such perfect ease as to seem the simplest thing possible. There is no evidence of any effort in his singing; all comes so easily and so naturally as to make the audience just as easy in litening to him. This is the perfection of art, so rarely attained by singers who are otherwise greatly gifted."

HISTORIC MILL BURNED SUPPOSEDLY BY TRAMPS.

Fire, suposed to have been started by tramps smoking in a carriage shed, destroyed the interior of the feed mill owned by James Moore at Glen Moore Saturday morning, the damage amounting to $10,000. About 1,500 bushels of grain and much flour was destroyed. The insurance is about $4,000.

The flames were discovered by John Voorhees, who notified the owner and then summoned the Pennington and Hopewell fire companies. As the fireman had to travel over two miles to the spot, the flames had gutted the building before they reached it.

The mill was a landmark and was built by Philip Rings and later owned by John Hart, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Moore's grandfather bought the property in 1798 and the mill was remodeled in 1828.

SEES PASSING AWAY OF ORTHODOX JUDAISM.

A prediction that orthodox Judaism is doomed was made Friday night from the pulpit of the Temple Beth Kholim of Brooklyn by Rabbi Alexander Lyons.

"Orthodoxy," he said, "cannot stand in the test of modern civilization. A Jew may come from the heart of Russia, steeped in his orthodoxy, and in a few years either he or his children will have fallen away from the faith. The orthodox congregations are steadily losing. Religion was not made for all time on Mt. Sinai. It lives and grows in the heart of man."

Rabbi Lyons is known as one of the leaders in the reform movement among the Jews of Brooklyn.

H. G. KREBS TALKS ON "YOUTH AND MANHOOD"

Preacher Says Bible Should Be Read at Home as Well as in School.

PRAISES THE ORDER'S WORK.

Some Advice Is Given by Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey to Local Councils of the Order.

"Youth and Manhood" was the subject of an interesting talk given at the First Baptist church, Sunday night, by Henry C. Krebs, superintendent of schools of Somerset county. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Young's People Association. Mr. Krebs based his remarks on the parable of the talents, and proceeded to show how it is possible for a person to make the best use of or waste their talents.

He referred especially to the man who had one talent, telling how instead of making the best use of it, he hid it and was reprimanded by his Master. The speaker said that as there are no two persons exactly alike and everyone has his own particular work to do, if one neglects to do his share, it is possible that he may never be done.

Mr. Krebs said that newspaper publicity is not essential to greatness and then cited a number of incidents to show that some of the greatest men in history were those who never got into the newspapers. He admired the Sisters of Mercy for their laudable work. He spoke of the late John Stewart Kennedy, who died recently, leaving several millions to charity. He said that the newspapers found it difficult to get a history of his life or even his picture for publication.

In closing Mr. Krebs made a practical application of his talk to those present. The address was much enjoyed by the large congregation present.

UNION COUNTY DENTISTS TO FORM ORGANIZATION

As a result of a little unpleasantness between the dentists of Elizabeth and the management of the Elizabeth General Hospital, fourteen members of the profession from the county seat held a meeting Saturday night, when steps were taken to form a Union County Dental Association. The matter was discussed informally and it was decided to issue cards for another meeting on Saturday night and invite dentists from all parts of the county to attend. The meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building in Elizabeth at 8 o'clock.

Dr. J. Bertram Stevens, of Elizabeth, was made temporary secretary, and today he will send out notices of the meeting to the county dentists. It is proposed as a result of the organization to establish a regular clinic independent of those held under the auspices of the hospitals and in this way it is believed that better results will be obtained. Another object of the association is to secure such legislation as will protect the profession and advance its interests.

UNEARTH TREASURE BOX.

In the side of a hill laid bare Friday by engineers grading in Forrest Hill Park, Camden, there was unearthed an iron box which had probably been used to bury the treasures of the dead.

The box was taken charge of by William Smith, a special park officer, and was found to be locked. Force was used to open it, and small fragments of paper money, a gold pen and holder, several gold pins and a bundle of papers, almost rotted away, were found. One of the papers appears to be a deed, and the only words decipherable were Philadelphia, No. 323. On the other papers were the names of Harper Jarrett, Zane, Magee, Seltner and Franke.

The finding of the box again calls attention to the old claim of the Zane family, who have for many years attempted to prove their right to considerable property in Camden. The claim of the Zanes, including John, Thomas, Andrew, George and James Zane and Mrs. Emma Kellum, has been in the hands of attorneys for a long time.

The story is that way back in 1690 Camden was inhabited by the Indians, and that Robert Zane married an Indian squaw of the name of Alday, and at the death of the descendants of the tribe Mr. Zane was taken all over the section and the ground and properties were given to him.

Freeholders Accept New Roads.

Inspection of the new Greenbrook and Warrenville roads were made yesterday by the Somerset Board of Freeholders. Both thoroughfares were accepted and the contractors, Burke and Mebus were commended for their excellent work. After the completion of the inspection the freeholders went to Pedeflous' hotel where a banquet was served by the contractors. Among the guests were William A. Coddington, Esq., of this city, former Mayor Newton B. Smalley. Charles Sebring, County Engineer Joshua Doughty, Jr., County Attorney John Frech, Mayor John Cooper, of Warrenville, and others, field, Elizabeth at Newark.

TOLLES TO CONTINUE AS CITY FATHERS' HEAD

After the special meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, the members held a caucus to decide on the organization of that body for 1910, and more especially to select a president to succeed President Ralph I. Tolles. The caucus was a harmonious one and he was the unanimous decision that Mr. Tolles be chosen to succeed himself for a fifth term in the chair.

The matter of selecting committees will be left entirely to Mr. Tolles and these will be announced later, probably at the first meeting of the 1910 Council on New Year's night. Mr. Tolles has been a member of the Common Council representing the First ward for fourteen years, and he has a record of which he is justly proud. He now the dean of the body and his fellow members take pleasure in honoring him.

The rest of the organization of the Common Council will be decided later. City Clerk James T. MacMurray will continue as such, while there is no doubt but that George B. Wean, the city typist, will remain in his position. All of these details will come up later for action. The 1910 body will be as at present, although there is likely to be some changes in the makeup of the several committees.

ELSIE FERGUSON SCORES IN "SUCH A LITTLE QUEEN"

Elsie Ferguson, appearing in "Such a Little Queen," attracted a capacity audience to the Plainfield theatre Monday night. Miss Ferguson, and popular actress, who is but twenty years old, leaped to fame in a remarkable brief space of time and has been one of the few really great successes of the year. She was given an ovation last night by the large and enthusiastic audience, which was delighted by her rare charm and unusual ability. The supporting company was par excellent. The management was congratulated upon securing such a fine attraction.

The story in brief of "Such a Little Queen" is that of the Queen of Herzegovina who has been compelled to flee from her own country by reason of a revolution. Accompanied by her aged prime minister, she has gone out America as a refuge. On the steamer coming to this country she becomes acquainted with a young American to whom she is attracted by his straightforward manner and brisk cordiality. Without funds and without friends she is compelled to earn her own living by doing the labor. Through the influence of the young American she finally secures employment in a business office copying letters and doing other clerical work. She rents an inexpensive Harlem flat and her efforts at housekeeping are ludicrous in the extreme. She is followed later by the young King of Bosnia, whom also is exiled, to whom she was betrothed, and the novel idea of a king and queen working for a living as everyday Americans furnished the author with splendid opportunities for comedy pathos. In the end the queen is recalled by her subjects and again takes up her sceptre and the story ends as all stories should in a manner most interesting.

PASTOR'S ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Mr. Brook Delivers Sermon Marking End of First Year's Work.

HIS DISCOURSE WAS HELPFUL.

In the Afternoon Trinity Reformed's Pastor Visits Its Sunday School Session.

Rev. John Y. Brook completed the first year of his pastorate at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday, and in the morning he delivered an impressive anniversary sermon to a large and attentive congregation. He took his text from First Cor. 2:1-2:

"And I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God.

"For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ and Him Crucified."

Rev. Brook spoke in part as follows:

"These words contain Paul's supreme motive. He said he came to the Corinthians with much fear and trembling. He was afraid that because of the very simplicity of his message the people might not listen to it. He did not come as an orator. The Corinthians loved the ornate and glittering words. They did not like simplicity. Christ's message was so great, because it was so simple. In simplicity lay greatness. Paul did not come as a philosopher. He feared he might be repelled by the very narrowness of his message. Christianity, judged by wordly standards is narrow. From Genesis to Revelation, the great theme of the Bible is "God in Christ reconciling the world to Himself.' And this must be the preacher's subject fifty-two Sundays in the year.

Paul's courageous determination was to preach only Jesus Christ and Him crucified. He did not imply that preachers today must preach only the doctrine of the atonement. He himself often preached on the Resurrection and many kindred themes in the Christian religion. But the predominant idea of all his preaching was 'Loyalty to His Divine Master, Jesus Christ.'

"The world frequently has itching ears. It often is making an unfair demand of the pulpit. It requests popular and amusing subjects. I am convinced that there is nothing that will do the church or the individual Christian so much good as the faithful preaching of Jesus Christ.

"A business man had returned home from the church services, disgusted. He said: 'My pastor preached about material things this morning. It was a beautiful discourse. I am immersed six days in the week in material things, handling money. I come to church on Sunday to be lifted up to higher and better things. Give us something whereby we will be able to prize the unseen things and the things which is seen.' That was a striking condemnation of the pulpit. Men want a simple gospel, but they do not want a simpleton's gospel.

"Jesus Christ needs to be preached today more than ever before. The attack on Christianity centers about the person of Christ. Never has there been an age when men are doing so much thinking for themselves as today. Reason has taken the place of faith. We demand the mathematical demonstration for everything we believe. Consequently preaching has become largely educational, instead of evangelistic. Men have doubts. They cannot accept all of Christ's teaching. But the simple preaching of the Cross is able to break down the proudest sort of unbelief.

"Christ needs to be preached, because the Christian conception of life is the highest ideal of life. It touches the blessed and the unblessed. All look to it. Take away our Christ and what is art, civilization or religion?

"Christ needs to be preached because of His influence. For nineteen centuries, the eyes of all mankind have been on Christ in the hour of sadness, worry or joy. He has been the throbbing impulse of life to millions. Men of the twentieth century need the vital truth that the love of the uplifted Christ for He alone is the remedy for sin and the world's woes and troubles. He, although sinless, entered the arena on our behalf and conquered. He who knew no sin was made sin for us.'

"On the first anniversary of my pastorate, I know of no better theme to present than loyalty to Jesus Christ. I have tried in some degree to present Jesus Christ and Him crucified and to be loyal to Him. It has been a exceedingly pleasant, blessed and fruitful year to God I give the glory. If the future years that God may spare my life be as blessed I shall look forward to a consecrated ministry of love and peace for 'Him and Him Crucified.'"

Pastor Brook visited the Sunday-school in the afternoon, when the members of the school gave him the Chautauqua salute after the study of the lesson. This expression of love and esteem was appreciated by the pastor. There were 391 members of the school in attendance, one of the largest of the year.

TALK WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE

Lively Debate at Mrs. Huntington's Home, Interests Local League.

NO DECISION IS REACHED.

Miss Crystal Eastman Champions Cause and Mrs. Hugh F. Fox Makes Masterly Objection.

As to whether it would be advisable for women to vote has been a question subject to debate ever since woman conceived the idea of attempting to exercise a prerogative which man has believed to be his and his alone. Monday at the home of Mrs. Samuel Huntington, of Franklin street, one of the warmest debates on the subject which Plainfield has ever had, took place under the auspices of the Plainfield Equal Suffrage League. Miss Crystal Eastman, of New York, and Mrs. Hugh H. Fox, of this city, took the affirmative and negative sides respectively, but owing to the fact that there were no judges it is not yet known whether women are entitled to vote or whether their voting would increase the dignity of the polls or contrariwise.

Miss Eastman, in speaking for the affirmative side, "Resolved, that the suffrage be granted to women on the same terms as it is granted to men," gave an interesting review of her labors in social betterment work in New York, at which time she was also interested in woman's suffrage, and believed that the woman's vote was necessary for advancement in the social work.

"It is not only right for women to have the privilege to vote," said Miss Eastman, "but it is justice. It will be a big help in the home. In these days mothers cannot keep their children at home, and if they must send them out in the world, it is only natural that they should be interested in the conditions there."

Mrs. Fox, in her reply to Miss Eastman's arguments, also presented points which showed why in her opinion, women shouldn't vote. Mrs. Fox contended that there is a big confusion at the present time between politics and economics, and that women could not master such questions if they were granted the privilege of voicing their sentiments at the polls.

Mrs. Fox also argued that social and business conditions are governed by the supply and demand. She illustrated this argument by making reference to the recent panic in which thousands of laboring men were earning less money than woman servants.

There was an interested audience of women present and it was impossible to determine which of the two arguments met with the most sympathy. There is no doubt, however, that Mrs. Fox had many sympathisers with her statements of supply and demand and on the other hand Miss Eastman's arguments were roundly applauded. Anyway, a mere man must not be the judge—it requires a more fertile mind and one which is not illusioned.

In her rebuttal Miss Eastman, replying to Mrs. Fox, who claimed that politics and economics were a separate field, said emphatically they were separate fields, but government is invading the field of economics more and more with factory laws, child labor laws, etc.

If the law of supply and demand were alone consulted our children would all be working. There is a demand for cheap child labor. That is the economic fact, but government in many States says the children shall not work under a certain age.

FALLING TREE KILLS TWO

Children of Mrs. Michael Del Paule, of Fanwood, Victims of Burned Tree.

MOTHER IN SERIOUS CONDITION.

Attempted to Rescue Children but Fell Beneath Crushing Branch of Tree.

Marguerite and Nettie Del Paule, aged six and nine years, respectively, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Del Paule, of La Grande avenue, Fanwood township, lost their lives from injuries received by being crushed by a falling tree which was burning Sunday afternoon in the back yard of their home. Nettie, the elder of the victims, died before medical aid could reach her, while Marguerite, the younger victim lingered until nine o'clock this morning when she passed away.

Mrs. Del Paule, who witnessed the heartrending tragedy, from the yard, in running to the assistance of her children was caught under the heavy branches and pinioned to the ground. She sustained severe bruises and contusions about the head and body, and as a result of her hurts and the shock she is in a precarious condition.

The accident occurred at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. For the last few days fires have been raging in the woods that adjoin the Del Paule home and yesterday the flames found their way into a bed of dried leaves which surrounded the base of a large chestnut tree.

Efforts to stop the headway of the flames were futile. It was the general impression that the fire would approach no nearer the house when the leaves around the tree burned, instead, the flames ate their way into the dry bark of the tree, and without any warning, except the crackling sound of the flames, and the snap of the collopsing trunk, the tree fell over in the direction where the two victims were watching the fire.

Striking the ground with hurricane force, Nettie, the eldest victim, was easily brushed aside by the branches and buried beneath a portion of the trunk. Bruises about her body showed that she had been struck by a terrific force which had almost crushed the breath from her body. She was freed from the death trap in less than five minutes by her terror stricken father, but her frail body, was unable to withstand the shock, and she died a few minutes later.

The victim was carrried into the house at the same time little Marguerite was taken out from under the branches. The latter was unconscious is which condition she remained until death relieved her sufferings. She was terribly injured internally, and although County Physician Westcott was in attendance at the bedside for several hours his ministrations were in vain.

Mrs. Del Paule was also carried to her home, in a semi-conscious state but revived soon after the arrival of Dr. Westcott. Although she is badly bruised it is though that she will survive, although the shock and grief attending the tragedy made her condition hysterical.

Careless hunters are blamed for the fires that have been raging in the vicinity since the opening of the season last Monday. Residents of that section have been terrorized by the encroachment of of flames into their yards and in several instances properties had narrow escapes from destruction.

The two victims of the tragedy were interred at St. Mary's cemetery this afternoon at two o'clock.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN RAISE $200 AT A NOVEL SALE.

The women of the Pastor's Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church held a sale Friday afternoon at which upward of $200 was raised for the fund of the society. Numerous novelties were introduced among which an orange grove was the most unique. The sale was under the direction of Mrs. George H. Swan, and the music was in charge of organist Clifford Braider. The object of the sale was the raising of money for the purchase of a new carpet for the church which is to cost $1,500.

The chairmen of the various tables and booths were: Flowers, Mrs. J. C. Ayres; orange grove, Mrs. Fred C. Lounsbury; fancy table, Mrs. C. E. Herring; children's table, Mrs. Albert Runyon; cake, Mrs. W. W. Dunn; aprons, Mrs. H. A. Pope; candy, Miss Lillian Vail; ice cream, Mrs. G. A. Ballantyne; the waitresses were all members of the church. The affair was considered a most successful one.

The account of this sale was omitted in Saturday's issue of this paper owing to lack of space.

CITY DEFEATS BOROUGH

Plainfield High School Wins Annual Game, Score Being Six to Nothing.

WITNESSED BY A BIG CROWD.

Fully One Thousand Rooters See Spectacular and Exciting Battle for Supremacy.

Plainfield High triumphed over N. P. H. S. in the annual gridiron struggle for the local interscholastic championship on Saturday afternoon in a hard fought battle on the old cricket grounds. The score was 6 to 0, and while the borough athletes went down to defeat, they made a game fight, and emerged from the fray with almost as much glory as the victors.

More than 1,000 persons witnessed the battle for supremacy. It was a typical football crowd and both schools were strongly represented by the student body and graduates, who cheered lustily at every inch of ground gained by their favorites. It was a stubborn battle, and with the exception of the period when Plainfield scored, neither goal was in danger, so evenly matched were the opposing elevens.

Conroy was the bright star for North Plainfield, while Overton and Rifferts shone brilliantly for the city eleven. The borough eleven received a serious setback right at the start when Becker, who has been nursing an injured knee since the Holy Cross game six weeks ago, was put out of business, when he was laid low in a fierce tackle by Carpenter, in the first rush directly after the kickoff.

Victory was clinched by Plainfield in the middle of the second half, when Bristol made a touchdown and Phillips kicked the goal. Previous to the scoring Bristol tried for a field goal from the 30-yard mark, but he failed to shoot the ball over the goal.

Plainfield opened the game by kicking off and Becker rushed the ball to the P. H. S. twenty yard line. He was traveling at a cannon ball rate of speed when Carpenter made a grand tackle and stopped the advance. At this point Becker was carried from the field and P. Bailey called into the fray. Undaunted by this setback the borough warriors gained ten yards by some terrific line hitting.

In a series of short punts the ball went out of bounds and Plainfield gained the ball. Overton and Smith pushed through the borough lines for a gain of eight yards, but were held for downs. Conroy figured in a pretty play, but Doane checked his advance by a superb tackle.

A fumble lost the ball for the borough team. Overton advanced five yards but another fumble gave N. P. H. S. the ball. After failing to gain any headway on two end runs P. Bailey and Townley manipulated a clever forward pass, but Bristol caught the ball, and had gained five yards before Conroy downed him. Bristol was unsuccessful in his efforts to buck the borough line and the warriors were held for downs.

The borough team suffered the same fate and was forced to punt, the agile Riffert shooting the ball and rushing twenty yards, or to the center of the field. Overton and Smith made some gains but the locals were forced to kick. The ball went out of bounds and reverted to North Plainfield on the 35-yard line. At this juncture Conroy made the first down in a neat quarterback run but Carpenter's fine tackle prevented an advance. Before the whistle blew Riffert and Doane completed a classy forward pass which netted a gain of 25 yards.

As in the first half the battle in the final round raged near the center of the field for the greater part of the time. Plainfield's only opportunity to score was made possible by Riffert's splendid free catch on the 40-yard line. After this play Doane gained twenty yards on a forward pass. Riffert followed with a poor forward but Bristol recovered the ball eight yards from the goal. Overton was sent through the line but he fumbled the ball, and as it rolled over the goal the Bristol fell on it, making a touchdown, while Phillips kicked the goal.

During the remainder of the game Smith and Van Zandt, of the local school, distinguished themselves by executing some clever tackles which carried the borough lads off their bearings.

HAWTHORNES DEFEATED BY PLAINFIELD TEAM

The Plainfield Association Football club scored a well-earned victory over the Elizabeth Hawthornes on the Blue grounds, Elizabethport, Saturday afternoon. The final score was 7 to 1. There was a record-breaking crowd on hand to witness the contest.

The game was started at 3:30 and in a nice run down field by the visitors, Spalding took the first goal inside of three minutes. This caused the Hawthornes to stir up a bit and some nice play was seen. However, the Plainfield boys used such good judgment and combination in their play that they succeeded in three more goals in the first half. The score at half-time was 4 to 0 in favor of Plainfield.

The supporters of the Hawthornes now took the opportunity to tell the Plainfield visitors that something would happen in the second half, as they were in for a good beating. Play being resumed, the Plainfield team again took a good hold of the game and clearly demonstrated that they were masters of the situation, by scoring three more goals.

The home team secured its only goal by a smart run down field, and although they played fine football, they could not withstand the magnificent play of the visitors. Heaume, the new centre-forward of the Plainfield team, put up the greatest exhibition of football witnessed in Elizabeth and succeeded in scoring four goals for his mates.

Henderson also secured a goal by a nice penalty kick. Spalding and McKie also took goals, making the score at the finish, 7 to 1 in favor of Plainfield. The playing of the Plainfield forwards was like clockwork, each man just playing to suit his mate and the combination was wonderful. The half-back line and defence also played nice football and kept feeding up the forwards in grand style. The Hawthornes entertained the Plainfield team after the game in a royal manner, and the locals were highly pleased with the reception accorded.

HOLY CROSS ELEVEN SCORES BIG VICTORY

The Holy Cross football eleven secured a grip on the central New Jersey boy's football championship on Saturday afternoon at Finderae, when they trounced the crack Wilson Military Academy by a score of 18 to 0. The scalp has been hanging up the dust with all of the school elevens this season but in the Holy Cross combination the soldier boys bucked up against superior combination.

Holy Cross" defense line was impregnable and all of the local warriors acquitted themselves nobly, especially Russ Vail, Caulfield and Manning. For the soldier team Higgins starred.

The teams will meet in a return battle next Saturday afternoon on the cricket grounds. The Holy Cross eleven is also anxious to arrange another game with Plainfield High and negotiations are now going on in view of bringing about another contest.

CELEBRATED FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Nelson, of Cameron avenue, entertained about fifty friends in honor of the first anniversary of their wedding which fell on Sunday. A wedding supper was served to the guests and the evening was occupied in playing games and other diversions. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson received many congratulations as well as numerous gifts. Among the local guests present were:

Mr. and Mrs. John Christian, Mr. and Mrs. William Freack, Miss Anna Nelson, Miss Johnson, Miss Anna Halma Tuveson, Miss Laura Christian, Miss Lottie Giles, of Metuchen; John and Nelse Nelson, of Oak Tree. There were also guests present from Newark, Jersey City and Orange.

HOLY CROSS' CHOIR BOYS HAVE PLEASANT OUTING.

An outing which was enjoyed to the limit was that held Saturday by the junior boys from the Choir of Holy Cross church, who in company with the rector, Rev. George Warner, and Organist Will O'Brien, went to the second hill on Watchung mountain. Here a lean-to was built by the boys and a meal cooked and served gypsy fashion.

During the afternoon a "monkey" climb was indulged in up the highest tree that could be found in the vicinity. Who the biggest monkey was has not yet been discovered, but there were lots of monkey shines. The chef, who cooked a most savory repast, was too modest to give his name. The outing was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The first basketball five of the Y. M. C. A. defeated the second team on Saturday night by the score of 28 to 28. Leal School's five was scheduled but owing to injuries sustained on the gridiron by Dalli, Lawrence and Driscoll, the Lealonians were unable to muster their regular team.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL ENJOYS VARIED ENTERTAINMENT

The first of the series of four entertainments that have been arranged by Superintendent George R. Hall for the pleasure of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school and their friends, was held Monday night and there was a large and appreciative audience.

The program included high class moving pictures by Plumb & Sampson, of New York. The character of the pictures was especially pleasing, particularly those portraying the Christmastide. A feature was the clever work of Al Baker, ventriloquist, of New York, who delighted his audience with his tricks. Several selections were rendered during the evening by the Bible School orchestra, consisting of Arthur S. Mosher, leader; Miss Marjorie Brown, Miss Arline Brown and Charles Wheeler, violins; Elmer P. Wheeler, flute; Miss Mary E. Clark, piano. The offering was received by the Misses Alice Brown, Sarah Boyd, Anna Clark, Marion Mortimer and Lillian Cuming.

Mr. Hall has arranged three more entertainments to take place on November 29, December 6 and 13, including moving pictures, with a change of program each night; also an entertainer for the amusement of the audience and selections by the school orchestra. The public is invited to enjoy these entertainments. Admission is free, with an offering received during the evening in the interest of the school. All present last night received from Mr. Hall a pocket memorandum book with the inscription, "Compliments Park Avenue Baptist Bible School, Plainfield, N. J."

PINTO WILL APPEAR HERE IN "THE CLIMAX"

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the "Charity Ball," to be held at the Hartridge School Auditorium, on Friday night, December 31, announced today that as an extra attraction, "The Climax," with the original cast, which includes Edingham Pinto, of this city, would be presented at the Plainfield theatre the evening of the dance. Mr. Pinto since his first appearance in the famous original cast of "The Climax," should insure a capacity audience at the forthcoming performance.

"The Climax" is considered one of the distinctive hits of the year, its run at Weber's and other New York theatres being remarkable. Mr. Pinto has a host of friends here who will doubtless be glad of the opportunity to see him in this play.

CO. K'S ENTERTAINMENT; HONOR MEN GET MEDALS

Co. K had a great time Monday at its armory on West Front street, for besides indulging in a spectacular and well executed drill the successful marksmen and 100 per cent. men were presented with their medals. Several speeches were made, including officers of the younger organization as well as G. A. R. men.

Past Commander S. W. Reese, Captain William Hand and Captain William C. Smith gave reminiscences of their personal experiences during the Civil War. Commander Reese's remarks had to do with the troubles and triumphs of a private while Captains Hand and Smith interested the boys with their tales of the workings of the Commissary Department and the arduous work of the Calvary.

The honor men were as follows: Lieut. Peterson, Sergeant Hort, Corp. Winter, Dow and Niles and Privates Bladenwald, Cole, Gedgeon, Horn, Welch, Dayton, Randolph, Winter, Carter and Clawson.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS COST HIM TEN DOLLARS

Another case of cruelty to animals came before Judge Runyon Tuesday morning in the city court, in which the defendant was Frank Hoesen, the Humane Society's officer. George Conover, the owner of the horse, in pleading for leniency said that he was pushed for horses and had to use the mare although he knew that the animal was unfit for the work which had to be done. Judge Runyon imposed a fine of ten dollars which was promptly paid, and it is quite likely that the horse will be allowed to recover from the sore breast with which it is suffering.

The plaint in Miss Van Hoesen's case was made by William Addis, a health board inspector. A. F. Carpenter, the veterinary surgeon testified as to the condition of the horse.

POLAR PROOF VERACITY

Observations of Cook and Peary not Convincing Says Noted Astronomer.

PROFESSOR JACOBY'S LECTURE.

Grace Church Men's Club Learns Much About Polar Astronomy From Columbia Professor.

Professor Jacoby, of Columbia University, who lectured at Grace church parish house Monday the "Polar Astronomy," is not certain that Dr. Cook did not reach the desired goal nor that Commander Peary did, because either one of the two explorers might have arrived within twelve miles of it and not know it. In any event it is pure conjecture on the part of the critics of both men as to whom belongs the honor.

Professor Jacoby began his lecture with the statement that there might be a few persons present who had heard the name Polar star in the past few weeks, but, he said, the north pole really belongs to the astronomer. He proceeded to illustrate the meaning of the latter statement with a glass globe, perfectly round as shown now the globe was slightly flattened at the poles. He also had duplicates of the instruments which Commander Peary took with him on his latest exploring trip.

Many in the audience who had never learned the first rudiments of the way with the knowledge that no matter who had reached the pole, if either had, the honor could be easily applied for faithfulness to duty. Professor Jacoby's lecture was an illuminative one in so far as the difficulties of reaching the north pole is concerned, but now the globe was distinctly interesting from the viewpoint of the amateur who knows nothing about the movements of the planets and who is anxious to know why only one side of the moon can be seen from the earth.

Nansen's observation of his "Farthest North," in 1895, were approved by the lecturer. Without using Cook's name he intimated that any of the observations could be written on a piece of paper that could easily be folded in such a manner as to be placed in the vest pocket and would not require a specially constructed box to be buried at Etah. He showed a complete set of instruments, duplicates of those taken to the far north by Commander Peary, and several others rescued from the ill-fated Greely expedition. Proofs are mere conversation as regards the attainment of the Pole, said Professor Jacoby, and as to the claims of the explorers that they believe they was reached, although their observations may differ in some non-essential points.

Professor Jacoby explained with minute care the artificial horizon by which polar observations are made. Mercury freezes at a temperature of 30 degrees below zero and it is necessary to carry it in an iron receptacle which must be heated before it is exposed to the outer air. The work of the sextant with which angles for calculating the height of the sun are made, and the small compass in which the instruments may be worked were made quite clear. The lecturer showed the pocket compass, sextant and chronometer used by General Greeley and told how after twenty years silence the chronometer had suddenly come to life when he lifted it at the museum in New York, where it had laid since its memorable recovery.

Among the other instruments exhibited were a theodolite, prismatic compass and pocket chronometer, exact duplicates of those used by Commander Peary. The theodolite is a miniature copy of the instrument used in surveying. "I have heard that Doctor Cook has written a fifty-thousand word description of his observations and if he proves by his assertion that he had reached the Pole, but the necessary calculations, with the attendant observations described could be written on an ordinary sheet of note paper and be just as convincing," said Professor Jacoby. "Even after the proofs are ready and the explorers' story thoroughly read and understood the main reliance will be on their veracity. I believe the pole has been reached and I trust that the observations and records of both men will prove that both men have attained the goal so long sought."

After the lecture those present were given an opportunity to examine the instruments with which the lecture had been illustrated. Professor Jacoby was asked several questions which proved that partisans of both Cook and Peary were in the audience, and he answered them in a manner to convince them that he believed that both explorers are entitled to belief as to their polar achievements.

THE CHURCH IN ENGLAND

Congregational Minister Says the Conditions are Amazing There.

TOO MUCH RITUALISM HE SAYS.

Rev. Mr. Nickerson Says There Are Too Many Mediaeval Suggestions in Edifices.

The conditions of the Church in England are amazing, according to Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church. Ritualism, he says, gives place to sentiment, and formality to love. There are too many mediaeval suggestions in the edifices themselves, he declares, and the cold interiors are not comforting, though extremely quiet and archaic. In their churches and particularly in the village chapels the English people are worshipful although many chapels and churches are non-conformist in scope.

The congregations appear to be more reverent than ours in America but there is a difference in the mode of worship very noticeable. Rev. Mr. Nickerson recalled nearly all the famous cathedrals in England and referred especially to one service at Welles. Here he said the music was delightful to hear and the singing of an anthem will remain in his memory for a long time. However, to this music there was no real touch of soul, no love, pure formality and very little religious sentiment in his opinion. St. Paul's is said to be never more impressive than it is today, but England is actually aware that its ritual is not fulfilling its destiny, he said.

At Winchester cathedral there was also something lacking in the service

WOMAN SMOKER LIVED LONG

Mary Frith, Highway Robber, the First to Wear Sex to Use Tobacco in England.

Mary Frith, better known as Moll Cutpurse, was a notable figure in old time London life. She had the reputation of being the first woman to smoke tobacco in England.

The length of her days is a disputed point, but it seems certain that she attained the age of over threescore years and ten. It is asserted that constant smoking prolonged her life. A portrait representing her in the act of smoking forms the frontispiece of Middleton's comedy of the "Roaring Girl." She also figures in other plays of the period.

Mary was the daughter of a shoemaker living in the Barbican, and Malone gives 1584 as the date of her birth. She early took to wicked ways and became a noted "highwayman." Among her familiar friends were the notorious Capt. Hind and Richard Hannam, but she was an expert swordswoman. Single-handed she robbed on Hounslow Heath. Gen. Fairfax of 200 gold jacobuses, shooting him through the arm and killing two of his horses on which his servants were riding. For the offense she was committed to Newgate, but on paying the general £2,000 she obtained her liberty.

At one time Mary had £5,000 of her own, but by giving money to distressed cavaliers she died comparatively poor. Her death took place in July, 1659, and she was laid to rest in St. Bridget's.

ARE USED TO BEING CROWDED

Passengers on New York Street Car Sit Close Even When It Is Not Necessary.

The woman with a sense of humor smiled. "It is funny," said she, "how content some people are to sit jammed together in the cars."

"They can't help themselves," protested her companion.

"I know, but I refer to the times when they are not obliged to occupy the same six inches with their next neighbors. When a crowded car begins to thin out, most people expand, but some forget to. I have seen the women who has been shopping squeeze into a seat beside a laborer at the end of the day, just as often as not, she continues to tickle his nose with her plumes clear up to Harlem, after the car is half empty, and to rest her bundles on his lime-coated overalls.

"One night, quite late, away uptown on a Broadway car, a young man and young woman sat propped together midway of a long, empty seat. There was not another passenger left in that side of the car. They paid no attention to each other, and I supposed that they were too tired to talk. It was quite a shock to my calculations when the young man got off and left the girl sitting apathetically in the empty seat. I had estimated them as first cousins at the furthest."—New York Press.

Scales for Dyspeptics.

"When I got my last prescription made up the druggist showed me a pair of pocket scales for weighing food," said the sallow complexioned man. "He said he could tell by the medicine I was taking that I would have to be mighty careful about the quantity of food I ate, and he urged me to buy the scales so I could be sure not to overeat. They were the first scales designed especially for dyspeptics I had seen. They cost two dollars. No doubt they could be used for weighing other things, but that druggist offered them mainly to customers whose digestion was out of order. The scales were small enough to be carried conveniently and they registered rations light enough to starve a canary. I did not buy, but the druggist assured me that many persons who are on a strict diet have provided themselves with pocket scales on which they weigh every bite they eat."

Worst Past Than Brigands.

On the highways of turbulent Catalonia one might expect that the chief danger to the traveler would be the brigand. By no means! The greatest pests are the small children, who accost one at every turn. Treated with the utmost consideration by their parents—they are never corrected, it is said, in any circumstances whatsoever—they track the foreigner, with the irritating pertinacity of the mosquito. And, like the mosquito, they suck blood, crying:

"I have neither father nor mother! Cinco centimos!" And the grubby hands shoot up into one's face.

The Consoling Volume.

There was a backward student at Balliol who, for failure to pass an examination in Scripture was "sent down." His mother went to see the master, Dr. Jowett, and explained to him what an excellent lad her son was. "It is a hard experience for him, this disgrace," said the old lady; "but he will have the consolation of religion, and there is always one book to which he can turn." Jowett eyed her for a moment and then answered: "Yes, madam; the Greek grammar. Good-morning."

Why Mary Recovered.

"John, I don't want you to grieve too long when I am gone."

"I shall have to look sorry for a week or two, Mary, just for the looks of things, but I shall perk up after that and begin to take notice. Don't you think Widow Jinx is a fine lookin' little woman?"—Houston Post.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 28, 1909.

Topic.—Home missions. "The battle of the slum."—Luke xiv, 8-23.

There is no more grave or serious missionary problem before the Christian church today than that of carrying the gospel to the slum districts of our large cities. When we face the problem of the foreigners segregated in our large cities, our industrial and agricultural centers, it seems to be a great one, but it is as nothing compared with the reformation and redemption of those who have become victims of the sins and allurements of the slums. The difficulties involved in successful Christian work in the slums are colossal and almost insurmountable. Were it not that "all things are possible with God" man would be compelled to give up in despair in the face of the gigantic difficulties presented. When we think of what needs to be done and how little is being or can be done the heart grows sick and we feel like exclaiming with Paul, "Who is sufficient for these things?" Many of the victims of the vices of slum life do not want to give it up, and what can be done for those who desire to have nothing done for them? Thousands perhaps would like to break away from their foul surroundings, but how can they? And if they did where would they go and what would they do? Would even the Christian church receive them into its membership and try to help them upward? Sad to say, there are possibly few churches that would receive into what home would one stained with the filth of the slums be received even to do the most menial labor? The gospel is being preached to many of them, especially in theaters on Sabbath nights after the church services are over.

Many profess conversion, and many are converted, but their future is full of darkness and almost despair. The men may meet with some help and encouragement, but the women have very small prospects of reclamation, and many of the children, it must be said, at dire necessity drift back into the old life of vice and sin. Houses of refuge for fallen women reclaim and restore many, but few indeed in comparison to the numbers involved, and even then the places made vacant are soon filled by new victims.

The duty of doing something rests upon Christianity and Christian workers. It is easy to criticise municipal governments for not keeping large cities free from saloons, gambling dens and other resorts of vice, but the problems before them are almost as great as those before the church. They might do more than they do perhaps and yet they would if they received more encouragement from good citizens instead of so much severe condemnation. But what they can do they should do, for they not only represent the city, but upon them rests the duty of enforcing the law. By Christian people one or two things can and should be done. It has been well said that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Could not Christian people save more from the slums? And, if so, ought they not to do so? Could not many be saved from the slums if a little care and attention were paid to them by the preferred followers of Christ? If a young man starts downward, who knows but that a little prompt attention might save him? But, instead of that, is not the tendency just the opposite? Do not slanderous tongues help him on? Do not his associates begin to weary less attention to him and gradually withdraw from association with him? And what is the result?

To the slums he goes for companionship, and his ruination soon becomes complete. Such is the history of thousands of women in the slums today. They may be naturally wild in disposition in their early young womanhood. Through inexperience of life they may commit indiscretions and perhaps become more wicked at that moment their friends should hold the firmer to them. But do they? In most cases they do not. They are received with sarcastic smiles and titters. Skirts are drawn from them as if the best their wearers become contaminated. They must not be in such a class in the Sabbath school or certain others will leave it. Shunned and deserted just when they need a kind word or a saving hand clasp, they pass out of sight and are soon found in the slums. To many religion is but a farce, but nowhere does the farce appear to such an awful extent as in the case mentioned, the attitude toward those who have fallen, toward those who are "down and out." Yet many of these same people are the veriest hypocrites and baser at heart than many of the unfortunate sexless creatures who drift down to the slums. Another thing is absolutely certain. Christian young people should not go slumming. Through slumming parties many have been led into slum life. No pure minded young man or young woman should ever seek vice even just to look upon it. The very sight spoils the purity of the heart and soul. "Avoid the very appearance of evil." In its rudest stage it is foul and loathsome. In its refined the pitfalls are many are allured to it through such visits. Nor should young people, and especially young women, think even of doing work in the slums. Men and strong men at that, should be selected for such work together with women of sense and firm will and character. And last of all, let us pray for those who are lost. God can reclaim them. Let us ask Him to do so.

CONSERVATISM IN CLOTHES.

The reluctance of the average Englishman to alter the dress that he has been accustomed to wear at home, even when it is most inappropriate to the climate in which he finds himself, has often been noted in this country, says The Literary Digest. According to a South African physician, Dr. Wilfred Fox Pitchford, it is the cause of much suffering and no little illness in that country.

In a presidential address before the public health section of a recent South African medical congress, he says, greater attention is needed to the study of the attitude of individuals to the hygeic customs of the community, especially as regards their clothing, their food and their dwellings. Criticism of the utility of social customs, he points out, is especially justified at a time when the inhabitants of a comparatively new country are moving to combine themselves into a nation, for reforms may then be most readily carried out and new ideals established. The rights to the clothing worn by Europeans in South Africa as the custom which most invites hygienic criticism, but fears that reform in this regard will be most difficult, as it would nave traditions, custom and fashion all against it, and nothing in its favor, apparently, but ordinary common sense.

Dr. Watkins-Pitchford's remarks elicit the following comment from the Lancet: "It is, indeed, surprising to find that the imported dress color of South African garments are still largely prescribed by the requirements and prejudices of people in England. When our forefathers began to colonize tropical and subtropical countries they took with them clothes which differed little, if at all, from those of the home material and fashion, and everybody knows that within comparatively recent years these clothes were sent to go through their Indian and other foreign service with the same outfit as they wore at home, with the sole addition of a scrap of white linen to hang from their helmets.

"We were under the impression that the majority of British colonists in hot climates had at length modified their clothes, at least for everyday wear, in some such manner as has been done for the British troops among them, but Dr. Watkins-Pitchford's observations show this to be the case in the country of his adoption. He might have pointed to the change of manners at home in support of his protest, for of late summers the straw hat and the Homburg have nearly driven the time-honored silken headgear from the London streets, and the example of more than one learned judge has even sanctioned the doffing of forensic wigs during the hot weeks of the year."

YOUTH.

I am the unquiet sister, with the old,
wild beautiful eyes.
Who went forth from my home to seek;
I am the immortal child who yearned for the moon and the starsowns and have;

I am the dreaming girl who burned
For the touch of a god on her cheek.
I am the unquiet sister with the young, ancient beautiful eyes
Whose feet with morning were shod.
I have traveled the long, long road where the caravan smoke and the golden dust up-flies;
I am the dreaming girl who awoke
And discovered a vanishing god.
I am the unquiet sister with the gray, roving beautiful eyes,
Who plucked at the world in its bloom.
Oh, to be as I was at first, transparent, eager, unwise!
For the clear little brook I thirst
Where I drank when the day was young,
And the door of my girlhood's room.
I am the unquiet sister with the old,
wild beautiful eyes.
I have seen so many things—
Hope detained in a sightless tower and graves for questionings.
Love that endured for a hope and the eyes of wounded things.
I would like to go back once more,
creep back, dark-foot in the rain,
And timidly knock at the door I left.
I can never go back again.

From the Borough Clerk of New Providence.

November 1, 1909.

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

Gentlemen—This is to certify that at a regular meeting of the council of the borough of New Providence, Union county, New Jersey, held October 11, 1909, the following resolution was adopted by the Borough Council.

Resolved, That Marion avenue, from South street to Livingston avenue, be and the same is revised map of the property belonging to Mary D. Francis, in the borough of New Providence, be accepted as a public road

To witness my hand this first day of November, 1909.

JOHN M. BADGLEY,
Clerk of the Borough of New Providence.

On motion of Freeholder Smith received and placed on file.

The following was submitted by Director King, Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 25, 1909:

To the Hon. Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir—The Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union have requested me, as their attorney, to communicate with you with reference to the dredging of the channel of the Elizabeth River near the city of Elizabeth. They inform me that it has been obstructing the river that it is now in such condition that for some months past, and that they are under the impression that your department would have jurisdiction over removing the same. We have not, up to the present time, been able to learn the name of the owner of the vessel, and there is imminent danger of the same being washed against some of the drawbridges across said river, and destroying the same. Will you kindly inform me whether or not your department has jurisdiction over such matters, and if so, whether or not action will be taken to have the obstruction removed.

I beg to remain,
Yours very truly,
W. R. CODINGTON.

The following reply was received to the above.

U. S. Engineer's Office,
New York, N. Y.
Nov. 2, 1909.

1. Respectfully returned to the Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army.

2. The sunken vessel reported is the steel 3-masted schooner Allen Osborn, of Perth Amboy, N. J. This schooner is about 65 feet in length and 19 feet in width, and of light draught. On May 1906, the Allen Osborn was loaded at Sayreville, N. J., with brick and fire clay consigned to T. F. & C. Sayre, of Elizabeth. On entering the Elizabeth River she grounded and filled. Part of her cargo was taken off and she was towed to the wharf at Elizabeth, where the balance of the cargo was unloaded and she was moved to her present position near the upper end of Sayre's wharf which is about 1,000 feet below the Bridge street bridge.

3. A recent examination shows that the vessel has moved the same position and is embedded in the bottom alongside of the wharf and is not likely to shift its position. There is very little shipping in this locality, and it does not interfere with the passage of vessels to the next wharf above or to Bridge street, which is the practicable limit of navigation. It is reported that he owner of this wreck is employed by Mr. Sayre.

4. In my opinion this wreck is not such an obstruction as would subject it to removal by the United States as contemplated under section 15 of the "Laws for the protection and preservation of the navigable waters of the United States." If it has been abandoned by the owner, I see no objection to its removal by Mr. Sayre, the owner of the wharf, or the local authorities.

WILLIAM S. ROSSELL,
Colonel Corps of Engineers.

On motion the communication under Cladek received and placed on file.

By Committee on Soldiers' Headstones.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—The undersigned, Committee on Headstones, beg leave to report that we have visited the various cemeteries and burial grounds throughout the county of Union, where headstones have heretofore been erected for the purpose of marking graves of deceased soldiers, sailors and marines, and furnished by this board. We find that the character of the stones heretofore used is inferior, defective and not lasting, and that in many instances they are practically useless.

We further beg leave to report that we have had prepared plans and specifications for a stone now in use in our opinion, is proper and suitable, and which can be furnished (we have obtained estimates) under the amount heretofore appropriated for stone so proposed to be furnished is of best Quincy granite, which when placed in place will be two feet under ground, eight inches in thickness and twenty inches in width, and when set, would be nine inches above ground at the lowest point, with a raised shield and hand thereon to contain the name, rank, command and birth and death of the deceased soldier.

And your committee would beg to recommend that an effort be made to have the Adjutant-General approve of the design which we have selected and which we understand he approved as he had, no other description of stone can be used than that now used. We would therefore recommend the adoption of the following resolution.

Respectfully submitted,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
JOHN N. CADY,
JOHN H. STEPHAN,
JOSEPH PERRY,
Committee.

The resolution was as follows:

Resolved, That plans and specifications for headstones for marking the graves of deceased soldiers, sailors and marines of the county of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act respecting the burial of the honorably discharged soldiers, sailor sand marines, and marking their graves with a suitable headstone, and the care and preservation of the graves," approved March 20, 1902, be prepared; and be it further

Resolved, That a properly prepared sketch in duplicate of the design herewith submitted, and specifications duly certified by the clerk of the board, be forwarded to the office of Adjutant-General of the State of New Jersey for the approval of the authorities designated in said act; and be it further

Resolved, That the cost of said headstones shall not exceed the sum of fifteen dollars each, as provided for in said act.

Freeholder Adams moved that the foregoing report be received and resolution adopted, which was so ordered without dissent.

By Committee on Soldiers' Headstones.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Gentlemen — Your committee, charged under the law with the burial of soldiers who die without leaving sufficient means to defray funeral expenses, and the erection of stones to mark their resting places, feeling that it is essential for an intelligent performance of duty and the conservation of the county's interests to have a complete, authentic and official record of the burial plots, marked and unmarked, by county headstones, of all soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the Civil and Spanish-American Wars, and were honorably discharged from the service, and who are sleeping last sleep in the various cemeteries of this county, be it

Resolved, That the task of obtaining and reporting the same to this board for intelligent action in the future, be entrusted to General J. Madison Drake, hereby appointed, who shall make a diligent typewritten report of his investigation, and receive as compensation for his labors the sum of seventy-five dollars.

HERVEY DOANE,
JOHN N. CADY,
JOHN H. STEPHAN,

The Great Strides of the Public Service Corporation.

The recent statement concerning the financial and operating conditions of the Public Service Corporation which was set forth in the letter sent to J. P. Morgan & Co., and Drexel & Co., by President Thomas N. McCarter, has been received with great interest and satisfaction by the stockholders of this corporation.

It is doubtful whether the public generally, and even Public Service stockholders at large, have realized the growth and extent of the business of this corporation. While it has been generally known that Public Service has been increasing its gross business from year to year, the figures showing the steady increase from nineteen millions during the first nine months of the year, must have been a revelation to a great many people.

This statement is one that should be studied with care, for it certainly reflects credit upon Public Service management.

There is a growing demand for Public Service securities outside of the State of New Jersey as well as in it. The Fidelity Trust Company of Newark, who make a specialty of the conservative underlying securities of this corporation, and the Banking number of sales outside of the State of New Jersey has increased materially within the last six months, showing the growing interest in New Jersey's best securities outside of the State.

The Fidelity Trust Company is in an unusually advantageous position to pass upon the value of these securities. The close association of their officers with the detail of management of the Public Service Corporation since its organization gives intimate knowledge of the prosperity of the company, make their judgment as to the desirability of Public Service securities particularly valuable.

With the view of increasing the efficiency of the company in its investment work they have established a bond department, in which not only Public Service securities are dealt in, but also high grade investment securities, stocks and bonds, to meet the requirements of conservative investors.

WING-HANDED BATS.

Some near relations of ours, the wing-handed bats, may be regarded, strictly speaking, as specialized for the task of catching moths, flies and midges, says The Cornhill Magazine.

Few people know how nearly they are related to us. They belong to the self-same division of the higher mammals as man and the apes; they skeleton answers to ours, bone for bone, and joint for joint, in an extraordinary manner; only the very essential fact that they have very long fingers with a web between as an organ of flight prevents us from familiarly and instinctively recognizing their near remote cousins once removed from the ordinary.

The female bat, in particular, is absurdly human. Most of them feed off insects alone; but a few, like the famous vampire bats of South America, take a meat advantage of sleeping animals and suck their blood after the fashion of mosquitoes, as they lie defenseless in the forest or on the open pampas.

TRIED TO BRIBE CORSA

Plainfielder Tells of Methods Employed by the Sugar Trust.

PUT CASH IN HIS POCKET.

Given an Ominous Hint That He Might Drop Into River and Not Come Up.

A Plainfield end to the alleged illegal operations of the Sugar Trust developed Wednesday when Henry C. Corsa, of 536 East Second street, a former government employee who worked as assistant to the sugar samplers on the Jersey City docks, told of the operations of the trust and what he had seen and how the samplers were bribed. He is the man named by Wilbur F. Wakeman as having been ordered discharged after he brought in to the department evidence of graft among the samplers and assistant samplers on the Jersey docks. He was a civil service employee.

One of his duties while he worked as assistant to the samplers was to carry a tray of little pots in which samples had been placed by the samplers to the locker room where they were to remain until removed by the appraisers. En route he found that the assistant samplers were actually passing with their trays through a cellar near the docks, in which was the trust's official briber. This man would dump them out and refill them from a hogshead of damp, spoiled, sugar kept there for that purpose.

"I went into the custom house," said Mr. Corsa yesterday, "with an attitude of loyalty toward the government that was very dear to me. One day when I saw the assistants taking their trays through the trust's agents cellar I was told: 'You're in on this, old man; mum's the word—there's money enough to go round in it—don't be a squealer, and take your bit and shut up.' At first I took my tray along with the others down to the agent's cellar and saw the samples dumped and the spoiled sugar put in the place. I didn't understand just the meaning of it all the first day.

"But one day I was coming out of the washroom and another assistant said to me, 'You've got your money, old man; it's in your coat pocket.' I got mine, too. See.' And then this man pulled out some bills. I felt in my pocket, and, sure enough, there was my roll of bills. I knew the trust agent well enough by that time. I also knew the other briber who kept tab on the Williamsburg docks.

"Now, I saw that this thing was general all over the docks. I didn't blame the men so much. They were poor as I was, and the money was a blessing to them. My first few bits got up my back, while I was thinking it over what to do. Then I thought of my old friend Mr. Treat who was fisternal revenue collector, and a man engaged in financial business of the government. I decided to seek his advice.

"Next time my 'bit' came around into my pocket by the washroom process I went to Mr. Wakeman, the appraiser. I gave him the money, told him what was going on and went back to work. He thanked me, said me to keep watching and come and tell him all I could find out.

"Now, soon after that, Mr. Wakeman had all the samplers and assistant samplers in before him. They had the suspect some one. Suspicion fell upon me. I was cursed on the docks and it was hinted that one of these days if I didn't look out I'd drop off and not come up again. I told Wakeman of the feeling and he said to keep by my post and he'd protect me and back me up. And he always did. The bribers kept away from me, though I guess because they, too, suspected."

Mr. Corsa then told of Mr. Wakeman's personal and his own subsequent discharge with the seven year's fruitless struggle for reinstatement.

TO RESUME CANAL HEARINGS.

Senator George S. Silzer, of Middlesex county, Saturday stated that the special Senate committee appointed to conduct an inquiry into the causes for the great falling off of traffic on the Delaware and Raritan Canal, will have two hearings immediately after Thanksgiving, one in Trenton and one in New Brunswick. At these hearings the committee will subpoena as witnesses officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, who own and operate the waterway, together with canal boat owners, shippers and others in the section. Upon information upon which an intelligent report with recommendations can be made to the next session of the Senate. Senator Silzer is chairman of the committee and its associates are Messrs. Leavitt, of Mercer, and Bradley, of Camden.

Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Commercial Travelers, held a successful progressive euchre party at its rooms in Columbus Hall, Saturday night. There were twenty-seven tables used and eight games were played. After the play honors for the women were awarded to Mrs. John M. Lewis, Mrs. Harry Warner and Mrs. William N. Tier, while for the men they were E. E. Ripley, E. W. Poisler and Fred Kirch.

INDOOR GOLF FOR LOCAL ENTHUSIASTS

Plainfield golfers will have an opportunity to play their favorite game all through the chilly winter days and evening and not even be compelled to use their sweaters. On the contrary they will be compelled to mop the perspiration from their brows and perhaps, play with their shirt sleeves rolled up. All this has been brought about by "Marty" O'Loughlin, the well-known homebred professional golfer of the Plainfield Country Club.

"Marty" will open an indoor golf school within a few weeks. A suitable place has been selected and it is now being made comfortable and put in first-class condition. A number of the most prominent golfers in the city, including some of the women players, have already joined the school.

A large practice net, which is a patented idea, has been secured and will be placed in position. The net contains several pockets of various sizes and by following a certain key in connection with the net a regular round of golf can be played over the country club or any other links. There will also be regular "carpet" putting greens. Monthly competitions for prizes will be arranged. Certain hours for practice will be restricted to the women only, from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

A well-known professional golfer will be on hand at all times to assist "Marty" in giving instructions. In addition to improving ones game, the exercise will be equivalent to a regular course in a gymnasium. The ball can be struck as hard as when playing out-of-doors over a regular course, affording an excellent opportunity to spring the arm around they can start right in playing, being further advanced than when they left off in the fall. The school will be opened December 1 in the Marsh building on Park avenue.

ALLEGED SHOP-LIFTERS BOTH PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Edward E. Smith and Kittie Smith, alleged shop lifters arrested here on October 13, were arraigned before Judge Atwater in Quarter Sessions court in Elizabeth Monday morning. They both pleaded not guilty and their trial was set for Thursday, December 2. Their bail was reduced to $400 each.

This pair of clever thieves were caught through a mirror they made in asking Samuel Milliken, of Archung avenue, for wrapping paper in which to conceal a pair of shoes stolen from Louis Moldensky, of East Front street. When their room was searched, in the home of Mrs. John Stevens, at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street, loot to the value of $200 was found and taken to police headquarters. Victims from Elizabeth, Newark and Paterson identified part of the goods found in the room of the pair.

HINDOO GIRL SPEAKER

Talks to Gatherings at Crescent Ave. Presbyterian and First Baptist Churches.

TELLS OF Y. W. C. A. WORK.

Miss Harriet Taylor, National Secretary of the Foreign Department a Speaker.

Miss Dora Maya Das, the first Hindoo girl, to enlist in service under the Young Women's Christian Association banner, in her visit to this city Wednesday appeared on the platform at the Crescent Avenue and First Baptist churches, and afterward at the Y. W. C. A. rooms, where she told interested gatherings of her plans and preparations to carry on the Y. W. C. A. in her native country when she returns in April. Miss Das, is of high caste, her father being one of the high officials in India. In preparing for her future work she is a student in the National Training school of the association in New York, and on the completion of her course, she will labor in the colleges and schools in India.

Persons who came in contact with the young woman were agreeably surprised at her mental attainments. She is a beautiful girl, of the dark Hindoo type, and she possesses many brilliant qualities. That she is enthusiastic in the work she has mapped out was demonstrated by the earnestness displayed in her talks.

At the Crescent Avenue church she said: "When I came to the United States it was for an education and not for Christianity, but when I realized the goodness of the hundreds of young American women, I came in contact with, who linked Christianity with education, I too, wanted both.

"American girls," continued Miss Das, "have many things to be thankful for. To me the contrast is so great that I cannot attempt to explain, but I am confident that the light is already dawning on my native country." In the course of her remarks Miss Das related many interesting incidents concerning the lives and opportunities of the young woman in her native land.

Miss Das' last stop was at the local Y. W. C. A. rooms, where she gave a short talk to the pupils of the English classes at the close of these rooms. Miss Das will stay in this city she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stewart, of West Eighth street.

Miss Harriett Taylor, national secretary of the Y. W. C. A. foreign department, who recently returned from a South American tour, also gave an interesting description of conditions among young women in that part of the world. In her remarks she told of the big work being executed by the Y. W. C. A. in Buenos Ayres, which is the only association of its kind in that country at the present time.

In her travels Miss Taylor has visited fifteen countries in the interests of the foreign department. One interesting incident in her remarks was a narrative in which she told how the association secured a foothold at Shanghai, China. The organization of the association in this country, she said, was the results of a garden party given for that purpose in the large estate of the Chinese viceroy. Miss Taylor is of the work being conducted among the students in Tokio, Japan.

Miss Taylor also impressed on her hearers of the need for more workers in the field. In Shanghai, she said, there are positions open for three more workers, while in India there is room for fifteen more secretaries. Funds are also needed to support the work.

Miss Maya Das, after speaking at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, went to the First Baptist church, where an audience of more than two hundred people was waiting to hear her. In the meantime the service was in charge of Miss Hattie Mattison, as chairman of the program committee of the Young People's Society, under whose auspices it was held.

J. HARRY MANNING APPOINTED AN ASSISTNT SUPERINTENDENT.

G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of Hope chapel Sunday-school, announced Sunday the appointment of J. Harry Manning as assistant superintendent, to succeed Ira W. Travell, who removed to Morristown. The session of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, at its last session, tendered the office to Mr. Manning, who has been a teacher at the chapel.

After much deliberation, Mr. Manning said he would accept the office. He was formerly secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for many years and is now a director of the association. Since giving up the secretaryship, he has been engaged in the insurance business.

CONSUMERS LEAGUE WORK

Child Labor and Sweat Shop Conditions are Shown at Exhibition.

MISS BUTLER IN CHARGE.

At Mrs. Thatcher M. Brown's Home —Large Attendance—The Exhibit Closes Today.

The exhibition of photographs and work done by child labor and under sweat-shop conditions which was given at the residence of Mrs. Thatcher Brown on Park avenue Wednesday opened the eyes of the hundred or more women who took the opportunity of investigating the story and familiarizing themselves with the existing conditions in the congested districts of our cities and the danger which exists from possible contamination.

Miss Elizabeth Butler, one of the earnest workers in the League, was present and fully explained the workings of the League and its aims. Mrs. Florence Kelley, president of the League, was unable to be present, and it was also unfortunate that Miss Pauline Goldmark, an investigator, could not be there to tell some of the thrilling experiences of her work among the manufacturers of glove, cloak and other commodities. However, we may quote from a previous speech of Mrs. Kelley which will throw some light on the conditions which the League is trying to eliminate.

In a speech before the League in Stamford, Conn., early this year, Mrs. Kelley said. "Seventeen years ago I entered into the work of establishing the Consumers' League in the United States and during those years I have seen so many things of a nature too distressing to relate that I cannot urge you women too forcibly to give attention to the dire povery, dirt and immorality under which some of the garments you wear are manufactured. My attention was first attracted to child labor and its horrors by the vision of a wistful little face pressing against the window pane of a factory near the Hull House in Chicago. This factory was known as the "grinders" and it was only named, for I found that more young lives were being ground out than I had ever dreamed of.

"I took with me the truant officer and discovered that the child I had seen was a boy of 14, who, standing grinding penknives and that his hours were from 7 in the morning to 9 at night. Unfortunately there to prevent this cruelty but thanks was no law in Illinois at that time to the efforts we managed to draw around us we had a law passed which forever prohibited the crime. Now the child must be over sixteen years old and can only be made to work eight hours.

"You may be sure that this legislation is not accomplished without much fighting on our part and our League was young. The help of editors, ministers, philanthropists and others went a great way toward giving us a victory.

In speaking of tenement house labor, Mrs. Kelley told an illustrative story which more than shocked her hearers. She said: "I met two children carrying a bundle of knee pants in a street of New York city. Both of them ought to have been in school and I asked the elder of the two why they were not. He replied that there was sickness in his home and the school teacher wouldn't let them in. I asked him who was sick and his reply startled me. He said 'It's me, I got scarlet fever and they won't let me in.' By further questioning I found that he had received the pants from a concern on West Nineteenth street. I investigated this case and discovered that the boy had told the truth and that the conditions under which this class of work was being done were truly shocking and dangerous to the very last degree."

Many other instances of work done in filthy surroundings were told of and Mrs. Kelley urged the women to refuse to purchase goods which did not bear the League label. Miss Goldmark told of the child labor in the canneries of New York State and added another chapter to the already long list of crimes which certain greedy manufacturers are guilty.

The exhibition at Mrs. Brown's home was open until noon today and was visited by many women who could not be present yesterday. It has served to open the eyes of the best people to th appalling conditions under which many of our needs are made.

Cranford Has Strong Girls Team.

FREEHOLDERS INSPECT JEFFERSON AVENUE WORK

Before the meeting, of the Union County Board of Freeholders Thursday, the members of the board were in this city inspecting Jefferson avenue with the members of the Middlesex county board. The purpose of the examination was to determine whether or not the road, which has just been completed, should be accepted as a state aid road. Deputy Commissioner Vail, of the State Commission, was with the freeholders, and as he suggested several slight changes in the construction, no decision regarding the road was made. It is believed that he will ask the county engineers the decision as to the advisability of accepting it after the changes recommended are made. It is believed that the road will be satisfactory, however, as all that is to be done is to make the thoroughfare a little more sightly.

County Attorney W. R. Codington unofficially said Thursday that four of the five municipalities delinquent in the payment of the county road bonds for the construction work in 1898, due on October 1, this year, had agreed to pay their portions. They are Roselle Park, Summit, Union township and Mountainside. Westfield still holds out.

The Westfield authorities made one payment, and claim that is all that is due this year. Some of the freeholders are inclined to agree to this, as some of the money on the bonds is not due until next year. Roselle Park, it appears, has settled its difficulty with Union township. Payments by the municipalities will be made before January 1.

PERMITS GRANTED BY INSPECTOR DOANE.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane yesterday issued a permit to William S. Crook, of 662 South avenue, to erect a pretentious structure at the corner of erckman street and South avenue. It will cost $11,000. The building will be 32x52 feet and will consist of four apartments, "Philadelphia style," and one store and a flat.

The flat building will be constructed of concrete blocks with a solid concrete foundation. The architect is W. H. Clum. Cunniff Brothers have been awarded the mason contract, and Lewis Beck, the carpenter work. Both are local contractors.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS AT TURKEY SUPPER

The annual turkey supper under the auspices of the Women's Society for Christian Work held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Wednesday was a great success. There was a large attendance and more than one hundred suppers were served from 6 to 8 o'clock. The Sunday-school rooms were appropriately decorated for the occasion with autumn leaves, chrysanthemums, pumpkins, corn stalks and other things in harmony with the harvest season.

An excellent supper was served under the direction of a committee of which Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson was the chairman. Her assistants were Mrs. G. S. Rogers, Mrs. N. O. Moore, Jr., Mrs O B. Whitford, Miss Mary T Greene and Mrs. A C Rogers. The young women of the church acted as waitresses.

After the supper there was an entertainment which was enjoyed by all. This was arranged by Mrs. Clarence W. Spicer and Mrs. Ira N. West, who also had charge of the decorations. Clarence W. Spicer announced the numbers. The program comprised phonograph selections under the direction of William C. Hubbard, vocal solos by Miss Nan Randolph and Roy Titsworth; an instrumental duet, cornet and saxaphone and cornet, N. O. Moore, Jr., and Clarence W. Spicer; Thanksgiving story by Miss Hattie Williams and recitations by Stephanie Shaw and Harold Spicer. Mrs. William C. Hubbard presided at the piano and assisted largely in making the entertainment a success.

A feature of the affair was the reading of the Thanksgiving proclamation, issued by President Taft, by the pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw. This is the annual custom and always proves interesting. The social features were fully enjoyed, affording an opportunity for visitors and friends of the congregation to become better acquainted.

HOPE IN SUNDAY-SCHOOL

For the State and Nation Says Governor Fort and Other Convention Speakers.

THE BIBLE THE MAINSTAY.

More Scientific Methods Needed in Instruction and a Greater Reverence so the Convention Learns.

That the Sunday school is the hope of the State and nation is the opinion of Governor John Franklin Fort and all of the ministers of the various churches represented at the Sunday school convention in East Orange Wednesday. Governor Fort's address to the 281 delegates from all over the State evidently inspired them with new vigor in the work as it was greeted with tumultuous cheers. He welcomed the visitors and told of the pride he feels in the city free from commercialism and from everything which make for vice.

The Bible, the Governor declared, is the mainstay of the government and he praised the work of the Sunday school, but regretted the decline in numbers of pupils at these schools. He was at a loss to say whether the decline was of interest in the Sunday schools or the lack of interest shown toward children in the home. He spoke of the value of spiritual instruction to the young and said in the olden days parents and children went to church together.

"They do not do so today, and what is the reason?" asked Governor Fort.

"I do not know. Golf automobiling and other pleasures have hurt church attendance, and while many churches are filled at morning service the same pews are nearly vacant in the evening. But I will not discuss that question, as I may be as great an offender as any one present. The nursery of the church is the Sunday school, and the future of the church depends upon it. Not only the future of the church, but the future of the State and nation depends upon the Sunday schools."

A feature of the day's session was the announcement that the Rev. E. Morris Fergusson, for several years general secretary, would not again take up the duties of that position, as he has accepted a position with the Philadelphia Presbytery.

Several interesting addresses marked the opening session, and there was a banquet last night at English's and a conference of the New Jersey Superintendent's Association. Mr. Edward W. Bingham presided. Judge W. E. Andrews, of Washington, D. C., made an address.

Rev. John Douglas Adam, pastor of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church, of East Orange, addressed the delegates also and said that the Sunday school has a far greater place of importance in the affairs of the nation than the most serious man can realize. The church, he said has hardly taken the Sunday school seriously. If it had it would have roused public opinion to an intelligent appreciation of its great scheme. It would have provided teachers with more scientific methods of spiritual instruction, for busy men and women who give their time to teach cannot be supposed to be creators of scientific methods. It must encourage the spirit of reverence among the children for they are looking for examples of concrete Christianity.

JOHN HENRY INJURED WHILE AT HIS WORK.

John Henry, of 740 West Front street, who is employed in a large machine shop at Carteret, met with an accident Saturday afternoon, receiving such injuries that he will detain him from work for some time. He was standing at the top of an eighteen foot ladder reaching for a piece of lumber, when the ladder broke in the middle, throwing him head first to the floor below.

Mr. Henry landed partially on his side, dislocating his shoulder and severely wrenching the upper part of his body and back. The man was assisted to his home by fellow-workmen and a physician was summoned to attend to the injured man. Mr. Henry suffers intense pain and it will be several weeks before he will be able to return to work.

The Simple Life.

The distinguished traveler had requested that while being entertained in the South, Creole dishes be barred from the banquet board.

"I harbor the most pleasant anticipations of your hospitality," he said, "but I protest, and request that sectionalism is dead, but I do not feel called to lay my digestive apparatus even upon the sacred altar of friendship."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of Mrs. Harold, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring officiating.

POST OFFICE XMAS RUSH IS BEGINNING

Although the Christmas or holiday rush has not commenced at the local postoffice, Postmaster E. H. Bird, not to be caught napping, will be prepared for it when it starts about next week. Recently, when he visited Washington, he made all arrangements for the holiday season. This season's full force will comprise twenty-two regular letter-carriers, eleven clerks, three rural free delivery carriers, six sub-carriers to draw upon; an extra clerk in the registry department and, an extra stamping clerk.

During the real rush Postmaster Bird will have three stamp windows in commission and every facility will be afforded to receive and deliver quickly all mail. When Postmaster Bird entered upon his duties eleven years ago, the carrier force comprised eleven men and there were four clerks. Today the office is one of the best equipped of its class in the country.

In discussing the business at the local postoffice today, Mr. Bird said that the receipts for October exceeded by nearly $600 those for the corresponding month of last year, and he felt sure that the November receipts would show an even bigger increase. The letter writing for C. Blumm's study and not of the mushroom variety. Mr. Bird expects that the holiday rush will set in early next week and from that time until January 1 every employe will be on the jump. The force at present is exclusive of Mr. Bird and his assistant, James Martin. In the use of the extra help Mr. Bird will decide later upon a division of the work.

TAKEN FROM WORK BY TRUANCY OFFICER

A case which caused Judge William Runyon to ask that the exigencies of the matter be considered was referred by the court to Superintendent Henry C. Mason for special consideration this morning.

Matilda Lozzi, a girl who is fifteen years and four months old, was taken summarily from her work in a hair factory on Madison avenue by Miss Matilda Ball, the truant officer and ordered back to school. Miss Lozzi's father is a man of seventy, a stone cutter by trade, and out of work. He is probably too old to work now and his daughter and son, the latter working for C. Blumm, will have to support their father. It was ascertained this morning that the son earns enough to supply the food for the little family while the daughter pays the rent and provides fuel for the stove.

Mr. Lozzi, the father, called on Judge Runyon yesterday explaining, with tears streaming down his cheeks, just how much it meant to all three of them if Matilda were prohibited from working in the honey they needed so much. It would be a hardship for them and would break the daughter's heart for she knows her aged parent is unable to do any more hard work.

Pending a final decision by the school authorities, Miss Lozzi was permitted to return to the factory this morning, happy in the belief that she would be permitted to help keep the family together.

Vets to Elect Officers.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet Tuesday night, December 14, and elect officers for the coming year. H. Orly Smith has been renominated for commander.

MANY BUILDING PERMITS

Inspector Reports That Aggregate for November will Be Above $150,000.

LOCAL CONTRACTORS BUSY.

Revival of Business Prosperity is Shown by Increase of Building Operations.

That there is a healthy activity in local building operations is indicated by a perusal of the permits issued during the month of November by Building Inspector Doane. In that period twenty-five grants were issued as against twenty-three in October. The erection and alterations in the various structures, which the permits cover, represents an expenditure of between $150,000 and $200,000, the bulk of which goes to local contractors.

A glance at the list of permits also demonstrates that the East End is coming in for a big share of attention by home builders as permits were issued for nineteen buildings for dwellings purposes.

Two real estate transactions of note were also recorded during the month. The Clark building was sold to F. L. Jennings, of the borough, while Jacob Fass, became the owner of the Compton building. Permits issued for new buildings during the month of November follow:

ITALIAN BUNCO STEERERS WORKED OLD GAME

The old bunco game practiced by Italians on their own countrymen found another victim yesterday afternoon when Joseph Di Piano parted with twenty-five good round dollars for a "job," which unfortunately he will not obtain from the bunco steerers.

DiPiano arrived here about 2 o'clock apparently in search of work. He was well dressed and just sauntered around looking for an opportunity to apply for work. He found his way to the North avenue station, where he was approached by two men who appeared to take a great interest in his movements. One was an Italian the other an American, and both got into conversation with the job seeker.

"Do you want a good job?" asked the American, "I can give you a fine one."

"Sure," said Joseph. "Wanta da work on street."

The American's companion here broke in Italian and told Di Piano that he had a job for a good man, but it would be necessary to make a trip to the Clinton avenue station for a valise which the boss had there in the baggage room.

"Would Joseph go and get it?" Sure he would.

But "there is some money in the bag so you had better leave some security for your safe return," said the pair.

Joseph dug down and produced twenty-five dollars, which he had wrapped in a handkerchief and took the next trolley to Clinton avenue. He arrived but was unable to connect with the valise for it wasn't there, and on his return to the station his friends were also missing. Joe reported the matter to the police. Which is all that could be done.

TEA, SALE AND MUSICALE OF A MISSION SOCIETY

Under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Society of the First Baptist church a tea, sale and musicale was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. Chambers on Central avenue. There was a large attendance of members and friends and the patronage was very satisfactory, while the musicale was greatly enjoyed.

The program comprised readings by Mrs. Robert Lowry, soprano solos by Mrs. Chambers, piano solos by Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan and whistling solos by Mrs. Charles E. Rice.

The tea followed, those in charge being Mrs. Elmar Gildden, Mrs. O. P. Hamilton and they were assisted by other members of the society. Mrs. Clifford Manning and Miss Helen Armstrong presided at the fancy goods table, while Miss Carrie Dembler and Mrs. Robin Brown were in charge of the cake table. Miss Marguerite Brown was at the candy table. The young women of the society assisted at all the tables, under the general direction of Mrs. J. B. Probasco, president of the society. Miss May Shreve arranged the program.

ARE WORKING QUIETLY TO GET LIQUOR LICENSE.

It is generally reported that John Mortimer, of West Seventh street, and Henry Hazard, of Somerset street, are among half a dozen who will apply to the Common Council on Monday night for the retail liquor license held by the late John Rafferty, on Park avenue, for many years. It is generally considered that neither has any chance.

Mortimer has been working quietly among his friends, it is said, but so far as is known he has advanced no sound reason why the city should grant him a franchise to sell liquor.

McIvor is Fined $100.

Hugh McIvor, the chafferr, one of a quartet charged with a violation of the automobile law and the only one convicted, was arraigned in the Union County court, this morning, for sentence. Winfield S. Angleman and V. W. Nash, Jr., of counsel for the convicted man, were present. The court imposed a fine of $100, which was paid, and the man was discharged.

SANATORIUM IS OPENED

First Patients are Admitted to the Tuberculosis Society's Pavilion.

THE BUILDING IS INSPECTED.

Pound Party Largely Attended—Description of Structure and Its Objects—Money Is Needed.

The opening for inspection of the sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis patients on Muhlenberg Hospital grounds yesterday afternoon was a pleasant affair, and the "pound" invitation was responded to in a gratifying manner. The building was crowded with visitors, who viewed with much interest the arrangements for the care and comfort of its intended inmates. Every friend brought a contribution towards the housekeeping, and from the appearance of the tables on which the packages were stacked it is evident that there will be no danger of famine for some time to come. The tea table was prettily decorated with flowers and the cup that cheers was offered to all comers.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Frank Hyde and Mrs. Chapman Fisk. Assisting them were Mrs. Allan Cowperwaite and the Misses Margaret Goddard, Grace Burke and Ellen Merrill.

This morning the work of the pavilion was begun with the admission of seven patients. One more has been accepted by the committee on admissions, and will soon be in the residence. General supervision of the sanatorium will be exercised by Miss Josephine Hughes, of the Muhlenberg staff. The care of the patients will be in the hands of two nurses, who have themselves been inmates of similar institutions. Dr. Frederic J. Hughes is the physician in charge.

The sanatorium fronts on Moffat avenue, facing south, and has four rooms for invalids, each containing two cots. These rooms are entirely open on the south side, which can, however, be closed by a heavy curtain, ringed like a porch awning. Each of the two corner rooms has large windows on the end and back, while the other rooms have windows at the back. These windows are on hinges and open out.

In front of these rooms is a porch about 10 feet wide, where it is expected the patients will sit during the day. Curtains at the ends and part way along the front will furnish protection against winds from the east and west. These rooms are connected with a hall at the central room, enclosed on all sides, which extends to the front line of the porch, really forming two porches, one on the east of the room and the other on the west; it opens on the porches by glass doors, and has large windows in front, on the south end. This is to be used as a dining room, and has a large heater which also heats the toilet and bath rooms back of it. Back of these latter rooms is a kitchen, with a gas stove, while simple cooking may be done. Off the kitchen on one side is a closet for the refrigerator. In the passageway from the dining room to the kitchen are eight lockers, one for each patient. Each of these lockers also contains a pair of the big woolen stockings and a pretty wrapper, gifts of kind friends.

The society which has thus satisfactorily started the relief branch of its work now asks the residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield to aid it in solving its financial problem, and after the generous manner in which the problems of other institutions primarily established to help those who are unable to pay for attention have been solved there can be no doubt that this society will not appeal in vain. It now has 260 members, and the wish is to increase the numbers to 5,000. It is considered that that number pay the small amount of one dollar a year to aid in the suppression of a disease which causes one tenth of all the deaths which take place annually in the State of New Jersey.

The wants of the society are urgent. Altogether about $1,656 has been contributed. Of this $3,975 has been expended for the building and equipment of the pavilion. While the sanatorium is on the hospital grounds and enjoys certain advantages of supervision and service, still the rent must be paid for, the hospital cannot finance the work nor aid in any way by money or unremunerated services. To care for eight patients, including food and necessary attendance the society estimates that it will need from $250 to $300 a month; after some experience this estimate can be reduced to a certainty.

In addition to this work in the sanatorium the society will endeavor to carry on visiting work among the consumptive poor, for the purpose of

EMILIO DE GOGORZA HEARD AT MUSICALE

An ovation greeted Emilio de Gogorza at the conclusion of his rendering of the "Toreador" song from Carmen in Hartridge School auditorium last night, but it was as nothing compared to the applause which followed the singing of the prologue to "I Pagciacci." Mr. Gogorza, who had been indulgent in the matter of encores during the evening after several recalls finally ended by singing charmingly Kipling's "Mother of Mine," music by Tours.

All of Mr. de Gogorza's songs were sung with that happy familiarity which testifies to the singer's absolute confidence in himself and with a suavity of voice only found in the true artist. The program seemed to be a trifle mechanical, but this may be attributed to the accompanist, Mr. Rosenstein, whose immaturity was apparent.

It would be valueless to enter into a detailed criticism of the recital as it was quite up to the expectations of the large audience and pleased everybody. As an encore to the Toreador Mr. Gogorza sang that always popular old English song "Drink to me Only with Thine Eyes." Paney's "In the Cemetery" was done with true regard for the sentiment of the [illegible] and [illegible] quivered [illegible] and [illegible] put spoon ed and enjoyed.

Several young women members of the musical club acted as ushers and were proficient.

At the end of the recital Mr. Gogorza grasped the hand of his accompanist and led him to the footlights to share the applause.

YOUNG HEBREWS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL ELECTION

The Young Men's Hebrew Association held its semi-annual meeting last night for the election of officers and transaction of other business. Reports were received from the secretary and treasurer and showed the association to be in fine shape. The Hebrew school will no doubt be opened within two weeks, as the committee reported arrangements as nearly completed with a competent instructor and lecturer to take complete charge.

This committee was appointed to arrange for the third annual ball to be held on Saturday night, January 1: Samuel Rothberg, chairman; A. Victorsen, secretary; Jacob Abrams, treasurer; Arthur Richards, Harry Taub, Max Bernstein, Louis Goldstein. The banquet was postponed until Monday night, when the newly-elected officers will be installed. The trustees will be appointed by the president at that time and the plans of the building committee will be fully discussed.

These officers were elected: President, Samuel Rothberg; vice-president, Harry Siegal; recording secretary, Abraham Victorsen; financial secretary, Arthur Richards; sergeant-at-arms, Morris L. Abrams.

COULDN'T BEAT MILTNER

Hotelkeeper Too Foxy for a Trio of Alleged Hotel Beats.

NABBED ON WAY TO STATION.

Plausible "Boss" Sends an Emissary for Funds—Will He Return?

"You ats my food and, I want my money," said Proprietor Miltner, of the Belmont Hotel, to a trio of men in police headquarters this morning. "If you had not attempted to sneak away with your grips I would have listened to your explanation, but I don't want to be stung."

The three men gave their names as C. B. Wornbuell, of Troy, N. Y.; C. A. Falk, Boston, Mass., and P. W. Hyland, Baltimore, Md. Wornbuell had his wife here with him, but she did not appear at police headquarters.

Wornbuell, who appeared to be the "boss" of the crowd, tried to explain to Chief Kiely and later to Judge William Runyon, that the trio represented a firm of music publishers in New York city and that they were here to exploit the songs of a popular song writer of the big city. They also claimed that they represented the Hallet & Davis Piano Co., and were doing a legitimate business.

Inquiry at the warerooms of the Hallet and Davis Company on East Front street this morning failed to confirm the story of Wornbuell, in fact it was somewhat shattered. Manager Reed said that although the men arrived on Wednesday they did not apply to him for a piano until Friday afternoon after due consideration he decided to risk the instrument with them.

The method pursued by these men is to take a piano from any piano store, assure it and then start out about the streets distributing circulars advertising the piano in the meantime singing songs of a popular writer at prices which bring in big profits.

It was impossible to tell which of the three was the warbler, but it was assumed that Mrs. Wornbuell might have held that highly illuminative position. There was only one other obstacle in the way of the game and that was the necessity for a license which costs something like twenty-five dollars, for peddling and that was what they were going to do. Advertising the piano was a secondary matter.

At police headquarters where Patrolman Nolan brought the musicians, they attempted to explain away their early exit. Judge Runyon when asked for his opinion said it would relieve matters if one of the party were dispatched to the headquarters of the music publishers with instructions to get (if he could) the twenty-eight dollars with which to settle Mr. Miltner's claim, the alternative being going to Elizabeth for investigation by the grand jury. Mr. Hyland was entrusted with the mission, and in the meantime Messrs. Wornbuell and Falk are being detained at the Hotel Kiely on Sycamore street.

Question: Will Hyland return with the dough, if at all?

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

O, who wouldn't be a smuggler bold,
A skimming the treasureful sea,
As it boils up jewels and liquid gold,
And fortunes in millineses!

But not for us poor Plainfielders, who are just now harvesting nothing but leaves. Out of the list of odious New York Customs comes an item which simply strikes us speechless with envy.

"One millinor involved in the pending cases had purchased drafts on Europe for $198,000 in one year. Presumably, most, if not all, this money went for millinery brought into this country. But she imported openly through the Custom House and paid duty on merchandise valued at only $39,999 in that year, leaving a balance of $164,000 which, in the opinion of Mr. Loeb and District Attorney Wise, represents the amounts of her smuggling for that year. The duty on such goods is 60 per cent., so that if she did actually smuggle in $164,000 worth, she defrauded the Government of more than $96,000 in one year." Our manners here are admirable, but quite profitless until we copy some of Gotham's paying customs.

A truly cathedral-like church, high vaulted roof, as simply noble a chancel as Presbyterianly tolerates; pulpit, pews, walls of welcome weather-stained hue, helpful to the meditative mood. Christ, the Head, not as conspicuously throned, idol fashion, as in many churches. A most exquisite exhibit of organ eloquence, not vain-gloriously, but to express and create those emotions which, while they uplift, surpass them in lifting the soul to heights of bliss, at least akin to devotion. All these church privileges offered freely, lovely Sunday evening weather, everything combining to draw the jaded mind from common weekday cares—everything except the main thing—the congregation. A beggarly sprinkling of us, religious tramps, seeking, yes and finding, the high delights that only high music in solemn cathedrals can fully give. True, the begging plate thrust its brazen face in ours, poor sinners though we be, and extorted from timid vanity, a mite which an appeal to voluntary honor would double. Yet let us give the pastor his due, we are liberal in this line generally, with the inducements that our harvest will in that case be bounci*ful and our prosperity return much* more than six per cent. on our outlay.

The fine art and science of preaching has certainly seen its best days. We used to glory in at least one day a week of high thinking, and listened to pulpiteering that put poetry into preaching and set us new folk to singing with thought and melodies that lasted through the week. Now—speaking of churches outside of Plainfield—we are dis-regaled on prose, not necessarily prosy, but need not necessarily be feeble echoes of essays, old lectures and mere editorials. If empty churches are to be filled again, and real life stirred up once more in our midst, the preachers will have to imitate their organ grinders, or even their organ blowers, human or hydraulic. Their sermons need not be so spick and span, so prim, proper, precise, up-to-date and down to the latest thing in philosophic slang. Let them blow a bit; one in New York bellows occasionally in his earnestness and you feel its means it. But there was one, just one, new thing on Sunday night that jarred on old-fashioned nerves. "Abide With Me," was played as a military quick march, and that other exquisite soother, "Peace, Perfect Peace," was rattled off that it suggested such peace as one feels on coming out of a bad football scrimmage.

When speaking last week of the sacrificial fires, Druid fashion, of our autumn leaves, little did we suppose it possible that so shocking an illustration of the danger of these fires in thoroughfares and gardens would so soon startle us. The parents were only following custom in making a bonfire near enough to a big tree to set it a-fire, quite satisfied, as usual, that no accident could possibly occur to them. But suddenly the big tree tumbled over their two young girls, killing one instantly, and the survivor badly hurt. If human sacrifices are possible, however remotely, because of these Druidical customs, better change our observance of that ancient religious practice.

Last Saturday night across the southwest plains of this inhabited field there came waves and bellowing billows of vocal somethings, first like the agony cries of people at the stake, then it was some torture being inflicted on peaceful citizens by successors of the local Mohawks or whatever tribes first welcomed the Pilgrims to these parts. But it was no worse than a gang of young merrymakers waking the echoes with what they, in their sweet Puritan innocence, mistake for the carols of hilarity. Now that mere noise counts for emphasis, as in the use of a gavel as a substitute for dignity, we have to reckon up the perils of having our ear drums burst before we go to a ball match. Just as we have now to buy the most expensive stop watches to time the artificially faked up applause that greets the belated orator of the evening, who is usually in the lock. This crazy "hollering" is a hollow farce at best, and does far to account for the lack of filling in some skull caps.

The ancient inhabitants of this spacious city must have indulged their mania for speedy locomotion by cultivating the wheelbarrow habit. Their tracks are right under our noses, whether we go east or west, north or south. Look at the irregular but pretty straight cracks right in the middle of the paving stones. Considering that their drink was almost limited to honey water, apple broth, and barley swipes, our sturdy ancestors managed to wheel each other home from the club in fairly straight tracks. Where the cracks wobble, they do here and there, the probable indication is that the old man was wheeling his goodly helpmate home from a suffrage meeting, and she had to keep turning round to instruct him in the science of navigating a womanned wheel craft. He resorted that if she considered her tongue was the helm, she had better hold it still, which of course she couldn't or wouldn't. Hence these wriggling cracks.

NEW MONASTERY OPENED AT BORDENTOWN

The Rt. Rev. Bishop James A. McFaul, of the Trenton diocese, established the enclosure at the Franciscan Monastery of the Order of Poor Clares, at Bordentown, yesterday afternoon, and at that time several sisters entered the cloister never more to make their appearance in the world at large.

Ten sisters entered the monastery, coming from other monasteries of the order. About five of these will enter the cloister and the others will be lay sisters, acting as the intermediates between the enclosure and the world. The dedication exercises yesterday were of an elaborate nature and were presided over by the Bishop.

The property is be occupied by the Order of Poor Clares was formerly the St. Joseph's Convent of Mercy and for a number of years was conducted by the Sisters of Mercy, now located in North Plainfield, as an academy for young ladies. The estate, which comprises about 20 acres, was acquired by the new owners six months ago upon the suggestion of the Rt. Rev. Bishop McFaul. It is beautifully situated and considered one of the most attractive places in Bordentown.

HIDDEN WEALTH AIDS WIDOW.

Trenton Fireman Had $700 Behind Picture in Fire House.

Mrs. Charles Aten, widow of a well known Trenton fireman, who committed suicide by drowning five years ago, and who is now seriously ill in a hospital, has been insured additional comforts by the finding of about $700 left by her husband.

Fellow firemen found the money in a bank book which had been hidden behind a picture in the headquarters of Trenton's Exempt Firemen's Association. No one thought of moving the picture until it was decided to repaper the room.

THE TRUE RELIGION.

"O brother man! Fold to thy heart thy brother.
Where pity dwells, the peace of God is there:
To worship rightly is to love each other:
Each smile a hymn; each kindly deed a prayer.
Follow with reverend steps the great example
Of him whose holy work was doing good;
So shall the wide earth seem our Father's temple,
Each loving life a psalm of gratitude."—Crown.

Electric Railways for Sweden.

Within the near future definite plans will be formulated for the electrification of the more important State railways of Sweden, says Cassier's Magazine. The first line to be taken in hand will be, in all probability, that between Kiruna, the centre of the great iron ore fields of Lapland, and Riksgransen, on the Norwegian frontier, a distance of about eighty-one miles. It is a section of the Lulea-Gellivare-Narvik Railway, completed in 1902, over which large and ever growing quantities of iron ore from the rich fields of Gellivare, Malmberget, Kirunavara and Luossavaara are transported for export from the terminal ports of Lulea, on the Gulf of Bothnia, and Narvik, on the Atlantic.

To meet the present largely increased demands upon it and enable the management to run heavier trains at higher speed, the Kiruna-Riksgransen section, especially, must be strengthened with double tracks or electrified, and of these alternatives the second seems from every point of view the wiser and more economical.

The adoption of electric traction on this line, far above the Arctic Circle and the most northern railway in the world, will be an event of considerable importance in the history of electricity, and cannot fail to stimulate in marked degree the demand for similar action in respect of other Swedish railways. Nor will it be without value as a practical illustration of the unbounded potentialities of Sweden's wealth of water falls, not limited, to a few special regions, but at hand and only awaiting development to benefit every province.

CAUCUS DECEMBER 14.

WARD-EDGE COMBINE.

Assemblyman William W. Smalley, the dean of the House, after a consultation with the members of the Assembly at the State House, Trenton, Wednesday, fixed Tuesday, December 14, as the date of the House caucus. It is now practically assured that Harry Ward, of Bergen, will be the next Speaker, and Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic, the majority leader, although the members opposing this slate still have hopes of breaking it.

Some of the older members continued their opposition to the selection of Colonel Edge as leader, on the ground that he is a first term man, but the indications are that they will all line up for him when the caucus gets together.

Captain "Jim" Parker will be the eleventh time, be chosen as clerk of the House, and Upton Jeffries, of Camden, will be his assistant. The other officers are still in doubt, however, and signs point to the bringing to the State House of many new faces at the coming session. A strong movement was started to make Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Union, who has been a strong candidate for leader, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, the highest House committee, which usually goes to the leader. The plan is that Mr. Edge, when chosen as leader, take the chairmanship of the Revision of Laws Committee.

A Queer Malady.

Spriggs went to a noted physician to ask advice as to his health. In pompous tones he addressed the doctor: "I-ah-have come to-ah-ask you-ah-what- what is-ah-the doosid matter with me-ah?"

"I find your heart is affected," said the physician, gravely.

"Oh-ah-anything else-ah?"

"Yes, your lungs are affected, too."

"Anything-ah-else-ah?"

"Yes, your manners are also affected."

Different Now.

Mathews—They say your grandfather was very successful as an explorer.

Traverse—Yes, he was. Nearly everybody used to believe him.—Chicago News.

MAJOR MARTIN HONORED BY PRESIDENT TAFT

President Taft has sent Major William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, a personal letter congratulating him on his achievement in winning the rifle championship of the United States at Camp Perry in August.

Major William B. Martin.

Following is the letter:

"The White House, Washington.
Nov. 22, 1909.

"My Dear Major Martin—I congratulate you most heartily upon winning the title of military rifle champion of the United States for 1909. The title has been bestowed upon you for receiving the high aggregate in the two most important matches of the year—the President's match and the national individual match.

"Efficiency in rifle practice in the National Guard and the regular service is fundamentally necessary to the attainment of soldiery excellence. I am glad that you have shown yourself possessed of this qualification. To win you had to exhibit a higher order of merit than any other contestant. It is the high aggregate which counts most and which shows the most skill.

"Very sincerely yours.
"WILLIAM H. TAFT.

WM. E. BARTLE SUES J. K. BARNHART & SON

Because John K. Barnhart & Son, contractors for stone work on the Washington School, cancelled a contract for some building stone ordered through Bartle & Burtle, a local contractor, the latter has started suit for damages for breach of contract and has retained Judge Isaac P. Runyon as his attorney. Bartle's contract was for about $2,000 worth of stone.

It is claimed that the violation of Bartle's contract with the Trenton firm was caused by an attempt to use a different kind of stone from that specified by the architect. Barnhart & Son contracted with the local stone man for rock-faced stone, but at the time the contract called for smooth-faced stone. Later the specifications were changed, and Indiana lime stone was used. Bartle claims that as soon as the Trenton contractor found out that the rock-faced stone for which he had contracted could not be used, he cancelled the contract.

The suit will be tried at the September county court in the December term. Linton Satterthwait, of Trenton, has been retained as counsel by Barnhart & Son.

RESULTS OF HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL.

At the regular meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital held Friday morning, most satisfactory reports were read of the very generous donations to the Harvest Home Festival in the interest of the hospital which was held last week at St. Barnes' Home. The articles which were donated were displayed in the storeroom of the hospital and the shelves bore evidence of the generosity of those interested in supplies for the coming year.

The donation from the Needlework Guild comprised more than 1,100 articles. The following schools sent generous contributions: St. Mary's, Whittier, Lincoln, Irving, Bryant, Mount St. Mary's, Scotch Plains, Harrridge, Emilcary, Leal's School, Drake Business College, Plainfield Business College, Watchung and North Plainfield. Besides the abundant supplies of edibles and wearables $150 in money was received.

Followed by Rev. Dr. A. W. Hayes, of Westfield, and Samuel S. Swackhamer.

Members and guests of the Methodist Brotherhood to the number of fifty enjoyed a banquet and entertainment in Vincent chapel Friday night. The principal speaker was the Rev. Lynn Hough (pronounced Hoff) pastor of the Somerfield Methodist church, of Brooklyn. Rev. A. W. Hayes, pastor of the Methodist church, of Westfield, and Samuel S. Swackhamer, of this city, also spoke. It was the first banquet of the Brotherhood since its organization and it is proposed to make it an annual fixture.

It was expected that Rev. Dr. McCrea, former pastor of the first Methodist church, would address the gathering, but he was in Carlisle, Pa., and could not reach here in time. Rev. Mr. Hough was introduced by toastmaster Henry A. McGee, of North Plainfield, who had been previously introduced by Nelson A. Miller, president of the Brotherhood.

Rev. Mr. Hough told of the appeal which Christ makes to men and among other things said that a modern preacher would find it a difficult thing to keep David in his church in these peculiar days of advanced thought and remarkable morals. Although David was a type of virile man, virility was best exemplified in Jesus. He could command the attention and bring fear to any with whom he came in touch and he was human from every viewpoint. The winsomeness of women appealed to Him and the women were attracted to Him by His great personality. It was compelling while appealing.

Peter, he said, represents the masses multiplied, which was the obstacle to be overcome by the Brotherhood. If the members would followed the indomitable purpose of the Saviour it would have vindicated itself a hundred fold long before now. It was not the hatred of the Romans nor of the Jews which brought Jesus to the cross, but His own contradiction of sin and only to bring by His suffering men closer to Him. A man wants a master more than anything else. There is that indefinable longing which every man knows; a hunger for something among other things and "Idols," the dramatic version of William J. Locke's famous novel of the same name, is at the Bijou theatre for a run of indefinite length. The first presentation of "Idols" in America took place a week ago on the road and the produc rs believe that the play will excel in America its great popularity in England. It was produced in London last season as a vehicle for the stellar ambitions of Miss Evelyn Millard and played a long and very successful engagement at the Garrick Theatre. This season Miss Millard is appearing in the play in the provinces and so popular has it proved that a second company had been sent out in it. "Idols" is the most dramatic of Locke's novels and the only one that lends itself easily to stage purposes.

Frank Daniels in "The Belle of Brittany," under the management of the Messrs. Shubert and Daly's Theatre, is not only the greatest musical hit in the career of the famous comedian, but also the greatest musical success ever known at Daly's Theatre, excepting none.

Klaw & Erlanger's latest production, "The Silver Star," with Adeline Genee, the dancer, in the leading role, has scored an emphatic success at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York city. The New York Herald's notice is a good average of what the critics thought of the performance. Its critic wrote: "Before the curtain was up on the second act it was plain to see that the large audience, and when the final curtain fell this same audience left in high feather, pleased that they had seen the premiere. Miss Genee introduced five new dances. The star had lines to speak for the first time here and spoke them very well. But her nimble feet, carried the night for her. And it was a triumph for her in every particular. Talk about playing notes—Miss Genee can dance them. 'The Silver Star' likely will be twinkling at the New Amsterdam Theatre when the roses bloom in the spring, tra la."

In spite of the opening of two opera houses and the New Theatre, Mr. Forbes-Robertson as "The Stranger" or "Passer-by," continues to win well deserved attention from crowded houses at Maxine Elliot's Theatre. He has now begun to enter upon the third month of his successful stay in that popular play. "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," in which he promises to remain throughout the entire season, and has, in consequence, cancelled the offer of two London theatres, where this same play ran for the better part of last year. It will probably be at least twelve months before the distinguished English actor manager will be allowed to return to his own country, except perhaps for a brief holiday in the summer, at the termination of which he may be persuaded to bring back with him his charming American wife and associate, Miss Gertrude Elliott, who will be assured of a very hearty welcome again on this side of the Atlantic.

HUGH A. TODD MADE A MEMBER OF FIRM.

H. A. Todd, who for the past six years has been manager for Boice, Runyon & Co., has become a member of the company, the other members being Mrs. John D. Runyon and Miss Anna Boice. The firm is one of the oldest in the city. The business was originally started by David J. Boice, where Van Zant & Voorhees are now engaged in the flour and feed business.

Several years later after the destruction of the plant by fire, arrangements were made to acquire the similar business conducted by Cook Brothers, who were succeeded by Boice, Runyon & Co. The present site is considered one of the most valuable for business purposes in the city.

GAVE SURPRISE PARTY FOR SAMUEL SUTTON.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cartwright, of Jackson avenue, and the members of the Plainfield Association Football Club, gave a surprise party Saturday evening in honor of Samuel Sutton, of the West End. The affair was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cartwright. Mr. Sutton was more than surprised when over seventy of his friends marched in on him. George Gray acted as chairman and a lengthy program was contributed to by Mrs. R. Baillie, Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. John Cartwright and Mrs. J. Fanton.

Mrs. Burns, of South avenue, rendered several fine piano selections as did also Master John Cartwright, Jr. There were also songs by Messrs. Fanton, Henderson, Spalding, Campbell, Stevenson, Craig, Strachan, Law, Gould Anderson, Kay, Wilson, Cross, Donaldson and Jamieson. Mr. Sutton was the accompanist. The guests enjoyed several dances and at midnight supper was served.

ALL SHOULD SHOP EARLY

Rev. Chas. E. Herring Speaks on the Duties of Christmas Buyers.

WHOLESOME ADVICE IS GIVEN.

Patronize the "White List" Stores, Says the First Presbyterian Church Pastor.

Taking for his theme, "Christmas Meditation," Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, gave a strong talk at his church Sunday on some of the "Christmas cruelties," which he says are practiced by all classes of people at this season of the year. He spoke in behalf of the overworked saleswomen and children employed as wrappers, express drivers, messenger boys and in fact all who are compelled to work overtime under great pressure and get no extra compensation for the work. In part, Dr. Herring said:

"A Christmas Meditation! No, I am not a little previous with such a meditation, for though Christmas is several weeks off, the preparations have already begun. Part of our Lord's Christmas message reads, 'Good will to men.' I have been contrasting that message with another which I read in a circular addressed to me, asking that I, with other ministers, do what I can to mitigate some of the 'Christmas Cruelties,' practiced by the rich at this season of the year. What are these Christmas cruelties? Stores open for ten days from 8:30 a. m. to 11 p. m.; saleswomen overworked; employment of thousands of children as wrappers during these livery and messenger boys. These are the cruelties of Christmas which can be mitigated if shoppers will be a little more thoughtful and more unselfish and show forth the spirit of the Master, by shopping early—not later than December 23; by shopping early in the day, and by requesting that no packages be sent to them later than 6 p. m.

"This is certainly very simple and only will do it. If a great majority of people would do it, there is nothing to prevent our doing it.

"We would show the Christmas spirit if women sought to understand the lives of working girls and their trials, and how with womanly sympathy they would look and not hurt by thoughtless and selfish methods of shopping. It is more consistent with the spirit of Christ, whose birth into the world was to make everybody glad, to know whether certain shops are on the white list, that is to say whether they give trading stamps. The stores that give short hours and fair wages to their help, merit your patronage rather than the stores where such is not the case.

"The story is told of a minister, who seeking a gift boy in the street took him home and cared for him. Among other things, he taught him 'The Lord's Prayer.' 'Did you say,' asked the boy, 'Our Father?' 'Yes,' replied the minister. 'Then that means that you are his brothers,' the boy gleefully responded, and he was correct in his conclusion. It means, too, that the woman who stands in front of the counter is sister to the woman standing behind the counter. Before, they should think of each other and deal with each other as such.

"John Ruskin said, 'You pray, 'Thy kingdom come,' but do you want it to come? If you do not want it, you should not pray for it. If you do, you should much more than pray, you should work for it all your life.' Yes, and we should seek to have God's will done on earth as it is done in heaven. A Christian must keep these words in mind the needs and rights of other men, which by thoughtlessness and selfish indifference he may take away, and take away even during this Christmas season. God help each one of us, that this year we may be better Christians than we were last and that we may be delivered from thoughtlessly occasioning Christmas cruelty."

MU SIGMA CAUSES HEAP OF TROUBLE

There's an ancient classic rhyme which contains these lines:

"When Greek meets Greek
Then comes the tug of war."

and the local school fraternity boys proved the truth of the couplet in a lively mix-up on the Cricket Field Field Saturday afternoon, when "the tug of war" was over four white Mu Sigma fraternity hats worn by the Holy Cross football team of Neptune's school boys. The attack was by a party of "Wing Wangs," the P. H. S. Greek little frat, the classic name for which is also Mu Sigma.

The high school Greeks were first in the field, but they came not for war, since they believed that Mu Sigma meant only them. Wearing holiday togas, then, they gathered for the day's sport and strolled among the multitude burning the incense of peace.

But it happened that about the time that the contest began four Leal's School Greeks, clad in festal regalia, came likewise to witness the contest. And these were snowy hats, with letters Mu Sigma, blazoned in gold thereon and ribbon of a sunset hue circling the brim.

Now when the "Wing Wang" holiday makers espied those hats there was rage like as when Zews' thunder springs from heaven to earth, and each fellow present cast his incense aside and swore a mighty oath. Then donned they each his brass knuckles and buckled on the greaves. And their leader harrangued them as follows:

"Let's kick that bunch and knock them out from under those lids, spotting the headgear for trophies." (Free translation).

So that host formed each man a hollow square and advanced a Sabbath day's journey to quite the plains of Irrigation, and there arranged attack, the white hats vanished. Then began the wordy war. One of the hats disappeared, but the tug of war waged lively over the other three, with a rapid interchange of "free translations."

With the peanut man as interpreter, surrounded by a dense throng, the Greeks argued long and bitterly. Prior right of organization was the main argument at the outset, but swore statements that each frat was founded some time B. C., A joint meeting will decide the question and it will be a case of survival of the fittest.

At both schools today there is consternation because of the report that there is a national school fraternity called Mu Sigma. "Hail Hail!" (meaning "wurra wurra"), then must each club again seek the Greek dictionary and the snowy hats will be useless.

W. C. W. AUFERMAN WON ON RECOUNT OF VOTE

Acting on an order issued by Justice Bergen, of the Supreme court, the Union County board of Elections held a recount of the vote for town council for the borough of New Providence, at the courthouse in Elizabeth, on Saturday. Judge Whittemore, of Elizabeth, appeared for Walter C. Auferman, a Republican candidate, who was declared by the district board to have been elected by one majority. Judge Runyon appeared for the petitioner, Walter C. W. Auferman, the Democratic candidate. After an hours' deliberation, the county board reversed the action of the district board, unanimously holding that Auferman had won by three majority.

A report to this effect will be made to Justice Bergen, who will issue the certificate of election to Auferman.

NOT MUCH DANGER OF A BREAK IN THE STATE.

With the caucus of the Republicans called for December 14, there is little or nothing to result from the usual Tuesday confab of the legislators at Trenton this week. There is some talk of breaking the slate of Ward, of Bergen, for speaker, and Edge, of Atlantic, for majority leader of the House, but it is hardly likely to develop into anything serious.

Such slates have been broken but once in almost thirty years. Certainly not in the hold to state leaders have of the Legislature, so this time it is unlikely that the slate will be upset.

Although Governor Fort every Tuesday tells the newspaper men that there is a chance for a special session, it is unlikely that such a session will be called, as the vexed question of preserving the potable waters of this State for consumption by its municipalities is well in hand in the courts. The Governor goes away hunting next Saturday and will not return until December 11.

CONGREGATION HEARS "THE TWO HARVESTS"

The quartet and chorus choir of the First Baptist church gave a Thanksgiving musical service, last night, which included the rendition of the beautiful cantata, "The Two Harvests," by the celebrated English composer, Dr. Ferris Tozer, whose degree as a doctor of music was conferred on him by Oxford University. There was an unusually large congregation present to enjoy the service.

The program opened with a prelude, "Aria," Goldmark, by Miss Florence Wohlfert, violinist, and Howard Case at the organ. Throughout the rendition of the cantata, the congregation sang several hymns. The arrangement of the cantata is pleasing. It consists of several solo numbers, these being taken by Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano; Miss Josephine Bracker, contralto; William Holmes, bass, and George Smith, tenor.

The first part of the cantata was devoted to the material harvest, and in this Mr. Holmes and Mr. Smith had most of the work. The parts for soprano, contralto, tenor and bass were well divided in the second part, which was devoted to the Spiritual harvest. The soloists sang in a pleasing manner, while the work of the chorus was up to its usual high standard. In the concluding part of the cantata there was an effective part for male voices and also a part for the entire quartet which was delightfully rendered. All together the service was one of the most pleasing and satisfactory heard in a long time.

At the close of the cantata Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, the pastor, preached a short sermon, appropriate to the occasion, in which he drew many helpful lessons from the theme of the "Two Harvests." An offertory, an anthem by West was sung by the choir. The postlude was "Hosanna," by Wachs.

"CIRCLES ON THE SQUARE" MOVEMENT SPREADING

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting of voters of Passaic township, Morris county, Saturday night, at Maennenchor Hall, Stirling, when steps were taken to organize a Circles on the Square, similar to the organizations in New Providence and Warren townships. There were about one hundred of the 700 voters of the township present.

William Jeffery, originator of Circles on the Square, addressed the audience on the origin of the Circles and what has been accomplished in New Providence and Warren townships. Mr. Jeffery is president of the New Providence Circles.

William H. Rogers, president of the Warren Circles, presided and made a short address. The audience elected seven men of their number to serve as a committee on organization of a civic body for the Passaic township.

It is probable that it will be known as Passaic Township Society Circles on the Square. The following men were selected as a committee:

Henry Hart, Walter Swenson, G. M. Cornish, township clerk, William Schuman, Otto Heintzman, Republicans; Thomas Meier, Charles Kutscher, Raymond A. Alland, Democrats. The committee met at the close of the meeting and organization will be effected at a meeting to be held Saturday night at the same place.

GIRL GIPSY STOLE IS BROUGHT HOME.

Arrayed in finery Amelia Johnson, the thirteen-year-old gipsy girl returned Saturday evening to Elizabeth accompanied by her father and uncle, Ephraim and Lewis Johnson. There were rousing cheers given as her mother's arms locked in embrace about her in the gipsy camp in Atlantic League Park.

"I'm glad to be here," said Amelia. "Me no like Chicago any more. I like Elizabeth. Me no like Demetro. I no marry Ephraim Demetro. He a bad one."

Then she told her experiences since the Demetros took her three years ago. She had pursued fortune telling and had been well treated. The elder Demetro, known as "Tom Mitchell, the gipsy king," expected her to become the wife of his son. She also told of her rescue.

Favors Preventorium.

In an informal discussion last night Governor Fort made clear his position in regard to the tuberculosis preventorium for children, which has so roused Lakewood, declaring that he was not opposed to the location of such an institution in New Jersey and that today he would make reply to the letter of Marcus M. Marks, president of the preventorium.

E. F. Sheppard Will Lead.

Edgar F. Sheppard will have charge of the prayer meeting at the Netherwood Reformed church, Friday night, in place of Rev. John Y. Brook, who has been conducting these meetings, because the latter is called upon to preside at the preparatory services in Trinity Reformed church that night.

EXPLAINS MISSION WORK

Rev. Dr. Charles L. White Tells of Baptist Home Society's Labor.

FINE RESULTS ARE OBTAINED.

The Organization Has Expended Nearly $400,000 for the Spread of Religion.

Rev. Dr. Charles L. White, associate corresponding secretary of the *American Baptist Home Mission So*ciety, occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church Sunday morning bringing some of the latest news from the home field regarding mission enterprise. He spoke more especially of the work in the south among the colored and mountain whites, and his remarks would indicate much cause for encouragement.

The mission society is an organization of American Baptists, chiefly of the Northern and Western States, whose great object is to promote the preaching of the Gospel in North America. There are three main departments of work; Missionary, church edifice and educational. It has been one of the great pioneer missionary agencies throughout the West before the construction of railroads, in giving the Gospel to millions of foreigners, resulting in an in-gathering of about 60,000 in foreign-speaking Baptist churches in the United States.

It has expended about $400,000 for missionary and educational work among the Indians, with remarkable results. It has maintained many efficient Christian schools for the negroes and about 75,000 pupils have been enrolled therein. It has maintained missions in Mexico since 1870 and has erected several houses of worship there. It was quick to occupy Porto Rico and Eastern Cuba early in 1899, where through the labors of its missionaries, 76 Baptist churches have been organized, with 3,767 members; 40 houses of worship and two educational institutions built, and two Baptist papers in Spanish published. Dr. White made an earnest appeal for greater support of this work.

COUNTY C. E. PROGRAM FOR RAHWAY MEETING

Christian Endeavorers from all parts of Union county will gather at Rahway next Friday for three important meetings in the Second Presbyterian church. The chief speaker at all three meetings will be Karl Lehmann, interstate field secretary of Christian Endeavor. There will be a conference on Junior work at 4 p. m., a supper and conference at 6, and a rally at 8. A brief session of the executive committee will be included in the program, and notices have been sent to all societies by the secretary, Harry F. Brewer.

The meetings give promise of being of exceptional interest, and the county officers are making special effort to secure a large attendance, while Frederick L. Mintel, of Rahway, as president of the entertaining society and also as vice-president of the county union, is preparing for the pleasure of the young people who will be the guests of the Rahway Endeavorers.

MR. NOLEN BURIED IN METHODIST CEMETERY.

The funeral service of George R. Nolen was held Sunday at the home of his mother, Mrs. M. C. Terry, on North Second street. Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, officiated. There was a large attendance of friends. The burial was in the Methodist cemetery, and five representatives from the Luthers' Union in Newark, of which Mr. Nolen was a member, and Samuel Taynor, were pall-bearers.

Mr. Nolen is survived by a mother, a wife and five children; four sisters and one brother. The sisters are Mrs. Carrie A. Brower, of Newark; Mrs. G. L. Arbuckle and Mrs. A. J. Nolen, of New York, and Mrs. Belle Wilson, of this city. The brother is Pierre H. Moore, of this city.

New Church Bell Used.

The new bell which was presented to the Netherwood Reformed church on Leland avenue by Mr. Vanderhoef, who is an elder in the North Reformed church, Newark, of which Rev. Dr. Vance is the pastor, was hung in the church steeple on Saturday and was heard Sunday for the first time. It is a sweet-toned bell and the ringing by the supply, Royal A. Stout, was a welcome sound to those residing in the vicinity of the church.

Bitten by Vicious Dog.

Miss Ruth Brandegee, of 434 West Seventh street, was severely bitten by a dog Saturday morning, while on her way to the North avenue station. Miss Brandegee was passing through Sycamore street near Sixth when the dog attacked her. The police were notified, but no trace of the vicious animal has been discovered.

SCHOOL EXPENDITURES BEING INVESTIGATED

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson has received from State Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles J. Baxter, of Trenton, a letter asking for an itemized statement of the money spent in this city for school purposes during the year. The request is made by Superintendent Baxter on behalf of the committee appointed by Governor Fort to investigate school expenditures in the State. The information asked for is as follows:

List of textbooks adopted and the name of publishers.

Number of purchases during the year and the cost of each.

When last change in textbooks was made and how long discarded books had been in use.

The number of schoolhouses erected during the last five years, giving the number erected each year and the cost of each building, with the number of rooms and the number of pupils it will accommodate. If land was purchased, the cost of the land and the cost of the building stated separately.

So far as Plainfield is concerned, there is no apprehension on the part of the authorities as to the committee finding any unwise expenditure of the school funds. This city spends less per capita for the education of the children than any first or second-class city in the State, and at the same time the high standard of the schools has been maintained.

Members of the Board of Education feel confident that a more judicious expenditure of the appropriations of school money can not be found in any other city in New Jersey, and the fact that the per capita cost for the education of the children is low in Plainfield is the strongest proof, they think, of the economical and yet effective plan under which the financial department of the Plainfield schools is conducted.

TRINITY'S MISSIONARY HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Dr. Paul Wilburforce Harrison, of Boston, who will visit his parents at Lincoln, Neb., before entering upon his works as a missionary of the Dutch Reformed Church of America, in Arabia, will attend the communion service at Trinity Reformed church next Sunday morning. His purpose is to become a member of the congregation on that occasion, being prompted to take the step because he was recently chosen by the Arabian mission field. The selling of liquor to minors is an offense for which somebody ought to be punished and as for himself he would fight to the last ditch to bring about some reform. He said that many young men were the cause of wrecking the family happiness and that they were slowly murdering the mothers who love them and whose pillows are wet with tears for their erring sons. The appeal went straight to the hearts of all the parishioners.

INTEMPERANCE GROWING

Father Bogan in Stirring Address Says Evil is on Increase Here.

DEPLORES THE ABUSE OF DRINK

As a Result of Personal Investigation St. Mary's Priest Issues a Warning.

The increase of intemperance among young men of St. Mary's parish and others who do not belong to it furnished material for some stirring remarks by Father Bogan at the five morning services at St. Mary's church Sunday. There was a ring of sincerity in the remarks of the priest as he told his hearers that his sermon was founded on personal investigation.

"I feel that I would not be doing my duty," said Father Bogan, "if I did not call attention to the congregation of the action of fathers, and to not a few of the sons. The disgraceful conduct of a few can bring a blot on the fair name of many who have the same moral object in view—the influence of religion on society.

"The young men who feel that it is manly to join with their fellows in a feature of social life that is above has left in its wake sorrow and disgrace in its trail should be held before the congregation as pitiable rather than as worthy representatives of the manhood of our parish, and while I deeply regret to make this public appeal, I do so, as much as it appeals to me few in the parish, I do it to extentuate my personal feelings as well as to emphasize the protest of our parish against the disgrace that a few can bring upon it.

"I have utmost confidence in the appreciation that will be given to my most earnest protest, by you, the fathers and brothers, of the few who have thrown a blot on our escutcheon."

Father Bogan said that from his own observations young men from his own parish and others who were not had become addicted to the immoderate use of liquor and he had seen them with his own eyes staggering along the streets of this city. While he did not mention any names he said he was going to fight the evil to the last ditch and appealed to the members of the various societies connected with his church to use their influence to aid him in the extermination of the evil.

Father Bogan was deeply in earnest in his appeal to shame. The selling of liquor to minors is an offense for which somebody ought to be punished and as for himself he would fight to the last ditch to bring about some reform. He said that many young men were the cause of wrecking the family happiness and that they were slowly murdering the mothers who love them and whose pillows are wet with tears for their erring sons. The appeal went straight to the hearts of all the parishioners.

UNION COUNTY DENTISTS FORM ORGANIZATION

A permanent organization was affected by Union county dentists at Elizabeth Saturday night, when they elected officers and formed an organization which will be known as the Union County Dental Society. This organization is a result of a discovery between local dentists over the establishment of a free clinic at Elizabeth. The other faction has formed a clinic.

The new county society is composed of those who disagreed with this latter faction and left the meeting several weeks ago. Many of the county dentists have also joined the new organization. A committee was appointed to prepare a constitution and by-laws. Nothing was done regarding the establishment of a clinic. This will be taken up later. Dr. Edward D. Frost, a councilman of Elizabeth, was chosen president of the new society.

The officers of the new society are: President, Dr. Edward D. Frost, Elizabeth; vice-president, Dr. Charles S. Hardy, of Summit; secretary, Dr. J. B. Stevens, of Elizabeth; treasurer, Dr. S. M. Hinman, of Cranford.

REV. J. R. ATKINSON AT HOLY CROSS CHURCH.

Rev. J. R. Atkinson, rector of Trinity church, Elizabeth, occupied the pulpit of the Church of the Holy Cross in exchange with Rev. George A. Warner at the evening service Sunday and preached a strong and impressive sermon to a large and appreciative congregation. There was a fine program of Advent music rendered by the choir.

The preacher next Sunday will be Rev. C. L. Wood, rector of St. Luke's church, Roselle. Mr. Wood will be pleasantly remembered for his sermon at Holy Cross last Lent.

POWERFUL DRAMA SEEN AT THE NEW THEATRE.

The New Theatre, New York, which began its career two weeks ago, won a distinct triumph last Wednesday evening when it presented for the first time in America John Galsworthy's powerful drama, "Strife." Nothing approaching this remarkable presentation has been made in New York for years and the event proved without question that the playgoers of the city thirty representative citizens in the interests of dramatic art, has already begun to fulfill its mission.

The theatre opened with a magnificent production of Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra" and followed this three nights later with Edward Knoblauch's sanity, satrical comedy, "The Cottage in the Air." Then came "Strife," which will unquestionably be kept in the repertory the entire season. Its theme, its mob scene and its dramatic worth made a wonderful impression the opening night and the company itself won unstinted praise, as the opinions of able critics, excerpts of whose reviews are given.

North Plainfield High athletes scored a double victory at basketball in contests with teams of the Plainfield High School at the latter place on Saturday. Two stage-loads of pupils made the trip which was under the supervision of Miss Helen Stahlberger, of the faculty. The girls team was victorious by the score of 30 to 0 and the boys were victorious 19 to 0. The girls' team was composed of Bessie Conroy, Nettie Steiner, Marjorie Hart, Clara Smith and Helen George. The boy's combination was Conroy, H. Stine, Lovell, P. Bailey, W. Taylor and Dunning.

SEES CHINA AWAKENING

John R Mott Says That the Celestials are Seizing Their Opportunity.

MAKING GREAT ADVANCEMENT.

In the Christian Religion Will Be Found Their Salvation Says the Lecturer.

"China is awake and is going to school to the world and this is the Christian's opportunity," said John R. Mott, head of the World's Student Missionary movement, in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday morning. Mr. Mott was talking to a very large congregation and was earnest to the point of exhortation. He declared that the Chinese as a nation was strong physically and was awakening to the fact that her western friends were quite willing to help her come into her own, a position of prominence among the Powers of the world.

Compared with Russia China showed the greater opportunities for the advancement of the Christian religion. The United States has made a deep impression on the Chinese Empire and it behooves the people of this country to recognize the chance and develop it. Mr. Mott said that of the forty-five countries he has visited in the interests of the Student Missionary movement he was most impressed with the advancement of the work among the Chinese. Their young men are keenly alive to the importance of imbibing the principles of the country where the Christian religion is powerful and are anxious to produce like results in their own land.

There are 4,000 Protestant missionaries in this great land of the Far East, but they are not the ones which eventually will bring the country into its fullest greatness. It will be the Chinese themselves, through the young Chinaman who is obtaining an education abroad. Our institutions of learning are finding a great reality and they realize that they have staked their lives upon their enterprise and they are unanimous in their opinion of the great work. They are all of them of heroic spirit, both the men and the women. But there is one evil which saps the life of the nation which must first be overcome. Fifteen per cent. of the men are addicted to the opium habit. They wear worse shackles than did any slave. Besides they have the power of resistance which we, under a Christian teaching, possess. None but God's power can reach a situation like this.

"I have studied unprejudiced all the religions of the east, said Mr. Mott, and have attended many religious congresses, yet I must say that the nations under their spell are without hope, absolutely. Confucius says to the drowning, 'Profit by your experience.' Buddha says 'Struggle.' Mahommed puerily exclaims 'It is the will of God,' but Christ says 'Take my hand'—a direct, personal wish to draw one up to Himself who is able to save.

"Every Chinaman has a right to hear about this superhuman Christ. What right have we to believe that this great people should get along without this Christ? The last decade has shown wonderful triumphs. There are more than one million adherents of the Protestant religion now in China and a great deal larger number of the Roman Catholic faith."

Mr. Mott told of some of the wonderful conversions among the people of Manchuria among whom were some of the worst characters implicated in the Boxer uprising of ten years ago. Whole villages have become converted through the efforts of one reformed and converted boxer. He also told of the conversion of some 150 students who were sent to Tokio, Japan, for their education. These conversions were the result of a four hours' meeting in the Japanese city.

The lines of the opposing religions in China are wavering and if we would follow Napoleon's way of conquering we should exert the greatest strength during the time now and make the victory complete.

If we can sustain headquarters in the five principle cities of China, Tien Tsin, Shanghai, Pekin, Hangkow and Hong Kong, we can soon make it a simple matter to reach the millions in the country districts. The evangelization of the Empire is purely a Chinese enterprise, to be conducted by their students, the sons and daughters of the poor.

What an inspiration to the United States would it be if 100 students at Princeton University were to openly declare themselves for the Christian Ministry? Wouldn't everybody in the country think it a great thing? Well, there are things like that happening in China right along and for this reason I believe the salvation of the country will be in these students. About 1,800 of them are coming to this country in a little while to be educated. The investment returned by our government affording the means. Yes, China is awake and is going to school to the world." A large collection was taken for Y. M. C. A. work.

CRANFORD WOMAN COMMITTED SUICIDE

When told by physicians that there was but little hope for her recovery, Mrs. Lillian E. LaBake, of Cranford, after an illness of two years, determined to end her life. She was found in her room Saturday unconscious. The gas was turned on. From one of the jets was a hose running to a pillow on her bed. She had simply laid down and inhaled the gas.

Mrs. LaBake was still breathing when found. Dr. Gilton and Dr. Vail were called, and, after working over her for more than half an hour, failed to revive her. She died in less than an hour after being found. Her husband, who is traveling salesman, returned home yesterday. Every effort was made to keep the news of his wife's death from him, and until late last night he was ignorant of the fact that his wife had died less than ten hours before he arrived home.

The family took every precaution to keep the cause of the woman's death a secret, and would probably have succeeded had it not been for domestics telling of it among residents in that town. County Physician Wescott was called in, and, after viewing the body, issued the necessary burial permit. Neither of the physicians who attended Mrs. La Blake would make a statement last night.

Mrs. La Bake was 51 years old. She went to Cranford from State Island several years ago. Her home there is in the residential section, is which she frequently entertained, and when it was learned that she had taken her life society folk there were shocked.

Besides her husband, Mrs. La Bake leaves two children, Ray and Marie.

POLICE HUNTING FOR "AUTO DICK TURPIN"

When Borough Marshal Enos Fourati, of Metuchen, gets through with the highwaymen, who, it is reported, are waylaying automobilists and holding them up at the point of a revolver, there will be a dull time for all cars do not fall. Recently, it is reported, a number of men held up or attempted to hold up J. Chauncey VanHorn, of Trenton, but Mr. Van Horn escaped by speeding up his machine.

Marshal Fourai believes that there is plenty in numbers and it would be an easy matter to corral the modern Dick Turpin if he could get the necessary machines to patrol the highways used by motorists. So he made known his wants to the owners of cars, and stated the intention of beating the highwayman at his own game. The results have not been quite as satisfactory as the Marshal would like because no more attempts have been made to hold anyone up.

Patrol duty has been done by several cars on which the marshal has valiantly taken the seat with the driver, but up to yesterday no further reports of holdups have come to hand. The roads patrolled were Plainfield road, to Fords on the Amboy road and Station on the New Brunswick road and to Menlo Park on the Rahway road.

WOMEN BETTER NURSES.

Jersey State Insane Asylum Discharging Its Force of Male Attendants.

Dr. Henry A. Cotton, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane at Trenton, is experimenting with women nurses for the male patients and doing away with male attendants. It is said that the small salary, $25 a month and board, will not permit of hiring the best men, and that the "accidents" which result in men dying of broken ribs may come from quarrels between the male patients and the male attendants.

Dr. Cotton believes that he can solve the whole difficulty by hiring women for most of the work. His observations are that the male patients seldom quarrel with the women attendants, and that in wards where women are there is less trouble, even with the most advanced cases.

Equal to the Occasion.

A young couple entered a railway carriage and were immediately put down as a bridal pair, says the Boston Herald. But they were remarkably self-possessed, and behaved with such sangfroid that the other passengers began to doubt.

As the train moved out the young man rose to take off his overcoat, and a shower of rice fell out. The passengers smiled broadly.

But even that did not affect the youth, who also smiled, and, turning to his partner, remarked, audibly:

"By Jove, May! I've stolen the bridegroom's overcoat!"

Plainfielders on Petit Jury.

The following Plainfielders were chosen in the Union County Court today, for petit jury service at the next term of court: Thomas J. Lynch, Robert Keenan, Preston B. Goodfellow, L. A. Hummer, Thomas Callahan Henry C. Nomer, David H. Rowland, Edward McCarthy, Isaac H. Randolph and Eugene M. Cave.

CHURCH AND SOCIALISM

Reasons Given by Minister Why Socialism Can't Be Endorsed.

POINTS OUT ITS DEFECTS.

The Rev. Charles Stelzle Addresses the Monday Afternoon Club at the Auditorium.

Rev. Charles Stelzle, superintendent of the department of church and labor of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, gave reasons "Why the Church cannot practically endorse Socialism," in an earnest and thoughtful lecture before the Monday Afternoon Club Monday at the Hartridge School auditorium. Socialism, the speaker regarded as one of the most important questions of the day, varying in different countries as to its repressentation in each country.

Rev. Mr. Stelzle gave the definition common to most socialist platforms, the ownership by the people of all the means of production, distribution and said that the church was asked to be sponsor for the socialist belief, and if it did not undertake its advocacy speedily the masses would be alienated from the church.

In reply, he claimed that the advocates of socialism did not fill the churches, that they did not even agree in their ideas of what they wished to accomplish, that the early church, said by the socialists to be a pattern, did not represent socialism, but communism, and that was voluntary, that it was inaugurated as a temporary expedient, and that it pauperized the Jerusalem church and was a complete failure.

The brotherhood that was of value said Rev. Mr. Stelzle, was that which helped the brother to create wealth. The mission of the church, he considered, was to preach to individuals the principles taught by Jesus Christ and these principles were to be applied individually to the society.

Another reason given by Mr. Stelzle why the church could not advocate socialism was that it was not a permanent solution of the labor problems. If it met the needs of the twentieth century, there was no assurance it would suffice for the needs of the twenty-first century. The church, he said, had no right to advocate theories which are not applicable to any generation. You can only have an ideal socialism when you have an ideal man.

Mr. Seltzle in closing, told of the day when men and women would dedicate their children to God and Labor, as Samuel was dedicated to the ministry of the Temple.

FAMILY TROUBLES ARE AIRED IN COURT

The complaint of Mrs. Theodore Wilson against her husband for non-support brought to light a curious mixture of affairs in his family relations which it will take some time to unravel. Mrs. Wilson with a baby in her arms appeared in court this morning, while her husband was on hand to hear the complaint read. He had been detained at Police headquarters awaiting the hearing. When the judge held out the Bible to swear Mrs. Wilson, she held back, saying she had no complaint to make. She averred that the complaint was not made by her, but at the instigation of meddling neighbors.

A sister of Wilson told about the way the family had been supported and that the only reason the wife and children were temporarily out of a house was that they rightfully had refused to live in quarters with certain colored people. She testified also that Wilson had always supported his family and that there was no room for complaint. Mrs. Wilson is considered to be slightly weak. The family is now living in a house in the "big woods" at Westfield.

In order to allow for further investigation by the police Judge Runyon postponed the case for two weeks and allowed Wilson to go on his own recognizance.

CIVIL SERVICE LAW SAFE

The Ackerman Statute Has Proven Satisfactory and Will Not Be Attacked.

A LONGER TEST IS FAVORED.

Law Which Provides for a Business-like Method of Selecting Public Officials is Popular In This State.

Although a number of prominent New Jersey men, notably former Governors Franklin Murphy and John W. Griggs, have expressed doubt about the wisdom and practicability of the State Civil Service, which was fathered by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, and piloted by him through the strong opposition that manifested itself against the measure in the Legislature of 1908, none of those who have dealt with the subject have taken the position that the Ackerman law should be repealed. Messrs. Murphy and Griggs both expressed themselves as willing to await a longer test of the law than has yet been given, and their view in this respect is reflected in a similar attitude by many other politicians who are not yet willing to give unqualified approval of the measure which is devised to minimize, if not ultimately completely destroy, the evils of the spoils system as related to the public service.

There have been suggestions that the Civil Service law may be repealed by the Legislature, but those who keep in touch with the public sentiment in New Jersey see no evidence that such an attempt will be made until the Ackerman law has had a more thorough test than is acknowledged to be possible under its operation for a brief year.

During the thirteen months that the Civil Service law has been in effect in New Jersey there has been no serious complaint that the law has worked disadvantageously, while on the other hand many State officials are high in their praise of results obtained under it. Were the general tendency of the New Jersey view otherwise, it would be in marked contradiction to the experience of the Federal government based on results obtained under the National Civil Service statute was put in effect during the administration of President Harrison twenty years ago.

With respect to civil service reform, it is a fair inference to draw that New Jersey's average opinion will be very much like that which prevails in the Federal government. After two decades of practical experience, Uncle Sam's view is that civil service is a business-like method of selecting public officials and employes. All the testimony that has been adduced on the subject serves to emphasize the assertion that civil service secures employes capable and honest, the accrued result of which is to make administration a more economical and efficient that under the spoils system of appointment for political reasons.

The business value of civil service reform, as experienced in the Federal government, is epitomized in a statement by the United States Civil Service Commission that "as a result of the operation of the civil service rules a net saving in salaries paid, of at least ten per cent."

A sidelight which amplifies this view is supplied in a brief recital of the experience in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, as follows: "Under the old (spoils) system, prior to a change of administration the work of the clerks in the department fell off nearly half, and it took the successors of those who were displaced at least six months to learn their duties. Accepting the average salary of a government clerk as about $800, this would mean, in Presidential years at least, that nearly half this salary was wasted. No person being appointed by the people for the amount paid out."

The last report of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing shows that, notwithstanding the work of that bureau had increased over 77 per cent., the force (placed under and protected by civil service) had only increased 11 per cent. An investigation made by a commission of Treasury experts into the work of this bureau prior to the enactment of the civil service law found the force largely in excess of requirements for the service.

That the maintenance of the government Civil Service Commission is directly in the interest of economy is shown by the statistics prepared last year in connection with the government service

UNBELIEVERS MUST BELIEVE

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

The Atheistic unbeliever must believe there may be design without a designer, law without intelligent cause. The Bible in calling him a fool draws his picture accurately, for he must violate the laws of his mind in order to say that there is no God. Savages in their rudest state do not say so. They infer a great cause from the great results that they see about them. Their conceptions of God are crude and false, but they are not fools. Those sons of nature allow their reason to work, and although their minds are full of superstitious fears caused by ignorance, they see a God behind the material universe as plainly as they see the sun in the heavens. It remains for the modern atheist, be he scientist or philosopher, to turn him self into an intellectual fool by predicating of dead matter only what can be predicated of intelligent mind.

The agnostic unbeliever must believe a theory against facts which have been proved by competent witnesses. His theory is that no one can know God. The facts are that Sir Isaac Newton, the mathematician, said: "I know God." Agassiz, the scientist, said: "I know God." Kepler, the astronomer, after the discovery of his great law, fell upon his knees and exclaimed: "O God, I think thy thoughts after thee." Hivelock, the soldier, said: "I know God," and prayed to him daily. Gladstone, the statesman, said: "I know God." Abraham Lincoln, the liberator, said: "I know God," and spent whole nights in prayer to him. Thousands of lawyers, merchants, judges and physicians have declared that they know God. Agnosticism must believe that these competent, trustworthy witnesses are deceivers or deceived.

Agnosticism evidently believes that ignorance has a right to speak and insruct knowledge. When a man confesses that he knows nothing, and each know nothing on any subject, it becomes him to keep quiet on that subject, but agnosticism writes books and magazine articles, parading its ignorance with intellectual pride. It has established a sort of science of ignorance, and formed a blind man's club for the propagation of blindness.

Now, God has given us a text book called the Bible, in which he has revealed himself so clearly that all who will may know him. When the agnostic says: "I don't know," he simply proclaims the fact that he prefers darkness to light; he turns away from the sun that he may grope in the dark cave of his own prejudice and ignorance. If he has looked through his telescope at the stars and through his microscope at the flowers without seeing God, he has simply established the presumption that God will reveal himself in some other way. When he opens the Bible the first words he reads are: "In the beginning God." He ought now to be glad that God has revealed himself in a book, but he is not glad, for his pet theory has been destroyed.

The anti-Bible unbeliever shows a credulity that is truly marvelous. He must admit that the Bible claims to be inspired. "God said," "Thus saith the Lord," rings through its pages. He must admit also that the book was written by bad men or by good men. If good men wrote it, it is, of course, inspired, for good men would not deceive us by making a false claim and they could hardly have been deceived. If the unbeliever asserts that bad men wrote it, then he must believe that the book which has produced the highest civilization on earth, and has developed the noblest characters in the world, was written by liars, who, at the same time, denounced themselves unmercifully for their deception.

But, says the rationalistic unbeliever, God has given to man a reason as guide. Yes, but does reason guide man aright? Look at those monstrous idols in pagan countries. Are they images of the true God to whom men without the Bible have been led by their reason? Are they not, on the other hand, reflections of the depravity of human nature into which man has sunk by the aid of his reason, which fell with his other faculties when he sinned?

The anti-Christ unbeliever who rejects the deity of Jesus must believe, if he accepts the Bible, that he claimed to be divine, for he said: "Before Abraham was I am," "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father," and "O Father, glorify thou me with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." Now, all such unbelievers admit that Jesus was a good man. They praise him for his stainless character. As an unbeliever he must believe, too, that a good man can at the same time be a hypocritical deceiver. Jesus Christ was either what he claimed to be, the Divine Son of God, or he was a wicked deceiver. There is no middle ground. To believe that he was good is to believe that he was God, unless we do violence to our reason by believing the absurd proposition that a good man can make a false claim.

CURRENT VERSE.

It Reaches Cactus Center.

Down here in Davis Center we was getting somewhat pressed
As to just which pole explorer was to have his yarn believed;
We had took sides in the matter, and the poker game was shook,
While some rooted hard for Peary and the others yelled for Cook.

Pocos Johnson said some sneerin', that the common daily feed
Of the most of Cook's supporters was a mess of hoss weed,
Whereupon Silas Hawkins answered that
It bothered him a heap
When he found that Peary's boosters was jest fit for herdin' sheep.

It was then, or shortly after, that the barkeep ducked his head,
'Cause the atmosphere was vibrant with the song of Chinese lead;
There was sounds of busted glasses, and the door was clean unhinged
When we drifted on the sidewalk, somewhat punctured, bruised and singed.

Now we're strivin' here in Cactus, for to keep abreast of things,
But we've drawed one line quite firmly, since we organized our rings;
And if any north pole hunter comes to Cactus at high cost,
We'll inform him, ere he opens, that he's bound to git a frost.

The Curtain's Fall.

The curtain's falling, and the lights burn low,
So, with God's help, I'm ready now to go.
I've seen life's melodrama, paid the price,
Have known its lovin and losses, hopes and fears,
The laughter and the tears,
And now, God knows, I would not see it twice.

I've crossed life's ocean, faced its blinding foam,
But now, heaven whispers I am nearing home,
And though a storm tossed hull I reach the shore,
A thing of tattered sheets and broken spars,
Naked against the stars,
I soon shall be at peace forever more.

For if again I pass these waters through,
I know the kingdom I am sailing to,
What boots it where I lie?—beneath the sod,
Or down the dark impenetrable deep,
Where wayworn seamen sleep?
All seas are good through which we pass to God.

—Blackwood's Magazine.

A Woman's Way.

They walked together, he and she,
Along a brooklet side;
The weather was the balmiest
Of balmy summertide—
A fitting time for him to ask
If she would be his bride.

And she was waiting hopefully,
As she had waited long,
To hear him tell her all about
His love so old and strong;
But language failed for thoughts that in
His brain would surge and throng.

Silence, 'tis said, surpasseth speech,
Love-meanings to convey—
It truth, maybe, but when is he
Can fathom woman's way?
The little love-words took offense,
At what he didn't say.
—Eugene C. Dolson, in Town and Country.

The Soul's Expression.

With stammering lips and insufficient sound
I strive and struggle to deliver right
That music of my nature day and night
With chaos and thought and feeling interwound
And inly answering all the senses round
With voices of a mystic depth and height,
Which step six grandly to the infinite
From the dark edges of the sensual ground!

The song of soul I struggle to outbear
Thrills the portals of the sense, sublime and whole,
And utter all myself into the air.
But I did it—as the thunder roll
Breaks its own cloud—my flesh would perish there,
Before that dread Apocalypse of soul.
—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

The General Tendency.

What's de use o' singin' me
Dat old "git busy" song
When nearly everything I see
Is loiterin' along?
De breeze dat floats de butterfly,
De birds dat migh' strongs,
De clouds up yonder in de sky
Is loiterin' along.

De bee picks up a pinch o' sweet,
Den say: "Dar's hustlin' wrong."
In calling dis day's work complete
An' loiterin' along."
De squirrel tries nuts so high,
De bullfrog soun' de gong,
Dey' now an' den—dey don't half try—
Dey's loiterin' along.
—Washington Star.

Life and Death.

Hope, the great explorer;
Love, whom none can bind;
Youth, that looks before her;
Age that looks behind.

Joy, with brow like summer's;
Care, with wintry pate;
Masquers are we and mummers
At Life's gate.

Power, with narrow forehead;
Wealth, with niggard palm;
Wisdom old, whose hear head
Vaunts a barren calm.

Haughty overcomers
In their mortal state,
Masquers all and mummers
At Death's gate.
—William Watson.

The Eternal Feminine.

"Give me a kiss for a guerdon,"
Said the knight to the lady fair,
"Give me a kiss for a guerdon,
And a tress of thy golden hair."

"For I go to a far off country
At the head of my merrie men,
And those that return to those that go forth
Are only as one to ten."

And she gave him a kiss for a guerdon
And a tress of her golden hair,
And narrowed a country and married a prince,
In the manner of ladies fair.
—Walter E. Reid, in New York Sun.

The Little Time.

So little time to love you—
So little time to see
The eyes that have made Heaven
On this poor earth for me!

So little time to listen
Unto that voice which thrills
A soul with sweeter music
Than mocking birds or rills.

But thankful that I owned you
In days when Love was new,
And that I can't forget you—
The beautiful and true!
—Frances Stanton, in Atlanta Constitution.

UNITED IN THANKSGIVING

Eight Evangelical Congregations Join in Annual Celebration.

REV. MR. KIMBLE PREACHES.

Appropriate Selections Rendered by Choir Under the Direction of R. L. Laslett Smith.

The storm did not affect the attendance at the union Thanksgiving service in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Thursday morning and those who joined in the hearty service were well repaid.

Representatives from eight churches in the city were present including their pastors and if the singing of the last hymn, America, was any indication of the feelings of those who joined so heartily in it America need never fear for the patriotism which wins.

The pastors present were Rev. Charles A. Goodrich, of the Congregational church; Ora J. Shoop, of Grace M. E.; L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel; Edwin Shaw, of the Seventh Day Baptist; Dr. John A. Chamblin, of the First Baptist; Charles E. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E.; John Y. Brock, of Trinity Reformed, and the pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, in which the services were held Dr. John Sheridan Zelie.

The choir, under the direction of R. L. Laslett Smith, of Stamford, Conn., rendered appropriate anthems in an effective manner. The services opened with hymn No. 709, followed by scripture reading by Mr. Shoop. President Taft's proclamation was read effectively by Rev. L. R. Howard and the invocation given by Rev. Charles A. Goodrich. Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the Seventh Day Baptist church read the Psalter which was responded to by the entire congregation.

The scripture lesson, read by Rev. Dr. John A. Chamblin, included passages from Paul's Epistle to the Philippians and the second chapter of Timothy and was followed by the prayer offered by Rev. John Y. Brock, of Trinity Reformed church. The sermon, delivered by Rev. Mr. Kemble, was a thrilling one, full of splendid ideas about the celebration of the national feast day. There was only one reason why the preacher was not interrupted by applause for some of his points and that was the environments.

Rev. Mr. Kemble took his text from Nehemiah 8:10; "Go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send a portion unto them for whom nothing is prepared: for this day is holy unto our Lord; neither be ye sorry; for the joy of the Lord is your strength."

He said in part: "This is a model Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving Day in America is of Puritan origin, but it did not have its origin in Puritanism. The observance of a day of general thanksgiving is generally traced back as far as 1621, in the Plymouth Bay colony when Governor Winslow appointed a day for mingled prayer and thanksgiving and feasting recognition of God's care of the early colonists.

"Our Pilgrim Fathers were more prone to fasting than to feasting and it is recorded that the first Thanksgiving Day resulted from the bravery of one of the colonists who dared to speak out in meeting in which he termed the occasion one for feasting and not for weeping. The colonist said: 'Our colony is getting stronger, our cornfields are enlarging, our wives are very obedient, our children are dutiful, the air is salubrious, the woods are full of game and the rivers are full of fish; we have attained our object in coming here, liberty of conscience, I move that we have a day of thanksgiving.'

"The next thanksgiving goes further back than that! It can be traced to the Jewish Feast of Tabernacles, where Nehemiah exhorted the people to do as said in the words of the text. This was amended somewhat by the New England farmer when he injected the sentence 'to feast and rejoice.'

"You can praise God more by enjoying his gifts than by refusing them. Even the dietary experts are being discredited and the more pleasing and more successful Fletcher. Selfishness is debarred from a true Thanksgiving worship. You cannot eat a Thanksgiving turkey in the proper spirit unless you have shared it with others. Every good which men desire becomes a noble good only when it is sought for the welfare of others."

Mr. Kemble quoted scripture to prove the meaning of his theme and its reasonableness, but drew attention to the fact that "They are slaves most base, whose love of right is for themselves and not for all the race." Feast and fellowship are not alone a sufficient celebration of Thanksgiving. We must remember "this day is holy unto the Lord." We must remember the less fortunate brother and that he furnishes us with a demonstration that we appreciate God's wonderful bounty to us in just the measure we divide with him.

"This day is the antithesis of Independence Day, celebrated on the Fourth of July. This 'Independence Day,' because we rely on God's bounty for our progress and good."

"Holiness is not ingrafted by sadness. Christ did not spread a pall over the earth, He lifted the cloud which was upon it. Those who walk in the shadow have their backs to the great sun. When they turn their pathway is bright and the devil cannot make encouragement in tackling a Christian. Take joy home."

Rev. Mr. Kemble was warmly congratulated by his brother clergymen on his masterful discourse.

RECEPTION AND DANCE GIVEN FOR DEBUTANTE

A charming society function of the Thanksgiving season was the reception and dance given at the Plainfield Country Club, Wednesday evening for Miss Margaret Drayton, daughter of Mrs. John B. Drayton, of Hillside avenue, when she was presented to society. The affair was given by the debutante's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. David F. Manning, of Brooklyn.

There were nearly 200 guests present from New York, Brooklyn, Westfield and this city, and the many delightful features were greatly enjoyed by all. Miss Drayton in receiving with her mother, was assisted by Miss Edith Mellick, Miss Bessie Tweedy, Miss Helen Timpson, Miss Katharine McCutchen, Miss Edith Fraleigh, Miss Carolyn Martin, of this city; Miss Dorothy Tremaine, of Westfield, and Miss Katharine Oakley, of New York.

The affair was held from 9 to 2, and during the early part of the evening Miss Drayton was showered with the best wishes of her many friends. She was also the recipient of a wealth of beautiful flowers, also many gifts which are of much value. The flowers received by Miss Drayton were greatly admired. About 11 o'clock supper was served under the direction of Superintendent John Hilton, of the club, and this was one of the features. Dancing was enjoyed until 2 o'clock in the morning, music being furnished by VanEpp's orchestra.

PETER DELGEIR WEDDED TO MISS VORDERMEIER.

Miss Amelia Vordermeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Vordermeier, of 79 Fairview avenue, became the bride of Peter Delgeir, of Park avenue, at the home of her parents at 7 Thursday evening. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Duerschner, pastor of St. Peter's German Lutheran church, in the presence of a small gathering of intimate friends and members of the family. In conjunction with the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haurand, of Somerset street, the latter a sister of the bride, observed the fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Miss Vordermeier was united in marriage beneath an arch of southern smilax and roses. Mrs. Alperts, of New York, attended her as matron of honor, while Mr. Alperts was best man. The bride was gowned in white net over white satin and carried a shower bouquet of roses. Mrs. Alperts was attired in a creation of rose colored silk and carried carnations. Miss Vordermeier was given in marriage by her father. Music was furnished for the occasion by Martin Korff's orchestra.

MISS KATHARINE KELLY BRIDE OF JOS. L. KNEE.

Miss Katharine Louise Kelly, daughter of Bartholomew Kelley, of Dunellen, was married to Joseph L. Knee, of Brooklyn, in St. John's church, Brooklyn, on Wednesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Wright and Dean Pelletreau, rector of the church, in the presence of a large assemblage of friends of the couple.

The bride was attired in a gown of white satin messaline and a white tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Attending her was Miss Clarice A. Gray, who wore a creation of white over blue organdie. She also carried chrysanthemums.

Edward Knee, of Brooklyn, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Daniel Gray and Thomas Kelly. Miss Frances Hunt presided at the organ as the bridal party entered and left the church.

Following the ceremony a reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Knee at the home of the latter's father. At the completion of a wedding tour to Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Knee will reside in Brooklyn.

Crate—Mott.

Miss Josephine C. Mott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mott, of 63 Greenwood avenue, East Orange, was married to Joseph L. Crate, also of East Orange, at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday night. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. S. Waters, of Newark. On their return from the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Crate will make their home in this city.

Welsh—Ensinger.

Miss Ethel May Ensinger, of Trenton, and Uriah H. Welsh, of MacKinley place, were quietly married on Wednesday afternoon by Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, the ceremony taking place at the minister's home. It was witnessed by a few friends of the couple.

DEMOCRATS WILL DINE ON JACKSON'S BIRTHDAY

The Democratic club has elected J. F. Zerega as secretary to take the place of the late Harry W. Lee. Patrick Reville, E. D. Fluck and Frank Shattle have been appointed a committee to arrange for a big banquet on Jackson's birthday. It will be held in this city and a number of prominent Democrats will be invited to speak.

Local Democrats have practically decided to enter into an agreement with The Evening Times, of Elizabeth, whereby local news will be published each day in that paper. It is proposed also to use space in it for the dissemination of Democratic principles. It is planned, it is reported, to attack the Republican administration here, and one of the leaders says that the Common Council and Board of Education will come in for a big share of attention. The paper will have a branch office in this city.

LeRoy J. Ellis, who is general eastern representative of the Norfolk & Western Railroad, and who is president of the Democratic club of Plainfield, is one of the prime movers in the matter. A committee comprising Frank Shattle, chairman; J. O. Stevens, Alexander Kane, D. A. Galbraith, John Connolly and Frank Wagner, has been appointed to complete the details of the arrangement with the paper.

F. S. GOODMAN TO CONDUCT BIBLE STUDY CONFERENCE.

Secretary Herbert E. Parker, of the Y. M. C. A. is making arrangements for a Bible study conference which will be conducted by F. S. Goodman, Bible Secretary of the International Y. M. C. A., at the local association, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, December 10, 11 and 12. Assisting Mr. Goodman in the conference will be picked representatives from the local association, Sunday schools and leaders of church Bible classes.

The purpose of the conference is to discover the best means of securing co-operation and promoting classes and raising the standard of teaching in the Sunday schools.

SMALL FORTUNES FOR ORCHIDS.

If you had quite an ordinary orchid collection you could take up one of the better bulbs that had flowered prettily and go out and buy, with the proceeds of its sale, a peachblow automobile, a thousand touring car, or a reasonable safe and sane balloon, asserts a writer in Everybody's Magazine.

London auction knockdowns recently ran from 40 guineas to 250 and 5 guineas, Sanders, in one of the richest price lists ever published, sold 1,800 each for bulbs of "duplicates" in his collection.

Last year a garden hybrid Cypipedium went for the equivalent of $1,500, and a Brussels buyer paid $4,250 for a wild Cooksonise Crispum. Count Appony, of Budapest, paid $5,000 to a Venezuelan for one of a species so gigantic that oxen were required to convey it and the section of tree to which it was attached.

Because a Catteiya had a violet blue corolla instead of the violet rose corolla of its species, its price leaped $250. For the Pittiacum of the H. T. Pitt collection, a small plant, the high bid was $6,000. Mr. Pitt himself paid $6,500 for the celebrated Dendrobium Phalaenopsis Crispum. This had been bought in open market, before flowering, for thirty-six cents. It is the plant that has demonstrated how it can bloom that costs dear. For the spotted Crispum Wheatleyi Sanderi," Mr. Pitt, after seeing the bloom, paid 2,000 guineas —nearly $10,000.

Master of the Situation.

It was the meeting of the baseball team in a New England village, and the business before it was the election of a captain for the coming season, says Youth's Companion.

Of the dozen youngsters present, more than half were candidates for the post. First one and then another rose and stated the claims and qualifications of his particular favorite.

The matter was still undecided when the son of the owner of the ball field stood up. He was a small, stub-nosed boy, with a plentiful supply of freckles, but he looked about him with a decided show of dignity and confidence.

"I'm going to be captain this year," he said convincingly, "or else we're not going to play. I'll be turned into the field."

He was elected unanimously.

Down and Out.

"The last time I saw Nersey he was going up to propose to Miss Rosley. He behaved as if he actually had an option on her fortune."

"Oh, all that has been changed! He's got the refusal of it since."

Unfavorable.

Wife—I'm going into town today, my dear, to my bootmaker's, milliner's and dressmaker's. What does the paper say about the weather?

Husband—Rain, hail and thunder storms.—Bon Vivant.

RACCOON, 5 FEET LONG, THEIR HUNT TROPHY

J. LeRoy Geyer, of Park avenue, deputy State game warden, and his brother, Frederick Geyer, of New York, who have been enjoying some hunting in this vicinity, were highly elated Thursday over the shooting of one of the largest specimens of savage raccoons ever seen in this section of the State. The animal was captured after a fierce fight, in which the brothers sustained severe bruises, scratches and lacerations.

The raccoon, which measures over five feet from snout to tail, and weighs over fifty pounds, was shot twice by LeRoy Geyer and once by his brother, and had to be finally dispatched with the former's trusty knife, after a long chase through the Ohl place on Central avenue, before it was killed. Thinking that the animal was dead, the brothers approached it, and were surprised when it sprang at them, inflicting the injuries as stated.

The raccoon was finally killed. The brothers will have the skin made into a rug.

SHOT AT A PET WOLF; HIT NEW SON-IN-LAW

A wolf, owned by Mrs. Adele von Ohl Parker, ran amuck on the von Ohl farm Thursday, and caused considerable excitement by killing a number of chickens and geese and afterward attacking Mrs. von Ohl and her son, Percy von Ohl. In an effort to kill the animal Mrs. von Ohl used a shotgun, but instead of hitting the animal, some of the stray shots struck the latter's son-in-law, James D. L. Parker. Dr. Zeglio was summoned and attended the man whose wounds are not considered serious.

Mrs. Parker secured the wolf as a gift from a friend in Oklahoma two years ago. It has always been a pet with the members of the family and never before displayed its ferocious qualities.

The animal was tied to a tree in the yard when it broke loose and chased a number of fowl and killed them. When an attempt was made by members of the family to beat the animal into submission the wolf in turn attacked them. Mrs. von Ohl and her son Percy received a number of scratches from the jaws of the animal but otherwise they escaped.

SHIPMENTS TO LEVANT.

American Exporters Would Profit by Combining Them.

The transportation charges on small shipments from the United States to Constantinople are of such great importance that Consul-General Edward H. Osmun has recently entered into correspondence on this subject with consuls in New York to the shipping routes from New York to the Levant. Mr. Osmun writes:

"This correspondence originated in trying to help a large firm of importers which has recently established a department for American articles, but complained that it was greatly handicapped by the heavy charges, especially when the shipment was less than a 'minimum bill of lading' on which a certain fixed charge was made. In the absence of a New York collecting agent it is impossible for them to have several 'minimum bills of lading' on the same steamer which if grouped would have them only two-thirds or even less than the freight actually paid."

"In view of the frequency of shipments and reducing the transportation charges on small shipment, this office has been in correspondence through the local agents of the Nord-Deutscher Lloyd, which has a weekly service from New York, with a small shipment for Constantinople and the Levant at Naples, with delivery to Constantinople in twenty-two days, and what has been accomplished satisfactorily for one firm can be taken advantage of by all firms having business with this country."—Consular Reports.

NEGRO PUNISHED FOR ASSAULTING POLICEMAN.

John W. Jackson, the negro who was charged with assaulting Patrolman Tobias Nolan and over whom the jury disagreed last week, entered a plea of non-vult, through his counsel, William G. De Meza, this morning. Judge Atwater sentenced the man to pay a fine of $150, and ordered him to spend the next thirty days in the county jail.

Jackson's fine was paid and the sentence of thirty days will be carried out so that observation of Jackson's sanity may be made.

Dugan—Jagger.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Mary Jagger and Dennis O. Dugan, both residents of Grove street, which took place at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schaick. The bride, who was a widow, is about seventy years of age, while the groom is about thirty-five years of age. He is employed in this city as a machinist, and has been boarding at the home of the bride since coming to this city some time ago. The couple will continue to reside on Grove street.

WATCHUNG KNIGHTS AT A THANKSGIVING MASS

Members and friends of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, attended a memorial mass at St. Mary's church Thursday morning. Nearly two hundred members of the council were present. The service, which was most impressive, was conducted by Father Bogan, assisted by Fathers Hogan and Scholta. In addition to the celebration appropriate selections were rendered under the direction of Miss Mary A. Smith, organist, who was assisted by a choir composed of members of the Watchung Council.

A special Thanksgiving mass for children was celebrated at 8 o'clock by Father Bogan. A marked feature of this service was music rendered by the Junior choir. A short sermon was delivered to the young people by Father Bogan.

TO RUSH CHRISTMAS MAIL TO EUROPE

In an effort to get the Christmas mail to England and the Continent before Christmas it was decided on Wednesday that the American liner St. Louis would sail a day earlier on her eastward trip to Southampton in December. The date of her departure will be changed, therefore, from December 18, to Friday, December 17, at 10 a. m. The mail for Europe should, therefore, be posted in Plainfield on Thursday morning, December 16.

The St. Louis is the last vessel from this side by which the mails can reach England and the Continent before Christmas Day. She is due at Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton Friday, December 24.

MISS ELIZABETH H. BARTLAU SURPRISED BY FRIENDS.

Miss Elizabeth H. Bartlau, of Richmond street, was tendered an agreeable surprise party at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. E. Lane, 319 West Front street, Wednesday night. Despite the bad storm, over thirty-five relatives and friends were present. Miss Bartlau was invited by some friends to witness the performance at Proctor's theatre, after which she was requested to call on her sister.

When she arrived at Mrs. Lane's home, she was greeted by the larges company of friends to her great surprise. Parlor games, piano selections, dancing and singing all combined to make the occasion a pleasant one. The home was attractively decorated for the occasion with red and white bunting. A collation was served at midnight. The event was arranged by Mrs. A. R. Bartlau, Mrs. W. E. Lane and Russell VanBuskirk, and it was a success in every way.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Johnson, of Newark, formerly of this city, announce the marriage of their daughter, Margaret Isabel, to Alfonso Clement Lowande, of Bound Brook, which took place on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Rose of Lima's church, Newark. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. James J. McKeever. Miss Charlotte A. Johnson, a sister, was bridesmaid, and an only brother, Joseph F. Johnson, was best man. After a wedding supper at the bride's home, at which only the immediate families of the contracting parties were present, the couple left on a brief trip. Mr. and Mrs. Lowande will reside in Newark.

The bride was for many years a resident of the West End, where her parents lived, but their removal to Newark about two years ago.

EPISCOPALIANS ATTEND THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

Thanksgiving was observed with the prescribed services in all of the Episcopal churches Thursday. At Grace church the rector, Rev. Ellis Vicars Stevenson, conducted the morning prayer and afterward delivered an appropriate sermon, following an early celebration of the Holy Communion. At St. Stephen's church, the Rev. Morgan Ashley, celebrated Holy Communion, which was followed by morning prayer and sermon. The Rev. George A. Warner, of Holy Cross church, celebrated the Holy Communion at 7:30 o'clock and delivered a sermon at the 10:30 o'clock service.

Despite the inclement weather the attendance was good at all of the services. Appropriate music was rendered by the choirs.

Net Profits $160.

Manager VanZandt, who had charge of the minstrel show given at the Plainfield High School, announced that the net proceeds amounted to $160, the largest amount ever made at a similar entertainment.

"Can't I sell you a painless corn cure, madam?" said the peddler.

"No, you can't!" snapped the woman of the house. "I have no painless corns."

Then the door was shut with a sudden slam.

MUST HAVE NEW AUTO LICENSES BY NEW YEAR

J. B. R. Smith, State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, has a large force of clerks at work at Trenton preparing for the issuance of automobile licenses and markers for 1910.

All the present licenses expire with the last of the year, and new ones must be procured by those who want to drive their cars on the Year's Day and thereafter. The department has found that it is impractical to allow every one to retain his 1909 number, and automobile owners and drivers are being so notified. There are upward of 26,000 automobile licenses now in force.

THREE BASKETBALL GAMES AT Y. M. C. A.

While snow blocked all outdoor sport Thursday there was plenty doing in basketball at the local Y. M. C. A. courts. In the afternoon three games were played. The banner attraction was the clash between the Y. M. C. A.'s first five and the Millburn A. A. The visitors were humbled to the tune of 47 to 40.

Millburn started off at a hurricane clip by scoring three goals in the first four minutes of play. The first half was a pretty contest, in which both teams executed brilliant work. At the close of the first session three points separated the teams, the score being 28 to 25 in Plainfield's favor.

The locals walked away from the visitors in the final round and at the end the score was 57 to 40. Doane and Ashdhom starred for the locals while R. Marshall carried off the honors for Millburn. The lineups follow:

Y. M. C. A.—Collier, Ashholm, forwards; Cahoone, c; Rumsey, Whitford and Linke, guards.

Millbur — Livingston and Schmidt, forwards;; Beister, c; E. Marshall and R. Marshall, guards.

The Y. M. C. A. "seconds" were also victorious in their contests with the Millburn 'seconds,' the score being 42 to 25. The lineups:

Y. M. C. A.—Miner and Templin, forwards; Hoagland, c; Gavett and Fritts, guards.

Millburn—Fleming and Van Ingen, forwards; McCulkin, c; Oliver and Hill, guards.

The "Boy 'n' five trounced a picked team from Bound Brook by the score of 57 to 6. The lineups:

Bound Brook—Nonamaker and Mingle, forwards; Stryker, c; Gillespie and Rose, guards.

SENATOR BRIGGS FAVORS OFFICERS' SCHOOL PLAN.

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs in the state house, Trenton, Wednesday was much struck with the proposition to allow officers of the National Guard, from the rank of major down, to be commissioned in the regular army as second lieutenants for one year in order that they might get the training of the regular army and bring back to the National Guard the benefits which they would get from this school.

Senator Briggs, being a West Point graduate, is naturally interested in military affairs. He is on one of the military committees in the Senate, and he endorsed the plan for officers to become second lieutenants as soon as he heard of it. It was pointed out that there were young men in the National Guard who would welcome the chance of getting a year's experience in the regular army if their time was not all lost. The commission them as second lieutenants and to pay them the salaries of such officers would overcome the difficulties in many instances and give to the National Guard officers and experience.

Mother and Daughter Write Stories.

The Christmas number of Harper's Bazar has an article on "The Etiquette of a Country Neighborhood," by Florence Howe Hall, of New York, who for years resided with her family in this city. A poem on "The Christmas Truce" by Mrs. Howe's mother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, of Boston, is also one of the articles in the same periodical.

No Invitations This Year.

The annual memorial service under the auspices of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., will be held at the Plainfield armory, Monday evening, December 5. This year no invitations will be sent out, and the general public is invited to attend.

There is this satisfaction in passing summer vacations at distant points from home. Everybody doing so has a chance to make a noise like rolling in wealth.

ELECTION A BIT WARM

Dunellen Firemen Turn Down George Day and Elect W. H. Brokaw.

RESULT A BIG SURPRISE.

Company Awards Contract for New Uniforms and Asks for More Hose.

Annual elections in the Dunellen fire department are usually tame affairs, but last Friday's event was an exception to the general rule. When the members of Defender Company No. 1 assembled last night the horizon was clear and no one except those on "the inside" scented a contest.

Everything went along serenely until nominations were called for representative to the Firemen's Relief Association's annual convention. George W. Day, who has served in that capacity quite often in the past history of the department, was generally looked on as the only candidate for re-election, and there was quite a ripple of surprise when the names of C. C. Vail and William Brokaw were presented as candidates.

Day was the candidate of the "regulars," and as there were no signs of a contest, he made no effort to secure votes in advance. It is also said that Vail didn't know he was going to be made a candidate when nominated, and he consented to remain in the fight. When the surprise over Vail's nomination had receded, there was a still bigger flutter among the fire fighters when the name of Brokaw was presented. The latter's friends had laid their intentions mum until the meeting, and the result was that Brokaw was elected over Day and Vail. All of the other selections which were unanimous, follow:

President, Fowler W. Vail; vice-president, Herbert R. Wyckoff; secretary, Charles H. Dodwell; treasurer, William Wyckoff; auditors, Albert Giddes and Charles H. Starker; doorkeeper, John Silgers.

Chief, Charles W. Brokaw; assistant chief, Walter G. Runyon; foreman, Joseph Maier; first assistant, Harry Shugar; second assistant, William Brokaw; board of visitors of Firemen's Relief Association, H. R. Wyckoff, C. C. Vail and Albert Giddes.

A contract for twenty-three uniforms was awarded to the Glenock Woolen Mills, of Somerville. The outfits will be blue in color and white cord stripes to the trousers. They will be delivered before Christmas and the event will be celebrated by holding a smoker. The fair committee reported the profits of the recent bazar as $1216. It was out of this fund that the uniforms were purchased.

A discussion on the needs of new hose was held and it was voted to petition the Borough Council to order the purchase of 200 feet of hose.

BIBLE AND FLAG FORMALLY PRESENTED WHEN WASHINGTON SCHOOL IS INSPECTED

S. St. John McCutchen, of the State Board of Education, Mayor Fisk and Others Make Addresses at Darrow Ave. School Reception.

The presentation of a Bible and an American flag by Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., to the Washington Public School, afforded an excellent opportunity Monday for an inspection of the handsome and well-equipped new building on Darrow avenue. Possession of the building was taken several weeks ago, but this was the first chance the public had to visit it and see what a fine structure the Board of Education had provided in that section of the city.

Among those who occupied seats on the platform in the assembly room were Mayor Charles Joel Fisk, President Leander N. Lovell, Floyd T. Woodhull, William S. Tyler, of the Board of Education; Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of schools; Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, S. St. John McCutchen, a member of the State Board of Education, and the following representatives of the four Jr. O. U. A. M. Councils: Walter Firstbrook, Walter C. Walker, Joel Pennington, Nelson Van Winkle, Thomas E. Currin, Jr., Joseph D. Moon and W. E. Cubberly. Councilmen Frederick E. Myers, Herbert Buxton and Duncan W. Taylor were also present.

A large delegation of members from the Jr. O. U. A. M. Councils occupied seats reserved for them in the main part of the assembly hall. A large chorus of school children was present and under the direction of Charles L. Lewis, musical director of the schools, rendered several popular songs.

As president of the Board of Education, Leander N. Lovell presided at the exercises. He introduced the first speaker, S. St. John McCutchen, as the president of the State Board of Education, but the latter in responding said that J. L. Hayes, of Newark, was filling that position most acceptably and he declined to take the honors. He called attention to the beautiful new school building, which he said represented the very latest in modern construction.

"I would like to show you some of the school buildings in the rural districts of the State," continued Mr. McCutchen. "They are wretched boxes. The school authorities there cannot do what you have done, because they have not the facilities. There are more than 2,000 school buildings in the State and our system of education costs about $15,000,000 a year.

"After all, it is what is done right here in the school room that counts. I have reason to believe that there is lots of poor work done. Everything possible is furnished here for education, but you as parents have your part to perform in helping your boys and girls to keep up to the mark and secure an education. I congratulate both you and the Board of Education for securing this fine building which I trust will always be a monument to the best effort in education."

Rev. W. A. Knox, pastor of the Methodist church, Dunellen, and a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., was chosen to present the Bible to the school on behalf of the order, and his remarks were listened to with much interest and heartily applauded.

"America has offered the opportunity for the best of all lands to come here and improve their education," said Mr. Knox, "and this generation today is drawing the best blood from all quarters of the globe. America longs for the best and is only too anxious to give everyone an education. We are told that the public school system here is the best in the State and we are proud of it.

The public school is a big institution for it qualified boys and girls to become useful men and women in business and society.

"I represent an order, the Jr. O. U. A. M., which realizes that the public school is one of the greatest benefits to a community, and as we are told that 'every good and perfect gift comes from God,' and that His best gift is His Son, the next best gift is His Holy Book, the Bible.

"The Juniors feel that the children ought to know this Book, which is the highest ethical code, if I were a Hebrew and a believer in the Old Testament, I would want the Bible in the public school. I would want the New Testament read for it tells of the noblest Hebrew of them all; the best Jew that ever lived on earth.

"Were I a Pagan I would want this Bible read in the public schools for it teaches the glad hand and warm heart, and tells how to treat our brother right. Were I an infidel or did not believe in God or anything, I would want the Bible read, for it teaches love, it lifts and elevates one to a high standard of living and thinking.

"If I were a Catholic I would want the Bible read in the public schools, I would not have anyone to say that I was afraid to study the best and follow the best to be found in this wonderful Book. If you find after studying the Book that the Church has something better to offer, why, a person can then follow the teachings of the Church. One art, poetry or even read the daily newspaper intelligently without a knowledge of the Bible. It enlightens all who read it and teaches that which is best. It now gives me great pleasure to present to the Washington School this handsome Bible."

Great applause followed the remarks of Mr. Knox and Mr. Lovell in a brief speech accepted the gift on behalf of the Board of Education and the taxpayers of the city.

After the singing of a song by the chorus of children, Mr. Lovell introduced Mayor Charles Joel Fisk, who presented the American flag to the school on behalf of the Jr. O. U. A. M.

He said:

"We are gathered together here tonight for the purpose of dedicating this building to the education of the children of this generation and of many generations to come, and it seems fitting at this time that we should have a short review or history of the school system in this community. In order to obtain the history as stated, I have examined several authorities and reports, but the early history of the schools I have taken from the History of Plainfield, compiled by F. T. Smith.

"Plainfield has always been noted for its good schools and interest taken in all educational matters. The first mention we find of a school in Plainfield is in the year 1806, when a school house was erected at the corner of Front and Peace streets, but the first organized effort for the education of children was found June 4, 1811, when the Plainfield School Society was organized. This society consisted of five men: John Vinson, Samuel Manning, John Manning, Benjamin Lain, and Frederick Vermeule. The descendants of some of these are still living in this city. These men acted as trustees and the funds for a school house were contributed by the citizens and a school house erected on West Front street. This organization continued until 1835 when the upper part of the building was burned out. At this time there were two schools organized, one by the Presbyterians and the Baptist Front street, which was first called the "Classical Academy," afterwards the Plainfield Seminary, the Greenbrook Private Family School and the Plainfield Female Institute, where the English branches were taught. The activity of the Presbyterians, the Baptist got busy about this time and started a school called the "Plainfield Classical Institute." In a paper published at that time called the "Plainfield Herald," volume 1, No. 1, dated October 22, 1835, published by Isaac Cole, both of these institutions were advertised.

"The Plainfield Seminary had a building forty by thirty-six feet and three teachers, while the Plainfield Classical Institute had a building sixty by thirty-five feet and five teachers. The last named institution seemed to believe in advertising, together with cuts of their building and a statement that English and also a complete scientific, moral, liberal and collegiate course of instruction were given. They went into greater detail to state that a course of instruction would be given in the construction of maps, and the use of globes, rhetoric, logic, the French, Latin, Greek and other languages, Ancient and Modern history, natural theology, philosophy, moral, intellectual and political; further on the advertisement reads: 'Young ladies are also instructed in the solid branches of education,' and the fee $15.00 to $20.00 per session of twenty-four weeks. Board may be obtained in private families for a $1.75 to $2.00 per week, exclusive of washing.' Then went on to state: 'The Trustees of the Institute have the disposition to make it rank with the best literary and scientific seminaries of the day. The teachers are men of talent and experience, and are believed to be fully capable of instructing their pupils well and governing them with skill and judgment of conscientious and affectionate disciplinarians. The advertisement closed with this paragraph: 'We anticipate the day when Plainfield will become extensively and justly noted as a place of education,' and we would encourage every laudable effort for that purpose and make known as widely as possible to parents and guardians the advantages of our village and its schools.'

"Remember that this advertisement appeared nearly seventy-five years ago and the statement made in this last paragraph at that time can well be repeated today.

"In addition to these two schools, there were several private schools carried on in private houses, and a tuition was charged in all the various schools. A small amount of money was received from the State and paid by the trustees to some school for the tuition of indigent children. This brings up to 1847, when the township of Plainfield was set off.

"Up to this time, the schools in Plainfield and also in other parts of the State, had a very uncertain existence. Immediately after the formation of the Township, Dr. Charles H. Stillman was appointed superintendent, and his first step was to consolidate the two school districts then existing into one, and form the Plainfield School District No. 1. Dr. Stillman may well be called the founder of the free public school, not only in Plainfield, but in the State of New Jersey, as it was through his work the bills that he had introduced and had passed in the Legislature, that our public school system was started on a firm foundation. Prior to this time, there were not enough pupils to support two paid academies and not enough money could be raised under the laws at that time to run a public school, he called a meeting of the citizens and there was passed a resolution passed to petition the Legislature to repeal the law preventing the school district from raising more than twice the amount that they received from the State for school purposes. Also had elected one district school board. This school board consisted of eight members, one from each church, and it appears for some reason that the following year that the board was increased to ten members. Under the new law it appears that year the school board found that they could not pay public money to private schools for the tuition of indigent pupils. The board appointed a committee to confer with the teachers of the private schools in town and endeavor to arrange with some one of them to become a public school, but in every instance the proposition was rejected. Having no building and no money to erect a building, the board looked around for some suitable quarters, and on August 16, 1847, opened two schools, one in a hatter's shop on West Front street near Grove, and the other in a cabinetmaker's shop on East Front street near Watchung avenue.

"The school records show that Messrs. Lenox and Duning offered to take both schools at $26.00 per month and find fire wood, pens and ink. School opened with an enrollment of one hundred and sixty-seven pupils, and an average attendance for the first quarter of one hundred and twenty-eight. At the end of the first quarter the public funds were found to be not sufficient, and an assessment of $1.00 per quarter was levied on all able to pay, so that even at this time, the schools were not strictly free. A meeting of the voters was then called by Dr. Stillman and at that meeting resolutions were passed that application be made to the Legislature now in session for an act empowering the inhabitants of Plainfield School District No. 1 to raise money by tax for the erection of a school house and support of public school in said district, the amount to be determined at the annual town meeting. This bill was presented to the Legislature by Elston Marsh, through his efforts was passed by the Legislature and signed by Governor Daniel Haines, March 8, 1848.

"A town meeting was then called and $1,200.00 appropriated for school building, which amount was afterwards increased. Land was bought at the corner of West Fourth street and Arlington avenue, bids for putting up the building were advertised for, and the first school building erected in this district. This building was thirty by fifty feet, with stores, costing $2,200; later an addition was added to double the capacity of the school, costing about $1,400.00, making the cost of the school house erected about $3,600.00. This building was opened on November, 1848, with three teachers and an average attendance of two hundred and three. This was the only school building until the year 1867, then was found that more accommodations were needed for the more advanced scholars and land was secured on the corner of Fifth street, where the first high school was erected, this building is still standing and in use by the city. This school was called after Dr. Stillman, the 'Stillman School,' and cost about $20,000.

"The first building was burned in 1882, and the present Franklin School was erected on the same site at a cost of $40,000. In 1847 the Washington School was erected at a cost of $22,000. In 1886 the Bryant School at a cost of $36,000, and lattr an addition was made to this, costing about $15,000. In 1888 the Irving School at a cost of $35,000. In 1897 the Cedar School for $27,000. Then the Whittier for $14,000. The present High School at a cost of $125,000, and last of all this building, which is to be called the "Washington School," the old Washington School being been sold for $95,000. The school board have adopted plans, bought the land and are about to erect a building on Dunellen avenue for a primary school, at a cost of $45,000. When this is finished we will have school properties in the city, together with furnishings, etc., at a conservative valuation of $550,000. These buildings have been paid for in various ways, mortgages and bonds, which have been paid off in installments from time to time, and today there is a total indebtedness on our school property of about $300.000. Starting in 1847 school was conducted in rented rooms, with two teachers and 128 scholars, we have we have steadily grown until today we have eight fine school houses and one in process of erection, making nine, 3,362 scholars and 100 teachers.

"The first report of the Board of Education published in 1848, shows a total expenditure of $681, the school budget today, 1911, exclusive of payments on account of bonds and interest, show an expenditure of about $130,000. Of this $130,000 about $87,000 represents the salaries paid the teachers; $10,000 for clerk and janitors; and $1,000 for medical inspectors, making $101,845.90 put out in salaries. The balance for fuel, lighting, supplies, printing, insurance ,repairs and various other items.

"One of the easiest things in this world is for one to criticise the work of the school board, but we have and the members of our school board come in for their share of public criticism. These men are elected, serve without salary and, if any taxpayer will take the trouble to investigate will find that into the affairs of the school board, he will find that the schools are administered by high minded, conscientious men, who have given their time and energy to securing for the city of Plainfield the best system of schools possible for the least amount of money. These men have made mistakes, we all do at times, but they must be credited with the highest motives of procuring for Plainfield a system of schools, if not the best of anywhere in this State.

"It might be well to add here the men in addition to Dr. Charles H. Stillman, who have given their time and attention to school matters; some of them are now dead and gone, others still living; we find the names of Randolph Runyon, R. M. Titsworth, Jacob Kirkner, L. E. Clark, Rev. J. H. Vincent, Edward M. Brown, John W. Murray, William H. Stuart, Nathan Harper, Mason W. Tyler, George H. Babcock, John B. Probasco, Rev. J. H. Hirshburt, E. L. Finch, Fred C. Lounsbury, L. F. Wadsworth, Rev. W. B. Richards, Dr. O. L. Jenkins. Our present school board: L. N. Lovell, C. H. Abbott, P. T. Woodhull, W. S. Tyler, J. F. Buckle.

"With men of this character it would be very hard for any one to accuse our school board of any ulterior motive. Some times the board has been charged with extravagance, but this is a mistake. Every item, even the smallest article is bought at a very close price. In regard to the pay of teachers, there was an advancement made two years ago, which increased the salaries about $16,000. I am responsible to a certain extent for bringing about this increase, as I urged the school board, both privately and also through a message to the Common Council, to increase the salaries. I was found we were loosing our best teachers because we were not paying salaries equal to salaries paid in other places, neither were we playing salaries that would permit the teachers to live as they should.

"We must remember that the schoolboy of today will be the citizen of tomorrow, and may be called upon to become rulers and business men of the future. It is for our own protection and for the protection of the State and country, if for nothing else, that we give them a good education fitting them for whatever station in life they may be called upon to fill, thus we must give them the best teachers and instructors possible and to secure instructors, we must pay them fair salaries.

"A glance over the various reports of the Board of Education and their records, will show many prominent men, who have graduated from our Plainfield High School. To name those who live among us, whom you all know, there is the Hon. E. R. Ackerman, State Senator; W. N. Runyon, our city judge; Craig A. Marsh, our corporation counsel, and one of the most prominent lawyers in the State; W. M. Stillman, R. A. Meeker, supervisor of roads, and many others to numerous to mention. Our High School has the reputation whereby a college that will admit on certificate, will accept a certificate of our superintendent. The school has the record of having taken the prize for the best college examination. We are turning out business men and women ready to take immediate positions, and we have cause to feel proud of our school and congratulate those who have charge of them, and commend our principal and his corps of teachers for their very good and efficient work."

At the conclusion of Mr. Fisk's address, the children sang a medley of patriotic airs, which aroused the feelings of all present to such an extent that there was frequent interruption by applause.

President Lovell, in thanking the citizens for their united support in maintaining the high standard of education in the city, took occasion to remark that the state wisely demands much in the erection of school buildings and providing means for an education. He said that a certain amount of light is demanded in each building and the health of every child must be safeguarded.

In calling attention to the tax rate this year, Mr. Lovell explained that the highest single item represents the tax for the education of children. He also said that the State renders much financial help. There are 200 more children in the schools this year than last. This, Mr. Lovell said, was due in no small measure to the new families moving to this city, who increase the ratables and help to maintain the high characters and standing of the school system, lights, streets. Mr. Lovell did not believe that anyone would be willing to demand that less salary be paid to the teachers. They are deserving of all they receive. Mr. Lovell then thanked one and all for their support.

The exercises were concluded with the singing of several songs by the children. Both before and after the exercises hundreds of people inspected the new building and admired the construction and its every convenience. The building has twelve class rooms, a large assembly room, a retiring room for the teachers, a manual training department, ample toilet accommodations and well-appointed offices for the principal, Miss Millicent Humpstone. The rooms are all large, airy, well lighted, and the hallways are spacious. Nothing that would tend to the convenience of teacher and pupil has been omitted.

WORK OF CHARITY ORGANIZATION SOCIETY IS REVIEWED AT THE ANNUAL MEETING

Problems That Confront the Association and How They are Solved, Interestingly Told by Agent Who Gives Some Statistics.

"Seventy-five per cent. of the cases of desertion occur among the colored population," so says the report of the agent of the Charity Organization Society, read at the society's annual meeting Monday in the Crescent Avenue church. Industrial improvement has been the cause of the decrease in cases of destitution which the society has had to relieve. But with the 156 cases now in hand, representing 652 individuals, the work of the society shows no diminution.

According to the statistics furnished in the report thirty-nine per cent. of the cases were married couples, only eight per cent. widows and sixty-three per cent. were native Americans. In other words the beneficiaries of the society are like its supporters, for the most part normal American citizens, living in private houses and bearing burdens of misfortune which entitle them to the help and consideration of all.

It is significant to note that in fifty-four cases out of the ninety-one lack of employment has been the cause of distress. But the agents' reports show that men and women at work have been only partly successful, owing to a lack of co-operation with employers and applicants. Fifty-six such places have been found, possibly many more but no absolute knowledge of the success of the work, as they do not report. Carelessness in replying on the part of employers and employed. If more attention were paid to this point the system could be greatly improved.

Tuberculosis is responsible for many of these "immortals," meaning trustees, be re-elected and to make it legal moved that the secretary cast one ballot for them. The motion was carried without a dissenting voice.

Mrs. Samuel Huntington read the report of the secretary of the relief committee and Miss Lillian Moore did a like service for the treasurer of the same committee.

The treasurer's report read by Mrs. W. G. Wright gave the figures already quoted. The trustees elected are: Henry L. De Forest, Hugh F. Fox, Henry M. Maxson, Samuel St. John McCutchen, John Donall Miller, Dr. William H. Murray, Mrs. Mary S. Myers, Miss Mabel E. Pierson, Mrs. Chester H. Ryder, Mrs. Henry Lapsley, W. W. Taylor, Miss Elizabeth Tiffany, William S. Tyler, William M. Wherry and William G. Wright. Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie was an interested listener to the various reports, and his church was given a vote of thanks for the use of the church parlors where the meeting was held.

WORLD TRIP SUBJECT OF SENATOR'S TALK

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, who recently returned from a pleasure trip abroad, gave a delightful illustrated lecture at the First M. E. church, Monday, on the subject, "An Attractive Pathway Around the World." Senator Ackerman displayed in all 130 of the finest views yet seen here. These were reproductions of pictures taken by Mr. Ackerman while abroad and all of them works of art.

Especially note worthy were the ocean scenes and those depicting scenes in Holland, Germany and other foreign countries. Aside from the beautiful views shown, the large audience thoroughly enjoyed the interesting explanatory talk by Senator Ackerman. His thorough knowledge of the countries through which he passed and his entertaining manner in describing scenes and incidents, made it a most profitable lecture. The affair was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, the proceeds being for the furnishing fund of the chapel.

giving them instruction and advice as to the best house treatment and precautionary means for preventing communication of the disease. This will require the services of visiting nurses. This it will be seen that money is imperatively necessary, and at once. Everyone is urged to contribute as much as possible, and also to become a member and to take a personal interest in the work. James P. Murray, 737 Watchung avenue, is the treasurer of the society, to whom remittances may be made.

TENANT NOT TO BLAME, DISCHARGED BY COURT

John Manley, of Park avenue, who complained that Mrs. Andrew Nelson, a former tenant had torn, maliciously, the paper from the wall in a room in the house at 317 Park avenue had his complaint dismissed by Judge William Runyon in the city court Tuesday morning. Mr. Manley could not prove that Mrs. Nelson had committed the act wantonly. Mrs. Nelson was defended by Attorney J. Henry Crane. Mr. Manley said after the trial was over that he would take the case to a higher court, but there is no appeal in such matters.

In presenting his side of the case to the court Mr. Manley said that his action was solely a philanthropic one, having in mind the protection of other landlords in this city. He thinks, he says, that something ought to be done to prevent recurrences of similar cases and he said do all that lies in his power to stop the practices some tenants have of demolishing the property of the owners. However, in this case, according to the evidence produced by Mrs. Nelson and others, the wall paper fell off because the wall of the house were not the kind that paper sticks to anyhow.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL REPORTS

Important Matters Come Before Committee of State Association.

CONVENTION DATE IS SET.

The Next Annual Meeting Will Be Held at Atlantic City November 15 to 17, 1910.

Many important matters relating to the advanced Sunday-school work in the State of New Jersey were discussed at the December meeting of the State Executive Committee, of the New Jersey Sunday School Association, which was held in Trenton yesterday. One of 60 members of the committee, 40 men and women were present, and these workers represented every part of the State and every department of the Sunday-school work in the State.

Walter M. Irving, of Westfield, chairman of the Executive Committee, presided at the meeting, and Rev. Samuel D. Price, of Camden, recording secretary of the association, acted in the capacity of secretary of the meeting. The large attendance of the members of the committee was due to the interest that is being taken in this great movement all over the State. A new general secretary to take the place of Rev. E. Morris Ferguson, who resigned December 1, is being sought for, and it was expected that some name would be presented at the committee meeting yesterday. The Central Committee, of the Executive Committee, to whom all matters of this character are referred, was not ready to present a name for general secretary, and the members of the Executive Committee moved to continue the work of the Central Committee, and asked Rev. Mr. Price to assume charge of the work at the central office, in Newark, until such a time as the new general secretary should be elected. It was the general opinion among the members that the selection of the new secretary should not be hurried. Mr. Price will arrange for the county conventions for 1910, will see that supplies for the counties are distributed, and act in conjunction with the elementary department in planning for the field workers' institutes during the early part of 1910.

The Finance Committee, of which Edward W. Barnes is chairman, presented the following budget for 1910:

General secretary, $1,500; expenses of the general secretary, $150; State office expenses, $1,700; secretary of the elementary department, $1,200; expenses, $300; International Sunday School Association, $750; year book, $225; recording secretary, $150; teachers' training, $400; summer school, $200; convention expenses, $225; Adult Bible Class work, $100; home department work, $50; evangelistic department, $50; financial, $100; temperance, $25; field work, $300; Intermediate department, $50; missionary, $25. This makes a total of $7,600 as a budget for 1910, and it was heartily approved by the members of the committee as providing ways and means for this advance work. It was reported that the counties had pledged at the last convention at East Orange, the amount of $7,735 for the State work.

The invitation to Atlantic City for the convention of 1910 was accepted, and November 15 to November 17 were the dates set for the program days.

Like June Weather in Jersey.

Harry Campbell, of this city, who is associated with C. B. Clifton, in fruit growing at Crescent City, Fla., in writing to friends here, says that the weather at Crescent City is like June in New Jersey; that there are plenty of oranges, tangerines and grape fruit and the peaches are beginning to bloom. Mr. Campbell says that from all indications there will be a prosperous season.

Miss Margaret Smith, of Newark, has returned after a visit with friends here.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION IS FILED BY "THE FAIR"

"The Fair," a corporation operating dry goods stores in this city and Elizabeth, is in financial difficulties. A judgment secured in the District Court by William F. Groves, of Elizabeth, closed the local establishment and representatives of New York creditors have taken possession of the Elizabeth store, which has been closed for several days.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed by the company, J. Bayard Kirkpatrick has been appointed receiver. It could not be learned what the assets and liabilities of the concern are, but it is rumored that its stockholders have been seeking a settlement of the trouble on a fifty cents on the dollar basis.

Harvey J. Cohn and L. Gainsburg, New York attorneys, represent some of the creditors, while Charles A. Trimble is also concerned in the closing of the store. It is claimed by the New Yorkers that L. Danziger, who is said to control the company, failed to keep his agreement to settle the claims at fifty cents on the dollar. The local store is located in West Front street. About three years ago the Fair was in similar trouble.

DUNELLEN BOROUGH MAKES AN APOLOGY

By making a public apology to John Logan, the Dunellen Council probably saved itself the expense of a legal fight for damages. Logan was recently accused of appropriating dirt that belonged to the borough, but after an investigation, it was shown that Logan had taken dirt that belonged to him, and on which the borough had no claim.

Over zealousness on the part of Councilman George Huff, chairman of the street committee, is responsible for the misunderstanding. Huff saw Logan taking away the dirt and reported the matter to the Council and this action was followed by that body instructing Borough Clerk Abner Cortelli, Jr., to write a letter to Logan in relation to the matter.

The action of the Council aroused the wrath of Logan, who threatened to sue the borough for damages unless that body exonerated him of all wrong doing. Logan's threat took root in the feelings of the councilmen and resulted in a public apology for the hasty action taken in the matter. Logan is now fully satisfied.

ACTING GOVERNOR NOW

Joseph Sherman Frelinghuysen Temorary Executive of the State.

CONGRATULATED BY FRIENDS.

Senate Slate is Frelinghuysen for President and Ackerman for the Majority Leader.

Acting Governor Joseph S. Frelinghuysen was sworn into office yesterday at Trenton by Theodore Backes, an assistant in the attorney general's office, and is in effect the Governor of New Jersey until Governor John Franklin Fort returns to duty next week from a gunning trip in the South. There was little for the acting Governor to do except see his friends. All day long there was a steady stream of visitors to welcome him to office, and outside of attaching his name to some official papers, acting Governor Frelinghuysen had nothing to do.

There was little or no politics. It is certain that nothing will happen to break the slate of Ward, of Bergen, for speaker, and Edge, of Atlantic, for leader of the Republican majority in the House. Neither of them were present during the day.

The Senate slate of Frelinghuysen for president and Ackerman for leader of the Republican majority is also certain to go through. The House caucus will be held Tuesday. No date for the Senate caucus has been set, but it will be held at Trenton at the Republican Club some evening, probably during the week of December 20.

Senator Wilson, of Atlantic county, was in the State House saying that Atlantic county would demand open Sundays, and that he would work for them. When it was stated to him that as leader of the House majority an open Sunday bill might embarrass Colonel Walter Edge, the Atlantic Assemblyman, Senator Wilson said that he had an understanding with Edge, and that he might have to fight this thing himself through the House, as Edge would probably refuse to give the aid which such a bill must have to be at all effective.

Acting Governor Frelinghuysen was yesterday besieged by reporters for interviews. He refused to talk politics, but did say that the school investigation was proceeding well. The committee had sent out blank forms to all county superintendents and others, asking them detailed information as to bond and courses of study. He said that the main idea was economical. There had been a charge that the schools were not economically managed, and that was what the committee was trying to find out, he said.

NO CIVIL SERVICE ACT DECISION BEFORE JAN. 6

Because of the absence of Chancellor Pitney in the south shooting with Governor Fort, coupled with the fact that the November term of the court of errors and appeals closes tomorrow morning, when all cases are disposed of, there is likely to be no decision on the matter handled if he cannot stay to himself, "I can tell what a handsome church it is, and why it is a handsome church. I know several kinds of architecture." As a business man he can observe men in similar trades display their goods, and how they otherwise advertise them, and in countless ways the man with a purpose can come home amply rewarded by a trip to a foreign country."

Dr. William Callan to Lecture.

Dr. William Callan, of New York, will give the second of his series of lectures at Mt. St. Mary's College, Somerset, afternoon at 3:30 o'clock on "Psychology," and judging by the interest shown in these lectures a large attendance is expected. The convent stage will meet trolley cars at Terrill road between the hours of 3 and 3:30 o'clock, to convey people to the college. The succeeding lecture in January will be on "Hamlet."

"Municipal Taxation."

"Municipal Taxation," was the subject of an address before the League of American Municipalities, at Montreal, by A. C. Fleydell, of North Plainfield. This, together with extracts of other addresses by men prominent in municipal affairs, has been printed in pamphlet form and circulated by the New York Tax Reform Association, of which Mr. Fleydell is the secretary.

Mrs. Eva C. Laing, of Washington, returned home today after a pleasant visit with relatives and friends in Plainfield, Newark and Morristown, who thoroughly enjoyed her only too short stay.

OVER THE SEAS AND AWAY

Mr. Parvin Repeats Again an Interesting Tale of the "Lure of Foreign Lands."

LIFE ON A MODERN LINER.

Education the Primary Good in Traveling in Foreign Countries Says the Speaker.

Owing to the rain the attendance at the lecture given by Emerson E. Parvin, at the Men's club of the Congregational church last night was not large, but those who attended were well repaid for braving the elements. Mr. Parvin's lecture on "The Lure of Foreign Lands" had much of genuine interest for those who listened to him and who have never been abroad.

Mr. Parvin is an interesting talker and his lecture was well received, being frequently interrupted with applause.

Mr. Parvin took his audience to the big shipyards and showed views of many large vessels in course of construction, including the "Olympic" and "Titanic," which, when completed, will be the largest trans-Atlantic liners afloat, being 840 feet long, with small coal consumption and speed of 21 knots and having accommodations for about 5,000 people, a number equal to the population of a small town.

As an idea of their size it would require about forty-five city houses twenty feet wide to fill the space. Having conducted his audience through the shipyards the speaker explained the details of building, the preparations necessary for a single trip across the big pond, selling of the commissary department, giving a menu for one day's quality and quantity of supplies needed for the trip.

The speaker explained in full the life on shipboard, views being shown of state rooms, smoking rooms, the saloon and dining room, the culinary department, the crew and officers and the passengers busy and interested in games on the trip.

In describing the journey, Mr. Parvin said:

"You may conceive of one who has no interest in the land of his ancestors, who does not care to take the trouble to view the scenes made familiar by the pen of the historian, the story-teller, or the poet; who has no desire to enjoy the art treasures of the world, but such cases are rare indeed.

"To be sure, travel for its own sake is beneficial, as all wise men have agreed from time immemorial. Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits, and though travel will not make a gem of a pebble, nothing else will so quickly cut the face of a diamond mind.

"It is far from useless to journey through a foreign land with no other idea than to enjoy its scenery, but the buildings and its art, to observe the customs of its people and to live for awhile as they live. Yet there is greater satisfaction in returning with the belief that you have done something, little it may be—say, in mastering some one branch of knowledge.

"The purposeless traveler may come home conscious that he has a wider, broader, more cultured man than when he went away, but he is liable to be satisfied if he cannot say to himself, 'I can tell what a handsome church it is, and why it is a handsome church. I know several kinds of architecture.' As a business man he can observe men in similar trades display their goods, and how they otherwise advertise them, and in countless ways the man with a purpose can come home amply rewarded by a trip to a foreign country."

Sewage Matter Progressing.

Members of the Borough Council and North Plainfield Township held a conference in relation to the proposed sewerage system in the borough Council chambers last night. Mayor Townsend announced this morning that everything is harmonious and that the matter is progressing. It is expected that a definite arrangement will be consummated within the next few weeks.

Blowout Too Much for Bimble.

Lewis Bimble, Sr., attended a meeting of the Lathers' Union in this city last night. At a "blowout" after the meeting Bimble partook too strenuously of the refreshments, and as a result he was unable to find the way to his home in the borough. Bimble was taken in custody by Marshall Keller and this morning Recorder Dolliver fined him three dollars for his indiscretion.

HOLY CROSS BABY SHOW

Women's Guild of Parish will Manage Exhibition in January.

TWO PLAYS ARE ANNOUNCED.

Bible Classes at Theaplans to Entertain the Parishoners on Saturday Night.

The Women's Guild of the Holy Cross church, at its meeting yesterday afternoon in the parish house, announced that a baby show will be held Saturday afternoon, January 8, in the parish house, the proceeds to go for parish purposes. The show is to be a neighborhood affair and babies from the ages of birth to four years will be admitted. It was arranged to hold the show on Saturday afternoon so that the men of the parish will have an opportunity to see the babies, and as one prominent member expressed it, "those will be at least fifty-seven varieties."

Rev. George A. Warner, rector, presided at the meeting, directing the business. The guild adopted resolutions expressing its deep loss in the death of Mrs. George Dupee and Mrs. Susan Clapp, both of whom were charter members of the organization. During the business session, there was prepared a missionary box to be sent to a missionary in Kentucky. The church periodical committee reported having received letters of appreciation from missionaries in response to six boxes sent out.

It was announced that the church appropriation would be apportioned for the Christmas tree festival. Christmas church decorations, the missionary apportionment and the fund for the new organ. In speaking of the piano fund, the rector said that the young people of the parish are assuming the greater part of the money for the purchase of the Knabe Grand, to be placed in the choir room for Sunday school and social purposes.

The first effort on the part of the young people in this direction will be in the presentation of two plays at the parish house Saturday night, "The Teeth of the Gin Horse," by Margaret Cameron, and John Kendrick Bangs' farce, "The Real Thing." The plays will be given by the members of the two Bible classes of the Sunday school.

Rector Warner referred to many improvements made in the parish, and the freedom from some of the debt duing the past four years for which the women were largely responsible. Plans for the Christmas celebration were outlined and one new member was received.

MISS M'CUTCHEN TALKS ON MISSIONS IN FRANCE

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, whose study for the season is "The Gospel in Latin Lands," listened to an admirable paper by Miss Margaret W. McCutchen on "Mission Work in France" at their meeting held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room of the church. Miss McCutchen has been in France since last year, while it did not afford opportunities for mission study, gave her the setting for the work she described and her knowledge of the country and people gave a color to the incidents of her paper, not possible to be gained from hearsay.

Miss McCutchen told of the superstition and dogmas of the middle ages that characterized the teaching of the Romish church and had caused that church to lose its hold in France, and the world had taken its place. She described France as a godless country, without faith in God or each other. The low moral tone of the country she attributed to the lack of religious training in schools, the prevalence of free thinking, alcoholism, immoral literature and immoral drama. An important ally of mission work was, she said, the illusion of the church.

Miss McCutchen told of the work of the Protestant churches, among which are twenty-seven of the Baptist denomination. The work of Christian associations and the Salvation Army, during the interval following the recall of the McCall mission with fifty-three stations, and which is a type of the best mission work done in France, bringing to the people, reverence, purpose and hope.

The paper was preceded by a devotional service led by Mrs. William Hillman.

Musical Service Tonight.

"The Vision of St. John," a musical service, will be repeated by the quartet choir and chorus at the First Presbyterian church tonight. Clifford A. Brainer, organist and choirmaster, will have the direction of the service. The public is invited.

MAYBE HAMMOND OWNED A PAIR OF REVOLVERS

Willard Hammond, colored, an employe of the Hotel Belmont, was fined ten dollars by City Judge Runyon this morning for threatening Mary Ford and flourishing a revolver in her face. The fine was paid by Hampond's wife who has recently come from the South to join her husband.

The two women nearly came to blows after the decision and were prevented from inflicting bodily harm on each other by Chief Kiely who noticed the brewing storm.

It was thought probable by the Judge that Hammond possessed two revolvers, although he first denied having any. The revolver exhibited in the court room was found in the buffet of the Belmont after a long search by Detective Flynn. James Alexander and William Boyd, two other employes of the hotel, declared that the revolver in question had been taken away from Hammond early in the evening of the alleged threats.

Judge Runyon said he believed the woman's story and imposed the fine. J. Henry Crane appeared for Hammond.

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO MRS. SUSAN L. CLAPP

The sad news of the death in Boston yesterday of Mrs. Susan Loyd Clapp came to Plainfield this morning. Mrs. Clapp was in her seventy-fourth year and died suddenly of pneumonia.

Mrs. Clapp was the daughter of Isaac F. Loyd, of Philadelphia, and widow of John Platt, of New York city. The funeral services will be held from her late residence, 84 Mercer street, North Plainfield, on Friday, December 10, at 2:30 in the afternoon. Carriages will meet the trains leaving New York at 1 and 1:20.

Mrs. Clapp is survived by three sisters and two brothers and two grandchildren. She was a lifelong resident of Plainfield and had been a member of the Church of the Holy Cross for thirty years. She was widely known for her high character and charitable work both here and in Philadelphia and will be missed by a very large circle of friends.

MR. CUTTER TESTIFIES IN THE PHENIX PROBE

Frederick S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue, who is employed by Carter, Wilder & Co., the brokerage firm of Wall street, New York, was one of four men who appeared before the Grand Jury in New York, yesterday, in connection with the disclosures made by State Superintendent of Insurance William H. Hotchkiss in reference to the Phenix Company.

It is through this brokerage firm of Carter, Wilder & Co., that the former superintendent of the insurance company, George P. Sheldon, was accustomed to transact business. The charge which the District Attorney's office was examining yesterday concerned only Mr. Sheldon, the deposed president of the company. It related to the alleged pocketing by Sheldon of $50,000 profit on a transaction in which the company's credit had been used. Carter, Wilder & Co., is the brokerage firm with which Sheldon carried his speculative accounts and the teller of the Chatham National Bank was called apparently to testify in regard to the depositing of the profits.

Mr Cutter has been with the firm of Carter, Wilder & Co., for some time and is considered as one of the firm's most valued employes. His presence before the Grand Jury yesterday was simply for the purpose of telling of the firm's transactions with Sheldon.

COUNTY JUDGESHIP TALK

Report Has it That I. P. Runyon May Succeed Lewis Schenck.

IS A MADE-TO-ORDER SLATE.

Some Somerset Politicians See a Great Change Booked for the Near Future, 'Tis Said.

Concerning the appointment of a county judge in Somerset to succeed Louis H. Schenck, whose term expires January 1, it is reported that District Court Judge Isaac P. Runyon, of North Plainfield, is slated for the place. Some weeks ago Irving Hoagland, of Franklin Park, and Hugh M. Gaston, of Somerville, were talked of as likely candidates. Hoagland passed up his claim to the place and when the regular organization took hold it looked for Prelinghuysen was considering Mr. Gaston, they raised the cry that he is a Democrat. They pointed out too, that by his appointment the Republican organization would be losing one office.

Judge Isaac P. Runyon, was proposed by a degate from North Plainfield, it is said, whose claim to the place was strengthened by indorsements from other small communities. The slate, according to the political whispers, is that Runyon will be made county judge; Frederick A. Pope or James L. Griggs, district court judge, and that Clarence Case, the law partner of Alvah A. Clark, will be made prosecutor, to succeed John F. Reger, whose term also expires the first of the year.

CALLAHAN PROMISED TO TAKE PLEDGE FOR A YEAR.

Mrs. Charles Callahan was a complainant against her husband in the city court this morning. She charged him with being continually drunk and keeping the home in an uproar and failing to properly support his family.

The couple have six children and it is too hard work for the mother to take care of them and have a drunken husband to deal with. Callahan was arrested three weeks ago in North Plainfield on a charge of drunkenness and was fined two dollars on his promise to mend his ways. Judge Runyon suspended sentence on the man this morning giving him the opportunity to take the pledge for a year, which he promised to do.

COMPLAINT AGAINST STITES DISMISSED BY JUDGE RUNYON.

Amps B. Stites, a Somerset street pool-room keeper was tried in the city court this morning on charge of assault on complaint of George Gaten, a rival in the business on the same street.

Both men were represented by counsel, Harry C. Runyon appearing for Stites and Robert Newton Crane for Gates. The evidence brought out the fact that considerable rivalry in the pastimes in the poolroom conducted by Stites and perhaps in other places, but this had no bearing on the result of the case. It was shown that Gates provoked the row and was apparently looking for trouble and Judge Runyon dismissed the complaint.

Inspecting Borough Schools.

Dr. H. Dundon, who was recently appointed borough school physician, made his introductory inspection of the borough schools this morning. Superintendent H. C. Lee accompanied Dr. Dundon on his tour to the various classrooms. After completing the inspection Dr. Dundon reported the health conditions in the schools as excellent.

PARK OFFER REJECTED

Borough Commission's Report is Adverse to Accepting Lands for Public.

ANOTHER PROPOSITION SOON.

It Is Expected that Syndicate Will Make Another Offer Which May Be Accepted By Borough.

The Borough Park Commission through its chairman, George T. Rogers, reported adversely on the proposal of the Plainfield Park associates to deed over certain lands west of West End avenue, for the establishment of a proposed park. The commission's report was presented at the meeting of the Borough Council Friday and was accepted, this being a virtual "turn down" of the scheme which is the same fate it met at the hands of the Plainfield City Council.

It is understood, however, that a new proposition will be submitted to both city and borough by the company and owners of property in the vicinity of the proposed park.

The report of the commission and a supplemental report of Mr. Rogers follows:

"Your commission appointed on March 29, 1909, to consider a proposal made by the Plainfield Park Associates to deed to the borough certain lands for park purposes lying west of West End avenue in said borough, beg to report as follows:

"At an early meeting of your commission with representatives of the Plainfield Associates, the latter produced a map showing certain low lands beginning at a point where West End avenue crosses Stony Brook, and extending westerly to a point about midway between Clinton and Rock avenues on the borough side, and on the city side beginning at a point on West End avenue adjoining Green Brook, and extending westerly from that point. The map showed these low lands to be surrounded by a proposed marginal road, the Plainfield Park Associates proposed to donate and deed to the city and borough for park purposes, upon the condition that the city and borough should contribute toward the expense of road construction.

"A series of conferences have been had between the representatives of the city and borough, the city committee suggested that the entire property be acquired by the city as such an arrangement would be more convenient and simple, and that the city and borough should equally share in the benefits and advantages of such park.

"This arrangement seeming wise to your committee, the negotiation was left for a while in the hands of the city committee to arrive at a more definite understanding with the Plainfield Park Associates. After various conferences between that committee and the associates, extending over a period of several months, the city committee failed to accept the conditions imposed upon the grant, and declined the offer of the Associates. Negotiations were then resumed between your commission and the associates with reference to a grant to the borough of the more limited territory proposed to be deeded to the borough side of the brooks. In this connection an important modification was, that the tract would not then extend to West End avenue and Green Brook, thereby making it impossible to have an entrance or driveway into the park at this convenient junction; the reason for this being that on the borough side of the brook at the point named the lands of the Plainfield Park Associates do not extend up to West End avenue. This fact and the further fact that the borough would have no jurisdiction over the land on the city side of the brook to control and regulate its development, or its present nuisance, made the proposal of the Plainfield Park Associates less desirable in the judgment of your commission.

"The commission therefore reports that it is its judgment it is unwise at this time to accept the proposal of the Plainfield Park Associates, unless the Associates will convey the land to the borough without compensation, and unless the borough can accept a grant of the same with no other obligation than its dedication for park purposes.

The following was also read:

"As you are to hold your last regular meeting of the year on December 13, your committee feel that their report should be made at that time; but I would like to add that since the report was signed, the representative of the Plainfield Park Associates has informed me that they and other adjoining property owners have recently had various conferences regarding their several and joint interests in the lands abutting on and adjacent to the tract proposed to be deeded to the borough of North Plainfield for park purposes, and I am of the opinion that the Mayor and Council will soon receive a proposition from them which can be accepted to the advantages of all concerned, and in accordance with the recommendation of the commission's report."

MISSION WORKERS MEET

Home and Foreign Societies of Crescent Ave. Church in Joint Session.

REV. DR. E. W. WORK SPEAKS.

"The Challenge of Opportunity" Theme of New York Divine —Musical Program and a Tea.

The annual union praise service of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, was held in the chapel, Friday afternoon at 3: 30 o'clock. There was a large attendance of members of both societies. During the afternoon the annual offering was received for the work of the societies and a satisfactory amount reported. Mrs. J. C. Pierson, president of the home society, and Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, president of the foreign society, were in charge.

The feature of the service was the address by Rev. Dr. Edgar A. Work, minister of the Fourth Presbyterian church, New York city, who took for his subject, "The Challenge of Opportunity," as applied to all mission enterprise and the open door in all foreign countries and the great development of the West, as regards mission work. Dr. Work's address was listened to with unusual interest.

During the service, the women were favored with vocal solos by D. B. Pedigrew, baritone, of the church quartet. He was accompanied on the piano by S. Frederick Smith, organist of Grace church. Tea was served after the meeting and a social time enjoyed. Mrs. R. M. Boardman was in charge of the tea, assisted by other women of the two societies.

HOLY LAND JOURNEY DEPICTED BY PASTOR

Rev. Dr. Chas. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, continued his interesting journey through Palestine at the church last night. The views showed Dr. and Mrs. Herring on a pair of donkeys, their means of travel through the Holy Land, and it all proved instructive as the speaker took his audience step by step over this most interesting country.

Last night's journey included a good part of Jerusalem, traveling around the walls of the city a distance of two and half miles, starting at Jaffa gate, and including Damascus gate, the Gordon cavary, believed by many to be the site of the crucifixion and the Jewish place of stoning.

Dr. Herring then took his audience through the Valley of Jehoshaphat, which is lined with graves, Calvary, Mt. Olivet and back to the city gate again. Thence to Jericho, past the house of the Good Samaritan, describing the fertile land in the vicinity of the River Jordan and then to Hebron and the cave where Abraham, Isaac and their wives were buried, all of which is considered very sacred ground.

The journey was concluded with a visit to the Church of the Nativity, the place of the birth of Christ in Bethlehem and to the Dead Sea. Regarding the Dead Sea, Dr. Herring gave several interesting facts. He said that about 25 per cent. of the water is solid and seven per cent. salt. It is 1,300 feet below the Mediterranean. This sea is 1,300 feet deep in its deepest place. The lecture closed with a view of the Jordan River, showing the place where Christ was baptized.

SALVATION ARMY ASKS AID FOR XMAS DINNER

Preparations are well underway at the local headquarters of the Salvation Army for its annual Christmas dinner to the poor of this city. It has been the custom of the Army for many years past to look up the needy ones and provide them with a good substantial Christmas meal. On this one particular day the poor look to the Army to supply their corporal needs and as early as November applications have been received for dinners. The labor and expense of this undertaking is considerable and none but those who have undertaken it can understand what a problem it is to meet.

Small boxes have been placed in many of the stores to receive contributions and later the collecting kettles will be placed on the streets and it is hoped that the public will respond freely to make this worthy effort a success. Any person who wishes can send his contribution direct to the local headquarters or to this paper and same will be acknowledged promptly by an official receipt.

VAN DYKE BADLY HURT

He Fell from Top of House and Suffers Concussion of the Brain.

HAS NO INTERNAL INJURIES.

While Painting His Residence, Owner Meets With Serious Accident But Will Recover Doctor Says.

John C. Van Dyke, of 225 East Fifth street, is in a serious condition at his home as the result of injuries received from falling off a ladder while engaged in painting his house Thursday afternoon. Mr. Van Dyke is suffering from concussion of the brain, and while he was in an unconscious state from the time of the accident until this morning, Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, the attending physician said at noon that there were chances for his recovery.

A peculiar feature of the accident is that Van Dyke fell a distance of twenty-five feet and not a bone in his body was broken. Mr. Van Dyke was painting the house on a double ladder which reached to the top of the house. In making a shift the ladder slipped, but Van Dyke had the presence of mind to grab the cornice which temporarily saved him from the fall.

Van Dyke held on to the cornice in the hope that W. J. Campbell, who was assisting him in painting the house, could come to his rescue by hoisting the ladder in under him. Although Van Dyke made a desperate effort to cling to the cornice until Campbell could aid him, his grip weakened and he dropped to the ground. He fell on his body and the severe jar against the ground resulted in the affection of the brain.

Mrs. Van Dyke, who was in the house at the time, heard the fall of her husband and hastened to his assistance. Dr. Albert H. Pittis, who was passing at the time, also responded and rendered quick aid to the injured man. Later on Drs. B. Vanderhoef and Ellis W. Hedges were summoned.

At first it was thought that Mr. Van Dyke would be unable to survive the accident. Despite the treatment of the three physicians he failed to regain consciousness until this morning. During the day the patient displayed favorable symptoms and hope is strong for his recovery.

Mr. Van Dyke has a large circle of friends in this city where he and Mrs. Van Dyke have been active members of Trinity Reformed church for years. Up to two years ago Mr. Van Dyke was the New Jersey traveling representative of a wholesale grocery house and had a large acquaintanceship in the retail grocery trade throughout the State which territory he covered for years. Two years ago he retired.

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO ARCHIBALD G. R. BACHE

Archibald G. R. Bache, son of the late Andrew J. Bache, died suddenly at 2 o'clock this morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. Clinton Wilmerding, 518 Belvidere avenue. Death was due to pneumonia. He was taken suddenly on Thanksgiving night and despite the best of medical skill, he failed to respond to the treatment.

Mr. Bache, who was forty years of age, was born on Park avenue, near Fifth avenue, and resided here. He was a man of exceptional character and many excellent qualities and had a host of friends. Like his brother-in-law, Mr. Wilmerding, he was a great lover of fine dogs and was a familiar figure at various bench shows. Owing to the fact that he was not strong in health he was unable to take up any business. He was a communicant of St. Stephen's church. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Wilmerding and Mrs. Mary L. Small.

WANT LOCAL OPTION FOR GUNNING RIGHTS

The Union County Board of Agriculture at its monthly meeting in Elizabeth Thursday, took up the question of the rights of farmers, especially pertaining to the hunting season. Many years the farmers suffer considerable loss through depredations of gunners and it is with a view to overcoming this abuse that the matter was discussed.

President B. R. Collins, of the board, suggested local option as a remedy, that is that the farmers in the county be given the opportunity to vote whether there shall be hunting in a given county. The idea was well received and no doubt it will be incorporated in a bill to be presented to the Legislature this winter.

REGULAR ARMY METHODS SOON TO BE ADOPTED

Recent unofficial conferences of field and general officers of the National Guard have resulted in a program that will mean, with legislative aid, the practical rejuvenation of the organization in this State through closer adherence to the regular army standard. Higher physical tests for the men, better drill service, the recruiting of companies up to war strength and the placing of the artillery on a practical service footing are benefits contemplated.

The fighting strength of the companies is eighty-one men in war time, and there are twelve companies in a regiment. There are few companies with more than sixty men on the rolls, and five per cent of these, it is said, would be found unfit for active duty.

In the future it is planned to have the surgeons of the regiments more careful in the examination of recruits and the examination, with certain exceptions, equivalent to the regular army test. The guard now is recognized as in advance of that in many other States and equal to that of any, but as a trained fighting machine it fall short of being able to go into the field ready for hard campaigning.

The general officers with the commandants of the five regiments were of the opinion at the recent consultations that while the companies should be up to war strength when possible, it was better to have a company of forty hardy men than one of eighty with half of them not fit. The officers also believe more outdoor work necessary for the troops. They also favor calisthenics to aid physical development.

Men now report at armories on drill night, clean their guns, drill, replace the guns and go home for a week before going through the same thing. In no regiment do the officers teach the use of the bayonet in attack or repulse. The United States regulations on this point is in itself a good physical exercise.

While some men in each regiment are good riflemen, the majority, it is declared, are not expert, and even after they begin to "find the bull's-eye," they do not learn the mechanism of the piece to change, or how to arrange the sights and win gauge in actual field shooting.

The practice march with full equipment, as specified by the Government, has been considered by the officers and practically approved. The general view is that under officers who "know how to hold the men," the marches will be of great benefit. Some of the general officers advocated forced marches in the early summer, on the principle that only the fittest will survive and weaklings be forced out, and that with the picked men a better service would be built up.

Another thing that will be insisted on is "military courtesy." Visitors at armories, especially regular army men, have been surprised to see men at drill slouch about and fail often to salute officers. The principle that a "soldier is always a soldier" will be impressed on the men.

"WAR OF ROSES" ENDED; COMBATANTS AT DINNER

The "Red Roses" in acknowledgement of defeat in the recent "War of the Roses," in the Y. W. C. A. membership contest, gave a supper at the association rooms, Thursday to the "Yellow Roses," victors in the contest. The supper was served at 6:30 o'clock, and covers were laid for twenty-four young women. Miss Olga Eockert was captain of the "Reds," and Miss Ethel Pryor of the "Yellows."

The table, as well as the guests were decorated in the prevailing colors, red and yellow. Miss Lillian A. Force, who planned the membership contest, was in charge of the affair last night. A letter was read from the board of management thanking the young women for their notable achievements in securing so many new members for the association.

After the most excellent supper was enjoyed there were several informal speeches, which were listened to with much interest. Among the guests were Miss Tapping, secretary, and Miss Mosher, physical director of the association.

Following the festivities all listened with interest to a fine talk by Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, city physician, on "Foods and Digestion." He explained in detail the composition of essential foods and gave a scientific talk on digestion, how to promote it and how the body is properly nourished.

A Church Sociable.

A sociable for the benefit of Marcounier chapel was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph, on Clinton avenue, Wednesday night. Over fifty people were present. The host and hostess had prepared a number of pleasant surprises for their guests in their large and cozy house. The evening was passed merrily with parlor games, prize contests and music. Before refreshments were eserved a collection was taken for the church.

TROLLEY EMPLOYEES HAVE A JOLLY TIME

If there is any better body of men than the trolley men of the Central division of the Public Service Railway, they must be buried somewhere along the banks of the Wabash. They entertained themselves and a few thousand guests at the hall of Dunellen Thursday and spread themselves on the records as being the "goods" in every way.

George Luhr, the genial superintendent, was master of ceremonies, and introduced several features which for originality and interest far surpassed anything hitherto given by the trolley men. More than two hundred of the handlers of the controller and bell strap were on hand to enjoy the good things provided and the entertainment itself was above the average.

J. J. Gettings, division superintendent, made a few remarks in which he complimented the men on their organization and their sociability and asked them to extend always the courtesies which the public expects from men. He was sure that the better the conduct of the employees of the company, the better he service.

Mr. Luhr also spoke along similar lines and made it plain to the men that the best individual interests are served when the public receives its due and the company their best services.

The program of the entertainment contained many special features not the least of which was the "Georgia Five Plus," a quartet of colored men, who have a high local reputation in their line. One of the remarkable men in this quartet is Oscar Nelson, the pianist for the quartet. He is another Blind Tom, and if brought some place else the New York managers will soon be vaudeville star.

A three round bout with the big gloves between Joseph Keller and Tim Manley, of New Brunswick, wound up the evening's fun. More sport could not have been crowded in the four hours the men occupied the handsomely decorated rooms at the "barn." If the songs and jokes had been put under hydraulic pressure.

The following committee had the smoker in charge.

H. Higgins, chairman; D. Carroll, W. Wooden, J. Vroom, A. Linderberry, George Powers, assistant chairman; M. J. Nevins, M. J. Walsh, W. G. Huenke, Patrick Marron, L. Stadelle, P. Jensen and R. Partain. George Luhr, manager.

SCHOOL AT LINDEN BURNED TO GROUND.

The public schoolhouse at Linden was burned to the ground Thursday, causing an estimated loss of about $2,000. The cause of the fire is not known, but it is supposed to have been caused by an overheated furnace in the basement of the building. The building was a frame structure, and was erected some years ago. Recently it was remodeled at considerable expense.

The flames gained considerable headway before they were discovered. Neighbors formed a bucket brigade, and for half an hour labored to save the building. In the meantime Elizabeth was asked for help, and Engine Company No. 1 was sent to scene. Before the apparatus arrived the building was in ruins.

Several of the township trustees joined in the fight to save the building. They stated that they will be unable to make arrangements for accommodating the children for several days.

Church Members Lived Long.

Caldwell achieved a reputation for long lived residents at the anniversary services of the Presbyterian church Wednesday night, when the Rev. Charles T. Berry, of Brooklyn, who was pastor of the church from 1869 to 1894, told of the longevity of some of his former parishioners. Mr. Berry said the average age of nine of the elders of the church was eighty-one years, and that he had officiated at the burial of seventy-three persons whose ages ranged from seventy to eighty years, sixty-two between eighty and ninety years, and four who were more than ninety years old. Thomas Gould, one of the charter members of the church, lived to be ninety-eight years old, and left 168 living descendants, twenty of them of the fifth generation. His son, William Gould, another charter member, lived to be ninety-two.

Those who received with Mrs. Rockwell were Mrs. William Rockwell, Mrs. W. Locke Rockwell, Miss Rockwell and Miss Lucile Rockwell.

The bride received in Miss Olive Koons and Miss Carol Hampman, who were assisted by Mrs R. H. McCready, of this city; Miss Hencke, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Louis P. Nash, of New York; Miss Grace Campbell, of Warwick, N. Y., and Miss Florence Cahoone, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell were recently married in California and they are now on a bridal trip.

FUN AT BOARD OF TRADE

"Squared Circles" Jeffery Gets the Members Present in Good Humor

OPPOSITION TO A "SLATE."

"Perish the Thought," Says Fire Chief Doane and the Thought Is Therefore Perished.

In the absence of President H. W. Marshall, who was called out of town, B. Frank Cortell presided at the December meeting of the Board of Trade, Thursday. The announcement that there would be a program of music and refreshments, had a tendency to attract an unusual number of members. There was very little actual busines and most of the evening was given up to sociability.

William Jeffery, accompanied by Frank Schaeffer, of Berkeley Heights, was present and gave the board a talk, while the latter entertained with banjo selections and popular songs. Mr. Jeffery stirred the members as never before with an earnest talk, explaining what has been done by "Circles on the Square" in Warren and New Providence townships and Passaic. Perhaps, the most interesting part of Mr. Jeffery's entertainment was his singing of a song, composed himself, which was "Circles on the Square" and the Board of Trade came in for proper reception.

After singing the song, Mr. Jeffery got his audience interested in a chorus and before he got through he had the crowd in the fun. This put everyone in good humor for the things to follow. Frank Schaeffer's playing of the banjo and his singing was greatly enjoyed by everyone and he was repeatedly encored.

During the business, a communication was received from the National River and Harbor Commission inviting the board to attend the annual convention to be held in Washington, December 8, 9 and 10. The opening address will be delivered by President Taft. The communication was filed.

President Marshall communicated with the board, calling its attention to the annual election to be held in January and informing the members that under no circumstances would he consent to fill the office another year. Mr. Marshall has been president of the board three years.

The announcement led Milton Mindel to move that a nominating committee be appointed to make a slate for the January election. This was opposed by Chief T. O. Doane and others. The chief said that he did not believe in "making a slate," but favored direct nominations. This brought out a lively discussion in which J. Vanderhoef and Charles W. Runyon took part. It was finally decided to lay the matter on the table and let it come up in the regular way in January.

There was also a brief discussion of plans for the annual banquet, nothing definite was done. Someone suggested that it be held in February inasmuch as the Merchants' Association dinner is to be held in January, but a committee will be announced later to arrange for this.

F. A. Dutenhoefer reported progress concerning the proposition to bring a sanitary bakery here; also on the gasolene tank question, which was discussed at the last meeting. Thomas Timbo was proposed for membership and elected under suspended rules.

ENTERTAINED VISITORS OF S. S. HOME DEPARTMENT.

The visitors of the Home department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, to the number of about twenty, were entertained Thursday afternoon at home of Mrs. F. William Leitheiser, 712 East Second street, while the meeting, which was arranged by Mrs. Henry Van-Name and Mrs. George Saums, superintendents of the department, was in the nature of a conference on Home department work, and it proved to be very helpful to all.

Rev. John Fox, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, was present and made an excellent address, in which he told of Home department work as outlined at the recent convention of the State Sunday-school Association, held in East Orange. In this connection he made several excellent suggestions which will be adopted by the Home department of Trinity church. A social hour followed the conference, during which Mrs. Leitheiser served refreshments.

3,000,000,000 Stamps.

Preparatory to the increased number of stamps which the internal revenue at Washington will have to keep on hand because of the increase in the country's trade and on account of the new stamps which will be issued to meet the demands of the new tariff, orders have been given to have the present storage vault of the bureau enlarged. When completed the vault will be about seventy-five feet long and twenty wide. At present the bureau sends annually by registered mail to various parts of the United States about eighteen tons of stamps. It is believed that during the present fiscal year there will be issued from the revenue office about 3,000,000,000 stamps.

NO FORTUNE FOR THEM

Having an idea that their grandfather, John Henry Hess, was dead and that he had left an estate, grandchildren in Mansfield, O., communicated with Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who suggested that The Daily Press and the supposedly missing man and inform his relatives. A reporter of this paper located Mr. Hess, who is seventy-nine years of age, discharging his duties as sexton of Grace Methodist church.

The news appended of the letter from his grandchildren, Mr. Hess showed little surprise and equally little interest. He said that he knew they lived in Mansfied and was certain they were aware he lived here.

"Mansfield, O., Nov. 23, 1909.

"Dear Sir:

"We are trying very hard to find our grandfather, John Henry Hess, who has been lost to us for the last seventeen years, and the last we heard of him he was in your city. "So they want to know if I am in the grave and what estate I left? Well, just say that I am a healthy man for seventy years as you want to find. Tell them that I own my humble home and eke out my living as best I can and that I enjoy the respect of my neighbors. I left Mansfield in 1870 and landed in this city, where I settled down. Ten years later I went to my brother's funeral at Mansfield, but have not communicated with my grandchildren since. Tell them that my address is 84 Somerset street, but be sure and say that I have no fat estate to be divided among them."

COLLIER TO APPEAL TO RECOVER CLAIM

The trial of the case of Asa Collier, which was re-opened in the District court Thursday morning, has excited some comment on the part of the lawyers who were present at thetrial. It was alleged by the counsel for the plaintiff that an error had been committed somewhere in the adjudication of the case. It will be appealed and taken to the Supreme Court. This is the story of the case:

On September 25, Collier & De Brigard, the proprietors of the store at 214 Park avenue, made an assignment to William A. Hart. A few days later Arthur De Brigard, the father of the junior member of the firm, being anxious to avoid the publicity incidental to the closing out of his son's interest in the business by reason of the assignment, and being desirous of clearing his son's name of all debts and claims incurred by the partnership, and wishing to continue his son in the business without any partner being connected therein with him, made an offer to Mr. De Meza that if Mr. De Meza could convey or cause to be conveyed to him all the stock of goods of the firm and turn over the store to him he would, in consideration therefor, pay all the firm's creditors in full, their claims and the expenses incurred. Mr. De Meza accepted the offer and caused two bills of sale to be executed, one by him to the firm and one by the firm to Mr. De Brigard and turned over the store to him. Mr. De Brigard, thereupon, sent out his checks to the creditors of the firm but did not pay Asa Collier his claim of seventy-three dollars which was originally listed as $190 in error.

Judge Newcorn, before whom the case was tried, declared Mr. Collier non-suited on motion of Harry C. Runyon.

Mr. La Rue a Hustler.

Ira L. LaRue, Plainfield's leading real estate speculator, who is well known in Flemington, where he lived a few summers on his farm near here, making many friends among our people, has just completed the erection of a market building covering about one acre of ground in Plainfield. The market will be conducted on similar lines as those in large cities, and will certainly be a great advantage to the people of Plainfield. Mr. LaRue is certainly a hustler. There is an opportunity for him in Flemington if we could only get him interested.—

ANOTHER BIG BLDG. BOOM

Dickel Construction Company Buys Stillman Tract for Development.

IT NOW HOLDS 171 ACRES.

Concern Plans to Build Many Handsome Residences in Southwestern Section of City.

Another big real estate development boom is reported. the Dickel Construction Company, of New York, of which George C. Dickel is president, having closed a deal Wednesday afternoon, whereby it secured the Stillman estate property in the southwestern section of the city. The tract covers forty-seven acres and Mr. Dickel said today that operations would be begun immediately to lay out the property for building purposes, it being his purpose to erect handsome homes there to attract more commuters.

Onyy a short time ago, the Dickel Construction Company purchased a tract of one hundred and twenty-four acres on Park avenue, opposite the Plainfield Country Club's magnificent estate. This also will be developed in similar manner by the concern, which promises that within three years the locality will be as attractive as the most exclusive in "the city beautiful."

Acting for the Charles Stillman estate, of which he is one of the heirs, William M. Stillman disposed of the property, yesterday at a high figure. The tract has a frontage of 700 feet on Sherman avenue and more than 1,000 feet each on Plainfield avenue and Grant avenue. It adjoins Hope Common, another huge tract facing on Sherman and Plainfield avenues, which was recently sold through Charles H. Lyman to the Central Park Realty Company. This company intends to build a number of fine residents on its tract, too.

M. F. Crowley has come into possession of the Eldridge J. Bebout estate on Plainfield avenue, it having been sold to him through Joseph T. Vail. This property at Plainfield and Pemberton avenues is 150 by 300 feet. Mr. Vail was also the broker for the sale of the Stillman property.

When Mr. Dickel was seen today, he was enthusiastic over the future of Plainfield realty.

"This is the finest suburban community I have ever seen," said Mr. Dickel. "I have been working on real estate problems all over the east and particularly in and about New York for years, and never have I seen such an opportunity as presented here. The railroad service is the best of surburban towns in the United States. There are 120 trains between here and New York every day. The quality is ideal and the municipal government is a model. I don't know of any place of double the size that is so attractive. See what the taxpayers get here for their money. They have everything—sanitary sewers, miles of fine macadam roads, lovely shaded streets, an exceptional police protection, an up-to-date fire department with four houses, a first rate board of health. In addition there are amusements and entertainments galore—two big golf clubs, social and fraternal clubs, beautiful churches, two fine theatres and a thousand and one other things that make life worth living. I expect to live to see the day when it is the biggest city in New Jersey."

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT FOR A DEPARTED MEMBER.

The McAll Auxiliary, at a meeting Wednesday, adopted resolutions extoling the life and character of the late Mrs. Ella Myers, who was one of the founders of the local branch of the society. During the meeting a number of members took advantage of the opportunity to refer to the inspiration. Mrs. Myers furnished them by her indefatigable labors in behalf of the organization.

Mrs. Myers was also affiliated with the national organization and prominently identified in its work. Mrs. Jacob Kirkner is now the only member now living who assisted in the organization of the local branch.

Another feature of the meeting was an interesting talk given by Mrs. Craig A. Marsh in which she described her visitations to a number of McAll mission during her recent visit to Paris.

TEA AND SALE HELD AT HOLY CROSS RECTORY

The tea and sale which was conducted in the parish house of Holy Cross church Wednesday afternoon was one of the most delightful church affairs of the season. The event, which was supervised by Mrs. George A. Warner, was held especially for the purpose of advancing the sociability among the newcomers to the church, and the effort was a complete success, as there was a big attendance.

Mrs. Warner was aided by a corp of assistants. Tea was poured by Mrs. C. S. Powell and Mrs. Augustus Van Mater, who were assisted by the Misses Hudson, Beckwith, Parker and Whitton, teachers in the Sunday-school. The tea table was prettily decorated with flowers and candalabra.

There was also a cake and candy table which was in charge of Mrs. Hiram A. Woodruff and a fancy goods' table which was presided over by Mrs. Fred W. Creesy and Mrs. Ball. Admission collection was taken at the door by the choir boys and $64 was realized.

HE GAVE A TALK ON CHURCH AND FOREIGNERS.

Rev. J. H. Ecob, who is associated with Josiah Strong in the latter's great work in New York city, addressed the Men's Association of Warren chapel, Thursday, on the subject of "The Church and the Immigrant." He related many interesting facts, some of which were wholly new to the audience.

Rev. Mr. Ecob described in a practical way the close relation of the church to the thousands of immigrants coming to this country daily. After the address there was a social hour and refreshments were served.

MONTH'S HEALTH REPORT

Thirty-six Births and Twenty-two Deaths During November.

INSPECTORS ARE KEPT BUSY.

Seventeen Cases of Scarlet Fever Reported—Dairies and Bottling Places Are Examined.

According to the appended report of the Board of Health, rain city is enjoying health above the average. Only 22 d aths were recorded during the month of November, which is a low rate for the time of year. Most of the deaths were of people of advanced years and due to that fact more than to any particular disease. The births have k-pt up to the average while the marriages increased only one over the preceding month. Here are the figuws:

The following communicable diseases were reported during the month: Scarlet fever, 17; diphtheria, 2; typhoid fever, 2; chicken pox, 7, tuberculosis, 2; measles, 1; total 32.

In addition to the above, five cases of scarlet fever were brought from out of town to Muhlenberg Hospital.

Sixty-one dairies and bottling places were inspected during the month. Sixty-two samples of milk were collected and analyzed; also 11 samples of ice cream and cream. Two samples of water from private wells, and one from the city supply were collected and analyzed; the latter was found to be of the usual excellent quality.

A considerable amount of disinfecting was done during the past month, 23 houses having been disinfected, with a total of 69 rooms.

The new Washington School, Irving, Bryant, Franklin, Stillman and the high school were inspected, principally for new plumbing, heating and ventilation systems, and the reports showed them to be in excellent condition.

The following persons were granted permits to sell milk from stores and in small quantities:

Elizabeth Holland, Frank Cullen, Edgar L. Fitch, J. B. Guttridge, I. L. Tingley, William J. Deslaman.

The application of B. C. Firsbrook was laid on the table for one month, pending certain desired improvements.

The following plumbers' bonds were received and placed on file: Louis Goldstein, Plainfield; Edward Dacy, Plainfield; William Isbieb, Crawford.

A bond presented by Philip Fink, of Plainfield, was laid on the table for one month.

The following inspections were made during the month:

Plumbing	96
Connections	6
Visits in connection with communicable diseases	10
Inspections and re-inspections on nuisances	72
Dairy inspections	61
Milk wagons inspected	28
Sanitary house-to-house inspections	209
School inspections	6
Total	488

The following returns were made to the office during the month: Marriages, 16; births, 36; still births, 1; deaths, 22.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY VOTES $102,000 FOR GOOD ROADS.

The Middlesex County Board of Freeholders Thursday voted to borrow $25,000 in anticipation of the sale of $102,000 worth of bonds on January 10, 1910, the money to be used to pay for new county roads.

The report of County Collector H. Raymond Groves showed the balance on hand November 1 to be $15,613.74; receipts during November, $67,740.63;; disbursements, $58,406.12.

Some law may be found whereby the county board can transfer sufficient funds to pay all the election bills. The $12,000 that was appropriated last January is insufficient, the constitutional amendment election adding $7,000 to the expense.

The board voted to pay the district election boards and ont the other expenses for printing ballots, legal advertising, etc. The new Democratic board will have to provide for this in the new budget on January 1.

The thoroughfares to be improved are: Trenton turnpike, Kingston lane, Plainsboro and Cranbury road, Cranbury and South River turnpike, Deans and Franklin Park road, Hightstown and Spotswood road, Jamesburg and Helmetta road, Milltown road, Perth Amboy and Keasby road, Seventh street, New Market; Jefferson avenue and Somerset streets.

The Laing Family

Article No. 2.

By Oliver B. Leonard

William Laing, Jr., second son of the old pioneer, John Laing, of Aberdeen, born 1679-80 in Scotland, being a little child when his parents landed at Amboy in 1685. He married into a Piscataway family not identified with the Laing faith. His wife was Mary Blackford to whom he was united in 1703. They had five sons and two daughters: William, John, Samuel, George and Benjamin, Jane and Ann.

The marriage connections of these children are with Drakes, Dunns, Mannings, FitzRandolphs and Blackfords, all of whom had their childhood homes in Middlesex county, near Plainfield.

This William Laing, of Piscataway, became a very large landowner in Middlesex county. In addition to the 720 acres deeded to him by John Barclay, jointly with his brother, John Laing, Jr., in 1699, he purchased of Robert Burnet, one of the East Jersey proprietors, an extensive plantation of 1,000 acres by deed dated December 14, 1713. The two large plots joined each other and were adjacent to their aged mother's homestead. This last extensive acreage William Laing divided mostly by will into farms among his children, some of whom died before his death. A good portion was given to his favorite son, Benjamin Laing, by deed dated March 15, 1734-35, a year before the death of the testator, whose will was probated July 23, 1736.

Four or five years after his 900 acre purchase, he became the owner of three other farms of 180 acres each. Part of this largest tract, which was apportioned to his son Benjamin, became inherited by the homestead of some of this legatees' descendants. The tract lay along on both sides of Cedar brook, being partly within the present territory of the city of Plainfield on the southeast. An old dwelling house, built before the Revolutionary War, is still standing on the premises and shows the scare of British bullets.

For many years prior to his death, January 16, 1819, Captain Benjamin Laing, as he was called, of Benjamin, son of William, occupied this dwelling and there raised a large family. His first wife, whom he married in 1763, and who was the mother of all his children, twelve in number, was Mary Jenkins, dying in 1790. She was followed by Mrs. Laing married Mrs. Zerash FitzRandolph Manning, widow of John. They united in forming the First Baptist church at Plainfield in 1818.

The family of Captain Benjamin and Mary Laing consisted of one son, John, who married Rhoda Lyon and seven daughters, Sarah, born 1764, married Theophilar Pierson; Mary, married Elijah Stiles; Rachel, married John Shotwell; Nancy, married Cornelius Demmis; Margaret, married John Blackford and Ezekiel F. Randolph; Huldah, married Simeon Laing; Gertrude, born 1786, married Abram Lane. There were other four children all dying young. Mrs. Laing's son George, born in 1748, dying 1808, married in 1772 Anna Drake, born 1752, died 1814. Their three daughters were Hannah, Mary and Elizabeth, and a son Simeon. Elizabeth Laing married in 1799 Samuel Estil, parents of William, the father of H. M. Estil and Sarah Ann, who married David F. Gardner, father of William E. Gardner. Simeon Laing, son of George, married Huldah Laing, daughter of Captain Benjamin. Her sister Gertrude married Benjamin Drake was the mother of the late William Benjamin Tuals Lane, whose daughter Caroline became the wife of Mr. Percy C. VonOhl.

This last named family "Lane" was of an entirely different origin from the Scotch lineage of Laings. The Lanes came from Dutch parentage, originating from Walloon stock Matthys Jansz Van Pelt Lanen. This progenitor came from Liege, Holland, in 1663 and settled at New Utrecht on Long Island. In 1745 descendants of this line moved into the western part of Somerset county. They embraced the Protestant faith and became identified with the Huguenots at first, and subsequently the Lanes as members of the Reformed Dutch church.

TROLLEYS SET SIGNALS

F. E. Kinsman's Device Tried in Newark Proves a Success.

HOW THE MECHANISM WORKS.

Saves Time and Trouble to Conductors—It Also Prevents Boys Tampering With the Signals.

Automatic signalling for trolley cars was tried Friday for the first time in Newark when eighty-four cars were run over the Mulberry street line between Clark and Ogden streets, every one of which showed danger, caution and signal lights according to schedule and without manipulation. The device used is the invention of Frank E. Kinsman, for many years a resident of this city.

Trolley signals heretofore have been set by conductors, the car waiting for them to get off, and the signals have been so easy of manipulation as to tempt the small boys ambition to show what they could do toward blocking a car's progress.

By the new device two insulated rails are laid at each end of a block section, and to set the signal and the other to release it. When a car passes over the rails on entering the block lights a red green lamp at the own tailboard and a danger signal at the other end of a block, if desirable seventeen cars may follow one another in a single section, each motorman getting the green or caution signal ahead of him, the red signal remaining set until all have passed.

The mechanism consists of a series of magnets operating a cogged wheel by means of a pawl which sets the signal. The system is operated on the voltage used for the cars. It is possible to use the device on single or double track lines.

The Kinsman Block System Company, which installed the subway and Hudson tunnel signal systems, made yesterday's demonstration.

ANNOUNCE PATRONESSES FOR SUFFRAGE LECTURE

Professor Zueblin, who is to lecture at the high school auditorium Friday evening, December 10, is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Northwestern University and Yale. Also of the University of Leipsic, Germany. In 1894 he founded the University Settlement in Chicago and was for a long time a professor of Sociology in the University of Chicago.

The subject of the lecture which Mr. Zueblin is to give in Plainfield is "Representative Government versus Democracy." It is to be given under the auspices of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, and the following patronesses: Mrs. Albert H. Atterbury, Mrs. Lindsey Best, Mrs. Joseph Cowperthwaite, Mrs. Edward V. Cox, Mrs. William Griscom, Mrs. Francis De Lacey Hyde, Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, Miss Ellen Osgood, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Miss Mary Wells, 1799, Mrs. Henry Wells, Mrs. Henry White. Many of the patronesses are not suffragists, but desire to hear the well known lecturer present his views on true democracy.

Las June Prof. Zueblin took part in a civic revival in Grand Rapids, Mich. Not long ago he was invited to give a course of lectures on the origin of a Democracy in Cambridge, Mass, and the assemblies grew in a few weeks from 300 to 1,100. The Cambridge Chronicle says: "It has been the fortune of few men to do in the last decade what Mr. Zueblin has done in offering educational and civic organization to an appreciation of their power in the promotion of democratic culture and civic improvement."

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

In our ancient Druidical boy days we were taught that listening to the conversation of strangers was the depth of bad manners. Be that as it may, nowadays one simply can't help hearing the merry chatter of the sweet creatures who screech their confidential exchanges right into the ears of those sitting immediately in front of them, dispite the rumble and clatter of the train from New York. And prettily interesting it is sometimes. Take, for instance:

"If you could marry next week, Amie
What sort of a man would you choose?"
"Well, I know she kind I would seek, Mamie,
But the next best I wouldn't refuse!"

"Now, if I'd my choice, he should have a good voice,
An elegant figure—and know how to shoot it,
Be a Brownlanite too, (I'm a bit of a blue),
And writer, not poet, no, not if I know it;
Have a broad English accent; a fortune in reason,
And must take me to Paris and London each season."

"Well, the man I shall choose must have wits, and be graced
With good temper, good manners, (good looks all the better)
Have lofty ideas, but be simple in taste,
He needn't write books, but a jolly love letter;
Rich or poor, I should never be anxious from my throne as the queen of his kingdom of home!"

"O, Amy, why don't the right fish see our net?"

"Mamie dear, we must just take the best we can get."

Every morning in the year the New York papers outvie each other in demonstrating how badly the country is out of repair. Here it's all crooked, there everything has gone wrong; the wicked rich are not yet jailed, but the poor dear murderers and malmers throng the dungeons, their hope of release in spite of their bouquet-bearing sympathies. Even the distinguished group of martyrs who have been sentenced to nine several deaths, as if they were nonesats, are begrudged their twentieth appeal for pardon. The daily exhibits of Gotham's choice variety of public sins and civic iniquities rather palls on our jaded senses. If all is true nothing short of a quake that will send the sky scrapers down with a crash can possibly do justice to the city. Of course it would spare the tall-talk newspaper buildings because of their virtue in telling on their neighbors and patrons.

But there's a grand cure-all coming. Somebody this side of Jordan is going to have it sent down at once from the place where all blessings flow. We are going to get a House of Governors—this is not that. They will be inspired "to lessen the power of the federal government (centralization), and to increase the power of the States." The House of Governors will be the semi-divine medicine through which the Senate and House of Representatives will be filled with both ears the vox populi in grim earnest. Then they will easily make us "a Stronger Nation." Nay, Tuesday's New York Times pitches a higher key, winding up with an editorial line: "Paul planted, Apollos watered. The House of Governors should give the increase." Doesn't it seem odd that while the more blatant vox populi of England are crying "Down with the House of Lords," the very latest evolution of genteel progress in this republic should startle its stalwart people with the slogan: "Up with the American House of Lords!" For as the work of Governors is to govern, this new house is put up to lord it over the Senate and Lower House, to sit on our representatives and boss our bosses.

The mere killing of twenty-seven fine young fellows in this young season's college football matches is, one has to suppose, too, trivial an argument against the insane brutality encouraged because it pays as a holiday spectacle for a Christian public. Perhaps it is more than badly matched have more force. Ordinary folk don't much care to play the fool in public. In Druidical days of old we used to be content to work at our play as rational creatures. We tried our best to win, but when we lost we never felt it a thing to be ashamed of, we never crept behind trees to blubber like babies because we were licked. Much less did we dream of scheming to maim our opponents, lest to save our childish sense of glory. No. We went into the game to play, not to fight, and, what's more to the point, we kicked the ball, not our friends, the enemy. But now the rule is to kick everybody anywhere, and then scoot away cuddling the ball.

As a rule sacred Cantatas, which are short Oratorios, are too ambitious for the technical skill of an average good church choir, a voluntary choir. For myself any ordinarily qualified voluntary choir is preferable to the finest professional quartette—if the true spirit of congregational worship is considered. The one is natural service, the other artistic, therefore strictly artificial, and presumably less appropriate in churches. Why commercialize the highest things? The Harvest Thanksgiving in the First Baptist church last Sunday evening was on the whole the most admirable and completely satisfying musical service of its kind the writer recently had an extensive experience. The composer's name, De Ferris Tozer, was not familiar, but above the fine scholarly and ever melodious music of his cantata, "The Two Harvests," was positively the most delightful psalm song which should be the glory of the churches, and the more ornate compositions which rightly belong to great church edifices and oratorio concerts. The whole piece was right well rendered, and the choir at times rose to the inspiring music, and the organist must be praised for his rare restraint in subordinating his instrument to its proper use. The composer needs no apology for frankly writing in the modern key, and they shall reign for ever and ever on Handel's mighty Hallelujah Chorus." Here imitation is indeed the noblest homage.

BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETS FOR LAST TIME IN 1909

The last regular 1909 meeting of the North Plainfield Council was a quiet affair and was devoid of important developments, although considerable routine matters were disposed of in a brief space of time. All of the business was disposed of by Mayor Townsend, Councilmen Nicholl, Stahl, Waldron and Wootson, Messrs. Smalley and Arsdale being absent. A special meeting of the Council to wind up the affairs of the year will be held on Tuesday night, December 28.

Mayor Townsend revived the sewerage question by informing the Council that the matter was progressing and that something definite would be known as to the attitude of North Plainfield before the close of the year. Mayor Townsend added two new members to the committee, E. B. Boyer and John P. Emmons.

Councilman Waldron, chairman of the street committee, introduced a resolution authorizing the borough clerk to collect the sidewalk assessments due from Mrs. Mary Cole, 55-57 Mountain avenue, and L. B. Blakemore, 42-48 Mountain avenue. The sidewalks were laid by the borough and the total costs amount to $99.10. The resolution was adopted.

The street committee was empowered to have sidewalks laid in front of the Berg property on Somerset street, corner Howard, and also in front of Mrs. Minnie Stryker's property in the same neighborhood.

A petition headed by Allan Coddington, asking for two additional lights on Grove street, between Greenbrook road and Dupont street, was referred to the fire and lights committee.

Building Inspector Stahl reported the issuance of three permits during the month. Two of these will head a dwelling on Grove street, north of Greenbrook road; Mrs. Stevens, repairs to dwelling on Manning avenue; Christopher Stahl, addition to house on Maple avenue.

Chief of Police Collector George F. Brown showed the total receipts from taxes in November was $13,771.65; and the amount of bills paid as $16,099.76. Included in the receipts was $2,292 for liquor licenses.

Recorder Bolliver reported thirty arrests during the month and the receipt of $77.75 for fines.

Chairman Stahl of the fire committee reported expenditures of $191.

HAROLD SCHENCK WINS RUTGERS' SLOANE PRIZE.

Harold W. Schenck, the youngest son of Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor-emeritus of Trinity Reformed church, has won the Sloane prize at Rutgers College. This competition is open to students taking the classical courses and was won with lots of spare by Mr. Schenck.

He took the ordinary four years course in the Plainfield High School in three years, graduating from there last year. It is considered the greatest honor which a pupil in the classical course at Rutgers can attain. Russel F. Stryker, a graduate of the P. H. S., class of 1906, took the second prize.

Wearing the Veil.

A radical change in the weave of the new veiling has not brought laughter or ridicule upon the face of the woman of Paris. With her usual adaptability she has used the difference in size of the meshes as an excuse to adjust her veil in a new way, thereby appearing more alluring than ever. The veil is worn loosely hanging from the front of the hat. The ends are then tied in a crispy, airy bow at the back. It is a charming departure form the tight style of other seasons.

The Costitutionalist.
AN INDEPENDENT WEEKLY.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

Plainfield, N. J., December 9, 1909.

N Y. AMUSEMENTS.

"St. Elmo," the novel that every woman knows, and every man will accordingly be obliged to take her to see, has been dramatized at last, with the full consent and approval of the authoress, Mrs. Augusta J. Evans Wilson, and will be the pecial Christmas attraction at the Academy of Music, New York, opening December 13, for two weeks. What makes the event of interest is the fact that Willard Holcomb, who dramatized "St. Elmo" successfully, produced his play in Richmond, Va., the war time home of Mrs. Evans, and received her approval as well as exclusive rights to stage her story. The plot of "St. Elmo" hinges on a duel, in which the offending principal, Murray Hammond, is killed. A young country girl, Edna Earl, by accident witnesses the encounter, and is profoundly impressed with the horrors of the code duello, and while she tacitly connives at the escape of the slayer, she considers him a murderer. Shortly afterwards the death of her grandfather, Aaron Hunt, throws her on her own resources, and she finds a place companion in the home of Mrs. Murray. To her horror and surprise she recognizes in the son of her protector the very man whom she, not knowing the causes of the encounter, has regarded as a cold blooded man slayer. But while St. Elmo, brooding over this bitter chapter of his past, has become a cynic and woman hater, he is still a gentleman of culture who attracts the ambitious girl by his intellect and personality, although she cannot fathom him.

There is an entire change of circus program in the opening part of "A Trip to Japan," at the Hippodrome. Amongst the new circus acts, each of which is a star feature of its kind, are Miss Ray Thompson, a noted equestrienne; Thalero's Novelty Circus; Ella Bradley and Frederick Derrick, remarkable equestrian artists; the Lorch Family, in astonishing acrobatic feats; the Five Peres, peerless ladder equilibrists; the Three Ploetz-Larolfus, acrobatic equilibrists; and the Mandell-Martini Troupe, Europe's balancing wonders. Beside the complete new circus there will be the same splendid spectacle including the remarkable scenic features that have made this year's show the most successful ever shown at the world's largest playhouse. The gorgeous "Ballet of Jewels" continues to dazzle the eye, the Maori warriors from New Zealand present their weird dances of war.

Mlle. Adeline Genee, who is appearing in Klaw and Erlanger's production of "The Silver Star," at the New American Theatre, New York, is the greatest exponent of dancing on the stage today. The dearth of remarkable dancers is due to the fact that dancing is one of the most difficult of all accomplishments. The dancer must begin her training in early youth, when the muscles are flexible and instantly responsive to the powers of the will.

FARMER MEETS DEATH CROSSING R. R. TRACK

John Mahrr, a farmer, while crossing the Lackawanna tracks in his farm wagon near Stirling, was run down and instantly killed by a westbound train at ten o'clock on Saturday night. Mahrr was on his way home from Stirling to Pleasant Plains when he met his death. His body was badly mangled while the horse and vehicle were also cut to pieces.

Mahrr was seventy years old and was one of the best known agriculturalists in this section. On Saturday he was in this city marketing produce. The crossing at which Mahrr was killed is unprotected by a gate after 10 o'clock at night. During the day time a gateman is on duty but after that hour the gate is raised until morning.

Mahrr is survived by a wife and five children.

"BOB" DELANEY'S CURE FOR CONFIRMED TOPERS.

Robert E. Delaney, proprietor of the Dunlop and one of the best known men at Atlantic City, would-be professional, tapers to terms of hard labor on the county farm as a cure for alcoholism.

"Public dependents who welcome long terms in the county prison, because they get three square meals a day, and have a comfortable home without the necessity of working, should be sent to the farm and made to work hard for their keep," he said Saturday. "People of this class are too lazy to make any attempt to support themselves and they should be made to till the soil and chop wood to pay for their keep. Enforced manual labor in the open air would help to banish alcoholism and put the hookworm to rout."

ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICE

Judge William N. Runyon Delivers a Most Impressive Eulogy.

REV. DR. NEILSON OFFICIATES.

Quartette Renders a Fine Program —Service for Seven Departed Members of the Lodge.

In accordance with the annual custom on the first Sunday in December of each year, the members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, held its memorial service at the Plainfield theatre Sunday. This day is designated and dedicated as a time which shall be commemorated by every lodge of Elks in sacred session, the memories of departed brothers.

The theatre was thronged with members and friends of the Lodge of Elks, the members occupying seats reserved for them in the centre of the main floor. The stage was appropriately arranged for the occasion. Along the footlights there was placed numerous palms, and in the centre was displayed the head of the elk, the symbol of the order. Suspended overhead was a large star illuminated with seven incandescent lights, representing the number of departed brothers since organization.

Exalted Ruler John H. Cose, who was in charge of the services, together with all the other officers, occupied seats on the stage, in addition to Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson, who also took part in the services. There was the customary opening ceremonies, so familiar to the Elks. During this there was an impressive feature. As the secretary, William R. Townsend, announced the names of the departed brothers, one of the electric lights was extinguished until the auditorium was left in perfect darkness.

The names of the departed brothers are Daniel Detwiler, April 8, 1906; Herbert S. Taylor, April 16, 1906; Robert L. Thomae, July 24, 1906; Olin L. Jenkins, November 13, 1906; Herbert B. Brooks, January 8, 1907; Charles C. Burnet, February 23, 1907; Maze Edwards, July 4, 1909.

The services were opened with a selection by a quartet, "The Day is Sinking to a Close," by Miss Adah B. Connor, soprano; Miss Cornelia Marvin, contralto; Lawrence Ripley, tenor, and Townsend W. Nelson, baritone, with Mrs. J. Harrison Irvine at the piano. Then followed the impressive opening exercises conducted by the lodge officers. A beautiful baritone solo, "Echo," Lord Henry Somerset, was then sung by Mr. Fellow, after which the audience joined in singing "Nearer My God to Thee."

After a fervent prayer by Rev. Dr. Neilson, Miss Conner sang "Evening and Morning," by Spencer, in pleasing manner. The feature of the service then followed, the memorial eulogy by City Judge William N. Runyon.

The speaker drew an impressive word-picture of the ever changing seasons, contrasting in the choicest language, summer with her beautiful garb of green and flowers, with winter accompanied by her chilling blasts from the north, but he said within a short time the chilling winds would go back to the north and once more summer in all her prismatic glory would come again.

Impressing upon all the individual duty resulted by the Great Exalter Ruler, Judge Runyon brought home to each one the necessity of measuring up to the high standard set. He said that it was the fond hope that all would be reunited sooner or later with those who have gone before and that it behooved everyone to so live and be prepared to answer the last call.

"It is not in the past that we live," said the speaker, "but the present, and it is what we make of today that counts. We should live today as though it is doom's day, taking no thought for the morrow. In this way man can measure up to his full responsibility and exemplify the broadest principles of life.

In conclusion, Judge Runyon recalled the names of the seven departed brothers and spoke words of the highest praise concerning each one. Of the last member to pass away, Maze Edwards, the speaker said that he was one who had found life harder to live than most people, but he was brave to the end. Throughout his life he tried to conceal his deformity, but this feeling was tempered somewhat by the knowledge that all his friends loved him. Referring again to the departed brothers, Judge Runyon said, "all have run the race, passed through tribulation and now rest from their labors and we hope to see them again."

Miss Marvin then sang a beautiful solo, "Like as the Hart Desireth the Waterbrook," which preceded the closing ceremonies, in which the officers took part. The quartet then sang a selection from Shelley, in an impressive manner, and after the audience joined in singing "Abide With Me," Mr. Neilson pronounced the benediction and the service closed with the singing of the Doxology.

The officers of the lodge, all of whom had seats on the stage were: Exalter Ruler, John H. Cose; esteemed leading knight, Lewis A. Bellis; esteemed loyal knight, Fred G. Lynn; esteemed lecturing knight, J. Alexander Wilson; secretary, William R. Townsend; treasurer, Harry B. MacDonald; chaplain, Joseph Noonan; esquire, John E. Nicol; inner guard, Alfred Pradhon; tiler, Edward S. Searing; organist, William J. O'Keefe; trustee, S. P. T. Wilbur; acting trustees, E. H. Bird and Fred Saidford.

HERE'S AN OPPORTUNITY TO WITNESS "THE CLIMAX"

An opportunity to witness "The Climax" will present itself in connection with the Charity Ball to be given for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital on Friday night, December 31. Those who purchase tickets for the ball can secure reservation for "The Climax" without extra charge.

Miss Leona Watson is the heroine in the "Climax." She is a shy plain girl with an exquisite voice and nobody could give more charm and dramatic adequacy to the delicious roll of Adelina von Hagen, the girl with the temperament and voice which both fall under the sway of mental suggestion so gracefully. Miss Watson is delightful both as a vocalist and comedienne and her simple, mischievous girlishness, her eloquent directness and her delivery of the music are most attractive and delicately emotional. With most brilliant youthfulness and spirit Effingham Pinto portrays a stormy young American-born Italian rampant with genius, passion and tempers. He plays most beautifully on the piano and is enjoyed every instant. The play is simple, but the stage setting and an irresistible quartette make of the "Climax" a beautiful play, delightful in humor and atmosphere.

The management assures the public that no seats will be reserved until Thursday noon and that the first applicants will be first served. Unquestionably, every seat in the house will be sold and those who desire favorable locations should attend to securing them early.

ADELBERG SAVES FAMILY OVERCOME BY COAL GAS

Because Hyman Adelberg is a light sleeper may be attributed the fact that his wife and three children are alive today. Saturday night the fumes escaping from the heater in the cellar of his home on East Second street became so strong that the family was rapidly succumbing to its influence when Mr. Adelberg was aroused by the noise made by his wife in attempting to open a window.

Mr. Adelberg's room adjoins that of his wife and children and fearing that something had gone wrong with them he opened their door. The instant he entered he detected a strong odor of coal gas and noticing the apparent agony of his wife, he opened the windows and summoned Dr. Dundon. After emetics were administered the family revived and with the aid of fresh air were soon out of danger.

SENATOR KEAN AFTER EXTRA APPROPRIATION

United States Senator John Kean will introduce a bill during the present session of Congress for an extra appropriation for the proposed Federal building to be erected here for the postoffice service. A year ago, he succeeded in obtaining an appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose but the treasury department subsequently found on asking for bids for land that it was insufficient.

From the many bids received, the Government, it is understood, favored a site in the property at East Front street and Watchung avenue, it being offered for $60,000. The Government's estimate on the cost of the building is a trifle above $100,000 and therefore if the Dunlap property is bought, the $175,000 will be needed.

Somewhat Cheaper.

"Is it so that you need to call regularly on that girl?"

"Yes; she always sang a song to me that I loved."

"Why didn't you marry her?"

"I found I could buy the song for 50 cents."—The Circle.

TWO HORSES SUFFOCATED THIRD M'INTYRE CONCERT ANNIVERSARY OF CHAPEL GREAT DAY FOR TRINITY

Animals Lost Their Lives by Fire at Fritts Estate Stable.

TOTAL LOSS IS BUT $750.

Fire Chief T. O. Doane Says Blaze Was Caused by Spontaneous Combustion.

Fire partially destroyed a frame stable belonging to the J. T. Fritts estate at 422 Park avenue Sunday morning. In addition to $300 damage to the structure, two horses, one belonging to Dr. A. F. Carpenter and the other to Arthur S. Giles, lost their lives by suffocation. A motorcycle, belonging to Dr. W. H Anthony, which was also stored in the building was slightly damaged by the flames.

Fire Chief Doane ascribes the cause of the fire as due to spontaneous combustion. The flames started under a starway leading to the loft, and they were first discovered by Mrs. Edward Rushmore at 11:20 o'clock, who promptly notified fire headquarters by telephone.

At that time the flames were issuing from the westerly side of the building. All of the downtown companies responded promptly, but the firemen were considerably handicapped in their efforts by the dense smoke. It was due to these conditions that the fire fighters were unable to rescue the two horses.

Failure of the fire alarm to operate properly also checked the efforts of the firemen. The alarm gave only one tap, and few, if any, of the call men responded. This necessitated all of the work being done by the regulars, but in face of this discouraging condition they succeeded quick work by getting three streams on the flames, thereby saving the building from total destruction. The firemen remained on duty until 1 o'clock.

While going to the fire Truck No. 1, driven by William Robinson, and a hack, driven by Moses Carey, collided at the corner of Fourth street and Park avenue. Carey's vehicle lost a wheel in the the crash. Carey was also hurled to the street, but he escaped injury.

The building was covered by insurance. Mr. Giles fixes $150 as the value of his horse which was also insured, while Dr. Carpenter's horse which was valued at $300 did not carry any insurance.

MRS. TIMOTHY S. THORN'S OBSQUIES

The funeral of Mrs. Timothy S. Thorn, Sunday afternoon. The service at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church conducted the services. The interment was in Hillside cemetery and the pall bearers were George W. Cornwell, George H. Rittenhouse and John Corey, officers of the church, and Mr. Townley, John B. Lane and Sylvanus Hoffman, members of the Bible class.

Mrs. Thorn was a member of the Methodist church for upward of forty years and the address by Dr. Anderson referred to this fact and also spoke with tenderness of her love for Christian work and her really beautiful faith. Although Mrs. Thorn had been a great sufferer during the past two years she had manifested a fortitude which passed beyond the comprehension of those of her intimates who knew of the pain of her illness.

Mrs. Thorn's absence from the Bible class would be the cause for comment because of her recognized punctuality. Many floral tributes were received, that of her former associates in the Bible class being conspicuous. Miss Willis, the soprano soloist of the church choir, sang two hymns, favorites of Mrs. Thorn, the first "Pentecost" being the words last uttered before her death, "Abide with me" was the other and in both the feeling of love and reverence was beyond description.

The services were attended by a large number of friends of the dead woman, many of whom had known her intimately for many years. Besides her husband Mrs. Thorn has left three sons, Walter C. of Allentown, Pa., and Harvey R. and Wesley, of this city.

MRS. ALEXANDER HEADS CHILDREN'S GUARDIANS.

The State Board of Children's Guardians chose new officers to fill vacancies caused by the death of Mrs. Emily E. Williamson and the resignation of Hugh F. Fox, of this city. Mrs. C. B. Alexander, of Hoboken, was chosen president, to succeed Mr. Fox. The new staff of officers, in addition to Mrs. Alexander, are:

Joseph McCrystal, Paterson, vice-president; Anthony T. Williams, Trenton, secretary; Benjamin F. Edsall, Newark, treasurer. Mrs. Mary C. Jacobson, of Newark, who was recently appointed, attended the meeting, which was held at 13 Exchange place, Jersey City, the office of the board.

Tschaikowsky's "Au Memoire d'un Grand Artiste" Splendidly Performed.

VLADIMIR DUBINSKY SCORES.

John Young, a Lyric Tenor, Makes Favorable Impression in Two Groups of Songs.

With nearly every seat in the main floor and in the gallery occupied, one of the largest and most appreciative audiences yet to greet Joseph McIntyre and his assisting artists assembled at the High School auditorium Monday for the third of the present series of Chamber Music Concerts.

The program was so replete with gems, vocal and instrumental, that it is difficult to hazard a guess as to which particular number brought forth the most vociferous applause. With John Young, tenor, and Vladimir Dubinsky, cellist as soloists, and Tschaikowsky's exquisite trio, "Au Memoire d'un Grand Artiste," in A minor for piano, violin and cello, the program was to the liking of all and each selection was so spontaneously applauded that the artists, one and all, graciously responded with an encore number.

The trio, beyond question, was the most pretentious as well as the most exquisitely rendered offering yet presented at the McIntyre concerts. Joseph McIntyre presided at the piano, assisted by Hans Letz, violinist, and Mr. Dubinsky, cellist. These three artists gave a brilliant interpretation of the great Russian composer's masterpiece. Mr. McIntyre was at his best, never has he played more brilliantly than last night. In reality this work of Tschaikowsky's is a piano concerto with strong accompaniment, but so exquisitely are the parts blended that each artist is afforded an opportunity to stand boldly forth for a time and carry the beautiful and plaintive melody that threads it way through the maze of variations.

The trio is in four movements. The opening movement shows Tschaikowsky in one of his most distinctive and characteristic moods, the depicting of deep felt grief, which is perhaps better illustrated here than in any other of his works known to be in his Pathetique Symphony.

The heading of the movement, Pesso Elegiaco, prepares the mind for the sad and mournful mood which is carried out to considerable length.

The Elegiac theme is worked up to a majestic storm of passion and gradually dies away in a dull reverberation of minor chords, then, by a beautiful enharmonic change develops a new melody of great beauty, telling of hope and consolation; changing again to the Elegiac theme in its original tempo, and developing in its former order to noble and exalted heights it gradually subsides to a plaintive pianissimo of exquisite beauty, truly a colossal movement.

The second part is in the form of an Air with Variations unusually interesting as an embodiment of Tschaikowsky's memories of Rubenstein's musical life.

Here are reminiscences of the latter's career as a pianist. A violin melody with running pianoforte accompaniment and melodious cello counterparts. Then a cello part with sustained pianoforte chords and violin counterpoints.

Following this, a short brilliant variation with a music-box effect over a droning brass for the strings leading directly to a waltz in Tschaikowsky's most irresistible style. Then a pathetically expressive movement in muted strings with harp-like pianoforte accompaniment. Changing completely, a sprightly Chopinesque Mazurka and finally a return to the original theme with no variation except in the method of development.

The last movement is an Allegro, majestic and vigorous, followed by an andante, the Elegiac subject, for the strings, treated with enormous Arpeggios for the pianoforte.

Vladimir Dubinsky fairly fiddled his way into the audiorium. The moving pictures by Plumb & Sampson, of New York, were particularly fine, and included subjects both humorous and instructive.

J. Worley Gangloff, of Dubellen, humorist and dialect story teller, furnished abundance of amusement for both the children and grown-ups.

Several pleasing selections were rendered by the Sunday-school orchestra led by Arthur S. Mosher, violin, and including: Miss Mary Clark, piano; Miss Arline Brown, Miss Marjorie Brown, Charles Wheeler, violins; Elmer P. Wheeler, flute.

The offering was received by the Misses Alice Brown, Emily Tomplin, Anna Clark, Sarah Boyd and Marion Mortimer.

Mr. Hall stated that the fourth in the series of entertainments is to take place next Monday evening, to which the public is cordially invited.

BLAIR AS POSSIBLE GUBERNATORIAL TIMBER.

At a conference of Republicans held at Belvidere recently at the home of A. Blair Kelsey, the possibility of naming Hon. John A. Blair, of Hudson county, for the nomination for Governor was discussed. While fully informed as to the purpose of the conference, Judge Blair is quoted as having said to his friends: "I will not be a public office until convinced that the office and the people are seeking me."

The conferees assured the Hudson judge that if he becomes the standard bearer in the next Gubernatorial campaign, the name of the home of the Blairs, will make a new political record for itself by going Republican."

Announce Engagement.

The wedding of Peter Hummer, of Grandview avenue, North Plainfield, and Miss Jennie Swackhamer, of Whitehouse, has been announced.

TWO HORSES SUFFOCATED THIRD M'INTYRE CONCERT ANNIVERSARY OF CHAPEL GREAT DAY FOR TRINITY

Bethel's Congregation Celebrates the Twenty-fifth Year of Work.

ITS HISTORY IS REVIEWED.

Several Addresses and Special Music Features of Colored Flock's Observance.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of Bethel chapel on East Fifth street, was appropriately observed at the chapel Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The ministers of all the churches in this parish, as well as several laymen who are active workers, took part in the interesting program arranged for the occasion.

R. A. Laslett Smith, organist of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, presided at the organ and rendered a selection in opening the services. After the singing of the Doxology, the Lord's prayer and the singing of a hymn, the Scripture lesson was read by Rev. F. D. Tildon, pastor of the chapel.

Leander N. Lovell, who has been identified with the work at the chapel for the greater part of its existence, presented a short historical paper, telling how the work was established at the chapel a quarter of a century ago and of its steady progress. In the historical sketch, due reference was made to the several earnest workers at the chapel. Of the original officers and teachers in 1884, the only ones now connected with the school are Miss Lucy Everett and A. W. Duxbury, the present superintendent. There are four original members of the chapel, Samuel Bolden, Henry Johnson, Mrs. Louisa Carey and Miss Lizzie Dunham.

L. S. Filcher, tenor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church quartet, sang a solo, which preceded an address by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the parent church. He congratulated the members upon the completion of the quarter of a century of earnest work and then made a plea for new and enlarged quarters, claiming that the worshippers had outgrown their present accommodations.

Rev. I. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, was present, but owing to a little throat trouble, was unable to speak. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, was among those who offered congratulations. Letters of congratulations from Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, Miss Chamberlain and Miss Kinsley, who head the Superintendent Duxbury. The earnest and faithful work of Pastor Tildon was not overlooked in reviewing the work at the chapel.

The services closed with the singing of a hymn and the Gloria. The Benediction was said by Rev. Dr. Zelie.

ENTERTAINS PARK AVE. BAPTIST S. S. CHILDREN

The third in the series of entertainments provided by Superintendent George E. Hall for his school and friends, was given last Monday in the Park Avenue Baptist church before an audience that completely filled the large auditorium. The moving pictures by Plumb & Sampson, of New York, were particularly fine, and included subjects both humorous and instructive.

J. Worley Gangloff, of Dubellen, humorist and dialect story teller, furnished abundance of amusement for both the children and grown-ups.

Several pleasing selections were rendered by the Sunday-school orchestra led by Arthur S. Mosher, violin, and including: Miss Mary Clark, piano; Miss Arline Brown, Miss Marjorie Brown, Charles Wheeler, violins; Elmer P. Wheeler, flute.

The offering was received by the Misses Alice Brown, Emily Tomplin, Anna Clark, Sarah Boyd and Marion Mortimer.

Mr. Hall stated that the fourth in the series of entertainments is to take place next Monday evening, to which the public is cordially invited.

Eighteen are Added to Membership and Dr. Harrison Makes Address.

SPECIAL MUSIC WAS PROVIDED.

Congregation's New Missionary to Arabia Among Those Joining the Reformed Flock.

Trinity Reformed church Sunday was the scene of several important events. Primarily the membership was added to by eighteen new members, nine of whom joined the congregation by letter from other churches while nine others were young people from the Sunday-school. The reception into the church with its attendant services was a most impressive ceremony, attended as it was by the reception of Dr. Paul Wilberforce Harrison, who will next February go to Arabia as a medical missionary under the auspices of Trinity.

Dr. Harrison.

Dr. Harrison made several addresses during the day, the principal one being delivered at the evening service. Dr. Harrison spoke to the various departments of the Sunday-school in the afternoon, giving to each talks especially adapted to the different departments, and the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society his remarks covered especially the work that each member of the society could do in missionary work among those nearest to them as well as those who are remote.

Dr. Harrison was born in Scribner, Nebraska, where he received his secondary and collegiate education. He was a student of Doane College and of the University of Nebraska. He received his Bachelor's Degree at the latter college in 1905. He graduated from Johns Hopkins University in 1908 with his degree of doctor of medicine. He has been recently house physician in the Massachusetts General Hospital, in Boston. His support in the missionary field has been assumed by Trinity Reformed church.

Dr. Harrison was admitted to membership in this church on a letter from Brown Memorial church, Baltimore, Md. He will spend the last week in Plainfield before his departure for Arabia, early in February, where he will be the guest of members of the congregation and will make several addresses during the week. A reception will also be tendered the couple and a farewell service will take place.

At the morning service Dr. Harrison read the Scripture lesson and one of the largest congregations was present. Special music had been arranged by Organist Steward and at the offertory Miss Winifred Carroll and Miss S. Etta Raybert sang beautifully solo parts from the "Holy City," by Gaul; which music is especially adapted to a communion service. Two members were baptized at this service before they were admitted to membership in the church.

Dr. Harrison's address in the evening had for its text, taken from John 7: 17, "If any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine." From the Christian's remark it is believed that the whole process of the service of the Master is the absolute submission to His will and a faith that cannot be shaken.

SECOND STORY MEN ARE AT WORK AGAIN

Second story men are working towards Plainfield and it would be well for people to see that their windows are securely locked and ladders are not left lying around promiscuously.

An attempt was made to enter the home of Mrs. Emil Osbrey, of 6 Sycamore avenue at 11 o'clock Saturday night. Mrs. Osbrey was awakened by a noise alongside the house and, looking out her window discovered a man half way up a ladder which he had placed against the side of the house. She screamed and the man made a quick getaway leaving the ladder standing where he put it. George Wulf, of Essex street, who was near the bridge on Watchung avenue when the man ran by gave the police a description of the would-be burglar.

TO SERVE TWENTY DAYS FOR BEING DRUNK.

Matt Slaughter, colored, who gave his address as Westfield, was sentenced to twenty days in the county jail Monday by City Judge Runyon for being drunk and disorderly and resisting Patrolman Anderson when the latter was taking him to headquarters.

Anderson met Slaughter on Park terace at 11 o'clock Saturday night. Slaughter was intoxicated and was carrying a bundle. When asked where he was going he made an offensive reply and was immediately taken into custody. He attempted to throw the patrolman.

POSTOFFICE MEN FEAST

Uncle Sam's Local Employes Celebrated 21st Anniversary of Free Delivery.

TOASTED THE POSTMASTER.

Rev. George A. Warner, Henry C. Krebs, Hugh J. McQuillan, E. H. Bird and C. J. Fisk Speak.

In honor of the twenty-first anniversary of the establishment of free delivery of mail in Plainfield, the local postal system gave a banquet at Trueli Hall, Saturday night. It was the first affair of the kind ever attempted by the employes of the Plainfield office, and it proved to be a great success.

Postmaster Elias H. Bird was toasted frequently throughout the evening and the announcement by Mayor Charles J. Fisk that Congressman Fowler had promised to send his name in for re-appointment and that United States Senator Kean had promised to lend his support, was received with cheers.

Another announcement, this one by Postmaster Bird, that he has been practically assured of a substation for Plainfield to be located at 411 Park avenue, was also the occasion for much enthusiasm, while it was further stated that other improvements would be forthcoming and that in the opinion of Mr. Bird it would not be long before the city would have a Federal building.

There were forty-five guests at the banquet, it being served in one of the private dining rooms at the Hall. Alfred E. LaPorte was the toastmaster and the toasts and speakers were as follows:

"Our Office and Its Responsibilities," Postmaster Elias H. Bird; "Good Citizenship," Rev. George A. Warner; "The Post Office as the Public Sees It," Henry C. Krebs; "The Inspection Branch of the Service," Hugh J. McQuillan, of Paterson, postoffice inspector, and "The Opportunities of Today," Mayor Charles J. Fisk.

After the fine dinner was served the speechmaking began. Mr. LaPorte made a capital toastmaster and he introduced the various speakers in well chosen words. In presenting the first speaker, Mr. LaPorte took occasion to express the high admiration of the employes of the office for Postmaster Bird, and it was his fond hope that when he left his present position it would be to take one higher up in the service. According to Mr. LaPorte, the postmaster possesses all of the qualities which go to make up an ideal official, and this was further evidenced in the frequent applause.

Mr. Bird said that when he took charge of the office eleven years ago, it was in the second class and it had since been promoted to the first class. The receipts had jumped from $30,000 to $70,000 a year. Eleven years ago there were four clerks and eleven carriers, while today there are twenty-two regular carriers, three rural free delivery carriers and eleven clerks, while the office floor space had been increased by one-third.

Speaking of complaints, Mr. Bird said that there were a few from time to time, but it was generally an easy matter to satisfy the complainant, except in the case of one women who wanted a carrier dismissed from the service because he was sick. The entire force, he said, was as efficient as any in the State and it makes just as few mistakes. He said that the rating of the local offices as recorded in Washington was excellent and had been so for a long time.

"We are looking for a federal building," continued Mr. Bird, "and I do not believe that it is a long way off. $100,000 was originally appropriated for it and now Senator Kean proposes to secure an additional $75,000, with that amount the building will be a possibility. However, we have one of the best equipped offices in the State, in fact, Superintendent Norris, of this district, says that it is the best in his territory.

"One of the improvements to be made soon will be that of a sub-station. I would like to have one near Clinton avenue and another in the East End, but if my requisition is honored we will soon have a station at 411 Park avenue.

"Another matter I would like to see in effect is the granting of fifteen days' allowance to carriers and clerks for sickness with pay. Now they lose all their time, outside of regular vacation time. I believe that the clerks will sooner or later be placed on an eight hour schedule, which is right.

"Another improvement is coming soon in the registry department, that of doing away with the personal receipt. Any responsible person should be permitted to receive a registered letter, and the money order advice should also be abolished, and I believe it will be within a short time. I have served my notice last year, and if not reappointed I trust you will give my successor the same loyal support you have given me."

This last statement called forth cries of "No! No! Bird four years more." Mr. Bird informed the men that he would be a candidate for the position again and was later given assurance of the right support.

"Good Citizenship," was the toast to which Mr. Warner responded, and he at once made himself solid with the postal men by relating a good story. He then went on to give his opinion of a good citizen. He said that all knew too well about the undesirable citizen. In his opinion men cannot be saved out of hell and into heaven, that the method employed by many people to do this is all wrong.

"There is a certain type of goodness in itself," said Mr. Warner, "and we must look to that. I have a barrel of fine apples in my cellar, which I have to look at and eat. I forget the blemishes and think only of the good part. The majority of men in public life are honest and are doing their duty, just the same as Postmaster Bird.

"It is in the individual himself that we are to find the man of character and then law and order and other good things will follow. Love rules the world. It takes hold of the individual man and when you touch the spot there have come something worth while. I don't give a rap for speeches and work en masse. It is the individual influence that counts. Raise the type of citizenship and you will have no trouble in accomplishing your purpose."

"As Other Sees Us," was the toast given to H. C. Krebs and he gave an excellent practical talk, interspersed with considerable humor. He briefly reviewed the progress of the postal system from its inception in the time of King Cyrus the Great, to the present time, showing how in the earlier times, it met with much opposition and often caused dire results.

The speaker declared the postoffice to be a great civilizer, especially through the rural free delivery system, which brings the latest news and other information to the farmer quickly. He believed the postman to be one's best friend for he brings the news, pays one's bills and in other ways is a benefactor.

In describing what a postman should and should not be, Mr. Krebs said that it was important that he should have good health, that one shouldn't be afraid in the dark, that he shouldn't lisp and that he should have a good education and have a knowledge of history. These attributes and qualities were interspersed with short humorous stories to illustrate the speaker's remarks. He had nothing but words of commendation for the postoffice and its employes. Such a complex system he said was astonishing, and he hoped the time would soon arrive when not one would be adopted for the telegraph and telephone.

Hugh J. McQuillan, of Paterson, one of the postoffice inspectors, spoke on the subject of "The Inspection Branch of the Service." He started in the service as a boy in the Paterson postoffice and through hard application to work has risen to his present position, being acknowledged as one of the foremost persons on postal matters in the outset Mr. McQuillan said that it was his duty to gather information and not dispense it, but was glad to be present and give them a short talk. He then related several interesting cases that had come under his supervision recently, showing that it is not always the postoffice employe that is to blame.

An inspector has about four hundred offices to look after, which requires about one quarter of his time. This is exclusive of numerous special cases. Mr. McQuillan said that the government is now cutting down postal expenses and one of the cuts will be that of the money order service. Last year there were written $65,000,000 in money orders and $12,500,000 passed through the Chicago postoffice and the proposed change will save the work of one hundred clerks in that office and eighty in the New York office.

The speaker said that it is also proposed to permit a carrier to deliver a registered letter to any responsible person, which would mean a great saving of time for the carrier.

"The Opportunities of Today," proved an interesting topic for Mayor Fisk. He said that he considered one of the best opportunities that of being present with a lot of good fellows. He said that success only comes through hard work and the use of brains, and he referred to Mr. McQuillan as an illustration of that fact. He said that Edward T. Vanwinkle and William A. Brewster were the only employes of the local postoffice present who were of age, both having entered the service twenty-one years ago. He then paid a high compliment to Assistant Postmaster James Marcin, recalling the time when he was his boss in the fire department.

"Another good opportunity I had," said Mr. Fisk, was when I was privileged to be the first to sign Mr. Bird's petition for his present position. I want to be able to repeat that when the time comes for I have asked Mr. Bird to prepare his petition and let me sign it first and then we will show the officials at Washington what we thing of him.

"Congressman Fowler has promised to send Mr. Bird's name in, and Senator Kean says that he will back it up, and that means the re-appointment of our present efficient postmaster.

Again referring to opportunities, Mr. Fisk briefly recalled how the late C. P. Huntington became a man of wealth and influence through hard work. He said that most men have to work hard for what they get and they are better off for it. He said that he had been called a good mayor, which was true, for he felt at home in any society. He said that he was the clothes, but the man that counts.

The speechmaking was concluded with brief remarks by Letter carriers C. B. Stephens, Elmer E. Ripley, George Keen, Daniel Shea and Thomas Mooney and Clerks W. B. Sharp and Wilson Thorn. James Bailey also favored the gathering with several excellent songs. Throughout the banquet, Andrew Carpenter rendered popular selections on the piano.

The committee which deserves credit for the success of the affair comprised A. E. LaPorte, Ernest A. Millard, William H. Thorn, T. J. Meaney, William Demarest and George L. Apgar.

DR. GROSZMANN'S TRIP THROUGH THE SOUTH

During their recent trip South, Dr. and Mrs. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann had the pleasure of meeting President Taft under rather interesting circumstances. They visited the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute at Old Point Comfort, Virginia, on a day which had been set aside as "Taft Day." Visitors were not allowed on the grounds during the larger part of that day, but when Principal Dr. Frissell, who knows Dr. Groszmann by reputation, learnt of his arrival, he extended the hospitality of the Institute to Mrs. Groszmann and the doctor, introducing them personally to his friend and former Yale classmate, the president. Mr. Taft had been elected a member of the Board of Trustees of the institution, and had on that day resumed his functions.

The day was marked by special celebrations. There was a review of the students; a luncheon, and an assembly at the gymnasium, where Mr. Taft addressed an audience of about 3,000 people. Among his party and among the speakers on this memorable occasion were Andrew Carnegie, President Eliott, Bishop Lawrence, Prof. Peabody, ex-Governor Montague, of Virginia and J. D. Rockefeller, Jr.

At Washington, D. C., Dr. Groszmann delivered several lectures on the problem of the Atypical Child, before the teachers, school and medical officers and normal students of the district, speaking altogether to about 2,000 persons. He also visited the schools there, and paid particular attention to the ungraded and special classes, with the teachers of which he met in round table discussion.

One of the school officials wrote to Dr. Groszmann after his return: "In regard your presence in our community most fortunate in that your words will lead to an awakened public conscience in regard to weak and helpless humanity. * * * As a missionary I sincerely hope that you may enter every considerable city in our land to preach this new gospel of the duty of society itself and to the unfortunate, and eventually to bring about a federation of all activities for the study and education of exceptional children. Since your advent into our midst another attitude toward this problem is appearing among all. * * * Your message has created enthusiasm to go forward in a finer, firmer, and more sacrificial spirit."

OUR MEN OF BERKELEY WILL CELEBRATE XMAS

As usual, the society of Our Men, of New Providence township, has arranged an elaborate Christmas entertainment for the children of New Providence township, which will be given in the Berkeley Lyceum, Thursday evening, December 23. Professional talent has been engaged from New York, notably Rosani, the great ventriloquist and juggler, and Miss Justine Roberts, the child entertainer.

Pound boxes of candies and oranges galore will be supplied to the children and the Christmas tree will be in evidence. Invitations have been sent to all of the teachers of the township to attend and to extend the invitation to their classrooms and people of the township. This will be another of the series of successful entertainments for which the society has become famous. The entertainments last Christmas and Thanksgiving are still fresh in the memories of the children and everyone who witnessed them, and unless the weather is unfavorable, a crowded Lyceum is expected for December 23. A corner has been reserved for Santa Claus in case he finds time to put Berkeley on his regular visit. The officers of the society are: William Jeffery, president; Angelo Delonico, treasurer, and Frank C. Shaffer, secretary.

EUREKA F. C. DEFEATS LOCALS IN CLOSE GAME

The Eureka F. C. of Newark, defeated the Plainfield association football club on the Clinton avenue grounds on Saturday afternoon in a fast game by a score of 2 to 0. During the first few minutes of play the ball was kept pretty well in the centre of the field, but before fifteen minutes had passed the Eurekas succeeded in getting a goal from a close scrimmage in the local end of the field. The visitors had several close shaves, but did not score, and half time was called with the score 1 to 0 in favor of the Eurekas.

On resuming play in the second half the Eurekas made a rush on the Plainfield goal and got another point. The goal-keeper for the Eurekas made two fine saves, and their backs played a great game. There was no more scoring. The lineup:

P. H. S. GIRLS DEFEAT SOUTH ORANGE TEAM

Unlike the P. H. S. boys first and second basketball teams, who were defeated by the Montclair High School teams at Montclair, Saturday afternoon, the P. H. S. girls' basketball team defeated the girls' team of the South Orange High School at South Orange, by a score of 17 to 10.

It was the first game the local girls played away from home and they are proud of thier success. Katherine Smiuck played a fine game making fourteen of the seventeen points for her team. Ruth Wean, Dorothy Merrill and Miss Smiuck developed some fast team work, which completely mystified the home players.

The local team was penalized for at least twenty-five fouls. The South Orange team had abundant opportunity to try but were lamentably weak in foul shooting. The Plainfield team had to play a side centre, making six players in all on a side. The lineup of the Plainfield team follows:

Katherine Smiuck, rf; Jessie Stuart, lf; Dorothy Merrill, captain and centre; Ruth Douglass, side centre; Helen Woolley, rg, and Ruth Wean, lg; Miss Day was referee and Miss Johnson, the latter of South Orange, was umpire.

ORANGE SUBURBANS DEFEATED BY THE Y. M. C. A.

Plainfield's Y. M. C. A.'s basketball quintet was a bit too speedy for the Orange Suburbans in the contest on Saturday night which was won by the locals by the score of 56 to 40. Plainfield clinched the game in the first half by taking the lead by the score of 16 to 2. The locals also excelled in the second half. Denton, Collier and Rumsey did splendid work for Plainfield. The line-up:

Interment was made at Evergreen, the bearers being Matthew Stewart and Edward Gahagan, of this city; Dr. Ejner Hanson and Rowley Bining, of New York; Paul W. Romer, of Chicago, and B. M. Pierson, of Montclair.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Citizens Complain That Trolley Cars are Unsanitary and Antiquated.

DEPARTMENT HEADS REPORT.

Petition for a Marquee Front to Business House, Minus Advertising Signs, Is Granted.

Aside from the public hearing granted in connection with the application of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company for permission to install a huge gasolene tank on its premises, there was no busines of great importance considered at the December meeting of the Common Council, Monday night.

Wm. C. Kinney, president of the hospital governors, and other residents of Arlington avenue, registered a vigorous protest against the trolley cars now being operated on the Arlington avenue line. They declared that the cars were unsanitary, have flat wheels and played out motors, and urged that some action be taken to compel the company to live up to its promise of three years ago, that of supplying new and modern cars for Plainfield. The matter was referred to the commissioner on public affairs.

The Central Park Realty Company petitioned for additional electric lights on Prospect, Evergreen, Maxton and Thornhill avenues, and the matter was referred to the light committee. Later two lights were granted for Thornton avenue. Residents of West Fifth street and Prescott place, requested that property-owners be requested to lay sidewalks, and this was referred to the street committee.

The petition of George J. Tobin to erect a marquee in front of his place of business on North avenue, was received and granted, with the restriction that no sign or advertising matter be placed thereon. The marquee is within the building line, and conforms to the building ordinance.

W. B. Wadsworth informed the Council that he will make possession of his new house on Woodland avenue, April 15, 1910, and requested that electric lights and water be provided for that thoroughfare at that point. This was referred to the committee on public affairs.

A protest was received from the W. C. T. U. signed by the president, Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, and representing over two hundred members, requesting that no additional liquor licenses be granted. This was referred to the license committee.

A communication was received from C. C. Campbell, of 1001 Central avenue, asking for a readjustment of tax assessment and a correct bill for the same. This was referred to the finance committee. The monthly statement of figures of the municipal election last month was presented and filed. The Mayor appointed Thos. McInerny a special policeman and the appointment was confirmed.

Commissioner Kinney also reported the granting of thirty sewer permits during November and Building Inspector Doane reported that he had granted 25 building permits during the same period. The report of Overseer-of-the-Poor Wm. Brown showed that outside expenses for the past month amounted to $286.04 and those of the alms house $228. The reports were filed. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District court, reported receipts of $1133.09 and expenses of $38 for the past month. This report was filed.

Following a recess to consider the application of George J. Tobin for the erection of a marquee, the Council by regular order of business, and a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, instructed the city treasurer to pay the State and county tax amounting to $133,007-21. Another resolution by the same member and adopted, instructed the city treasurer to withhold certain warrants due contractors, pending the guarantee of sidewalk work for one year.

When Council adjourned it did so to meet on Friday night to receive bids for the new issue of school and sewer bonds, advertised for recently. During the evening a public hearing was granted on the proposed action of establishing side lines on Sherman avenue, between Grant and Plainfield avenues, but no one was present to speak for or against the ordinance. The application of K. A. Marten for an auctioneer's license was granted, and the petition of Ross Frucht to remove a building from Park avenue to New and Third streets, was referred to the street committee with power.

Merchants to Dine.

The Plainfield Merchants' Association is making elaborate plans for its annual banquet to be held probably on Thursday night, January 20, at Trueli Hall. It will be the most pretentious affair yet undertaken by the merchants and the price of tickets will be raised from $2 to $3 in the hope that there will be no deficit.

Harry G. Morse, of Jackson avenue, formerly a motorman employed by the Public Service Corporation, has been promoted to the position of station master at the Westfield Junction.

FOWLER'S G.O.P. CREED

Five Articles in His Statement of Demands for Party's Welfare.

TO INTRODUCE HIS BILL.

"Unless the Party Gets Rid of Aldrichism and Cannonism, the People Will Get Rid of the Party."

Representative Charles W. Fowler of the Fifth New Jersey district, which includes Plainfield and vicinity, came out last night with a statement outlining and commenting on the Tariff Commission bill, which he will introduce in the House of Representatives at Washington. It will provide that Congress shall fix the maximum and minimum tariff schedules and rates, and that the commission, consisting of fifteen members, shall, with the approval of the President, fix the actual rates to be paid at some point between the minimum and minimum rates so established by Congress. But no rate so fixed and approved shall become effective or operative for eighteen months after it has been promulgated by the President, in order that every industry affected by tariff changes may have ample time to adjust itself to the new conditions.

Returning to his attack upon the present control of Congress, Mr. Fowler declares it to be now perfectly clear that the party of the Republican party gets rid of Aldrichism and Cannonism, the people will get rid of the Republican party." Loss of the next House of Representatives, he says, can be avoided "only by enlisting now on our party banners these pledges:

First—We are against Aldrichism and Cannonism.

Second—We demand tariff revision hereafter by evolution and not revolution.

Third—We demand tariff revision based upon ascertained facts and not upon selfish trades and corrupt agreements.

Fourth—We demand a permanent, broad, and responsible tariff commission, to serve for local work looking after the facts, obviate trade wars, and assist in securing and retaining the good will and friendship of all nations by wise, just, and advantageous trade treaties.

He asserts that the people's hopes have been turned to disgust and their faith to resentment, and he says he does not believe that they will permit Mr. Aldrich to pick their pockets through the legerdemain of words. He prophesies "a thunderbolt of righteous indignation and punitive wrath" as about to "strike, shatter, and paralyze the Republican party unless it utterly repudiates Aldrichism and its subservient complement," Cannonism."

ADVANCES REASONS AGAINST SOCIALISM

The concluding lecture of the course on Socialism, planned by the Monday Afternoon Club, was delivered Monday at the Hartridge auditorium by John Bates Clark, Ph. D., LL. D., professor of political economy at Columbia University. His subject was "What We Should Do About Socialism."

At the beginning of his lecture Dr. Bates gave eight reasons why it was not wise to accept the socialist program, based on the complete absorption of all production by the State. Among these was the normal condition, which is pursuit of wealth, which would be exchanged for ambition for office which would result in the survival of the unfittest the most unlikely to be elected. Inability required would find few able to cope with the undertaking; there would be no means of avoiding coercion as to occupations, arduous, disagreeable and dangerous, the great progress in production due to mechanical appliances was the result of competitive skill, not possible in the socialist's system; invention would stagnate without the hope of reward, except simply a decoration; the correspondingly growth of capital that must accompany increase of population, to prevent suffering, would be difficult to accomplish and if the riches of the world were divided pro rata, it would not sound like the millenium.

Dr. Clark expressed his faith in our present system, for while not ideally perfect, honesty was the rule and its evils could be corrected. Legislation is one of the ways to deal with monopolies, he said. "Keep alive the spirit of competition," urged the speaker, who said further he did not believe equality of possessions ensured equality of enjoyment. He looked forward to the future when accumulated capital, improved methods of production and free competition would raise the working people to the row-boat lever, as compared with the millionaire's yacht, in which there might be equal enjoyment.

EDUCATORS ENTERTAINED AT THE WATCHUNG CREST

There was an unusually fine "musicale" at Watchung Crest on Saturday night. A number of friends were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann, among them Dr. and Mrs. Richard Moldenke, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, John Lear and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Frank T. Clawson, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Bariglit. Numbers were rendered by the well known New York violinist, Maurice Nitke, who is one of the finest interpreters of violin music in this country; by Miss Rose Ruth Levine, who possesses a soprano voice of excellent quality, and Mlle. Yvonne Koeniger, of Paris, pianist. Mlle. Koeniger also acted as accompanist to Mr. Nitke and Miss Levine.

Those present thoroughly enjoyed the rendering of classic and modern music as presented by these artists, very much indeed, and hearty was the applause at the end of each piece. Refreshments and an informal dance closed the evening in a most pleasant way. The same artists rendered several numbers in connection with the Pupils' Ethical service at the Groszmann School on Sunday morning.

HIS LOVE SPURNED. HE COMMITS SUICIDE

Frank Mohring Blows His Head Off After Bidding Parents Good-bye.

Had Served a Term in Prison for Stabbing the Object of His Infatuation—Death Instantaneous.

After bidding his folks an affectionate goodby Thursday night Frank Mohring, 30 years old, of 526 West Fifth stret, went out to the woodshed in the rear of his father's home and blew out his brains with an old fashioned muzzle loading shotgun. Mohring made a quick and complete job of it, part of his brain being found ten feet away from the place where the body was found.

Mohring had attached a string to the trigger of the weapon and had very carefully planned that the first shot would be effective. He placed the butt of the weapon against a corner of the shed and stooping so as to press his head against the gun pulled the string.

Strangely enough, although the shot was heard in the house little attention was paid to it as the family had been used to hearing automobile tires burst and other noises. But when Frank failed to put in an appearance a little later the father of the dead men went out to investigate and stumbled over the body of his son near the entrance to the shed. Police headquarters was at once notified and City Physician Charles B Lafburrow summoned. A mere glance satisfied Doctor Lufburrow that the man had died instantly.

As far as can be ascertained Mohring was still in love with the woman on whose account he was one last October to State prison. Mrs. Emma Hoppock is the name given out as the one with whom Mohring was infatuated. He wrote the woman a letter yesterday morning the contents of which have not been divulged, but it is surmised that he bade her an affectionate farwell and told her that life without her would be unbearable. Mrs. Hoppock could not be found this morning so the exact contents of the letter sent to her by the suicide could not be ascertained.

The crime for which Mohring was sent to prison was for feloniously assaulting Mrs. Hoppock. He met her on Front street last October, and when his advances had been repulsed drew a knife and cut her severely.

IONA COUNCIL CELEBRATES SEVENTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

The seventeenth anniversary of Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, was observed in the council rooms, Coward building, Thursday, and included a reception to Great Pocohontas Mrs. Charles Dodwell, of Dunellen. There was a large attendance of members and visiting great officers.

The program included addresses by Judge William Newcorn, Great Pocohontas; Mrs. Charles Dodwell, of Dunellen; Great Minnehaha Mrs. Kate Walsh, of Morristown; Great Keeper of Records Mrs. S. T. Rellstab, of Trenton; Great Keeper of Wampum Mrs. Harriet Whittemore, of Oceanic; Great Chief of Records D. M. Stevens, of Camden; Great Prophetess Mrs. Mary Dutton, of Vineland, and Past Great Pocohontas Mrs. Alice Van Houten, of Manasquan.

During the evening there was a presentation of a cut-glass dish to Mrs. Dodwell by the members of Iona Council. The rest of the evening was devoted to dancing, during which time and session were served. Iona Council now numbers sixty members and is constantly growing.

KINGS' DAUGHTERS MEET

Encouraging Reports and Addresses at Semi-Annual Session.

HAS ACCOMPLISHED MUCH.

Mrs. Mary Bond Gives a Helpful Talk—Tea at Close of Business Meeting.

Interesting reports for the half year, together with excellent addresses by Miss Mary Bond, of New York, president of the International Order of King's Daughters, and Mrs. Charles Davis, president of the New York branch of the order, combined to make the semi-annual meeting of the City Union of The King's Daughters, held in the parish house of Grace church, yesterday, especially helpful. There was a large attendance of members and friends.

During the order of business, at which Mrs. Frank W. Jones, president, was in charge, the report of the treasurer, Mrs. Anna M. Mest, was presented. This showed a balance of $246.87. During the past six months there have been expended $3,292, which included a payment on the mortgage on the Day Nursery property and erection of a shed at the camp. Mrs. Most also presented the report for the Day Nursery. This showed during the past half year 3,168 children were cared for, the oldest of which was five years. This is remarkable considering that the nursery was closed in August.

Mrs. R. P. Fetcher read the report of the camp nurse, Miss Olive DeLany also that of the camp committee. Since last May the city nurse has made 653 visits ministering to the wants of the poor.

Following the business session, the addresses were made. Miss Bond, who is about seventy years of age, held the close attention of all with her earnest words. She gave a clear and comprehensive interpretation of what it means to be a member of the King's Daughters. She said that it was not so much the giving of money as that of personal time in carrying on the work of the Master and following in His footsteps. Her talk was deeply spiritual, as was also that of Mrs. Davis. The addresses stirred the members to greater effort and were full of encouragement.

The meeting closed with a tea in charge of the Silver Cross Circle. Those in charge were Mrs. H. C. White, Miss Helen Phillipa, Mrs. A. M. Abbott, Mrs. F. O. Ball, assisted by other members of the Circle.

DR. ROGER L. COOLEY HAS BECOME A BENEDICT

Miss Laura Sydenham announces the marriage of her niece, Miss Laura Helen Selby, to Dr. Roger Logan Cooley, son of Dr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Cooley, both of North Plainfield, which took place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Miss Sydenham, 13 Westervelt avenue. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, performed the ceremony. Only the members of the two families were present. A double ring service was used. After a trip in the south, the couple will reside here.

Dr. Cooley was graduated from the North Plainfield High School, Cornell University and later from the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He is a practicing physician and will continue practice here. The bride has been making her home with her aunt, Miss Sydenham for some time, and both she and Dr. Cooley have a large circle of friends.

WILL COMPEL THE P.S.C. TO KEEP ITS AGREEMENT

Recalling that two years ago the Public Service Corporation promised to give Plainfield more modern trolley cars in place of the old style one in use here for many years, the Board of Trade Thursday thought it would be a good idea to have a committee appointed to take the matter up with the P. S. C. B. F. Coriell, acting president, decided to refer the appointment of the committee to President W. W. Marshall, and it will be announced soon.

The new cars were promised in return for the privilege of laying a double track on Watchung avenue and East Front street, when the brick pavement was laid. The privilege to lay the extra tracks was granted by the Common Council, but the company failed to keep its word. Now the Board of Trade believes that it will be able to accomplish something through a conference with the company.

Disturbed Sequence.

"Did you read my story?" asked the young author.

"I read the first part of it," answered the candid girl. "But the first two pages it trickled off among a lot of advertisements that were so interesting that I lost track of it."

Sundays in England

No. 1—At Wells.

By Rev. Charles L. Goodrich

Between Clovelly in Devonshire and Wells in Somerset the contrast is very marked. One is a fishing village perched on the steep sides of a ravine; the other is a cathedral town, with the finest group of ecclesiastical buildings in England. The skies wept with us when we mounted the box seats of the tally-ho to leave behind us the lovely Devon coast, taking with us the memory of nature in her fairest face. But they smiled again as we continued our circuitous journey toward Wells whose cathedral was drawing us. It was as though we had been absorbing all that we could contain of nature's lavish gifts and had reached the limits of our expressions of delight, and now we were turning to another side of our being and the wonderful conceptions of men, worked out in columns and arches and pinnacles of stone, were to give us equal pleasure and inspiration.

You must not be in too much of a hurry when you wish to go to Wells. Howells remarks: "Even the most conservative person will admit that the train service thither leaves something to be desired." It is a common saying in Wells itself that three railroads make it difficult to get there, and four would make it impossible.

One place on the route thither, however, you must not wish to be hurried past, that is Glastonbury, five miles away. If we had only visited it on a Sunday instead of a Monday, so that it could have legitimately have come into the theme this evening, a Sunday resident.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 12, 1909.

Topic.—"Pilgrim's Progress" series.—XII. Crossing the river.—I Cor. xv, 35-44; Heb. ii, 14-18. Comment by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

In this subject we see the last of Christian in his pilgrimage toward the Celestial City, for after "crossing the river" he is admitted through the gate into the heavenly city and beholds its glories and abides in it. The great allegory of Bunyan closes, having traced Christian from the City of Destruction step by step until he enters the Celestial City, and in his great work he has in figure described the progressive steps that must be pursued by the sinner today who turns from sin and at the end of life enters into the eternal happiness of heaven. May all who have engaged in or followed these studies be thereby made better able to meet the trials and tribulations of the Christian's life upon earth and to look upon death not as a dreaded enemy, but as a kindly friend that ushers us from the gate of heaven, through which we enter by faith in the person and work of our Saviour and Redeemer Jesus Christ.

The last incident in Christian's progress is the crossing of the river. Between him and his companions and the gate was a river, but there was no bridge to go over; the river was very deep." The pilgrims were stunned at the sight of the river, but those who accompanied them said, "You must go through or you cannot reach the gate." They were told that there was no other way to the gate and that the deep water became shallow by increased faith in Christ. Then they plunged in. Hopeful found the way easy, but Christian began to sink, and he was only by Hopeful's cheering words that he was able to proceed. He passed through awful experiences, but at last his faith strengthened. He saw Christ and was soon upon firm ground again.

The crossing of the river signifies death, the last enemy of mankind. The thought of it causes even Christians at times to fear, and as they approach it they are often, like Christian, much troubled and distressed. But it should not be so. Christ has overcome death, for he died and burst the bands of death asunder. Faith in Him will make the deep places shallow and turn the bridgeless river into a fording place easily crossed. By faith He will be with us. When then passeth through the waters I will be with thee." "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me." Faith in Him, who has Himself crossed the river, should remove all fear of dread of death. We must not fear, let us fear life rather than death. It is not death, but life, that determines the destiny of eternity. We may well fear lest we fail in our Christian faith and life, but never death, if we have been faithful to the Lord, who said, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

But Bunyan in his last words warns us against postponing the salvation of our souls until the last moments of life. Many a sinner has died and passed the river without fear, but when he reaches the other side instead of entering the gate of the Celestial City he was pushed through a door to hell. Deathbed repentances are poor supports to rest upon. From the gate of heaven let souls now be turned into the place of outer darkness. "Now is the accepted time." Take advantage of it now and risk not the soul's welfare on the future.'

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxiii, 1-4; Isa. xxxviii, 1-21; xliii, 1-3; Acts vii, 54-60; I Cor. xv, 12-26; II Cor. iv, 16-18; II Tim. iv, 1-8; Rev. ii, 10.

Peacemakers.

One of the most interesting sessions of the British national convention held recently in Nottingham was the International Brotherhood meeting presided over by Mrs. Harvey, at which it was the foreign office there is a button which may be touched at any time of emergency. It signals 'Mobilize forces instantly.' Hitherto the peace offices have had no button for mobilizing their forces. It is strange indeed that this will be found in Christian Endeavor societies. She has instituted an International Brotherhood of Christian Endeavor with a simple pledge to work for the advancement of peace and brotherhood.

The world's peace is something worth working for. Every Christian Endeavor society should have a peace committee, just as it has a missionary committee. The work of such a committee would be to provide speakers that would talk peace topics, distribute peace literature, instruct the society in the past history and present doings of the peace movement and in every way hold up the hands of the thousands of men and women that are working for arbitration in place of war and for all the noble ends of international brotherhood. Christian Endeavor must be eager to lead the van in creating a peace sentiment. We have the organization. We encircle the globe. We are a democracy of united brothers, men of every tribe and nation. We are Christians; therefore we favor peace. There is no reason why every member of every society in every country should not pledge himself or herself by saying:

Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I will work, as far as I know how, for the furtherance of universal peace, the cessation of all war, the establishment of international arbitration.

Why not? Our King is the Prince of Peace. We are ambitious to earn the title in its broadest sense—the peacemakers." "Blessed are the peacemakers." We want to bring peace in. Let us begin with peace committees.

CURIOUS SCHEMES OF INVENTORS.

Sir C. N. Dalton, who has just retired from the comptrollership of the British Patent Office, during his eleven years of office has had to brave the importunities of hosts of freak inventors, but on giving up the reins he has the satisfaction of knowing that the crank is becoming a negligible quantity, while the man of sterling worth has found, by recent enactment, a greater scope for the exercise of his inventive faculties, says the London Observer.

The cycle, whose hopes as a patentee have been blighted, has solaced himself with the reflection that "the world is divided into two sections—those who can invent and don't and those who can't and do." There is more than a suggestion of truth in the retort, for the Patent Office is still made the repository for eccentric originality emanating from the over-wrought brains of crazy inventors. The genius with a masterly conception of how to solve the problem of perpetual motion is by no means fully optimistic and plentiful today as he was half a century ago. The continuation of this species is perhaps the nearest approach to perpetuity the human race has evolved

Member of Fire Underwriters' Board Says It Would Increase the Insurance Rates.

The application of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company for permission to install a 10,000 gasolene tank on the premises of the company on Park avenue, caused a lively discussion at the December meeting of the Common Council, Monday. Judge William Newcorn was present to represent the company, while H. W. Marshall, president of the Board of Trade, spoke against the granting of the application. There were several other interested spectators present in the lobby.

The public hearing brought out a most important fact, which was admitted, and that was that Mayor C. J. Fisk had received, unsolicited, from John M. Whiton, of the Board of Fire Underwriters, a letter advising him that in case the gasolene tank of 10,000 gallons is installed, insurance on the adjoining property would be cancelled. It was also stated that a member of the Council had received a letter from Chief Croker, of the New York fire department, in which he spoke strongly against such a proposition. These letters were not read, but it was admitted that they had been received.

Mr. Martin's application was received early in the evening and later it was moved that a public hearing be granted. Judge Newcorn was given the privilege of the floor to speak in favor of the application. He said that he had thoroughly investigated the matter and found that there would be no greater danger from storing 10,000 gallons than one gallon, that every day a Standard Oil Company wagon goes through the city streets with gasolene in the open in five gallon cans, which he considered far more dangerous. It is proposed to place the 10,000 gallon tank four feet underground and equip it with every safety device.

Judge Newcorn said that experts were agreed that there would be no danger provided the tank was properly installed, and Mr. Martin proposed to have the work done by experts, the Hammond Iron Company, of Irvington, building the tank. It will be constructed of iron and steel and would be thoroughly equipped, making it possible for Mr. Martin to buy his gasolene by the car load. He called attention to the fact that the Standard Oil Company also maintains a receptacle for 20,000 gallons of gasolene on East Third street, and no accident had resulted.

A letter from the officials of the Standard Oil Company's office in Newark, was read showing that if the tank was properly installed there would be no danger. The question as to whether insurance rates would go up was referred to, and in this connection John Tenney, Jr., of this city, who is a member of the committee on fire insurance rates for this district, was given the opportunity to speak.

In talking on the subject, Mr. Teaney was careful to explain that he spoke unofficially, personally and was of the opinion that the installation of the 10,000 gasolene tank would not materially effect the rates, in fact, he could see no reason for an increase. He said that so far as the danger of gasolene was concerned, 1,000 gallons was considered as much of a risk as 10,000 gallons. He was questioned at considerable length by the councilmen on various points. He recalled the fact that tanks of a similar capacity were installed at different places in the State, but in answer to a question as to what the restrictions were in New York, said that of course a far less quantity of gasolene was allowed.

As president of the Board of Trade, H. W. Marshall took occasion to speak strongly against the granting of Mr. Martin's application. He said that the board had communicated with committees on combustibles in many cities throughout the country and these answers are coming in rapidly. In New York he learned that 275 gallons of gasolene is permitted in one building, and he thought it would be well to have such a restriction incorporated in the building code here. The quantity permitted in other cities was given as follows:

Jersey City, 1,375 gallons; Louisville, Ky., 250 gallons; San Francisco, 1,200 gallons; Knoxville, Tenn., 110 gallons; Baltimore, 275 gallons, and Atlanta, Ga., 200 gallons, and Mr. Marshall explained in these cities the gasolene must be kept underground in tanks properly installed.

Mr. Marshall then called the attention of the Council to the unsolicited letter received by Mayor Fisk from Mr. Whiton, declaring that insurance will be cancelled on property within a defined territory in the vicinity of the Martin garage, if the tank was installed. He also referred to the letter received from Chief Croker.

"The question is," continued Mr. Marshall, "whether we want that gasolene tank installed in the heart of the city. If this application is granted there will be other applications. I am informed by a Standard Oil man that there are dangers in unloading gasolene through the breaking of a connection. And Mr. Whiton has stated that the insurance rates will be effected here if the tank is installed.

As an adjoining property-owner, John Manley entered his protest. He said that he hoped to erect a fine building on his property to cost several times 10,000 gallons of gasolene and he for one objected to granting the application. He had understood that in New York it is required that gasolene be delivered in steel barrels.

In reply Judge Newcorn explained that conditions in New York as compared with Plainfield are very different. He also called attention to the fact that in Newark there is a gasolene tank of 1,200 gallon capacity and one of 10,000 in Asbury Park.

He referred to the system employed at the Waldorf Hotel on East Front street, where gasolene is used for lighting purposes and where 200 gallons of the liquid is stored in reserve and in his opinion that is more dangerous than a 10,000 gallon tank, and yet rates have not been increased there.

This closed the hearing and President Tolles announced that no action would be taken at that time on the application. In this connection, Councilman Taylor, chairman of the fire and building committee, who has the matter in charge, stated that the committee would be glad to receive communications or any further information on the subject and that the committee would meet Friday night to further consider the proposition.

YOUNG HEBREWS FEAST AND INSTALL OFFICERS

The Young Men's Hebrew Association held its first annual banquet in its auditorium on Grove street, Monday, the occasion being the installation of officers. A short business meeting was held, when the officers were installed and the committee reported that all arrangements were completed for the reception and ball to be held at Saengerbund Hall on January 1.

During the dinner which followed, there were a number of speeches by the officers. President-elect Samuel Rothberg spoke briefly of the work the association had accomplished in the past and outlined the different objects to be attained in the future. He also stated that the association rooms would be open every Wednesday evening for the good and welfare of the members. He urged all the members to work in harmony and unity and by so doing the association was bound to advance in its good work.

Abraham Victorsen in an address impressed upon the members the ways and means of bringing the social life of the association to the front, as well as increasing the membership. A. H. Richards sang a number of popular songs and gave several impersonations of prominent actors. Moses Amdun and Max Bernstein made the evening joyable with piano and violin selections. The committee in charge of the installation and banquet comprised Henry Rosenbaum, chairman; Edward Nadel and Jacob Abrams.

Those officers were installed: President, Samuel Rothberg; vice-president, Harry Siegal; financial secretary, A. H. Richards; recording secretary, Abraham Victorsen; treasurer, Nathan Bernstein; sergeant-at-arms, Morris Abrahams. President. Rothberg appointed Henry Rosenbaum, Alexander L. Kramer and Harry L. Robinson as trustees.

P. H. S. TEAMS DEFEATED AT MONTCLAIR BY LARGE SCORES

The P. H. S. boys' basketball team went down to defeat at the hands of the Montclair High School, at Montclair, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 54 to 6. It was a fast game and both teams played hard, but Montclair was too strong for the Plainfielders. The Montclair boys ran the score up in spite of all that their opponents could do. Morris played the star game for P. H. S., making four of the seven points. The line-up:

Forwards, Morris, Clark and Woodhull; centre, Overton; guards, Doane, Ricketts and Bristol.

The second team from P. H. S. also went down to defeat, Montclair High School seconds winning by a score of 32 to 14. Clark played the best game for Plainfield. The line-up: Forwards, Clark, Woodhull; centre, Manley; guards, Runyon, Bristol.

Autos in Collision.

Two automobiles were in collision, Saturday afternoon, at the corner of Belvidere and South avenues both sustaining slight damage. One was owned by W. A. Mobus, of Summit, and the other by Dr. E. W. Hedges, of this city. According to the police report of the accident Dr. Hedges turned the wrong corner. Fortunately for both they were going at reduced speed.

The Lotus Glee Club will give its annual concert at Y. M. C. A. hall on Thursday night, December 16. Among the artists are Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith, always a favorite with local audiences, Harvey W. Hindermeyer, Jr., Morgan Stricklett, Charles L. Lewis, George H. Bemus and Frank J. Smith, conductor.

SEWER REPORT RECEIVED

City's Committee on Proposed Joint Sewer Explains why Scheme is Abandoned.

AN EXHAUSTIVE INVESTIGATION

No Joint Ownership With Borough—Not Permissable and Contract Would not be Satisfactory to Plainfield.

After an exhaustive investigation of the subject, in all its phases, the Councilmanic committee for the suggested intermunicipal sewage disposal system made an elaborate report at the meeting of the Common Council Monday. Chairman Frederick E. Mygatt presented the document which, after being read, was placed on file.

The report follows:

To the Common Council:

The special sewerage committee reports as follows:

Since the date of its last report your committee was instructed by the Council, in connection of the whole, to prepare and submit a plan for the construction, operation and maintenance of a joint sewerage disposal works by the city and the other interested municipalities.

In endeavoring to formulate such a plan, your committee felt that, because of the number and difficulty of the questions to be considered, the most practicable method of making progress was for the committees for Plainfield and North Plainfield, the two largest communities interested in the project, to meet together, and, if possible, agree upon a plan and division of costs and charges, because, if they could not agree, the plan would, of necessity, fall through, whereas, if they could agree, the terms agreed upon could doubtless be easily re-arranged, as necessary, in order to secure the approval of the other and smaller communities.

To that end, therefore, various meetings were held by your committee, and the committee from the borough.

The questions involved in the formulation of a plan were many and difficult, such as the securing of a suitable site and right of way; the kind and capacity of the plant; the management and control of the construction work; the management of the plant; the amount and division of the initial cost, and of the subsequent improvements, additions or repairs; the division of maintenance charges; the limitation of the liability of each community, and the method of securing to each its full measure of benefit from the completed work.

Two methods of operation were proposed, viz.:

(1) That the city should acquire the site and rights of way, construct and operate the plant, and enter into a contract with the borough, whereby the city should undertake to care for the borough's sewage at an agreed price, and

(2) That the construction and operation should be undertaken jointly, under a contract whereby the expense should be apportioned and each become liable only for so much thereof as should be apportioned to it.

After due consideration, your committee decided that the first plan, viz., the contract plan, was the least desirable. Under that plan the city would be called upon to finance the whole construction, involving an issue of bonds in a large amount, against which the city would hold, as security for the shares of the other communities, only a contract extending over a long period of time, with comparatively small annual payments, the possibility of controversy during a term of years as to the actual adjustments of the contract, which if the parties themselves could not agree upon, would have to be settled by arbitration, thus creating an uncertainty over which the city would have no control.

The other plan, viz., a joint ownership, did not present the difficulties involved in the contract plan.

The idea with respect to this plan was, that the construction, operation and maintenance should be undertaken jointly by the city and the borough, through a joint board or committee, that the cost of construction should be apportioned between the two, and that each should be responsible only for its proportion of the cost.

Having in view, therefore, a plan for a joint construction, the two communities took up the question of an apportionment of the cost and maintenance.

No difficulty was experienced in arranging for a division of maintenance arose, however, with respect to both that the maintenance charges should be divided in proportion to the volume of sewage delivered by each community. A serious difference arose, however, with respect to the division of the cost of construction, including the cost of additions, improvements and repairs.

The committee from the borough proposed that such cost should be apportioned, eighty per cent to the city, and twenty per cent to the borough. In arriving at this proportion, that committee assumed the total population of the city and the borough at twenty-four thousand, and calculated that the borough's population (estimated at fifty-five hundred), was 22.92% of the whole, and the city's population (estimated at 18,500), was 77.08%. They further assumed that the total assessed valuation of the city and borough, was $27,080,000, of which the borough's assessed valuation (estimated at $4,380,000), was 16.18%, and the city's assessed valuation (estimated at $22,700,000), was 83.82%. They then averaged these percentages, and reached the result. (Nor. 1 Plainfield, 22.92% plus 16.18% equals 39.10, called 40, of which one-half is 20%. Plainfield, 77.08% plus 83.82% equals 160.90, called 160, of which one-half is 80%).

Your committee, however, felt that neither the method adopted, nor the result reached, by the borough committee, was satisfactory. With respect to the method, it was conceded that an apportionment of a part of the cost, according to population, was reasonable, but they could not accept an apportionment of the remaining part on the basis of assessed values. With respect to the result, they would not accept a division on the basis of 80% and 20% (because, (a) those percentages were figured on a basis that was not satisfactory, and (b) that the percentage required to be paid by the city was too high.

On such a basis, assuming the cost at $200,000, Plainfield would be required to pay $240,000 and North Plainfield $60,000.

Your committee on its part, proposed that the cost should be apportioned 70% on Plainfield and 30% on North Plainfield, whereby Plainfield (on the same basis of cost), would pay $210,000 and North Plainfield $90,000.

In arriving at this basis of apportionment, your Committee had in mind the fact that Plainfield now has a plant in operation which would have to be abandoned, and they were of the opinion that a joint proposition could not, as between Plainfield and North Plainfield, be undertaken on the same basis as it could if neither community had a plant in operation. They, therefore, undertook to arrive at a proposition which, from a business point of view, would warrant Plainfield in abandoning its present plant and entering into a joint construction, and while the proportion suggested by your committee was not based on any particular plan of averaging percentages, the proportion which they did suggest does in fact approximate very closely the average between the percentage of population and the percentage which the area lying within the limits of each municipality bears to the total area of both.

The discussion of the division of cost was exhaustive at a time unfruitful, but finally it was suggested by North Plainfield that a basis of 75 per cent. and 25 per cent. should be adopted, upon the understanding that if any other community should join in the project, the amount to be paid by them toward the construction cost should be apportioned on the same basis (viz: 75 per cent. and 25 per cent.) between the city and borough, thus operating to reduce the cost to each community. Coupled with this suggestion, however, was the statement that the suggestion was final, and that if the city did not accept it the negotiations must fail.

While your committee still felt that the basis proposed by it was not unreasonable, they decided, after further consideration, that as the completion of the project seemed to be in the interest of the city, and as it had already involved a great deal of study and considerable expense, it was not desirable to permit the negotiations to fail, and it was, therefore, agreed that each committee should recommend to its respective Council that the cost be adjusted on the basis of 75 per cent. chargeable to be paid by Plainfield, and 25 per cent. by North Plainfield.

On the return of the Corporation Counsel from his vacation, your committee took up with him the plan proposed, and a conference was held between him and the attorney for North Plainfield, with respect to the legal questions involved. Thereafter a meeting of the two committees was held, at which the corporation counsel and the attorney for the borough were present, at which time the corporation counsel advised your committee that in his opinion there was no existing law under which a joint ownership plan, such as had been under consideration, could properly be undertaken by the city, however, advised that under existing laws a contract plan could be undertaken.

It was suggested that, as the contract plan was not desirable, an attempt should be made to secure legislation under which a joint ownership plan could be carried out, but it was stated by North Plainfield that the borough could not wait for such legislation, but must take action at once; and, therefore, your committee is not able to see if the terms of a contract could be agreed upon.

While your committee still felt that a contract plan was not advisable, for the reasons hereinbefore set forth, a meeting was subsequently held with the committee from the borough, to further consider the matter. The result became apparent that, even if the objections of your committee with respect to the plan could be overcome, no agreement could be reached as to terms, for the reason that the ideas of your committee with respect thereto differed radically from those of the committee from the borough. In this connection, your committee would call attention to the fact that before the project which this committee had under consideration, was proposed, it was suggested that the city should care for the borough's sewage at the present city disposal works, and at that time a tentative contract was prepared along lines which, it was thought, would be proper from the city's point of view. The terms of this proposed contract were satisfactory to the representative of the borough and the plan, as provided for in the proposed contract, was agreed to be fair and reasonable, but when the payments to be made by the borough thereunder were figured out, they proved to be more than the borough was willing to make.

In considering a contract for the present plan, your committee felt that the same general scheme should be adopted, as was provided for in the prior proposed contract, but the borough committee did not, and would not, definite proposition as to payments was made by either committee, the suggestions offered were such as to show that the committees were hopelessly apart, and your committee, therefore, after again considering the matter, at length came to the North Plainfield committee as follows:

"In view of the opinion of the corporation counsel of the city of Plainfield, that the only practicable method of establishing a joint sewerage disposal system between Plainfield and North Plainfield, is to have the whole plant constructed by Plainfield, and a contract for the use thereof made with North Plainfield, and after due deliberations, the Plainfield special sewerage committee has concluded that such an arrangement could not be effected according to the best interests of the city of Plainfield, and that committee, as now advised, proposed to report accordingly to its Common Council."

Your committee regrets that a satisfactory plant could not be evolved under existing laws. They believe the project has much to commend it, and that its consummation would be for the best interests of the city and the surrounding communities. In order to accomplish the result, however, your committee believes that the project, if carried out at all, should be carried out on a business basis. They believe that such a basis could be worked out, and that if so worked out, the necessary legislation could be obtained to make it effective.

In their present negotiations they have earnestly endeavored, so far as their best judgment would permit, to co-operate with the borough in perfecting a satisfactory plan, but, restricted as they were under existing laws, to a contract plan, they concluded and do now report, that in their opinion, a contract plan would not be in the interest of the city, and should not be entered into.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.

Not on hats, but on evening gowns are these perfectly made silk and muslin blossoms being used. They are strung across the whole front of the bodice, or they fall gracefully over one shoulder and trail down the side of the drapery. To make a spray of the big yellow daises more a part of the gown—one very beauteous yellow gown—they were veiled with shimmering gauze in such a pale shade of canary that it appears almost white over them as a mist. The centres of these daises were almost like yellow suns and their petals a little more delicate.

An effect of this sort could not be gotten except with some soft-toned blossoms, for a heavily colored flower would appear to weigh down the delicate chiffon or crepe of the gown.

Quite Personal.

"I suppose you know of my family tree?" said Baron Fucash, impressively, for he was after the daughter of the house.

"Yes," answered Mr. Gotcash, "it may have been a good tree, all right, but it looks to me as if the crop was a failure."

NO GRAFT AT DUNELLEN

Plans for "Rake-off" on Fire Hose Nipped by Council.

FENNER AWARDED CONTRACT.

Mayor Swackhamer Reports Progress on Sewerage Project—Council Accepts the Sandford Fountain.

Graft in Dunellen municipal affairs was never dreamed of by the inhabitants of that municipality until a few weeks ago when a rumor got in circulation that a couple of persons were in line to receive a "rake off" should the Council place an order of a certain brand of fire hose; if such was the case the graft worm was killed by the Council last night when that body accepted the bid of John Fenner, the hardware merchant of that place, to supply the fire department with 150 feet of hose.

About a couple of months ago the fire department recommended the purchase of some new hose. Bids were received from Mr. Fenner and also from out of town parties. The sentiment of the Council was to place the order with Mr. Fenner, but an objection was raised, on the ground that Fenner was unable to furnish the desired brand, so at the November session of the Council the matter was laid over allowed to lay on the table, and new bids were ordered.

In the meantime it was learned that a certain concern which was anxious to secure the business had quoted two different prices, one 65 cents a foot and another 65 cents a foot. The fact of the company naming the two prices for the same grade of hose led some of the councilmen to believe that the 40 cent margin meant a little "gravy" for some person or persons, and then the rumor of "graft" spread throughout the political circles of the borough.

If there was any graft intended, it was given a deathblow Monday, when the Council voted unanimously to give Mr. Fenner the order. Councilman Wilson Frederick, a member of the fire department, was "Mr. Graft's undertaker. Mr. Frederick was present at the session and when the hose question came up for attention, he took the new terse and plain remarks in which he gave his opinion of the matter. "The bids of the out of town people," he said, "looks crooked to me. Nobody can make me believe otherwise. This concern has named two different prices, one with 40 cents to counts to different dealers. I think there is something crooked going on."

Mr. Frederick supplemented his remarks by declaring he had seen the different quotations in writing and was plain to him that everything was not on the level. As a member of the department he recommended that John Fenner be given the contract, and when the vote was taken, there was not a dissenting voice.

As forecasted in The Daily Press Monday Mayor-elect William A. Sanford presented to the borough a drinking fountain. The Council expressed its appreciation of Mr. Sanford's generosity by tendering him a vote of thanks. The fountain will be placed in the middle of Prospect avenue at the intersection of North avenue. It will contain three basins.

Mayor Swackhamer referred to the proposed sewerage system by informing the Council that the matter between North Plainfield borough and township was progressing satisfactory. He stated that the Zvonlnack farm west of Sebring's mills would in all probability be purchased for the sewage farm.

C. W. Huff presented a revised bill for street sprinkling, and it was ordered paid. A batch of other miscellaneous bills were also ordered paid. The Council also confirmed the recent election in the fire department.

THE BUTTON CROP.

We are told that while the button crop is fairly large the button is to be indulged in with reason. Common sense may not always sway the millinery world, but it should at least enter a protest, with the dressmakers' sanction, against the excessive use of the irrelevant button.

The pockets and cuffs of the year may prove so compelling that we will gladly welcome the number of buttons they demand.

All those French fashions extending over a long period of years upheld the decorative button on lapel and sleeve and pocket. They permitted the requisite number for fastening, with a few odd ones thrown in but they did not encourage the prodigacy that has been our portion during the last few months.

There seems to have been no French excuse, either modern or medieval, for the loading down of the princess panel with contrasting buttons, and we will hope that the incoming girdle around the waist will at least have the effect of stopping the onward rush of the front panel buttons.

ASSESSMENTS REDUCED

Ten of Eighteen Borough Taxpayers Succeed on Appeal in Somerset.

BEFORE THE COUNTY BOARD.

William J. Buttfield Fails to Get a Lower Rating—The Complete List of Those Who Took Appeals.

Ten of the eighteen North Plainfield taxpayers, who filed applications to have their assessments reduced at the recent meeting of the Somerset County Board for the Equalization of Taxes, succeeded in getting reductions; in the cases of the remaining eight, the board voted to let the present assessments stand. All of the allowances were small, the total amount being $600 as compared with the valuations of real estate and personal property, being $2,451.

Mrs. Charlotte De Meza and Mrs. Margaret Smith received the largest consideration by the board, each receiving a reduction of $600 in their assessments. R. D. Carey, of Washington avenue, succeeded in having his entire bill of $400 on real estate and $1 poll tax thrown out, it being shown that he was not subject to taxation at the time the valuations were made, on the grounds that he was a non-resident and did not own the property at that time.

The board refused to meet the views of William J. Buttfield, and J. C. Tappen (the latter representing the estate of Jane and John Tappen. Mr. Buttfield asked the board to reduce the assessment of $45,250 on four plots of ground on West End avenue and Rockview avenue to $39,-948, while Mr. Tappen petitioned the board to revise the assessment on the Tappen estate on Maple avenue from $25,800 to $21,925.15. The petitions granted and the amounts follow:

R. D. Cary Washington avenue, entire bill of $401 thrown out.

Florence M. DeMeza, 74 Duer street, assessment of $2,750 reduced to $1,950.

Rev. R. S. Campbell, Rockview avenue, assessment of $2,200 reduced to $1,800.

Archibald Davie, Manning avenue, entire assessment of $150 on personal property was thrown out.

Antinette Schwartz, Walnut street, assessment of $1,100 reduced to $1,000.

Arthur Pagan, Walnut street, assessment of $1,100 reduced to $1,000.

Margaret Smith, 41 Jackson avenue, assessment of $4,600, to $4,000.

W. J. Hudson, Somerset street, assessment of $4,500 reduced to $4,400.

Estate C. A. Hudson, Somerset street, assessment of $4,800 reduced to $4,500.

James Wheeler, 26 Duer street, personal property assessment of $200, reduced to $100.

In addition to the petitions of W. J. Buttfield and the Tappen Estate, the following were refused by the board:

Walter, H. Butts, 74 Chatham street, asked that the valuation of his property be reduced from $2,400 to $2,000.

Harold L. Mulford, 110 Park place, asked for a reduction on his property which was rated at $2,800.

Charles Barry, 18 Howard street, asked that the valuation on his property be placed at $1,150.

Mrs. W. M. Murray, of New York, owner of 151-155 Manning avenue, asked the assessment of $1,550 be reduced to $1,100.

Delia Lucbeck, 213 Duer street, asked that the valuation of her property be reduced from $1,450 to $1,200.

A. F. Brokaw, 32 Grandview avenue, asked that an assessment of $400 on an automobile be reduced to $300.

"SIT" AND "SET."

Some one who believes in teaching by example has concocted a lesson in the use of two little words which have been a source of mortification and trouble to many well-meaning persons.

A man, or woman either, can set a hen, although they cannot sit her; neither can they set on her, although the hen might sit on them by the hour, if they would allow it.

A man cannot set on the wash bench, but he can manage to get in it, and neither the basin nor the gramarians would object.

He could sit on the dog's tail, if the dog were willing, or he might set his foot on it. But if he should set on the aforesaid tail, or sit his foot there, but he can manage to get in it, the dog would howl—metaphorically at least.

And yet the man might set the tail aside and sit down, and be assailed neither by the dog nor by the gramarians.

George Miller a Benedict.

Announcement is made of the marriage of George Miller, of this city, to Miss Marie Gamble, a vaudeville artist of ability. The ceremony was performed at Elizabeth last Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have taken up their residence on West 117th street, New York. The bridegroom is the son of George Miller, of this city, and is engaged in the theatrical business.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

REVIEW OF CIVIL SERVICE

Ackerman Law Commission Makes its Second Report to Governor.

IT NOW APPLIES TO 11,000.

Amply Demonstrating Its Advantages Already Says President Willis Fletcher Johnson.

According to the second annual report of the New Jersey Civil Service Commission, which was created under the law introduced in the Legislature two years ago by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, the civil service system is amply demonstrating its advantages not only in maintaining an efficient standard of work required from persons in the public service, but also showing value as an economical proposition for the State, counties and cities that are operating under its provisions.

In reviewing the work of the commission for the past year, as submitted to Governor Fort yesterday afternoon, President Willis F. Johnson says that "commendations and criticisms of the law in its administration have been steadily decreasing in frequency and importance in proportion as familiarity with the law to its practical application has dispelled misapprehension concerning it, and has demonstrated its practical utility and benefits." He points out that the system cannot fairly be regarded as adding anything to the net cost of the State government. "It is obvious," he says, "that the work of examining, investigating and otherwise scrutinizing applicants for office so as to determine their capacity and fidelity must be done by some competent person if the public service is to be properly filled. It seems probable that by the assignment of it to a competent person or persons entirely for the purpose that work will be done not only more thoroughly and fairly but also far more economically, in dollars and cents, than it could be done by leaving it to a multiplicity of heads of departments or other officers upon whom it would make series demands and with which regular official work it would at times seriously interfere."

"As showing that the civil service system is working to the satisfaction of officials who in the beginning had some doubt as to the safety of engaging employes under it, the report contains a copy of a letter from State Librarian Henry C Buchanan, who relates that "Mr. Kimball, the chairman of the Public Library Commission, had some doubt as to whether it was safe to engage public library assistants on the record made by an examination conducted by the Civil Service Commission, believing that the personality of the applicant was an important factor. We have learned by experience that it is considered in examinations and that the department heads are consulted in the preparation of examination questions." Mr. Buchanan adds that the selection of an assistant organizer of the Public Library Commission, from the eligible list, furnished under civil service tests is entirely satisfactory.

On the other hand the report points out that there have been 176 dismissals from the public service for cause, which have been promptly and equitably handled under the simple provisions of the civil service law. The dismissals were for a variety of causes, and, according to the report, in many cases heads of departments testified that the civil service had actually facilitated dismissals. On this phase of the work the commission reports: "Only a few dismissals were made for insufficient or illegal cause, and in all cases the careful investigation by this commission and the consequent finding and order resulted in the prompt undoing of the wrong and the reinstatement of the improperly dismissed employes. These facts abundantly demonstrate that the civil service law affords practical and efficient protection to faithful and competent place-holders, while it does not in the least shield the unfaithful and incompetent and does not in any degree prevent the improvement of the services by weeding out unworthy incumbents."

The commission maintains that the complaint that the system "adds stultified by the expression of preference for that system of local examining boards which formerly prevailed to a limited extent. The fact is that the system imposes no local expense whatever in any case, while it actually relieves considerably the expense those municipalities which formerly had local boards for police and fire department examinations.

At the present there are approximately 11,000 public officers, State and municipal, within the purview of the commission. During the year

TO INSTAL LIGHTING PLANT

Muhlenberg Hospital Governing Board Considering Improvement.

DR. F. J. HUGHES APPOINTED.

Arrangements for Charity Ball, "The Climax," and Hospital Sunday, December 26.

The building and grounds committee of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at a meeting Monday night, reported favorably on the proposition to instal an electric lighting plant at the hospital. An investigation by experts shows that such a plant would mean a saving of between $500 and $1,000 a year, covering the expense of lighting and heating. However, as it would cost about $4,000 to instal such a plant, it was decided inadvisable to begin work this year. It is hoped that the improvement will be possible in the near future.

The board decided to prepare and distribute in the various churches of the city a circular giving interesting facts about the hospital, acquainting the people with what has been done and what is proposed. This will be done for "Hospital Sunday," December 26, when the annual offering is received for the hospital.

Dr. Charles A. Jaffurs and Dr. N. W. Carrie were appointed clinical assistants for the balance of the present hospital year, upon the recommendation of the medical board.

It was reported that over 200 tickets have already been sold for the Charity Ball to be held Friday night, December 31. Attention was called to the fact that "The Climax," with Effingham Pinto in the cast would be presented at the Plainfield theatre that night as an added attraction. Many of those going to the theatre will attend the ball afterwards.

The board appointed Dr. Frederick J. Hughes, a member of the medical board and an assistant in the department of medicine and surgery, house physician in charge of the tuberculosis pavilion. It was also decided by resolution to direct the managing committee of the hospital to confer with the executive committee of the tuberculosis society so that some satisfactory arrangements can be made for keeping accounts, showing the expense of managing the tuberculosis pavilion.

The members thought it best to explain the exact relation between the hospital and tuberculosis work. Last spring the hospital authorities were enjoined by the society to use the tuberculosis society to permit the erection of a pavilion on the hospital grounds as an experiment for a definite period of about one year. The society agreed to build and equip the pavilion complete and turn it over to the hospital with the understanding that the hospital should have entire control and management of the pavilion and entire care of the patients.

The society was to have the right, however, to nominate the patients to be treated in the pavilion, and agreed to provide all necessary funds for the operation and management of the pavilion, so long as it remained on the hospital grounds. In other words, while the funds for operating the pavilion are entirely provided by the tuberculosis society, the management and operation is under the sole control of the hospital.

These conditions were entirely agreeable to the tuberculosis society which felt that the hospital could better undertake such management than the society. The hospital governors felt it their duty to undertake the work, being interested in everything that pertains to the welfare of Plainfield and the health of its citizens. Of course, the society owns the pavilion, although located on the hospital grounds. The board expressed great satisfaction over the fact that it is able to lend its aid.

Y.M.C.A. ORCHESTRA'S CONCERT APPLAUDED

A large audience listened with pleasure to the fine concert given in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium by the association orchestra last night and applauded the various numbers on a lengthy program to the limit. Miss Bertha Van Nuise Willis sang charmingly three songs and made a decidedly favorable impression. She was particularly pleasing in Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me," followed by "I Love You," by Schultz.

The orchestra under the direction of Martin A. Korff acquitted itself with creditable credit and was very clever in Jungmann's quintet for violins, flute, clarionette and piano, played by G. Spier, E. Faber, W. Sampson, J. McNabb and C. E. Spier. Herbert B. Smith, accompanied on the piano by Miss Ethel L. Knowlton, played exceedingly well a 'cello solo, a romance in F by Ball.

Dr. Hughes suggested that the police notify the owner of the dog to keep the animal chained up for a period of ten days so that it may be determined whether it has rabies.

CREW'S SUPERSTITION DELAYS CLARK FUNERAL

The body of J. Andrew Clark, formerly of Plainfield, but who died in Kingston, Jamaica, December 1, did not arrive in New York yesterday on the Princess Augustus Wilhelm, as expected, but instead it is due to arrive on one of the Red D Line steamers in New York on Sunday night. V. W. Nash, who is the executor of the Clark estate has received a cablegram from the American consul that the body was sent on the Hamburg-American Line steamer, but late yesterday afternoon he received another cablegram from the consul explaining that it had been sent on another steamer and would arrive in New York Sunday night.

Inquiry brought forth the information that after it had been decided to send the body on the Princess Augusta Wilhelm, the captain of the steamer refused to allow it to be taken aboard, explaining that his crew would not make the trip if this was permitted. Accordingly, the body was left at Kingston to be placed aboard another steamer.

Mr. Nash has met with many obstacles in his efforts to have Mr. Clark's body and effects brought home. He gave the American consul explicit instructions in a cablegram to have the body sent in a hermetically sealed casket and at the least possible expense. Instead of this, the Kingston undertaker had a handsome casket for $400, and was informed that an iron casket had been used, as a metallic casket was not available. Mr. Nash says when Mr. Clark died he had on his person a little over $400 in United States Express money orders and was under the impression that he had left a will, but as they were not endorsed, could not be collected. He is of the opinion that the Kingston undertaker was determined to get about all of Mr. Clark's ready cash for his work.

Before Mr. Clark died he gave jewelry and personal effects to his body and personal effects sent to Mr. Nash. The American consul wrote Mr. Nash that he would comply with the request, provided he forwarded to him a copy of the probate will, but otherwise he could not follow out the instructions. This further complicates matters, the lawyer says.

Undertaker George Cole was at the Hamburg-American Line pier in New York yesterday waiting the arrival of the steamer on which the body was supposed to be. He spent several hours there, only to learn that the body would not reach New York until Sunday night. No arrangements for the funeral will be made until the body reaches Plainfield.

CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION AGAINST WHITE PLAGUE BEGUN HERE WHEN DISTINGUISHED MEN SPEAK

Dr. James Miller, Homer Folks and Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf

Lecture and Paper by Bishop Mc Faul is Read by Father Powers.

Several hundred people were in attendance and applauded heartily the speakers at the mass meeting held in the High School auditorium last night under the auspices of the Plainfield Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis. Right Rev. Dr. James A. McFaul was too ill to be present, so his secretary, Rev. John Powers, read the bishop's paper.

Speeches were made by Dr. James Miller, who is connected with the tuberculosis clinic of Bellevue Hospital, New York; Rev. Dr. J. A. Chamblliss, pastor of the First Baptist church; Homer Folks, secretary of the N. Y. State Charities Aid Association, and Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf, who is connected with the New York City Health Department.

The speakers were introduced by the president of the local society, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace P. E. church, who presided at the meeting.

Bishop McFaul's paper was interesting from the array of facts which it presented the work of his church during many centuries in connection with the establishing of hospitals all over the world. The Catholic church began this work during the Middle Ages and has continued up to now creating and maintaining through its various religious orders a system of help to the sick. He said it was due to the work of Pope Innocent III that the modern hospital is due. The hospital which was modeled after the great Montpelier hospital in Paris, is still standing near St. Peter's at Rome.

St. Bartholomew's, in London, is another monument to the indefatigable work of the Catholic societies and to them the two has emanated the work which now concerns the world at large.

Bishop McFaul's speech was in part as follows:

"The Bishop of Fano in Italy has issued a circular letter directing the priests of his diocese to carry out the following regulations: (1). In every church the floor must be regularly cleaned with sawdust, saturated with a strong sublimate solution. This thorough cleansing should take place particularly after holidays, when great masses of the people have visited the church. (2). Every week all ordinary chairs and confessional chairs must be thoroughly cleaned with moist rags. (3). The grate of the confessionals must be washed every week with lye and then polished.

"Now if the Christian churches all over the world, and all those who are interested in the welfare of humanity would engage in this campaign—the campaign of the education of the masses, and a campaign of the eradication of the great white plague, it would not be very many years before we would have its terible ravages under control.

"I have followed the example of my brother Bishop in Italy, and I have issued a pastoral entitled 'Tuberculosis, Its Prevention and Relief.' In this way I have endeavored to instruct my priests and the 150,000 people under my charge on the nature of consumption and the means to be adopted against it. I have even gone further than having the pamphlet read in all the churches for I have purchased a large farm on a mountain a few miles out of Trenton contiguous to railroad and trolley, on which I intend to erect a modern sanitarium with adjoining shacks for the treatment of incipient cases. I am also one of the honorary vice-presidents of the New Jersey Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis. Lately his Excellency, Governor Fort appointed me a member of the State Tubercular Commission, of which I have the honor to be chairman.

"So you see, the Catholic church in New Jersey is striving to do her part in the battle which is being waged against this disease.

"Let us dwell upon it a little longer. In describing the necessity of this campaign, consumption or tuberculosis has long afflicted the human race. It deserves, from the number of its victims to be called the disease of the masses. A great disaster like the recent earthquake in Italy arouses the sympathy of the world, and millions of dollars pour in for relief, yet the ravages of tuberculosis are so extensive and so unceasing that the destruction brought about in a few seconds by the gigantic forces of nature sinks into comparative insignificance. It has been estimated that there are between one hundred and one hundred and fifty thousand deaths every year from consumption in the United States. In New Jersey during last year there were 3,749 deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis alone. I may observe, here, that although tuberculosis and consumption are frequently employed as interchangeable terms, they do not convey exactly the same meaning. Tuberculosis is the seed which ordinarily ends in the production of consumption.

"Consumption has been defined as a disease caused by the growth of certain micro-organisms in the tissues of our bodies. These micro-organisms grow in us, much in the same way as wheat, timothy and clover grow in a field. It is a complication of diseases or we should say rather a mixture of diseases, and therefore before the suffering, distress and bodily decay known as consumption, has received its name from one of its most striking symptoms, waste of the body.

"Dr. Koch, of Berlin, discovered the cause of tuberculosis, viz.: The tubercle bacillus. The word bacillus means a little rod, and as the tubercle bacillus is rod-shaped, this term has been applied to it. It is a small parasite belonging to the vegetable kingdom, and is the specific cause of all tuberculosis, gradually destroys the lungs by associating with other micro-organisms, which produce ulceration and generate certain poisons which result in consumption properly so-called.

"The bacillus is propagated by fission or self-division. The spores resemble small seeds and are contained in the tubercle. The mode of propagation by fission is very interesting. Each bacillus contracts in the middle and divides into two parts. The rapidity of this process may be conceived when we learn that the progeny of his disease may be multiplied into many millions during twenty-four hours. (No race suicide).

"It will be unnecessary for me to trespass further on the knowledge which it is the office of the specialist to disseminate, further than to say that to prevent consumption two things are required, the removal of the source of contagion and the removal of predisposing causes. When we take into consideration that these means must be made effective on the masses of society, we readily conclude that success can only be obtained through the aid of a wise government, skillful physicians and an intelligent people.

Until recent years it was thought that a consumptive should be kept in a warm, close room, but now we are certain that he ought to have plenty of fresh air, sunlight, nourishing food, and in some cases light exercise.

"I should emphasize the fact that consumption is pre-eminently a house disease. Therefore, it is reasonable to expect that the contagion will abound wherever the consumptive dwells.

"It has been observed that tuberculosis is very prevalent in certain localities. Indeed, it may be said that because careless patients have resided in certain houses for a long time, or because the soil on which they had *been erected or the modes of con*struction favorable that the infection always exists in those places. When the infection cannot otherwise be satisfactorily exterminated these buildings should be pulled down. As disinfection is a very difficult operation, it can, for the most part, be performed efficiently only by experts. Hence, wherever possible, disinfection should be the work of the board of health.

"The church can be of great assistance in this campaign, first by educating the people to a knowledge of the disease and the proper methods of its prevention, secondly, in a thorough cleansing of all religious, educational and charitable institutions under her control; thirdly, by the erection of sanitoriums and the employment of capable nurses.

"Finally, no disease perhaps is more deceptive in its duration than consumption. It may terminate fatally in two weeks, or it may cover many years. When the disease is rapidly undermining the system, the patient has a severe cough, night sweats and weakness, the clergyman should be called in, because death may occur suddenly. Here is where the clergyman as the minister of the church can do great good, for his misistrations will be productive of

PROTEST AGAINST TANK

Civic Bodies and Property Owners Strongly Object to Gasolene Storage.

VIEWED AS FIRE MENACE.

The Fire and Building Committee Hears That There Is General Opposition to Installation of Tank.

For the purpose of getting all the information possible on the subject, the fire and building committee of the Common Council, held an open conference Friday night after the adjourned meeting, to discuss questions relative to the petition of F. L. C. Martin for permission to install a ten thousand gallon gasolene tank on his premises on Park avenue.

There was a large delegation of business men, including representatives of the Board of Trade, as well as interested property-owners and insurance agents. As chairman of the fire and building committee, Duncan W. Taylor, presided at the conference and invited everyone present to express their opinions on the subject.

In the first place, several letters written to Leitke & Laing, insurance agents, by various insurance companies, represented by the firm, were read. These were in response to inquiries made by Leitke & Laing. The letters were from the Scottish-Union Fire Insurance Company, Firemen's Insurance Company, Fidelity Fire Insurance Company, Germania Fire Insurance Company, and in each instance the company deplored the fact that such a proposition was being considered here and intimated strongly that insurance rates would be raised, if not cancelled, if the installation of the tank is permitted.

There was also a letter from Fire Chief Edward F. Croker, of the New York department, who said that in his opinion the installation of such a tank would be out of the question under any conditions. He felt sure it would be a great hazard. Chief Croker said that in New York, 250 gallons are permitted stored in one place.

The Plainfield Protective Association, through R. Henry Depew, communicated with the Common Council, protesting against the granting of the petition. He urged that action be deferred until the Board of Underwriters of the Middle Division be permitted to investigate conditions and report. He called attention to the fact that, in his opinion, Mr. Martin would be able to get gasolene at a less rate and thereby make greater profit. This, he thought, should not be considered as against the safety of the public. He called attention to the fact that it costs the city $36,000 a year to maintain its fire department, which he thought was responsible.

Councilman Buxton referred to the fact that he had received a letter from the Northern Insurance Company, of London, in which it took practically the same position as the others answering Leitke & Laing's inquiry.

In an effort to bring out other opinions, Mr. Taylor invited anyone present to speak. Judge William Newcorn, of counsel for F. L. C. Martin, stated that, before presenting his side of the case, was anxious to hear the side of the opposition. In reply, Mr. Taylor said that the conference was merely an informal one and a free expression of opinion was invited from all. Mr. Taylor said in his opinion he thought it would be safe to install the tank, but if insurance rates were going to jump, he might be against the proposition.

Mr. Taylor then read from the book or ordinances of several cities, supplied by Superintendent H. W. Marshall of the Board of Trade, showing the quantity of gasolene permitted in these cities. They are as follows:

Baltimore, 275 gallons; Jersey City, 1,375 gallons; Atlanta, 110 gallons in a building; Knoxville, 110 gallons; New York city, 275 gallons; San Francisco, 300 gallons; Louisville, 250 gallons.

At this time, Judge Newcorn introduced R. Barton Hammond, sales agent for the Hammond Iron Works, of Warren, Pa., which concern proposes to make the gasolene tank for Mr. Martin if his petition is granted. Mr. Hammond's father is the founder of the concern, and he himself has been in the experience of fifteen years in the business. Mr. Hammond gave an interesting talk from the viewpoint of an expert, describing in detail the manufacture of gasolene and telling of its dangers and the proper and improper way of handling it. He said that at the company works in Warren, there is a tank with a capacity of 1,250,000 gallons and several similar tanks nearby. These are kept filled with gasolene at all times.

In the opinion of Mr. Hammond gasolene stored properly in a tank underground is absolutely safe. He said that there are several tanks of 5,000 capacity in Philadelphia, New York and Brooklyn and they are not considered extra hazardous. He considered a 1,000 tank more hazardous than one of 10,000, owing to the oftentimes careless manner in which the smaller quantity is handled. He said that all gasolene tank cars must be built according to the specifications of the Pennsylvania railroad, and when this is done, the company will not only transport the cars, but insure their delivery. He read from a letter received from a New York concern in which it was stated that in New York, during the past eight years two garages had been destroyed by fire and at least twelve churches, showing the garages to be the better risk.

Mr. Hammond was plied with numerous questions by the councilmen and others present, and he appeared to answer all satisfactorily. He said that if such a tank as proposed was installed here, he would be willing to stand by any requirement that the Council might make. He referred to V. L. Boys, of Gilbert, Park & Co., who is considered the greatest expert on gasolene in the country, and said that in his opinion there would be no danger from installing such a tank.

Judge Newcorn then gave additional facts in support of his contention that there would be no danger. He quoted from the Gilbert, Parker Company, to show what it is essential to bury gasolene underground in properly built tanks and that this way there is no danger, with a vent pipe erected ten feet above the highest surrounding buildings.

Mr. Newcorn said that the whole matter resolved itself into two questions, namely, the risk or hazard be increased and will the insurance rates go up. Speaking about the possibility of a raise in insurance rates, Judge Newcorn made a bonafide offer to replace all insurance cancelled or raised on premises for a period of from three to ten years and in addition give the insured a ten per cent discount. He said that he would be willing to furnish a bond to guarantee the fulfillment of his offer. This offer would refer to any property owner affected by the installation of the proposed tank.

"I want to be perfectly fair with you," said Judge Newcorn, "but I want to call your attention to the fact that there is no ordinance in force in State law that would prevent the installation of this tank. It is not necessary for Mr. Martin to come here and ask your permission to do this. However, he is not willing to do anything contrary to the wishes of the people, and will not install the tank unless he has the good will of all."

Other remarks were made by H. W. Marshall, F. A. Dettenhoffer, Mayor Fisk and others, and it was finally decided that the best plan would be to make a thorough investigation, draft a suitable ordinance covering the matter, one that would be reasonable and fair to the gasolene dealers, as well as the best interests of the city. It developed that the Board of Trade, as well as others who had appeared as objectors, had nothing against Mr. Martin, the only object being to thoroughly protect the city.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED BY COURT PLAINFIELD

Court Plainfield, No. 7144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting Friday, received six applications for membership. There was a large attendance of members, and in the good and welfare a smaker was enjoyed. The initiation of candidates was postponed to the last meeting of the year, when a large class will be put through. These officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Handy Asbestos Pads.

Many a housewife would appreciate a set of asbestos pads to put under the doilies and napkins when the polished table is used for luncheon. These pads may be had in various shapes and sizes and have the virtue of lasting many years.

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

O dear, what can the chatter be
Dear O, what can this clatter be?
O dear, what can the matter be
A Poet's come over the sea!
It's true Willy Watson fine jingles can handle,
Yet Gothamite gossipers call him a vandal
Because he brings with him a rich bit of scandal,
To stingo their afternoon tea!

Invited to grace the tea-room of the Premier
By his radiant wife and a daughter,
And by high soaring talk make their tipple much creamier,
Their Pet-Poet went, innocentlee;
They regaled him with slurs on the honour of one
(The former Prime Minister, now dead and gone)
Whose speeches and "hits" were writ by 'anon.'"
Said these Ladies of high degree:

So he left, and wrote then a sort of
"I'll snubble you;"
"Miladies, On that tale of C. B. let me trouble you,
It's a feminine fib. Solon, W. W."
Then he sailed for this Land of the Free,
Where a man may stand up for his live or dead friend,
Against slanders that shuttlees in satin may vend,
And be prased for his pluck—save by weaklings who blend
Toady venomous tales with their tea.

We used to hear much about the sagacity of horses, but the most striking instance that has reached these ears in many years is that told by a lady of Plainfield who, only the other day, went over to New York to go a-shopping. It was one of the greasy muddy days when the Sixth avenue asphalt offers the possibilities of a free skating rink. Stepping off the curb at a corner she slipped and slid and found herself on her back, looking at the uplifted hoof of a drayborse just about to stamp out her life, for so it seemed doomed in that instant stupor which, it is hoped, most victims of the agonies of conscious death in pain. In moments like this one seems to review one's entire life as in a panorama, and is able with marvellous indifference to picture the incidents between the shock and the burial. The writer went through what seemed a wearisome entertainment of this kind during a crazy fall of some twenty feet only. Without actually losing her consciousness or nerve—for she did not even scream—she noted that ominous hoof descend slowly, not on her face, but carefully across to her side and so that truly human horse rolled the prostrate form out of his path. There was no lack of willing hands to pick her up and congratulate her on the remarkable escape. Pity that our phony sciences do not invent an instrument that will carry into a good horse's brain our votes of gratitude for their many kindnesses to us who use them so hard.

It has frequently been made known in church statistics that the average income of ministers is short of $1,000 a year. Some declare $700 to be nearer the truth, but we may take it that here attempts make up the balance. On the other hand, look at the prize fighters. A generation ago they ran the risk of arrest and had harder fights than now, yet they were well rewarded with a thousand. From the money standpoint these were hard times for preachers and golden days for the pugs. Fists fetch thousands when brains drag hard for tens. Here are two laboring men, one black, the other white; by becoming belaboring ringmen they are able to sign articles which guarantee $200,000 to be divided between them as winner and loser. The preacher may take heart; most of the fighting is done by mouth. A year of amusing bounce, brag and bluster, then a couple of hours of hitting with gloves. But this almost Presidential income is not all won by fists and mouth. Perhaps the biggest share comes from the moving picture shows of the fight. Again, perhaps, between now and the 4th of July the whole affair may fizzle, as black men have been known to turn shy and whites have yellow jaundice.

The wise men of Gotham seem rather afraid of the weird witch Eusapia Paladino. A band of them, flying the flag of Science, brought her over from Italy, where her "spiritist" performances have long baffled European wits. Here the cradle of spirit rapping as a lucrative profession, it was expected that we would quickly tell whether the mystic matron is a real witch or only a bewitching Barnumess. So far she appears to be left up in the air, baffling the scientific sceptics daring to give us their verdict.

From all the printed stuff describing her manifestations one gathers nothing but very stale echoes of old experiences. We have had a confidential half hour's chat with Shakespeare in the person of a medium who could not even spell the poet's name when out of the trance. Our common-sense questionings, interruptions and wide-awakishness always happened to "spoil the conditions" in which alone the mysteries can happen. We have seen probably every one of the fifty-seven varities of dark and light seance performances, and occasionally have charmed the true believers by contributing "manifestations" of our own, with complete success, until avowing the fraud afterwards. Only one curious thing in all those years baffled all guessings.

When taking your walks abroad in the sacred groves—now de-graded into common streets—of Plainfield, you see many a queer thing or happening which the poor folk doomed to go on wheels miss. On Shanks' pony the over-worked brain—if we carry one—and its spies and serving members have a chance to relax. On an engine the nerves are on the rack, the eyes rivitted on the chances of a spill, and consequently the gentler faculties that are given us to sow from prickly briars the delight of liberated fancy are screwed down and in peril of being completely stifled. Some fine old crank it was who two centuries ago wound up his vagrom tramp and floating thoughts in the lines that just come to mind as a good ending to this rambling scribble:

The best for health on exercise depend;
God never made his work for man to mend.

R. R. EMPLOYEES CLUB OF ATHLETES OPENED

Friday night was one that will be remembered by the employes as well as the officials of the C. R. R. of N. J., as the date marks the opening of the Jersey Central Athletic Association new club rooms in Jersey City terminal building, which had been donated to the association by the company. The event was a gala one, being attended by the several hundred of the employes as well as many of the officials of the company.

Open house was enjoyed from 6 until 11 o'clock and the way the committee catered to the comforts of their guests made the hours glide swiftly by. The early part of the evening was spent in speech making and congratulations. F. T. Dickerson, president of the association and assistant to Vice-President and General Manager Wm. G. Besler, opened the festivities with an address of welcome. Mr. Dickinson spoke of the objects of the association, of the many courtesies extended to it by the company and thanked the company on behalf of the association for furnishing the club house with the handsome new and comodious quarters. The support received had done much to encourage the members and make the association the success it was.

Other addresses were made by C. W. Huntington, general superintendent; F. F. Chambers, superintendent of motive power; C. H. Stern, superintendent maintenance of way; H. J. Northrop, chief clerk to superintendent; E. E. Kerwin, H. M. Maynard, Dr. Henry Mott, and Editor Chapin, of the Railway Employe. The association Glee Club rendered several selections which were much enjoyed. Following the speeches refreshments and cigars were served in the main dining saloon of the club house, which is fitted up in royal style by the refreshment committee.

While cigars were being enjoyed the members and their friends spent the time in a social way, playing pool and other games, enjoying music, and in being acquainted with one another. The new rooms presented a very pretty appearance. The flags and palms used in decorating making a pretty effect. The rooms, which overlook the North river, are large, commodious, being finished entirely in white, and the new home of the association is appreciated by all.

The association was organized July 26, 1904, its object being the encouragement of physical culture and many opportunities for promotion of good fellowship among the employes. The company gave encouragement to the new organization by setting aside a piece of ground at Communipaw for an athletic ground. Baseball has been taken up and a regular league schedule of games is played each year by the teams of the different departments, the prize being the Besler trophy which was donted by Vice-President W. G. Besler. Each winter an entertainment and dance is held, the date this year being Monday night, Dec. 26. This is the winter event in the social life among the employes.

The present officers of the association are: President, F. T. Dickerson; vice-president, Harry J. Northrop; treasurer, Thomas C. Mulligan; secretary, George F. Bellis; chairman committee on constitution and by-laws, Edward Conover. The association has grown from a young and hopeful infant into a strong and flourishing organization. While its success is not due to one man, still too much credit cannot be given to its president, Mr. Dickerson, who has been untiring in his efforts to bring the association up to its present standard.

CHURCH WORKERS CONFER

F. S. Goodman, G. S. Simons J. H. Manning Make Addresses.

A THREE DAYS' SESSION.

Condition of Churches Noted by a Speaker—Meetings Scheduled for This Afternoon and Tomorrow.

A conference for men leaders of men's and boys' work in the churches of Plainfield and vicinity met Friday afternoon at the Young Men's Christian Association with an attendance of thirty laymen and pastors. The conference is under the direction of F. S. Goodman, Bible study secretary of the international committee of Young Men's Christian Associations. The first session opened with a suggestive study, presented by Mr. Goodman, of conditions in men's and boys' work in thirteen local churches. The summaries given showed a total membership in these churches of 5,712, of whom 3,950 are males a total Sunday school enrollment above primary grades of 2,892, of whom 1,162 are males. In these churches there are eighteen men's Bible classes with an enrollment of 265 and fifty-nine boys' classes enrolling 572. The most pronounced weakness in the work, as evidenced in the reports studied, is a lack of provision for teacher training, there being no such classes for male teachers and but two mixed classes. His suggestion of a union training class was received with marked approval.

A forceful address on "Bible Study; the Heart of Effective Religious Work for Men and Boys," given by G. Stuart Simons, followed this presentation. Mr. Simons stated that the central importance of Bible study is dependent upon three things: The teacher's acceptance of the Bible as the word of God; thorough preparation of the lesson and one's own personal needs of the class as will promote the ends of teaching, helping to right conduct and winning to Christ.

An interesting and helpful discussion on the work of the men's Bible class, led by Mr. Goodman, brought out many valuable suggestions. Speaking of the methods that hold men, Mr. Goodman said that the teacher and the course that get closest to Jesus Christ interest men most. The slogan of the men's Bible class should not be "Get men out," but "Get men into service."

In the evening, John H. Manning led in the discussion of the topic, "Co-operating in Promoting Bible Study." Following this, Mr. Goodman conducted a discussion on Bible Class extension in the course of which he stated that Bible classes have now been extended into nearly sixty different meeting places outside church and association buildings, including saloons, car barns, boarding-houses, offices, theatres, farm-houses, fire and police stations, etc. In one city of 10,000 inhabitants in Pennsylvania, over twenty such classes are maintained. He strongly urged a city-wide Bible study campaign.

The program for today and tomorrow follows:

Today—4:00 to 5:30—Third session, James E. Kimball, presiding; devotional service, Rev. M. Anderson, D. D.; "The Right Kind of a Boys' Bible Class—What it will do for the Boy and the Church," address by William D. Murray; "The Boys' Bible Class, discussion led by Mr. Goodman. 6:30—Supper for conference men. 7:15—"The Teacher—The Fundamental Problem in Promoting Bible Study;" "The World Wide Association at its Best," stereopticon lecture by Mr. Goodman.

Sunday, 4 p. m.—Fourth conference session, Gavett presiding; "The Revival of Bible Study by Men—What it means to Men and to the Kingdom of God," address by F. S. Goodman.

LOUIS K. HYDE BUYS A BIG BOND ISSUE

The Common Council, at an adjourned meeting Friday, sold its school and sewer bonds at a most advantageous price to Louis K. Hyde of this city. In all there were $98,000 worth of bonds; $45,000 on account of the proposed new school; $43,000 on account of sewer improvements and $10,000 for school furnishing. They were put on sale Monday and Mr. Hyde secured the entire issue for $98,034.20 and accrued interest. His bid was accepted.

It was stated last night by Mayor C. J. Fisk that Plainfield is the only city in the State, within the past three months, that has been able to sell its bonds at par and interest. He mentioned several cities that had tried it, but failed. This is due to the natural tightness of the money market, persons having money looking to get bigger returns in other ways.

HOLTON WILL CONTEST

Somerset Court Denies Motion to Prevent Probate of the Testament.

CAVEATORS STILL FIGHTING.

Judge Louis H. Schenck Dismisses Objections but Claimants Will Continue Their Efforts.

Judge Louis H. Schenck, of the Somerset County Court, Friday, handed down his decision in the matter of the Mary E. Holton will case, which was argued before him five weeks ago. He denied the motion of the caveators, who sought to prevent the probate of the will. The caveators say that they will make an attempt to show that Miss Holton was mentally incapacitated at the time of making the will.

There are a great many witnesses to be called by counsel for the caveators and the court will fix a time for a continuation of the hearing. Willard A. Coddington and Alva A. Clark represent the proponents, while there are a number of lawyers representing the caveators.

In the matter of the motion to deny the probate of Miss Mary E. Holton's will, made by counsel for the caveators, the court said:

"In the Estate of Mary E. Holton, deceased, at the conclusion of the testimony offered by the proponents, motion was made by the caveators to deny the probate of the will because of the insufficiency of the evidence offered on the part of the proponents. I have examined into that question, and have decided to deny the motion."

TO DRAFT ORDINANCE FOR GASOLENE TANK

Mayor Charles J. Fisk sent a message to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting, Friday, in reference to the application now pending for the installation of a ten thousand gallon gasolene tank at a local garage, in which he recommends that, inasmuch as the city has no ordinance to govern or control such matters, the matter be referred to the committee on fire investigation with a view to drafting a suitable ordinance covering the subject. The suggestion was well received and it is proposed to have the ordinance drafted at an early date. The Mayor's message follows:

"Referring to the application now pending for the installation of a ten thousand gallon tank for the storage of gasolene, in or near the garage of F. L. C. Martin, I desire to call your attention to certain conditions.

"First—Conditions are now here no rules or regulations for the storage of gasoline in the city of Plainfield.

"Second—The automobile has now come to stay, and the automobilists must have gasoline to run their cars.

"Third—The dealer must have some place to store his gasoline where it is convenient to the garage, and for the filling of the tanks on the automobiles.

"These conditions must be met with reasonable fairness to the dealer, the convenience of his customers, and proper protection to the adjoining property holders.

"I, therefore, recommend that this matter be laid upon the table for the present; that no permits be granted; that the matter be referred to a committee to investigate and to submit to the Council rules and regulations for the storage and sale of gasoline, which rules can be placed in an ordinance and thereafter enforced, due attention being given to make these rules and regulations reasonable and fair, not only to the dealer, but to the citizens owning surrounding property, and for the welfare of the city."

During the regular order of business several petitions were received from property-owners and residents in the vicinity of the F. L. C. Martin auto garage, protesting against the granting of Mr. Martin's petition for permission to erect the tank on his premises. The tenor of these petitions was that the insurance rates might be increased or cancelled owning to the extra hardous risk.

In this connection the message bearing on the topic was received from Mayor Fisk and referred to the fire and building committee. A petition was received from the Spicer Universal Joint Company, of Madison avenue and West Third street, asking for permission to install two five thousand gallon tanks for the storage of oil to be used for manufacturing purposes. This petition was referred to the fire and building committee.

Mr. Gloak called up the ordinance establishing side lines on Sherman avenue, between Plainfield and Grant avenues, and it was adopted on third reading. The Council took an adjournment to Wednesday night, December 22, when the business for the year will be concluded.

HIS DEATH GIVES RISE TO RUMORS OF SUICIDE

Edward Nelson Found Dying in Bed by His Brother Succumbs Before Doctor Arrives.

COUNTY PHYSICIAN SUMMONED.

Well Known Plainfielder's Life Comes to a Sudden End—Was Ticket Agent at North Avenue Station for Many Years.

Edward Nelson, one of the best known residents of Plainfield, died in his apartments, 116 Jackson building, about 12:30 Saturday morning, and there are indications to show that death was not from natural causes. It is known that of late Mr. Nelson had given unmistakable signs of melancholia. He was worried because of the fact that he was long out of regular employment and had been, in fact, since he was asked to resign his position as ticket agent at the North avenue station.

Mr. Nelson returned to his home at 10:30 o'clock last night, and his sister said that he went to the faucet and drew a glass of water which he drank, according to his usual custom. He and his brother, Joseph Nelson, slept together, and the latter says that about 11:30 o'clock he was awakened by his brother's heavy breathing. When questioned if he was in distress, Mr. Nelson admitted that he was and requested that Dr. M. B. Long be summoned. When the physician arrived the man was dead.

The circumstances surrounding the death were such that Dr. F. W. Westcott, the county physician, was summoned to the house. The post mortem examination showed the body to be in a rigid condition, which would not be indicated in a case of apoplexy and the fact that Mr. Nelson conversed with members of the family after being taken ill would further indicate, so physicians say, that death was due to other causes than apoplexy.

Mr. Nelson a short time ago was a collector for the Prudential Insurance Company.

The glass from which Mr. Nelson drank after returning home, contained a small quantity of liquid, but an examination showed this to be clear water, so that, so far as the police rules or regulations for the storage of gasoline in the city of Plainfield. TOLD ALL ABOUT MILK

George Christian Talked Interestingly at a Business College Entertainment.

HIS LECTURE WAS ILLUSTRATED

"Dry Milk and Its By-Products" the Subject—How to Get Rid of the Germs.

"Dry Milk and Its By-Products," was the subject of an interesting illustrated lecture given at the Plainfield Business College, Thursday, by George Christian, of this city. The speaker illustrated his subject by showing milk enlarged through a microphic method, 10,000 times, and he also showed samples of dry milk and casein, which he considered to be two of the greatest discoveries for manufacturing purposes.

In showing how necessary the old cow is, Mr. Christian stated that from casein is manufactured paper, burlap, silk, lace, curtain material, toilet articles, cigarettes, paste, paint, milk chocolate, confectionery and ice cream. He gave a plain talk on the sanitary and unsanitary handling of milk and dairies, and told of the percentage of bacteria in milk of various grades.

Mr. Christian also told how to purify milk and lessen the danger of tuberculosis and typhoid fever germs, through pasturization of the fluid. He explained how this can be done in the home at little expense and how to detect impure milk.

Speaking of sugar milk, the speaker told of its value and uses, and related interesting facts relative to the feeding of children, and invalids. Mr. Christian will repeat this talk at the Y. M. C. A. hall, the North Plainfield High School and several churches in the city. He is connected with one of the largest companies outside of the milk trust, and those who have heard his talk are much impressed with the value of them from a health point of view.

Over four hundred pupils, graduates and friends attended the lecture and entertainment. The college colors, red and white, banners and flags were arranged about the hall. A fine musical program and dramatic readings by pupils of the college were features of the evening.

Prof. A. S. Herr was in charge of the program and he made a few remarks concerning the entertainment, referring to the public graduation exercises for the senior class to be held in January at the Plainfield theatre. The first part of the program comprised piano selections by Joseph Dendy, a boy soloist by Elwood Stryker, accompanied by Miss Ethel Neuman. Miss Mabelle D. Stanton recited "For the Honor of His Family," and as an encore recited "That Old Sweetheart of Mine." Mr. Denby played violin solos accompanied by Irving Martin on the piano.

PLEDGE THEIR "UNDYING LOYALTY TO WM. JEFFERY."

The regular meeting of the Society of Our Men was held in the Berkeley Lyceum at Berkeley Heights Thursday evening, when a committee appointed to investigate the schools made its report which was accepted and the committee was directed to continue its work.

The Christmas entertainment committee reported in full regarding the program entertainment to be December 23, which will be held in the Lyceum when Santa Claus will visit the children of the township. There are no outstanding bills against the society and a sufficient balance of money in the treasury to defray the entire expenses of the children's Christmas festivities. A dance will be given on Saturday evening, Dec. 18.

On motion of Judge Roland D. V. Parker, who is also a member of the Republican Club, it was resolved that "We pledge our undying loyalty to William Jeffery as our Republican county committeeman-elect and will continue to support him and follow his leadership."

Speeches were made by Judge Parker, Township Committeeman-elect Frank C. Shafer, Township Committeeman E. B. Oechsner, Truant Officer Joseph Nester, Township Clerk Robert W. Rogers, Police Dalis and Constable Rudolph A. Shaffer. The president, William Jeffery, in his remarks, stated that he deplored the attitude on the part of Willis Fletcher Johnson and Henry S. Fullerton and a few others at St. simply serves to show that these men are poor losers, and are not fit to be in charge of anything and that the Republicans of the township had good cause indeed to rejoice that these men are revealing themselves as sore-heads to the general public. They are hurdles in the way of progress."

The Unwritten Law of the Desert.

There exists in the desert country of Arizona and New Mexico an unwritten law that is recognized by all classes of men. This law binds every man to protect his fellow being from the great dangers so common in that country, thirst and rattlesnakes. Mr. Henry E. Twose, a mining expert, has written a dramatic sketch portraying the working of this law. And Daniel Porter & Company will present the same at Proctor's on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

TO AID EVANS PLAN.

Mrs. Henry Lang Offers $50,000 for Art Building.

Mrs. Henry Lang, of Montclair, has written a letter to William T. Evans, president of the Municipal Art Commission, of that town, offering the sum of $50,000 to be expended on a building to be erected in memory of her mother, Mrs. Jasper Raymond Rand, and to be used as an art gallery and museum. Mrs. Lang's offer was made as a result of the recent announcement of Mr. Evans that he would give thirty paintings by American artists to the town of Montclair if a suitable building were provided for them. The offer was considered last night at a meeting of the commission.

Mrs. Lang attached three conditions on the acceptance of which her gift depended. In the first place she asked that before work should begin on the proposed building plans for its future maintenance should be completed. She stipulated that the building should not be an art gallery alone, but a museum as well, and that one room should be set apart as a memorial to her mother and should bear her name. These conditions met with the approval of the commission, and committees were appointed to select a site and perform the other duties necessary to the construction of the building.

The Key to Beauty Because it is Consistent, Says Mr. Bailey.

IN LECTURE AT HIGH SCHOOL.

A Flaming Red Necktie No Evidence of Good Taste in Dress— Nor a Shirtwaist a Gown.

"There is beauty in all things if you can only discover it," said Henry Turner Bailey, Editor of "School Arts," a Boston, Mass., publication, who lectured before the teachers of the Plainfield and North Plainfield schools in the Plainfield High School auditorium Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Bailey's lecture was on the topic "Beauty in Common Things," and he drew some very valuable lessons from a few tufts of grass and some leaves picked at random from the city Park. Mr. Bailey is on expert artist and made plain illustrations of his arguments for beauty on a blackboard.

"Consistency is the key to beauty," Mr. Bailey said, "and if we would find the harmony which nature presents to our perception we must look to the consistency of the things as they present themselves to our vision. Beauty should always be consistent. If you enter a room and emerge with the exclamation, 'isn't that a beautiful rug,' the room is not beautifully furnished because the rug was conspicuously handsome. It was discern in another room a mantelpiece which calls forth the same exclamation, that room is not altogether beautiful. It is the harmony of beauty which should be the object of the furnisher.

"Again, when you see a man coming toward you with a flaming red necktie, which in itself may be a thing of beauty, it does not necessarily follow that the man is well dressed. On the contrary he is like the woman whose shirt waist is her most conspicuous adornment. Nature does not do things that way. Her ways of blending her colors cannot be imitated exactly, but with a strict adhesion to the rules of natural beauty some idea may be inculcated into the mind of those whom you teach.

"I am reminded of the old New England school commissioner who said he didn't like beauty in nothin,' but we attended the session with dyed whiskers. It was too flagrant to be overlooked. He evidently was a beauty seeker but could not see that he was an amiable prevaricator.

Mr. Baily likened nature to the rythm of music, taking the march time and waltz time as examples of the way in which nature always works out the problems of consistency. The swallow and man represent the one, two, three movement of the waltz, while the twigs of trees and the branches of trees are found in another direction by the march time, a long twig and a short one, all the way up through the tree.

The circle is used for strength while the spiral represents beauty, an illustration always striving to arrive at a point which is never reached while the circle in architecture and other arts shows its definite end. Mr. Bailey told the teachers that they were training their pupils for culture, business, society, war, Age and practical things which are to be the foundations of the structures which are to be reared for future generations, and the more beauty that could be infused into these young lives the better the structure would be.

The lecture lasted for about and hour and a half and was intensely interesting and as one of those present observed, would have interested all of them indefinitely. Mr. Bailey made many colored chalk illustrations which convinced his hearers of the real beauty to be found everywhere.

The Laing Family

Article No. 3.

By Oliver B. Leonard

In former articles mention has been made of the two sons of the original John Laing who settled near Plainfield in 1685. The present sketch will consider his two daughters, Isabel Laing and Christiana Laing. Their marriages were with the largest and most influential families of Middlesex county.

Isabel Laing, in the year 1700, became the wife of Joseph Fitz Randolph, son of Nathaniel, the oldest child of ten children of Edward and Elizabeth Blossom Fitz Randolph, the original progenitors of this line in America from 1630. Joseph and Isabel Laing Fitz Randolph had but one son to live to transmit the name to posterity. The other two sons died unmarried and one daughter, Margaret, married Thomas Hedden and had a large family. The one son of Isabel, who lived to marry, was Joseph Fitz Randolph, born 1701, married Abigail Shotwell, whose two sons, Nathaniel and Jeremiah, became very prominent and useful members of society. His father, born 1667, owned the Blazing Star Ferry on Staten Island Sound.

Nathaniel Fitz Randolph (son of Joseph and Abbigail) was born 1730 and married 1750 Ursula Stuart (daughter of David Stuart, M. D.). Their son, Joseph, born 1753, married Sarah Edgar, whose daughter, Mary, for her second husband married Rev. Dr. Asher Fitz Randolph, pastor of the First Baptist church, Plainfield. The other son of Nathaniel and Ursula, who became quite prominent, was Captain Asher F. Randolph, *born 1755, whose grand-*daughter, Elizabeth, married William L. Laing, and granddaughter, Catharine, was the wife of Edgar Harriet. Captain Asher Fitz Randolph (a great-grandson of Isabel Laing), was an officer in the Revolutionary war and showed distinction in the State militia.

The other son of Joseph and Abigail Fitz Randolph was Jeremiah, born 1731, married twice, Janet Edgar and Rachel Ford. Their daughter, Janet F. Randolph, became the wife of Col. John Taylor of patriotic fighting blood, whose two sons rose to distinction in the medical profession, viz: Augustus F. R. Taylor, M. D., and John Taylor, M. D.

Christiana Laing, the other daughter of the old Scotch pioneers, John and Margaret Laing of 1685, was married January 23, 1699, to James Manning (son of Jeffrey and Hepsibah). He was born March 15, 1674, and became a thrifty and influential freeholder in both Essex and Middlesex counties. His brothers were John, Joseph and Benjamin Manning. James and Christiana Laing Manning were parents of five children, James, Isaac, Nathaniel, Margaret and Ebenezer.

Hon. Isaac Manning was born 1700. May 23, and married Grace Fitz Randolph (daughter of Joseph and Rebecca). Their five sons and one daughter were John, President *James, Deacon Joseph, Captain Jere*miah and Col. John Taylor, who was the wife of Joseph Tingley. James was the founder of present Brown University at Providence, R. I. Joseph was the ancestor of a judge of the Supreme Court of Alabama and of two physicians of some distinction. One of his daughters married Noah Parse, the grandfather of the late Carman Parse, cashier of First National Bank, Plainfield. Captain Jeremiah became one of the most active public citizens of Middlesex county, was an officer of N. J. regiment during the Revolution. Enoch had three daughters, one of whom was the grandparent of Hon. L. V. F. Randolph.

Isaac (son of James and Christiana Manning), was born 1705 and was the grandfather of Captain Isaac and great-grandfather of the late Manning Stelle and Jacob Manning.

Nathaniel was the youngest son of James and Christiana and was a captain in the Colonial war. He was the father by his first wife, Prudence Fitz Randolph, of Lieutenant James Manning, whose son Phineas rose to the position of Colonel in the Revolutionary War. His son, Nathaniel, was a noted physician and his son William was distinguished also as captain in the Revolution. Benjamin, the youngest son, was born 1744 and made an honorable record in civil, religious and legislative life.

Margaret, born 1701, daughter of James and Christiana, married 1724 Jonathan Fitz Randolph, who were the grandparents of the noted Captain Barzilla, father of Sineon, the miller.

For bravery and practical patriotism no family can show a cleaner record of loyalty. Each generation produced noticeable examples in this respect. None of the name have been known to be cowes or sympathizers in the least with even the better class of Loyalists. Though a large percentage of the Laings were of the Quaker persuasion, who were conspicuously opposed to the arbitrament of the sword as settling national disputes, they never refused assistance to the patriots in distress. They were ever on the alert to proffer protection to the volunteer defenders of our liberties, and served faithfully on committees of observation and safety, and some even affirmed their allegiance by actual service in the Continental army.

The names of both John, Jr., and William Laing, sons of the old Scotch pioneer, are found in 1715 among the Piscataway citizens on the muster roll of the Colonial troops. In the Revolutionary war Benjamin Laing, from our own locality, was doing duty as captain in the First Regiment of Essex county, and several of the lineal descendants by other surnames attested to their patriotism in active service.

TRANSFER OF SCIENCE LABRATORY NEAR END

The moving of the departments of biology and geology from Nassau Hall to Guyot Hall, Princeton, the new natural science laboratory, has been almost entirely accomplished. The building, which has been constructed at a cost of about $425,000, is practically the result of a wave of liberality which struck in the university, begun a few years ago in the physical sciences and now spreading to natural sciences.

Professor E. G. Conklin, for many years prominently connected with the University of Pennsylvania, who is the head of the department of biology here, had a great deal to do with the planning of Guyot Hall. He is an authority in biology, and this department has received a new impetus in recent years.

Furnishing for the new laboratory are being rapidly secured and it is expected that by the middle of next spring the building will be complete in almost every respect. It is understood that the new equipments are forthcoming, and when completed, the laboratory will be one of the finest of its kind in existence.

One of the features of the building is the large white-walled museum on the second floor. It has a floor space of about 16,500 square feet. In this museum are being installed the largest collections of the geological and biological departments. To the former have recently been added several acquisitions which make it unique among museum collections the world over.

One of the most valuable of the additions was presented by the University of California, and consists of the skeleton of a saber-toothed tiger and remains of an ancient representative of the dog family from asphaltum deposits in South California. These specimens are supplemented by a valuable collection of photographs.

Edward C. Beam, '09, of Philadelphia, who has been traveling in the West, has sent from Mt. Stephen, at Filed, British Columbia, about fifty specimens of trilobites, or crab-like specimens were obtained from the precipitous face of the mountain, about two thousand five hundred feet above the railroad, and are a clear indication that the sea was once at that level. According to the best means of reckoning known to geologists, the Cambria are something over one hundred and fifty million years of age.

As the result of a week spent in Pennsylvania, Professor Gilbert Van Ingen, of the geology department, has secured some valuable specimens. Professor Van Ingen, who has given the department some meteoric irons and other material of interest.

Professor Henry F. Osborn, '77, president of the American Museum of Natural History, has donated a series of casts and restorations illustrating the evolution of the elephant and the horse. There is also a cast of one of the dinosauri of *Western America during the Meso*zoic period.

REV. CHARLES FISKE TO BE BALTIMORE RECTOR

The vestry of St. Michael and All Angels' Protestant Episcopal church, Baltimore, has extended a call to Rev. Charles Fiske, of St. John's church, at Norristown, Pa., to become rector of the Baltimore congregation to succeed Rev. Dr. John Gardner Murray, who was recently elected bishop coadjutor of the Maryland diocese. St. Michael and All Angels' is recognized as one of the largest Protestant Episcopal churches in the country. Dr. Fiske is well known in Plainfield and until a short time ago was a member of the Plainfield clerieus.

Rev. Mr. Fiske was born in New Brunswick and is forty years of age. He was graduated with the degree of bachelor of divinity from the General Theological Seminary, New York. He began life as a newspaper writer, and was connected with the New York Sun and later the New York Times and Evening Post. He was for a time private secretary to Isabella Beecher Hooker and Mrs. Woodford, of New York, who afterward became United States Minister to Spain under President McKinley. He studied law under General Woodford, and with his uncle, Haley Fiske, then first vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who was then General Woodford's partner. He was brought up under Presbyterian influences, but on being confirmed in the Episcopal church in 1890, he gave up law and newspaper work and began preparation for the ministry. He graduated in 1896 from the New York Seminary, was ordained deacon by Bishop Scarborough, of New Jersey, in that year and priest two years in advance by the same bishop to the priesthood.

Mr. Fiske served as a general missionary in the Diocese of New Jersey under the work of the Trenton Associate Mission. He became rector of St. Paul's church, Westfield. He was later rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, Philadelphia, and resigned there in 1902 to go to St. John's church, Somerville.

In addition to parish work, Mr. Fiske has held the position of associate editor of The Churchman, in New York. He also contributed to other church papers, notably The Living Church. He has been generally spoken of as the possible bishop coadjutor of New Jersey. He has been rector of St. John's church at Norristown, Pa., only a year, going there from Somerville.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MRS. SUSAN L. CLAPP.

A large circle of relatives and friends attended the funeral Friday afternoon at her late home, 84 Mercer avenue, of Mrs. Susan L. Clapp, widow of John Clapp, who died in Boston, Mass., on Wednesday, December 8, from pneumonia, after a short illness. The funeral at her home recalled to most present the generous hospitality and kindly spirit of Mrs. Clapp, whose loss to the community cannot be filled.

The Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross Episcopal church, officiated. A quartette sang three selections, "Nearer, Still Nearer," "Lead Kindly Light," and "Nearer My God to Thee." The floral remembrances were very beautiful, some of which were sent, at the close of the service, to the hospital.

Mrs. Clapp is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Frank D. Bennett, of Boston; one granddaughter, Miss Dorothy Bennett, three sisters, the Misses Loyd, of Washington avenue, and two brothers, Thomas Loyd, of Washington avenue, Dorchester, and Samuel Loyd, of New York. Interment was made at Hillside cemetery.

Beating Mrs. Lot.

"It was not so very wonderful that when Lot's wife looked back she turned into a pillar of salt."

"Not, by any wonderful thing to have happened in the age of miracles, perhaps, but nothing so wonderful happens in these prosaic days."

"Oh, I don't know; we were going out Main street last evening and when my chauffeur looked back he turned into a telegraph pole."—Houston Post.

IS SHE HIS AFFINITY?

Thomas Muldowney Says No, So Does Miss Josephine Meyer.

MUST SUPPORT HIS CHILDREN.

Troubles of Young Married Couple Aired in Police Court This Morning.

If Thomas Muldowney has met his affinity in Josephine Meyer he has also broken the heart of Josephine's mother who has cried her utmost to keep the man away from her daughter. Perhaps Muldowney has lost all sense of honor, but he thinks not. Anyway it looks as though marital ties are so fragile that they may be broken with impunity by those whose moral ethics are not in tune with the best.

Mr. Muldowney was arraigned Friday before City Judge Runyon on a charge of non-support made by his wife, who claims that her husband's attentions to Miss Meyer have kept him away from her and their two children. Judge Runyon ordered Muldowney to pay his wife six dollars each week for the support of the children, but did not demand a bond for the fulfillment of the obligation.

Mrs. Meyer, the mother of the girl who is the cause of the estrangement between Mr. and Mrs. Muldowney, said that she had made efforts to see Muldowney and failing in that had written him a letter telling him to keep away from her daughter. Apparently he has had no effect and the two were seen together by a Miss Carlston, a friend of both families. According to Miss Carlston's story Muldowney and Miss Meyer enjoyed a dance at Seengerbund hall last Saturday night and had been seen in another frolic on a previous evening.

Muldowney claimed that his wife had sold his household furniture and had left him without cause. An agreement had been reached between them for the care of the two children, but his wife appeared to be dissatisfied with the amount he was paying and instituted the proceeding of this morning. Francis J. Black appeared for Mrs. Muldowney and at his suggestion Judge Runyon ordered the weekly payments of six dollars.

YOU MUST PAY MORE IF YOU WANT A DOCTOR

In accordance with the trend of the times and in view of the increased cost of living the members of The Hartridge Medical Association have raised their fees for office and house calls to an amount commensurate with the financial ability of the patient and in keeping, they say, with those obtaining in some other cities of a like population.

At a regular meeting of the association Friday, resolutions to that end were adopted to take effect January 1, 1910.

"JAPANESE GIRL" SEEN BY ANOTHER AUDIENCE

The final performance of "A Japanese Girl" was given Friday in the Hartridge Medical auditorium and if anything it was a more finished production than on the previous nights. Flowers which took the efforts of a dozen ushers and others were sent to the *members of the cast at the conclu*sion of the finale.

Miss Verna Mowbray-Clutcheos again assumed the title role of O Hana San, while Miss Louise Saunders became the Chaya for the evening. The only other change in the cast was that of O Tori-Kayo, the singing bird, which was well done by Miss Alice Thom, in place of Miss Anna May Campbell.

The Cup Bearers' Circle of the *King's Daughters are to be congrat*ulated upon the successful outcome of the splendidly produced operetta. The able leadership of Mrs. Mowbray, a lady of such magnitude is no inconsiderable matter and the execution of the work which in itself a pretty one has undoubtedly given assurances of the possession of great talent by those who took part.

The sale of candies between the acts must have reached a respectable sum to be added to the treasury of the Circle. The work of the orchestra, presided over by S. Frederick Smith, deserves more than passing notice. It was up to the standard in every respect and contributed to a large degree to the success of the entertainment. The dance which followed last night's performance was enjoyed by about a hundred couples.

The Costitutionalist.

AN INDEPENDENT WEEKLY.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

Plainfield, N. J., December 18, 1909.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

This is the second week of the engagement of Cyril Scott in "The Lottery Man," Rita Johnson Young's new three act comedy, at the Bijou theatre under the management of the Messrs. Shubert, not since the two Shubert comedy hits of last season, "The Blue Mouse" and "Going Some," has any humorous production made such an instantaneous success on Broadway. The essential fun of this story of a newspaper man who, to boom the circulation of his paper, organizes a marriage lottery with himself as the prize, has been emphasized in every conceivable manner by the minute detail of the staging and the excellence of the acting throughout. In addition to Cyril Scott and Janet Beecher, his leading woman, the cast contains such well-known artists as Louise Galloway, Helen Lowell, Ethel Winthrop, Mary Leslie Mayo, Robert MacKay, Harry S. Hadfield and Wallace Widdecombe. "The Lottery Man" was staged under the direction of Edith Ellis.

It is not at all necessary that one should read the book to enjoy "Septimus," which is produced at the Hackett theatre. George Arliss, of "Devil" fame, has the title role. He acts the delightful, lovable, shiftless, noble Septimus to the life and was in high form from first to last. The other principal part is that of Emmy Oldrieve, played by Miss Emily Stevens, who is a cousin of Mrs. Fiske. Miss Stevens, however, does not need to mention the relationship to prove her ability, for she and Mr. Arliss get along capitally.

Arrangements are already in progress in the Frohman offices for sending out next year two traveling productions of "The Dollar Princess." The unmistakable manner in which this tuneful musical comedy has established itself in the public's affection makes it safe to plan for it so far ahead. Two traveling companies Mr. Frohman finds are more economically managed than one, for in large productions like "The Dollar Princess" the railway fares are a tremendous item and frequent long hauls are ruinous. By establishing one company with Boston as its headquarters and one which will open in September in Chicago and after Christmas play the West, it is estimated that a great saving in operating expenses can be effected.

HERE AND THERE.

Robert Walpole, of East Front street, Scotch Plains, has an interesting relic of the Civil War, which was presented to him Sunday by Captain William Hand, of Plainfield, who with his nephew, Ernest T. Hand, has just returned from a visit of several weeks in Virginia. The relic is a piece of pine block in which is imbedded a minie ball. The piece of wood was cut on the old battlefield at Spottslvania, Virginia, by lumberman, the relic being found imbedded in the wood when the pine stump was being cut up at the mill.

Mr. Walpole prizes the relic highly as the battle of Spottselvania played an important part in his life, while serving his country during the troublesome times of '67. Mr. Walpole was then a sturdy lad of the Sth"—Baalbec of exquisite beauty of stupendous remains—is the subject of the first alluring paper, giving promise of Mr. Hichen's and Mr. Guerin's best work.

"Prince Hagen's" novel vividly portraying some rarely-discussed aspects of modern life, begins in December Physical Culture, and Bernarr Macfadden, editor of the magazine, is to be congratulated on securing the rights to publish this remarkable serial. The story is of a nature to furnish food for thought and amusement for both the grave and the gay.

The Christmas number of Scribner's Magazine contains a wealth of pictures, many of them in color, a special Christmas frontispiece and color cover, and the shops are filled with the Christmas spirit and articles on subjects of wide general interest, with poems of unusual beauty. But with all these special Christmas features the leading feature of the number is in Theodore Roosevelt's third article on his African experiences. This one is entitled "On Safari.—Rhinos and Giraffes." Each one of these articles shows the remarkable ease with which Mr. Roosevelt has put on its literary finish. In this article there are descriptions of the expedition on the march, of a moonlight tramp across the wild country after a dead rhino, of stalking a giraffe, which are as romantically picturesque as anything in professed books of adventure.

Recreation comes to us this month with one of the most attractive three-color cover designs from a photograph we have yet seen. It combines the spirit of Christmas with that of outdoor life in its holly decorated border encircling the vigorous, athletic boxer girl, and the hundred or more photographs and score of articles contained in its 64 pages, seem to bring the very breath of the big out of doors to the reader.

Everybody's for December presents a cover design from photographs of snow flakes. And the editors have called it "One of Nature's Masterpieces." A little explanation on the back of the frontispiece tells us in a few words how the work was done, but only the Master of all things could solve for us the mystery of these rare and wonderfully exact works of art in miniature.

COLBY'S NEWEST IDEA IS WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE

Everett Colby, of the "new idea" movement in politics, has taken a stand with the suffragettes. More over, he is about to come out upon the speakers' platform advocating the right of women to vote.

Mr. Colby went to Hot Springs ostensibly for the golf and the baths, but in reality to write a lecture which he is going to deliver next Thursday before the Equal Franchise Society in New York. Although afraid that an interviewer would steal his powder, he was induced to outline as follows his attitude towards this much mooted question:

"I am for woman suffrage," said Mr. Colby, "and the first thing that occurs to me in discussing the subject is that the burden of proof would naturally fall upon those opposed to it. In a democracy only positive evidence that their vote would injure society justifies their exclusion from immediate participation in politics. They have an equal stake in the community, are a factor in production of the nation's wealth and could bring into politics qualities and abilities that men do not possess.

"If I thought that the result of the movement would be to make women like men—I do not deny the justice of the claim—although certainly not be enthusiastic. But the point is that the movement is aimed simply to give women an opportunity to do efficiently the work for which they are peculiarly fitted, and which they are now trying to do outside of politics.

"I believe in woman suffrage, not because it is radical, but on the contrary because I believe it will check unsound radical thought and become a conservative influence."

MAY ELIMINATE FADS FROM PUBLIC SCHOOLS

In view of the fact that a special *committee of the Legislature is in*vestigating the cost of the public school system of the State, with the intention of recommending the elimination of education fads for the purpose of economy, members of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association will devote considerable attention to this subject at their annual meeting to be held December 28-30, at Atlantic City.

Dr. James M. Green, principal of the State schools in Trenton, will make an address on "The Cost and Return of Education." Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, and Governor Fort will talk along similar lines.

The financial statement of the treasurer of the First M. E. church for November was distributed among the members of the church Sunday. The statement follows:

Balance on hand November 1, $43.38; receipts from plate collections and envelopes, $297.88; total receipts for the month, $341.26; expenditures for salaries and other expenses, $473.22; amount due the treasurer, $131.96; bills approved but unpaid, $213.50; present outstanding floating indebtedness, $345.46; estimated current expenses for month of December, $421.85; amount necessary to raise through plate collections and envelope fund to clear off floating indebtedness to January 1, 1910, $781.31.

KILLS SWEETHEART ON EVE OF WEDDING.

Shooting, his sweetheart, Miss Otilla Setka, and then sending a bullet crashing into his own brain in Passaic, Peter Hoppan brought his romance to an end Saturday night. The shooting occurred in the rooms of the girl, 58 Second street.

A few weeks ago Hoppan had loaned the girl $150, and last night upon requesting its return, because he had obligations to meet, discovered that the girl had spent the money for her wedding gown and for articles for their proposed home. They were to have been married next week.

Hoppan, enraged at this, drew a revolver and shot both the girl and himself. Mrs. Mary Ritzberger, a sister of the girl, who was in the next room, rushed in at the report of the shots and found the couple lying near each other on the floor, both dead.

Miss Setka was a dressmaker in comfortable circumstances. Her rooms were directly over a moving picture show.

SLAYER OF CAREY GETS TWENTY YEARS

Jack Allen, of Elizabeth, who was indicted on a charge of murder in the second degree in causing the death of James Carey, also of Elizabeth, pleaded nog vult in the Union County Court, Monday morning, and threw himself on the mercy of the court. Sentence was imposed immediately and Allen was given twenty years in State prison.

Allen committed the deed in Elizabeth last August. He and Carey had had an argument in a saloon the night previous and the following day he met Carey on Broad street, while riding in a wagon. He jumped from the wagon and murderously attacked Carey, stabbing him. The latter was removed to a hospital, where he died soon afterwards and Allen was immediately placed under arrest. Allen had a bad reputation, having served time before. Carey was also well-known at the county seat.

Lewis Lipsi, who was indicted on a charge of stealing shuttles from the Singer Sewing Machine Company plant at Elizabethport, and found guilty after a trial, was sentenced this morning to serve one year and a half in State prison.

THE COST OF LIVING TAKES A BIG JUMP

Interesting facts relative to the cost of living have just been compiled by the State Bureau of Labor and Statistics. These show, among other things, that during the last thirteen years the cost of living in this State has increased 37 13-100 per cent.

Prices of a bill of goods were obtained in different parts of the State. It was found that these could be bought cheapest at Califon, Hunterdon county, where the cost was $11.17, and the highest price prevailed at Metuchen, where it was $15.93.

The prices were highest in cities where the most competition prevailed and lowest in the rural communities where there is practically no competition.

FACTORY INSPECTOR ORDERS GIRL TO SCHOOL

Matilda Lazzi, the young girl who was employed by Ischer & Co., at their factory on North avenue, and whom the truant officer claimed was still of school age, returned to her school Monday morning.

State Factory Inspector McCardell, who recently inspected the factories in this city, looked up the vital statistics at Trenton and discovered that the girl was but thirteen instead of fifteen as had been given to her employer. The girl will be obliged to attend school for the balance of this school year, when if the Board of Education so decides she may resume her employment.

TO TEST TAX ACTS.

Issues Certiorari to Permit Review of Collateral Inheritance Tax Law.

On the application of the executors of half a dozen estates Chief Justice Gummere, of the Supreme Court, has just allowed a writ of certiorari to test the constitutionality of the New Jersey collateral inheritance tax acts.

The attack is directed at the parent act of 1904, with the idea that if this can be overthrown in the courts all subsequent legislation will be of no avail. If the act is set aside it will mean considerable embarrassment to the State, for large sums of money collected for the last five or six years will have to be returned.

The bringing of these suits reveals that the estate of the late Mrs. Reasoner, of Essex county, of which Governor Fort is the principal beneficiary, paid a collateral inheritance tax of $20,714.13, showing that it was worth in the aggregate more than $400,000.

MINE'S LICENSE REVOKED.

Farmers Objected to Noise of Traction Engine at Night.

State Motor Vehicle Commissioner J. B. R. Smith Saturday revoked the license of the traction engine belonging to the copper mine operatives north of Somerville. For some time, the engine, with two or three cars attached, has been making day and night trips through the town between the mines and the freight-house, and the people of Somerville and along the Pluckemin road made a protest against what they termed a nuisance. A petition was largely signed asking the Board of Freeholders to take some action in the matter.

The revoking of the license was the result.

The Parisian fancy for the use of the owl head in hat pins and buckle brooches, as well as for hat ornaments, is being reflected on this side of the water. The round hand purses frequently come mounted in a round clasp embossed with an owl's head.

TWO PLAYLETS GIVEN AT HOLY CROSS PARISH

Ending with a dance the young people of the Bible classes of the Church of the Holy Cross completed an evening of entertainment Saturday night which was hugely enjoyed by a large audience. Two playlets were given by the amateur casts drawn from the two classes and they gave promise of greater things in the future. The Private Secretary will be the next effort and if the production of this farce in three acts is up to the standard established Saturday night a delightful evening is in store for those who attend.

The "Real Thing," a farce in one act was the curtain raiser and it presented one of John Kendrick Bangs' best bits of humor. The details of the farce are too well known to require even a synopsis here, suffice it to say that Miss Ruth Western proved herself to be the right woman in the right place in the critical juncture, where it was necessary to supply a cue. Thorpe Roberts was a splendid proprietor of an employers' bureau and John Sinclair made up a most willing "Bridget O'Hara," who calmly submitted to the strong character of Miss Gertrude Perkins' employer.

"The Teeth of a Gift Horse," by Miss Margaret Cameron, was the second offering by the combined classes and it was responsible for some real hearty laughter. During the intermission between the plays James Daly entertained the audience with several piano selections admirably executed. After the plays the balance of the evening was spent in dancing to which fifty couples remained. The next play will be given in the latter part of January.

This was the cast for "The Real Thing:"

Michael Maginnins, Thorpe Roberts; Mrs. Thaddeus Perkins, Ruth Western; Mrs. De Lancey Pell, Mary Grint; Mrs. Browning, Lena Rolling; Mrs. Hawkins, Agnes Van Norden; Bridget O'Hara, John Sinclair; Bill, George Ball, Jr.

The cast for "The Teeth of the Gift Horse" was as follows:

William Little acted as stage manager. The orchestra, Edwin Schorr and Ira Vail. Programs were distributed by Eric VanNorden and Walter Harrington. Between the acts home-made candy was sold under the direction of Miss Annie Mauger.

Y. M. C. A. FIVE DEFEATED BY BROOKLYN, E.D. TEAM

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team went down to defeat on the local court, Saturday night, when the Brooklyn, East End Division, basketball tossers, was victorious by a score of 24 to 19. The game was a lively one from start to finish and was marked by considerable rough play. In the second half the score was a tie five times, but in the last five minutes, when Fisher made two goals in quick succession, which with a point allowed on a foul gave the Brooklyns the game, 24 to 19. There was lots of rooting throughout this game. The line-up:

Y. M. C. A.—Denton Collier, forwards; Cahoone, centre; Linke, Whitford, Aaholm, guards. Brooklyn—Fisher, Wortman, J. Finger, forwards; Malone, centre; Harris, T. Finger, guards.

Between the halves *of the abov*e game, P. H. S. met the association second team and won out by a score of 22 to 13. This was also closely contested and was marked by clever playing. The lineup:

P. H. S.—Sagman, Morris, forwards; Lidgate, centre; Clark, Overton, Bunion, guards. Y. M. C. A. 2d—Templin, Bentley, forwards; Hoagland, centre; Miner, Mackey, guards.

Women's Relief Corps Elects.

The Women's Relief Corps, No. 19, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., met Friday night for the election of officers. All but the president were chosen, and that office was left open for another week. These officers were elected: Senior vice-president, Mrs. Hattie Gibbons; junior vice-president, Mrs. Eva Summers; chaplain, Mrs. Sarah Mattox; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Meiers; conductor, Mrs. Mary Meiers; guard, Mrs. Elizabeth Nalor; delegates to national convention, Miss Try Mattox and Mrs. Mary Meiers; alternates, Mrs. Anna Smith and Mrs. Eva Summers. The other officers are appointive. The corps will meet next Friday night, December 17, to avoid meeting at Christmas time.

Funeral of Ira Randolph.

The funeral of the late Ira Ran*dolph was held yesterday afternoon* at the residence of James C. Manning, 1130 Dunellen avenue, Rev. Ira E. Vail, Dr. Herbert Conley, First Baptist church, officiating. The funeral was attended by a large number of the relatives of Mr. Randolph. *The body was placed in the receiv*ing vault at Hillside cemetery. Halsted Compton, O. B. Compton, Charles Vail, J. Harvey Doane, Daniel H. Pound and Mr. Lines, were the pall bearers.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS IN NATIONAL GUARD

Captain Orrin E. Runyon, commanding Company D, First Regiment, at Newark, on December 4, rounded out a quarter of a century of active service in the National Guard of this State. He is a native of this city and is a brother of Chancellor Wm. Runyon. He had made application for a long service medal for that period and will probably be presented with the emblem at one of the regimental affairs after the holidays. Captain Runyon ranks third in seniority among the line officers in the militia in this State.

Captain Runyon began his military career on December 4, 1884, enlisting as a private in Company D, First regiment. He was chosen second lieutenant in the following spring, and a few months thereafter he was chosen first lieutenant. Until the Spanish War broke out in 1898, a period of fourteen years, Captain Runyon was practically in command of the company, and then succeeded Captain Williams, being commissioned captain of Company D, First regiment, National Guard, December 7, 1899, which position he still holds.

Capt. Runyon is the fourth commandant of that company in sixty-three years, the oldest company in continuous service in the State, and with a record that is not equaled by any other organization in the United States. He commanded his company in the riots at Paterson in 1902 for ten days. Captain John H. Higginson was the first commandant of Company D. He served in that capacity for eleven years, and was succeeded by Captain Henry O. *Beach, who served seven years. Cap*tain Williams, the next commandant, served until 1898, when he was succeeded by Captain Runyon.

BOYS' BASKETBALL RESULTS AT Y. M. C. A.

Boys' Department—Walker, Taylor, forwards; Lewis, centre; Dunning, Love, Boice, Zarega, guards.

Stillman School—Buckle, Coyle, forwards; Linke, centre; Newell, Smith, Cumings, guards.

In the second game, the Y. M. C. A. Juniors defeated Hope chapel Juniors by a score of 24 to 22. The Y. M. C. A. Juniors—Manley, Love, McNamee, Hall, forwards; Pecock, centre; Goldsmith, Blair, Dimon, guards.

PAY FOR GUARDSMEN.

Bill Introduced Allowing 50 Cents for Attending Drill.

The recommendation in the annual report of Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., of New Jersey, that members of the National Guard be paid for attending drills, with a view of reviving interest and increasing the muster of the State's military forces, has been followed by the introduction in the House by Representative Wiley, of this State, providing that the Federal government pay every enlisted man in the National Guard in all States the sum of 50 cents and every officer $1 for each drill attended.

This may help to prevent the introduction of a similar bill in the coming session of the New Jersey Legislature.

SAYS SHE'S BEWITCHED; CAUSES TWO ARRESTS.

Felix Cobiac and Alphonso Vitto, young residents of Newark, are under arrest at Trenton, the former being held without bail, on the charge of sending threatening letters to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marceon, of Trenton, and with attempting to kidnap the woman whom he would not consent to elope with Cobiac for the second time. The woman also charges that Cobiac has her bewitched and that she will not be able to resist him until the "spell" is broken.

Mrs. Marceon declares that she eloped with Cobiac three years ago *and lived with him a year in Pitts*burg and Chicago. She finally returned to her husband. Since then, she declares, Cobiac has been writing her, threatening and imploring by turns. Friday night he and Vitto went to Trenton and went to the Marceon home. Marceon drove them off with a revolver and their arrest followed.

Lucky to the Last.

Cook—"Taylor was always a fortunate man, but doesn't it seem wonderful that his luck should stay with him to the very last?"

Raleigh—"How was that?"

Cook—"He was operated on for the removal of a pearl which he had accidently swallowed while eating oysters, and when the pearl was examined it was found to be valuable enough to pay for both the operation and the funeral.—Exchange.

DREAM OF WEALTH FADES

Claimants to Sir. Francis Drake Estate Get Emissary's Report.

GOTHAM PROPERTY THEIRS?

Drake Association Received Mrs. Dunn's Statement at Meeting Saturday—To Publish it in a Pamphlet.

Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, who returned from her trip from Europe December 2, where she had gone in the interests of the American heirs of Sir Francis Drake, has made an exhaustive report of her labors in England, which shows their futility of pushing any American claims.

She says there is an estate occupied by the English descendants of Sir Francis, but to get any part of it would require an enormous outlay of money, which she does not think advisable.

Her report, which will be printed and distributed among the heirs here and in other parts of the country, will show future generations the uselessness of attempting to recover any of the money.

English lawyers whom Mrs. Dunn approached, advised her that perhaps as much as $100,000 would be needed to secure the thorough search of titles which would be required.

The money subscribed by local claimants of the Sir Francis Drake association was more than enough to defray Mrs. Dunn's expenses, and the balance will probably be used for the publishing of the report.

There is no hope for American heirs of the estate, Mrs. Dunn declaring any part of the estate. The value of the fortune has been greatly exagerated and as a matter of fact no vast fortune exists.

There is some reason to believe, however, that some property which lies on the waterfront in New York city may some time be reclaimed for the American heirs of the renowned Sir Francis. A reporter called at the home of Mrs. Dunn, on Norwood avenue Sunday, but was unable to see her. It was learned, however, that a meeting of the Drake Association had taken place Saturday afternoon in the rooms of the W. C. T. U. and here Mrs. Dunn presented her report to the members.

WASHINGTON COUNCIL HOLDS A CELEBRATION

Upon the invitation of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of Liberty, and in honor of the initiation of the one hundredth member, many State officials were guests at the meeting held Saturday night in the rooms in the Babcock building. The evening was given up chiefly to sociability, after a short business session, during which one member was initiated.

The State officers present included State Councilor, Miss Edna B. Bishop, of Asbury Park; State vice-councilor, Mrs. Lila Thompson, of New Jersey; junior past State councilor, Philip Handschuch, of Elizabeth; State secretary, Mrs. A. S. VanSciver, and past State councilor, Mrs. William Swain, of Riverside; past State councilor, Mrs. L. A. W. Perkins, of New Brunswick, and in addition visitors from Westfield, Elizabeth and New Brunswick.

During the evening there were short speeches by the visiting officers, after which a banquet was served. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Elizabeth Rye, chairman; Mrs. Ida Bowers and Edward Hughes and was assisted by other members of the council.

There was also nomination of officers and the election will be held probably after the holidays. Edward Hughes were named for councilor without opposition. There were several nominations for the other offices.

AGED MRS. RANDOLPH FRACTURED HER HIP.

Mrs. Catherine Randolph is detained at her home, 532 West Front street, with a fractured hip, the result of an accident last Friday night. She had ascended the front stairs at the time and upon reaching the second floor attempted to turn on the electric light. As she did so, her legs gave way and she fell, prostrate in the hallway. Her son, Howard, who was in the house, was attracted by her screams and hastened to where she lay helpless.

Mrs. Randolph was assisted to her bed with the help of Mrs. H. A. Weber, a neighbor, and Dr. C. B. Lufburrow was summoned. An examination showed that the hip bone near the thigh was fractured. She is now doing as well as possible owing to her advanced age and physical infirmities.

DID JANITOR SPANK HIM?

When Arraigned as Incorrigible, Pupil Says He was Punished.

JANITOR MAKES ADMISSION.

Stillman School Principal States That Young Negro's Conduct Was Very Bad.

Cornelius Mebley, a colored pupil of the Stillman School, told a tale of punishment to City Judge William Runyon Monday, which if true would indicate that the law prohibiting corporal punishment in the public schools had been violated. Mebley's story is partly corroborated by Henry Peterson, janitor of the school, who admitted striking and shaking the boy.

Webley told the judge that because he was unable to do certain examples which his teacher wanted him to do he slammed his books down on the desk creating a noise for which, he says she slapped him in the face. Then not being satisfied with this treatment she called the janitor of the school who took a hand in the matter. The boy said that the janitor lifted him from the seat in the hall, where he had been sent and shook him and threw him to the floor afterwards using a thick yard stick on his knuckles with sufficient force to make him wince with pain.

Peterson, who was in court, did not deny striking the boy with the yard stick, and told of the various offenses of which the boy had been accused by his teacher. Webley is in a special class of boys who are unruly and it is owing to his previous bad conduct that he had been placed there.

According to Miss Day, principal of the school, the boy's conduct has been very provoking and the circumstances under which he was punished were decidedly intolerable and merited some drastic measures. The alleged punishment of the boy occurred some time ago and Webley's appearance in court Monday was the result of further insubordination. He promised Judge Runyon to be good in the future.

MOST ANCIENT HUMAN RECORD.

Long ago, so long that even a scientist would hardly dare venture a guess as to the date, a man clad with only a wild beast's skin about his loins was sitting at the mouth of a cave in the rocky highlands in what is now in France, says a writer in Lippincott's. He was scratching with a sharp flint on the fragments of an ivory tusk, perhaps picturing for some youthful admirers adventures through which he had passed or animals he had slain.

That ivory chip was stored away as a treasure, to be lost and forgotten after the cave man's death. One day a man named Lartet, digging in the cavern floor, found it. On it was scratched a fair representation of the hairy elephant, probably at once the oldest picture and the oldest human record in existence.

We know the cave man was a faithful workman, for the melting ice fields of Siberia have yielded a perfect specimen of his extinct mammal, and the paleolithic picture is a true copy. Not only has this ancient sculptor given us a sample of the earliest art, but he has left us, more valuable than all, a historical record of his times, for the rude picture is simply a page from the cave man's history which, translated into twentieth-century English, says "Man, thinking men, were contemporaneous with the hairy elephant."

No record that any of the human kind have ever left is half so ancient as this. The oldest Egyptian papyrus is a thing of yesterday compared to this paleolithic sculpture. While the cave man was living in Europe the valley of the Nile was yet only a wild waste. Egypt was not yet Egypt, and civilization as we know it had scarcely made a beginning.

CIVIL WAR PURCHASING AGENT DIES IN RAHWAY.

Edmund Mays, who was born in northern England ninety-four years ago, is dead at his home in East Rahway, near the Yacht Club grounds. He died Saturday following an illness of twelve bedridden years, dating back to the death of his wife. He had resided in Rahway more than sixty years, following farming generally since the Civil War, when he was a purchasing agent for the government.

Five children, James, Edward, John, Charles and William, besides three sisters, Mrs. Jane McIntyre and Mrs. John Perrine, of New York, and Miss Mary Mays, of Rahway.

There has never been a death among the children. About thirty grandchildren and almost a score of great-grandchildren are living.

A brother, who was in the Confederate army, was never located after the war, although searched for.

Miss Mellick to Be Introduced.

Miss Edith Mellick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, will be formally introduced to society at a reception to be given at her home, Wednesday, December 22.

DUDLEY BUCK MUSIC AT TRINITY CHURCH

Under the direction of Arthur L. Tillsworth, organist and choirmaster of Trinity Reformed church, the choir gave a Dudley Buck memorial service, Sunday, which was greatly enjoyed by a large congregation. There were various solo parts by Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; F. S. Cutter, bass and E. D. Young, tenor, and all were in excellent voice.

During the service Miss Raybert and Miss Carroll sang two solos, and Mr. Cutter and Miss Carroll sang a duet in a finished and pleasing manner. The solo work by Mr. Cutter and Mr. Young was also much enjoyed by the congregation. The numbers at the morning service were selected from the works of Dudley Buck and proved equally enjoyable. The program was as follows:

Organ prelude, "Immorata Pastorale," quartet; "Festival Te Deum in B flat;" "Sing Alleluia Forth," solo, "Festival Benedictus in C."

The program in the evening was as follows:

Organ prelude, "At Evening," (Idylle); quartets, "The Strain Upraise, Alleluia," "Rock of Ages," "There Were Shepherds," "Lead Kindly Light;" soprano solo, "Through Peace to Light;" duet, "The Lord is My Light;" contralto solo, "My Redeemer and my Lord;" organ Postlude, "Triumphal March in D."

Rev. John Y. Brock, pastor, gave a short talk in the evening, referring to the appropriateness of a memorial service to Dudley Buck, one who had done so much in the world of music. He said that it was right that one's soul should be filled with music and that it helped to make one happy and cheerful and be a better Christian. During the course of his remarks, Pastor Brock referred to a touching incident in reference to Dr. Paul W. Harrison, the church missionary going to Arabia. He said that the story of Dr. Harrison's purpose had so touched the heart of a ten-year-old boy that he had been led to give 42.45 cents he had saved for Christmas toward the support of Dr. Harrison.

It was explained by Mr. Brock that the boy is a member of a class in another Sunday school, and was impressed with the story as related by his teacher, that he gave the money to be forwarded to Dr. Harrison.

Poison in Shakespeare's Plays.

It is one of the penalties of Shakespeare's position as a great poet that his words are taken seriously, says a writer in the London Globe. A learned doctor in foreign scientific review has been holding an inquisition into the poisons mentioned by him. He points out that the "juice of cursed hebenon," which Claudius is said to have poured into the ear of Hamlet's father, is incapable of piercing the tympanum of the ear, and, therefore, could not have penetrated the body and poisoned the blood as the Ghost alleges.

Again, the narcotic which Friar Laurence administers to Juliet was probably either datura stramonium or mandragora root. The first is used by the convicts in New Caledonia when they wish to rob their companions, but its effects do not last forty-two hours, nor anything like that time. A scientist who experimented on himself with mandragora found that intense sickness is caused on waking, and this did not happen to Juliet.

As for the poison which was given to Romeo, it was probably aconite, or one of those mixed poisons of the Borgias which are known to have been composed of vegetable alkaloids and ptomaine, since it was so remarkably rapid in its effects. But that is the fault of too serious people; they will take anything seriously. Shakespeare probably knew nothing at all of poisons and aconites. He was a poet and not a chemist, and might, therefore, be allowed the usual poetic license.

TARIFF STONE AND NOT BREAD.

The tariff question will be the burning issue in the three next Congressional campaigns involving the Presidential election of 1912. No human power can prevent that.

The hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions, of Republican tariff reductionists will feel that they were buncoed into voting the Republican ticket last year. All they have to do is convince themselves that they were grossly deceived is to compare the Payne-Aldrich monstrosity with the Dingley bill and then read the Republican platform. Judge Taft's campaign speeches, his inaugural address, and the speeches in the Senate by the "progressive" Republican Senators, Dolliver, Cummins, Nelson, La Follette, Beveridge, Clapp, Burkett, Borah, Bristow, et al coming genus.

These will make fine Democratic campaign documents and will prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that where revision was promised downward there has been revision upward; that having been promised bread, they have been given a stone.—Quincy (Ill.) Herald.

SCHOOL'S DIRECTORS HEAR DR. SCHAUFFLER

Dr. William G. Schauffler, member of the State Board of Education, lectured before the Somerset County Board of Education on Saturday on the medical examination of children in the public schools. Dr. Schauffler told in detail the work done under his supervision during the past few months and made suggestions which will be found distinctly valuable to other boards.

Manual training has been substituted in several cases for mental training, where, in the opinion of the board, the mental processes of the pupil's brain have been abnormally slow. And this practice has proved specially beneficial where backward pupils have failed to grasp their lessons.

Dr. Schauffler said that pupils of the second, third and fourth grades had been immensely benefitted by the manual training and had showed a development of individual and practical ideas notwithstanding that they had been very backward in their studies.

Another thing of much importance was the use of the spoon in examinations of the pupils' throats. It is quite possible, he says, to use one of the wooden paddles used in mixing foods, provided, of course, that the same paddle be not used more than once. He suggested the giving of two fifty-minute periods each week for backward pupils in the manual training department of the public schools and urged the necessity for this work.

MOLOKAI LEPERS SEE WONDERS

One of the most marvelous experiences in the history of the Molokai leper settlement came to the people of that shut-in isolation recently when a moving picture machine was installed in Bertolania Hall, their public place of assemblage, for their entertainment, writes a Honolulu correspondent of the New York Evening Post.

It was not merely that they saw moving pictures for the first time, but for the first time, to a very great number of them, it was their first glimpse into the world beyond the narrow confines of the settlement.

Very many of them had never seen a city until they saw those projected on the moving picture screen. Elephants, camels, bears, lions and the other animals of the circus or the zoo were presented to them for the first time. Fire engines, police patrols, moving troops, the thousand-and-one commonplaces of the picture came to them not only with the force of novelty, but with the effect of something unheard of and undreamed of before.

Some months ago, at the suggestion of the superintendent McVeigh, of the settlement, a movement was started to procure a moving picture machine, to be sent to the settlement for the entertainment of the people there. A fund was contributed, the machine and a supply of film was bought, and R. K. Bonine, curing strange scenes for moving picture exhibitions volunteered to go over and install the machine.

This intensest interest in the matter was felt at the settlement. Every operation of the process of installing the apparatus was watched by nearly the whole population. And when finally the first exhibition was given wonder and excitement knew no bounds.

It is expected that funds for new films will be donated from time to time by the public here, so that the people at the settlement will have new moving pictures to look at at intervals. Mr. Bonine says that in all his experience he has never seen such absorbing and intense interest in moving pictures anywhere.

HOMING INSTINCT IN ANIMALS.

One cannot say that a lost cat finds its way home by instinct. "Home" is a different place for each cat, and no series of mechanical acts will take the animal there, writes E. T. Brewster in Mc Clure's Magazine. The lost animal finds its way home precisely as a lost man finds his. It depends upon the sense of direction, its judgment of distance, its memory of familiar points.

Most four-footed beasts and most men, once badly lost, stay lost and do not get home at all. When they do, in one case as in the other, it is largely perseverance and luck. Even the homing pigeon has to be put through a long training before it can find its way home.

In fact, this whole problem of homing and cat instincts illustrates nicely the modern way of interpreting animal behavior. There is no "homing instinct." The animal becomes wonted to some particular tree or hole or human fireside. This means to him warmth and shelter and food. That is, in short, his home; and if he is a home body he longs for it when absent, like any of the rest of us. So cat and dog and horse and carrier pigeon return to their abodes not by virtue of any strange, peculiar instinct, but because they know the way.

New Way to Serve Salad.

The hostess at a recent bridge served salad in a novel way. Eclairs, without icing, had chicken salad in place of the customary cream filling. Certainly, when this plan is followed, the serving of salad is a simple matter.

DID HE FLY TO NEW YORK? TILLINGHAST CLAIMS SO

Those persons who heard the whirring and exhaust of a motor high in the air on Friday afternoon may be interested in the story which appeared in the New York papers Monday, and telegraphed from Worcester, Mass. The date noted in the dispatches seems to have been an error as the aeroplane mentioned was observed at Fire Island on Friday and according to one of the lifesaving crew at that place was traveling toward New Jersey.

Wallace E. Tillinghast, a well-to-do citizen and vice president of a Worcester manufacturing company, declares he has secretly invented, built, and tested an aeroplane capable of carrying three passengers, and in which he says he has flown from his station near Worcester, to New York, thence to Boston, and then back, a distance of 300 miles, a speed of 120 miles an hour being maintained at various times.

The test was made on September 8, at night, according to Mr. Tillinghast, who says he circled the Statue of Liberty at an elevation of 4,000 feet, and was seen on the return trip by a coastguard on Long Island, when flying low, the fact being recorded in the newspapers at the time. When near Fire Island, Mr. Tillinghast declares, the machine sailed in midair for forty-five minutes at a height of 6,000 feet while two mechanics who were with him repaired a motor cylinder.

Mr. Tillinghast says the machine is a monoplane, weighing 1,559 pounds, with a spread of 72 feet, and equipped with a 120 horse power gasolene engine of special construction. He refuses to tell where the machine is at present, but says he will bring it to Worcester in February for a public demonstration.

APPOINTMENTS FOR THE CO. K FAIR COMMITTEES

The members of Co. K, at a regular meeting in the armory, Monday, decided to hold the annual fair February 19-26, at the armory and Captain Harry B. Kitchell appointed the following as the heads of the various committees:

Floor manager, Sergeant George Apgar; booths, Sergeant Alfred Tranchand; donations, Private Hartpense; wardrobe, Corporal Archibald Niles; refreshments, Sergeant O. R. Pierson; decorations, Corporal J. L. Niles; secretary to the committee, Samuel Rothberg. They will select their own assistants.

Despite the stormy night all of the 100 per cent. members were present. During the early part of the evening there was a drill. Sergeant Nathan Hort first took command and put the men through the manual of arms in detail. Then Lieut. Charles Peterson took command and put the members through the calisthenic movements which were new to most of the boys, but they all enjoyed them very much. In conclusion Captain Kitchell assumed command and complimented the members for the excellent showing made.

It was announced that the company would go to Trenton Friday night to take part in the annual review. This is the event of the year, and the militia will appear in full dress. Brig. Gen. D. F. Collins will review the regiment on that occasion.

THE LITTLE GIRL UPSTAIRS.

We didn't have "apartments" then—
We used to call them flats; and ours
Was simply known as Nutaber Ten—
Not "Ayrwood Aarms" or "Wyndham Towers."
Our childish hearts were never bent
On dances, teas and like affairs,
But every afternoon I went
To see the Little Girl Upstairs.

Two long, dark flights, and then her door!
A magic door it was to me.
Oh, I was one and she was four!
A rainbow world, an opal sea
Were ours to rove. What ports we made!
What dragons slew in horrid lairs!
What treasure, grandly won, I laid
Before the Little Girl Upstairs.

Her hair—I think her hair was brown,
Her eyes—I'm sure her eyes were gray;
They had a trick of looking down,
Her little mouth through all our play
Was gravely sweet, yet often came
A smile to curve it, unawares.
Her name—her name? Ah, yes; her name
Was just "the Little Girl Upstairs."

Up other flights I clamber still;
Through other doors I take my way;
In other games I've played my fill,
And fought well words is all the play.
But when I've done with prose and rhyme,
With earthly battles, joys and cares,
May some good angel help me climb
To meet the Little Girl Upstairs.

Selling Farm Produce by Telephone

THE Bell telephone places the farmer in instant communication with the buying centers. Before hauling his produce to town, he telephones to ascertain the state of the market, the stock on hand, supplies expected, and the prevailing prices. Frequently the sale itself can be made over the telephone. When satisfactory arrangements are completed by telephone, the team is hitched, the produce loaded, and the journey is begun with an assurance of profit.

Without a Bell telephone, or without the information a Bell telephone brings, the farmer works blindly. He rises early and carts his produce to town. Not knowing the condition of the market, he is taking chances. Luck may favor him, and prices may be good. On the other hand, luck may be against him; the market may be overstocked, and he may be forced to sell far below the figure expected.

The loss on one load of produce may be more than enough to pay for a year's telephone service. It pays to know.

TWO SERVICES AT FUNERAL OF MRS. JOSEPHINE MANTZ.

The funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Mantz, who died last Friday, were held Monday at noon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Philipine Lederer, West Front street, and later at the Reformed church in Coontown, where Rev. George Bowers officiated. The interment was in the church cemetery.

The noon service at Mrs. Lederer's home was conducted by Rev. John Y. Brock, pastor of Trinity Reformed church and was largely attended. Many handsome floral tributes were received from relatives and friends of Mrs. Mantz, and Rev. Mr. Brock spoke in eulogistic terms of the high Christian character of Mrs. Mantz who had endeared herself to many by her kindly and sympathetic nature.

Mrs. Mantz's six sons, Martin, Theodore, George, Simon, Andrew and John were the pall bearers.

Lord's Supper at Marconnier.

Sunday morning the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at Marconnier chapel, Oak Tree. There were about forty persons present at the service who listened to an excellent sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. T. Lansdale. A trio, consisting of Miss Voorhees, Mrs. VanCourt and Mr. Voorhees, sang very acceptably, accompanied on the piano by Miss Voorhees. Elder A. L. Force and Deacon A. K. Willett, from Trinity Reformed church, assisted Pastor Landsdale by serving the bread and wine.

HOW 'PHONE CO. MAKES UP FOR THAT REDUCTION

The New York Telephone Company is establishing a new district which will include Watchung, Warrenville, Mt. Bethel, Coontown, Stony Hill and the Valley road. The new "Central" will be known as Washingtonville, and by the change these will be an increase in rates. Local calls for the Washington central station will be five cents and New York calls will be raised from twenty to twenty-five cents.

Recently, the company announced a reduction of rates to several places in this part of New Jersey, places which are not called frequently, and immediately afterwards it took numerous calls to Fanwood, Scotch Plains and Plainfield out of the "Plainfield List" and a charge is now made where before they were free to local subscribers.

Where the service is used the most the rates have been maintained as of old or raised, while in cases where but few calls are made, the rates have been reduced, which in the end will materially increase the income of the company.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN STATUE FOR NEWARK

A statue of Abraham Lincoln by Gutzon Borglum will be erected in the plaza before the Essex county court house in Newark. Executors of the estate of Amos H. Van Horn have received permission from the Newark Shade Tree Commission. Work has been begun by Mr. Borglum.

The statue will be in bronze. Lincoln will be shown seated upon a bench, bare-headed, and bending forward slightly, the whole attitude being one of weariness and relaxation. The Lincoln of the most troubled Civil War period will be shown.

The statue is the first of three provided for in the will of Amos H. Van Horn, who left a large estate. It will cost $25,000. He left a similar sum for a statue of Washington, and $100,000 for a soldiers' and sailors' monument. The other statues will not be erected until after the unveiling of that of Lincoln.

FORMER COUNCILMAN TO ADDRESS BOARD.

President H. W. Marshall, of the Board of Trade, has invited Former Councilman Leonard Spangenberg to give a talk on "Municipal Affairs," at the meeting of the board to be held Thursday night, January 6. He will tell all about the work of what was known as the "Big Six," when the present trolley franchise was granted and is expected to give some of the "inside information" regarding municipal matters at that time.

There are many people who still believe that the "Big Six" Council was the best one Plainfield ever had, and declare that more was accomplished during the regime than before or since. Doubtless Mr. Spangenberg's talk will be full of interest.

PLAYGROUNDS AGITATED

Howard Bradstreet and Chas. J. Fisk Advocate Idea for Plainfield.

REQUEST COMMISSION TO ACT.

Parent-Teacher Association of Franklin and Stillman Schools Have Largely Attended Meeting.

At a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin and Stillman Public Schools, held at the a resident of this city, died this was adopted unanimously that the playgrounds' Commission be requested to equip the two school grounds for playground purposes in accordance with plans as outlined. There was a large attendance of parents and teachers of this association and all were much enthused over the proposition as presented.

Mrs. Stephen H. Voorhees, who is president of the association, called the meeting to order and after explaining its objects, presented Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who presided and incidently introduced the speaker of the evening, Howard Bradstreet, secretary of the Playground's Commission of New York city.

"In the words of the President, I am for playgrounds," began Mayor Fisk. "For several years I have been studying everything that would be of interest and a benefit to Plainfield, and I am only sorry that I did not think of the playground proposition sooner. A playground is nothing more nor less than a place where children can gather and play under well directed supervision, instead of resorting to the streets, where they are quite apt to make a raid on shrubbery and flowers to be found in various yards.

"There are over 4,000 children within the school age in Plainfield. We have proper building equipment and competent teachers for all branches of study, including manual training, and now we want playgrounds, which are similar to the kindergartens in our schools. I believe this to be a move in the right direction.

"In this connection I want to say I have heard it on all sides that this is only another of Charley Fisk's extravagant ideas, and I am glad some people think so. I do not, however, and I think those people will change their ideas and conclude that it is an economical plan. After the last meeting of the association, we went to Orange and investigated the playgrounds there. We then sent a communication to the Common Council, and that body passed a resolution favoring the project and approved of the appointmen. of a playground commission. It is now up to the Common Council to make an appropriation for the work.

"The commission I selected H. W. Marshall, because it was he was was the originator of the idea; Joseph W. Gavett, because of his long connection with the Y. M. C. A., and the fact that he was once an athletic athlete, and George P. Mellick, because of his strong interest, as well as that of Mrs. Mellick in the proposition.

"Through the Board of Education we secured permission to use the ground about the Bryant School as a playground. There is a vacant lot at Plainfield avenue and West Third street, owned by the city, which would make an ideal playground for that section of the city, and the Common Council will be asked to donate that ground for the purpose. Another site near the Franklin School is being considered. It is well not to be too energetic or too conservative, but we should not the aim to place the playgrounds where the children are and not compell them to walk too far for their play.

"As for the older children, an athletic field is needed. It is an absolute necessity to have such a field where training can be conducted under proper instructors. There is something now at work and I hope to be able to announce soon a definite plan, providing for a field where baseball, football, tennis and all the privileges of a running track can be enjoyed. The Y. M. C. A. has such a field, but have no money with which to equip it. I now take pleasure in presenting Mr. Bradstreet."

Mr. Bradstreet said that in view of all that he had heard and seen during his brief stay in the city, he failed to understand why he was invited to come here and speak, except for the pleasure of the visit. He felt convinced that conditions here were ideal and that excellent progress was being made. As an excuse for making an address, Mr. Bradstreet took for his topic, "Social Near-Sightedness, or Social Blindness Regarding the Playground Movement." The speaker said that this is quite prevalent among people today.

"Assuming that the above is true here I will say a few things to you on the subject," continued Mr. Bradstreet. "I am not interested in playgrounds simply as such. If that is all it means to you little will be accomplished. It is the interest in human nature that counts and so many things have entered into the proposition to increase the interest in the subject, namely, the warfare against tuberculosis, the juvenile court, probation institutions and the Y. M. C. A."

DISCOURSES ON EGYPT

Instructive Address by L.V.F. Randolph on Historic and Religious Egypt.

ITALIAN MISSION BENEFIT.

Banker-Poet Heard by a Large Audience at the Local Y. M. C. A. Auditorium.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph lectured Thursday at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium for the benefit of the Italian mission. His subject was "Historic and Religious Egypt." He remarked that he contemplated preparing a lecture soon on Economic and Scenic Egypt, and then outlined the history and Religion of Egypt for seven thousand years. In part he said:

"Babylon may be older than Egypt. She may have been the mother of Egypt. It has been surmised that Egypt was peopled, or possibly conquered and ruled, as a result of one of the earliest of westward movements from the original home of man in the vicinity of the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. But, if such an expression be admissable, Egypt is old enough to be her own mother.

The name Egypt comes from a Greek source; and, if it has a meaning, its significance is unknown. A national name in ancient Egypt does not appear to have existed. The patriot thought seems to have been a broader one than even that of the Israelites, who considered themselves a special people, chosen of God, the peculiar people of His care. The children of Abraham, however, believed in the doctrine and the circle which thus came to them from their Bedouin chief and father, and (following the change in Jacob's name to Israel) they were proud of being known as the Children of Israel. But Abraham and Israel were mere human beings. The Egyptians were, in their own traditions and estimates, the wards of the eternal gods. Their Emperor, or King, Pharoah, was descended from Ra, the Sun-god. Amongst themselves they, as a people, expressed it, 'Romet,' Men, or People, par excellence. Other nations were simply 'tribes,' such as the Libyans, Cushites and Hittites.

"Prior to the conquest of Egypt by the Persians under Kris the Great, a succession of thirty dynasties of kings had ruled Egypt from the time of Mena, of the first known dynasty; but even during his reign Egyptian government and society were well organized, and the hieroglyphics of Abydos elsewhere indicate a much earlier career of this ancient people.

Mena ruled, according to Prof. Lepsius, nearly 3,900 years before Christ, but according to Prof. Mariette, 5,004 years before Christ, or nearly 7,000 years ago. Some Egyptologists have named a still earlier date for this so-called First Dynasty. The remains of Mena and of his immediate successors have been found at Abydos; but it is with the Fourth Dynasty, which according to Prof. Mariette, flourished upwards of 4000 B. C., or about 6,000 years ago, that we find some of the more important royal monuments and remains in this Fourth Dynasty includes Khoops and Khephren, builders of great pyramids, which still stand to amaze and instruct the modern traveler.

"It has been my privilege to stand near and to observe in various lights of day and evening these great monuments, as well as that smaller, but even stranger monument, mis-named 'The Sphinx,' which remains half-swallowed in desert sand near the great pyramid of Khephren. These pyramids, and the still older one known as the Step Pyramid of Sakkara, possess a never ending fascination. They were not merely tombs, or monuments of the ancient kings, but the knowledge which have been gathered from them are alike the delight of the architect, the philosopher, and the poet. I confess, however, to have been more fascinated by certain monuments which I found in the Cairo museum, than even by these magnificent and imposing pyramids. In this museum, for example, is a diorite statue of King Khephren, in excellent preservation, and furnishing a marvelous example of the skill and taste of the wonderful to see a statue of clear lines and vigorous aspect, carved from the hardest of substances, and still today in its condition and appearance, approaching at least the perfect condition in which it left the artist hands well night 6,000 years ago. Near it is a monument almost as old, and nearly as interesting, and in one respect even more extraordinary because it is of wood. I went with a guide to view this famous wooden figure, known as the Sheikh el Beled, 'The Chief of the Village.' It was found not many years ago in a tomb at Sakkara. It is almost perfect in its preservation; and the life size figure of the village chief, as he stands before looms are so full of conscious content and satisfaction that he almost seems to greet on even terms the prosperity of the twentieth century. In no other country or climate could this wooden statue have been preserved. Some Egyptologists have thought it older even than the Diorite Statue of King Khephren."

The lecturer proceeded from the review of the Ancient Empire to that of the Middle Empire and of the New Empire, including the 12th to the 18th Egyptian dynasties, the last of which flourished about 3,400 years ago, and included three kings who bore the name of Amenophis (from the god Ammon or Amen), and two who were named Ramesses—the last of these being the pers-cuting Pharoah of the Old Testament.

He said, "One of my most impressive moments in Egypt was when I stood in the valley of Biban el Muluk, near Thebes and opposite Luxor on the Nile, at the tomb of Amenophis the 2nd. Passing down steep flights of steps and corridors, we had descended to a shaft, and, crossing a bridge, had entered a narrow chamber and gone forward down a further staircase to a room upborne by vast columns. In the rear of this we found, but it is not visible, the sandstone sarcophagus of Amenophis, and in it lies, within a mummy shaped coffin, the body of the king, wrapped in his shroud, and still adorned with garlands. The appearance is not only strikingly natural but lovely, for it is calm and even beautiful in its perfect repose. The king reclines as one who has 'wrapped the drapery of his couch about him and has lain down to pleasant dreams.' In that deep crypt in these modern days the features of his face are lighted above this sweetly reposeful figure, and the thought borne in upon the visitor is that three thousand years ago, and more, the kings of the earth, as well as their subjects, could not only lie down and die in peace, but could rest calmly in contemplating their state could enter into a kindred feeling of trust and peace.

Egyptologists have found more than a passing interest in what might be spoken of as the early genesis of Christian truth, the religious ideas which it contained appear to have passed (possibly by way of the Phoenicians) to the Greeks, and to have taken root in Grecian Mythology, which in due course either paved the way for, or re-acted upon, the early doctrines of the Christian faith. The beetle, which was supposed to be immortal, or self perpetuating, was the emblem of eternal life to the soul; and images in stone of beetles or "Scarabs" were deposited with the mummy in the tomb of the prince.

This doctrine of the immortality of the human soul, or at least of the possibility of attaining immortality, is from the most ancient times of the Egyptians. The chief deity of the ancient Egyptians was Ra. He was the Sun, the source of warmth of the Universe, and the Maker of all things. Various other gods, Horis. Atmu, &c., were forms of him, or were formed from him. He was self-begotten. He begot Osiris, who was his only son. Set was the prince of darkness and hated the Sun and slew him and mutilated his body, but Osiris rose from the dead, and upon his resurrection and everlasting life the Egyptians based their hopes of rising from the dead, and of a life beyond the grave.

Following the thirty Pagan Dynasties of the Egyptians, came the great Persian Invasion, and, soon afterwards, the conquest of the great Alexander overspread the land of the Nile. Since then, the Ptolemy princes has occupied the throne of Egypt. The lecturer described the city of the conqueror, the magnificent Alexandria, once the second city of the world. He referred to the rule of the Ptolemies, who followed Alexander and dwelt briefly on the career of the last of the Ptolemies, Queen Cleopatra, who, when the Roman armies came to Egypt, had but a single alternative. She must fascinate or fight the Romans. She fascinated the great Julius, and, after him, his friend Mare Antony. About that time Christianity was introduced. St. Mark preached in Egypt, and Coptic Christianity has continued there for nineteen centuries. The lecturer referred to the Arab Mohamedian conquests of the seventh century and gave some account of modern Turkish rule, afterward showing many fine magic lantern pictures.

PLAINFIELD MINISTERS COMMEND ITALIAN MISSION

The Italian Mission work, which is now supported by the various young people's societies of the local churches, was discussed at the meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association at the First Baptist church, Tuesday afternoon. It was considered at a previous meeting and a report was given at that time by Rev. J. S. Zelig, who was appointed to investigate the matter. It was the sentiment that the work should be commended to the generosity of the public for continued support, until other arrangements are made.

Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent of the Newark Conference, has the matter of the mission work under advisement for the Methodist church, it being possible that the Conference may assume the support of it. However, nothing definite has been decided.

After the short business meeting, the ministers listened to an interesting talk by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, on "The Cathedrals of England," which was supplemented with remarks by Rev. A. C. Nickerson, of All Souls' church, and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelle, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, who also spent something abroad last summer. Mr. Goodrich also exhibited a number of views which he secured while in England. The meeting closed with a social period during which tea was served by women of the church.

WILLIAM H. ROBSON DIES IN HOSPITAL

William H. Robson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Robson, of Trenton, and formerly of Bound Brook, died Thursday at Muhlenberg Hospital after a complication of diseases. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon at the parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son, on Park avenue, at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. Robson had been an employe, off and on, of A. M. Griffin, for the past ten years as a tinsmith. He was unmarried and boarded with Mrs. Bauman on East Second street. He was taken to the hospital on Monday afternoon, suffering greatly. It was discovered that he was a victim of spinal meningitis complicated with other troubles and while every effort was made to save him the physicians' efforts were fruitless.

HEAVENLY REST MEN GIVE ENTERTAINMENT.

"Ladies' Night" at the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest was attended by numbers of women who up to Thursday had no idea of the scope of the club. But now they are convinced that the organization is a good one and well worth their support and encouragement. Upward of fifty women attended the affair and feel well pleased with their experience.

Speeches, music and dancing were the chief attractions of the evening and addresses by the rector, Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, President Juan Babcock, Vice-President William Ochiltree; Secretary Joel Pennington and Mr. Givens, chairman of the entertainment, added to the enjoyment.

Stumped the Druggist.

"Have you a city directory?" asked the lady, entering the drug store.

"No, I have not," replied the pill man; "and I must say you've stumped me."

"How so?"

"Why, I can't truthfully say I've got something just as good."—Yonkers Statesman.

LECTURE ON PSYCHOLOGY

Dr. William Callan Delivers the Second in His Series of Talks.

AT MT. ST. MARY COLLEGE.

Points Out the Benefits of Having a Knowledge of the Mind of Man —Many Women Hear Him.

Before a large audience of women from Plainfield, Westfield, Elizabeth and Rahway, Dr. William Callan, of New York, delivered an interesting lecture at the College of Mt. St. Mary, Thursday afternoon. His topic was "Psychology," and it was the second in a series of talks to be given this winter. The date of the next lecture on "Hamlet," will be announced later.

Dr. Callan began by stating that psychology is a branch of philosophy that has for its object the study of the human mind. It is a most important study for language cannot be understood, literature appreciated, art profoundly understood or even the import of the natural sciences grasped, unless one has a knowledge of the mind of man.

Continuing Dr. Callan said: "All knowledge comes through the senses to a mind endowed with certain natural tendencies or powers. The mind is first acted upon by stimuli resulting in sensations. These sensations, through fusion give percepts; these develop memory and imagination. A fusion of percepts gives the concept; a nexus of concepts gives a judgment; a juxtaposition of judgment gives reasoning. So the knowing faculty, mind being understood as a unit, and faculty being understood, mind's activity has presentative faculties, namely, sensation and perception; presentative faculties, conception (composed of comparison and abstraction) judgment and reasoning.

"The knowing faculty gives us volitions and voluntary acts. The feeling faculty gives us emotions, affections and desires. Knowing, willing, feeling are different expressions of the one spiritual substances called soul or mind. In the mind that sees through the visual calls of the brain, as the brain conditions all mental acts. It is the mind that hears through the gustatory cells."

CURRENT HISTORY TALK OF ABSORBING INTEREST

Miss Jeanette Richards, of Washington, D. C., entertained about one hundred women in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Thursday afternoon with a talk on current history. Miss Richards pointed out the enviable position occupied by the United States among the six great powers of the world and gave a lucid and explicit explanation of the English budget, which has the Houses of Lords and Commons so wrought up and has caused such a stir in the nation.

Miss Richards made quite clear the relations existing between the two houses of parliament and kept her audience's undivided attention throughout her address, which lasted for upwards of an hour. For the past eight seasons Miss Richards has talked to women in the parlors of Delmonico's, in New York, and now, owing to her splendid knowledge and her ability to speak with understanding on her chosen subject there are no more season tickets to be had.

At the end of her speech yester*day afternoon Miss Richards touched* upon the Nicaraguan revolution which just now is attracting the attention of the world, but she did not go very deeply into the subject reserving it for a special lecture to be given in the Hartridge School auditorium early in February. Due notice will be given of this lecture and all women who are interested will be cordially welcomed.

TRINITY CONSISTORY EULOGIZES PASTOR

At the regular monthly meeting of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church Thursday considerable routine business was transacted, including the passage of resolutions eulogistic of the pastor's work and the annual election. The pastor, Rev. John W. Brock, presided at his committees for the ensuing year. They are all re-appointments. The present efficient clerk of the church, Edgar F. Sheppard, and Treasurer H. E. Gayle and Assistant Treasurer P. A. Vreeland, were re-elected and given a hearty vote of thanks for their gratuitous services for the past year. Deacon M. F. Gano was elected treasurer of the Benevolent Funds of the church including the fund for the support of Paul W. Harrison, the church missionary.

At the November meeting of the consistory a committee was appointed to draft suitable resolutions in recognition of the first anniversary of Rev. Mr. Brock's pastorate and at last night's meeting the following was presented for the approval of the members of the consistory:

Whereas, our pastor, Rev. John Y. Brock, has completed the first year's work as pastor of this church; and

Whereas, this year has been marked by many evidences of renewed activities in our church; be it therefore

Resolved, That this Consistory recognizes with extreme gratitude the Divine guidance which led to the issuing of a call to Rev. John Y. Brock to become the pastor of this church, and his acceptance of the call, and be it also

Resolved, That this Consistory desires to record its appreciation of the zeal, untiring energy and unflagging interest of our Pastor in this church, which has resulted in renewed activities all through our church life, especially in the large accession of over 60 new members, the establishment of a new branch of our denomination at Netherwood through his efforts, and the adoption by this Congregation of his own missionary to the foreign field, Mr. Paul W. Harrison, who is soon to start for Arabia, and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread in full upon the minutes of this Consistory.

A. L. FORCE,
H. J. MARTIN,
F. E. SMITH,
Committee.

Mr. Brock responded feelingly to these words of cheerful approval and thanked the members for their confidence and love. He said that he had found the work with Trinity's flock a work of joy and an inspiration which was only what would support spiritually any pastor. He believed that the various departments of the church had been wonderfully successful, but the success of the future depended on the co-operation of his fellow members. In concluding Mr. Brock said that he hoped for a still greater blessing and believed that it would come.

Useless Argument.

The eloquent and humorous Dr. Parkhurst, when abstruse theological arguments arise, is fond of silencing the disputatns with a story about a little boy.

This little girl said to her father: "Papa, can God makes stones?"

"Yes, darling," the father answered.

"Can He make big stones?"

"Oh, yes."

"Could He make a stone as big as a mountain?"

"Oh, yes, of course."

The little girl frowned and said: "Well, then, could He make a stone so big He couldn't lift it?"—Washington Star.

"I think I must be going," remarked the young man for the tenth time.

"It does not appear to me to be going," declared the young lady, after inspecting him carefully. "You seem to be perfectly stationary."

'JAPANESE GIRL' SCORES

The Cup Bearers' Circle Triumphs in a Charming Operetta.

FORTY-TWO COMPRISE CAST.

To Careful and Competent Coaching of S. Frederick Smith Is Due Its Success.

Before an audience that completely filled the Hartridge School auditorium, the young women members of the Cup Bearers' Circle of the King's Daughters gave the operetta, "A Japanese Girl," Thursday and scored a triumph rarely equalled in amateur circles. Forty two young women took part. A feature of the operetta was the dancing. Mile Legree, impersonated by Miss Helen Stevens, made the hit of the evening in her magnificent portrayal of a French Dancer. Her pirouetting and graceful maneuvres were con*sidered to have been equal to any* profession dancer seen here in many a day.

A duet dance executed by the Misses Marian Hall and Helen Moodey was a strikingly beautiful piece of work, while Miss Frances VanDeventer wrought the Geisha dance to perfection. Miss Elsie Goddard, who had the leading role, covered herself with glory and honor both by her singing and the histronic ability she displayed.

The operetta was prettily staged and was in two acts, with but one scene, a Japanese garden in bloom. One of the choruses is of a patriotic character and brings to the surface *a feeling of cordiality which is sup*posed to exist between the United States and Japan. At the conclusion of this chorus is sung two stanzas of "The Star Spangled Banner," which brought the audience to its feet, and ended in loud cheers for the singers and an encore.

A "Patter" song rendered by Chaya, (Miss Verna McCutcheon), was the quaintest and most fascinating solo of the evening. Miss McCutcheon displayed a pretty bit of acting as well as a sweet voice and earned round after round of applause. Taken as a whole the operetta was splendidly rendered and deserved the hearty applause which it received. S. Frederick Smith, organist of Grace P. E. church, was the director assisted by Miss Alice Titus, stage manager; Miss Margaret Goddard, assistant stage manager and Miss Margaret Florence, who directed the dances.

One of the features which drew prolonged applause from the audience was the impersonation of the "general utility boy" by Miss Louise Saunders. She was inimitably funny as well as the personification of ac.

At the matinee in the afternoon as well as in the evening performance, Miss Alice Titus assumed the part of Hero, which was originally assigned to Miss Helen Moody and acquitted herself admirably. Other substitutes at the matinee were Miss Louise Andrews, as Chaya and Miss Verna McCutcheon, who took part of Verna McCutcheon who took the part of O. Hana San, the Japanese girl. These changes were made necessary by the indisposition of those originally cast for the parts.

IRA F. RANDOLPH HAS GONE TO HIS REWARD

After undergoing two operations in Muhlenberg Hospital and suffering intensely for the past few days, Ira F. Randolph died at 7 Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Thomas C. Manning, 1130 Dunellen avenue, aged seventy-five years. He is survived by a niece, Mrs. Mary Moore, of New York city, who is the only blood relative. The funeral was private.

Mr. Randolph was a brother of George W. F. Randolph, who died some years ago. For a long time he was connected with the Illinois Central Railroad as chief of the telegraph department. During his service with the railroad the late Mr. Randolph acquired an interest in a large tract of land in Oklahoma, which was recently sold for a goodly sum. He also had a half interest in the property on which the Plainfield Trust Company's building now stands. The other half was owned by his brother's widow. Though not having any direct church connections Mr. Randolph was much interested in the Society of Friends, although with the society he was not a regular member. He was known as a historian of remarkable ability, having had personal acquaintance with those who at one time or another had been familiars of George Washington, and whose history he loved to recount. His local stores of family history he was looked upon as being one of the best informed men.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 19, 1909.

Topic—Our Christmas gifts.—Matt. ii. 1-11. Comment by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D.D.

The Christmas season always suggests giving. It was on the first Christmas day that Christ, "the unspeakable gift" of God to man, was born into the world. Christmas therefore speaks of God's gift to man, and the custom of giving gifts to loved ones and friends at this season of the year has become almost a worldwide custom. In no better way perhaps could we celebrate the birthday of Jesus Christ, the gift of God to the world, than by the giving of gifts. The example of our God is worthy of our imitation, and it is a beautiful sight at the Christmastide to see the spirit of giving that possesses all. The human heart is opened and liberality and generosity abound, and many who at other times are inclined to hold things tight to the joy and blessedness of giving as well as of receiving.

Taking a comprehensive view of Christmas giving, it may be summed up under three divisions—(1) our gifts to God, (2) our gifts to Christ, (3) our gifts to one another.

1. Our gifts to God. Giving to God is of supreme importance. But what shall we give? That which He desires. How often we try to discover what our Father in heaven would like us to give, we purchase Christmas gifts for them. We should also give to God what He wants. And in the Bible He tells us His desire concerning us when He says, "Son, daughter, give me thine heart." And such as a gift is the supreme want, for everything else goes with the giving of the heart. He who gives all the love of the heart surrenders all else with it. Therefore let us "love the Lord our God with all our heart," and let the loved ones at the Christmas season give Him the supreme place in our affections, and with this gift there will go time and money and service.

2. Our gifts to Christ. It is hard to separate God and Christ in our giving. Both are divine and both are one. "The Father and I are one." But their relationships to us differ, and thus we may speak at least of offering gifts to each. The heart can only be given to the Father through the Son. Yet the gifts of the wise men may suggest our gifts to Christ. (1) They worshiped Him. When they saw Christ "they fell down and worshiped Him." God the Son is the object of our worship as well as God the Father. We should hold Him in the highest reverence, bow down before Him and give to Him the best devotion of our minds and hearts. (2) "And when they opened their treasures they presented unto him gifts" for God Christ needs and wants gifts of money. It is required to carry on His work in the world, and He wants it as gifts. Giving is constantly emphasized in the Scriptures, and we should give of our gifts to Christ. Even "Take my silver and my gold" should not only be sung, but acted upon, in the giving of our money to Christ. (3) Frankincense and myrrh. These were precious ointments of the orient. They were the best gifts, such as were given to kings. Such gifts should lead us to give our best gifts to Christ. "Give of your best to the Master." A small boy gave Christ five loaves and two fishes, seemingly a trifling gift. Yet Christ multiplied it and through it fed 5,000 people. Our gifts may seem small, but if they are our best and freely given to Christ He can make a great use of them.

3. Our gifts to one another Christmas day witnesses a vast exchange of gifts. The tendency today is to give more expensive gifts than are necessary. Let us avoid it. Let us also not confine our giving to loved ones and friends, but make some gifts to the poor and needy. Exchange of gifts is largely selfishness, but a gift to one from whom we can expect nothing in return is the true spirit of giving.

W. J. Bryan and Temperance.

A thrilling period in the recent St. Paul international Christian Endeavor convention is thus described by an eyewitness:

Following the Nebraska delegation, Mr. Coleman spoke of the pledge signing campaign which Mr. Bryan is anxious Christian Endeavorers should take up and read the autograph pledge which the Nebraskan leader had sent him: "I promise, God helping me, to abstain from the use of all intoxicating liquors as a beverage." A burst of enthusiasm followed the announcement of this new movement, of which Christian Endeavorers are to hear much in the months to come.

Don'ts For Endeavorites.

Don't fail to live the truth if you would be faithful to it.

Don't persuade other people beyond your own convictions.

If the sun rises on a man doesn't get all that's coming to him he is lucky.

People who set a good example never know what it will hatch out.

Don't make the mistake of burying your talent lest your future time be occupied in sowing vices.

Influence of Jesus.

In the early days the influence of Jesus was explained according to the genius of that age. Today we must try to account for it in accordance with the genius of this age. They said it was due to His person. He was God. We say it was due to His character. He was the calmest and purest and most unselfish of mortals.—Rev. A. G. Sinpson, Presbyterian, Providence, R. I.

SIR ROBERT WHITE.

O'er russet fields of ripened corn,
From out the purpling hazel's bourn
Floats a clear call to Arcadie.

No need of sight to know that fall
Brown nuts in earth whence comes this call.
This reedy call to Arcadie.

No need to ear to know the pipe
Of Syrinx plays o'er Autumn ripe
In spicy glades of Arcadie.

Sundays in England

No. 2—At Grasmere

By Rev. Charles L. Goodrich

Hawthorne, writing more than fifty years ago, said of the Lake District: "I question whether any part of the world looks so beautiful as England—this part of England, at least—on a fine summer morning. It makes one think the more cheerfully of human life to see such a bright universal verdure; such sweet, rural, peaceful, flower-bordered cottages—not cottages of gentility, but dwellings of the laboring poor." And of Grasmere itself he said: "The little town of Grasmere seems to me as pretty a place as ever I met with in my life. It is quite shut in by hills that rise up immediately around it like a neighborhood of kindly giants. These hills descend steeply to the verge of the level on which the village stands, and there they terminate at once, the whole site of the town being as even as a floor."

A friend of mine remarked, "In the Grasmere Christmas time place I felt there as if anything wonderful and pleasing might come round a corner the next moment." I think it was Margaret Sherwood, we were so fortunate as to make her acquaintance at Brougham Villa, our lodging place, who quoted the remark: "I wonder at anyone arriving here ever going away at all." We arrived there and did go away; but from what has been said one may well imagine that he should be glad to share with others some of the pleasure we had there. Grasmere lake is but a small sheet of water; only a mile long. But a lake does not have to be large to be conspicuous in England. If you have so much of a prevalent American mind that you can not be impressed with anything unless it is big, you should not go to the Lake District. I will confess that Rydal Water was so disappointing on first sight, that I felt something like pity for the English people that they have to make so much out of so little in the way of lakes.

But no such feeling could remain long with one. When you have been set down from the Ambleside coach in the market square little town with its dark stone houses over which the vines ramble and great tea roses stray and bloom at will, with its little river Rothay singing through it and its glimpses of the lake; when you have turned the corner by the stationers and got the surprising view up through the pass of Dunmail Raise; when you have turned another corner by the dearest white cottage and the erkind field in the world, on which takes its charming cultivated foreground with massive Helm Crag rising precipitiously strong and glorious, not far away; when you have rowed out onto the lake and caught the whole sweep of the hills, and the grass hills, your sensations are not those of disappointment but of delight. When you find that from Grasmere one may coach over the Kirkstone Pass to Ullswater mounted by some to be the most scenic scenery of all the lakes, and by the Keswick road to Derwent Water voted by many to be the loveliest of all and of which Ruskin said: "The view from Friar's Crag is one of the two or three most beautiful in all of Europe. Your appreciation will be deepening. And if you leave the head of your household with a book beneath the trees by Easedale Beck, loved of poets, and will the lad strike up past an old Roman road to find traces of Roman encampment for the top of Steel Fell, and when you have arrived yield to the lure of the long ridge leading off around a great gulf encircling Green Beck; and making your way by that lofty route reach the top of Helm Crag, whose rent rocky summit looks like a blown out crater, and from which you look down upon the green and yellow checkering of the farms in which men and women are harvesting and the clustering houses of the village and the sparkling blue lake wearing one green isle like an emerald on its bosom, while all around near and far behind you are tumbled mountains of grandeur fit to make any man's heart swell—then you have begun to know why Grasmere is famous. And if you take the ride to Coniston Water and row across the lake to Brantwood, Ruskin's home, and pause at his gate to look back over the rough, rocky road to the best view in England;" and then return by the Yewdale route, which winds in uninterrupted beauty all the way with two or three vantage points of marvellous vision, and come out in the late afternoon on the brow of the hill above Grasmere, where though your soul has been steeped in beauty for hours, you can but cry out with the combined loveliness and grandeur of the scene that has broken all unexpected upon your sight: Grasmere Water shining like silver at the foot of green fields below you, the tree-adorned village with its quaint old church on the farther shore, then a tremendous amphitheatre of mountains from near Helm and Seat Sear to distant Seat Sandal and Helvellyn rising close and climbing far and high beyond the town. You are ready to deny your former exclamation and declare: "No, this is the finest view in all England." Then, surely, you will have begun to know why Grasmere is famous. You will know it ought to be.

And if you happen to be so fortunate as to return from that finest of all the drives of the Lake region just as the bells are ringing for the ancient ceremony of the Rush-Bearing, you will then begin to feel a further reason for the fame of the place. For Grasmere has not only the charm and power of natural beauty combining in rare manner the quiet and peaceful, the lovely and cultivated, with that which rises quickly into the rugged and sublime; it has also customs running far back into history and associations of names of men that are known wherever English history and English literature are known. This ceremony of the Rush-Bearing, which is observed now only in two other places in England, is a link with a distant, ancient past, and a link also with a heroic figure of the sixth century, there, Oswald.

Oswald was king of Northumbria in the days when England was not one nation but several. He defeated here enough to make him strong. More than that, for having learned of Christianity of the Irish monks of Iona, he came to Northumbria not only to conquer its enemies, but also to bring the religion of Christ to that region.

So as successful warrior, as able king, and also as devout and evangelizing Christian who brought the Faith thither, he is reverenced to this day. The church is dedicated in his name, and year after year when his Saint's Day comes round the village people observe the festival of the Rush Bearing in his honor. All the children of the parish, bearing rushes and flowers in clusters or women into symbols led by a band of music, march through the streets and into the church. The flowers and symbols are placed as decorations around the interior. Some rushes are strewn upon the floor; for the ceremony is commemorative of the old times when the floor, the rushes were brought in and spread thickly upon the stone floor to take off the chill for there was no furnace or stove in the church in those days. A service follows with some distinguished preacher as the speaker. The festival ever brings to mind, the ancient days and the example of one heroic and saintly figure. The meaning of it all is well expressed in the hymn which they sing.

We returned from our drive to Coniston Water in time to see the children parade the streets. Children I say, but one of them must have been nearly eighty. He had marched in that procession for seventy-five years or more very likely. We came to the old church for the church at 5 o'clock that Saturday afternoon. And with that service we may count our Sabbath in Grasmere as beginning. The church is a very old building. It seemed tiny compared with the great cathedral in which we had worshipped the Sabbath before. You could hide it all away in one of the transepts or chapels of the cathedral. It is very unusual in its structure. It has a nave—if I may so speak of so small a church—and then an aisle on one side only, the roof being built out over this with a curious one-sided effect. There is a row of arches of roughly cut stone between these two parts of the interior; and the entire interior is lined with and dark with age, are open to view above. I have never seen an interior like it. I doubt if any one ever did.

It was crowded that day. Instead of a talk to the children which I had expected, there was an address upon Patriotism. It gave one a singular feeling to listen to an address on patriotism in a foreign land, where patriotism meant loyalty not to one's own country but to another. It did not mean much, however, England seems so much like our own The spirit and principle are the same whichever side of the sea you are. I observed that England's people are still being exhorted with Nelson's words, "England expects every man to do his duty." The preacher quoted Wordsworth's Happy Warrior, also in the church in which Wordsworth used to worship, with Wordsworth's pew just before him. Wordsworth's tablet on the wall opposite and Wordsworth's grave just outside the church behind him, he could hardly avoid quoting something from that poet. And the words chosen were apt:

"Who is the Happy Warrior? Who is he
"That every man in arms should wish to be?
"It is the generous spirit, who, when brought
"Among the tasks of real life, hath wrought
"Upon the plan that pleased his boyish thought;
"Whose high endeavors are an inward light
"That makes the path before him always bright.

"Who if he rise to station of command
"Rises by open means; and there will stand
"On honorable terms, or else retire,
"And in himself possess his own desire;
"Who comprehends his trust, and to the same
"Keeps faithful with a singleness of aim.

"Who whether praise of him must walk the earth
"For ever and to noble deeds give birth,
"Or he must fall to sleep without his fame,
"And leave a dead, unprofitable name.

"Finds comfort in himself and in his cause;
"And while the mortal mist is gathering, draws
"His breath in confidence of Heaven's applause—
"This is the happy Warrior; this is he
"That every man in arms should wish to be.

Not many, perhaps, have thought of the definition of patriotism given there. For English people, patriotism is to cultivate those characteristics for which Englishmen are proud of their nation. There are certain characteristics for which Englishmen are known wherever they go the world around. To study those characteristics and cultivate such of them as have served to make England honored is the part of patriotism for English people, he implied, and this is but a picture of English character.

"Somewhat shy, reserved, slow of speech when readier utterance would often remove suspicion, unsentimental to those who do not by experiencing the sanctities of life, loving liberty with its burdens and perils rather than the safer state of subjection, self-respecting, regardful of his own rights and of the rights of others, and always just and honorable."

Those of you know English people will appreciate the portrait. His definition of patriotism is one to set us thinking. Is patriotism for Americans the cultivation of those traits for which Americans are best known? It may well set us asking, what are the characteristics for which an American is best known, wherever he is found? Are these the traits for which we would most desire to be known? What special American traits are there for which we are justly proud of our country's past and to the cultivation of which we may well wish all youth to devote themselves with loyal zeal as a matter of true patriotism? It would be a good theme for a Fourth of July oration.

Sunday morning found us again in the church and the service was also a part of the Rush Bearing ceremonies.

The able speaker of the day addressed himself more directly to the children. He, too, felt that the observance of such an ancient custom should tend to kindle patriotism, to lead children to cherish those traditions which had made England famous. He brought his lessons from Oswald, king and saint. Oswald had stood for instruction and for prayer; his teaching had had in it as its main theme the love of God in Christ. Redemption through Christ. Regeneration through the Spirit of Christ." The speaker affirmed that it was largely because these three have been taught in the past that England's men are known for their love of and righteousness wherever they go. I could but think how much the past means to these men! How their thoughts go out too over all the earth! They do not think of England when they say or write of British Isles. They think of England as world-wide of Englishmen as all over the world; and they have an ideal for the national character built up out of old traditions and established ways, the ways of pleasantness, which must honor them for it.

Am I spending too long a time inside the church for even the account of a Sunday in Grasmere? Very well, then come outside into the churchyard, take the best worn path to the left and we will go where I wish to go. In a moment you will stand by the grave of Grasmere's most illustrous dead, William Wordsworth. William Wordsworth, that is all the inscription there is on his stone. That shall be enough to be proud of, surely. And there is no stately monument above his dust. There is no room for one. Doubtless he did not wish one as he chose the spot himself. A yew-tree that his own hands planted overshadows the headstone over the grave. The little river Rothay flows just outside the rail and is an ever-sounding epitaph, for he made it famous in his verse. The majestic circle of hills and mountains that he loved so well, and which he described and fall and beck and dale utters his name; for on almost every one he has placed some lines that live and speak of him. The village, thronged at times not only because of the natural beauty but also because of the literary associations and the debt many feel to this man and the whole region, let us say, is a monument that holds him in continual memory. But you do not wish to linger too long in a churchyard. Then you may walk down the street a little way and enter the quaintest of stone cottages, rose adorned, of course, and see where he used to live, the room where he used to write, the books that he owned. You may go out into the orchard which he planted and eat of the fruit thereof and drink at the well he dug, hoping to receive some of his poetic inspiration, as we did with results not yet apparent. You may go on further to Rydal Water and the stone seat whereon he used to sit and dream and write, and to Rydal Mount, the more pretentious home of his later years, in which he died. And whether you have read much or little of his poetry, whether you have received much from him hitherto or not, you can but know, that that was a man who has cast his name and his spirit over this whole fair scene for nearly a century, and has made its shrine unto which thousands come who feel themselves his debtors. You can but wonder of the influence which one man may exert, and will resolve, I trust that you will know him better. Then you must come back to the church once more and read the tablet upon the wall above the pew in which he used to sit. For there is a secret of it all.

"To the memory of William Wordsworth, a true philosopher and poet, who by the special gift and calling of Almighty God, whether in the discourse of man or nature, failed not to lift up the heart to holy things; tired not of maintaining the cause of the poor and simple, and so in perilous times was raised up to be a chief minister, not only of noblest poesy, but of high and sacred truth."

So is that most charming vale invested with the associations of Oswald, "saintliest of king and kingliest man," and of Wordsworth who ever lifted the heart to holy things.

TRIMMED WHILE YOU WAIT.

There is really nothing on a fall turban which one clever little woman wears to her office. That is, the turban is without trimming until about ten minutes before she leaves her home, and then from a wonder box she takes the appropriate scarf made to go with her gown and twists it around the wide turned-up brim.

It solves the problem of facing a hat, which aperation is a sign of the adept or amateur.

A golden brown felt turban can be successfully treated in this way. For that brown suit of last year, why not have a deep brown ottoman silk to twine over the outer brim? At the front let the edges be joined (hooked, really) under an immense round ornament of tortoise shell or some such thing, and then rise in feathery grace from this place. A checked silk scarf can be caught at the side and two brown quills can spring from a pleated bow. That will look extremely well when worn with your dark brown fur piece just as a golf turban would with a checked suit. For your rainy-day coat of blue, why not have a simple folded band of blue silk, buckling at the back of the turban under a large enameled segare?

A black shape looks well when flaunting black-and-white plaid and long, uncurled ostrich feathers. It can be changed for more dressy occasions by a soft-folded band of gold tissue, with a jeweled ornament to hold it in place.

Suggestions could be made ad infinitum. Buy your shape and make a variety of pretty scarfs with their feathers or quills securely sewed at one end. Change your trimming to match your suit for different occasions. By this hook-and-eye scheme you will have time to retrim in an incredibly short time.

BLACK SILKS.

In black silks France has surpassed her efforts of other seasons and over the silk counters are thrown temptating new materials for every style of afternoon and evening gown. There is a tight, soft, creepy silk which lacks lustre and gives a dull background so necessary for brilliant contrasts. It has a suppleness of texture which answers the call for cling lines, and still there is a closeness of weave that gives weight to a costume.

Black satin cashmere appears in new beauty. For women who prefer sombre afternoon gowns of this material Lyons has contrived to give a soft shine that is rich without ornamentation.

Then there is double-width crepe meteor, which shimmers, unseamed, in elegant robes for evening.

Charmeuse, a dull soft silk, is especially adapted to slendering. The texture of this is so fine that fulness or clinging lines can be attained. French modistes favor this material for handsome afternoon dresses.

Black will be much worn this season. It has never lost its popularity with a certain type of woman; it bids fair to wedge its way into the color selection of all who emphasize elegance in their costumes.

WILLIAM R. TOWNSEND IS THEIR COMMANDER.

Camp Bagley, Spanish War Veterans, at its regular meeting last night elected these officers for the ensuing year: Commander, William R. Townsend; senior commander, Dr. H. D. Corbusier; vice-commander, M. D. O'Keefe; adjutant, Daniel J. Shea; quartermaster, J. D. Machab; officer of the day, Fred Frey; officer of the guard, Samuel R. Campbell; chaplain, Rev. Ora J. Shoop; surgeon, J. G. Staats; trustees, Irving Weaver, E. J. Richards and Dennis Dugan.

It was decided to have an entertainment at the meeting to be held Thursday night, January 13, when the members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will be the guests of the Camp. There will be a stereopticon entertainment, followed with refreshments and a smoker.

Something New in Fringe.

Very attractive cotton fringes, to be used for finishing table covers, are shown. The fringe, which has a double gimp, is especially practical, for the unfinished edge of the cover may be slipped between the two sides of the gimp, and then stitched into place, thus saving many extra stitches.

That woodsy notes are fluting light
In tune with throat of Old Bob White
Whistling a call to Arcadie.

His clear note rounds less shallowly
Than reeds of Pan blown mellowly
Through thymy aisles of Arcadie.

I, glad, from trodden, dusty road
Would turn swift feet to sylvan sward
And heed your call to Arcadie.

CAT AND DOG TACTICS.

The mastery of herself which a cat shows when, having been caught in a position from where there is no escape, she calmly sits down to face out the threats of a dog, is a marvelous thing, says the Boston Transcript.

Everybody has seen a kitten on the street doorstep attacked by a dog some times her size, as apparently self-possessed as if she were in her mistress's lap. If she turns tail and runs down the street, she is lost; the dog will have a sure advantage of her.

Even as it is, if he could get up courage enough to seize her on the spot, he would be able to make short work of her.

"You dare not touch me and you know it," is what her position tells the dog. But she is intensely on her guard, in spite of her air of perfect content.

Her legs, concealed under her fur, are ready for a spring; her claws are unsheathed, her eyes never move for an instant from the dog, as he bounds wildly from side to side, barking with comical fury, those glittering eyes of her follow him with the keenest scrutiny.

If he plucks up his courage to grab her, she is ready; she will sell her life dearly. She is watching her chance, and she does not miss it. The dog tries Fabian tactics, and withdraws a few feet, settling down upon his forepaws, growling ferociously as he does so.

Just then the sound of a dog's bark in the street attracts his ear, his eyes and ears for a moment, and, when he looks back, the kitten is gone!

He looks down the street and starts wildly in that direction, and reaches a high tree just as a cat's tail—a monstrous tail for such a little cat—is vanishing over the top of it. He is beaten; the cat showed not only more courage than he had, but a great deal more generalship.

THE SULTAN'S CIPHER.

That old grass-hopperlike combination of flourishes, the Toughra or sultan's cipher, which figures on official documents and all public buildings in Turkey, will have to be re-engraved with the name of Mohammed V, says the Pall Mall Gazette.

The inscription consists of the name, the purely Turkish style of it, and the words "ever victor." But the form is always preserved. It dates from Murad I. That redoubtable warrior could wield a battle-ax to good purpose, but, like a good many other people since, his talents in that line had not mastered the cunning art of the pen, so when he had to sign a treaty with the merchants of Ragusa, he smeared his hand with ink and pressed it on the parchment.

The conventional cipher does not bear much resemblance to the imprint of a human hand. The three upright strokes are said to be the three middle fingers. But, such as it is, it stands for "Murad, his mark."

The Greek patriarchate at Jerusalem is preserved a document with a similar sign manual, the actual impression of the hand of one of the khalifs.

All the Same to Father.

"Come here, Bates!" roared Dr. Bigwig, head and only master of the Cramton village school. "I have today received a —ahem!—a letter from Mr. Johnson, informing me that his son is unable to attend school in consequence of a thrashing you yesterday inflicted upon him. Is this a fact, Bates?"

"N-n-o-no, sir!" quailed Bates. "I never toch 'im."

But Dr. Bigwig did not believe. And two minutes later Bates was adding to his permissions to stand up in class, the benches being of wood.

On the following day Johnson returned and Dr. Bigwig sought justification of his act before the whole class.

"Did you tell your father that Bates thrashed you?" he asked.

"No, sir," piped the youth.

The master's countenance clouded.

"But your father wrote to me, saying that Bates did it!" he thundered.

"I know he did," snivelled Johnson. "It were Billy Beauchamp did it, sir; but father couldn't spell Beauchamp, so he wrote Bates."

A Rude Awakening.

On Friday evening two lovers were seated on camp stools, placed in quiet and romantic nooks, as far as the after deck of a river steamboat affords, relates the London Mail. As the boat passed Hampton Court an opening in the trees disclosed a pretty, snug, little house, partly covered with vine, and the young man said: "Wouldn't it be fine to have a little cottage like that, with all the front covered with ivy, and honeysuckle, and roses?"

"Wouldn't it!" exclaimed the girl joyfully.

"And when a fellow comes home tired from business to have a nice little wife to meet him at the door with a—"

"Yes—"

"And then the winter nights, the fire burning brightly in the cozy room, and you—I mean a wife—at the piano singing in the gloaming."

"I think it would be just too heavenly for anything."

"And then—"

But just then a careworn woman with brawling twins in her arms tottered by them, and he changed the subject.

DEATH OF JACOB KIRKNER

Valuable Citizen and Prominent Mason Passes to the Bourne.

THIRTY-FIVE YRS. ON 'CHANGE.

For Twenty Years a Member of the Board of Education—Once a Member of the Assembly.

Jacob Kirkner, one of the first citizens of Plainfield, who was prominent in the business world and Masonic fraternity, being a 32d degree member, died at his home on West Eighth street, about 2:00 Tuesday morning from a complication of diseases with which he had been afflicted for a long time. By his death the city loses a citizen who was constantly interested in every phase of its progress and could always be depended upon to do all that was possible to advance that which was best.

Mr. Kirkner was born in Bridgeport, Conn., seventy years ago last June, and had been a resident of Plainfield forty-five years. Forty-seven years ago he was married in New York to Miss Anna Moss, of that city. For a time he and his wife lived in Flushing, L. I., and then removed to Plainfield, where he at once identified himself with the interests of the city.

When a young man he engaged in the stock brokerage business in New York and for thirty-five years was a member of the New York Stock Exchange, where his influence was always felt. The greater part of his business career he was alone, but about eleven years ago he formed a partnership with his youngest son, under the firm name of J. Kirkner & Co., the son being the company. This firm prospered and was recognized as one of the best in the Street for its integrity and high purpose. Owing to failing health, Mr. Kirkner was not able to attend to business for many months past, but he always kept in touch with affairs at his office, where he had displayed that rare skill and ability which counts for success.

As a member of the Masonic fraternity, Mr. Kirkner was not only well-known throughout the State, but in all parts of the country. He was about the oldest Mason in the State, being the third one to join Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., which was on June 11, 1867. He was master of the lodge from 1879 to 1880. Besides being a past master of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., he was past high priest of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, Royal Arch Masons, past eminent commander of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar; past high grand priest of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of New Jersey, past grand commander of the Grand Commandery of the State of New Jersey and a past officer of Mecca Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, of New York.

Masonry was dear to Mr. Kirkner's heart and he never lost an opportunity to advance its interests. He was a faithful and regular attendant at the Masonic meetings and all were anxious to seek his wise counsel in matters pertaining to the order. The fact that he was honored so many times in the Masonic fraternity was a source of great pride to him and he never failed to appreciate the high honors.

Soon after coming to Plainfield Mr. Kirkner identified himself with educational matters and was soon chosen a member of the Board of Education. He was first elected to the board in 1868, remaining there until 1871. After a lapse of a few years he was again elected a member in 1875, continuing until 1881. After another lapse of a few years he was returned again in 1887, holding office until 1891, when he retired.

During his entire service as a member of the Board of Education he either held the office of president and secretary and it was largely due to his indefatigable work that the school system was put on a successful foundation. He never had any use for fads or fancies in matters of education and during the agrifer years he asserted his convictions in this respect on many occasions.

While a member of the Board of Education he became interested in a certain educational measure which he desired enacted by the Legislature and to accomplish his purpose was sent to the lower house of the Legislature in 1885. Securing the passage of the bill, he retired after one year's service, although his many friends tried to persuade him to accept a nomination for a second term.

Mr. Kirkner was a member of the Congregational church, and he not only gave the land where the edifice now stands, but also gave the parsonage. Until recently he was a faithful attendant at the services and was always a liberal contributor.

When Mr. Kirkner first removed to this city he lived on Dunellen avenue for a time and later he built the handsome residence on West Eighth street, which he occupied to the time of his death. He is survived by a wife, one daughter, Miss May Kirkner and three sons, George M. Kirkner, J. Caspar Kirkner and John W. Kirkner.

The funeral service will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock and at the request of Mr. Kirkner, it will be a full Knights Templar service, Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., as well as the officers of the Grand Commandery of the State, being in charge.

V. M. W. SUYDAM'S GIFT TO EAST END CHURCH

The Netherwood Reformed church has just received a silver individual communion service set, comprising eighty glasses and two plates, from V. M. W. Suydam, vice-president of the First National Bank, of New Brunswick, and also a communion table, the gift of Mr. Suydam in memory of his wife, who died last spring.

Wednesday evening, January 5, has been fixed as the time when the regular organization of the church, from a chapel, will be effected, and the Classis of Newark will meet here in special session at that time for the purpose.

Under the direction of the officers of the church a boys' club has been organized with a membership of eighteen. Val Blumling is the president and meetings will be held weekly.

PHEMIA PLAYED WITH FIRE AND CAPT. FEIRING FELL

Playing with matches at about 10:30 Tuesday morning, Phemia, the two-year-old daughter of John Brown, colored, of 208 East Fourth street, set fire to the bed clothes in her parents' sleeping room and it was but a short time before the house was filled with smoke. An employe of the gas company noticing the apparent fire turned in an alarm from box 21. The firemen were quick to respond and in a trice had the burning bedclothes out on the street and the house saved.

Mrs. Brown, the baby's mother, carried her little girl down the front stairs and set her on the front stoop seemingly unaware of the danger she was in. Captain Feiring, of No. 1 chemical wagon, had a nasty fall on the rear staircase of the house and at first it was thought that his arm was broken. But it amounted to nothing but a bruise. The damage was estimated to be $75 or $100 by Chief Doane.

DISPENSARY "GRAFTERS."

The evil effects of the struggle against preventable disease is that it is being abused, says the Boston Post. In Boston, New York, Chicago and all our large cities many people with money in the savings bank and a good job, amply able to pay their own medical counsel employing a doctor, depend upon the free dispensary for their medical treatment. As a result, the young man or woman who today takes up medicine as a profession has selected a field where there is little or no fee bare living, not to talk about wealth.

The very best doctors have small incomes, as compared with the revenue derived from the practise of other professions, and thousands of well-trained young doctors are waiting for patients who never come, while well-to-do sick in their neighborhood pass their offices to get free treatment in the dispensaries.

No other profession in the world would allow to persist the abuses which take money out of the doctors' pockets, and wonder is why they have not acted long ago. The fight against disease must go on, because it is an economic fight, based on the knowledge and observation of the simple laws of life. With education, but in every large city there should be organized a card index system, where the names of all applicants for free relief, for whatever cause, are assembled and duplication of relief prevented. If applicants are in financial condition to pay for treatment they should be made to do so, and they should be glad to do so.

The man or woman who believes that he or she is entitled to as much public or private charity as they can get should be made to know that they are stealing that which belongs to the poor.

If those who can afford to pay for medical treatment are made to pay, it will be easy for the municipality to take care of those who must be treated and supported, and at the same time relieve the dispensaries of the frauds and give the doctors a chance to live. With the fight against consumption, cancer, etc., therefore, must also grow a movement to compel the cheats now stealing doctors' time and hospital beds which should be kept for the deserving poor to pay for what they get.

Value of Correct Speech.

Correct speech is largely a matter of imitation. If the persons with whom a child constantly associates speaks intelligently the child will certainly do likewise. No amount of instruction in grammar will avail to counteract the debasing effect of practical tuition in the wrong direction. The home be the true school of speach and the mother the teacher whose influence will be the most lasting.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel will hold a box social on Friday night at the chapel.

ASK NEW JERSEY TO FIGHT FOREST FIRES

New Jersey's Forest Park Reservation Commission has made its report to Governor Fort and starts out with saying that another year of drought has convinced the commission that practical forestry is impracticable until the fires are under control. "It is useless to advocate forest planting or to urge the care of woodlands so long as no assurance can be given that the venture and the investment will not go up in smoke," says the commission.

During the last year there have been 608 forest fires, burning over 91,340 acres, at a loss of $149,219. The cost of the fire service for the year was $13,466. In 1908 there were 533 fires, consuming 52,978 acres of woodland, at a cost of $64,534.

In advocating better fire service, the commission says that the mere presence of individuals' lands should make no difference to the State, as such property are subject to taxation, and fires destroy ratable values. The commission says its aim will be to improve the value of the forests now existing; and with better fire service it is thought the ratables from this source will be increased from $2,000,000 to $20,000,000 in a few years.

In showing that the present fire service is valuable, crude though it may be, the commission calls attention to the fact that, while there were 608 fires reported during the drought this year, 11 per cent. burned over less than 10 acres, 25 per cent. less than 100 acres; 98 per cent., less than 100 acres, while only 2 per cent. burned over 1,000 acres and more.

WHITE PLAGUE PAVILION REPORTS SATISFACTORY

Although the sanatorium of the local Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis has been open for patients less than two weeks, the result of the openair treatment accompanied by a generous and nourishing diet is manifest, and encouragement is given to the hope that the first of this month, and one of them at the end of the first week of residence had gained seven and one-half pounds in weight; the aggregate gain in weight of all was twenty-four and one-quarter pounds, the smallest gain being one and one-half pounds. The eighth patient entered on Dec. 7 and it is too early to learn what her gain has been. As the patients are weighed only once a week. With one exception all show a diminution of the feverish condition and look very much better in their faces. They are all cheerful and say they enjoy the treatment.

One thing needful, that cannot be supplied to its full extent by the so called "rest cure" is employment to the enforced leisure. The children particularly would be greatly aided in controlling the restlessness natural to the age, from nine to twelve, by toys, games, story and picture books. One boy of twelve has no overcoat, and as his family must supply him one and the society's scant funds are necessarily applied to providing food, it is possible that some reader of this may have such a coat that can be spared. Articles of clothing suitable for girls of nine and twelve and boys of ten and twelve will be very acceptable. If persons having anything to spare cannot themselves take them to the sanatorium they may leave them either at the house of Dr. Hughes, 49 Somersets treet, or with Edward 49 Somerset street, or with Edwardtors will be always welcome to the pavilion, and will no doubt get a very different idea of the enjoyableness of living in the open-air, even in stormy weather, than many people no doubt entertain.

Skates After Surf Bath.

Asbury Park, Dec. 15.—For several days Dr. William S. Cummings, a local resident, has been enjoying a skate on Fletcher Lake after his usual daily bath in the ocean. After disporting about ten minutes in the surf he dresses, bundles on his skates and warms up on the ice. Dr. Cummings was formerly athletic instructor at Swarthmore College, Pennsylvania.

Feathers and Gowns.

It issued to be considered bad form to wear with a tailored gown a hat trimmed with a beautiful feather. Now it is quite correct, proving that costumes these days are not so severe as they once were.

The contractor who has the job of digging out Marsheider Channel, across Staten Island, to connect deep water with the already dredged Tuckerton Creek, is having a serious time of it. First, he found that the dredge and barges he brought from Delaware were too heavy of draft and couldn't be got to the scene of the work. Then he ordered a new outfit, and while coming up the beach from Delaware Breakwater was caught in a storm and lost two scows. However, the Secretary of the Treasury has asked Congress for $30,000 more to dredge Tuckerton waters, so Tuckerton business men are hoping for the best.

TUBERCULOSIS CAMPAIGN

resignation and consolation, and be assured that there is no one more deserving of sympathy than the poor consumptive."

Dr. James Miller, who followed Father Powers, complimented Plainfield and the Plainfielders on the start they have made in the work of establishing a pavilion where some preventive work can be done. He told of the things which are considered essential for the prevention of tuberculosis. To get the best results the people who are suffering should be taken from their present surroundings and brought into the environment of health which is provided by the free open air. In this pursuit nothing be taken ninety per cent. of those afflicted would get well.

The Sanitoria movement has spread all over the country and through the establishment of them it is hoped that tuberculosis will eventually be stamped out. The movement in this city, he said, should have the support of everyone. He made a strong plea for help for the extension of the work and compared the laggards in this respect with the men of the bread line in New York who had no other ambition to get the bread which was doled out to them night after night. Dr. Miller was liberally applauded.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, in a brief speech made a most impressive appeal for help in the great cause which the Plainfield society has taken up, and said that the Christmas spirit which is prevalent just now ought to move the hearts of all individuals to devote something to the work of helping.

The address of Hon. Homer Folks was a studied and masterly speech which held attention to his hearers and excited thoughts of the possibilities which lie within each individual to do something for somebody else.

"We are only superficially a Christian people. We are willing to do a little, but not much. We are shocked at the sudden approach of death, but do we feel it enough to prevent it coming to others? There are four hundred lives taken every day by consumption, yet we stand horror struck at a calamity like the cause of a large three-pronged hack in a thicket, where it had crawled after having been wounded by hunters.

As though eviction for non-payment of rent were not trouble enough, Mrs. Marie Martin was forced on Monday night to see her 6-year-old daughter run down by an ice wagon at Twenty-first and Federal streets, Camden. Mrs. Neilson was searching for a habitation while the storm beat incessantly upon her and her girl got into the path of the heavy wagon and was run down.

Samuel G. Young, a Pennsylvania Railroad engineer, had his leg broken in a wreck at Raven Rock, on the Belvidere Division, Monday afternoon. Young, it is said, ran past a caution signal and struck the caboose of the train ahead of him. Young lives in Phillipsburg. He was removed to his home.

118 competive examinations have been held, at which 2,290 applicants have been examined. Of these 668 were placed on the eligible lists, while 1,146 failed to pass examinations and were consequenuly rejected. The remaining 45 are yet to be passed upon.

Since the beginning of the operation of the law there have been 2,592 to all classes of positions in the service of the State and of the municipalities.

One of the difficulties encountered by the commission has been that in some examinations there has been a dearth of applicants and the commission has been embarrassed to devise a suitable eligible list. Concerning the situation the report says: "This state of affairs has almost invariably been due to the smallness of the salary paid, or to the undesirable nature of the work, and the commission has at times been unjustly censured for not providing candidates for appointment, when the real fault lay in the places themselves, or in the appointing officers or those who fix the compensation and the amount and character of the services required. Confirmation of this opinion has recently been given at the State Hospital for the Insane at Trenton, where suspicion has arisen that inmates have been ill-treated by attendants and where the medical director has expressed a wish that he might be empowered to pay higher salaries so as to secure better and more competent service. It seems highly desirable that sufficient salaries should be paid to make it possible to secure intelligent and humane care for the most helpless and pitiable wards of the State."

Referring to the complaint that the officers of the State institutions of local appointments the report says that "no appointments whatever outside of its own offices are ever made, suggested or in anyaway controlled by the commission, save in the requirement that applicants shall, if possible, be taken from among only actual residents of the community which they are to serve and not be imported there from other communities, and in, of course, the fundamental requirement that they have shown themselves qualified for the places which they are to fill, the only preference being given to those whose qualifications are highest."

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet Friday night for Bible study.

HOPES ALIBI WILL PROVE HE DIDN'T STEAL BLANKET

Perhaps there is some doubt as to who stole a blanket from the back of a horse on last Thursday night on West Third street, but there is no doubt as to the disappearance of the blanket. William Smith, a colored man, living at 560 West Second street, has been accused of the theft and because of the identification made by Isaac White, Smith was held under $50 bonds to await the action of the grand jury by City Judge Runyon Tuesday morning.

White claims that he saw Smith making off with the blanket under his arm at about half past six Thursday evening, while Smith claims that he was in the house at that time having been to the grocery store accompanied by his little daughter. The blanket was the property of A. B. Hoagland, an expressman, of Park avenue, and it has not been recovered. White was positive in his identification and Smith was equally positive that he was not the thief.

The story of the theft of the blanket, which was a brand new one, is interesting. One Brown, who drives one of Mr. Hoagland's express wagons, was in Clark's saloon, on West Fourth street, when the blanket vanished. It looks as though that here is the secret of the trouble. If he had been attending to his business instead of helping to fill the coffers of the saloon keeper the blanket would have remained on his horse's back.

On the other hand Smith has a police record. He was convicted of stealing some tools from the shop of Jack Horner, of Somerset street, last July, and this he explained on the ground of intoxication Anyway Judge Runyon regarded the circumstances so suspicious that he held Smith to await the action of the grand jury.

DUNELLEN'S GRIEVANCE AGAINST TROLLEY CO.

It is barely possible that the citizens of Dunellen will arise in their wrath and demand that the Public Service Railway stop their cars where the passenger will not be precipitated into the mud in the middle of the street, or take the matter to the courts for an injunction. Recently, it is said, the cars have been stopped with the rear end east or west of the crossing and passengers, especially women and children have been compelled to alight from the rear platform into the mud ankle deep.

The story told yesterday afternoon by a passenger who had his wife and baby on the car seems to be the limit. Arrived at the corner of Washington avenue and North avenue, the car was stopped as is indicated above so that the man, his wife, several bundles, a raised umbrella, and a baby had to take a chance with the mud and dripping water, with the result of wet feet and stockings for the man and his wife and a serious disturbance in atmospheric conditions owing to the man's profanity.

The conductor of the car informed an inquirer, that the orders were to stop the car on the near side of the crossing owing to possible danger of collisions at this particular point. Anyway the Dunellen people don't like the new order of things and will ask the Common Council to seek the remedy.

ROMAN CATHOLIC PRIEST AFTER P. S. SUPERINTENDENT

Father Reilly, of St. Henry's Roman Catholic church Monday made a sensational attack upon John W. Carr, superintendent of schools of Bayonne, saying that Professor Carr was a man unfit to be at the head of the schools. The trouble thus started may lead to a war between the head of the city schools and the Catholic church.

The attack followed a speech by Professor Carr, in which it was stated that the only person who dared undertake the work of transforming foreigners into good American citizens were the public school teachers. "What about the parochial schools?" asked Father Reilly. "There are three thousand children in the parochial schools in Bayonne. Are we teaching young children to be enemies to their flag and country?"

Father Reilly characterized the entire address of Professor Carr as a falsehood and an insult to the intelligence of the people. "It is filled with inaccuracies," he said. Professor Carr is preparing an answer to Father Reilly.

DE FOREST ON "CHARITY"

President of Sage Foundation Explains Purpose of Endowment.

HE DISCUSSES ITS PHASES.

What Is Being Done for Benefit of Mankind With Millions Given by Widow of Financier.

Despite the rain and in the face of a wind which blew at an awful rate, a large number of members of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church gathered in the chapel of the church Monday (olistas to an informal talk on "Some Phases of The Work of Organized Charity" given by Robert W. DeForest, president of the Sage Foundation.

Mr. De Forest's talk embraced all sides of the question from intermittent and spasmodic efforts at charitable work to the kind which brings the very best results, and made it quite clear that organization necessary in the distribution of funds to the needy. Mr. De Forest referring to the weather said that he remembered that the night on which Sir J. Purdon Clarke was the guest of the club last year he met with the same kind of weather, and he wondered if the women were responsible for the inclemency, but he rather thought that those who had braved the storm were entitled to know something of what the society is doing and how they are doing it.

The Sage Foundation aims to help the Anti-Tuberculosis Society, and is using its efforts in social betterments, tenement improvements, suburban tenement improvements and childrens' farm gardens, all of which have met with the distinct approval of the commission which has the fund in charge.

Mr. De Forest said that the results obtained from organized philanthropy during the past twenty-five years is the best argument. We may think, he said, that we have seen all the modern illustrations of progress, but the greatest advance of all has been made in practical philanthropy and this has been made possible through the efforts of individuals, and the combined work of the large philanthropic societies throughout the country.

Making the best of one's opportunities is what brings success. So, under whatever name charity is organized it accomplishes the good for which it was formed.

The Anti-Tuberculosis Society is an outgrowth of the Charity Organization Society, and the improvements in the tenement house laws are due to the work of the same society. The Sage Foundation is helping the same cause by assisting to improve social conditions and living among the poor. When the Sage Fund was founded appeals from colleges, churches and charities nearly overwhelmed the committee who have it in charge, and as the objects of the fund are made clear the millions of money away indiscriminately they had to be refused.

However, all these needs are measurably covered by private donations and no one should feel aggrieved. The Sage Foundation has been and is behind the movement to eliminate tuberculosis in various parts of the country and is one of the greatest of all the charitable propaganda. It is not looking for glorification nor credit, but for results, and through this fund the national playground committee, of which Luther Gulick is the head, is accomplishing wonderful results.

Two large tracts of land have been purchased on Long Island, where clerks with incomes of from $1,200 to $2,500 per year may own their homes and workmen whose earnings are more modest can also enjoy home life with comparative comfort. The amount invested in this work may not be quoted, neither would it do to tell of other figures given out by the speaker, but it may be said that the scope of the operations of the Sage Foundation has practically no limit and its influence will be felt for many years to come. Books are being published by the committee which give the details of the work already accomplished and more will be issued as they are required.

Mr. De Forest told many interesting things of the recent disasters in this country in which the aid of the Foundation had been material and prompt, notably the Cherry, Ill., coal mine horror and the Key West, Fla., hurricane, in both of which loss of life and property were great. At the conclusion of his talk Mr. De Forest took his place among the audience and answered questions propounded by members of the club, who undoubtedly are greatly interested in charitable work in this city and elsewhere.

Maple sugar fudge with nuts is made of three cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of maple sugar and one cupful of milk. Boil fifteen minutes, add a lump of butter the size of an egg, a small quantity of vanilla and a cupful of chopped walnuts or pecan nuts. Beat briskly for a few minutes, pour into buttered pans and, when nearly cold, cut into squares.

WEDS ROBERT S. WESTON

Miss Josephine Fitz Randolph Bride at Charming Home Ceremony.

THE UNITES OLD FAMILIES.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss Officiates—Bride a Daughter of Lewis V. F. Randolph.

Miss Josephine Fitz Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis V. Fitz Randolph, of East Front street, and Robert Spurr Weston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Weston, of Boston, Mass., were married at 7:30 o'clock last night, at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore white satin with old family lace. The maid of honor, the bride's younger sister, Miss Elizabeth Blossom Fitz Randolph, wore a gown of pale yellow crepe meteor. The bridesmaids, Miss Janet Randolph Kemble, of New York, and Miss Isabel Sague, of Albany, N. Y., wore gowns of lace over yellow silk. The bouquets were of white roses and sweet peas.

Leonard Metcalf, of Boston, was the best man, and the ushers were Harry Alonzo Cushing, recently Dean of Columbia Law School, and Oscar C. Davis, of Brockton, Mass. Following the ceremony a reception was held, when the bride and groom received the best wishes of relatives and friends.

The bride was born and always lived in the house in which she was married and has a large circle of friends, as has also Mr. Weston; and, manifestly, all of these could not be bidden to a home-wedding. But not a few came to offer congratulations, and among these were friends from Boston, Concord, Brockton, New York, Albany, Newark, Trenton and other cities and places, as well as from Plainfield, to the number of about four hundred.

The house decorations were of Southern smilax and white carnations and roses. Hundreds of beautiful wedding presents were received by the happy pair. They will reside in Boston, where Mr. Weston has his chief office as sanitary engineer. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1894, and later took a course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston. Later he went abroad to complete his studies as a sanitary engineer.

It was while abroad that he met Mr. and Mrs. Randolph's daughter, Mrs. Chester, wife of Lieut. Col. Chester, of Ontario, Canada, and a sister of the bride, and the acquaintanceship resulted in a friendship with the family which eventually brought Mr. Weston to Plainfield as a guest at the Randolph home. There he met the young woman who last night became his bride.

Mr. Weston on both his paternal and maternal side is a direct descendant of the oldest New England families, traced back to 1630 when they first landed at Salem, Mass. The bride's family is equally as prominent in New Jersey, her ancestors being among the very early settlers in the State. She is an attractive young woman and is greatly admired for her many true qualities. She is a talented musician and a lover of art, having had the rare advantage of the wide experience of her parents.

WHITE PLAGUE ASSOCIATION COMMITTEE TO MEET.

The executive committee of the Plainfield Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis will hold a meeting tonight to consider several matters pertaining to the operation of the tuberculosis camp, which was recently opened on the hospital grounds. There is some talk of building an addition to the camp to meet the increased needs. Several applications have been received from persons suffering from tuberculosis. Eight patients are now being cared for and with increased accommodations, as many more could be received for treatment.

Fine Skating at P. C. C.

Members of the Plainfield Country Club are just now enjoying some fine skating on the links. There is a pond, 120x100, about two hundred yards east of the clubhouse, between the fifteenth and sixteenth holes, that cannot be excelled for skating purposes. This is strictly private and is intended for members only. The tennis courts are now being flooded and if the cold snap continues there should be skating there by Saturday.

The holiday dinners will not be complete without a good cheese. Neuman Bros. have a full supply of foreign and domestic cheeses to suit every taste.

CHANCELLOR RIGHTS OF A DIVORCEE

Chancellor Has Discretion to Allow Woman to Resume Maiden Name.

WHEN IT IS A HARDSHIP.

Where There Are Children the Court Generally Hesitates to Grant the Privilege.

The enactment of a law four years ago authorizing the chancellor, in his discretion, to grant a divorcee the right to resume her maiden name has resulted in a large number of divorce cases in the last two years being featured by petitioning wives wishing to be known before the world by their maiden names, while the children must carry the cognomens of their fathers.

This class of divorce petitions has become so numerous recently that a question has developed in the mind of Chancellor Mahlon Pitney as to the social propriety of mothers being granted power for the right to resume their maiden names. While the chancellor has not expressed a formal opinion in the matter he has promulgated a rule that hereafter all decrees nisi, or temporary decrees, which precede by six months a final decree, shall contain an order of right for a wife to resume her maiden name before the world. By this rule the chancellor reserves the determination of allowing a divorced mother to resume her maiden name until the period arrives for a final decree. The corrolary of this order is that the chancellor means to determine each case on its merits with respect to the social effect on the children born of the union which is broken by the State.

It is understood that the court does not see any impropriety in granting this class of petitions in cases where an aggrieved wife is childless.

Antoni Barton, of Dunellen, reported to the local police last night that his stepfather, James B. Dick, has been missing since last Wednesday. Mr. Dick is described as being forty-five years old, about five feet six or seven inches tall and wore a brown suit when he left home. The police of various cities and towns along the line of the Central Railroad have been asked to be on the lookout for the man.

ANOTHER TROLLEY LINE

Proposed Traction Route Will Be of Benefit to Plainfield.

IT'S A PITTSBURG SYNDICATE.

Plans Already Out and Line Will Be Built by Morris County Traction Company.

Plans are out for a trolley line from Elizabeth to Lake Hopatcong, and assurances are given that it will be built by the Morris County Traction Company, backed by Pittsburg capitalists.

The company's representative, Mr. Schultze in New, Brunswick, said yesterday:

"In a year's time we will have a direct line in operation from Elizabeth to Lake Hopatcong, thus connecting with the Public Service Corporation lines to Trenton and Philadelphia, via Plainfield, Bound Brook and New Brunswick. With the recent change in the personnel of the officers of the company, and the moving of the books and papers to Morristown from Pittsburg we are in a position to push the work rapidly. Heretofore we have been at a disadvantage because part of our papers and records were at the Pittsburg office, and part in Morristown. Now everything is here, and it only remains for hard work on our part to get things in shape, formulate a general program and complete the route."

HE HOLDS 3 OFFICES IN CITY GOVERNMENT

Only a few appear to be in the joke, but those few are chuckling over the cleverness of the dignified Board of Education to prevent practical politics playing a part in the selection of one to fill a vacancy in that body. The same few are also laughing over what they consider a political blunder made by the board itself when its action virtually made one popular man the "pooh bah" of the city.

So secretly did the Board of Education engineer its plan to quietly name a successor to Charles F. Abbott, who resigned as a member after fourteen years service, because for two years he had not been a bonafide resident of the city, that even Mayor Charles J. Fisk, himself, did not know anything about the appointment until it had been made.

Mr. Abbott, it is said, wanted to resign long before the recent November election. He was induced, however, to keep his resignation in his pocket until after that time as otherwise the people and not the board would select his successor. Finally last Wednesday night the members secretly got together and, after accepting his resignation, unanimously chose Dr. B. VanD. Hedges in his place.

Dr. Hedges already holds two local public and one semi-public office. He is president of the Board of Health and is a director of the Public Library by appointment of the Mayor. Likewise he is a governor of the hospital, which received support from the city. The result of the education board's action is to make the popular physician probably the greatest office-holder in this section.

At the same time he is excellently qualified to hold these offices.

His Horse Strayed.

Patrolman Saffron, of the local police force, found a horse drawing a carpenter's wagon on Park avenue at a late hour last night, wandering along as though searching for his stable. Patrolman Saffron took the horse and wagon to McDonald's stables for safe keeping and it was later claimed by Theodore Zeller, of 13 Spruce street, North Plainfield.

NO FAVORITISM SHOWN FOR "CLIMAX" TICKETS

Santa Claus Land, Dec. 22.—This statement was furnished today by Charles J. Fisk, chairman of the ticket committee for the Charity Ball and Theatre performance to be given for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital:

"The ticket committee of the charity ball for the benefit of Muhlenberg hospital learn with regret that there is certain dissatisfaction and open charges of favoritism in the distribution of reserved seats at the theatre. The committee were most particular and gave strict orders that no seats were to be reserved in advance. A member of the committee was at the box office when the window opened Monday morning at quarter before nine o'clock, and at that time every ticket was in the rack and seats were issued in exchange for coupons and reservations made in regular order to those then in line. All mail and telephone reservations were taken in order received after line was worked off. Mr. Sanderson, the manager of the theatre, assures the committee that everything is strictly regular and no favoritism shown to anyone. The committee regret there should have been any trouble and assures all patrons that if there was any under hand work at any kind, it was without their knowledge, against their orders and absolutely beyond their control.

"So far about four hundred and fifty tickets have been exchanged. There are a number of good seats left in the house and all those holding tickets are heading in around the theatre, should exchange their coupons for reserved seats as soon as possible.'

COP AND MESSENGER PLAY "HERO" PARTS

Patrolman McDonald and Messenger Boy Reynolds, of the Western Union office, saved the lives of a man and women last night at about half past six and the parties got away without their names being discovered and without saying where they came from. The 6:19 train was just about coming into the station when train No. 215 came rushing along. Had it not been for the prompt action of the policeman and the messenger, who together pulled the two people out of danger someone would have passed a sorry Christmas and loved ones would not have known what struck them.

"THE GREAT NORTHWEST" SUBJECT OF HER PAPER

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, which has for the year's study "Mission Work in the United States," listened to a paper of profound interest on "The Giant Northwest," presented by Miss Mary Coles at the meeting yesterday afternoon in the lecture room of the church. The settlement of the Boundary Question prefaced Miss Cole's account of the marvelous changes wrought in the past seventy-five years in the northwestern section of this country; changes so great that she said the arid land called "the great American desert" had become the bread basket of the world.

The wonderful ferillity of soil that was aforetime thought only capable of sage bush growth and the marvels wrought by irrigation and the application of scientific knowledge were full of interest as described by Miss Coles, who told further how the brave and stout hearted pioneers had developed this empire of agricultural wealth.

The story of the work of the Home Missionary Society concluded Miss Coles paper. She told of the lack of money to carry on so great a work and the necessity for the church to awaken to its opportunity for teaching the Gospel in our own country. A devotional service led by Mrs. James L. Manning preceded the paper.

NEW $35,000 BUILDING

Edward S. Alpaugh to Erect Three Story Structure on East Second St.

ADJOINING NEW CITY MARKET.

Building to Be Fireproof and to Contain All Conveniences For Tenants.

The establishing of the city market on East Second street has resulted in a healthy boom in real estate and building circles which is sure to be a huge benefit to that thoroughfare as well as to the city.

It was announced today that Edward S. Alpaugh, of 223 East Ninth street, a retired New York merchant, will erect a three story brick building, containing stores and flats, on the plot of ground now owned by him adjoining the market building. The structure, according to Mr. Alpaugh, will be modern and up-to-date in construction and will cost between $25,000 and $35,000.

According to the tentative plans of Mr. Alpaugh the building will be erected in the spring. It will be a fireproof structure and the living apartments will be embellished with all of the conveniences of a New York apartment house.

Mr. Alpaugh is enthusiastic over the rosy outlook for the success of the new market. "It is bound to improve real estate in that part of the city," said Mr. Alpaugh to a Daily Press reporter this morning, "and the market, if conducted on right lines, it will prove a popular buying place for Plainfielders."

A PROWLING MAN AND A STOVE CAUSE TROUBLE

Samuel Aakson, who keeps a small shop at 541 West Fifth street, has caused a lot of excited comment during the last few nights owing to his habit of prowling around after other folks in the house had retired. Last night, at a very late hour, his actions became so suspicious that Mrs. Burns, who with her family occupies the upper apartment in the house, notified police headquarters that she was afraid something was wrong in the house.

Roundsman Higgins investigated and found that a small oil stove which Aakson kept on a mantelpiece in his room had fallen and set fire to a lounge directly underneath the mantelpiece and their combined efforts were necessary to extinguish the blaze. No alarm was turned in. Aakson said that he did not know the accident happened.

WOOLSTON WILL RESIGN

Borough Fire Chief Will Relinquish Reins of Office in January.

HE HAS SERVED SIX YEARS

Captain William McCullough and John Schenck Are Hustling for the Job—No Other New Appointments.

When Mayor-elect Newton B. Smalley takes the reins of the borough government in hand on January 1, it is generally surmised that with one exception he will reappoint all of the heads of the different departments.

The single change anticipated is the appointment of a successor to Fire Chief Howard Woolston, whom it is reported, on the best of authority, will present his resignation to the borough Council next Tuesday night. Mr. Woolston has filled the position of chief with credit to himself and borough for six years, or since the paid department was organized.

The rumor that Chief Woolston has intentions to retire has resulted in Mayor-elect Smalley being bombarded with applicants for the position. Up to date two candidates are hustling for the appointment, Captain William McCullough, of the call men, and John Schenck, a former member of the old volunteer department. Although Mayor-elect Smalley is mute on the subject of appointments, it is the general impression that McCullough stands in line for promotion. The office pays a salary of $100 and care of horse.

No changes are anticipated in the police department and Chief Weiss is certain to be reappointed. The same can also be said of Borough Clerk Frederick I. Martin and Overseer of the Poor Fred Becker.

Mayor-elect Smalley and the Council will meet for organization at noon on New Years Day.

OVER 400 WILL THANK ARMY OF GOOD FELLOW

So Successful Has Been the Appeal That Santa Must Call a Halt.

"Good Fellow" desires to announce that owing to the unusual amount of work required to expedite matters, it will be impossible to receive any letters addressed to Santa Claus after 10 o'clock tomorrow, Thursday morning. The aim is to place in the hands of the Army of Good Fellows by tomorrow night the lists of those for whom they are to be Santa Claus.

The committee, consisting of Miss Holly, of the Charity Organization Society, and Rev. George A. Warner, the friend of all the kids, have been "head over heels" in work. They never realized what they consented to do when they accepted the burden placed on them and as a result there have been at work night and day rushing matters.

By 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, "Good Fellow" hopes to be able to announce that the 500 poor little tots will have been provided with toys, dolls, etc., to make their Christmas a real one.

"Four hundred poor children at least insured a happy Christmas!"

The tidings was flashed from The Daily Press office today to Santa Claus' own igloo in Kris Kringleland.

Quicker than time to tell the receiving apparatus began to rumble and clatter and spit and sizz, and soon it was discovered that half a dozen "C. Q. D.'s" were trying to climb in at once with the return message. And this is the way they read:

"Hurray for the 'God Fellows!' I knew there were plenty of you in Plainfield, and I know you would come give me a bit if somebody would tell you how I needed the help. And here's a thing, too, 'Good Fellows,' I'll guarantee you that this will be the happiest Christmas you ever spent in your life.

"SANTA CLAUS."

Not many realize how great a thing has grown from the Full Christmas Stocking campaign started by one "Good Fellow." Not even he dreamed he had so many comrades just waiting for a chance to show what "Good Fellows" they were. Yet these letters asking for directions how to become a "Good Fellow" Santa Claus continue to reach The Daily Press office in every mail.

"I am in thorough sympathy with your work and should like to share in it. Will you kindly send me the names, sex and ages of six or eight children."

MIDNIGHT XMAS MASS AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

A midnight mass on Friday night will mark the beginning of the observance of Christmas at St. Joseph's R. C. church. Admission to this service will be by ticket only. The celebrant will be Father Baldwin, of St. Mary's College, a Passionist Father of Hoboken assisting as deacon and the rector, Rev. William H. Miller, as sub-deacon.

Appropriate music will also be a marked feature of the service. A boys' and men choir, which is being drilled by James Bailey, will augment the regular church choir. Mrs. Harry DeMeza will preside at the organ, and Korff's orchestra will also assist in the service.

Labache's mass and Novello's Adate Sidenes will be sung. Masses will also be celebrated at 8:30 and 10:30 o'clock on Christmas morning. The Yuletide sermon will be preached by Father Miller.

John P. Jeffrey, of West Fifth street and Les place, chief operator of Merganthaler linotype machines at The Daily Press office, is detained at home with an attack of erysipelas.

Francis Dugan.

Francis Dugan, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Dugan, died this morning at the residence of his parents, 511 East Seventh street, after a brief illness. The funeral will be private.

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

Strange, when we get a fit of quiet thinking about it, how fast the old traditions hold us in their grip. Here comes Christmas, a commemoration of a sacred event, originally celebrated by the heart but now by the stomach mainly. Mother Church made it a spiritual festivity, encouraged her children giffed with the sense of beauty to express the common people's pious joy in new melodies and choruses that mounted up to the vaulted roof and rolled in glorious harmony with the scented clouds of incense and waves of organ harmony. Not only was the heart charmed with this rich interpretation of the soaring emotions, but the ear, the eye, and the equally important nose were gladdened and made thankful for such uplifting Christmas cheer. Why our churches which spend so much on architecture, decorative walls, stained windows, and awfully gilded organs should crowd these offerings to please the eye and yet utterly ignore the nose is one of those mysteries I have never found out. Suppose we new folk revive the snuff-box fashion. It would at least keep us awake in sermon time.

With the later day motorcycle rush of what we call "Progress," this spiritual intellectual view of Christmas has to a considerable degree been conducted to a basic unit in our craniums, and we may more freely indulge in the material celebration of the divine event. The olden sacrifice of a dove has a rather pretty poetical sound—except to doves, but I don't remember seeing any verse which tells us that the act of sacrifice ended by eating it in the form of a pigeon pie. The turkey, not being a poetical creature, we proudly sacrifice on the altar of a Christmas appetite. Our celebration is on a banquet basis. One misses the poetical garland of well-browned sausages the English wreathe round the lordly turkey. Its grandeur deserves the porky tribute and its lack of flavor demands some such atonement. It makes for economy too, as the wise feast their eyes on the turk and their stomachs on the savory adornments. When the Pilgrims and Puritans came over they did not leave behind them these material aids to spiritual thoughts. Even their Christmas devotions have come down to us in the impressive form of mince piety. So we see how natural it is to associate food for the mind with little feasts for the body. The only question is as to their relative importance.

One's Druidical memory recalls a long and richly varied array of Christmas feasts eaten, enjoy d, and once in a way digested. In baronial halls, with all the old-time honors of bringing in the boars' head with ancient carols; in city mansions; in bachelor halls; in gipsy camps; and a Christmas or two with no Christmas dinner at all. Top of the lot rises like a steeple, fast in the spacious cottage of a Yorkshire mechanic, and here is the chronicle. It was in the merry days of yore, when the grassy village in bowery glen was deemed more beautiful than any gorgeous avenue of palaces, when young folks thought the cards a species of and simple outdoor delights than of theatres, hair rats, cuffed trousers, or the tailor-made fascinations of silly Sunday papers. We were a band of mixed sorts, youths and maidens, rich and poor, but brothers and sisters all in one sole wealth as our various talents, one to ten, enabled us to do among the less lucky. One of our devices was to go a-waiting. Christmas Waits. For three months we worked at making and singing a goodly program of oratorio selections, of carols, of inducing Christmas anthem or two, and a few merry glees, rounds, and catches, with home-made words to suit our audiences.

We effectually disguised ourselves in any self-made costume our genius suggested, and we were orchestra as well as soloists and chorus. One made and played a giant double bass fiddle, all you saw was a sort of bedpost, a cigar box and something else not to be told, with strings of course, but the deed was done in the society of an opera house. Another had what looked like a bagpipe, but it gave out organ music. Our violinist was genuine; not so our organist, whose genius turned a tea chest into a dumbo of tinkling wires as he turned the Handel on the wooden plate a-top, on which leaden horses chased round. At each end of our long semi-circle as we took our stand in the streets was a small boy, robed in his choir surplice. Home made goose feather wings flapped between their shoulders, brass haloes adorned their yellow-wigged heads; they played the canes very prettily on their tin whistles, on the ends of which were screwed brass candlesticks to make the nibble believe they were archangels' trumpets, and on their breasts were boxes for free-will offerings.

But all this is drowning the dinner. We started at 10:30 on Christmas eve, made our round of calls on friends until soon on Christmas day, being regaled at each house with everything had for us, from puddings and pies to hot ale with rum in it. We were bribed several times to stop and play up in the streets. Our gifts came near averaging ten dollars for each of fourteen, all of which was expended at our discretion among the poor old people it was then the good custom for all youngsters to visit and cheer in their own immediate neighborhood.

Sad to say, but too true, three—they were our senior brothers—succumbed under repeated doses of the rum and shri. It was a miserable sleety night and the action was mighty as well as good and welcome. We broke up in every grade of demoralization except of spirits, and as the sun was shining merrily two of us, too cowardly to go back to town to be gured, gladly went to the village home, three miles off, of the said ingenious mechanic, best of good fellows and a true gentleman in the rough. After a civilizing wash in ice water, we huddled in sheer starvation round the little table in the middle of the big parlor. The buxom young hostess cruelly ignored the feeding until she had showed us the new number one baby. The mercier he chuckled and crowed the more we inwardly groaned, but she was a genial soul and we knew would soon load us with fatness.

In she marched, stately as a queen, bare armed and all smiles, holding at arm's length one of those spacious brown stone basins used, of course, as baby's bath tub. And in it, bobbing around, its blind but smiling face going above the lake of rich gravy which it was swimming, was our Christmas dinner—a sweet little duck of a darling Suckling Pig! Of all flesh dishes the daintiest and deliciousest. Only one penalty drawback. I grieve to confess it, each fearful was so succulent that it slid right down your throat before you could bite it, and so it was that I must have swallowed—not eaten—half the pig, but, mercy on me! All through the feast I vaguely felt I was devouring the Baby! Never mind, we all have our delusions, but let me assure the delicate reader that of all the birds, fowls and beasts, tame and wild, that deck the Christmas table, give me suckling pig, in a brown washbasin borne by a beaming young matron, in a village home, after a vagrant Christmas eve.

"BABY PARTY" GIVEN BY MISS LEVERIDGE

Miss Mary Leveridge, of 820 Sherman avenue, gave a "baby party" at her home Friday which was enjoyed by a large number of friends. It is to be expected from the cleverly-worded invitations all expected something original at the party and they were not disappointed. Everyone was expected to attend dressed in children, and there were guests from New York city, Philmont and Yonkers, N. Y., and this city.

All were "attired as kids, not all but partly," according to the invitations. Some of the costumes were ludicrous in the extreme and were the cause of much merriment. There were Buster Browns, Buster Browns, the long, coy little maidens and awkard school boys. The parlors were decorated with red and green bunting, which was used effectively.

During the early part of the evening kids' games of all kinds were played. The guests adjourned to the dining room about midnight, where supper was served. The room was beautifully decorated, too, with red and green bunting. The table with covers laid for twenty-four was artistically arranged. Three small Christmas trees were used in the decorative scheme. The favors were miniature owls. While seated at the table it was learned that Miss Leveridge's birthday anniversary occurred on Wednesday last and three rousing cheers and a "tiger" were given with a will. Congratulations were showered on Miss Leveridge. After supper games and dancing were enjoyed until an early hour this morning. Miss Mary Leveridge was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Charles W. Leveridge, in receiving.

COLBY SUFFRAGE TALK REVIEWED BY THE REGIMENT

Tells Women Why He Thinks They Should Be Allowed to Vote.

HIS WIFE HEARS HIM SPEAK.

Man's Ballot For Business, Woman's For Home, Says Leader of Ex-New Ideas.

Former State Senator Everett Colby address the Equal Franchise Society Thursday in the Garden theatre, New York. The president, Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, sat in a box with Mrs. Everett Colby, who was formerly Miss Edith Hyde, of this city.

"The argument that women don't want the ballot suggested my trying to prove that they do," Mr. Colby said, "and in the poorest districts of Newark I made a house to house canvas. I found more than fifty per cent. said they wanted to vote and they wanted to vote now. And this same method of getting at real facts and conditions I employed in answering another argument against giving the ballot to women.

"Those who are opposed to the movement will tell you that women have not the same understanding of laws and have not the facilities of men for becoming posted on government questions. You can prove by statistics that there is no difference between men and women in their ability to acquire information. The average girl goes to school two or three years longer than the average boy, and there are more boy laggards than girl.

"The average man devotes about ten hours a year to the actual study of politics, and yet the average man knows less about the details of government than women do now. In my visit to the tenement districts I found that all the intelligent questions were asked by women. Men were interested in nothing until the exise question was brought up, but the women knew practically all the laws affecting their children.

"In a majority of cases the woman would vote for the home and all that affects it, whereas the man votes for what affects his business interests."

LOCAL ENTRIES FOR THE POULTRY SHOW

The twenty-fifth annual show of the New York Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association to be held in Madison Square Garden from December 28 to January 1. The entry list, according to Mayor Crawford, of Montclair, who is secretary of the association, is the largest in the history of the show.

Among the entries are those of William Howe Cook, of Scotch Plains; Mountain Flying Loft, and the Sunswick Poultry Farm, of this city. They will have one or more entries in the show. In addition thousands of intries have been made from all parts of the country. One of the largest will be from the Kellerstaff farm in Kansas. At the exhibit in New York, two years ago, Kellerstraff sold five white Orpington fowls to an opera singer for $7,500. They were sent to the singer's home in Hungary.

CIRCUIT RIDER TALE TOLD BY A PASTOR

"Riding a Virginia Circuit," was the topic of an interesting lecture given by Rev. Dr. George C. Wilding, of Perth Amboy, at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church Thursday. There was a large attendance and all thoroughly enjoyed the informal talk of Dr. Wilding, who related many unusual incidents which marked the early years of his ministry.

The story was that of a callow young Methodist preacher with little or no experience, riding on a horse over a circuit comprising thirteen appointments in the mountains of Virginia. Dr. Wilding said that when he told his father of his intention of becoming a preacher, the latter told him he was a fool and his employer called him a blockhead. He explained, however, that his employer afterward apologized and commended him for his determination. At the close Dr. Wilding said that he had a wife and child to support on the smallest kind of a salary.

At the time he was working in a Virginia town and was filling what was considered the best position in the place. This he gave up, because he believed that he was called to preach the Gospel. Since that time Dr. Wilding has had some of the best appointments in the Methodist church and is now considered one of the denomination's strongest preachers.

During the evening Mrs. Charles K. Shreve favored the audience with two soprano solos, which were greatly enjoyed.

BRIG. GEN. COLLINS AND STAFF INSPECT THE REGIMENT

Inspect the Soldier Boys at Trenton.

GREAT CROWD IS PRESENT.

Trophies Are Awarded—Dinner at Dungan to His Staff.

Co. K went to Trenton Friday and took part in the review of the Second Regiment, National Guard, in the armory by Brigade General Dennis F. Collins and his personal staff. It was a great night for the regiment, as this is the big event of the year. "From reveille to taps" might be the proper military style of describing the review.

Many invitations were issued and the armory was packed with people. The gallery was reserved, and this was filled as well as the drill floor down stairs. The soldiers formed in regular style used in camp life, and assembled to the calls of the bugle from the field music. Promptly at 8:30 o'clock, the general and his staff assembled on the floor, and after the regiment had been formed by Regimental Adjutant Rogers and turned over to Col. Nelson Y. Dungan, he in turn reported to his superior, Gen. Collins.

Prior to the review the general and his staff made a personal inspection of the officers and men and then took their places before the regiment and reviewed the troops as they passed. This was followed by a regimental review by the colonel, after which there was retreat and the lowering of the flag to the national airs, during which the entire audience remained standing. Then followed "lights out" by the bugle corps, and for a moment the entire place was in darkness. Then the first morning was sounded and the lights were turned on, after which the companies were dismissed. Gen. Collins then presented the companies with their trophies won during the year as well as the individual members' honor medals and badges.

Before the review, Col. Dungan gave a dinner at the Hotel Sterling to Gen. Collins and staff as well as his personal staff. The officers were in full military dress and presented an attractive sight with their gold-trimmed uniforms. Among those present was Major William B. Mason, formerly captain of Co. K. The local company made a fine appearance at the review and was highly praised.

NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION TO BE GIVEN BY MAYOR

Mayor Fisk intends to keep open house on New Year's Day at the office in the Smalley building. He will be there from noon until 4 in the afternoon of that day and will be pleased to see all those who would like to call upon him.

In making this announcement Mayor Fisk said that he thought the custom was a good one and it ought to be perpetuated. His forthcoming reception will be by no means the first of the kind in this city. In addition to the calls of those who have been made from all parts of the country. One of the largest will be from the Kellerstaff farm in Kansas. At the exhibit in New York, two years ago, Kellerstraff sold five white Orpington fowls to an opera singer for $7,500. They were sent to the singer's home in Hungary.

of the city's best known Republicans were guests. The men provided by the jovial host was one to be remembered and was thoroughly enjoyed.

City Judge William N. Runyon was toastmaster and speeches were made by Andrew McCardell, Judge William Newcorn, Registrar Frank H. Smith, Deputy Sheriff William Wright, of Rahway; James J. Farrell, of Hoboken, and others.

The banquet closed at about 11 o'clock with a song tendered to Mr. Windham in which all joined with vigor. Mr. Windham was the recipient of many congratulatory words and appeared happy in the thought of having entertained the friends with whom he has so long associated. In response to the congratulations of President McCardell Mr. Windham said that he appreciated manifested toward him by the business men of this city and hoped he would continue in the good graces of them all. Juding by the applause which greeted Mr. Windham's little speech he need never fear losing the friendship of the get together members.

LECTURES TO PUPILS ON HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

H. Crowfut White, who was to have lectured Thursday to the pupils of the North Plainfield High School, but was detained in New York, delivered a lecture this morning on the "Hawaiian Islands," which was decidedly interesting. Mr. White described graphically Mauna Loa, the great volcano which at times is approachable by tourists near enough to inspect the crater.

Climatic conditions, he said, were peculiar. There if anyone wants to inspect the country he must do it at an early hour in the morning or not at all. At all, or thereabouts every day in the year, rain begins and lasts all the rest of the day and far into the night. The average yearly rainfall is 400 inches.

The products of the island are mostly fruits, but they apparently cost as much there as here, with the exception, perhaps, of bananas. The latter, he said, could be purchased for about twenty-five cents for a full bunch. Pineapples sell for five and ten cents each. This price is about what the fruit may be purchased in New York during the pineapple season.

Surf boating is the national pastime and Mr. White's description of this sport was received with applause. More than anything else the Hawaiian is a surf boatman, and he derives his chief pleasure from the sometimes dangerous sport. The lecture lasted for about a half hour and at its conclusion Mr. White was roundly applauded.

INDUSTRIAL HOME'S SUPERINTENDENT TO LEAVE

During the year ending September 4, an average of twelve men have been given employment at the Salvation Army Home. Nine men have found permanent positions in this city, in addition to others who have found employment elsewhere; 13,259 meals have been given; clothing to the value of $260 has been distributed; 1,000 lodgings provided, and scores of men have been given work that has helped them over hard times.

Adj. Straubel and wife, who have been in charge of the industrial work for the past sixteen months, have received farewell orders, with instructions to proceed to Lowell, Mass. Their new work is really a promotion, as that city owns its own property, has three times the number of agons, and as the population, which is 1000,000, is in excess of Plainfield, the greater responsibilities and the new field will mean much extra work to the Adj. and his wife, and greater opportunities for service.

Last winter men were given employment who have not been out of work for seventeen years. Suddenly losing their jobs, they went to the "Work Shop," and were given the so much needed help. Many families, who would have suffered severely during the hard months of the winter, found relief and help at this institution. Not only have the men of the families been given work, but the members of many needy families received clothing and shoes to an amount of $53.95.

The most helpful feature of the Home is the store, where clothing is sold at a nominal price; in fact a large number of families find it a necessity to resort to the store to enable them to send their children to school, with necessary shoes and clothing, who could not manage otherwise. It will be of interest to note that during the year, the men who have been employed at the Home have gathered over 219 tons of newspapers and magazines, the sale of which has largely helped to support the institution.

FINED FOR SELLING CIGARETTES TO BOYS

It is not profitable to any man to break the law, and it is less so when a storekeeper violates the ordinance which prohibits the sale of cigarettes to minors. Abraham Wolf, who keeps a store at 428 East Front street, was fined five dollars Saturday morning by City Judge William Runyon and had to submit to a severe lecture besides.

John Coffey, a thirteen-year-old lad, told the court that he had bought the objectionable goods from Wolf, and that Wolf had not questioned him as to his age. Of course, the boy was sorry that he had indulged in the forbidden smoke; but that didn't let Wolf out.

During the Hebrew Sabbath, Mr. Wolf could not collect, so may clear to pay his fine today, but he will pay it on Monday and will probably remember that the laws must be obeyed regardless of money getting.

CHAS. F. ABBOTT RESIGNS

Dr. B. van D. Hedges, Health Board Prest., New Education Board Member.

HAD SERVED FOURTEEN YEARS.

Mr. Abbott Has Lived in New York City for Two Years—Other Doings of the Board.

Charles F. Abbott, who has been a member of the Plainfield Board of Education for fourteen years, presented his resignation at a special meeting of the board, Thursday, and Dr. B. VanD. Hedges was elected to fill the unexpired term which will run until the next election. Dr. Hedges is president of the Board of Health.

Mr. Abbott resigned as a member of the board because of the fact that he is now living in New York city, and for the past two years has been away from the city most of the time, in fact ever since he sold his property on Central avenue. In view of this he thought it only fair that he retire.

The board also discussed the contracts for the new Dunellen avenue school, and now that the bonds have been sold and the money is available, the architects, Hale & Rogers were instructed to prepare contracts and submit them to Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh for approval. The new school is to be built on the north side of Dunellen avenue, between Mariners place and Clinton avenue, the size of the lot being 210x200. It will be an eight-room primary building and will be constructed of reinforced concrete, making it fireproof. As soon as the contracts are approved the work will be commenced.

T., was assisted by Eminent Sirs Gifford and McGill, of the Grand Commandery of New Jersey, and Right Eminent Sirs Hubbell and Loudon, of the Grand Commandery of New York, and Eminent Commander Burr, of Clinton Commandry, of Brooklyn, with the Aurora Grata Cathedral Templar quartet.

The Masons present included the Grand Lodge of Masons, Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, together with representatives from other subordinate bodies of this city and Westfield. Delegates from Damascus Commandery of Newark and Jersey Commandery, of East Orange, were also present.

Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, acted as prelate for Trinity Commandery. The funeral was attended by a large number of friends of Mr. Kirkner including representatives from all the schools and from the Board of Education and the New Jersey State Legislature.

CHOOSE MEMBERS FOR FIREMEN'S RELIEF ASSN.

The various companies of the Plainfield fire department held their election last week for representatives to the Plainfield Firemen's Relief Association. The results follow:

The reports show that there is $8,000 in the pension fund, although it has been in existence but four years. The treasury of the relief association is in good condition, there being a balance between $5,000 and $6,000. The annual meeting of the relief association will be held on Wednesday, December 29, when officers will be elected and full reports will be made.

Select School Site.

A site for a temporary schoolhouse at Landen has been selected by the committee named by the Board of Education of that place. The proposed building will take the place of the one destroyed by fire until a permanent building can be erected.

HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mayor-Elect N.B. Smalley, W. A. Coddington and Chauffeur Slightly Injured.

UNPROTECTED TRENCH IN ROAD

Escape From Serious Injuries Due to Fact That Their Car Was Going at Low Speed.

Mayor-elect Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, and former Judge William A. Coddington, of the law firm of Reed & Coddington, while returning home in an automobile from Somerville last Wednesday at 4:50 o'clock, narrowly escaped serious injury when the car in which they were riding, landed in a ditch six feet deep and four feet wide, directly opposite a new dwelling being erected on Union avenue, Bound Brook. Both Mr. Smalley and Mr. Coddington were severely shaken up, while the chauffeur, William Stenger, received injuries in the stomach as a result of being thrown against the wheel on the steering rod.

Judge Coddington escaped with an abrasion of the head, which struck the top of the machine, while Mr. Smalley, whose injuries were the most severe, was cut over the right eye, over the nose and his back and neck was severely wrenched in being thrown about the car. Mr. Coddington is able to be about today, but the mayor will be detained at home several days.

They had been to Somerville on business in the Judge's car and were returning home about dusk. On Union avenue, Bound Brook, opposite the new house, contractors dug a deep trench in the roadway, about three-quarters the width of the thoroughfare. A lantern was displayed at that point as a warning, but it was suspended in the wrong direction giving one the impression that t was over a hole. A wagon was standing near the opening, and the chauffeur turned to the right to go around what he supposed was a hole. The auto plunged full force into the ditch.

The occupants of the machine were violently thrown from their seats and tossed into the air like paperweights, the mayor preventing them from being thrown out in the roadway. The chauffeur was hurled against the steering wheel, striking his stomach. He was made deathly sick and had to receive immediate treatment from a physician.

Closely following the Plainfield car, was Dr. Wright in an auto, and the Plainfielders had sufficient time to warn him so that he escaped a similar accident. Dr. Wright assisted Mr. Smalley and Mr. Coddington as well as the chauffeur to his car and took them to the office of Dr. Davis in Bound Brook, where the injured men were given temporary treatment.

In the meantime, a telephone message summoned Dr. J. H. Carman, of this city, to Bound Brook, in his auto. He brought the Plainfielders home and is now treating Mr. Smalley. It was necessary to take five or six stitches to close cuts on his face and nose. Today the mayor feels very sore about the head and body.

In conversation with Mr. Coddington today, a Daily Press reporter was informed that steps would be taken to fix the blame. After the accident, the contractor made the roadway more safe by erecting boards, etc., about the trench to warn other travelers.

JACOB KIRKNER, DEC 14, 1909.

Past Grand Commander of Knights Templar of the State of New Jersey.

The task is o'er,
The battle fought and won.
For thee, no more the cross,
But, lo! the victor's crown.
Well hast thou earned
The Great Commander's, "Friend,
Well Done!"

We would not rouse thee
From that peace, so calm and deep,
For only so He giveth His beloved sleep.
What though with trembling lips
And tear-dimmed eyes we stand
And give the Answer to thy last command;
What though our feet shall falter
When we bear thee hence.
Thou wilt forgive.
For thou dost know the love we bear to thee.
Oh! Master, Friend and Brother!
So run, thy race
Fight the great fight that thou hast fought,
Run the straight race that thou hast run,
And when our task is o'er,
Our victory won,
Hear, too, the Great Commander's,
"Friend, Well Done!"

Dr. Smith—Oh, no; I'm a physician.

RESIGNS JOB TO START BUREAU OF MATRIMONY

Hezekiah Hand, the veteran Justice of the Peace, caused surprise Wednesday when he handed in his resignation as sergeant-at-arms to the District Court presided over by Judge William Newcorn. Judge Hand has contemplated this move for some time, but it was not believed that he would renounce his connection with the court which had given him something of a fame as a process servior.

In speaking of the resignation this morning, Judge Hand said that the demands on his time made it imperative to relinquish either one thing or the other and he preferred to make people happy rather than sad. The reference to making "people happy" has to do with the Judge's habit of marrying couples who believe his system of payment is the one which should be adopted by all the marrying justices in the country as well as those who use the rites of the church in their ceremonies.

Justice Hand has been sergeant-at-arms of the District Court ever since its establishment, something over two years ago, and during that time he has joined together more than a hundred young couples to say nothing of those who are old. He believes his mission to be that of making people happy and in order to make it possible has determined to open a matrimonial bureau where those who are timid may be brought together and married in due legal form. He has already a list of twenty-four waiting clients, one of whom is a Plainfielder with money to buy all he needs and have a few dollars left when the "grim destroyer" comes around.

Another man, so the Judge says, is a rich fellow from down Somerville why who is tired of paying housekeepers to waste his substance in unlimited grocery and meat bills and who thinks it will be better to marry a woman who can and will care for him.

Judge Hand has not yet decided upon a location for his new bureau, but will soon issue cards announcing it and other information. The Judge's resignation is to take effect December 31.

KEAN TO BE HEARD ON CENSUS APPOINTMENTS

A despatch from Washington, D. C., states that Senator John Kean has notified the State Committee on Census, of which Senator La Follette is president, that he wants to be heard in connection with the nominations made by the president for census supervisors in the Fifth and Seventh districts in New Jersey. These appointments have not been confirmed, and the request made by Mr. Kean for a hearing before the committee amounts to notice that he is opposed to the selections for these places.

Louis V. Hoagland was named for supervisor in the Fifth district, on the recommendation of Representative Fowler, and Samuel A. Smith, the Seventh district appointee, was the choice of Representative Parker. Neither of the representatives has any information as to Mr. Kean's reasons for opposing their men.

Charles W. Runyon, of this city, a clerk in County Clerk James C. Calvert's office at Elizabeth, was the choice of Senator Kean's friends for the nomination for the Fifth district.

AUTO AND MOTORCYCLE RACES NEW YEAR'S DAY

Joseph Gunn and Claude Holgate, of Newark, who were the successful promoters of the big auto and motorcycle races at Olympic Park, Newark, are planning to give a big auto and motorcycle race at the driving park of the Plainfield Driving club, on New Year's Day. They have communicated with the officers of the club and arrangements have been made to hold a meeting with the members of the club Monday night, when the details of the proposed affair will be discussed in detail.

Both Mr. Gunn and Mr. Holgate are sure of the success of the fact that there are so many owners of autos and motorcycles in this city, it will be an easy matter to make the meet a success. It is also proposed to have several races for local entries and this will doubtless arouse great interest among the owners of machines in this city.

The promoters are assured of a large outside entry list should the meet be held and this will attract people from all parts of the State as well as New York. Suitable prizes will be offered the winners in the various events. The track at the park is a half-mile one, and is said to be fully as wide as the mile track at Olympic Park, Newark. It is said to be ideal for auto and motorcycle races.

COMRADES SURPRISE HIM

Old Friends Join John Burns in Celebrating Wedding Anniversary.

PRESENTATIONS ARE MADE.

An Excellent Dinner Feature of Happy Affair at the Hotel Kensington Last Night.

In honor of the twenty-sixth anniversary of his marriage, a number of Civil War veterans, members of Co. A, Fifteenth N. J. Vols., of which he was one, together with his wife, gave John Burns, proprietor of the Hotel Kensington a happy surprise, Wednesday, at the hotel. Unbeknown to Mr. Burns, his wife and friends planned a dinner and presentation.

Mr. Burns was seated in the hotel office early in the evening, when his wife asked him to go to the second floor and ascertain what was the matter with an electric light. During his absence, the company of relatives and friends to the number of about twenty, gathered in the dining-room and took seats about the table. When Mr. Burns returned he was invited to step inside the room, where he was greeted by his guests. After an exchange of hearty greetings all partook of an excellent dinner.

During the evening both Mr. and Mrs. Burns were congratulated by the company. A pleasing feature was the presentation of a handsome cut-glass water set to Mr. Burns on behalf of the veterans by Thomas Gregory, of this city. Mrs. Burns also presented her husband with a large leather Morris chair. The presentations were a complete surprise and Mr. Burns thanked the donors for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns, who removed to this city a year ago, formerly lived at Flemington. They were married twenty-six years ago near Whitehouse Station, which was the home of Mrs. Burns. They spent the greater part of their life since in Hunterdon county. Since coming here they have made a host of friends. By the present marriage there are two daughters, Mrs. E. J. Phillips and Miss Cora Burns, and one son, Brevoort Burns. Another daughter by the first marriage, Mrs. A. J. Sheppard, of Newark, was also present last night to join in the festivities. It was a happy occasion for Mr. Burns and he was glad to meet his old comrades and talk over interesting incidents of the Civil War.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Gordon, Miss Jean Gordon, Leon Gordon, Miss Caroline Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Armstrong and Mrs. A. J. Sheppard, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cawley, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cawley, Jr., of Somerville; Miss Jeannette Tippel, of Rockaway; Mrs. Mary Jones, of Flemington; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. James Laterette and Mrs. E. J. Phillips, of this city.

EARTH CENTRE SOLID, SAYS MR. MORRISON

Representative Howell has filed with the National Geographic Society at Washington, D. C., the organization which has been investigating the claims of Peary and Cook as discoverers of the North Pole, a copy of a lecture of Thomas W. Mor*rison, formerly of this city and now* of Asbury Park, on the origin of the North Pole. Mr. Morison is a man of literary abilities who has made some decidedly interesting scientific researches and he advances some new and novel ideas, which no doubt, will have due consideration by the members of the National Geographic Society.

In the lecture, which has been copyrighted by Mr. Morrison, he advances the belief that the earth is not a shell enclosing fire, as is commonly understood, but that the center of the earth is solid. His proofs, which are said to be new, are based upon the laws of chemistry, and it is claimed, take the subject out of the realms of doubt entirely. Many other interesting points are also brought out in the lecture.

"Omit, if you please, the first verse of the hymn," said the minister.

COUNTY GUARD PLANS FAVORED BY FARMERS

President E. R. Collins, of the Union County Board of Agriculture, was one of the principal speakers Tuesday at a farmers institute and a meeting of the Bergen County Board of Agriculture held in Kingsland. The Bergen county board decided to co-operate with the Union county board in advancing the project of securing a county police patrol for the protection of farmers from the raids of orchard and crop thieves.

It developed that the farmers of Bergen county are having the same trouble with petty thieves as the farmers are having in this county. President Collins' idea of having the fish and game laws radically changed as one of the remedies for improving conditions was endorsed yesterday. Mr. Collins' plan of making hunting in a county a question for local option with the farmers to be decided by a vote of the agriculture boards, met with great favor. If this end cannot be gained the Bergen county farmers are in favor of co-operating with the Union county farmers in getting legislation which will change the hunting laws so that property will be closed to hunters unless farmers put up notices saying that it is permitted.

The Union county board will meet Thursday afternoon in the Courthouse at Elizabeth. Early in the fall the executive committee outlined a course of lectures to be given by professors of the State Agricultural College on various subjects of interest to the farmers. The series will begin today when Jacob C. Lipman, professor of soil bacteriology, will give an address on soil preparation and soil fertility.

It is planned to make each meeting somewhat similar to an agricul*tural college. The farmers will be* asked questions and will study the subject discussed, aided by text books. County Superintendent of Schools Switz has announced the meeting today to the principals of the various schools and advised them to attend. The older pupils in the high schools will be given permis*sion to be at the meeting.*

UNITY LODGE, K. OF P. HAS ANNUAL ELECTION

There was a big turnout of members at the meeting of Unity Lodge, No. 162, K. of P., Thursday, including a large delegation from Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., when the annual election was held. Among those present was Past Grand Chancellor John Ulrich and he gave an interesting talk to the Pythians.

During the course of his remarks, Judge Ulrich said that in his many years ago, Unity Lodge lost a valued member in Eugene V. Lorton, who was unfailing in his zeal and interest in not only the subordinate lodge, but the grand lodge as well, and it should always prove an incentive to greater things to the rest of the members. Judge Ulrich had many nice things to say about Unity Lodge and its work of the past and was loudly applauded for his kind words.

These officers were elected for the coming year:

Chancellor Commander, Samuel Rothberg; vice-chancellor, James D. Anderson; prelate, E. P. T. Smith; keeper of records and seals, Frank Putnam; master of finance, Horace J. Martin, Sr.; master of exchequer, S. E. Humpston; master of work, Jeremiah VanWinkle; master at arms, A. E. Causebrook; inner guard, A. B. Drake; outside guard, A. B. Dunavan; representative to grand lodge, James D. Anderson; alternate, Jeremiah VanWinkle; trustee, three years, Harry Werner.

Frank Putnam was elected keeper of records and seals for the thirteenth consecutive year, and was congratulated by the members for his efficient service. After the business the Pythians enjoyed a euchre party and smoker.

NOT FLATTERING, AFTER ALL.

A young fellow who was out West not long ago has returned, telling a yarn which he declares to be about one of the most interesting experiences of even his checkered career, says the Louisville Courier-Journal.

"I was walking along the street in a Western town," he said, "when suddenly across the way I saw a Louisville girl whom I recognized immediately. She saw me, too, and I expected her to bow rather coolly and distantly, as had been her wont back home. I was considerably as*tonished, therefore,* when she dashed across the street, seized me with both hands and fairly bubbled over in her delight. I was so surprised, in fact, that I commented on it.

"'I'm glad to see you, too,' I said, when I had managed to extricate myself from her exuberant greeting, 'but to tell you the truth, I hadn't expected to see you so excited over my appearance. You always treated me rather a la leeberg at home, you know; what has caused your change of heart?'

"She was nonplused for only a moment, and then explained: 'Mr. Smith, I've been away from home so long that I'd be glad to see even a dog if he came from Kentucky!'"

JACOB KIRKNER BURIED

Prominent Citizen Laid to Rest With Solemn Masonic Honors.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR SERVICE.

Impressive Ritual at Obsequies of a Valued Citizen—Interment at Hillside Cemetery.

The impressive ceremony of the Knights' Templar exemplified at the funeral obsequies of Jacob Kirkner Friday afternoon were attended by fellow Masons from various parts of this State and New York. Past Commander Samuel Bingaman, of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, was in charge of the services and Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss acted as prelate for the local commandery.

The services were opened by the singing of "Lead Kindly Light" by the Aurora Grata Cathedral quartet of Clinton Commandery of Brooklyn. Following this splendidly sung hymn, Past Commander Bingaman made the pronouncement which was followed by the Scripture reading by Sir Knight John A. Chambliss and the prayer. The quartet then sang "Thy Kingdom Come," in an unmistakably feeling way. Rev. Dr. Chambliss followed with the oration in which he said in part:

"This is not an ordinary occasion, nor was our friend, comrade and brother an ordinary man! This service was not ordained by human device. If he could see us gathered around his mortal remains, he would see how sincere are the hearts which mourn for him.

"He had the heart of a Christian and was loved by all men who love truth and character. There are few men in the United States who have attained such eminence in Masonic circles as our brother and knight. He was a soldier of that Cross which is recognized the world over. He was unafraid to call to the attention of the members to their solemn obligations and did so on one occasion when the principles of the Knights Templar for the moment had been forgotten."

Dr. Chambliss paid a high tribute to Mr. Kirkner's citizenship and loyalty to his convictions of truth, his steadfastness of purpose and his simple, pure life; and in conclusion said, "We commit him to the hand of God and to Christ, for receive."

A short prayer followed, and then Past Commander Bingaman was handed the sword of the dead member by Junior Warden Lee, and said:

"I call the attention of the fraters to the fact that the sword in a true and courteous knight has always had three most estimable qualities—the hilt, fortitude undaunted; the blade, with justice impartial and the point in mercy unrestrained."

"After applying these attributes as practicable," continued Sir Knight Kirkner during his life expressed the prayer that a 'mercy unrestrained' which is the glorious attribute of our Great Commander, be extended in his behalf; blunt the sword of Divine Justice and admit him among the companionship of the saints and angels in life and light eternal."

At the conclusion of this part of the service the quartet sang "I'm but a Stranger Here."

As the signal was given for the review of the body the quartet chanted "Remember Thou Thy Creator in the Days of Thy Youth."

This chant with the solemnity of the occasion created the most profound impression on the assembled friends of Mr. Kirkner and many expressions of sympathy were evoked and silent prayers offered as the members and friends passed the cata*falque.*

People prominent in all walks of life paid their respects to the dead. Floral pieces of extreme beauty decorated the reception hall in which the catafalque rested. Crosses and wreaths were received from the Congregational church, Grand Chapter, R. A. M., Clinton Commandery, K. T., of Brooklyn; Lydia Chapter, O. E. S.; Kane Lodge, R. & S. M. M., of Newark; Trinity Commandery, No. 17, and the Grand Commandery, K. T., of New Jersey, besides other societies.

Among those present from out of town were: F. T. Burr, J. E. Sparrow, Marcus O. Burr, Chester E. Rhodes and William Bamber, of Clinton Commandery, Brooklyn; John R. Bonnington, grand recorder of the New York Grand Commandery; Robert W. Fielding, past commander; Edward Cooper, the oldest living commander and grand commandery historian; Right Eminent Sir Peter McGill, George B. Nicholson, J. C. Loudin, Past Commander B. F. Corriell, Sir Knight, S. B. Joseph and Past Comander Charles G. Little, the last named six being the pall bearers. Interment was in Hillside cemetery and the commitment was read and benediction pronounced by Dr. Chambliss.

Scissors That Cut Glass.

PITIFUL CASE IN COURT

Drunken Mother at Abused Child Given Time to Repent.

LITTLE ONE TELLS A SAD STORY

Hannah Meadow Goes to Jail for Two Months by Order of Judge Runyon in the Police Court.

Hannah Meadow, formerly of Madison avenue, but more recently of Dunellen, will spend the next sixty days in the county jail for having been drunk and creating a disturbance at Madison avenue and West Second street Thursday at about 10 o'clock. Judge Runyon, after listening to Patrolman Payne's story of the causes leading up to the arrest and the testimony offered by Miss Mary Brown, decided that no less a sentence would fit the case.

Mrs. Meadow was drunk and in company with another simple was chasing her seven-year-old daughter down Second street. Evidently the woman was too drunk to know where her daughter was, but she was sure she wanted to catch her and give her a beating. The child took refuge beneath a tree in front of Miss Mary Brown's store on West Second street and was sobbing out her grief there for more than an hour. Miss Brown went to the child and asked her why she was crying. She said she was afraid to go home because her mother was drunk and was waiting to beat her with a strap.

Miss Brown had befriended the child on other occasions and was somewhat familiar with her home surroundings. She took her on her wheel and rode around looking for the unnatural mother, while the latter had fallen into the toils of Patrolman Payne. The little girl pleaded with Miss Brown to put her in a children's home or to take care of her herself. She said she had been so afraid to call to the police and wanted to go again. The pitifulness of the child's story found a sympathetic chord in Miss Brown's breast and she took her home to spend the night.

In court Thursday Mrs. Meadow denied all the charges brought by Payne, but the judge was not impressed by her story. She claimed that the child had become unmanageable because her mother had refused to give her a nickle and that she really deserved a whipping. As a matter of fact, the little girl has never had a mother's love and it is feared that now her mother has been sent to jail on her account, her future treatment from her sister of the woman will be anything but tender.

However, the police will keep tabs on the family and will see that the child is not subjected to cruelty. After the sentence was imposed efforts were made by friends of the woman to have the sentence of the court changed to a fine, but Judge Runyon was firm in the belief that the woman deserved the punishment and refused to alter it. Patrolman Payne said that Mrs. Meadow tried to "do him" after he had threatened her with arrest, and that she was aided by the sister who was with her.

TERRIERS TOO MUCH FOR MELLICK'S COLTS

Mellick's Colts clashed with Carney's Terriers Friday night. Though the Colts fought desperately to the end, the Terriers proved much too strong for them.

Conklin did the high score act for the Colts, while Roberson did the high pinning for the Terriers. The feature of the game was Carney's famous hook, which by misfortune, only proved effective at times. The scores:

TO LOCATE BRICK YARD

Syndicate May Build a Big Manufacturing Plant in East End.

SECURING OPTIONS ON LANDS.

Henry Jenkinson Representing South River and Perth Amboy Parties Inspects Sites.

Henry Jenkinson, representing capitalists who are interested in the manufacture of bricks at South River and Perth Amboy, has been in Plainfield for several weeks securing options on land near the Netherwood Fresh Air Home and on Cushing road with a view of establishing one of the biggest brick plants in the country. Experts have been testing the clay on the property in question and it is said that it is of a high quality.

The syndicate intends, if it locates here, to erect a plant capable of making 25,000,000 brick a year. Inquiry shows that during the past five years, fully 40,000,000 have been shipped here from all parts of the country to be used for construction purposes, and it is believed that the greater part of this trade can be kept here.

There are now only two local brick plants, the one operated by Ernest T. Hand on Leland avenue and the other by Rajoute at Dunellen. Several brick yards in the Netherwood section were abandoned years ago, because of the trouble in keeping out the water in the pits, but the new syndicate proposes to use hydraulic pumps for that purpose.

If the land can be secured for a reasonable price, it is likely that the plant will be erected so that it can be put in operation next spring. Another thing that has led the capitalists to this city is the excellent shipping facilities.

LOTUS GLEE CLUB GIVES FINE CONCERT

The Lotus Glee club, of New York, assisted by Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith, reader, gave one of its best concerts at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday before a large and appreciative audience. This was one of the entertainments in the Star Course, and it proved to be as popular as ever. The Lotus Glee club is a feature of the Star Course series every year and is always greeted by a large audience.

The quartet appeared better and stronger than ever, while Mrs. Smith was encalled time and again. Her selections were all excellent and she gave further evidence of her fine dramatic ability. In the quartet, Miss Davis has taken the place of Mr. Hoagland. His voice is a fine voice and the quartet is well balanced. The club made an excellent choice of numbers and the singers were obliged to repeatedly respond to encores.

The program was concluded with an act of "Grand Opera Up-to-Date," given by request. This was one of the big hits of the evening. The numbers follow:

"When the Bugles are Calling," Herbert, Lotus Glee Club; "A Legend of Service," VanDyke, Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith; "The Garden of My Heart," Ball, Miss Davis; "Christmas Carol Sixteenth Century" Lotus Glee club; "The Old Black Mare," Squire, C. L. Lewis; "Polly Ann's Memorial Party," Arnold, Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith; "Bemlermere's Speech," Gatty, Morgan Strickler; "My Old Cabin Home," Smith, Lotus Glee Club; "King Charles," White, Mr. Boals; two short selections, Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith; an act of "Grand Opera Up-to-Date," Lotus Glee Club. Frank Smith was at the piano and largely assisted in making the concert a success.

The Constitutionalist.

AN INDEPENDENT WEEKLY.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

Plainfield, N. J., December 23, 1909.

N Y. AMUSEMENTS.

After a short opening engagement in Philadelphia, Charles Frohman will bring "The Arcadians" to New York, where the piece will remain for the balance of the winter.

The fact that three "Thief" companies are still on the road after a year's run in New York, makes Charles Frohman believe in Henri Bernstein as a playwright.

This is one of the wise sayings from "Penelope": "If a man falls in love with a pretty woman he falls out of it. But if he falls in love with a plain one he'll be in love with her all his life."

Lionel Barrymore makes his return to the stage in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's new play, "The Fires of Fate," which Charles Frohman has just brought out in Chicago. Mr. Barrymore plays the part of "Abdulla," an Egyptian dragoman, with great success.

HE EXPLAINS CHANGES IN TELEPHONE SERVICE

The new telephone directory recently delivered contains the names of two new exchanges in this vicinity—Fanwood and Washingtonville. "The latter," said Mr. Burns, the local agent of the company, "is established for the purpose of rendering service to the farmers in this section for reasonable rental. Fanwood was established for the purpose of offering a similar favor to the subscribers in that borough and in Scotch Plains and other parts of Fanwood township, which the new exchange includes. In the territory covered by both these exchanges the telephone rates formerly quoted were Plainfield rates with a certain amount added for mileage because the stations were located so far from the Plainfield Central Office. In many cases this mileage made the rate almost prohibitive.

"Conforming to the desires of the present subscribers in the sections in question," said Mr. Burns, "the new exchanges were established and the company was able to quote rates practically one-half what they had formerly been. From each of these exchanges there will be a five-cent toll charge to Plainfield, but the amount saved annually on the basic charge for the service would purchase great numbers of these messages—approximately 500 from each telephone.

"In the Washingtonville section there were practically no telephones and the exchange is awaiting the development of business, which is sure to come with the reduced rate. In the Fanwood Exchange about forty subscribers were benedifited by the change."

DR. STILLMAN PRIZE AT STEVENS' INSTITUTE.

Dr. Thomas B. Stillman, formerly of this city, and for a great many years a professor at Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, has founded the Stillman Prize in Applied Technology in memory of his mother, Mary Stillman. This prize, amounting to $50, will be awarded annually, beginning 1910, to the member of the senior class who prepares the best paper on a subject pertaining to applied technology.

The subject for these papers will be selected by the Curriculum committee of the faculty and will be announced six months in advance of commencement. The papers submitted in competition for the prize must be presented to the chairman of the committee not later than May 1. If none of the papers submitted should be found deserving, the prize will not be awarded.

CITY RECEIVED $125,000 IN TAXES ON LAST DAY.

This has been a strenuous week for Tax Collector William R. Townsend. It is estimated that close to $125,000 were the total receipts for Monday. The office has been flooded with returns to notices during the past few days. Mr. Townsend has been engaged in checking up the various amounts received from out-of-town owners of local property.

One out-of town man who holds about $157,000 in mortgages on Plainfield property was among those who called to settle the taxes, and he is only one of many similar cases.

HE WROTE HIS WILL ON A POSTAL CARD

It has just been learned that Ira Randolph, who died Thursday night, December 9, at the home of James C. Manning on Dunellen avenue, wrote his will on a postal card while a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital from September 27 to November 8. It was an exceedingly brief will reading as follows: "I bequeath all I possess to my niece, Mary Moore."

Mr. Randolph possessed considerable property, but what he had it is believed that he intended making a more specific disposition of his property, but owing to his severe illness, was unable to do so. Mrs. Moore was a favorite niece, being the daughter of his only sister, Mrs. Catherine Reed, who has never married. So far as known the will has not been offered for probate as yet.

CAPT. BARTLETT WANTS TO REACH SOUTH POLE.

If he can raise $300,000 to outfit an expedition Captain Robert Bartlett, Peary's skipper, is on record at Boston Saturday as willing to try for the South Pole.

"I'd come pretty near either getting this or never returning to tell the tale," he said Saturday.

"The amount of money is, strangely, one of the biggest in trips of this sort. It is hard to find people who will finance these expeditions. People have no idea what it has meant to fit out Peary. It is considerably more than touching a friend for money under ordinary circumstances, but I would willingly go if I have a half a chance to fit out an expedition."

Bartlett was the man whom Peary left behind when the latter, with Mate Henson, a colored man, made his last reach for the North Pole.

Chapter of Mishaps.

Samuel Bedell, of 834 West Third street, fell down the ladder of his barn while descending with a lantern. The fall caused the lantern to explode setting fire to the hay he had thrown down for his horse. An alarm was turned in from box 47, but Bedell had extinguished the fire before the department arrived. Bedell's legs and face were scraped and bruised in the fall. The damage to the barn was trifling.

CAUSE OF THE BLAZE MYSTIFIES FIRE CHIEF.

Fire, of a mysterious origin, on Saturday afternoon destroyed a one-story frame building in the rear of the residence of George W. Chandler, 728 Carlton avenue. The structure was recently erected by Captain John E. Curtis, of 715 Carlton avenue, a son-in-law of Mr. Chandler, for a garage, but the building was utilized as a storehouse, and at the time of its destruction the contents consisted of a few empty boxes. A number of pigeons were also consumed by the flames. The loss is placed at $250, covered by insurance.

The alarm was sounded at 4:35 o'clock and when the firemen reached the scene the flames were burning through the roof. One stream was put on the flames and after 20 minutes' use of an hour's labor the fire was extinguished. The frame of the structure is standing but the building was virtually destroyed.

Chief Doane entertained the opinion at first that the building was set on fire by a gang of small boys, who had been playing with a small bonfire near the building of late. The matter was reported to Chief Kiely, but after a thorough investigation by the latter official, no evidence could be discovered that the fire started on the outside of the building. Now, it is the impression that a defective wiring of electric wires caused the blaze.

GOVERNOR EXPLAINS INCREASED EXPENSES.

"When they make such a declaration they are simply talking in the air," commented Governor Fort at Trenton Saturday when asked if it were true, as alleged in the Democratic conference in Trenton last Saturday, that the cost of maintaining the State government had jumped from $1,500,000 to over $8,000,000 since the Republicans came into power fifteen years ago in New Jersey.

The Governor stated that the assertion made in the Democratic conference about State finances was a bald misrepresentation of the facts. He added that, while it was true that over $8,000,000 was passing annually through New Jersey's exchequer, as against about $1,500,000 when the Democrats were in power in the State house, at least one-half of the present revenue was returned to the counties and municipalities for the relief of local taxation, a sum totaling about $4,000,000, for which the State simply acts as a convenient collecting and distributing medium. This great sum of money, the Governor said, could by no stretch of facts be accounted as representing an increase in the cost of maintaining the State government.

"Now, as a matter of fact," continued the Governor, "the total cost of operating the State government during the last fiscal year was, in round figures, $4,300,000. This increase of 100 per cent. of running New Jersey fifteen years ago is not due to extravagance or inefficiency in the governmental machinery; it is the natural increase that might be expected from the growth of the State and the extension of its functions in various directions, from which not even the Democrats are willing to take a backward step. In a decade and a half New Jersey has grown in population from 1,700,000 to 2,500,000. Naturally, the demands on the State government have kept pace with the growth of a population, all of our institutions for the care of dependents and criminals have grown larger and the expense of maintaining them has increased proportionately, while at the same time there have been several new institutions established and supported by the State. Figures will show that the ordinary fixed charges of administering the State departments collected together here in the State house have increased only $307,983 in the last five years, while the expenses of maintaining institutions have gone up $1,966,575 during the same period."

Enough Turkey for Them.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy McVoy, of East Front street, are making preparation for a home party on Christmas, at which the guests will be the parents, brothers and sisters of Mrs. McVoy. There is sure to be big doings in the turkey line as Mr. McVoy has received a 42-pound Missouri "turk" for the feast. The guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duvier, Miss Emma Duvier, and Benjamin Duvier, of Jersey City; Mr. and Mrs. John Linbarger and children, of Brooklyn, and Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Hargrave and "Toddles" Hacquer, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Sarah E. Sanders Injured.

Mrs. Sarah E. Sanders, of Orchard place, fell down stairs one night last week and fractured her wrist. She was also considerably bruised about the body. The accident was the result of Mrs. Sanders trying to walk about the house without the aid of a light.

Game Postponed.

The basketball game scheduled between the girls' teams of the borough high and Cranford high schools for Saturday afternoon was postponed owing to the illness of three members of the latter team.

GRIGGS AGREED ON FOR COUNTY JUDGE

Somerset's Republican Leaders Select Him as the Successor of Louis H. Schenck.

At a conference of leaders Monday John Y. Griggs, formerly prosecutor of Somerset county, was slated to succeed Louis H. Schenck as judge of the Court of Common Pleas at Somerville, and Clarence Case, also of Somerville, was picked to succeed John F. Reger, as prosecutor of the county. In case Mr. Griggs will not accept the position, Hugh K. Gaston, of Somerville, is the second choice for the place.

This arrangement eliminates Judge Isaac P. Runyon, of North Plainfield as a candidate for Judge Schenck's position. He was prominently mentioned for the place. It is the belief that the appointment of Mr. Griggs would meet with general approval. Mr. Case has been a practicing attorney at Somerville for several years. Both Mr. Griggs and Mrs. Case are well known throughout the county.

Sister Finds Ring and Learns of Ceremony, Which Took Place a Month Ago.

A studio romance, which culminated on Thanksgiving eve in the marriage of Miss Genevieve M. Furman and Wilbur Davis Houston, both of Elizabeth, has just been revealed through the finding of the wedding ring by the bride's sister.

The couple were married in Hoboken and were accompanied by Mrs. James French, a sister of the bride, and John J. McGary. After the ceremony they returned to the home of the bride's sister in Brooklyn and later to Elizabeth. The couple had intended to keep the wedding secret for a year.

Mr. Houston conducted the College Inn Studio in Broad street, Newark, and Miss Furman went there to pose, for photographs. It was the old story of love at first sight, and it was not long until Mr. Houston became a steady visitor at the Furman home.

The wedding was the sequel. The couple are now in Atlantic City on a belated honeymoon. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Furman, of Broadway. She is a member of Grace Episcopal church and is well known in musical circles. She is a master of the violin and possesses a pleasing soprano voice.

Mr. Houston is connected with one of the oldest and best-known families in the city. He is an athlete, a member of the Clark Club track team and Liberty Athletic C. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Houston, of Fulton street, and a nephew of former Sheriff Robert G. Houston.

TALKS ON TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. Frederick J. Hughes Addresses Pupils of the N. P. H. S.

An instructive lecture on tuberculosis was delivered to the pupils of the borough high school Tuesday by Dr. Frederick J. Hughes. The discourse contained many pointers for the youths in which a safeguard may be taken against the White Plague.

At the conclusion of his address, Dr. Hughes made an earnest plea for the support of the consumptive poor and the local sanitorium at Muhlenberg Hospital, through the purchase of Red Cross stamps and by becoming members of the local society. Dr. Hughes said:

If you were asked what is tuberculosis, no doubt you would all answer consumption. A quarter of a century or more ago tuberculosis was only recognized in its last stage when the victim suffered with cough, a wasting away of the body or a consuming of the tissues by the disease and it was thus called consumption. Now we know that in the early stage one touches this stage it has existed a long time in the system and is then termed tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis is usually in the lungs, but may be in the bones, throat, glands, etc. It is often called the great "White Plague," to distinguish it from the great black plague that devasted Europe a few centuries ago and killed off millions of the inhabitants. The Black Plague is now practically under control as we hope the "White Plague" will be some day The Black Plague is so called because the skin of its victim frequently became black, whereas in consumption as you know the skin becomes pale.

"In the very beginning of tuberculosis there are few if any symptoms, the person really does not feel very sick. What should draw everyones attention is a cough lasting more than a month, loss of weight and a tired feeling, especially in the afternoon, no ambition for work, impairment of appetite, slight fever in the afternoon, some times chilliness in the mornings, and spitting of blood. It is possible to have one or all of the e symptoms and still one suffer with tuberculosis, but their presence should always send one to a competent physician for examination to ascertain if anything is wrong for it is only in the early stages that tuberculosis is absolutely curable.

"The school children can help in the campaign against tuberculosis in two ways—by keeping well and thus not obtaining the disease themselves and, by helping those to get well who already have it. Never expectorate upon the sidewalks nor allow others to do so. A consumptive may be expectorating millions of germs but if he is careful about his expectoration there is no more danger of him than from any other citizen. Do not shun a careful consumptive for to do so would be both foolish and cruel. Increase your body resistance as much as you can. Have plenty of out door air to counterbalance the time spent in the school rooms. Children to be strong and hardy must exercise in the air several hours every day. Do not have mufflers about the neck. Keep the feet warm. At night have the windows in the sleeping room open wide; do not sleep in a draught and do not be afraid of the night air. There is but one kind of air at night, which is of course night air and pure night air is better than impure night air. Keep the body clean by a bath. Avoid over-heated rooms, never have the temprature over 65° F. Sunlight in the room is very, very good.

"Never breathe with the mouth open. Air entering the lungs should be warm, moistened and filtered and this is done by breathing through the nose. Mouth breathing stunts the growth and is bad in other ways. Practice deep breathing night and morning. Every morning on arising every child should sponge off his neck and chest with cold water quickly and briskly, then rub over and chest vigorously with a coarse towel. Twice a week a child should have a warm soap and water bath. Invariably wash the hands before eating and never put pencils or other objects into the mouth. Plenty of nourishing food is proper but overeating is harmful. Always eat a substantial breakfast before going to school. No child can be well and do the school work properly without a good breakfast.

MAYOR-ELECT SANFORD TO ACT AS KRIS KRINGLE

Mayor-elect William A. Sanford is being hailed as Santa Claus by the little girls of Dunellen. Mr. Sanford has always been popular with the little folks of that borough and an evidence of his standing with his juvenile constituents was gathered by the mayor-elect when he went to the Dunellen postoffice Saturday evening. In a pack of letters he discovered a missive signed by Eloise, a little girl, who addressed him as Santa Claus, asking him to have a doll baby for her on Christmas eve.

The letter was printed in a childish hand and read as follows:

Mayor Sanford,

Dear Santa Claus:

My mamma says you are going to take Santa Claus' place in Dunellen this year. Don't forget to leave me a nice big doll baby with a pink dress and also a baby carriage if you can spare one. I have been a good girl all the year. Ask my mamma.

Your friend,

ELOISE.

Mr Sanford gave a hearty laugh when he read the message to a Daily Press reporter and said in his characteristic jovial manner: "God bless Eloise. If she will send me her full name and address I'll see that Santa Claus gives her one of the largest and prettiest dolls in his stock.

"If there are any other little girls in Dunellen," continued the mayor-elect, "who want doll babies, tell them to drop me a few lines and I will see that old Santa supplies their wants."

GERMAN BUNCO STEERER

Fleeces Confiding Italian Workmen Out of $25 and Makes Clean Getaway.

The gullible Italian laborer will with us and as long as he is so anxious to do the work just so long will he be buncoed. And this is why Monday morning at about 11 o'clock, a middle aged man speaking broken English with a German accent called at the residence of J. W. Pitts, on Leland avenue, and asked permission to remove some loads of dead leaves and a pile of gravel which were in the yard, promising in return for the gravel to bring in a cord of wood which he had on the mountain near Mount St. Mary's College.

Mrs. Pitts readily granted the request and the German departed to bring the men who were to take up the leaves and cart away the gravel. He had laid his plans well, for in a few minutes he returned with five workmen. They were three Italians, one Delaboro and one Delonda, Pietro Buslardi. These men got busy at once and began raking up the leaves and piling the gravel into a cart which was in waiting. At 4 o'clock the German knocked at Mrs. Pitts' back door and explaining that he had to leave early that day, had had no breakfast, asked her for a cup of tea, thus impressing the laborers with the fact that he owned the place. While in the kitchen he opened the window and called to the men asking them to come there as he was short of money and wanted to pay a bill next door. Did they have any money with them? Sure! Delaboro proved his innocence by handing over $20. Delongo confessed to having $3, which he was willing to loan and Buslardi found $3.

After securing the twenty-five dollars the German went out while the men resumed their task of piling up leaves and loading gravel. He made a move to go next door, but instead jumped a fence and disappeared and his workmen are still awaiting his reappearance and Mrs. Pitts has probably given up hope of receiving her cord of wood.

Delaboro and Delonga reside on the corner of Raymond and Midway avenues, while Buslardi has a home on Plainfield avenue. When seen this morning Delaboro said that the German approached them while the three were talking together about seeking work for the day and proposed to give them employment at $2 for ten hours. They readily accompanied him as he appeared to be honest and he told them that he owned the place where they were to work they thought it was all right.

They will probably be more careful in the future and in the meantime will have a healthy fear of the persuasive German to make his appearance in this city.

W. L. HETFIELD JR. GETS VERDICT FOR LITTLE ONE

Ellen Rafferty, a ten year old girl of Dunellen, got a verdict of $1,000 from the Public Service Corporation by direction of the Middlesex County Court Monday at New Brunswick. Her counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of this city, stated to the jury that at a previous term of court a verdict for damages had been given the child, but the Supreme Court had set aside the judgment (which was $4,000). Since then the child has almost recovered from the injury, and her family has agreed to compromise with the railway company for $1,000. As Ellen is a minor, however, it was necessary to have a jury verdict to wind up the matter.

The little girl was sworn, but Judge Lloyd said it was not necessary to take her testimony if the lawyers agreed to the statement of facts and the amount of damages. Alvah A. Clark, counsel for the Railway Company, assented to what Mr. Hetfield had said, and the jury returned the verdict of $1,000.

COCKADES AND BUTTONS.

The cockade originated simply in the knot of ribbons or strings, by which the hat was looped up, and in seventeenth century round hat were "cocked," or drawn up to the brim in fine weather, and thus originated the three-cornered hat, as well as the cocked hat of the later times, says an exchange. There was nothing especially military about the usage, as the ignorant assert. The same things survive in the loops of the hats of bishops and other ecclesiastical dignitaries in Great Britain; in the strings of the hats worn by French curés and Spanish and Italian padres, and in the cords which are still seen on the hats of some livery servants.

It naturally becomes the custom for military men to "cock" their hats with the livery color of the prince served, and, as the Hanoverian color was the conventional one of black, the "black cockade" became associated in the minds of the people with military uniform.

In an old Scotch song of Shirramuir, citing Woodword's Heraldry, we read of "the red coat lads with black cockades," and a knot of white ribbons was naturally chosen as the badge of their opponents.

PARK AVE. BAPTISTS OBSERVED CHRISTMAS

Christmas Sunday was observed by the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday school Sunday afternoon, with exercises of unusual interest, which was enjoyed by one of the largest audiences in the history of the school. The program, which was in charge of Superintendent George E. Hall, follows:

In response to an appeal that had been previously made by the superintendent, a large quantity of toys, games and provisions were brought in by members of the school; all of which were taken to The Plainfield Day Nursery at the close of the session, for the children's Christmas. The offering taken together with donations received by the superintendent, amounted to $15.29 and this will be given to the Day Nursery also.

The talk by Miss Ruth Angel, of New York, was especially interesting to both children and adults. She wore the typical costume of the native Jewish woman and her remarks held the close attention of every one present, as she told of the customs of the Jews at the time of the birth of Christ, and in her pleasing manner told again the wonderful Christmas story. Special mention of the children's work in the various grades of the elementary department were on exhibition, and attracted considerable attention and complimentary remarks.

A feature of the program was the beautiful calendar, with which Superintendent Hall presented every one in attendance, as a souvenir of the happy session of the school.

MRS. DOWD BRUISED ON CROWDED TROLLEY CAR.

Mrs. Thomas Dowd, of Westfield, mother of Mrs. James Blair, of North Plainfield, was so roughly handled on a main line trolley car on Saturday evening that she was bruised and required the services of Dr. Pettis, who after attending her sent her home on another car.

Mrs. Dowd was pushed up against the platform railing of a car and received bruises to her back and side and was forced to drop her muff and other packages. The man who did the shoving escaped in the excitement.

CO. K GIVES RECEPTION TO ELIZABETH GUARDSMEN

National Guardsmen Enjoy Combined Drill and Feast.

Company K entertained Company I, of Elizabeth, Monday in the local armory and a right jolly time they had. After the visitors and Company K had been put through their paces, Major Martin, who was a guest of both companies, combined the two companies into one and drilled them as they had never been drilled before.

An entertainment of professional talent from New York to which was added some excellent local celebrities made the evening pass pleasantly. Captain Kimball welcomed the visitors in a little speech. Captain Hall, of Elizabeth, also added his appreciation to the general feeling of comradeship.

Major Martin gave some interesting anecdotes of his experiences of both companies and proved beyond cavil that he still loves the National Guard and all it stands for.

Add. Hoyt, a professional entertainer from New York, sang and passed out some humorous monologue work; Louis Kassler, a member of the Seventy-first regiment of New York played the piano and Sergeant Hastner of the local company entertained with songs Afterwards the two companies enjoyed a German dinner. The non-commissioned officers were in charge of the entertainment Sergeant Tranchard being chairman.

STATE SENATE CAUCUS MONDAY, DECEMBER 27

President of the Senate Joseph S. Frelinghuysen has announced that the date of the Senate Republican caucus for the selection of officers will take place Monday, December 27, at 11 o'clock, in the State House.

This state, like that of the House of Assembly, was practically decided upon some time ago, and the only thing of interest will be the sergeant-at-arms in which Mercer county is interested. Senator Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, will be selected as president and Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, majority leader. Howard Tyler, of Cumberland, is slated for clerk again and the minor offices will be determined by the Steering Committee.

There is a strong probability that the sergeant-at-arms will be wrested from Mercer county and go further south than that county. It will surely not go further north. North Jersey has been given everything to speak of and rumor has it that the southerners will make a fight for the sergeant's post. The fact that Speaker Ward comes from Bergen, which has had for years the sergeant-at-arms of the House from Essex, all in the northern district, as against the leader, Mr. Edge, from Atlantic City, which is south, gives rise to the claims of the southerners for the Senate sergeant-at-arms.

The claim of the south Jerseyites to the Senate plums is that both the president and leader are from North Jersey — Senators Frelinghuysen from Somerset and Ackerman from Union, while the clerk, Howard Tyler, is from Cumberland, which they claim is just as unevenly balanced as the House. They claim more patronage and declare that the sergeant-at-arms should be shifted, as it is in Mercer, which is considered north.

Mercer will make a fight for it again, but whether the present incumbent, Lindabarge Holl, is to be returned, is not known only to those on the inside.

MINERVA'S MAXIMS.

We seldom think, says Goethe, how much we owe our first love.

Tom Moore compared love to a potato, "because it shoots from the eyes."

Devotion is the last of our loves; through it the soul, thinking that it aspires only to felicity in another life, unconsciously seeks to procure some fresh sweetness in this.

"I would not be a woman," said Montaigne, "for then, I could not love her." Lady Montaigne said: "The only objection to being a man is that I should have to marry a woman."

Marry into a different blood and temperament from your own.

Every woman needs annually two chastisements; the bad woman in order to make her good, and the good one in order to keep her good.

"Marriage is a burden so heavy," said Madame de Stael, "that it requires two to carry it, and sometimes three."

A woman may be as true as steel, but then, you know, some steel is too highly tempered.

The whisper of a beautiful woman can be heard further than the loudest call of duty.

Before marriage it takes a woman a long time to make up her mind. After marriage she can make it up more quickly than her husband.

No cash have I to tempt the hand,
No gems to thrall the eye.
I walk secure in every land—
Pickpockets pass me by.

CHANGES IN STATE BOARD.

Governor Fort has appointed Robert L. Fleming, of Hudson county, to succeed Mrs. Katherine E Abbey, of Mt. Holly, as a member of the State Board of Children's Guardians. Recently, as told, the Governor named Benjamin F. Read, of Newark, to succeed Frederick G. Burnham, of Morristown. Mr. Burnham, it appears, had been reappointed without his knowledge, and on account of his age was not anxious to serve longer on the board. Mrs. Abbey, who is actively engaged in charitable work in Mt. Holly, said, in tendering her resignation, it would be impossible for her to attend the meetings.

President Hugh F. Fox, of this city, has also tendered his resignation, but no successor has yet been appointed. Mr. Fox has been actively identified with the work of the board since its inception, and has borne a large share of its financial burdens. Because of the pressure of business, he was anxious to retire some time ago, but was dissuaded from doing so by Governor Fort. He agreed to serve until the close of the last fiscal year, October 31, but tendered his resignation three days later.

AFTERMATH OF A DEATH

Italian Who Threatened Little Victim's Father Arraigned in Court.

An echo of the killing of little Paulo Durso, the four-year-old son of Joseph Durso, which occurred on August 7, was heard in the city court Tuesday when Frank Carpinetti was arraigned before Judge Runyon on a charge of threatening the father of the child. Carpinetti was allowed to go after promising to keep away from Durso. Walter Hetfield, Sr., appeared for Carpinetti, while Walter Hetfield, Jr., represented the State.

The trouble between the two Italians dates back to the day the little boy was killed by a falling clothespole which two men were erecting for Carpinetti in his back yard on West Third street. Durso in seeking some redress for the death of his boy tried to have a criminal action acknowledged by the grand jury on grounds of criminal negligence. Failing in this Durso has tried to get a lawyer to take up a clam in the civil courts, but in this also he appears to have failed.

Meantime there was a question of a bill for board delivered to Durso by Carpinetti, who is a baker, and in attempting to collect this bill had several controversies with Durso and Durso alleged that on these occasions Carpinetti threatened to do him bodily harm. The reasons alleged by Durso for the threats was not the bill for bread, but for Durso's activity in attempting to prosecute a suit for the recovery of damages for the accidental killing of his child.

Durso paid the small account which Carpinetti had against him and they will be kept apart in the future.

PLAINFIELD DEFEATS THOMAS A.C., OF NEWARK

The Plainfield Association football club defeated the Thomas A. C., of Newark, Saturday afternoon on the Clinton avenue grounds, by a score of 2 to 0, in a fast and well-played game. The Plainfielders made a rush on the visitors' goal right at the start of the game and came very near scoring, the ball bouncing off the cross bar.

A penalty kick was given to the home team and taken by McComb, who made the first goal. The visitors tried hard to equalize, but were always brought back by the home defence. A few minutes later a fine shot from Mitchell, of the home team, went sailing through, making the second goal. Although both teams played hard now, no more scoring took place and half time was called.

On resuming play the Newarkers made a better showing and twice had a dangerous attack on the home team's goal, which they lost and the Plainfielders also had several close trys. About twenty minutes from time Mitchell, of the home team, was injured, and had to leave the field, and the home team was left with ten men. The Newarkers redoubled their efforts now, but the home men were all alive and held them down nicely.

Buckland, of the home team, also had to leave the field about five minutes from the finish, through injuries received, but the nine remaining men played a great game and kept the visitors at bay. No more scoring took place, and the game ended in a well deserved victory for Plainfield by a score of 2 goals to 0. Although it was quite a rough game, James Henderson, who refereed, kept all the players in hand in a very able manner. The lineup:

ALLEGED HOLD-UP MAN DISCHARGED BY COURT

Bert Sawyer, of Somerset place, who was arrested in the borough on Sunday night in connection with the holdup of Jennie Cross, a domestic in the employ of Councilman William L. Smalley, was exonerated from the holdup charge, but was adjudged guilty of trespassing on the property of William J. Buttfield, and was fined seven dollars.

The Cross woman was unable to identify Sawyer as the man who accosted her. She did not appear in court, but Mr. Smalley informed Recorder Dolliver that she had informed him that it was a person who wore a dark suit, while Sawyer wore light clothes.

Mr. Buttfield, whose servants had been annoyed of late in the same vicinity as the Cross woman was held up insisted to the court that an example should be made of Sawyer. In view of the lack of evidence, however, Recorder Dolliver refused to hold Sawyer on that charge.

Sawyer explained that his presence on Mr. Buttfield's property was for the purpose of cutting two small saplings to use for clothes poles. It was for this act that Sawyer was fined.

The Whole Alphabet in This Name.

Not since the incorporation of the Emancipation Proclamation Association, a negro organization in Newark, has the Essex County Clerk in Newark had such a mouthful to pronounce in incorporation papers as he encountered yesterday, when the Pula Uamow Polskich Kosirmer Pplioskiego Pod Opieka Matki Boziej Czstochowieckiej sought legal life. It is a relief and benefit body. Trustees being Walerjan Krzyzewski and John Biegalski, of Harrison.

Lawrence Finished Second.

Russell Lawrence, of this city, representing the New York A. C., finished second in the 12-pound shot put, handicap, at the athletic games held under the auspices of the Catholic Bowery Mission, New York, Saturday night. He was a scratch man and his actual put was 52 feet 3 inches.

When the old use of ice strings was forgotten, the knot, in the form of a rosette of ribbon, survived, just as did the buttons on the backs of our coats, which were intended to fasten back the flaps in riding or marching.

NEW BRUNSWICK FIRE DEPARTMENT CONDEMNED.

A complete reorganization of the volunteer fire department at New Brunswick is recommended by the National Board of Underwriters in their report received at New Brunswick Saturday. The underwriters say the city cannot expect adequate fire protection under existing conditions.

The large membership of the department due to social and political conditions, with the rivalry between individual companies has proven detrimental to the service. The amount appropriated by the city is declared inadequate and the present equipment too small. The board avers the efficiency of the department has steadily decreased in the past few years, with no prospects of improvement unless radical changes are made at once.

The board urges a paid department and the disbanding of the present companies. A higher water pressure is advocated. The report created something of a sensation.

Unkist-Gazette History.

The Christmas number of the Somerville Unionist-Gazette contains much interesting data concerning early history in that prosperous community, particularly that of the newspaper itself. "Looking Backward" is the title of a highly entertaining and exhaustive account of the paper's history written by A. V. D. Honeyman, of this city. A quarter of a century ago, Mr. Honeyman was the editor and proprietor of the paper.

Bringing the Farm to Town

MAIL delivery helps bridge the gap between farm and city. The telephone carries the farm into the very heart of the city itself. It has been said that the rural free delivery of mail and the introduction of the telephone have been the two most important factors in bettering farm conditions both socially and financially.

By means of the telephone a farmer can keep advised of the day's events. He can order supplies, converse with friends, consult the doctor, learn the day's prices of the produce he may have for sale. In a hundred and one ways the telephone on the farm proves its usefulness.

Why not bring your farm within the city by means of Bell telephone service? Why not get a Bell telephone? Rates are reasonable.

NO ELOPEMENT THERE; ONLY SOUGHT LICENSE

Miss Eleanor Tenny, of Philadelphia, and Allen T. Weeks, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. T. Weeks, of Boston, will be married on Monday noon, January 3, at the home of Miss Tenney's sister, Mrs. Howard Colby, of Evergreen avenue.

The fact that the couple appeared in Elizabeth Monday in search of a five days' license, which is required in their case as both parties come from out of the State, gave rise to a rumor that they intended to be married Monday. This was not so. The fact that both were total strangers in Elizabeth caused a trifle delay in the issuance of the license, it is said, but when Miss Tenney explained that she had a sister living in this city; also many friends, there was no trouble. After obtaining a license, the couple came to this city, where Miss Tenney is now visiting her sister.

After the marriage and a honeymoon, the couple will reside in Boston, where Mr. Weeks is engaged in business.

Will Not Open Until January.

The public market on North avenue will not be opened until probably the first week in January. The owners have decided that the place will not be opened until all the repairs to the stalls are ready and all of the stalls are leased and stocked up ready to do business.

She—I'm sure I don't know why they call this hotel The Palms. Do you? I've never seen a palm anywhere near the place.

He—You'll see 'em before you go. It's a pleasant little surprise the waiters keep for the guests on the last day of their stay.

Sundays in England

No. 3 — At Edinburgh

By Rev. Charles L. Goodrich

I hardly know why our arrival at Edinburgh seemed so much like getting home. It could not have been because of any ancestral inheritance responding to its own; for it was one of the sorrows of my boyhood, fed on Scott's "Tales of a Grandfather," to learn that I was not of Scotch descent but only of unromantic English. Nor was it because in reaching Edinburgh we passed near Netherby Hall and among the low, rounded, heather-clad, sheep-pastured hills of the Douglas country, though Lochinvar and the Black Douglas were among the earliest known names of childhood. But for some reason we straightway felt at home in Edinburgh, this finest city of Scotland.

Perhaps the impression was the stronger in our case because of the fairly palatial apartments into which we were received through the address given us by a friend. With the large drawing-room of a once fashionable mansion most comfortably, even elegantly furnished, for our private sitting room, with meals served us by one who was so expert that we thought he must once have been a butler in some noble's household, we felt as if Edinburgh was giving us its best in way of welcome.

Scott from 7 Castle Street. No. 7 Castle Crescent, one is soon upon Princes street. "Perhaps the finest street in Europe," one authority calls it. I know none to rival it. Other city streets may be as broad and long, may have finer business houses, but there is hardly another that combines so many remarkable and interesting features. There is not only a long wide street with handsome business buildings and fascinating stores in which the visitor is tempted to spend much of his time and all of his shillings, but along one side is a park with gardens and lawns of exceptional beauty, which sweeps down into a deep ravine and up again on the other side to a towering cliff on which rise the towers and battlemented walls of the ancient castle, commanding and impressive in the midst of the bustling down upon modern busines life in the gay shops. High upon the further side of this remarkable valley, also, are the tall buildings of the old city, dwellings, universities and Parliament halls and churches dominated by the lofty tower of famous St. Giles and extending from the castle along the high ground and descending at last to Holyrood Palace. And up the far end of Princes street one sees Calton Hill, giving with its classic arches and columns some faint suggestion of Athen's Acropolis; just outside the city in full view is a bold peak which springs up into view straight out of the level on one side, as if eager to look upon the site of Edwin's Burg, then falls away in soft green slopes and terraces on the other, called by Londoners the King Arthur's Seat. Midway in the street on the border of the Park stands the magnificent monument to Sir Walter Scott, the finest gothic monument in the kingdom, enclosing a marble statue of the writer; and not far away are statues of Livingstone and Christopher North and Ramsay and others. So though as a spacious and business thoroughfare with fascinating shops Princess street is attractive enough to the visitor, he finds himself constantly turning to enjoy the gardens, to study the monuments in honor of Scotland's most distinguished writer and Scotland's greatest missionary, or his eyes are led away to the gray old buildings on the high ground opposite, and continually gaze and his thoughts will keep coming back to the great, grim castle on the hill, and his mind will be going back to the stern old days, the struggles, the momentous events in which kings and queens, earls and princes figured, which those walls recall. Thus it is that Princess street is unrivaled because in addition to modern business interests and present day architecture and art, nature has wrought in unusual ways, and the past is there and, as it were, ghosts of kings and queens, of mail-clad knights, of martyrs and reformers, of scholars and saints, of dead poets and authors, mingle with the sightseers and the shoppers in the noble avenue.

On the street, I said, your eyes will ever be coming back to the castle. You will not be able long to refrain from following your eyes thither. You will cross the bridge near Sir Walter's monument, and climb the hill to the Esplanade in front of the entrance. Here, perhaps, you will pause long enough to reflect that there are few places where there has been more human agony than just what you stand. There in the course of three dark centuries were tortured and burned no less than two thousand unfortunate being accused of witchcraft. A king of Scotland even applied the torture at times with his own hands. And if you will take pains to go to a certain point in the wall you can look over upon the Grassmarket, where heroic adherents of the Reformation suffered martyrdom at the stake and the gallows.

So cruel were the old days, so unfeeling and revolting the deeds that have been done in the name of law and religion. Such facts one may well recall when he is tempted to fancy that the world is not growing better. You will not wish to linger too long in the Esplanade. You will go in through the frowning portals which red-coats guard; you will pass the portcullis gate and perhaps remember with what cunning the Black Douglas had a teamster overturn his laden wagon beside the gateway, so that the portcullis could not fall, and his fierce fighting men rushed in before the cart could be removed, to take the castle which was never to go out of Scotch again.

You will wish to go into the crown room to see the regalia of Scotland, which was hidden away for over a century and forgotten till Sir Walter found them. You will wish to look down over the walls at the precipitous cliffs up which Randolph, Earl of Moray, led his assaulting band guided by William Francis, up which he climbed by the help of stimulus of war, but which he had learned to climb under spur of love. You will wish to enter the banqueting hall, an armory now with old weapons arranged in peaceful and artistic patterns, where the young Douglas and his boy brother, slain in cold blood, are depicted in a great fresco in the House of Commons of London. You will wish to go into the chamber of Mary Queen of Scots, the room in which the VI, of Scotland, James I, of England, was born. A tiny stone veil shuts it in. Royalty was content in those days with rooms that would not satisfy us. You will wish also to go into St. Margaret's chapel, the oldest building in Edinburgh and the oldest church in Scotland, and having visited that chamber and that chapel you will have brought to mind the two queens that figure most prominently in Edinburgh's history. The contrast between them is very marked. Margaret, devout queen of exemplary life, teacher of religion in the rude early days, beloved of her people, one whose fair fame for there is no stain.

Mary, able, beautiful brilliant, fascinating, a woman of the later gayer world, pleasure loving, affectionate, passionately ambitious, in religion a Romanist but in moral principle nothing, born in the isle of Elizabeth, disturber of England's peace, who would have driven protestantism out of the realm, whose name is darkened with more than suspicion, and yet who is in remarkable degree seems to have thrown a spell over Scotch hearts, one of the most historians and readers of other times also. No one can come to visit Edinburgh without thinking of her.

With her in mind you may leave the castle and go down to Holyrood Palace, passing the ground on the foot of Salisbury's Crag; you may go into the little room in which she sat with Rizzio when the conspirators burst in and strike their daggers into him over the very person of the queen and drag him forth to die. You may go into the chamber enough to see the narrow low door, built to be easily barricaded, reminder of the days of violence when no one was safe, and see the bed in which she slept, with draperies once brilliant and rich now dull and tarnished. You may see a square of embroidery wrought by her own hands which once must have been very beautiful, but is now faded and gone to decay. One can but ask though with all desire to have charity for the dead, of what profit to have had beauty and power and to have done nothing of lasting good, to have left a tarnished name.

Now it is Sunday morning. If this is your first and only Sunday in Edinburgh you will wish to be up early enough, some, that you may attend the nine-thirty military service at St. Giles'. Edinburgh is a garrisoned town. There are always soldiers at the Castle, as in fact from the time when King Arthur, of the Round Table, sat on the mountain height opposite which now bears his name, and watched his men contending on Castle Hill down to the present time there have always been armed men stationed there. You are never long in the streets of Edinburgh without seeing the gay and picturesque costumes of the Highland pipers, or the redcoats and plaid trousers of the lowland regiment which composes the garrison. These uniforms and the interest to the street scenes, so do also the quaint costumes of the fishwomen of Newmarket who come up in the mornings with great creels of fish upon their backs to cry "Caller Herrin'."

On Sunday morning at St. Giles' the oldest parish church of Edinburgh, there is a service which the garrison is expected to attend. They march in due order to their places in the cathedral and at the close of the service pass out before the rest of the congregation and form upon the square and after one or two military movements march up the hill to the Castle.

Impressive come thickly and fast upon one who for the first time enters the cathedral for that morning service. It is a gray severe interior with little of beauty or brightness to attract one. The one who built that church doubtless thought of religion as something severe and compelling, as something awe-inspiring, to impress one with man's littleness and God's greatness, with the necessity to give up the vanities of the world and walk the stern ways of duty. There is little in such interiors to make religion attractive. And yet if one enters with the right spirit there is much which may tend to make religion impressive. One's first impressions are military rather than religious. There are faded and tattered battle flags hung up in the nave. There are always some battle in the sight of old battle flags to stir thoughts that are akin to tears. There are tablets all along the walls to the memory of soldiers of different regiments and wars, that some how speak more powerfully than the preacher did that day. Such far off places are named on those tablets, Egypt, Soudan, Afghanistan, India. To such remote regions England's dominion extends, to such far-off places her soldiers have to go, so far from the old church at home? Here again as at so many places in our journeying we came upon late monuments to men who had died in the South African war. These new memorial tablets on walls of cathedrals, monuments in public squares, we found all along in our journeyings, till we came to expect them, to recognize them in the distance and to be able without looking closely to repeat the words upon them. "To the memory of officers, non-commissioned officers and privates," of the — regiments, who fell in the So African War, they all began.'

St. Giles' church is spoken of as a cathedral. It is not one of course, though at one time it was. Presbyterians have no cathedrals because they have no bishops. It seemed *strange to be sitting in this cathe*dral-like building, and have a Presbyterian service going on. The Episcopal form would have seemed more in keeping. It was whispered it might have brought up the ghosts of dead Covenanters who just a step *from that spot had signed the Sol*emn League and Covenant securing Presbyterianism as that state established by the Scottish parliament. Indeed, would not old John Knox have come out from his statue in the aisle, or up from his grave under the pavement outside if we had breathed such a thought! The service, though not Episcopal, was sufficiently formal. There time the ministers were in robes if not in surplices.

Singularly enough our first sermon heard in Scotland as our first sermon heard in England had very much the same theme. Both treated of the Christian life on the same passage of Scripture, containing Christ's words about the cup of cold water was read. In this case the preacher chose Isaiah's "Line upon line" as his text. The critics of the prophet laughed at his line upon line and precept upon precept as low metaphor. But life is a growth, character is a growth, it is folly to slight the little upon little for thereby we should miss the growth and consummation. Little by little a flower matures but we do not see it struck in the beauty of the results. Character develops slowly, slowly, by one little act, one small choice after another, by heeding one precept, and another. At times it all seems small and insignificant, but one case is significant, the obedience of a child, a character, a developed personality.

One grows impatient with the littleness of things at times, and fails to feel the importance, and is inclined to be willing to be cast on careless moment, the passing impulse waiting some great opportunity to distinguish himself. Yet this is folly; life consists of little things. It is folly to act as if it did not. It may seem sometimes that the time of the service of worship may be of little value; but think what it is. It is a touch of the divine life upon our lives, a touch of the divine spirit on our spirits. Just a little, but with that little we may get on to till some other touch of the divine spirit.

However good the sermon was, one may confess that it was not so absorbing but one's thoughts could now and then wander to John Knox, who so often had stood in that pulpit. The service and the sermon, the voice and manner of the preacher were all so quiet and gentle, one could but contrast in thought the days of tense excitement in that very place, when, for example, under Charles I, the attempt was made to introduce into English church forms, fiery Jane Geddes stood up and flung her stool at the preacher's head, crying, "Out priest! Dost say mass at my lug?" and those earlier nobler days of John Knox, when great nobles and crowds of people swept through the place, when at the risk of his life John Knox used to preach there with boldness of deep conviction and an indomitable spirit, and with fierce eloquence, vehement logic, argument and denunciation, inveighed against popery and sin in high and low and championed Protestant cause, regardless of Queen Mary's beauty or power or the power of Rome or all Catholic enemies, that threatened his life. He spoke as a strong man mightily feeling the momentousness of the times and the issues. How different the peaceful scene of the unemotional service we were attending! It is because of the heroism and staunchness of those of the old days who fought out the fight for religious liberty that we do have the peace of today. The debt we owe them must not be forgotten. And yet one could wish that more of the fire of those old days were in evidence now, more of deep feeling in religious matters, more zeal for the real battles which are yet to be fought, more sense of the deep and vital importance of religious concerns as above all others!

The forenoon was by no means gone when we came out of St. Giles' having done our duty by the historic and the famous, we were moved to seek our own. So we found our way to a Congregational church. The building had no resemblance to a cathedral, far from it. But it seemed more home-like. The pulpit was too high to seem just home-like even to a New Englander. When it was time for the service to begin, one felt that he was not at home but in one of McClaren's stories to see the sexton in his "Take up the Book" into the pulpit, then come down and escort the minister up and lock him in. I had long known of the Scotch unwillingness to make a positive statement, but never heard a more striking instance of it than appeared in the minister's manner of giving an announcement. "I am requested to intimate that the Ladies' Guild will resume meetings on the 23."

Enjoying these likenesses and differences before the sermon, in the sermon itself we had the same experience that we had had at the Cathedral town of Wells. Both at Wells cathedral and at St. Giles, the impressiveness of the service had been in architecture and the historical associations, while the sermon in both was uninspiring, whereas in each case in the Congregational church the sermon had been stimulating, earnest, spiritual and strong, and from the humbler edifice one went away with the deeper spiritual impression.

If one could whisper it only to those of our own denomination, one would say, from our limited experience, in England and Scotland if you want thought, strong, stimulating, go to the Congregational churches. There is no truth more vitally important for all places and times than that which was held to our thoughts that day; that religion is primarily within the soul; that it does not consist in the outward forms of worship, or rites, or creeds or traditions, but is primarily in the soul and is to be known by personal experience; and the first supreme question for every person's welfare is, has he the "white stone," the "secret that cannot be told," spiritual life, personal religion?

And is not Edinburgh's eminence due in no small degree to the importance which the people of Edinburgh, from Queen Margaret's day to this, have placed upon experimental religion? That which may first and most prominently attract the casual visitor; the grim castle, the historical places, the picturesque scenes, the gardens, the bright shops, the cheery avenue, may fall in love with the place, but Edinburg after all. The University, the Divinity School, the churches, the book issues, the almost yearly con*vocations of delegates from all lands* for religious objects; all these must be taken into consideration, and these indicate a city eminent above most in its deep interest in learning, in religion and in righteousness. Royal Edinburgh, Mrs. Oliphant calls it. Religious Edinburgh we must affectionately add, the latter title is the higher praise.

DUNELLENITES OPPOSE GRANTING A LICENSE

The citizens of Dunellen are greatly agitated over the application of W. W. Oliver, of New Brunswick, for a saloon license at South avenue and Chestnut street, in what was formerly known as Wyckoff's hotel. Arrangements have been made for a large delegation to go to New Brunswick next Friday to attend the hearing to be granted by the court on the matter. They are prepared to enter a vigorous protest; and believe that it will have much weight that the court will deny the application.

The residents of Dunellen are of the opinion that there are now sufficient number of licensed places in Dunellen and the fact that the new application, if granted, would place a saloon next to Levering & Garrigues' Works, is the cause for a more determined remonstrance on the part of the residents. Even those who are not prohibitionists or temperance in any degree, are opposed to the opening of a new place. They claim that there is no room for another saloon in Dunellen and want to see the court turn down the application.

The place applied for was once a wholesale place and the proprietor was found guilty of retailing liquor, against the law. Soon afterward the place was closed. Residents in the immediate vicinity of the place are strongly opposed to the court granting another license there and they will join the large delegation going to New Brunswick to protest against favorable action.

OBSERVE CENTENARY OF MOTHER SETON

The pupils of St. Mary's School Joined in a celebration Friday, in common with the many parochial schools and private schools taught by the Sisters, in honor of the centenary of the Foundress of the teaching Community of the Sisters of Charity.

Elizabeth Anne Bayley, born in New York in 1774, married Wilbur Seton, of that city in 1794, and travelled extensively in Europe shortly after her marriage. Nine years later, while in Italy, her husband died, leaving her with three young daughters with but little means to meet the requirements for living. In 1806, having returned to America, she opened a private school in Baltimore for the education of poor children. The idea took shape and the com*munity, meeting with the approval* of ecclesiastical authorities, began its life of usefulness and wonderful success.

Today there are nearly five thousand Sisters devoting their lives to the education of children, and all united in religious life by the rules designed by Mother Seton over one hundred years ago.

Yesterday's exercises began with a solemn mass of Thanksgiving at 9 o'clock in the morning, at which all the pupils, numbering 527, attended in a body. Father Bogan was celebrant of the mass, assisted by Father Hogan and Father Sciolla as deacon and sub-deacon.

In the afternoon the children gathered in the school assembly hall, and entertained their friends with drills, choruses and recitations, which were followed by an address by Father Bogan.

PLAINFIELD FIVE TWICE DEFEATED BY ELIZABETH

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basketball players sustained a double defeat at Elizabeth, Friday night. The first team was swamped by the Elizabeth association team by the score of 68 to 32. The locals were weakened considerably owing to the inability of Cahoone and Ashoim to play, owing to injuries. Denton also played under disadvantages. In the first part of the game he strained his muscles which made it necessary for him to slow up.

The Y. M. C. A. second team fell before the speed of the Loeser Brothers' aggregation in a close game, the score being 28 to 25. The lineups:

Plainfield Y. M. C. A.—Forwards, Collier, Denton; centre, Linke; guards, Rumsey, Mackey, Hoagland and Fritts.

Elizabeth Y. M. C. A.—Forwards, Reeves, Patterson, Ross; centre, Seller; guards, Richards and Loeser.

Goals from field, Collier, 2; Denton, 5; Linke, 6; Rumsey, 2; Reeves, 7; Patterson, 8; Seller, 6; Richards, 1; Loeser, 1. Goals from foul, Collier, 2. Officials—Lattman and Cann.

Second Game.

Y. M. C. A. (second team)—Forwards, Templin, Bentley; centre, Hoagland; guards, Fritts and Mackey.

Bixx—I suppose the servant does all the heavy work in the house?

Jinx—Not all; my wife makes the pies and the puddings.

BASEBALL PROSPECTS FOR COMING SEASON

The prospects of a representative baseball team in Plainfield next season is very slim, according to the opinion of those who have heretofore been interested in the national game here. A Daily Press reporter in conversation with Manager Ernest Dorflinger, of the Plainfield Baseball team, learned that that organization will probably not be represented on the local diamond next season.

Manager Dorflinger has been in communication with the owners of Crescent Oval with a view to purchasing the land, but the price is practically prohibitive. The owners want $800 an acre and the tract comprises about six acres. This price together with the taxes would make it an expensive proposition for the club. And there is no other available site that would come within the resources of the club.

The fine ball ground in Park Avenue team, has been together for a great many years and the prospects of disbanding are not enjoyed by its many supporters who have looked to it for a good articles of ball. However, the Y. M. C. A. will be in the field as has already been announced. Manager Listman's plans will furnish better baseball than ever before.

"Lou" Wilstse, who resided here, had plans under consideration for placing a first-class semi-professional team here next season, but nothing definite has been heard from him of late. He is away from the city at present and his views cannot be learned.

Several players on the Plainfield team will be found on minor league clubs next season. "Jack" Martin, the star short-stop, will go with Worcester, of the New England League, while Emery, one of the best third basemen in this part of the State, will be given a try-out by the Reading Tri-State League team.

The manager of the Readings is a personal friend of Manager Dorflinger, and as soon as the latter mentioned Emery to him, he jumped at the chance to get a good man. Emery is exceptionally fast as a third baseman, seldom misses a chance and his throwing arm is in the pink of condition. Besides, he has a good average in batting. He will doubtless make good.

"Cliff" Randolph, who was formerly the star of the pivot on the local *team and who was with the Bing*hampton New York State League club last season, will return to that team in the spring. He made a favorable impression there and next season should do far better work after a year in fast company.

Other members of the Plainfield team will doubtless find good berths by the time the season opens. The passing away of the local organization is regretted by a host of fans, but with the Y. M. C. A. team in the field the fact that it has no local opposition, will likely prove an incentive to put up a first-class article of ball and schedule games with only the best team available.

P.H.S. BASKETBALL FIVE WINS FROM N. P. H. S.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team was down to defeat in a contest with the Plainfield High School five Friday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. by the score of 28 to 19. At the begining of the game things looked a little in North Plainfield's favor but the local boys soon picked up and showed that they could do. Morris played the star game for Plainfield Highr School, making eight of the twelve goals shot from floor. Clark did some pretty shooting and played a strong game at forward. Smith played the best game for North Plainfield, making most of the goals for them. Doane and Conroy started by the foul goals they shot for their respective teams. In the first part of the game the ball hovered around the North Plainfield goal a great part of the time but the fellows couldn't seem to get it in. They played all around P. H. S. in their passing. All during the first half. Dunning distinguished himself by his powerful work at the end of the game. The first half the score stood 17-6 in favor of P. H. S.

The second half was spent in a great deal of passing and fumbling, but few shots, then North Plainfield began to pick up and also did their score, and in the last few minutes some pretty classy work was shown by both teams. The line-up:

P. H. S.—Forwards, Clark, Woodhull; centre, Morris; guards, Overton, Doane. Goals made were, Clark 2, Woodhull 1, Morris 8, Overton 1, Doane 4 foul goals.

N. P.—Forwards, Conroy, Stein; center, Smith; guards, Becker and Dunning. Goals, Conroy 5 fouls, Stein 2, Smith 3, Becker 1, Dunning 1. Time of halves 20 minutes. Paul Collier, umpire.

MAY HAVE TO ENLARGE TUBERCULOSIS PAVILION

Owing to the number of applications for admission to the tuberculosis pavilion, it is believed that the Plainfield Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis will soon build an addition to the present structure on the hospital grounds. There are now eight patients receiving treatment and they have all shown marked improvement. One patient has gained seven pounds since receiving the treatment and the lowest gain is two and a half pounds. Six applications have been received from persons wishing to go to the pavilion for treatment.

The tuberculosis society at its next meeting will probably consider plans for building an addition to the pavilion. It is evident that the present accommodations are not large enough to meet the present needs, and now that the people of Plainfield are so much interested in the proposition it is the opinion that funds for the addition can be secured easily.

Special Prizes Also for the Meadowview Exhibit—Some Other Local Winners.

Abram G. Hooley, of the borough, owner of the Meadowview Kennels, won a notabe victory Friday at the dog show in the coliseum in Newark when his prize dogs made a clean sweep. Mr. Hooley's dogs won in both classes, taking two cups, five medals and eight special prizes.

Mr. Hooley's Meadowview Yale also won over the invincible Fleet dog "Southport Hero," conceded to be the best dog in England and only recently imported by Tyler Morse, the well known Boston millionaire. Mr. Morse is said to have paid $4,700 for Hero. James Mortimer, who is manager of the great New York show, was the presiding judge and as he is considered by many to be foremost judge in America the honor comes to the Plainfield dog from the greatest authority in this country.

The Meadowview Kennels were also successful in the English setter class as the following awards will show:

NEW JERSEY MAY BUILD THREE MORE ARMORIES

The State Military Board at a meeting at Trenton Friday, recommended armories for Elizabeth, Camden and Bridgeton. Delegations of citizens and of the militia appeared before the board and declared those armories were needed to stimulate interest in the National Guard. The federal government insists that the State properly house the guns of Battery B at Camden. At present the guns are housed in the Third Regiment Armory at Camden, but this, the government rules, is not satisfactory.

Brigadier General Dennis T. Collins declared that Elizabeth citizens have signified their intention of giving money or grounds for the armory there. He moved an affirmative action of the Military Board, so that the amount could be determined and placed in the next tax levy.

The Freeholders of the counties where armories are to be built will be walted upon by committees. The Elizabeth committee consists of General Collins and Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan. For the Camden and Bridgeton armories the committee is composed of General Collins and Colonel John H. Mather.

18TH ANNIVERSARY OF C. E. SOCIETY

Interesting reports and an able address by Corliss F. Randolph, principal of the Newark public schools, were features of the eighteenth anniversary service of the Christian Endevor society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church Saturday morning. There was also a large attendance of members of the church and society. There was also special music under the direction of Miss Jessie Utter, organist, and of the choir.

Reymond Burdick, president of the society, presided at the service, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw. The senior society was organized December 9, 1891 with thirty-one members. The senior and honorary membership at present is about 105.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 28, 1902.

Topic—Our responsibility for home and foreign missions.—Matt. xxviii. 16-20. Remarks by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The great interest manifested by practically all Christians in the subject of missions today is a strong intimation that the Christian's responsibility toward the un-Christianized parts of the world is fully realized. There was a time when such responsibility or obligation to missions greatly needed to be emphasized, but today this need is not so great. Yet there are still many who do not feel as much responsibility and need to have it pressed home to their hearts. Nor is it impossible for those who are already interested in the world's salvation to become more interested by considering their responsibility to home and foreign missions. May this study, therefore, arouse interest where there is none and increase the interest to the highest possible extent where it already exists. The salvation of the world is the supreme work of the Christian church, and therefore no Christian can become too much interested in the subject of missions.

1. Christ's command places a responsibility upon us in relation to home and foreign missions. We have given ourselves to Christ. We have placed our lives under His control. As His disciples we have promised to obey His commands. One of these, and His dying command at that, is that we shall "go, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost," or, as Mark records it, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Upon every Christian rests the obligation of obeying Christ's commands, and He will hold us responsible for any failure to do so. This applies to missions as well as to any other Christian duty. We may not be able to go personally and thus literally obey this command, as the first disciples did, but we can obey it in spirit and thus fulfill the responsibility. That is done by giving of our money to send others. If we do this freely and cheerfully and to the extent of our ability we will discharge our responsibility to missions, both home and foreign.

2. The promise of Christ emphasizes our missionary responsibility. "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." This promise accompanies His great missionary command. Having it, we cannot shirk our duty on the ground that we may not succeed. His presence assures success and should greatly encourage us to meet our every obligation to home and foreign missions.

A Hearty Appreciation.

Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, D. D., pays the following tribute to Christian Endeavor:

"I think Christian Endeavor is one of the greatest movements for evangelization in the world. It has done more to break down sectarian bigotry than any other thing since the days of Martin Luther. It has been the golden link that has bound denomination to denomination, and it has taught one great fact—the cardinal doctrine of the Bible—salvation through the atonement of the cross. The next great fact is that Christian Endeavor is that it has harnessed the young people of our churches to work. The old idea of church life was like that of the United States senate—you were not supposed to speak until you had been there a long time, and so young people were supposed to say nothing in public meetings. The result was that nine-tenths of the young people kept their mouths shut, so that only a very few took part in meetings or gave testimony or carried and message of love. Now Christian Endeavor has changed all that, and the young people have their meetings and, while helping others, are helping themselves."

SAILING OVER MOUNTAIN PEAKS

San Jacinto and San Bernardino were blue behind when luck forgot us and our globule of floating gas, writes J. H. Hutchison in Harper's Weekly. The barometer was firm at 16,500 feet when the wind turned fickle. Within the sweep of a northern chinook, from the south, where the waters of the Gulf of California breed coolness, a whipping breeze clutched the balloon. Our flight was checked, and from the warmth of a moment before, we shivered.

Instantly the gas contracted. The needle that showed our height trembled and whirled away from the three-mile mark. I gasped as we fell and looked at Mueller for the signal "Sand overboard." He had seized the barometer in his hand. Its point flew toward zero.

The desert rushed up to meet us. Sagebrush and cactus that had been mere dots sprang into vivid relief. Hills became mountains while the watch ticked once. Bottomless canyons yawned under us, with chasm wide for prey from the skies. In all the wilderness of rock and ruin there was but one tiny spot of yellow sand where death, perhaps, would look the other way.

My ears seemed to burst. Blood rushed to my head and drummed in my temples. My head reeled in the heavier atmosphere. I saw the horizon that had been a thousand leagues away swept out of sight by the teeth of the peaks that hemmed us in. The balloon leaped as though a catapult had hurled us. Mueller said never a word. Motionless, he watched the patch of level sand. A reef of lava, sharp as a knife, bordered it. Yet he made no sign.

He dropped the barometer and clutched at a sandbag. The ground seemed crouching for the blow, and I heard through the throbbing of my ears a voice that shouted: "Hang to the ring! Don't jump!"

I grabbed at the stout wooden ring that held the ropes above my head. We struck. Sand flew into my face and my head roared with the terrific impact. My body swung across the basket and flattened Mueller against the rattan. Then, before I had time to think, we were racing skyward again, and I was lying limp against the wickerwork.

As rapidly as a moment before it had whirled to zero, the barometer was now dancing over the thousands toward the black mark that registered 16,500 feet, as far as the barometer would go. Again we were back in the skies, and the next as suddenly snatched us from the claws of rock.

So fast did we rise that we shot through the colder wind in the rush of a second. The barometer needle cast a shadow on the last mark on the dial, and still the big bag of gas careened upward. Mueller had brushed the dust from his face, and now stood silent, watching the world drop away.

"Eighteen thousand," he figured "nineteen, twenty—we're far over Riverside and still rising. We're not lost in wind gripped us again, and we sent kiting eastward. The San Jacintos were but a mere blur of fading blue, and the hollow into which we had been thrown was far lost among the desert ranges that our speed piled behind us.

TEACH BOYS WAR GAME.

To teach the young idea how to shoot, ride and march—and above all, to "Look Out!" to be alert—such is the important program of the Boy Scouts of England. Fifteen thousand of them recently mobilized on the archery ground of the Crystal Palace, London. They held contests in pioneering, signaling, ambulance work, quarry craft, hurdle-making, swimming and life-saving. Major-General Baden Powell, Earl Roberts and the king have sent greetings and cheer to the boy warriors.

General Baden-Powell's message to the "recruit" says:

"It is the simplest thing in the world to join the Boy Scouts. I want every boy between 10 and 18 to help this country by coming in touch with us.

"You all take the Scout's oath, that is, your promise, on your honor, three things, namely:

"1. To be loyal to God and the king.

"2. To help other people at all times.

"3. To obey the Scout law."

Two hundred thousand lads have been enrolled through the length and breadth of Britain. There are badges of merit and tests to win the badges. For the ambulance badge they learn to improvise a stretcher, and a life-line, show the position of the main arteries and how bleeding may be stopped. For this badge the scout learns as much as a private of the Royal Army medical corps. Other badges with a strict regime are those for pioneering, signaling the seamanship.

The hidden purpose of the organization is to interest boys in war craft, to get their thoughts turned toward the army and imperial defense. It is all a part of the anti-German Preadnought idea—a program which has run over England with the speed and vigor of prairie fire. It is doubtful if modern educational leaders will approve of this return to the outworn motive of fear, which used to be so constantly played upon in childhood. Mr. Kipling, ever obediently tuneful to the demands of imperialism, has written a lyric for the boys.—Collier's.

THE NURSERY SCREEN.

A nursery screen, fitted with the many articles which a mother needs in caring for her baby, may, of course, be bought, the price being determined by the limits of the purse. It is possible, however, for a fashion such screen in the home at no great outlay of time or money. A member of the family handy with tools can easily make a simple screen frame of pine. Such home talent being lacking, a clothes horse of the required dimensions may be utilized. This frame should have the three leaves joined by hinges, so that the leaves will fold at almost any angle. The best measurements for the panels are to have the meach three feet him and eighteen inches in width. Each pair of uprights should be connected by three parallel pieces of wood, one at the top, one at the bottom and one half-way between.

The framework should be given at least one coat of white paint, and then one of white enamel. It is a simple matter to keep the enamled woodwork white.

Cover the outside of the screen, whether a regular frame or an improvised one is used, with some pretty cretonne. Select a small figure and one that harmonizes with the furnishings of the room in which the screen is to be placed. This cover, tacked on with small brass-headed tacks.

The inside of the screen is covered with white oilcloth such as is used for the top of the kitchen table. Carefully cut a piece to fit each panel, allowing ample for turning and tacking. Before tacking on the oilcloth, it is well to assemble all the articles which are to be put in the pockets of the screen; otherwise it would be a little difficult to make the pockets of the right size.

On one side of the side panels, at the top, have two pockets about four inches deep. One of these will hold the sponge or wash cloth and the other the soap box, the powder box, a bottle of sweet oil and tubes of vaseline, etc. At the bottom of the same panel, pockets a little deeper will do for the face towels and flannel bands.

At the top of the centre panel have a pincushion, liberally supplied with safety pins of assorted sizes. A strip of the oilcloth should be stitched in to place, lose with openings for the brush and comb and a small box of toothpicks wound with absorbent cotton to clean the baby's ears and nose.

A deeper pocket across the bottom will hold the bath towel and various articles of clothing.

The third panel should have small pockets where the mother may tuck any of the many little things which are needed occasionally, and, when needed, should be right at hand. The bottle of boiled water, the box of tiny linen squares for washing out the mouth and eyes, and little celluloid toys which are sure to amuse the baby when splashing in his tub, may be placed in pockets on this panel.

The pockets made and stitched where they belong, the lining should next be tacked in. Now the screen is ready for instant use. Any mother who has one of these screens will find it of the greatest convenience. With the cretonne covered side exposed to view, one thinks of the screen as designed only to shut off light or a possible draft from the baby slumberer.

BRAZILIAN IRON MILLS.

Government Aid for Establishing Large Works in So. America.

Consul-General Anderson writes from Rio de Janeiro that there is an apparent opportunity for the profitable investment of American capital in Brazil. The Brazilian government's efforts to establish an iron-working industry. Soon after taking charge of the government of Brasil as a result of the death of former President Penna, President Pecanha announced that it would be one of the policies of his government to secure the establishment of iron industries in Brazil, both for the purpose of taking advantage of the immense deposits of iron ore known to exist in various part of the country and also to stimulate the industrial development of the country in those lines, which depend upon iron working as a base.

In line with this announced policy, on July 8 he sent to the Brazilian Congress a message in which he outlined his plans and desires and asked for the necessary authority to grant to a company or companies formed for the purpose of working in iron upon a proper scale such government aid as might be necessary to secure such investment of capital. A translation of this message is forwarded (and may be consulted at the Bureau of Manufactures). The matter has been considered in Congress, and a bill known to embody the views of the administration is being passed as rapidly as the desire to express views on the subject permits. A copy of the law in its present and probably final form being forwarded.

In line with the legislation indicated in anticipation of it, the President has appointed General F. De Cousa Aguiar, just retiring from the office of secretary of the federal district, as a commissioner to go abroad for the purpose of securing the investment of capital desired in a great iron-working plant. General Aguiar was the chief personality in the Brazilian commission to the World's Columbia Exposition in Chicago and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis.

DOUBLE RULE IN MUKDEN.

Chinese and Japanese Share Jurisdiction There.

There are two distinct jurisdictions in Mukden—Chinese and Japanese. The Japanese jurisdiction comes through the South Manchurian Railway, a concession originally given to and Russian and after the war formally transferred to the Japanese. By virtue of the right to protect the railroad, the Japanese have a distinct police system of their own, with the Consul-General as their commander; a military garrison, with the Consul-General at its head; an extra-territorial court, with the Consul-general as high judge. There is also a separate Japanese telephone and telegraph system.

But what impressed me most appeared when going with the Consul-General Kolke in his carriage, with its picturesquely uniformed Chinese driver and less picturesque outrider, to call upon the American Consul, Mr. Cloud. We stopped to get some money changed at the Mukden branch of that world-wide and truly great financial institution, the Yokohama Specie Bank. To get quick and small, or small-general took me in by a side door. In going through a short hall to the banking chamber proper, I passed an open doorway, through which I saw, in a small room, with cartridge belts slung and rifles in hand, as if ready for instant call, six or eight Japanese regulars. A file of such soldiers does garrison duty on the premises day and night. What is the reason?

Mr. Kolke said, as is in explanation, that the bank building was being built, and that the new vaults being put in, and that the place therefore needed protection against robbers.

But why not watchmen and, if necessary, some policemen? Why soldiers? And will the soldiers cease garrison duty after the new building is finished? To Europe's policy.

The Japanese in Mukden are few. The total population of the ancient city is perhaps 200,000—the Chinese themselves do not seem to know exactly. The Japanese keep a strict count of their own numbers—3,500. Of these 300 are officers and 300 police. As to the idea of the whole Manchurian situation posed. Manchuria consists of three provinces, together embracing an area approximating that of France, but the population is only 2,500,000, as against France's 50,000,000. The lowest or most southerly of the these provinces—Shengking—contains 1,500,000 inhabitants.—Henry George, Jr., in Collier's.

TOLD OF GENERAL WHEELER.

"It was at Montauk, during the war with Spain. With several other officers, I was in General Wheeler's tent, and we were busy with details of supplying the hospitals," says a writer in the New York Times.

"Outside there was a group of civilians. They were waiting to get passes to see friends in the hospital. Most of them carried bushels filled with dainties, and, to be inspected, so that the soldiers would not be killed with kindness.

"Among the civilians, there was one who was burdened by nothing heavier than his stolid sadness. They had all crowded close, in their eagerness to get the passes, when one of the officers of the medical corps, ordered the sergeant to shove them back, and, with unnecessary gruffness, told them to go about their business, as Genrel Wheeler was too busy to see them for some hours.

"The big man—he looked to be a German, and he was one—was instant in obedience; but the others were moving back slowly, when Wheeler threw open the flap of his tent and asked what the trouble was.

"'Here are a lot of people,' the officer replied, 'who want hospital passes. None of us has had anything to eat since breakfast and so I told them to go away.'

"'As I have had no luncheon in three days,' Wheeler replied, 'I and these might miss lunch just once,' and then he turned to the group.

"The big German drew himself into as soldierly a position as his age and robustness would permit, saluted as only an old European gallant could, General Wheeler advanced, answered the salute, and asked what he could do for him.

"'I know by telegraph mine boy is dead,' said the German. 'My frau is too much mid sorrow to come, and respectfully, general, I want his body to bury with the last permit.'

"General Wheeler extended both hands to his visitor, and said: 'My heart is with you, sir, and I am at your service. There are horrors and glories in war, but Europe has a soldier!'

"'Yes. I was hit three times at Sedan.'

"'Then you are proud that your boy died for his flag?'

"'Yes, and God bless you, general.'

"Then General Wheeler said: 'I want you to see that this gentleman is given the body of his son, and that it is escorted to the train with a guard of honor.'"

AIDS TO APPETITE

DAINTY TOUCHES ON TABLE MEAN MUCH.

Effective Garnishing of Dishes More a Matter of Taste Than Money—Flowers or Leaf for Finger Bowl.

Have you ever stopped to wonder how tomatoes would taste if they were not such a pretty red; or if French creams would tempt us if served in the form of hash? It takes a little more trouble to serve a meal in dainty form, but how much better the plainest food tastes? The shining linen and silver, the sprig of green on shining meat platter and the neat rice mold with tomato sauce, all serve to transform the pickup wash-day meal.

Garnishing is more a question of taste and time than money. Through most of the year a few leaves picked from shrubs or trees and tucked in on the edges of a platter of meat or fruit enhance the appearance of the dish. While for the other months parsley can easily be raised in a window box.

Most people will garnish their meats with a few sprigs of green and neglect all other dishes. Fruit looks much more inviting if it is set in a bed of green or has clusters of foliage put among it. As far as possible use the natural foliage. Grape leaves are excellent for large fruits as cantaloupes, and the nasturtium leaves and tendrils are effective on salad that is not set on lettuce hearts.

The use of parsley always looks well combined with the green; thus the small sweet peppers or cherry tomatoes should be raised in every garden, even if one has but a small vegetable patch in a city yard.

Carrots, cucumbers, lemons in slices or sections, hard-boiled eggs and the tiny yellow tomatoes all lend themselves to garnishing. Candied fruit is equally effective, but costs more than the average housewife can afford.

Oysters are improved by sections of lemon and sprigs of mint through the ice. Indeed, cracked ice may be used artistically instead of merely as a chiller. Raw oysters or grape fruit just as they come from the ice, if they have been set in the refrigerator for hours and served without ice, but it certainly will not be so attractive to the eye as when passed in a bed of shaved ice.

A finger bowl should always have a few flowers or a leaf floating on the surface of the water. Rose geranium leaves and lemon verbena are delicious; while a few nasturtium blossoms give a striking touch in color.

Do not think such garnishing is unnecessary for the simple family meal; it adds a refining touch that goes a long way toward making up a scanty menu.

Full Linen Closets.

A systematic housekeeper sees to it that her supply of linen never gets low.

To bring about this much-to-be-desired result she has made it a rule for years to purchase annually a dozen face towels, a pair of sheets, at least one tablecloth, four bath towels and a dozen napkins.

Of course, the amount of linen needed varies greatly with the size of the household, but a little study of the condition of the linen supply will enable each housewife to determine pretty accurately what is necessarily cast aside each year.

The tablecloth is cut up into the face towels for the little folks or into napkins for kitchen use.

Arrowroot Biscuit.

Sift together two cupfuls of arrowroot and one cupful of flour. Rub two-thirds of a cupful of butter into the flour and stir gradually a little very rich milk, sufficient to make a stiff dough. Roll out into a thick sheet, beat with the rolling pin, fold, roll out, and beat again, and repeat the rolling and beating for five minutes. Roll out the last time about an inch thick, cut with a round cutter, brush with egg, sprinkle with sugar and bake in a moderate oven with a stronger bottom heat.

Broiled Chicken on Toast.

Broil the usual way, and when done take up in a square tin or dripping pan, butter well, season with pepper and salt and set in the oven for a few minutes. Lay slices of moistened toast on a platter, take the chicken up and lay on the toast. Add to the gravy in the pan part of a cup of cream or rich milk, thicken with a little flour and pour over the chicken.

Polenta Dabs.

Scald a pint of white Indian meal in boiling water. Mix together one tablespoonful of butter, two beaten eggs, two tablespoons of cream and a dash of salt. Stir into the cornmeal, beat well for a few moments and drop from a spoon into the buttered pan. Bake in a moderate over until brown.

Oyster Shell Scraper.

An oyster shell is the very best thing to scrape saucepans and kettles; when once you have used them, you will never return to the spoon or blunt dishcloth; they (the oyster shells) are sharp and lend themselves to all corners.—"Little Helps," in the National Magazine.

Savory Cheese Patties.

Butter 12 water biscuits, then put a good layer of cheese over the butter, which should have been spread very thin. Dust with paprika and set in the oven until the cheese melts. Serve very hot.

MME. MODJESKA'S FAMOUS FRIENDS.

It would be difficult to say which member of the group of Polish artists who have become famous in the country in the course of the last generation was the greatest, says the New York Sun. The names of all of them are things to conjure with. Paderewski, Sembrich, the two De Reszkes and Modjeska—all from that little woe, begirt, blood-drenched country of Poland! What other nation of many times the material consequence of Poland can show a group of all analogous?

Mme. Modjeska, the oldest of this famous group, was the first to attain international prominence, which she did as an actress in her native land before she reached the age of twenty-one. To the Poles she soon became the personification of the spirit of liberty, so that her banishment from Russian Poland was early decreed. Late in her life the ban was relaxed, but she never took advantage of this fact. In her native land the people speak of "Modjeska's Polish," just as in England it is "the King's English."

Without her early advice and assistance the world might never have come to know the De Reszkes. They were of a noble but impoverished family and Modjeska, coming to be interested in them, arranged a huge benefit in which she acted herself in Cracow.

The receipts were large and they went towawrd enabling the De Reszkes to prosecute their studies under the best masters. The two brothers never forgot the debt of gratitude they owed, any more than did Paderewski to whom the actress was also of much help in his early and obscure days.

One time when Mme. Modjeska was playing in London she suffered a severe illness. It so happened that all the other members of this famous Polish group were then in London and they used to visit her nearly every day for the purpose o fentertaining her. Paderewski playing the most ravishing accompaniments, while Mme. Sembrich and the two De Reszkes sang. Mme. Modjeska, in telling of those extraordinary entertainments, used to say that the great pianist always insisted on ending every selection, no matter what, by turning in into the famous waltz from "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief."

It also amused her to recall the fact that other persons staying in the same hotel made some complaint at the office about what they called "those awful noises" proceeding from Mme. Modjeska's apartments. They stopped complaining when they learned that the awful noises proceeded from a quartet of the world's most famous musicians.

Paderewski, like the rest, remained the devoted friend of the actress to the end. In March, 1903, Mme. Modjeska and her husband, Count Bobenta, were staying with the Paderewskis at their chalet in Switzerland, and the actress wrote to a friend in this city the letter from which these excerpts are taken:

"We are fortunate with the dearest of men and his wife, and feel very happy to be able to have them to ourselves these few days of our stay here. The house is beautiful and large, with terraces a garden and park, and is quite worthy of such people.

"The view from our bedroom is simply gorgeous. We see the lake, the range of mountains, among which reigns Mt. Blanc, but her royal highness, the most beautiful of mountains, is not every day visible to mortal eyes. I cannot persuade herself willingly with a veil of mist, and only in the mighty presence of the sun lifts it in recognition of the great power.

"What do you say to this lucubration? Does it not sound like some sentimental effusion of a German novel? I think it is the influence of Switzerland which makes me sentimental and eloquent, and then the sound of the piano!

"Ah, would you not like to be here? The master is composing a sonata and works every morning and the 'greater part of the afternoon. I can hear every note from my room, but as his work is just now in the rough state I cannot quite understand it. I only am delighted to hear broken phrases—sometimes full of divine beauty. Just now it is something entirely new, but meanwhile there will be a storm of accords.

"Mme. Paddy is most charming and hospitable, and a most fervent housekeeper. She is everywhere and has enough time for the guests. In the evening we play whist, and Paderewski tells delightful tales, funny anecdotes, and we all laugh at the old ones.

"Then Paderewski says something amusing, and he is very witty—and so passes the time. There is no constraint. I find that really great people are the simple people—that the pose and exaggerated dignity are only indispensable to those who must remind the world of their existence. Our host is one of the simplest minds, and one of the kindest."

Correcting Her.

"I thought I should laugh right out," said Mrs. Cashton, "when at the circus recently Mrs. Smith called an animal a seraph. Of course, she meant a giraffe; but the fun of it was it wawsn't a giraffe. It was a camomille."—The Christian Register.

LEGAL TENDER MONEY.

Officially, there are just ten kinds of money in circulation in the United States. Do you know which of those are legal tender and in what amount. It may be that "all money looks alike to you," but there's a difference and below is the list:

Gold coins, standard silver dollars, subsidiary silver, gold certificates, silver certificates, treasury notes (1890), United States notes (greenbacks), national bank notes, nickel coins and bronze coins.

Looking upon this formidable classification of United States money as made by the treasury department, it becomes more formidable when it is considered from the highly technical point of view as a legal tender. Some of the most imposing of this paper currency is not a legal tender at all, while as to the minor coins they are legal tender to such small amounts as to startle the average layman. It may be well to recall to this layman that the term "legal tender" owes its significance to the fact that in payment of debt or obligation of any kind it can be forced upon the creditor "in full of all demands."

Gold certificates, silver certificates and national bank notes, of which such enormous numbers circulate everywhere are not legal tender. If you have plenty of money, and if you have forced Jones to sue you in order to get judgment, you can turn down every one of these bills tendered in payment and force you to dig up something better.

Should Jones do such a thing, you might conceive the idea of fixing him by unloading a whole lot of silver coins upon him. But you want to know what you're dealing there, too, for he'll only take $10 worth of halves, quarters and dimes, while as to nickels and copper cents, only 25 cents value is legal tender.

But as to the standard silver dollar, there's no limit upon your shoveling them out to Jones. The old "dollar of our dads" still is the real thing in all business transactions unless some clause in a contract has provided otherwise. Jones may refuse the silver certificate, but when you dig up the metal dollar they go unquestioned. There are 412½ grains and 1,000 of them weight 58.92 pounds.

Treasury notes of the act of 1890 are legal tender to their face value in payment of all debts, public and private, unless expressly stipulated in the contract.

Strictly speaking, the United States notes or greenbacks are legal tender, with the exception of duties on imports and interest on the public debt. Practically, however, since the resumption of specie payment in 1879, greenbacks have been received freely and without question by the government.—Chicago Tribune.

THE BEST DOWER FOR THE BRIDE.

"The character that a young woman takes with her in her marriage is her eral dower. If her dower can be reckoned in money or property only, no matter how much it may be, poor indeed will be the husband and impoverished the children. But if she possess gentleness, love, purity and self-denial, together with intelligence and capability, she is in herself a treasure of treasures to all the members of the home circle."

This is true enough. The young woman who has the homemaking spirit brings to her husband a dower of immeasurable worth, and she who lacks it will never be likely to make her home the place it should be for herself or for others. There is a crying need of more real homemakers. Domestic discord will decrease as the homemakers increase. One is sometimes led to wonder how much of all this vaunted higher education of girls and women has enough of the homemaking element in it, and is the woman's club doing all that it might do to put more real homemakers into the world. Home is what the mother and wife make it. Of course, all of the responsibility is not theirs, but they lead and direct more than it is possible for anyone else to lead or direct, and they cannot relegate their duties to others. It was but the other day that the writer heard a young woman who is soon to be married say that she "just hated all kinds of housework" and that she "couldn't bear the sight of a kitchen." No doubt she was quite right when she said this, but she guessed there would be some "great housekeeping" in her home.

As this young woman is to marry a young fellow with a salary of $25 a week, and they are to live in a city in which they will have to pay a fourth of the husband's income for rent, he cannot afford to hire that uncertain thing we call "help," and if he had the wealth of a Vanderbilt he could not hire the home feeling that only the wife can give to the home. The best dower a young wife can bring to her husband is the willingness and the ability to make their home the place he has a right to expect that it will be.

Compromise.

The ladies of the audience rushed forward impetuously to kiss the lecturer.

He waved them off wearily.

"I do not want to seem ungracious," he said, "but if you think the price of admission entitles you to more than the address I'd rather give your money back."—Philadelphia Ledger.

BASIS FOR INDICTING CODINGTON, SAYS COURT

Supreme Court Justice Parker, in his charge to the grand jury at Somerville, yesterday, took up the matter of Joel Codington, treasurer of Warren Township, charged with embezzling the funds of the township. The court laid this case before the last grand jury, which failed to indict Codington on the evidence before the court, and carried over by Hugh K. Gaston as special master.

The court stated that Gaston was one of the most highly respected, able and impartial members of the Somerset county bar, and the report he had laid before the court, after several months of investigation, warranted the indictment of Codington either for embezzlement, or misdemeanor, or malfeasance of office. Justice Parker warned the grand jury that it was not a petit jury, and that it had no right to try the case, but simply to decide whether there was sufficient evidence before the court to place Codington on trial.

CHILD ASTRAY, TELLS OF ODD EXPERIENCE.

Rahway, Dec. 22.—Hilda Banks, thirteen years old, claiming to be from Carteret, near Freehold, was found wandering along the railroad tracks near the Pennsylvania Railroad junction below Rahway Monday evening, cold, crying and hungry. Mrs. John Hart, living nearby, took her in and cared for her, reporting the case to Chief of Police Wright yesterday morning. To a reporter Hilda said:

"I have been visiting my brother, George Banks, in Brooklyn, since Sunday. He put me on the train Monday to send me home. The conductor told me I must change cars at Trenton. He kept my ticket. When we reached here the brakeman said I must change cars. I cannot read nor write.

"I thought this was Trenton. My father ran away six years ago, taking also all the family money. My mother is paralyzed on her left side. She looks for me home today."

The railroad men in the Junction section are investigating the affair. Hilda missed a flier by only a few feet Monday, as she was pulled from the tracks as she was running across them to meet Mrs. Hart.

A Case Worth Trying.

Mr. F. Philander Towersby, a most excellent citizen, though not noted for his literary attainments, received recently a consignment of very rare Tokayer Ausbruch, says Harper's Weekly. He sent one bottle of the delicious wine to a justice of the Supreme Court, who happens to be one of the most eminent connoisseurs in America, and with the bottle sent a note asking his honor's opinion of the vintage.

Mr. Towersby received next day this reply:

"My Dear Sir—I beg to thank you for the confidence you repose in my judgment, as shown by asking for my opinion. But, inasmuch as I am a lawyer, many years of training and experience make it impossible for me to give an opinion on anything but a case."

Round Neck Theatre Frock.

The round neck will be seen often on the handsome theatre frock which the debutantes will wear, as it is a happy medium between the formality of the decollete evening frock and the conventional high-necked gown. With these frocks the large picture hats are worn, in general, topped with plumes caught by a handsome buckle or trimmed with some of the exquisite blossoms which make of the milliner's shop an artificial conservatory of rare value. The crepe meteors, cashmere de soie and its allies, silk nets and chiffon are all corraled for these theatre gowns, which are important additions to the wardrobe for theatre parties either with the prospective matinee or the supper to follow are a favorite form of entertaining for the debutante.

Baked North Pole.

Bake a sponge cake in an oblong pan and when it is cool split it into two sheets with a sharp knife. Have a square of cylinder-shaped brick of ice cream, around which the sheets of cake are wrapped. The cake sheets should project beyond the brick of ice cream for an inch or so. Cover the cake with a thick meringue and pack the ends of the brick with it. Then put in a hot oven for a minute, or until the meringue is just tinged with brown. Brown on a board covered with white paper, and when browned slip onto a platter and serve.

One Sleeve Only.

Not the least startling of the many autumn drapery ideas is the one-sleeved coat of chiffon that slips over the left arm and hangs over the right shoulder with many graceful folds. Indeed, the wrap is extraordinary, and ranks for the moment as a novelty pure and simple. Perhaps, as the season progresses, it may find its place and be accepted with a dress of a certain type.

TO LAY CARPET SMOOTHLY

Simple Apparatus Which Very Soon Will Be Considered Indispensable to Every Household.

The secret of the success achieved by the professional in laying a carpet consists chiefly of the use of implements which have not heretofore been altogether available for use by the amateur. This is not so any longer, for a stretcher and tackbinder and carpet stretcher, which functions are combined in a single implement of such simple and inexpensive construction that it will soon take its place among the household implements which are regarded as essential. This apparatus provides a third hand, which holds a tack in the right place for driving, while the carpet is stretched on the floor. It also obviates all danger of crushing the fingers with the hammer in the effort to drive the nail.

FOR HAM AND STEAK ROLL

Luncheon Dish That May Furnish New Idea to Some of the Readers of This Column.

One and a half pounds of bacon, one and a half pounds of steak, half a pound of bread crumbs, two eggs, salt, pepper, paprika and one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Have the bread crumbs finely made and pass them through a wire sieve.

Chop the bacon and steak and mix them with the bread crumbs and seasonings. This is best done with the hands. Beat up the eggs well and mix them with the dry ingredients, adding the Worcestershire sauce.

Have a pudding cloth wrung out of hot water and sprinkle it with flour. When the meat is lightly squeezed into shape, tie it up in the pudding cloth *like a roly poly. Plunge into a sauce*pan full of boiling water and boil for two and a half hours. Let it cool in the water, take off the cloth, place on a platter with a heavy weight on the top to press firmly together. This can be cut into thin slices.

Chicken or veal croquettes wrapped separately in paraffin paper will be found a good addition to the menu.

Hot Tamales.

The Mexican recipe for making hot tamales is to cook one of two chickens until tender. Remove all meat from the bone, shred it in the chopping machine and add to it the liquor in which the chicken has been cooked. This is seasoned with any desired condiments, especially red pepper, and thickened with cornmeal. The rolls are about the size of link sausage and they are wrapped in the inner husks of green corn. Tie the husks with strings at each end to secure them and boil them for three hours. It is best to taste the preparation before adding meal to note whether it is rich or needs more seasoning, allowing for the meal to be added, which will take up the sharp flavor.

Overcooked Food.

Much good, wholesome food is practically wasted by being overcooked. Overcooking is the principal objection to canned meats, because food that is otherwise excellent in quality has been spoiled in the process of cooking, and has, therefore, become practically unfit for use. Meat must be cooked to a certain point, but once that point is reached further cooking is down right waste of material, both as regards quality and quantity. Good food is often spoiled by too rapid cooking. Meat which is allowed to boil after the preliminary five minutes becomes hard, tough and tasteless, and is almost indigestible, owing to the hardening of the albumen all through the meat.

A Hint; Small, But Important.

Have you, by any chance leather chairs? And do your clothes, and the clothes of your friends, stick to them in damp weather? Well-made, expensive chairs should not do this, as it means that the varnishing has been badly done, but they occasionally do, and the cheaper variety are very likely to stick in this way. To prevent this happening, mix a mixture of ether and alcohol. Follow this by wiping off with a clean flannel dampened with pure chloroform.

Coffee Cookies.

One cup each of molasses, sugar and very strong coffee, half cup melted lard, two teaspoons soda dissolved in the coffee, two teaspoons cinnamon, and a little of two cups of chopped raisins. Flour enough for a moderately soft dough, and roll them quite thick.

Use for Cold Cream Jars.

Small cold cream jars and the like, if scalded make excellent containers for jelly which at some time or other you will desire to place in a lunch basket.

A LINEN PORTFOLIO.

Holland linen in almost any shade will work up into the most successful of covered portfolios, a delightful present for the artist, the photographer. And, indeed, who has not felt the need of just this sort of a case for sketches and prints, or even for unframed photographs and favorite pictures which accumulate?

A large square or oblong of good cardboard is covered with the linen; let us suppose it is Indian red in color. Against this is basted and overcast a facing of the same material.

The stitches are so close and fine they do not show, and they are thread, not silk, which is another reason for their being unnoticeable.

A second cover or lid of cardboard and linen is made in exact repetition of the first, and to the edge of this there are three flaps sewn.

These flaps, which lap over the contents of the portfolio, are lined with les heavy material than the boards themselves. Cardboard is too bulky and frequently the flaps are merely stitched with the doubling, and, again, they are but two thicknesses of the linen with their edges turned towards each other and overcast.

The covers of the portfolio are held together by a hinge, which is made of a black grosgrain ribbon one inch wide, matching two strips of ribbon which pass round the case and tie it together.

Upon the front cover, up in one corner, a single black letter, the initial of the owner, should be stenciled with dye.

A most practical present, and as acceptable as useful.

A BABY GIFT.

A gift of boxes for baby. Every *mother whose baby you want to re*member will appreciate a set of tiny white pasteboard pin boxes, bound together with ribbon.

First get two, four or six small boxes, drawer-shaped, and piling *them one upon another, tie them to*gether with a three-inch blue or pink satin ribbon, its allitted bow finishing the top. This will leave the fronts of the drawers open to view, and over these is to be pasted (with boiled flour paste, not glue) just enough turned-in satin ribbon to cover their fronts. On each drawer is sewed a tiny bow of narrower blue satin ribbon to use as handle.

Now, the decoration on the broad ribbon and on each drawer front is a spray of forget-me-nots, either painted on as a last touch or embroidered on with rococo ribbon just before the boxes are put together. Also there is a rich combination of gold-colored thread with light blue or yellow ribbon. Gold lace galloon has been used to bind round each edge of the wide satin ribbon after it has been bound round the boxes.

TO THE SHOPPER.

Shop early.
Don't be snappish.
Know your needs.
Others have trouble, too.
A roomy handbag is a necessity.
It is always best to have a list.
Small parcels should invariably be carried.
One must not resent sharing a saleswoman's attentions.
Only a person who decides quickly may expect exclusive attention.
One should avoid the C. O. D. process whenever possible.
In case of C. O. D. parcels invariably have right change ready.
Delaying deliveryman is unpardonable when their duties are so heavy.
One little annoyance or delay is small.

GIFTS.

Let them be suitable.
Let them express a thought.
It is not enough to expend "so much."
It is criminal to thoughtlessly give live animals.
No living creature should be given unless it is desired.
No living creature should be given unless the recipient will care for it.
Wearables should not be selected by fond relatives regardless of other items of the recipient's wardrobe.
In a word, it is "blessed to give," but it is much more blessed to give things that will confer real pleasure.

The Easiest Way.

A company of select colored artists were rendering a version of "Othello." The scene between the Moor and Desdemona had been reached, wherein Othello demands the handkerchief which he has given his wife as a wedding amulet.

"Desdemona," he cried, "fetch me dat han'kerchief!"

But the doomed lady only babbled of Cassio and her liege lord shouted again:

"I ast fo' de second time to gi me dat han'kerchief!"

Still the fair one parried the issue with talk of Cassio, and the lordly Othello, now thoroughly incensed, bellowed:

"'Woman, fo' de third and las' time I tell you to git me dat han'kerchief! Away!!"

And as he was just about to open his mouth again, a big, leather-lunged patron in top gallery shouted down at him:

"Fo' de Lawd's sake, nigger, why doan' you wope yo' nose on yo' sleeve an let de show go on!"—Judge's Library.

Constitutionalists Ads Pay.

STATE WANTS $138,000 AS TAX ON BIG ESTATE

Trenton, Dec. 22.—The question whether the State of New Jersey shall collect $138,000 collateral inheritance tax from the $7,000,000 estate left by the late Wesley Hunt Tilford, of New York, was debated before Justice Reed in the Supreme Court yesterday. The question was raised in the certiorari proceedings instituted by Henry M. Tilford, a brother of Wesley Hunt Tilford, and also his executor and testamentary legatee, against Samuel D. Dickinson, as register of the Prerogative Court.

Wesley Hunt Tilford made certain specific bequests in his will which were taxed under the inheritance laws of the State of New York, and upon which taxes have been paid. The residuary estate, consisting of stocks in New Jersey corporations, as well as stocks in corporations of other States, passed under the will to the brother, Henry M. Tilford.

The latter elected to take the *property which his brother had out*side of this State for the purpose of paying the taxable legacies, in order that the stock in the New Jersey corporations should sink into the residuum and finally pass to him who as a brother is exempt from the operating of the inheritance tax.

The matter applied to State Comptroller Henry J. West for a waiver to the transfer of the stock himself, which the comptroller declined to give. In order to test whether the executor could so marshal the assets as to pay all the debts and legacies out of the property in New York, and thus deprive the State of New Jersey of its proper share of the tax, Attorney-General Wilson yesterday appeared before Justice Reed, insisting that upon the assessment and payment of $138,000.

He was opposed by Malcolm G. Buchanan, of Trenton, representing Henry M. Tilford.

Attorney-General Wilson said that the real insistment of the executor is that the register of the prerogative court had no jurisdiction to levy the tax, the stock on which it is levied forms a part of the residuary estate and passes to a brother. Had there been a specific bequest of this stock to the brother, he admitted that no question could be raised as to the accuracy of the instalment. The executor, he continued, must have arranged that the stock in the New Jersey corporations should not be utilized in paying off the debts of the decedent or any of the specific legacies, for the purpose of avoiding a tax upon any part of the estate represented by the property in New Jersey.

FOUGHT BOYHOOD FOES AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS.

Paterson, Dec. 22.—Because Heller De Hamer was thrown in a pond in Holland, fifteen years ago, when he was a boy, Abram Van Winkle was so badly beaten Sunday when he met his childhood foe in Prospect Park Borough that he had to seek the aid of a physician. He caused the arrest of Heller De Hamer on a charge of assault and battery, and Abram Van Winkle, his brother, made a similar charge against Isaac De Hamer. The De Hamers were each admitted to bail Monday night by Recorder Baudstra.

The ducking incident was not forgotten when the De Hamers and Van Winkles emigrated to this country. When they chanced to meet Sunday, they engaged in a fierce battle, after a brief exchange of remarks.

THIEVES MAKE RICH HAUL.

Enter Heise Home and Get Valuable Jewelry.

The police in Elizabeth are looking for the thieves who entered the home of Louis Heise, 416 Clinton street, early Monday morning and looted the second story, getting away with $200 worth of jewelry. Peter Bickel, father of Mrs. Heise, was alone in the house at the time. He did not hear the thieves.

The front door of the house was forced, evidently with a heavy instrument. The contents of closets and bureau drawers were thrown promiscuously about the floor. The stolen articles include two watches, a gold chain and several rings.

Mr. McIntyre was taken to a hospital, and after being treated was sent to his home. Blood poisoning set in and death ensued. Mr. McIntyre was one of the best known glass men in South Jersey.

BESS MISSED MUCH

GREAT QUEEN HAD FEW LUXURIES OR COMFORTS.

In Her Day There Were No Chimneys, Wire Screens, Elevators, or Any of the Necessaries of the Present Day.

Our secretary of agriculture, Hon. James Wilson, recently declared: "The average laborer is now living better than did Queen Elizabeth in her time."

In many respects, yes. We have acquired a great many comforts that the good Bess never dreamed of. She had many palaces, but not one of them was fit for the modern family of moderate income to inhabit. They had big rooms and rugs, tapestries and the like, but in winter the fire places smoked and in summer flies and other pests abounded. There were no heating apparatus, no wire screens, no toilet apartments, no elevators. When the head of the state wished to take a bath a big tub was hauled in and in this she abluted.

When she set out on a voyage the vehicle, finest of its kind, was a big, springless, heavy, awkward, jolting contraption, without speed or any of the comforts. When she rode it was on a crude old forerunner of a saddle or on the pillion behind her lord treasurer or some other accommodating statesman. Shoes in those days were uncomfortable and poorly made. The postal service was poorly organized, and the telegraph and telephone were not invented. Cooking was done on a gross scale. Whole animals were roasted on spits, and great joints were carved or torn off and set before royalty in that shape as before callers.

There was no running water in the homes, and the old oaken bucket was the medium through which thirst was quenched.

They had a sort of ale or malmsey which was good enough for the times, but as Milwaukee had not then be*come famous and Kentucky was an* unexplored region, the very best ever never touched her royal lips nor lifted up her queenly spirits.

She missed a great deal. But withal she seems to have enjoyed life in her free and easy way. She had fawning courtiers and lovers and brilliant society. When times were dull she would give block parties, taking her friends over to the tower to witness the official elision of some former favorite's head.

There were no airships to distract her attention from her queenly duties. There were no automobiles to force her to gather up her right royal petticoats and scamper scared half to death across the streets. There were no trolley cars with strape upon which she was forced to hold when returning tired from a shopping trip. There were no trusts to fix at their sweet will the prices she must pay for what she wished or wear. She missed the breakfast-food age. She did not have to dodge any camera fiends whenever she went out for a constitutional, nor avoid moving picture takers when on her royal trips through her dominions. There were *no such things in those days as ap*pendicitis and pellagra. The awful bacilli and microbes which the scientists find nowadays in everything, from drinking mugs to kisses, had not come to warn us of death's ceaseless lurkings.

Taken all in all, while admitting that the well-paid workingman of today has very many comforts, we must insist that Queen Elizabeth had much to be thankful for and missed some things for which she should have been thankful had she only known.

Homesick for Tobacco.

"And to you I bequeath the dog," said a New York man who was going to London to live.

The family that had been commissioned to take care of the dog liked the dog, but the dog did not like them. By and by his dissatisfaction became so pronounced that the family passed him along to another friend of the expatriate. The second family was not so fond of the dog as the first family had been, but the dog did not mind their lack of affection. Apparently he had become used to the atmosphere that pleased him, so he settled down contentedly. One day the story of that dog's eccentricities was related to a man who knows all about dogs. The second family wondered why the dog had evinced such an unwelcome partiality for them.

"It isn't the people in this house that attract the pup," said the dog expert. "It's the tobacco smoke. His former master was a habitual smoker. The man, his clothes, his rooms, everything about him, smelled like one big cigar. *He liked it. No*body smoked in that house where he first lived. He missed the scent of tobacco. He wasn't satisfied till he got to another place where the air is blue with smoke."

Two Stages of Married Life.

"I have reached the 'wifeless breakfast' stage of our married life," recently remarked a husband. It was said as a joke, but the wife was quick to take up with the remark, and she asked the husband: "And do you know why, dear?"

"No," answered the husband laughingly.

"Because I first reached the 'newspaper at the breakfast-table' stage of our married life."

"Well said, dear," said the husband smilingly, and then he added seriously: "And justly, too."

And the wife-and-husband breakfasts were resumed. But the newspaper is now read on the trolley car!

CASE OF HYPNOTIST BEFORE GRAND JURY

At the opening of the December term of the Somerset County Court at Somerville, yesterday, Justice Charles W. Parker called the attention of the grand jury to the case of "Professor" Arthur Everton, a hypnotist, charged before the court with manslaughter for, as alleged, having caused the death of Robert Simpson, of Newark, a professional subject, while in a cataleptic state during an exhibition given by Everton at the Somerville Theatre several weeks ago.

Justice Parker said the case was so unusual that it would be wrong for the court to pass it by without a thorough investigation of all the circumstances connected with it.

Justice Parker briefly instructed the jury to ascertain by investigating whether it was a case of manslaughter or merely an accident. Justice Parker said that it was possible that Simpson's death might have been due to neglect on the part of Everton, but the jury must find that the defendant was guilty of a reckless regard for human life in order to indict him for manslaughter.

Justice Parker said that as far as the case had been related to him he saw no strong probability at the present time that Everton was guilty of manslaughter.

The jury will probably be in session for several days, and it will not be known until its final adjournment whether Everton, who is now out on $2,500 bail, will be brought to trial.

Public sentiment is against trying Everton, unless there is very convincing evidence placed before the grand jury that the hypnotist is responsible for Simpson's death. The trial, it is believed, would be one of expert testimony on hypnotism, that would be very costly to the taxpayers of Somerset county, who have only a passing interest in the principals, who are residents of Essex county.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The annual offering for Muhlenberg Hospital will be received at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Sunday.

Martin A. Korff, leader of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, is now organizing a similar musical body in the Elizabeth association.

Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor, will have charge of the prayer meeting at the First M. E. church, to*night. The service will be appro*priate to Christmas.

On account of this being holiday week, the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow night, instead of Friday.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, who was called to Denver by the illness and death of his brother, is expected to return in time to take charge of the prayer meeting at the Congregational church, tonight.

The prayer meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church this evening will be appropriate to Christmastide. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Rev. L. Dwight Thomas and Rev. J. D. Tildon will make short addresses. Rev. Dr. Zelle will be in charge.

The Sunday schools of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet at the latter church Sunday afternoon for a Christmas service. Two years have elapsed since the schools thus met, owing to the renovation which closed the church a year ago.

COURT HEREAFTER TO PICK GRAND JURY HEAD.

Before Supreme Court Justice Parker charged the grand jury at Somerville yesterday, there was an unusual action on his part which has caused much comment and is regarded as significant. In the first place the court, instead of Michael W. Scully, the foreman of the grand jury and the chairman of the Somerset county Democratic executive committee, into his private room for consultation. After which Mr. Scully came out and took his position at the head of the panel, and Judge Parker announced that in the future the court instead of the sheriff would select the foreman of the grand jury. Justice Parker said that it was the intention of the court to begin the practice with the present term, but after interviewing Mr. Scully it has been decided that there was no reason for his not serving as foreman.

After twenty-four jurors had been sworn, Justice Parker announced that Rev. George H. Bowers and Peter Zergrebel, both residents of Warren Township, would be excused for reasons best known to the court.

Philip D. Shannon and Frank K. Schwerkhardt were also excused at their own request for business reasons. This left the panel with the unusual number of twenty jurors, which went into deliberation at noon.

The officers-elect of Court Watchung, No. 3871, Independent Order of Foresters, will be installed Tuesday night, January 4, by a high court officer. A smoker will follow.

Miss Janet Randolph Grace, of New York, has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street.

MAYOR'S PARTING WORD

Samuel Townsend Delivers Farewell Speech at Borough Council Meeting.

MAYOR-ELECT MAKES REPLY.

Newton B .Smalley Pays a Tribute to North Plainfield's Retiring Executive—What Administration Has Done.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, in presiding over the Borough Council for the last time in his official career as chief magistrate of that municipality last night, complimented the members of the Council, Chief of Police George Weiss and force, Fire Chief Howard Woolston and department, Street Commissioner John Y. Barreit, Overseer of the Poor Fred Becker and the Board of Health, for their efficient service, co-operation and courtesy during his administration.

Mr. Townsend, in his valedictory, also reviewed the work accomplished by the Council. He referred to the preliminary work of the sewerage commission; commended the successful operation of the dog tax ordinance; called attention to the fact that the borough is in excellent financial condition and that the deficit had been converted into a surplus. Mr. Townsend said:

"We are meeting tonight for the last time in which I shall have an opportunity of speaking to you as your Mayor, and I feel that I would like to briefly review the past two years in which we have worked together and see what has been accomplished. For, myself, I do not claim that mistakes may not have been made, for no one can hope to be always right, and yet I do not recall at this time any important step taken that had I the last two years to liveover again I would act differently.

"It is a matter of regret that we are still without a sewerage system. You all know of the earnest work of the sewerage commission headed by W. J. Buttfield to effect an arrangement with the city of Plainfield for a joint plant. When this had to be given up immediate steps were taken to install a system of our own, and I am glad to say that the plans are now well advanced and that we can look forward to seeing work begun within the coming year. The economy made necessary by the condition of our finances has compelled the postponement of many needed improvements during the past two years, but it is gratifying to know the the financial condition of the borough is now good; that a deficit has been turned into surplus; that for the first time in many years we close the year with no unpaid notes outstanding; that a fine piece of work has been able to get them in all bill have been paid excepting what is due to the special school fund. We also have to pay our proportion, being ten per cent of the cost of macadamizing Greenbrook road, the bill for the latter improvement not yet having been presented by the county. There will also be a bill for council fees on sewerage matters. We have, however, assets in the way of collectable unpaid taxes that will more than cover these items.

"It is gratifying to recall some of the things that have been accomplished, among which I mention the following:

"The improvement of Greenbrook road by the county giving us a continuous stretch of macadamized road the entire length of the borough.

"The filling in and raising of upper Duer street.

"Wilson avenue that for years had been impassable, has been put in condition for travel, the expense having been partly borne by the property owners abutting on the street.

"The use of oil on our streets has been very satisfactory in keeping down the dust.

"The ordinance passed and now in force requiring all saloons to close at twelve o'clock midnight has worked most satisfactorily.

"The ordinance providing for the licensing of dogs has worked well. Under it we have issued licenses since May 20 last, for 257 dogs, the fees for which were all paid in advance. In the year previous there were only 137 dogs taxed, a considerable portion of which tax has not yet been collected.

"Early in the present year we published in book form a list of the individual assessments of all real and personal property. These were widely distributed and afforded an opportunity for every taxpayer to see just how his assessment compared with others. In this connection I want to praise the work of the committee of Nine, headed by C. W. McCutchen, who took up the work of reviewing the valuations, and through whose work and suggestions many irregu-

MISS LACEY BRIDE OF DR. H. H. LOWRIE

Miss Emily Lacey, of Franklin avenue, and Dr. H. H. Lowrie, of Park avenue, were married at noon yesterday at St. Stephen's church, Rev. Morgan Ashley, rector, officiating. The ceremony was witnessed by the families of the couple. Alfred Lacey, a brother of the bride, gave his sister in marriage. Following the wedding luncheon was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles Suhr, on East Sixth street, and later the couple left on a wedding trip. They will reside on Park avenue on their return.

The bride has been a resident of this city a number of years, having removed here from Dover. She has been an active worker in St. Stephen's church. During her residence here she has been cashier at the local office of the Prudential Insurance Company, and is held in high esteem by a large number of friends and acquaintances.

The groom is one of the best known practicing physicians in the city. In addition he is an examiner for the Prudential Insurance Company, and is also prominent as a member of the Independent Order of Foresters, being physician to Court Plainfield.

CLEANER CONCERN GOES TO THE WALL

Another one of the many infringers of the David T. Kenney vacuum cleaner patents has had its tombstone raised in the bankruptcy graveyard, in this case the "deceased" being the American Vacuum Cleaner Company, a concern which had confined its operations to Newark. When it passed away, the liabilities exceeded the assets of $250,000. Senator Johnston Cornish, who is well known as a music maker up in Warren county, as receiver, will play the requiem. The first and rites were in the United States District Court, in Newark, when three big creditors asked that the concern be declared a bankrupt.

The Vacuum Cleaner Company, of New York, was the corporation which came into existence as a result of Mr. Kenney's success in marketing his patents. Soon after many infringers got to work. In consequence there are a multitude of cases pending in the courts against the alleged infringers.

"It seems a pity that so much capital would be invested in an infringement," said Mr. Kenney today, "and not only infringe our patent but practically our company's name as well. A large number of such concerns have been organized since I made the machine and business a success. The Vacuum Cleaner Company has instituted at least a score of suits against these concerns and it is not to be doubted that the Kenney patent rights will be upheld and the infringers restrained.

MISS CRUIKSHANK FORMALLY INTRODUCED

Miss Helen Cruikshank, daughter of Simeon A. Cruikshank, of Belvidere avenue, was introduced to society at a charming reception and tea given yesterday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock at her father's home. During the afternoon nearly three hundred guests attended the reception and extended their congratulations to the fair debutante. The home was lavishly decorated with flowers, in harmony with the Christmastide and the social event.

Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton, Mrs. H. M. Stockton and Mrs. M. B. Lancaster, the last named of New York, received with Miss Cruikshank, and those who assisted in the dining room were Mrs. E. T. Wilson, Mrs. H. E. Butler, Mrs. W. B. Taylor, Mrs. W. L. Righter, Miss Constance Wilcox, of this city; Mrs. C. B. Andrews, of High Bridge; Miss Dorothy Treat, of New York; Miss Helen Reid, of Montclair; Miss Grace Battles and Miss Agnes Dunlap, of Philadelphia.

Following the reception in the afternoon, the receiving party remained for dinner, which was served by Holland, of Philadelphia. In the evening there was a dance, when a number of young gentlemen friends from this city and out-of-town were present. Miss Cruikshank received a great many floral gifts from relatives and friends. She is popular in a large circle of friends and her introduction into society was an auspicious one.

Sleigh bells jingled merrily last night, especially in the borough, where Frank Mobus piloted five parties to the rural districts.

P.S.R.C. RAISES WAGES

4,500 Trolley Workers Receive Substantial Christmas Presents.

AN EXTRA CENT AN HOUR.

Given In Return For Their Loyalty Says President McCarter—Plan Benevolent Order.

A substantial Christmas present in the form of a raise in wages was made to the motormen and conductors of the Public Service Railway Company yesterday. The directors of the company met in the Prudential building, Newark, in the afternoon and the new schedule of wages which had been under advisement for a long time was ratified by the board.

The action of the directors was entirely voluntary, no demand for more pay having been made by the men, nor was an increase anticipated by them at this time. The first intimation the men had that they were to get more money came to them at the car barns in Greenville, Orange and Paterson, where Christmas celebrations were held last night. At these affairs the word was given in the shape of a letter written by Thomas N. McCarter, which read as follows:

December 28th, 1909.

To the Motormen and Conductors of Public Service Railway Company:

It is a genuine pleasure for me to be able to announce to you at this Christmas season that the company, after long deliberation, has settled upon a new scale of wages, effective January 1st, 1910, which will be of great benefit to you all.

The new scale is as follows:

First year men, 21 cents per hour; second year men, 22 cents per hour; third year men, 23 cents per hour; tenth year men, 24 cents per hour.

1911—First year men, 22 cents per hour; second year men, 23 cents per hour; third year men, 24 cents per hour; tenth year men, 24½ cents per hour.

1912—First year men, 23 cents per hour; second year men, 24 cents per hour; third year men and upwards, 25 cents per hour.

In addition to the foregoing, the company has also decided upon the two following additional propositions:

First—An extra time allowance will be made to such men as volunteer for an additional trip after their day's work is finished.

Second—All men on the extra list who answer all roll calls, and perform the work assigned to them, for a period of a week, will be guaranteed a minimum wage of $10.50 a week.

I believe that this places the wage scale of this company upon the most satisfactory basis of any similarly situated corporation in this part of the country, and I rejoice that the company's increased prosperity, to which you have all contributed, makes this action possible.

The company also has under consideration the adoption of a benevolent plan for the benefit of its employes, which we hope to perfect during the coming year.

Of course it is manifest that the consummation of this benevolent plan, and the carrying into effect of the raises outlined for future years, can only take place if we continue to have the same loyalty and co-operation on the part of the employes which we have had in the past.

Extending to you one and all the compliments of the season, I am,

Very truly yours,
THOS. M. McCARTER,
President.

Copies of the letter will be posted in bulletin form in all the car barns today.

The present scale of wages is twenty cents per hour for first year men; twenty-one cents for second to fifth year men; twenty-two cents from fifth to tenth year and twenty-three cents for tenth year and thereafter. The over time allowance and minimum pay for extra men also come as a pleasant surprise to the men, both propositions having been made on the company's own initiative.

The positions of third vice president and fourth vice president of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, Public Service Gas Company and Public Service Railway Company were created by the directors of the respective companies and Randal Morgan was named as third and Colonel Anthony R. Kuser as fourth vice president of the respective concerns. Both Mr. Morgan and Mr. Kuser have been directors and members of the executive committee of Public Service Corporation since formation in 1903.

A quarterly dividend of one and one-quarter per cent. was declared by the directors of Public Service Corporation payable December 31 on stock as of record at the close of business yesterday.

HOW FREIGHT IS HANDLED

Discussed by G. Herbert Condict at Runyon Bible Class Association.

ELECTRICITY & TELEPHERAGE.

Europe Ahead of United States in Applied Methods, But We Will Improve.

The handling of freight in this and other countries is absorbing the attentions of engineers everywhere, the prime motive in it being the reduction of its cost. Under the old system of freight disposal the cost is excessive because of the necessity of double and sometimes triple handling.

The members of the Runyon Bible Study Class Association, of Hope chapel, listened to an instructive and entertaining lecture on this subject last night, given by G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of the Sunday-school. He is a well-known consulting engineer. Mr. Condict brought to the attention of his audience some practical ideas in connection with the problem of cheaper freight handling and demonstrated by stereopticon views how the work is done.

He compared the cost of handling the various forms of merchandise which passes over our great railway systems every day in the year and showed how, by the use of electricity, this work will soon become a pastime in comparison. Mr. Condict said that the cost in the United States under the present methods would average 37½ cents per ton while in Europe, with the aid of electricity, the same thing can be done for from 1 to 3 cents per ton, and the cost by telepherage is reduced to a mere fraction of this cost.

After the lecture Mr. Condict was heckled by questioners in the audience and responded gracefully to all the questions hurled at him. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer at the close of his address and refreshments of coffee and cake were served by the entertainment committee.

The association will hold a bowling tournament at the Hartridge bowling alleys on Tuesday, January 25.

MISS EDITH GRISCOM ONE OF SOCIETY'S BUDS

Miss Edith Griscom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Griscom, of 33 Sycamore avenue, this borough, was formally introduced to society at a charming reception and tea given at the home yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. The reception was largely attended, there being more than two hundred guests calling throughout the afternoon.

The home was beautifully decorated, there being a profusion of dark red Richmond roses, while the spirit of the Christmas season was evidenced also in the floral arrangements. Miss Griscom received a large number of floral gifts, including roses, violets, carnations, white narcissus and plants. The debutante was showered with congratulations.

Mrs. Griscom received with her debutante daughter, Miss Griscom and her married daughter, Mrs. Raymond W. Bradley, of Buffalo. Those assisting in the dining room were the Misses Catherine Titus, Susanne Wharton, Margaret Leal, Louise Saunders, Elizabeth Flanders, Ethel Most, of this city, and Edith Gorham, of Germantown, Pa.

Those who poured tea in the dining room were Mrs. Jacob VanDeventer, Mrs. Augustus VanDeventer, Mrs. Andrew N. Selter, Mrs. Eugene Hatch and Miss Anne Kip Miller, of this city.

The guests began arriving soon after 4 o'clock and from that time until after 6 o'clock the house was thronged with people. Everyone evidenced the spirit of Christmastide and the reception was a brilliant one in every respect.

DOLLIVER FAVORS HOME

Borough Recorder Advocates That the State Care for Inebriates.

IN HIS REPORT TO COUNCIL.

Urges That Recommendation of Crimes and Dependencies Commission to Governor Fort Be Adopted.

Recorder Charles M. Dolliver, in his annual report, which was presented to the Borough Council last night, endorsed the recommendations made to Governor Fort and the Legislature by the Crimes and Dependencies Commission for the establishment of a State home for inebriates. Mr. Dolliver in his report states that personal observation of police cases in the borough during his administration has led him to advocate the adoption of the findings of the commission.

The total number of arrests in the borough during the year was 315, a majority of which were due to drunkenness. The amount of fines collected was $575.25. In support of his opinion on the proposed home for inebriates, Mr. Dolliver said:

"I have been honored by the appointment of Recorder of this borough for the last three years and it has been my privilege to observe something of the petty offenses which have come before the borough police court during that time. If you will allow something of a digression from the usual report, I should like to briefly state some of my observations. The most of the police court cases, the so-called petty offenses, come from too much intoxicating liquor. Those charged with drunkenness or disorder brought about by an over indulgence in drink, are of two classes. The habitual and the occasional tippler. While there are many strangers arrested for drunkenness, tramps, who are roving and those without any permanent residence, yet the majority of cases are those who live in the borough or the city of Plainfield.

The Crimes and Dependencies Commission, appointed by the Governor a year ago, recommended that there be established a State home for inebriates, where men and women may be sent for treatment by modern methods for advanced cases of the liquor habit. Such an institution to which habitual inebriates would be committed by magistrates, would be a blessing to the community and the poor unfortunates themselves. Commitment to the county jail has no terrors to those who are hardened. Two or three trips end the effect of the punishment and the committed magistrate has gone to the end of his rope. The State, which recognizes a duty to the consumptive, the epileptic and the insane, ought to more surely feel the responsibility for those who have contracted the disease of drink. Especially when in a way to satisfy the appetite is legalized and licensed by the State, I thoroughly endorse a State home, ment and a reasonable amount of where there would be discipline, treatment and a reasonable amount of good hard labor in the open air, together with encouragement and sympathy.

"The occasional inebriate, the man who is arrested for the first time, needs friendship coupled with some restraint. He has some respect and benesh in all in many cases, there is a splendid fellow who is ashamed of his downfall and yet subject to the same environment just as soon as released. The extension of the probation system of restriction and brotherly love ought to be a source of aid to those who come before the desk for the first time. We have, though without authority of law, tried the system of probation in two cases during the past few months. This involves a weekly report at the police station on Saturday evenings and an understanding that intoxication will end the matter and let the punishment fail. I am glad to say that there has been excellent results and that I believe the men are striving to conquer their old habit. We have excellent laws for the children and youth in the juvenile court and probation system, and those who form a large part of our police court cases should be also considered and included in that system. Little does the average citizen know of the police court and the cases before it until he investigates. And while the progressive community of the borough of North Plainfield has a record of god order, yet we are a part of a commonwealth where the problems of the petty police court case in the aggregate, is a question of importance and should be considered by all thoughtful citizens."

SEVERAL HUNDRED GREET A DEBUTANTE

Miss Hope Ivins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, of Hillside avenue, was formally introduced to society yesterday afternoon, when a reception was held at the home of her parents from 4 to 7 o'clock. Several hundred guests, including nearly all of the younger society set of the city and borough, called during the appointed hours and showered their congratulations on the debutante.

Miss Ivins was the recipient of a wealth of beautiful floral gifts, pink roses and carnations being favorites. The home was attractively decorated for the occasion with flowers, appropriate also to the Christmastide season.

Receiving with Mrs. Ivins and her daughter, Miss Ivins, were Mrs. Charles E. Brooks and the Misses Wait, of New York. The young women assisting in the dining room were the Misses Carolyn Martin, Louise Booth, Lillian King, Marguerite Carpenter, Helen Timpson, Dorothy Fisk, Mary Runkle, Edith Mellick and Bessie Tweedy, of this city; the Misses Elizabeth Stewart, Miss Beatrice Fofburgh and Mildred O'Brien, of New York; Josephine Roe, of Pottstown, Pa.; Margaret Wiley, of Orange; Marion Ditman, of Englewood, and Ella Norcross, of Boston.

Following the reception and tea, a dance was given for the debutante at the Park Club and was continued until a late hour, with an intermission at midnight for refreshments.

IGLEHART, JR. CLEARED AS A CO-RESPONDENT

The sensational divorce suit, Martin against Martin, which has been before Judge Crane for the past two weeks in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, has come to an end. Edwin E. Martin sued his wife for an absolute divorce and named seven corespondens, of which F. C. Iglehart, Jr., was named as one.

Judge Crane dismissed the charges against Iglehart, Jr., stating that there was no proof of wrong-doing nor cause for complaint so far as he was concerned. The court reserved its decision as to the other five corespondents.

For three years Mr. Iglehart was the baritone in the choir of the First Presbyterian church here. During his residence here he made many friends, who were glad to hear that the charges made against his character were without foundation.

Counting His Troubles.

Troubles never come singly and Lewis C. Van Ness will testify to the accuracy of this trite axiom. During the past few Christmas day parts of Mr. Van Ness' factory was blown down, and this morning the cylinder head of his engine was blown out causing damage to the amount of $750. He hopes the third event of a calamitous nature will hold off for a little while, but is still courageous.

Received Their 1910 Hudsons.

Mr. John W. Kirkner, of West Seventh street; Mr. A. C. Allison, of Metuchen, and Mr. Wm. Hann, of East Front street, have just received their 1910 Hudson cars purchased from Thompson Auto Co. ***

MISS PEDEFLOUS UNHURT IN EXCITING RUNAWAY

Miss Pedeflous, daughter of Henry Pedeflous, of Washington Valley, had a narrow escape from injury in a thrilling runaway in the borough yesterday afternoon. Miss Pedeflous, while rounding Giraud and Myrtle avenues in a cutter, made a short turn. The sleigh came in contact with a curb and loosened the shafts from its fastenings.

One of the shafts dangled against the horse's hind legs and frightened the animal. Miss Pedeflous, in trying to check the horse, was pulled over the dashboard and hurled in a pile of snow, but was unhurt.

The horse continued its flight on a zig-zag route until it reached Somerset street. A delivery wagon of Frank Rickert, the local expressman, which was standing in front of Henry Haurand's store, blocked the progress of the horse in its journey up Somerset street. The animal plunged into Chatham street and fell against Haurand's building. Mr. Rickert held the horse until the arrival of Chief of Police Weiss.

The animal sustained several slight cuts in its fall. Miss Pedeflous, after arriving on the scene, went to Campbell's livery, secured another sleigh and returned home none the worse for the exciting incident.

FALLS LENGTH OF STAIRS

Aged Frederick Gray Tumbles on Unlighted Theatre Staircase.

IS IN A SERIOUS CONDITION.

Dr. Dundon Puts Twelve Stitches in Scalp of the Injured Man.

Frederick Gray, 82 years old, of 884 Hillside avenue, lies in a serious condition at his home as a result of a fall sustained yesterday afternoon while down town.

Mr. Gray, after getting a shave at a West Second street barber shop started to go to the smoking room of the Plainfield theatre. The light was not turned on, and while going down the stairs, Mr. Gray lost his footing and fell eighteen steps. He fell headlong and landed heavily on the floor, inflicting a large gash in his forehead.

The fall rendered Mr. Gray unconscious in which condition he remained two hours. Dr. A. H. Dundon, the theatre physician was summoned and he attended the injured man.

Twelve stitches were necessary to close the cut. Mr. Gray's eyes were also blackened and he was also weakened by the loss of blood.

Soon as the injured man was reasuscitated he was removed to his home in an cab by Dr. Dundon, Sergeant John Flynn and Patrolman Birmingham. Dr. Dundon stated this morning that unless any internal injuries develop, or symptoms of concussion of the brain appear, Mr. Gray stands a chance of recovering.

Mr. Gray is a large man, weighing about 225 pounds, and the shock resulting from the force of the fall was largely due to him being rendered unconscious.

STATION AGENT DENIES HE HAS BEEN DERELICT.

Relative to the account appearing in The Daily Press yesterday regarding alleged discourteous treatment to passengers at the Grant avenue station on Sunday night, C. M. Drake, the agent, registered a denial of the charges today. Mr. Drake said:

"The closing hour of the depot is 6 p. m. on Sundays and I wish to state that the station was open for the convenience of the passengers who were waiting for the same train as myself.

"There was no meeting or game of cards going on as stated. There was no demand on the part of Officer Sweeney to open the station, as he was on the inside with the crowd.

"There is absolutely nothing to the claim of Rev. C. W. T. Attlee as I never had any call or sale for a ticket to Keyport.

REV. J. Y. BROEK TO VISIT NETHERWOOD CHURCH.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will go to the Netherwood Reformed church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, where he will deliver a special message to the congregation relative to the organization of the church by the classis on Wednesday night, January 5.

At the conclusion of his talk he will be taken by some means of rapid transit to Trinity Reformed church, where he will take charge of the special Christmas services and give a talk appropriate to the occasion.

COURT FINES FIGHTER JUST TEN DOLLARS.

For fighting last night on Watching avenue, Jack Callahan will have to pay into the city treasury the sum of ten dollars or go to the county jail for twenty days. He and Andrew Benford mixed it up in a snow bank near Fourth street at 9 o'clock last night and Patrolman Nolan had something of a time getting both men to headquarters.

As Benford was acting on the defensive and was not under the influence of liquor he was allowed to depart with a suspended sentence by Judge Runyon this morning.

Presbyterian S. S. Xmas Party.

TO LAUNDER LACE CURTAINS.

The first thing in order is to shake free from dust. If put into hot water while full of dust they will never be anything again but a dingy gray. Next mend any torn places or patch carefully by darning over a piece of bobbinet or an old piece of curtain saved for just such purposes. After the curtains are mended soak in warm suds for an hour, then squeeze and slop between the hands until clean, but do not rub on a board. After this they may be scalded, rinsed, blued, starched lightly while wet and dried as quickly as possible. No blueing is required for the popular ecru lace. If they bleach in washing the color can be restored by dipping in a coffee bath, weak or strong, according to the shade desired. This is done, of course, before the starching. A good curtain starch is made as follows: Take a large clean dishpan and throw in it a half cup or more of starch, according to the number of curtains to be treated. Add enough cold water to mix to the consistency of thin cream, then pour boiling water in a thin stream over the starch, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Add a few drops of kerosene oil or stir with a sperm candle kept for this purpose. Dip the older curtains in first, then follow with the rest. If you have a patent curtain stretcher half the bother of doing up curtains where they must be dried on a sheet stretched on the floor, will be saved. Be certain in pinning the scallops on the stretcher so that each one is caught with a pin, or if some must be skipped do so at regular intervals. It is a good idea to attach them in pairs, pinning the scallops of the two curtains together. Place the stretchers upright in the air may blow upon them. If the day is bright and warm several pairs of curtains may be affixed to the stretcher at one time.

GROWING OLD.

A little more tired at close of day;
A little less anxious to have our way;
A little less ready to scold and blame,
A little more care for a brother's name;
And so we are nearing the journey's end
Where time and eternity meet and blend.

A little less care for bonds and gold,
A little more zest in the days of old;
A broader view and a saner mind,
And a little more love for all mankind;
And so we are faring a-down the way.

A little more love for the friends of youth,
A little less zeal for established truth;
A little more charity in our views,
A little less thirst for the daily news;
And so we are folding our tents away
And passing in silence at close of day.

A little more leisure to sit and dream,
A little more real the things unseen;
A little nearer to those ahead,
With visions of those long-loved and fled;
And so we are going to where all must go,
To the place the living may never know.

A little more laughter, a little more tears,
And we shall have told our increasing years;
The book is closed, and the prayers are said,
And we are a part of the countless dead.
Thrice happy, then, if some soul can say:
"I live because he has passed my way."

Sensible or Silly?

It is a little difficult to answer the query that has come to us but lately, "Are we sensible or are we silly?"—"we" meaning women, for it was spoken in connection with the styles. We see ourselves, perhaps, in a most serious shirtwaist, but we aren't "the whole show" by any means, and we observe the passing pageant in its hat, any hat, every hat, from last season's peachbasket onward to the tricorne, but our lips are sealed; we can't reply, but we'll try to make up a pleading answer a little later, when the winter hat is perched on every feminine pompadour and when the silliest or the "sensible-est" has been adopted.

Knew All About It.

"Look here, young man, don't you talk to me that way!" exclaims the man outside the ticket window in the station, relates Life.

"Whatjasay?" growls the ticket agent.

"I say you've got to be more civil to me. I'm here to spend my money for a ticket and I demand prompt and courteous attention."

"Say, wallagota do about it?"

"I'll do plenty."

"Any wattakaw about that?"

"I know enough! I used to be a ticket agent myself—and you'll lose your job the same way I lost mine if you don't get busy and get better."

With trembling fingers and apologetic speech the agent then waited upon the irate stranger.

HIS LOVE NOT REAL ARTICLE

Protestations Proved False When Woman's Wit Put Glib Admirer to the Test.

A reporter ventured on John D. Rockefeller's seventieth birthday, to question him about his very remarkable present, a jar of petroleum butter, the latest by-product of Standard Oil that the remarkable Standard Oil chemists have evolved.

Mr. Rockefeller, however, would not discuss the petroleum butter. He shook his head, laughed, and said:

"Young man, I am ignorant about this butter. I am as ignorant as the man in the fable.

"There is a fable, you know, about a man in an eastern city who followed a lady about the bazars and shops a long time. Finally she turned and said:

"'Why do you follow me?'

"'Because,' he answered, 'you are very beautiful, and my soul goes out to you in love.'

"The lady smiled and said:

"'But I am not half so beautiful as my sister there.' She pointed to the fountain in the square. 'Look at her, filling her water jar. She is a vision of loveliness. Go, then, and make love to her.'

"The man took the lady at her word. He hastened to the fountain. But the maiden filling the jar there was very, very ugly, and he returned and said, angrily:

"'Your sister beautiful! Why did you tell me such a falsehood?'

"'Ah, but why,' said the lady, 'did you tell me a falsehood first?'

"'But I didn't,' said he. 'When,' he added, 'did I?'

"'When you told me you loved me,' said the lady. 'For if it had been true that you loved me, you would never have gone off to make love to another woman.'"

Britain's Gift of Peace.

The indispensable foundation for the working out of any principles of government is internal peace, and peace is the greatest of the blessings that British rule has bestowed upon India. The ravages of invaders, the horrors of civil war between state and state, race and race, creed and creed, have utterly ceased. An occasional clash between Mohammedans and Hindus, easily and promptly quelled, is nowadays all that disturbs the tranquillity of a continent once the unceasing prey of strife and disorder. But beneath the peace imposed by British power the old hatreds and passions are still straining, and it is a curious example of human inconsequence that the Bengalis, who have done most to impair the strength of the British Raj, and who have ever agitated for its abolition, would be the first to suffer were it to be overthrown.—From Sydney Brooke's "British Rule in India" in the Century.

No Danger.

Much sobered by the importance of the news he had to communicate, youthful Thomas strode into the house and said, breathlessly:

"Mother, they have a new baby next door, and the lady there is awful sick. Mother, you ought to go right in and see her."

"Yes, dear," said his mother. "I will go over in a day or two just as soon as she gets better."

"But, mother," persisted Thomas, "I think you ought to go right away; she is real sick, and maybe you can do something to help."

"Yes, dear," said the mother, patiently, "but wait a day or so until she is just a little better."

Thomas seemed much dissatisfied at his mother's apparent lack of neighborly interest, and then something seemed to dawn upon him, for he blurted out:

"Mother, you needn't be afraid—it ain't catching."—Cosmopolitan.

Good at Addition.

Sammy's mother talked to him long and earnestly about the poor marks he had been getting in his work at school. She painted in alluring colors the career of a little boy who studies his lessons and gains the love and respect of his teachers. She went even further; she promised him a whole dime, all for his own. Sammy seemed impressed.

That afternoon he returned from school fairly dancing with joy.

"Oh, mother," he shouted, "I got a hundred!"

"Sammy!" cried his delighted mother. She hugged him and kissed him and petted him and—gave him a dime.

"And what did you get a hundred in?" she finally asked.

"In two things," replied Sammy, without hesitation. "I got 40 in readin' and 60 in spellin'."—Everybody's.

Knew All About It.

"Look here, young man, don't you talk to me that way!" exclaims the man outside the ticket window in the station, relates Life.

"Whatjasay?" growls the ticket agent.

"I say you've got to be more civil to me. I'm here to spend my money for a ticket and I demand prompt and courteous attention."

"Say, wallagota do about it?"

"I'll do plenty."

"Any wattakaw about that?"

"I know enough! I used to be a ticket agent myself—and you'll lose your job the same way I lost mine if you don't get busy and get better."

With trembling fingers and apologetic speech the agent then waited upon the irate stranger.

THROUGH COMBAT TO VICTORY

Strong, Vigorous Character Arrives at Fruition by Wrestling With and Overcoming Obstacles.

It is the wrestling with obstacles and the overcoming of difficulties that have made man a giant of achievement.

If we could analyze a strong, vigorous character, we should find it made up largely of the conquering habit, the habit of overcoming, says Orison Swett Marden in Success.

On the other hand, if we should analyze a weak character we should find just the reverse—the habit of failure, the habit of letting things slide, of yielding instead of conquering—the lack of courage, of persistency or grit.

There is the same difference between a self-made young man, who has fought his way up to his own loaf, and the pampered youth who has never been confronted by great responsibilities that would exercise his powers and call out his reserves, that there is between the stalwart oak which has struggled for its existence with a thousand storms, with all the extremities of the elements, and the hothouse plant which has never been allowed to feel a breath of frost or a rough wind.

Every bit of the oak's fiber has registered a victory, so that when its timber is called upon to wrestle with storms and the fury of the sea, it says, "I am no stranger to storms; I have met and conquered my like before. I feel within me stamina and fiber to resist the fury of any sea, because I have fought and overcome its equal a thousand times."

The hothouse plant succumbs to the first adverse wind.

AS THEY DO IT IN ENGLAND

Family Inherited Postmastership, Though the Department Officials Didn't Know It.

Forty years before, as quite a boy, Jones had left a little town in Kent. Now, on the first long vacation he ever had had since, he was visiting his childhood scenes. He had remembered that the postmaster's name was Pengelley, and he had remembered, too, that he was kindly old man. There wasn't the slightest probability, he thought, that the postmaster was still alive, but his acquaintance with the former incumbent might smooth things a little with the new one, so that the whereabouts of people to whom he had been directed would be made known.

"What's become of Mr. Pengelley?" he asked, interrupting for a moment his majesty's letter assorter.

"I am Mr. Pengelley."

"Perhaps you're his son."

"Yes, my father's name was Pengelley, too," drawled the Englishman.

"I mean the postmaster."

"So do I."

"Was your father postmaster 40 years ago?"

"My word, no! That was my grandfather. You see, our names are all alike, and the post-office department doesn't know but that the first one is alive. We inherit this job, don't you know. And my wife's just presented me with a son. There was no haggling over his name."

Music, Birds and Snakes.

Exceptional love of music would redound to the credit of any other living creature but the instinctive if refined taste, but in the maligned snake even this artistic attribute is a mark of derogation. Our own Quakers, for example, take up and indorse the diatribe of Ephanius against the flute-players. Nevertheless the figure that the player makes in blowing. Does he not bend himself up and down to the right hand and the left, like unto the serpent? These forms hath the Devil used to manifest his blasphemy against things heavenly, to destroy things upon earth, to encompass the world, capturing right and left such as lend an ear to his seductions." And so on. But not a word do we hear in condemnation of the unregenerate birds that carol heedlessly even while the minister is painting the horrors of an unmentionable place.—North American Review.

Cheering Her Up.

Islington, which is no longer rural, was subject to extensive if medical meat that they sent their patients there after severe illness. Many also went there in the last stages in the forlorn hope that the invigorating air might restore them to health. A story related by Dr. Abernethy turns on the latter class of visitors. One of the patients engaged some rooms in Islington, and casually remarked to the landlady that the banisters on the staircase were very much broken. "Never you mind, ma'am," said the landlady, "it's no use to mend them, for they always get broken when the undertaker's men bring the coffin downstairs."—London Chronicle.

Intelligence in the Kitchen.

The higher the intelligence and the broader the education of the woman in the kitchen, the greater the pleasure and satisfaction in household duties.

The woman who cooks intelligently is commanding great and mysterious forces of nature. She is an alchemist behind an apron. At her command food constituents that are indigestible, unpalatable and even poisonous, are subjected to chemical changes that render them an epicurean delight. The woman of real intelligence and powers of imagination finds in her well ordered kitchen a source of deep and enduring interest and pleasure.

GOT A LITTLE SATISFACTION

Editor, Unable to Collect Bill for Paper, Could Afford to Affront the Widow.

To the editor of a little Maine newspaper there came the other day an indignant elderly woman, who waved a bit of paper in the editorial face.

"Lookee here!" she said. "What does this mean—a bill for the Citizen to my husband that's been dead two years? Ye don't expect his widow to pay debts o' his contracted long after he's dead?"

"You say he has not been getting the paper?" said the editor, after long thought.

"No, ye donderhead!" screamed the woman, "I tell ye he's been dead two years!"

"Strango," mused the editor. "The postoffice department has not notified me of his failure to receive them. Quite sure you yourself haven't been enjoying the valuable educational values of a perusal of my sheet?"

"That ain't the point," argued the widow. "You've been sending the soospaper and a bill to a man that's dead. It's your affair, not mine.

"Well," said the editor, at last, perceiving that he must be a loser, "in future, madam, I will cause an extra copy to be printed on asbestos to insure that your husband receives his Citizen regularly."

TOAD EVIDENTLY A THINKER

Clever Maneuver by Which Batrachian Foiled His Inveterate Enemy, the Serpent.

The following snake story was told some years ago by a reputable citizen of Anson county: Driving along in his buggy one day he saw a toad frog crossing the road at top speed—hitting only the high places and few of them. As the frog disappeared in the bosky underbrush on one side a black snake in hot pursuit made its appearance on the other. The story-teller followed the two into the bushes to see what the result would be. He had proceeded only a short distance when he found the frog at bay, facing the snake and with the latter circling about in the effort to make an opening for a rush. His frogship kept turning all the time, always facing the enemy.

The reason of this maneuver on the snake's part was that the frog had in its mouth, held crosswise and about the middle, a stick about the size and length of a lead pencil. The frog knew the snake could not swallow him so long as he presented such a front. The man watched the performance for some time and when he left the snake was still circling the frog and the latter facing its enemy on every turn.—Charlotteville Observer.

A London Problem.

They are dealing with a psychological problem in London that is not on the cards. The "problem" is nothing less than a little baby boy in the Wickham workhouse, a scrap of a child only two years and four months old, who no sooner has to make any serious remark than he rolls forth such a string of unmitigated billingsgate that he petrifies all who hear him. He is stick about the size and child with dark, soulful eyes, soft fair hair, chubby limbs and the face of an angel. At ordinary times he is the best of boys, but does anything upset his equanimity he brings into play such a volume of foul language that he quite contaminates the infant ward. Where the baby learned to curse and swear is the question. It has been so far a mystery, as his antecedents are unknown, but the fact that the player makes in blowing. Does he not bend himself up and down to the right hand and the left, like unto the serpent? These forms hath the Devil used to manifest his blasphemy against things heavenly, to destroy things upon earth, to encompass the world, capturing right and left such as lend an ear to his seductions." WHY HE'S SO GOOD.

"There is a little boy in our neighborhood who never whistles."

"Most unusual."

"He never beats a toy drum, never uses a sling and never throws stones through window panes."

"Truly, a remarkable child!"

"Furthermore, he has never been seen to make faces at elderly people, never fights and no matter how many circus parades may be passing from time to time on a near-by street, he never runs away from home."

"I didn't think there was such a boy in the world. I should like to see him."

"Oh, his good qualities are very easily explained. You see, the boy I'm talking about is a marble boy, and he presides over a fountain on Mr. Bleeker's lawn."

He Was Real Mean.

Miss Golding—Here's your ring. I have decided that I can never be your wife, so the engagement is off and I shall expect you to return everything you may have in your possession that belongs to me.

Mr. Hamlin—All I have is a lock of your hair and photo. I don't suppose you care anything for the photo, but the lock of hair you will no doubt want to preserve as a souvenir.

Miss Golding—As a souvenir of what.

Mr. Hamlin—Of the time when you were a brunette.

The Sorrow of It.

The jokesmith sat at a table. On his hands he rested his head, and after trying to think a think this is what he said: "Alas, my brain tank's empty! All thoughts seem to have fled. It's funny I can't remember the jokes I think of in bed."

A TERRIBLE THOUGHT.

"I was just thinkin' how terrible it'd be if my birthday an' Christmas came on the same day. My!"

Wise.

And if you will
But take his stitch you'll do the same

His Mania.

Tjarks—What is Flyer doing around that rural legislator?

Bjenks—He's trying to lobby a bill. Flyer has the airship craze strong.

Tjarks—And what kind of a bill is he trying to lobby?

Bjenks—A bill to compel farmers to spread feather beds over their farms when they see an airship descending.

Stood the Test.

"Mamma, why don't you want me to play with that Rudger boy?"

"Because, dear, I know the family. He hasn't good blood in him."

"Why, mamma, he's been vaccinated twice, and it wouldn't take either time."

Realism.

Critic (as the composer plays his last piece)—Very fine, indeed. But what is that passage which makes the cold chills run down the back?

Composer—That is where the wanderer has the hotel bill brought to him.

Coeducation.

"But," asked the first coed, "why did you elect to take up the study of German instead of French?"

"Oh," replied the other, "the German professor was so awfully handsome, you know."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Hardly.

"Here is a list of the hundred worst books."

"I'll bet you one thing."

"What?"

"The pocketbook isn't mentioned there."

Kitchen Repartee.

"What's the matter?" queried the dish pan. "You look as if you had that tired feeling."

"Yes, and I feel it," replied the coffee mill. "I had another turn this morning."

He'd Help.

Caller—Sir, I am collecting for the poets' hospital. Will you contribute anything?

Editor—With pleasure. Call tonight with the ambulance, and I will have some poets ready.—Judge.

Short-Handed New York.

Bacon—I see that New York has 14,000 stenographers.

Egbert—Is that all? Looks as if New York might be short-handed.—Yonkers Statesman.

AN ANCIENT ONE.

M. Hamelin, the police magistrate of Paris, was the victim of a venerable practical joke on April 1. It began in the early morning with the arrival at his residence in the Avenue Henri Martin of several carts of coal, followed by a continuous procession all day of other vehicles conveying similarly unordered goods — five pianos, jars of cod liver oil, hams, mineral waters and vegetables—while among the visitors whose services were supposed to be required were an embalmer, a masseur, an undertaker, and half a dozen pedicures. Altogether 322 vehicles drove up to the house in the course of the day. Amid the confusion M. Hamelin went quietly to preside as usual at the police court.—London Daily News.

Particular About the Butter.

"Ma wants two pounds of butter exactly like you sent us last. If it ain't exactly like that she won't take it," said the small boy.

The grocer turned to his numerous customers and remarked, blandly:

"Some people in my business don't like particular customers, but I do. It's my delight to serve them and get them what they want. I will attend to you in a moment, little boy."

"Be sure to get the same kind," said the boy. "I lot of pa's relations is visiting at our house, and ma doesn't want 'em to come again."

A Tale of Tennyson.

Tennyson was once dilating to a friend on the charms of a pipe before breakfast.

"It is the most delightful smoke of the day," said he.

"Yes, yes!" replied his friend. "The first sweet pipe of the awakened bard!"

Thereby making a reconstruction from Tennyson's own works, needing the change of but one vowel.—Harper's Weekly.

Startling.

"Yes, our table is always up to date," boasted the landlady. "We have those beautiful red candles on it at supper time."

"Candles for supper!" gasped the prospective boarder. "Madam, do you think I am an Eskimo?"

SAGE ADVICE.

Johnny—The boss said that you would pay this little bill to-day.

Mr. Hunks—You mustn't believe all people tell you.

For Titles.

Count Boni's coming boat to hunt,
Financed, no doubt, by money sharks,
And he will find as he once found

Getting Ready for the Opera.

"Aren't you ready, dear?" he called upstairs.

"Not quite," was the wife's reply.

"It ought not to take you so long to put your hat on."

"I'm not going to wear any hat."

"Well, it ought not to take you so long not to put one on!"—Yonkers Statesman.

From Different Viewpoints.

Anxious Mother—I cannot permit you to have such late callers. It was after 11 o'clock when Mr. Huggins left last night.

Pretty Daughter—Why, mamma, I don't see how you can class Mr. Huggins as a late caller. It was only 7:10 when he came.

Parental Wisdom.

The Friend—Your son graduates from college this term, I believe?

The Father—Yes.

The Friend—Going to set him up in business, I suppose?

The Father—Not right away. I'm going to send him to school awhile first.

As Amended.

His Wife—Charity covers a multitude of sins, they say.

Her Husband—Yes, it certainly does—especially when it begins at home.

The Ruse That aFiled.

Tompkins had just dropped a half-penny in front of the blind beggar to see if he would pick it up.

Beggar—Make it sixpence, guv-nor, an' I'll forget meself.

"Ah, but how many rings can she show?"

Encouragement.

"Miss Emma, I love thee."

"Well, now you are down on your knees you may as well tie my shoe laces."

WASHING DAY IN ENGLAND.

Washing-day! Everybody knows it!

Yet even that day of sharp tempers has its quaint side, says London Answers. It is a matter of importance on which day of the week the family washing is done. There is an ancient rhyme, known to country washerwomen, which says that the first three days of the weeks are good days for the doughty:

"Wash on a Monday,
You have all the week to dry;
Wash on a Tuesday,
Very night;
Wash on a Wednesday,
A very good day;"

Thursday is doubtful:

"Wash on a Thursday,
But clear it all away;"

But do not leave it later. The remaining days are unsuitable:

"Wash on a Friday,
Wash for need;
Wash on a Saturday,
Shame indeed."

There are other washing-day superstitutions. In some Cornish villages—and particularly these where the men get their living by toiling on the sea—there still lingers a very old superstitution against any washing on the first day in the year, lest some member of the family be washed away very soon afterwards. No dirty water must be thrown away on that day at all.

The washerwoman has her ancient rights. She had a legal triumph a little time back when her privileges were threatened by the authorities of the suburb of Ealing—London's premier suburb, as it calls itself. For rather more than 140 years washerwomen had had clothes-posts on Ealing Common, and week after week the civic eyes were offended by the sight of garments hanging to dry in the breezes that sept the common. At last the Town Council determined to do away with the eyesore, and issued a summons for the purpose; but the chivalrous magistrates dismissed it. No doubt, they said, some old-time lord of the manor had given the women the right, and it could still be exercised. So Ealingites can still have their linen on show.

The discomforts of washing day at home are illustrated in a well-authenticated story of a Scotsman who left his Highland village to spend a day in London, primarily to lay a grievance before the King. For some reason—doubtless red tape—he could not obtain an audience, and returned home much discomfited. On his return he was wrestled by his friends to tell what had happened.

"Can you no' tell us?" they persisted.

"Ooo, well," said he at last, "'twas like this. The King just says, to me, says he, 'Ye see, Geordie, I'm sorry I cannot ask you to dine to-night, for, ye ken, Geordie, it's the Queen's washing day; but I'll see to your case.'"

It was a satisfactory reason, for, of course, no one could receive visitors on washing day, as every village appreciated.

FALSE ALARM VOLCANOES.

Volcanic eruptions are not infrequently reported from regions where they are geologically impossible, says the San Francisco Call. Several years ago the formation of an active crater on an Alpine summit was announced. The cause was only a forest fire on one of the lower peaks. Recently in France the papers told of an eruption in an abandoned mine shaft near Mont Hoge. Huge, thick clouds first rose from the shaft and a fine, warm dust soon began to fall over the surrounding fields. Soon flame were seen to issue and stones rained on the neighboring houses, whose terrified inhabitants took flight. An investigation led to the conclusion that all this was due to an explosion of firedamp in the old mine.

Eruptions of the same sort have occured in our own country. In one of the canyons of the Santa Monica Mountains, near Los Angeles, a volcano, we are informed by the local press, recently broke out.

Similar reports in the past have always been traced to fires in the oil-bearing shales that abound near the surface and are found in the region, and investigation has shown that this latest "volcano" is of the same nature. The locality is about 200 yards from the sea at a point about twelve miles from Los Angeles, where sulphurous smoke rises from a little mound of miocene shale. A little below the surface of the ground is almost red hot and sets fire to bits of wood that are stuck into it.

The fire seems to have been started by lightning, or perhaps it is a case of spontaneous combustion. The region is soaked with petroleum and it is not necessary to have recourse to any theory of volcanic action for an explanation. As the nearest oil wells are fully ten miles distant the incident probably will have no unpleasant consequence.

Opened Store in the Market.

William H. Moorehouse and Frank Wagner, under the firm name of The Wm. H. Moorehouse Company, have opened a store at the North avenue entrance to the city market for the sale of cigars, tobacco stationery and novelties.

Rather Looked That Way.

"I am convinced," said the proprietor of the jeweler's shop, as the plate glass window shivered into a million fragments and the chauffeur and his machine began to nestle behind the counter, "that the tarbuh has come to stay."—London Globe.

THE NEW FAD.

Once we rode horses
And thought they were fast;
But found that their fleetness
Was not to us last.
Then steam drew our coaches,
O'er land we go,
And wondered however
We traveled once slow.

But into our living,
Our peace laying waste,
Came leaping and bounding
The Spirit of Haste,
Into his car boreless,
He tossed us with glee,
Nor unless we were breathless,
Content could we be.

But to dash through the ocean,
To race o'er the land,
Are joys our tastes jaded
Not now understand,
A swifter progression,
We feel we must try,
So the world's getting crazy
To learn how to fly.

THOSE SUMMER MEN.

He—Do you read fiction during the summer?

She—No; but I listen to it.

Putting on Airs.

They're getting stylish,
I'm afraid;
Their hired girl
Is now a "maid."

Had Nothing to Say.

The stranger had been compelled to linger twenty-four hours within the gates.

"Well," queried the landlord of the village inn, as the stranger was settling his bill, "what do you think of our place as a summer resort?"

"I'd hate to tell you," answered the stranger, as he picked up his grip. "Even what I think of it as a last resort would not look well in print."

Those Car Windows.

George Washington never told a lie because he was cautious.

One day, on a railroad train, a lady asked him to open a window. Instead of saying, "Certainly, I will, madam," George said, "I will try."

George did try, and, of course, you know the result.

But his reputation for veracity was still safe.—Yonkers Statesman.

Looking After Business.

"I like this flat very well," she said.

"I will be very glad to rent it to you," replied the landlord.

"But we have two children?"

"They need not interfere with you and your husband having the flat. I have a house two blocks down the street which you can rent for the children and the nurse!"—Yonkers Statesman.

MANY EXCUSES.

Tall Office Boy—Dat new kid is stuck on his people. He's always talking about his forefathers.

Short Office Boy—Four fathers? Gee, what a lucky kid! In de baseball season think how many grandfathers he must have.

In Cupid's Court.

Judge Cupid at the prisoner
Did look somewhat askance;
"You stole a look," he said, "your guilt
Is patent at a glance."

The Sequel.

Tourist—What's going on around here?

Chief Umbrella—Umph! Poor Lo have big meeting. After meeting have dog feast.

Tourist—Oh, I see. After the powwow comes the bowwow.

An Unnecessary Word.

Yeast—I understand the Abyssinian wife is the head of the house.

Crimsonbeak—Why try to waste time by introducing that word Abyssinian?—Yonkers Statesman.

Familiar Taste.

Farmer Ryetop—You seem to enjoy those fresh vegetables.

Summer Boarder—Yes. It is an acquired taste. You get them from the same store up in town that we do.

Expected Back.

Prisoner—Can I speak with the convict Smith for one moment?

Jailer—No, he has just left after finishing his time. But ask me again in about a week.

FROZE SOLID DURING NIGHT

Rushing Mountain Torrent Silenced in a Few Hours by the Intense Cold.

Running water is usually the last thing to freeze solid, and when it does so, the cold must be extreme. J. Claude White, in the Wide World Magazine, gives the following description of this very rare occurrence—the freezing of a mountain torrent in a single night.

The phenomenon was one that I have never before experienced—a running river frozen solid in a night! When we arrived the waters of this stream, tumbling over the great boulders and rushing through the tortuous channels, made a deafening roar. Gradually, but almost perceptibly, the tumult decreased, while, worn out after a hard day, we fell asleep.

A few hours later, when we awoke, a deathly silence prevailed, and on looking out, to my intense surprise, I found that the rushing torrent of the previous night had been transformed into a solid mass of ice! In this region of extreme temperatures I had on other occasions seen torrents frozen, but never under such startling conditions. On looking round, we found that everything we possessed was also frozen solid, including our saddle of mutton, which was merely a block of ice. We were ravenous, but we got no satisfaction from gnawing at lumps of rock which ought to have been a succulent joint, and so, despite our hunger, we had to content ourselves with a little tea—to make which we melted ice—and a few biscuits.

EXAMPLE OF PERFECT FAITH

Mexican Lover Believed Sweetheart's Story Before Evidence of His Own Eyes.

For the past week the physicians in charge of one of the sanitariums here have been dealing with one of the most puzzling and obstinate cases of eye trouble ever brought to their notice, declares a Puebla (Mexico) correspondent. Their suspicion that the subject was nothing the matter with his eyes was confirmed to-day by a naive confession made by the patient.

The man's name is Estanislao Reis. He stated that he lives at Cholula and shortly before coming here he was shocked one evening, upon passing the house of his novia, to see her kissing a very dandily dressed stranger through the bars of her window. Fearing that he might cause a scandal by interfering, he retired quietly, and later in the evening returned to speak to the young lady about it. She denied the matter emphatically.

"But I saw you with my own eyes," he maintained.

"Do you believe your dulce or do you believe your eyes?" she demanded triumphantly.

"I believe my dulce," he answered. There was a hearty embrace and he came here immediately to have his eyes treated.

At the Half-Century Mark.

Youth is eternal to him who believes in eternity. To me youth means anywhere from eight onward. I was an exceedingly old person at eight and I trust I violate no confidence when I confess a youthful exuberance now that I have bumped against the half-way post. Fifty is a splendid time for youthful expansion; one's fancy still retains all its ingenuity while one's judgment is bettered by experience. When sitting on the 50 milestone the vane of man's vision points southward to the past and northward to the future with a minimum of oscillation. Rancorous thought and splenetic expression give way to a quieter, more and calmer view, and the mellow lighted vista of the years that have gone soften the heart of the youth of a half century of years.—John Philip Sousa in the Circle.

Dresden China.

Judging by your recent note, writes a correspondent, it seems that the geographical knowledge possessed by girl typists is about on a level with that possessed by the damsels who represent the postmaster general behind the counters of our suburban post offices. Having occasion recently to telegraph funds to a town in Germany, it became necessary for the clerk to consult the post office guide. After a long and fruitless search, I ventured to suggest that she was not likely to find the town I wanted in the section devoted to the celestial empire, where she was looking. "Not under China" she retorted superciliously. "You said Dresden, didn't you?"

Labor That Aids the World.

It is true that all wealth comes from labor, but not necessarily from labor by the hands. The thinkers of the world have added inestimably to its development. It was a portrait painter who invented the telegraph, a college professor who produced the telephone, and the list might be extended almost indefinitely. It is well that to-day, with all our indulgence in rest and play, that we remember that it is intelligently directed energy of whatever kind which makes man better and helps along the world to the millennial dawn.

CHRISTMASTIDE GAIETIES

Teas, Receptions, Dances and Other Festivities of the Season.

SOME ARE FOR DEBUTANTES.

Bridge Whist, Dinners, Luncheons and Other Social Functions Announced.

Gaities claiming the attention of society folk during the present week began with the dance at the Park Club house Monday. Tuesday teas were given for the introduction into society of Miss Edith Griscom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Griscom, at her home on Sycamore avenue; Miss Helen Cruikshank, daughter of S. A. Cruikshank, at the home on Belvidere avenue, and of Miss Hope Ivins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, at her home on Hillside avenue. A dance will follow the tea given for Miss Ivins.

Thursday evening Miss Gladys Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Peck, of Myrtle avenue will give a dance at the Park Club house. Friday night the Charity Ball for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital will be held at the Hartridge School auditorium, preceded by the play "The Climax" in which Effingham Pinto has scored such a great success.

Besides these large functions and the festivities of New Year's day, there are many smaller parties for dancing and bridge, luncheons, teas and dinners. The week will be a busy one for those fairly launched on the social stream.

The luncheon and reception which was announced for Monday at the Plainfield Country Club for two of the season's debutantes, Miss Hope Ivins and Miss Lillian King, had to be postponed owing to the fact that the storm made travel to and from the club impossible at that time. The affair was planned and was to have been given by Mrs. E. H. Booth, of Central avenue.

Several hours before the time appointed for the luncheon it was decided that traffic conditions would not permit of its being held. It was learned that not only the guests could not reach the club but it would be impossible to transport necessary articles there. The postponement was a great disappointment to the hundreds invited guests, but Mrs. Booth expects to arrange for another date in the near future.

LIVING OVER THE CATACOMBS.

Paris, in many of its districts, is built over the catacombs, writes Rowland Strong in Harper's Weekly. These vast subterranean chambers and galleries produce that peculiar cavernous sound which is heard in the Luxembourg, Montparnasse, Vaugirard, Montrouge and Montsouris quarters when heavy carts pass rapidly along the coarsely metaled roads. The streets are then like monstrous drums bealing funeral marches to the ravs over that vast ossuary grave of ten centuries of Parisians with its millions of skeleton dead.

That quaint little Gothic house at the corner of the recently prolonged Boulevard Raspail, which many an American artist must remember from his student days, actually has a private staircase leading to the catacombs from beneath a hermetically closed stone slab just in front of the doorstep. From time to time, cer*tain municipal official's visit this* grim entrance, the existence of which is known to only very few people.

A former occupant of the house, surprised by one of these visits, the reason of which was mysterious to him, was accustomed to relate that once in the dead of night, while he watched, quaking, from the room above, convinced that he was witnessing the final scene in some Borgia-like political tragedy, a party of men, the chief of whom wore half-concealed under his coat the tricolor scarf of a police commissary, had conveyed a body through this entrance into the catacombs below.

A few days later he was annoyed by a cask of human bones rising through the boards of his dining room floor. The nuisance was almost certainly attributable to a dead rat, but, to complete his discomfort, every morning at 5 o'clock an empty school omnibus belonging to the College Stanislas passed through the narrow street on its way to pick up pupils, rousing the thunderous and sepulchral echoes of the catacombs with such vibratory effect as to give him alarming palpitations of the heart. Being a man of imaginative temper*ament, he decided to transfer his re*sidence to the right bank of the Seine. He had also been much troubled by the noise of cats.

CHAIRMANSHIPS IN THE STATE SENATE

Trenton, Dec. 29.—Through the apportionment of committee chairships by the Republican Senators in caucus here Monday afternoon, a fairly good line on the Senate committee chairmanships for the 1910 session can be gleaned. Last winter former Senator Hillery, of Morris, had the naming of two committee clerks: Senator Frelinghuysen, one other, and Senator Ackerman, a fourth. By Monday's allotment these *counties will get no clerkship repre*sentation, the four "plums" falling, instead, in the proportion of one each to Cape May, Monmouth, Passaic and Ocean.

The committees calling for these clerks are Judiciary, Corporations, Banks and Insurance and Revision of Laws. Just which of these clerkships each of the counties named will get will have to be settled by Senate President-to-be Frelinghuysen when the 1910 session opens. Senator Ackerman was made majority leader, and as such will be chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Ordinarily this carries with it also the naming of a clerk to this committee. This year, however, Mr. Ackerman is not to be allowed that opportunity, his colleagues satisfying him, instead, by giving him the selection of a journal clerk, a doorkeeper and a file clerk.

In the apportionment of the other clerkships it was noticed that Bergen county captured one, as well as a bill clerk and a clerk to the secretary. This is taken to indicate that Senator Wakelee will again land the chairmanship of the important bills" are usually referred and generally smothered. Last winter Mr. Wakelee had for his clerk of this committee Le Roy Vanderburg, and he will name him again, it is understood.

Camden county also captured a committee clerkship, which means that Senator Bradley will once more fill the chairmanship of the Committee on Appropriations, of which Harry M. Deane, of Camden, was the clerk last year.

Senator Minch, of Cumberland, was once more allotted a committee clerkship, all of which makes sure Mr. Minch's reappointment to the chairmanship of the Committee on Municipal Corporations, for which Robert Shepard was the clerk.

As this is his second year, Senator Gaunt, of Gloucester, will get a clerkship also and will quite probably be named as chairman of the Committee on Printed Bills, while Senator Brown, of Monmouth, won a committee clerkship, too, and will undoubtedly ask again for the chairmanship of the Committee on Public Health.

Senator-elect Lewis, of Burlington; Prince, of Passaic; Mathis, of Ocean, and Mills, of Morris, fared well in the apportionments. Mr. Lewis got an assistant sergeant-at-arms, one doorkeeper and one page. Mr. Mills captured a page, an assistant to the Senate secretary and an assistant journal clerk. Dr. Prince got a calendar clerk and a page, beside the committee clerkship mentioned, and Mr. Mathis, a clerk to the president and a page, as well as a committee clerkship.

Those who will probably be the doorkeepers for the next session, with the exception of Senator Lewis' choice, from Burlington, are Major Henry Atmore Frank L. Wallace, Cumberland; Gervas A. Hall, Salem; William A. Kline, Union; Ernest A. Schmidt, Gloucester. Daniel S. Cosgrove, of Cape May, will again be named a gallery keeper by Senator Hand, and Joshua Watson stands a good chance of being the Camden appointee to the post of cloakroom keeper.

Tuttle Walker, of Atlantic, will possibly be named again as an assistant clerk to the president, and Joseph Cahill, of Union, will be selected by Senator Ackerman for file clerk. The positions of assistant journal clerk, calendar clerk, clerk to the secretary and clerk to the president have not been filled yet.

After the caucus President Frelinghuysen announced that the Sen*ators had decided to let it be known* they did not want any flowers on the opening day. They expect to preside the houses in an oratorical form and wish them in no other shape.

It was, also, explained that the session would be a "short and sweet" one and that "reform" would have a chance in 1910. There were plenty of the Senators willing to verify this.

Senator Gebhardt, of Hunterdon county, has sent out an invitation to the Democrats who will serve in the next Legislature, to attend a caucus at his office in Jersey City on Thursday afternoon.

Works Both Ways.

"A man never knows how many friends he has until he gets into politics."

"True," answered Senator Sorghum, "nor how few he has until he gets out of office."—Washington Star.

Mrs. W. S. Decker, of this city, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Fritts, of Trenton, has returned to this city.

HARMLESS "HIGHWAYMEN."

From the nervous condition of Galvestonians resultant from recent assaults, burglaries and robberies, and rumors of other burglaries and robberies, many peculiar and amusing incidents have developed, says the Galverton (Tex). Tribune.

A few nights ago a well-known business man returning home from a singing society rehearsal about midnight spied what he believed to be two desperate burglars or highwaymen. He was making his way eastwardly on Broadway, when suddenly the forms of two negroes these two very suspicious looking characters might be plotting to hold him up. He was trying to whistle the thought out of his mind when, having walked another block, approaching close to another street intersection he spied two men in a crouching position beside a cluster of oleander bushes and in the background he saw the two wheels leaning burglarlike against the sidewalk curbing.

Quickly convening a council of war himself, while his heart ran up to 177 strokes a second, the W. K. B. man debated with himself whether he should retreat and be shot in the back or face the two highwaymen, who, with all loose change *and jewelry be sported. It was final*ly decided, and in less time than it takes to mention it, that the W. K. B. man should face the music even though his knees trembled slightly. My, what a state of affairs, what a Committee of the important world to permit a good citizen to be waylaid and punched and robbed.

The two negroes were still crouching and glistening in the faint light their victim could see pieces of steel —burglars' tools, pistols, bowie knives and other instruments of torture.

A silent prayer and the W. K. B. man stepped out to be slaughtered.

"Hello, boss!" came the salutation from one of the highwaymen, and the business man felt his courage creeping through his veins, and with an artificial naturalness he returned the greeting and stepping closer perceived that the two negroes were buckling on roller skates. Even while the white citizen stopped to shake his frame back in place the two darkies struck out and cut a few didoes on the spacious concrete sidewalk in front of the home of a prominent Galvestonian.

"You see, boss," exclaimed one of the darkies, "Washington Hamilton has been capturing all the prize money in the fox for fancy skating and Bill Jones and me concluded we would do a little practising while the night is cool on Mr. 's sidewalk."

The following day a sign decorated the sidewalk aforesaid, reading thusly: "Roller skating prohibited on this sidewalk." Evidently the darkies had skated some that night and perhaps other nights before the owner of the sidewalk was aroused to the situation.

PATIENT JAPANESE WOMEN.

Kanazawa, Japan, is noted for its production of habutae, a certain kind of glossy white silk. The annual output amounts in value to 2,000,000 yen, or about $1,000,000. In the manufacture of the habutae thous*ands of women are employed, who* work from early dawn till after sunset, each one at an old-fashioned wooden hand-loom. The motion of hands and feet to operate the noisy old machine, says The Spirit of Missions. The large number of women engaged in this monotonous occupation may be inferred from the fact that almost everywhere in town the peculiar clack-clack-clack, clack-clack-a-ta-clack, rather rapidly—of these weaving frames is audible.

About as many women are employed in the *manufacture of embroid*eries for the large wholesale and export stores in Yokohama, Kyoto and Kobe; but the life of the embroidery women is perhaps not so hard, not so confining as that of the weavers, for only are sometimes allowed to do the work at their own homes and are paid only by the piece. Still, the majority are hard-worked, having strict masters, who themselves are under contract to furnish goods to the large export houses.

This contractor hires, we will say, 100 women at their own homes and America would be considered a station wages. He requires them to work seven days a week while the daylight lasts, summer or winter, with only one hour's intermission for the midday meal.

To be sure it and home influence of such a woman, many of them mothers, must amount to very little; and yet, without a word of complaint, but with a happy face and a ready smile, she goes to her daily task and *works from twelve to four*teen hours for the pittance she needs for her family. If it were attempted to put revolutionary ideas into her head she would say: "It's the custom and it can't be helped."

Came Home to Roost.

fairies were corrected.

*"New maps for the use of the as*sessor showing the division of all property have been made taking the place of others that had been in use since 1897.

"Our borough ordinances have been printed in book form corrected to date.

"It has been our good fortune to have capable men in our various departments. Our borough clerk has given good service and has been ever watchful of the borough's interest.

"Our Chief of Police has been earnest and active in the performance of his duties while the men under him have given good service. We should feel proud of our police and of the fact that we have been so free from serious disorder and crime.

"Our Chief of the Department I can speak in the highest praise. The chief has been a good fire fighter. The captains, lieutenant and call men have done good work, and while the borough has been particularly fortunate in the absence of disastrous fires the credit is largely due to prompt action by the men of the department.

"For our street commissioner I must give full credit for the faithful and efficient manner in which he has performed his duties.

"For our Board of Health I can speak in the highest praise. To this body of men must largely be given the credit for our freedom from serious epidemics.

"The overseer of the poor in the performance of his duties has shown tact and wisdom.

"And now I want to thank you, the members of this Council, for the support you have given me during the past two years. With hardly an exception we have been of one mind on questions that have come before us, therefore to us as a whole belongs the credit or discredit for what has been done. For many reasons I shall feel genuine regret when our official relations cease. With the exception of one or two unpleasant incidents having no bearing on *my re*lations with you my official life has been an agreeable one. I have enjoyed the work and am happy in the belief that this administration has had the respect and support of the majority of good citizens.

"With this I will close, wishing you all success as you will work in the future as you have in the past for the best welfare of the borough."

Mayor-elect Newton B. Smalley, who occupied a chair alongside the retiring mayor, also joined in the felicitations of the occasion by paying a tribute to Mr. Townsend. Mr. Smalley said in part: "To occupy the office of Mayor is quite a task, and it is impossible to please everybody. I did not always agree with Mr. Townsend, but I found the easiest way out of it was to forget it.

"I have always looked upon Samuel Townsend, the outgoing Mayor, as one of the borough's best citizens. In union people he was an efficient, painstaking and hardworking official, and I hope to have his co-operation when I assume the office."

Councilman Woolston also made a few laudatory remarks concerning Mr. Townsend's administration, and on motion of Councilman Echols, the members of the Council extended a rising vote of thanks to the retiring Mayor.

Geer Out of Jail.

Charles Geer, who was lodged in the Somerset County Jail two weeks ago, in default of payment of a $30 fine imposed on him by Recorder Dolliver for cruelty to a horse, which was obliged to be shot, was released on Friday. The fine was paid by a philanthropic boroughite.

Funeral services of Mrs. Harriet Cooney, of Somerset place, were held at St. Mary's church this morning, when a requiem mass was celebrated by Father Bogan. Interment was made at St. Mary's cemetery.

The Timbo Social Club held its annual meeting last night and elected the following officers: President, I. Elliott; vice president, John W. Powers; secretary, Archie Davie; treasurer, Erwin Neighbor.

Shifting the Staffin'.

At a Christmas dinner in Washington a statesman who had been much in the public eye was called upon after the meal to make a little speech.

He arose, and began:

Make Your Hatpins.

For your dressy hats, why not make your own hatpins of lace? An old form can be covered with a crocheted medallion or lace flower. The stitches must necessarily be close in order to cover the foundation, but when an Irish lace daisy curls its petals over a hatpin you will pierce your crown with joy in the knowledge of having something homemade but new.

Miss Elsie Brown, of Newark, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

Robert Cuzen, of New York, is visiting his cousin, Allen Cuzen, of West Front street.

THEY MET BY CHANCE

By GEORGE EDGAR

They met at the seaside on a summer's day.

He wore a motoring cap and riding trousers. She—well, she was a composition made up of a big hat, a blouse, brown boots and a fringe.

As they met, they stared fixedly, each on the other. Without moving a muscle in any other part of his face, he winked, opulently.

And they passed, like ships in the night, card players, postmen and other things that pass.

He raised his cap—the motor cap—most politely; he bowed, still politely but not with grace; he sidled along by her side differentially; and he said "Ahem!" as if he had a whole shrimp in his throat—a live one.

She—she went very red. Also, she pushed her nose higher in the air and slightly forward, accidentally acquiring the Boston dip, which made her still more fascinating.

There was something electric in the atmosphere. She knew how full of feet he felt, and she smiled.

That gave him courage and he swallowed the shrimp.

"Didn't I see you at Lady Golightly's dance?" he asked earnestly.

She said, "Go way, man."

"I know you belonged to a county family as soon as I saw you," he ventured.

Her nose went further forward, but she answered never a word.

"Must have met you out with the Leamshires—hunting," he volunteered with a grin.

"You've got a face like a plate," she answered suddenly *apropos of noth*ing.

"Anyway, I've got a tongue in it," he urged, gently.

She sighed. "That's what I dislike about you—your tongue. You've got a tongue and can talk—that's where you have the advantage of the monkey."

He flicked his brown leggins with his cane.

She looked at him, critically, coldly, with a suggestion of contempt. "If you hadn't had a tongue I should have wondered where you came from. And I should have guessed—the Zoo."

They walked 50 yards in silence.

He was nearly frozen off, but he held on—if only to give her just a piece of his mind of which he really had not too much to spare.

He thought aloud. "No," he murmured; "it wasn't at Lady Golightly's dance I met you; nor the hunting." He seemed to be searching his mind. "I think I know—you came from the pickle factory, where they make the sauce."

She looked at him firmly, and was direct in her frank opinion.

"Herbert," she said, "you are the limit."

"I have no limit, not being a book*maker, and my name ain't Herbert."*

There was a tired note in her voice. "Somehow, men with faces like yours always look as if they were Herberts. You've got to be, see, and you are the limit. When it comes to talking of comes from, I'll just take leave to tell you I'm a lady, and I come from no pickle factory. I'm a laundress, if you must know. And if it comes to a guessing 'comes from,' I can tell from your face how you happened. You've not got what one could call a starting place. You've just simply occurred—sort of nightmare."

"Look here, Polly," he began again.

"Not Polly," she answered curtly.

"Ann, then?"

"No, nor Ann, nor Matilda, nor Lis*sie."*

"I know," he said, triumphantly—"Rose."

"Not Rose," she replied relenting. "Plain Margaret, that's my name."

"Not plain," he suggested—"not plain. Say—sweet Margaret, lovely Margaret, or—er, dear Margaret."

"You're a rare kidder," she answered.

He smiled and tried to walk like a soldier.

"Look here—I take all that back about the pickle factory," he began.

No answer.

"Excepting the sauce," he added. She tossed her head.

He thought awhile.

"You know I know you came from a *laundry all the time. I know by rea*son—you've got such pretty white hands."

"Do you think they are pretty?" she said, holding one up without reserve.

"Prettiest hand I've ever seen," he said, and held it for half a minute, looking pleased.

"Well, you've done," she urged plaintively.

"Want to hold it all the evening. I do," he said—greatly daring.

"Silly boy," she answered softly.

"But it's such a nice hand,"—this, softer still.

"I take back what I said about the face," she answered. "Seems to me, you've got rather a nice face, really."

"Not half so nice as yours," he returned gallantly.

"You are a dear, silly, little man," she gurgled.

"If loving you is silly, I'm—" he began.

"Well, dear little man, then," she admitted, almost readily.

"Of all the dear girls, you are—" From this point, for two hours, the conversation was simply idiotic drivel.

HABIT OF SWINGING THE ARMS.

Sir Victor Horsley, lecturing recently before the Medical Society, explained our habit of swinging the arms when walking, which he stated was quite unnecessary, as a relic of the days when we walked on all fours, writes a London correspondent of the New York Times. Then we had to use arms as well as legs. Although their use serves no purpose when walking upright, we still keep on moving all four limbs alternately or in progression. Sir Victor set forth some new facts concerning the functions of the cerebellum, the mysterious and little understood hind part of the brain.

"Primarily, the cerebellum must be regarded," said the lecturer, "as a sensory organ which has an important part in the correct performance of many of our automatic actions. Walking, standing and running are good examples of such actions which cannot be accurately carried out without a normal, well-balanced cerebellum. New-born animals cannot stand. They sprawl, and before they can stand, walk or run they must acquire this power. For convenience in life this ability to stand must be secured without the animal having consciously to think what he is doing. The fully developed cerebellum supplies the power unconsciously."

In proof of this Sir Victor pointed out that the cerebellum of a full-grown cat showed fully developed cells and fibres, whereas the new-born kittens the brain in the cerebellar portion is not yet organized into active nerve tissues.

FACTS ABOUT THE SEA LION.

The head of the sea-lion at close quarters, says Bonnycastle Dale in The Wide World Magazine, is a blunt, rough, savage brow. It is well armed for battle, the mouth being an eight-inch half circle, studded with two rows of great sharp teeth. The body is heavily coated with seal-brown hair, sun-bleacheed to light yellow on the back and sides.

The immensely long hind flippers have big, strong claws embedded in the flat upper surface several inches from the ends of the flipper. The fore flippers have the openings for these nails or claws, but in the particular female I dissected they were lacking.

The transparent wiry feelers about the jaw are much esteemed by the Chinese as toothpicks. About two dozen of these sensitive guards project from the upper lip. The ears are very small, not as large as a common cat's, and much depressed. The eyes are a deep, soft brown, but they can sparkle like flame in anger.

When the dissecting knife laid the skin back we encountered a heavy layer of fat-rich, oily and fish-smelling. The heart was very large, fully as big as a cow's, and the beast also covered four huge livers a foot and a half long. The meat is very red, and although eaten by the coast tribes, is too coarse and redolent of fishoil for any save a starving white. In fact, the whole beast has a most repulsive odor when in the sun. Freshly drawn from the water, this is not noticeable.

POLITICAL GOVT. ADDRESS

Miss Mary Thompson Reads Paper Before Equal Suffrage League.

LENGTHY DISCUSSION FOLLOWS

Mrs. Isaac L. Miller to Speak On "The Right and Obligations of Citizenship."

Miss Mary Thompson, of North Plainfield, read a paper before the Equal Suffrage League Monday at the home of Mrs. C. L. Illey, which is considered to have been one of the best articles yet placed before the members. Miss Thompson's topic was "How a Party Platform is Constructed." The original intention was to tell of the old political method of constructing a platform, but the topic was changed owing to the fact that the methods of today are the same as they were seventy-five years ago.

Miss Thompson said that the operations of a national political organization are based upon the same principles as those controlling the National Government. The principle of two-fold representation, i. e., representation of the people as expressed at the primaries through delegates, and representation of States as expressed in the State convention through delegates-at-large. That upon the policy of the primary depends the platform of the nation. That the women then as sometime electors and meantime influential members of the smallest representative unit, the home, should turn their time away from organized charity plans to the study of Government and the nature of their fellow man in order to insure the best timber and staunchest building of the platform which supports the nation.

The next meeting of the League will be held on Monday, January 24, at the home of Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, 744 Watchung avenue. Mrs. Miller will read a paper having for its title: "The Right and Obligations of Citizenship."

After the meeting yesterday tea was served by the hostess and a lively discussion of the topic introduced by Miss Thompson was indulged in.

THE ART OF MAKING FRIENDS.

Because of our modern system of luxury there are those who claim that the human race will longer exist, for the reason that it entails no sacrifices, writes Thomas L. Masson in Lippincott's Magazine. Our friends, or those who go by the name, are all mightily independent of us. Should they by any happy or unhappy accident of Fate, be lacking in any one thing, we may not supply it to them, *for if we do we run the risk of of*fending their pride.

If one of them is caught in the market, or is unexpectedly pinched for money, the opportunity to be of service is usually denied us, for the reason that we ourselves are pretty likely to be in the same case. The reason for this is that our modern society is so closely interwoven, that a moment's discomfort or embarrassment, btu because you are likely to come to know him too well. You are so used to your own peculiarities, your little, fatal weaknesses, that you come to accept them as a matter of course, and usually brush them aside when you are otherwise engaged. But with your friend it is different. His faults, like the flaws in the painting that is right under your nose, are the only things that you see.

So it is always safer and better, therefore, to be friends with some one who lives at a distance, and whom you can see only occasionally. Thus your feeling of friendship for him is always fresh.

The best friend is the man who, no matter how intimate you are with him, never becomes confidential. We would not impose our confidence upon a comparative stranger. Why should we do so with our best friend.

This is the real reason why friendships are so hard to achieve. The moment we come to know our friend, we insist on imposing on him.

On the contrary, we should always be on our best behavior with him. When he comes to realise that no amount of intimacy can break this down, he will permanently respect us.

MERCHANTS LOSE $25,000

Snowstorm Stagnates Business in City and Borough Trade Circles.

MR. GAVETT MAKES HEADWAY.

Street Commissioner Has a Force of Seventy-five Men at Work Cleaning Snow From the Streets.

Business in all the local stores, especially in the grocery and butcher establishments is stagnated on account of the snowstorm. A prominent merchant of this city stated to a reporter for The Daily Press today that the loss of business, as a result of the storm will easily approximate $25,000. The storm, however, gave many merchants the opportunity of having a breathing spell after a brisk holiday business. While the storm has caused a lull in business conditions, the storekeepers are as a rule thankful that the blizzard held off as long as it did.

Had it occurred twelve hours or even a day earlier, the windup of the holiday trade would have been paralyzed, and a big loss encountered by the dry goods establishments and toy dealers.

The big loss in business is due to the inability of storekeepers to deliver orders owing to the bad condition of the roads and also because customers are unable to reach the stores, especially from the outlying districts.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett is succeeding admirably in clearing the streets of snow in the business districts. At the present time he is concentrating his efforts in having Front and Somerset streets cleared. A part of Watchung avenue was cleared yesterday, and Park and North avenues will be tackled next.

Altogether about seventy-five men, twelve teams and thirteen single carts are in commission representing a daily expense of nearly $200 to the city. The work started Sunday afternoon with a few men and thirty-six men were at work yesterday.

In addition to the street squads, there are also three gangs at work clearing the sidewalks. This work was started in the center of the city yesterday afternoon and the gangs will be busy for several days. The expense of this work is covered by the general fund, and is charged to the property owners.

Tenants and property owners as a rule have been prompt in clearing their sidewalks, according to Mr. Gavett. The bad walks which have been neglected are almost universally in front of vacant houses and lots.

It is the expectation of Mr. Gavett to have the business part of the town in good shape by tomorrow night. Last year being a light winter the expense resulting from the light snowfalls was $660. The indications are that the present storm will double that amount for this year.

The storm had one good side. It was a big boon to the unemployed men of the city. As a rule, all applicants for jobs, were given work by Commissioner Gavett. To supply the extra demand for work fifty new snow shovels were purchased.

The arteries of travel are now operating on schedule including the steam and trolley service.

On Saturday morning, being the festival of the Circumcision of Christ, there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 10 o'clock in the morning at Grace church with an address, preceeded by shortened form of morning prayer. The Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson will hold a formal reception on New Year's day, and will be at home to receive guests between the hours of 3 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

AM. BIBLE SOCIETY MAY LOSE THAT HALF MILLION.

Unless the American Bible Society can raise $127,000 between now and next Friday there is a possibility that a $500,000 endowment gift offered by Mrs. Russell Sage, on condition that the society be able to set aside a similar amount, may be withdrawn.

Officials of the society admit there is small likelihood of raising the necessary sum, but hope Mrs. Sage will duplicate that which has already been subscribed.

Mrs. Noonan is survived by one son, Joseph, and three grandchildren, Madeline, George and James Noonan.

E. WILLIAMS WINS SUIT AGAINST WM. DARSCH

Judge William Newcorn has rendered his decision in the suit brought by Edward Williams, of Westfield, against William Darsch, of the same place, in favor of Williams, awarding the latter $140.50 damages.

Williams is a grocery clerk and was in the employ of a grocer in Westfield. He fell at the bottom of the cellar steps of Darsch's house and broke his leg. At the time of the accident there was insufficient light at the entrance to the cellar and Williams did not see a trench or drain which was just beyond the bottom step. He was carrying a bag of potatoes which weighed about 180 pounds and as he stepped into the trench the weight of the bag threw him to the ground, causing the injury.

Judge Newcorn in his opinion declared that the defendant, Darsch, did not use the necessary care in warning Williams of the trench and was therefore liable for the injury.

Francis J. Blatz represented Williams and W. A. Coddington appeared for Darsch.

CHRISTMAS DANCE AT THE PARK CLUB

The annual Christmas dance at the Park Club, Monday, was attended by nearly three hundred members and their friends, including a large number of out-of-town guests. The large auitorium was appropriately decorated for the event with roping of greens, while in the centre of the stage was a handsome Christmas tree, covered with attractive ornaments.

It was about 8:30 o'clock when the dancing started and this was continued until an early hour this morning, with an intermission at midnight for refreshments. Music for dancing was furnished by Muller's orchestra, of Brooklyn, and was one of the features.

The patronesses for the affair were Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. William McCutchen, Mrs. Townsend Rushmore and Mrs. Clifford W. McGee. The next event of interest at the club will be the junior dance on New Year's eve and the New Year's Day reception, which will be in charge of the entertainment committee. The New Year's day reception is usually a big affair at the club and this year it is proposed to make it better than ever.

TRAFFIC RULES CHANGED

New Regulations at North Avenue Station Early in January.

AN IMPROVEMENT PROMISED.

Mayor Acts Promptly on Complaint Made in Communication in The Daily Press.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, working with the councilmanic police committee, has drafted new traffic regulations to be adopted at the North Avenue Station and put in effect soon after January 1. It is proposed to have a simple diagram of the new idea printed and distributed generally among the cabmen as well as drivers of private carriages so that there may be no misunderstanding as to its provisions.

The proposed changes are a result of the recent letter by Albert H. Atterbury, published in The Daily Press, in which he complained of the present difficulty, the crowding in front of the station platform by owners of private carriages, as well as cabmen in general.

According to the provisions of the proposed new rules, private carriages, automobiles, etc., waiting for passengers, must stand in line at the west end of the station, with right side next the curb, the first vehicle not to stand beyond the west end of the main building.

Public hacks will stand at the east end of the station, left side to the curb and the first hack must not stand beyond the east end of the main building. A police pole will be placed at each of these points to plainly indicate the place and a lighted green lantern will hang on the pole after dark. The space on the curb between these points must be kept clear and vehicles will only be allowed to stand while receiving or discharging passengers.

All vehicles on arriving at the station must take a position at the end of the line and drivers must keep line closed up. As one moves out the line must close up. This must be observed both by private conveyances at one end and hacks at the other. After the line is filled hacks will stand in the street in present place, but must take their place in regular order on end of the line as vacancies are created.

Hackmen must take the first person applying and patrons are requested to take, as far as possible, the first cab in line. No hack will be allowed to wait for any special person in the hack line. These regulations are made for the good and convenience of all and every one is earnestly requestd to comply and assist the officers in seeing they are carried out.

Mayor Fisk has requested the police committee to furnish him with two of its best men to see that the new rules are strictly enforced and that no partiality is shown to either regular cabmen or drivers of private conveyances.

Lois Rogers Ill at Hospital.

Lois Rogers, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rogers, of "Highland Farm," is very ill at Muhlenberg Hospital with pneumonia. The child was taken ill about a week ago and was removed to the hospital Christmas Eve. Mr. Rogers, who made the trip to the institution in his sleigh, met with a mishap during the trip, having drifted so that his sleigh was upset several times and both he and his child were thrown out. The child has also been suffering from an abscess in the ear, necessitating an operation.

Killed After Quarrel.

David Slickwis shot Deneta Leleak in the head last Saturday night, killing him instantly. The murder occurred on a road three miles from Andover, N. J. Edward Dockery, a negro, gave the alarm, but, owing to the storm, the authorities were not notified until armed. They met after the shooting, and the murderer escaped. Leleak and Slickwis were employed on the Lackawanna "cut off" near Andover. They quarrelled Saturday morning, and on Saturday night about 6 o'clock left their boarding places armed. They met on a lonely stretch of road. Without any warning Slickwis shot Leleak three times, each of the bullets lodging in the victim's breast.

STATE WAGING WAR ON TUBERCULOSIS

Trenton, Dec. 28—During the past fiscal year New Jersey expended nearly $2,000,000 in caring for upwards of 10,000 inmates of its penal and charitable institutions. The exact cost of the penal and correctional institutions was $600,804, and of the charitable institutions $1,296,290, a total of $1,897,195. This is a decrease of $31,119 from the preceding year in the amount expended for penal establishments and an increase of $160,574 for the charitable institutions, making the net increase $130,455.

The total number of inmates in charitable institutions last year was 6,883, in penal and correctional institutions 2,583, and in soldiers' homes 754, making a total of 10,220 persons under the custodial care of the State. This was an increase of five over 1908, showing that the population of the State institutions in the aggregate has not changed perceptibly in the two years past. These figures, taken from the annual report of Commissioner George B. Wight, of the Department of Charities and Corrections, comprise only a small part of the immense data which has been collected by the department. The financial statistics embrace only the money which has been expended by the State and did not include expenditures by the various counties or municipalities.

The expenditures for penal and correctional institutions were divided as follows: State Prison, $279,650; Rahway Reformatory, $164,350; State Home for Boys, $85,308; State Home for Girls, $71,496.

The expenditures for charitable institutions were: State Hospital at Morris Plains, $291,875; State Hospital at Trenton, $210,650; county insane hospitals, $249,300; Epileptic Village, $132,700; Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Glen Gardner, $84,250; Home for Feeble Minded Women, $40,796; Home for Feeble Minded Children, $72,000; Blind Children, $15,000; Soldiers' Home at Kearny, $50,000; Soldiers' Home at Vineland, $59,819. Of these expenditures $35,000 were for improvements at the State Hospital in this city and $25,500 were for improvements at the Epileptic Village.

Dr. Wight reviews the work accomplished during the year at each of the State institutions and in most instances pays tribute to the methods employed in dealing with the State's wards. At the same time he makes a number of suggestions for betterments, calling particular attention to institutions whose needs have become most pressing. The work of the Tuberculosis Sanatorium comes in for attention in the report and in discussing the subject generally Dr. Wight says::

"The State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Glen Gardner is doing excellent work along the line marked out for it by law, but its object continues to be largely misunderstood by the general public. Constantly applications are being made by indigent and friendless patients suffering from consumption, and great is their disappointment when denied admission to the institution, but it is not a hospital, and cannot be under the law creating it. It is a Sanatorium for incipient cases, and those alone."

RECONCILIATION AFTER ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.

Despondent because he was separated from his wife, Wallace Gracie, twenty years old, of 176 DeWitt avenue, Belleville, attempted suicide Saturday afternoon by drinking the contents of an ounce bottle of chloroform. He was removed to the Newark City Hospital, where the doctors succeeded in saving his life, and Sunday he was reported much recollected, and when he leaves the hospital and explains his attempt on his life to the police, they will, according to Gracie, live together again.

Gracie took the chloroform while standing in front of 60 Clifton avenue. The man was unconscious when taken to the hospital, and a stomach pump was used to save his life. A note written on a leaf from a notebook was found in his pocket. It read: "This is a case of too much mother-in-law, the cause of my wife going back on me, the girl I cannot live without." The note added: "Send for my wife at once at 16 Highland avenue."

Two years ago Gracie and Miss Mabel Ecker were married, and resided with the young wife's parents. Several months ago they separated, the wife remaining with her mother and Gracie going back to live with his parents. Mrs. Gracie and her husband had a long talk yesterday, which resulted in the reconciliation. They have a baby several months old.

JERSEY CONGRESSMAN WANTS CLEANER MONEY.

When Representative William H. Wiley was in Congress three years ago he introduced a bill for "clean money" which did not get beyond the pigeonholes of the committee. At that time Representative Fowler, of Elizabeth, was chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, and as he was busy in his fight to get a bill of his own reported by the committee, he did not have time to look into the merits of Mr. Wiley's bill.

In the opinion of the major there is no reason why this Nation should not have as clean money as England and some of the countries of Continental Europe. It is the intention of the Congressman from East Orange to take up his "clean money bill" this winter, after his work as a member of the District of Columbia Committee is out of the way, and make an effort to have the committee give the bill the consideration it deserves. Major Wiley has the hearty approval of all of the Treasury Department officials, who would like to see the bill become a law.

LAWYERS TO CONSIDER JURY RECOMMENDATION

A committee of five members of the Union County Bar Association was appointed at a meeting held Monday morning at the courthouse in Elizabeth to consider the recommendations recently made by the October Grand Jury that the association devise some plan to eliminate the unnecessary time and trouble given to petty cases by the Grand Jury and the expense caused the county when these cases go to trial.

The subject was discussed at length. Former Chancellor William J. Magie told of the law still on the statute books which gives a person convicted of a crime the constitutional right to waive trial by jury or to waive examination by the Grand Inquest. At the time he was Prosecutor, he declared, more than forty years ago, the same trouble with petty cases was experienced by the Grand Jury.

The committee appointed at the meeting yesterday morning will report back at the annual meeting to be held the second Tuesday in January.

WOMAN DIES FROM EXPOSURE.

Falls in Paterson Street, Overcome by Cold and Fatigue.

Overcome by the cold and the exertions of climbing over snow banks on her way home, Mrs. Melissa Barborrow late Sunday night fell exhausted on the trolley tracks in Grand street, Paterson. A belated trolley car was approaching when Policeman Kearney saw the unconscious form.

Mrs. Barborrow was taken to her home, in Pine street, where she died within an hour. She was the mother of nine adult children and was sixty years old.

Victory perched on the Y. M. C. A. banner in three basketball contests Monday. The Loeser five, of Elizabeth, which was substituted as a result of the cancellation by the Montclair Y. M. C. A. team, proved a weak combination, the locals scoring an easy victory by the score of 61 to 8. The lineup:

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

Sometimes people become so lonesome that they want to howl like a dog.

There probably never was a red-headed boy who wasn't called "Red" by his companions.

If there were anything in hypnotism women would have used it long ago in controlling their hired girls.

No matter what you happen to believe, your deeds are going to attract a good deal more attention than your creeds.

Don't argue. You can't convince anyone, you will only make yourself angry and the man you argue with will hate you.

If a woman has real good hard sense she marries her daughters off with as good judgment as if she were selling a cow.

Probably the proudest moment in a boy's life is when he is allowed to pick out a suit of clothes without his mother going along.

Even the honest farmer is apt to collect the largest head of wheat when he is preparing a sample of his field. It is human nature and human nature isn't always so bad. When you are making a showing show the best you have; it prompts an effort to bring the whole crop up to the standard.—Atchison Globe.

PHILOSOPHER'S NOTEBOOK.

A green Christmas maketh a slim coalyard.

A frog in the pond is worth two in your throat.

A breach-of-promise suit is a poor substitute for a wedding coat.

The man who said, "Talk is cheap," never had to pay his wife's telephone charges.

There is nothing that will burn a hole in your pocket so quickly as a cool million.

If, as some poets have said, all life is music, the tramp must have been set to rag-time.

What a comfort it would be if the wolf at the door could be trained to chew up a few duns as they arrive!

There was a time when a hundred thousand dollars seemed like a good deal of money, and, come to think of it, it seems so yet.

It is not so much the love of money, but the inordinate desire of its possessors to get rid of it, that is at the root of many latter-day evils.—Harper's Weekly.

NEW TONGUE TWISTERS.

A London paper recently offered a series of prizes for the best "tongue-twisting sentences." The prize winning contributions are:

The bleak breeze blighted the bright broom blossoms.

Two toads totally tried to trot to Tedbury.

Strict, strong Stephen Stringer snared slickly six sickly silky snakes.

Susan shineth shoes and socks; socks and shoes shineth Susan. She cleaneth shining shoes and socks, for shoes and socks shock Susan.

A haddock, a black-spotted haddock; a black spot on the black back of a black-spotted haddock.

Oliver Oglethorp ogled an owl and an oyster. Did Oliver Oglethrop ogle an owl and an oyster? If Oliver Oglethrop ogled an owl and an oyster, where are the owl and the oyster Oliver Oglethorp ogled?

WITH THE SAGES.

It takes a wise man to discover a wise man.—Diogenes.

Who breaks his faith, no faith is held with him.—Du Bartas.

Nothing wins a man sooner than a good turn.—Robert Burton.

It belongs to human nature to hate those you have injured.—Tacitus.

The counsel you would have another keep keep first thyself.—Proverb.

Truthfulness is at the foundation of all personal excellence.—Smiles.

Our occupation is that which we select, our interruption is that which is sent us.

You may reform a hardened old reprobate, but a fool or a saint is a hopeless proposition.

WISDOM FOR THE UNWISE.

Most martyrs are self-made.

Riches are not always worth the price.

Poor relations should be seen and not heard.

It is a wise dog that knows when he has had his day.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

AROUND THE HOUSE

IDEAS FOR THE CONSIDERATION OF THE HOUSEWIFE.

New Model of Stove Should Be of Value—Plain Sort of Inexpensive Bed Linen the Best—Novelty for Baby.

Many a housekeeper is beginning to look about for a new range for the kitchen, to have it in by the time the cold weather comes. There is a new model which has a special kind of draft that is guaranteed to save 60 per cent. of one's fuel bill. Rather a consideration, in these days of high coal bills, is it not?

Gay Japanese dishes are pretty on the breakfast table.

When buying very inexpensive table or bed linen or towels, it is best to get the plainest sort, as any extra fancy work put into them means that the difference is made up to the manufacturers by using a poorer grade of cotton.

The Heppelwhite pattern is very lovely on silver dressing table sets.

Pineapple crystals is a dainty dish, made of one slice of preserved pineapple inside a round of transparent lemon jelly.

A novelty for baby is a hammock with sides, so that he may swing out under the trees on fine days, with no danger of his falling out and bumping his nose.

A useful new kitchen accessory is a frying pan of gray enamel ware, which far surpasses the old-fashioned sheet iron variety.

A dainty color scheme for a small bedroom is gray and white, with wisteria hangings.

There is a very convenient, well-fitted dressing table which may be packed for traveling.

There are little silver rings to set a tumbler in so that it will not leave a mark on the tablecloth.

An excellent new invention is a glass ice cream freezer. It is perfectly sanitary, as there is no tin or germ-absorbing wood next the ice cream. It greatly simplifies the preparation of frozen dainties, as the busy housekeeper does not have to stop or turn a crank. The glass is merely packed in ice and the cream when hard pushed out in a firm roll.

Silver and white dishes are indescribably dainty and cool looking.

To Iron Soutache.

You may be confronted with no little perplexity when ironing a linen frock with white or colored soutache braiding. First stretch the embroidered parts to remove all wrinkles and iron right over the braid to smooth it. You will not be pleased with the appearance of the braid beneath, but turn the garment, lay the embroidery upon a double or triple thickness of a white Turkish towel which will permit the braid to sink into its soft surface and the back of the linen can be smoothly ironed by passing a damp cloth over the linen, following it with a medium hot iron. Iron all parts perfectly dry or they will wrinkle again and be very unattractive. Iron embroidery scallops in the same manner and clip away loose threads that may escape from scallops or edges. A pair of manicure scissors is good for this purpose.

The Home.

A few shreds of candied orange peel will give a delicious flavor to a bread pudding.

Always use lard to grease your cake pans, as the salt in the butter causes it to stick to the pans.

It is better to wipe over meat with a wet cloth than to immerse it in water or let water run over it.

A sponging with a solution of one part ammonia to ten parts of water and salt to brighten the color of a faded carpet.

Don't light the kitchen fire unless there is water in the boiler. If not the rush of cold water is liable to crack the boiler.

If you want to keep your desserts on the top of the ice place a newspaper over the ice and your dishes never slip off or tip over.

Select a dozen or so of the smoothest and largest splints from the new broom and lay them away to use in testing cake when it is baking.

Don't fill an oil or any other kind of stove or lamp when it is lighted. This seems superfluous advice, but with the coming of cool weather cannot be too often repeated.

Meringue Hint.

A Baltimorean, whose home city is noted for its delicious creamy meringues, gives this direction for keeping the meringue shell from being stiff and hard.

The shells are filled with ice cream and packed in the usual way between sheets of waxed paper, but they are removed from the freezer 15 or 20 minutes before serving to give them time to mellow.

In serving for a family dinner a good time to do this unpacking is after the soup dishes are removed.

Baked Lettuce.

Cut the roots off a head of lettuce, wash it thoroughly without separating the leaves, tie the tops together and lay in a baking dish with about two inches of meat stock. Cover and bake for half an hour. Remove the head with a fork and place on a hot dish. Season the stock with salt and pepper and a small lump of butter, beat in an egg and pour over the lettuce.

COMMENDS PREVENTORIUM.

The Lakewood Preventorium, designed to save children from tuberculosis, which has aroused such bitter opposition in Lakewood, is warmly indorsed by Prof. Milton J. Rosenau, Professor of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene at Harvard. In a letter to Nathan Straus Dr. Rosenau writes:

"I see by the papers that you have given a princely gift for the establishment of a preventorium for tuberculosis at Lakewood, N. J. This is real preventive medicine, and I am sure will not only fill its mission, but will set an example which should be widely followed."

Dr. Rosenau was formerly Director of the Hygienic Laboratory of the Public Health Service at Washington, and it was under his administration that Dr. Stiles, one of his assistants, discovered the hookworm disease. Dr. Rosenau, with Dr. Walter Wyman, the Surgeon General, conducted the famous milk investigation, under President Roosevelt's administration, which resulted in the Public Health Service and the Agricultural Department declaring emphatically in favor of the pasteurization of milk.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 2, 1910.

Topic—Through this year with God.—Num. ix. 15-23; x. 11. (A New Year's consecration meeting.) Comment by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The march of the children of Israel through the wilderness from Egypt to Canaan has ever been taken as a type and symbol of the Christian's life in this world. The way to them was new, and they needed a guide, and God furnished them with one in the pillar which was cloud by day and fire by night. When and where it traveled the people of God followed; when and where it rested they rested. Back of "the pillar of fire by night and the pillar of cloud by day" was, of course, God Himself, and hence it was really He who led them. They went through that period of life with God, and so year by year we should advance under God's leading and guidance. Today we stand upon the threshold of another year, and we can have no better prayer for the new year than "Through the year with God."

In the study of this incident in the journey of the Israelites we can readily see why we should go through this year and through all years with God. But, preliminary, it may be well to notice the expression "with God." The topic says that we should go with God, not God with us. We often speak of having God with us. It is far more important that we be with God. We may want to go many places where God will not go with us, but need never worry about going anywhere with God. "Where He leads me I will follow" should be our consecration. Of Enoch, one of the two translated patriarchs, it is said, "Enoch walked with God," and not "God walked with Enoch." Therefore we may well sing and pray while we sing:

Oh, for a closer walk with God,
A calm and heavenly frame,
A light to shine upon the road
That leads me to the Lamb!

1. We should walk with God because He is a divine guide. No human being knows where the pathway of life may lead us in the year upon which we have entered. But God does. He alone is an infallible guide, and if we will but follow Him we cannot go wrong. It is true He does not place a visible pillar of cloud or fire before us, but He has given us His word, "as a lamp to our feet and a light to our path." The Bible is our chart and compass over life's sea. Therefore "search the Scriptures" and follow its commandments and you will be with God in the new year. Ask Him in prayer when in perplexity or doubt, and He will show you the true way.

Ask the Saviour to help you.
Comfort and strengthen and keep you.
He is willing to aid you;
He will carry you through.

2. We should walk with God because He is an ever present guide. Pastors, parents and human guardians cannot be with us at all times and in all places. If so, the moral and spiritual life of many young people who fall would otherwise be kept clean and pure. But God is an ever present God. When tempted and tried, listen to Him as He speaks to you through conscience. Remember that God sees you and is present to help you if you will put your trust in Him and desire Him to do so.

3. We should walk with God because without Him life will be a failure. Had Israel journeyed without the guiding pillar they would never have reached Canaan. Without God we are without Christ and without any hope for the future life.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ex. xii, 41, 42; xiv, 19-28; xxiii, 20-25; Ps. xxv, 8-10; xxxi, 1-5; cix, 1-5; Neh. ix, 19; Isa. xl, 27-31; Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; Luke i, 76-79; John xiv, 1-7.

C. E. International Headquarters.

The United Society of Christian Endeavor, a worldwide organization embracing 70,000 societies with nearly 4,000,000 members, after living drifting in hired quarters for twenty-eight years has taken the first steps toward erecting a permanent home and international headquarters. A site for the new building was recently bought on Huntington avenue, Boston, within a stone's throw of the fine group of buildings erected by the Harvard Medical school and the Harvard Dental school. The international headquarters building will be constructed of Indiana limestone. It will be five stories high and, besides containing the offices of the society and the editorial rooms of the Christian Endeavor World, will have a number of offices and suites for rent. The building will thus become an income producer for the society, which has been remarkably successful in carrying on its religious work economically. The entire cost of the building, including site, will approximate $500,000. Offers for this building have come not only from Endeavorers in the United States, but from all parts of the world. There is hardly a country on the globe where there are no Christian Endeavor societies and hardly one from which no gift has come. The other day the Endeavorers of Hawaii sent $78.50, and the messengers that brought the gift added $50 more as a personal contribution.

Genuine Spirituality.

Genuine spirituality is the deadliest foe to all forms of immorality. One cannot be spiritual and selfish, or spiritual and ill tempered, or spiritual and censorious, or spiritual and sordid. It was thus that Paul warned Christians against greed, which he linked with unchastity and boldly characterized as idolatry. Spirituality never lifts a person above the ordinary human obligations, but it infuses into these a new dignity and sacredness.

ASK TO STORE FUEL OIL

Spicer Company Applies to Common Council for Two Permits.

WAS REFERRED TO COMMITTEE.

No Action Taken On Auto Concern's Petition For a Gasolene Tank Permit—New Ordinance Likely.

Unexpectedly, the petition of the Spicer Universal Joint Company, of Madison avenue, for permission to install two tanks at its factory for the storage of fuel oil, came before the Common Council at its adjourned meeting Wednesday. The petition was presented a few weeks ago, and the matter had been under consideration.

The company wants to place two tanks of five thousand gallons capacity each beneath the sidewalk on its property at Madison avenue and West Third street, for the storage of fuel oil used for manufacturing purposes. All of the gasolene, benezine and other dangerous products have been removed from this oil, and as explained by Mr. Spicer, of the company, it will not ignite unless heated. It is proposed to place the tanks underground and no oil will be handled above ground, the tanks even being filled by pipe-line from the railroad siding.

Mr. Spicer was present and was given the privilege of the floor. He explained the company's plans in detail and said that he could not see the least possible danger in installing the tanks. They would be placed three feet underground and be covered with concrete.

Mr. Sloan desired to know if the insurance rates would be affected by the installation of such tanks, and Mr. Buxton said that in his opinion they would not be, in fact, he said that by Legislative action, the fire insurance rating bureau in the State was put out of business on December 16, and no official action can be taken until other arrangements are made.

Mr. Taylor explained that the oil which the company proposes to use is a petroleum product and is not considered dangerous and he moved that the petition be granted. This brought forth opposition from Mr. Mygatt and Mr. Montgomery. The former said that it seemed to him that inasmuch as the Council is now considering this whole question, including the dangers of gasolene, nothing should be done until definite conclusions are reached and thorough scientific investigation is made. Mr. Montgomery was of the same opinion.

The matter brought out so many different opinions, that it was finally voted to refer it back to the fire and building committee until the next meeting.

No action was taken at this time regarding the application of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company for permission to install gasolene tanks. Mr. Taylor, of the fire committee, is anxious to make further investigation before recommending any action. It is likely that as suggested by Mayor Fisk, a suitable ordinance will be adopted covering the matter of handling and storing gasolene and then those wishing to engage in the business will be obliged to conform to the provisions.

SCHOOLS INSPECTED BY FIRE COMMITTEE

The inspection of the public schools of this city which was conducted Wednesday by the fire and buildings committee of the Common Council with Mayor Fisk and Fire Chief Doane, revealed the fact that all but one of the schools are in first class condition.

The exception was the Franklin School, where the cellar was found filled with rubbish consisting of old blinds, chairs and tables, stuff that is useless and should not be there. This was ordered removed. Notable improvements were found in the Bryant School, where, two years ago, new stairways and exits were suggested. The following out of the recommendations of the inspectors at that time have made this school practically safe from fire and all the danger of lack of exits has been removed. The new iron staircase which leads directly out has reduced danger of congestion in case of fire practically to nothing.

The inspectors also included the local theatres in their itinerary and here also the conditions were found to be most desirable. The special exits and the arrangements for protection in case of fire are admirably efficient, in fact there was nothing to criticize adversely.

The parochial schools will probably be inspected today.

MISS EDITH MELLICK INTRODUCED IN SOCIETY

Miss Edith Mellick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, was formally introduced to society at a reception given at the home on East Seventh street, Wednesday. The invitations were confined almost exclusively to the younger set and intimate friends of the young woman.

The debutante was showered with gifts of flowers. Those receiving with Miss Mellick and her mother were Mrs. J. Hartley Mellick, Miss Margaret Drayton, Miss Elizabeth Tweedy, Miss Hope Ivins, of this city, and Miss Ryman, of Wilkesbarre, Pa.

A feature of the evening was dancing, music being furnished by VanBlar, of New York, and during an intermission supper was served by Maresi, of New York.

Miss Mellick is a popular member of the younger set and has been prominent in numerous functions given under its auspices.

EAST END REFORMED CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

At the Netherwood Reformed church Wednesday the children gave a delightful presentation of "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe." A dozen of the youngsters parodied the probable actions of the happy family which was too large for the old lady to handle and they acquitted themselves splendidly.

The occasion was the first Christmas festival held in the church and it was marker by the presence of an audience which demonstrated the great interest which the little church holds for the people of that neighborhood. Rev. Mr. Rouse received a ten-dollar gold piece from his congregation and all the members of the Sunday-school were remembered with suitable gifts as well as oranges and candy.

Mrs. Wood, superintendent of the primary department, received a cut glass dish from the teachers and pupils. The music of the little cantata was splendidly sung and showed careful training on the part of those who had the children in charge. The little church was filled with an appreciative audience and the children were heartily applauded for their efforts to entertain their parents.

VON MINDEN BOOMED FOR TOWNSHIP COUNSEL

Former Assemblyman Rene P. E. VonMinden, of New Market, is being boomed for the political candidate for appointment to the office of attorney for Piscataway township. Being a prominent member and officer of the Middlesex County Grange, Mr. VonMinden has the support of the agriculturists in the township, as well as the following at New Market and South Plainfield.

The present incumbent is Judge William A. Coddington, of this city, who has filled the office in an efficient manner for several years. The only objection to Judge Coddington's reappointment is the fact that he is not a resident of the township, while on the other hand, VonMinden resides at New Market, where he has been active in public affairs.

Another argument being used in VonMinden's behalf is that he is a Republican while Coddington is a Democrat. VonMinden, at the last election when the Democrats swept the county, was high man on the Republican ticket.

The township committee will organize at the Nelson Hotel on New Year's day and prepare its slate of appointments. Dr. F. A. Nelson is practicularly sure of being appointed as township physician.

MISS ACHSAH HOLMES A HOLIDAY BRIDE.

Miss Achsah Holmes, daughter of Mrs. Amelia Holmes, of Grandview avenue, was united in marriage Wednesday to Henry Apgar, of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor emeritus of Trinity Reformed church, at the latter's home, on West Front street. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Thorn, the latter a sister of the bride.

Following the ceremony the couple was tendered a reception at the home of the bride's family. Mr. and Mrs. Apgar are spending their honeymoon in Washington, D. C., and at the completion of their trip they will reside on West Seventh street.

Silent Departure.

Mrs. Smith was engaging a new servant and sat facing the Islington's plicant. "I hope," said she, "that you had no angry words with your last mistress before leaving."

"Oh, dear, no, mum; none whatever," was the reply, with a toss of her head. "While she was having her bath I just locked the bathroom door, took all my things and went away as quiet as possible."—Argonaut.

FRELINGHUYSEN LEASES THE "HOUSE OF LORDS"

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen has leased the Stewart house, in West State street, Trenton, for the coming session of the Legislature, and the "House of Lords," which had a prominent part in the deliberations of the last Senate, will again be a fixture next year. The "House of Lords" was a nickname given to the house in which Senators Frelinghuysen, Wakelee, Ackerman, Brown, Minch and Hillery lived during the last session.

There will be one absentee next year, however, for Mr. Hillery is no longer a member of the Senate, having been appointed by Governor Fort a member of the Railroad Commission. The five other Senators, however, will live together as they did last year.

HIGH PRAISE FOR REFORMATORY HEAD

That the Rev. Dr. Frank Moore, a Methodist clergyman, well known throughout the State and formerly president of the Pennington Theological Seminary, is the right man in the rightp lace as superintendent of the New Jersey Reformatory at Rahway is the view of the Board of Managers of the institution, who filed their annual report with Governor Fort Wednesday.

The Board declares there has been marked improvement in the discipline of the institution since Mr. Moore assumed charge, and points out that there is still room for improvement, which, it is expected, will be accomplished when Mr. Moore has put all his plans in operation.

The managers complain of inability to provide proper teachers, asserting that while many of the men are excellent guards, they fail short in the matter of imparting instruction to the boys. There is only one professional teacher in the institution. The managers ask that they be provided with means to give boys proper instruction. The managers also ask for an increased appropriation for the Middle schools.

In his report to the managers Superintendent Moore discusses the importance of having men of high moral principles in charge of the boys. At Mr. Moore's suggestion the good conduct limit of the reformatory has been extended to fifteen months, and the plan has been found to work successfully.

The total expenses of the reformatory for the year were $168,002. The receipts for labor and materials sold amounted to $23,852. The managers will ask for an appropriation of $20,000 for an enclosing wall for the institution, $10,000 for water supply, $5,000 for tuberculosis pavilion, $20,000 for trades school building, and $25,000 to buy additional farm land.

BAXTER INTERPRETS TENURE OFFICE ACT

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles J. Baxter has given an opinion to the effect that any teacher, principal or supervising principal who has been employed in the same district for three consecutive years next preceding September 1, 1909, and is employed for the current school year brings him under the protection of the teachers' tenure of office act, and secures him permanency of position in said district during good behavior and efficiency. The superintendent has been asked this question so often recently and has answered it individually so many times that he felt constrained to make public an opinion which might read all who would inquire.

In speaking of the matter yesterday, Mr. Baxter said that the law seems to be entirely clear. It fixes a probationary period of three years, and after that it shall be during good behavior and efficiency. After this dismissal or reduction of salary is prohibited. Unless a teacher shall be given a contract extending beyond the probationary period, or shall be employed after the expiration of the three years, he does not come under the protection of the act in question.

Brocade Hats.

Brocade is much favored for bridesmaids' hats. Perhaps it solves the color problem as well, for it is always possible to secure just the tint required to tone in pink or blue silk counter when the felt hats offer no assistance to eager buyers. Large shapes are popular, and plumes of the same color or contrasting tones are used. The design of the brocade seems especially ornamental and suitable for festive occasions. After the great event, these silk hats are lovely for evening wear.

ROUTINE TRANSACTIONS OF THE CITY FATHERS

C. L. Campbell, of 1001 Central avenue, the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company, John H. Reid and others communicated with the Common Council at its adjourned meeting Wednesday asking for a revision or cancellation of sewer assessments. These matters were of long standing in some instances, and had been considered by the finance committee. Mr. Buxton, the chairman, later presented an opinion from Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh bearing on the subject.

According to Mr. Marsh, the assessments were levied according to law, the usual public hearings were granted and the assessments were confirmed by the Common Council. Mr. Marsh said that the property-owners had their right of appeal to the Supreme Court within sixty days of the time of making the assessment. This had not been done. In consequence he advised that the petitions be denied. This was done and in all cases except that of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company, which required further investigation, the petitions were ordered returned.

Among these petitions returned were those of Michael Harrington, DeWitt C. Ivins, J. F. Reid, L. V. F. Randolph, C. L. Campbell, Miss C. Blake and F. L. C. Martin Auto Company.

Regarding the communication of Clara A. Stelle, of Union street, in which she called attention to the fact that the city agreed to remit a sewer assessment in return for the dedication of Stelle avenue as a public street, the request was granted in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted.

George Wiegand, of Summer avenue, petitioned the Common Council for permission to build a sanitary sewer 600 feet long, to connect with one installed by Elston M. French which connects with the city sewer. It was referred to the street and sewer committee and later was granted. Mr. Wiegand will build the sewer at his expense.

City Treasurer W. F. Arnold reported the sale of the school bonds and upon advice of Corporation Counsel Marsh asked for instructions. Later Mr. Buxton offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the payment of $19,919.25, from the sale of bonds to the custodian of school moneys, Mr. Arnold, so that the Board of Education may have access to the fund.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported the granting of ten sewer permits during the past month. Over seer of the Poor D. D. Ayers reported outside expenses to be $1,974.71 and almshouse expenses of $71.97.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Taylor, chairman of the fire and building committee, and adopted, authorizing the appointment of another fire company for the new east end fire house to be known as Company No. 4. This is done so that six call men can be appointed to do fire duty in that part of the city. Mayor Fisk will make the appointments upon the recommendation of the fire committee.

Mr. Buxton moved that when the Council adjourn it be to meet on Thursday night, December 30, when all business for the year will be closed up prior to the re-organization of the Council on New Year's Day.

She Gets a Divorce.

A divorce case which has been pending for a long time has just been brought to a successful conclusion by Counsellor George Ball, the solicitor for the petitioner. The case was one brought by Anna C. Farrell, formerly of this city, but now of Newark, for divorce from her husband, John P. Farrell, who at the time of the marriage was an employe of a Newark hospital. The cause alleged was desertion, the couple having lived together but a week. There was difficulty in getting service of process on the defendant, and it was hard to get the proper proof owing to the witnesses having moved to England. The testimony was taken last summer, and the Chancellor has just approved the findings and granted a decree.

HIGH ROYAL TITLES

LITTLE MODESTY SHOWN BY OCCUPIERS OF THRONES.

One Sovereign of Insignificant Empire Rejoiced in the Appellation "Great Thief"—Many Others Equally Ludicrous.

If, as reported, the czar of Russia intends to abandon his title, "autocrat of all the Russias," he will sacrifice the most exalted of his many dignities, a mere recital of which would fill half a column and which are certainly numerous enough to equip a score of reasonable potentates.

But even the czar's proud array of titles puts a poor figure beside that of the sultan of Turkey, who in a Turkish newspaper was described not long ago in these extravagant terms:

"The finest pearl of the age and the esteemed center of the universe, at whose portals stand the camels of justice and mercy, and to whom the eyes of the kings and people in the west have been drawn, the rulers there finding an example of political prowess and the classes a model of humanity and kindness; our lord and master the sultan of two shores and the high king of the two seas, the crown of ages and the pride of all countries, the greatest of all khalifs, the shadow of God on earth, the successor of the apostle of the lord of the universe, the victorious conqueror (Al-Ghazi) Sultan Abdul-Hamid Khan."

There have been several sovereigns who have actually claimed to be divine; among them the kings of Ava and of Pegu, each of whom was called "God."

His majesty of Ava in his letters to his fellow sovereigns spoke of himself as "King of kings, whom all others must obey, as he is the cause of preservation of all animals, the regulator of the seasons, the absolute master of the ebb and flow of the sea, brother to the sun and king of the four-and-twenty umbrellas."

The Kandyan monarch, equally lacking in humility, described himself as "the protector of religion, whose fame is infinite and of surpassing excellence, exceeding the moon, the unexpanded jessamine buds, and the stars, whose feet are as fragrant to the noses of other kings as flowers to bees, most noble patron and God by custom," etc.

The shah of Persia has an amazing array of titles, ranging from shah-in-shah (king of kings) to such poetical flights as "the rose of delight," "the branch of honor" and "the mirror of virtue;" while his majesty of Arracan used to be proclaimed as "emperor of Arracan, possessor of the white elephant and the two earrings, and in virtue of this possession legitimate heir of Pegu and Brama; lord of the 12 provinces of Bengal and of the 12 kings who place their heads under his feet."

The king of Achem boasted almost as many high dignities as there are days in a year; among them "the sovereign of the universe, whose body is luminous as the sun; whom God created to be as accomplished as the moon and her splendor; whose eye glitters like the northern star; a king as spiritual as a ball is round, who, when he rises, shades all his people, and from under whose feet a sweet odor is wafted."

But perhaps the most remarkable title any monarch was ever proud to own was one borne by the king of Monomotapa, whose praises were sung by his court poets and musicians as "lord of the sun and moon, great magician and great thief."

Genoa, the "Superb."

Genoa when seen from the sea richly deserves the title it has acquired of "the Superb," for most of the town, being built on the lower hills of the Ligurian Alps, there is an unparalleled opportunity for the display of architectural magnificence. Palaces being celebrated for its churches, palaces, and pictures, Genoa can boast of having been the cradle of the banking business of the world, and even now more money matters are transacted there than in any other town in Italy. And to many of us, if we know nothing else about it, Genoa calls up pleasing memories of a cake, as beautiful Bath suggests a bun.—London Chronicle.

Founding of Weather Bureau.

Congress deserves the credit of founding the weather bureau. On February 9, 1870, a bill was passed which provided for the establishment of a national weather bureau. Under the provisions of this measure the department was put in jurisdiction of the army, its direction being placed in the hands of the United States signal corps.

A second bill was passed by congress on October 1, 1890, whereby the direction of the weather bureau was taken away from the signal corps and transferred to the department of agriculture.

FRUIT GROWERS CHEER JOS. S. FRELINGHUYSEN

Standing in the place usually occupied by the clerk of the house of assembly in session of the Legislature, President Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of the New Jersey Senate, told the horticulturists Thursday at Trenton that he never saw better evidences of the prosperity of the fruit-growing which on all sides surrounded him, and made the members of the New Jersey State Horticultural Society come to their feet with a vote of thanks when he told them in a gem of a speech that prosperity can come to New Jersey only through the farmer and the fruit grower.

Senator Frelinghuysen was a distinguished guest of the society for the afternoon. His presence in the State House was discovered and he was immediately invited to address the society. He told them that while the chartering of corporations paid large sums into the State treasury for the running of the State government, this was not a gauge of the prosperity of the people, and nothing was the gauge besides the prosperity of the man who made things grow out of the earth.

Senator Frelinghuysen told the fruit growers that their work was known the length and breadth of the land, that the Jersey fruit grower was recognized as a scientist, and that he would stand by the agricultural interests in his legislative work. He was warmly applauded for his fine speech.

WILL RECOMMEND 800 MILES OF GOOD ROADS

The State Highway Commission, appointed under authority of the last Legislature for the primary purpose of furthering the project of an ocean boulevard from Atlantic Highlands to Cape May, agreed Wednesday at Trenton to recommend to the next Legislature a system of roads aggregating approximately eight hundred miles of strictly State roads. The commission is composed of Governor Fort, President Frelinguhysen of the Senate, Senator-elect Printz and Road Commissioner Gilkyson.

Roughly, the plan is to devote the moneys received through the State automobile department to the construction and maintenance of roads over which the State shall have absolute control. As a first step in this direction it is proposed to connect by the most improved type of roads the various county seats throughout the State. These would form main arteries of travel by which automobilists could get to any point in the State upon roads equal or superior to any of which New Jersey now boasts.

By this means an object lesson in road construction would be given to every county, and it is the belief of the commission that it would increase the local incentive for building good roads.

MEN'S CLUB OF CHURCH OF HEAVENLY REST MEETS.

The men's club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest held their regular meeting Thursday and reports were received from the various committees. Great preparations are in progress for the entertainment to be given on January 12. The membership committee reported favorably on the application of John D. Doerg, which is probably be admitted at the next meeting.

There will be a special meeting of the club on December 30 for the distribution of the tickets for the entertainment. The president desires a large attendance at the next business meeting on January 27 as matters of considerable importance will come up.

Another matter which the club thinks deserves the attention of the Board of Health and the Street Commissioner was brought up and the secretary instructed to call to the attention of these bodies the condition of Clinton avenue and West Front street. Joel Pennington was appointed a member of the press committee after which the meeting was thrown open for social enjoyment.

CHRISTMAS EXERCISES AT CLINTON AVENUE SCHOOL.

The exercises of the pupils of the Clinton avenue school took place Thursday afternoon at 1:30 before a large audience of parents. One of the pleasing features of the day was the two large Christmas trees adorned with the work of the pupils of the school. Some of the artistry displayed amazed the visitors. But one thing was proved and that is the fact that the little pupils of this school are learning how to make their hands accomplish the things which they were intended for. Some of the articles shown on the trees displayed a sense of art rarely discernible in the young.

A Stocking Brigade and other exercises were beautifully executed by the youngsters and the pride of the parents was plainly visible in their faces. Recitations and songs concluded a pleasing program in which "The Arrival of Santa" was a conspicuous figure.

JUSTICE ROGERS HAS A HARD LUCK TALE

Justice Clark T. Rogers, of New Market, the prize hog raiser of this vicinity, bumped into "Old Hard Luck" twice during the past two weeks. The two collisions resulted in a loss of $163 in cold cash to the New Market dispenser of justice, quite a jolt when the holiday season is taken into consideration.

About two weeks ago Mr. Rogers took a trip to this city with two fifty dollar yellowbacks in his wallet. While on his journey the wallet and contents slipped from his coat pocket, and nothing was heard of the money.

The second loss occurred Thursday, when a thief entered his mill at New Market, rifled his $63, and decamped without leaving his identity. Charles Randolph, of this city, who is Mr. Rogers' miller, after making up his accounts, left the money and papers on a desk and stepped outside for the small space of two minutes. When Randolph returned the money and papers were missing.

SPANISH SWINDLER IS CAUGHT AT LAST

Through the efforts of Counselor Welcome W. Bender, of Elizabeth, connected with the law firm of Keasby & Keasby, Newark, a worker of the "Spanish swindle" has been arrested. Central Office detectives, working with postoffice inspectors under the direction of Mr. Bender, Thursday arrested in the Grand Central Hotel, New York, Charles W. Adams, said to be the oldest confidence man in the country.

The attention of Keasby & Keasby was called to the swindle with the result that Mr. Bender was put to work on the case. He worked out the trap by which the detectives were able to get the man, who, under the name of James T. Southwick, had been receiving his mail at the Bayonne postoffice and making his headquarters at the various New York hotels.

The plan that Adams has been working is very simple. It consists in addressing letters to foreigners who are known to have recently fallen heir to large sums, telling them that they have been left a large interest in a valuable mining property in some out-of-the-way locality. The writer asks that a representative be sent over to negotiate the purchase of property adjoining the supposed mine.

Sometimes the writer explains that at some date long past he was aided by the deceased in buying a gold or a coal mine. The investment having paid handsomely, the writer, in gratitude, desires to have a reckoning up to date and to pay over to the dead man's kinsmen a substantial amount. This is supposed to be attractive enough to lure someone across the sea. Once here the victim is induced to put up a certain sum of money to defray the expenses incidental to the transfer of the property.

Originally the bait held out was a deposit of gold or jewels by some forgotten relative, who died in a Spanish prison after a life of adventure. That was the device which gave the swindle its name, but once in a while in the last thirty years this famous old fraud bobs up. The last conviction for operating it of which the postoffice inspectors here have record was in Philadelphia, in 1904.

According to the police, Southwick, or Adams, and his associates have picked up from $25,000 to $50,000 lately by working the ancient swindle. A William Lea, presumably of England, is said to have been a recent victim to the extent of $23,000. Until lately the swindlers have been using the Bayonne postoffice exclusively. Then they began using New York hotels.

An attempt was made three years ago to work the game on a well-known Elizabethan, the letter coming from across the water. The letter read like a page from a popular novel. There was a Dolores, ravishingly beautiful, who was a stepchild cousin of the Elizabethan, and in order that she might get possession of certain treasure, it would be necessary to send enough money. Then a half and half division would be made of the wealth, and it was even hinted that the Elizabethan might prevail upon the wonderful Dolores to give him her hand in marriage. But—those legal formalities; he would cost just—and it is needless to say that the Elizabethan did not fall, for he had heard of the game before.

BISHOP'S MEMORIAL TO DEPARTED WIFE.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop Scarborough, of the Episcopal diocese of Trenton, whose wife died during the past week, has announced that he will put in a large chancel window at Christ Episcopal church, Trenton, in memory of Mrs. Scarborough.

The subject which has been selected by the Bishop is "The Ascension." It represents Christ ascending into heaven surrounded by ministering angels and the Disciples and the Virgin Mary in weeping groups on the ground at his feet. The window will be the work of Meyer & Company, of New York, and will be turned out by the Royal Bavarian establishment at Munich, Bavaria, which is now making three memorial windows for Christ church. The work is all done at Munich. The window will be ordered in a few days and it is hoped that it can be received and put in place so as to be dedicated on Ascension day.

Xmas "Joy" Results.

Bartholomew Taylor, an old timer, was given a suspended sentence by Judge Runyon Monday. Taylor was found helplessly drunk on West Front street Christmas eve, lying in the gutter near the corner of Park avenue. Another who had imbibed too freely, George Cornell, a Swede said that he had been drinking Irish whiskey. The judge told him that Irish whiskey was never intended for a Swedish stomach and allowed him to go as it was his first offense.

Charles B. Wicht Remembered.

Charles B. Wicht, manger for the Clarkburst Farms' dairy store on North avenue, entertained the employes of the local dairy, as well as those from New Brunswick and the farm at Bound Brook, at his home Friday night. During the evening Mr. Wicht was presented with a handsome gold head umbrella by his friends. He appreciated the gift exceedingly. Afterward Mrs. Wicht served supper to the company and there was a general good time.

MUST CHIN THEMSELVES IN NEW YORK SCHOOLS

Physical training has been placed on the same basis as other branches of education in the schools of New York. Pupils are to be graded for their physical training work, their progress or lack of progress counting in the credits necessary to graduation. This innovation has just been introduced by an order issued by New York City Superintendent William H. Maxwell, upon the authority of the New York Board of Education.

In estimating the ratings for graduation, the order says, the following points are to be considered:

First—The effort and the success of the student to follow out the instructions in hygiene, particularly with regard to cleanliness of face, finger nails, mouth, teeth, hair and clothing.

Second—Both the ability to assume a correct posture and habitual posture, particularly when the student is writing or at rest, and the posture when marching, walking or standing to recite; because good posture is an expression of vigor as well as an evidence of a correct physical habit.

The ability of boys to "chin" themselves by raising their weight by their hands and the facility of the girls in folk dances also are to count. Ability in these dances is to be determined under three heads: Memory, form and spirit.

A child who fails to receive a passing mark in the physical training and hygiene will be referred to a school *physician for examination and a spe*cial report on the case will be made to the district superintendent. Similar standards are to determine the progress of the student from grade to grade.

The new order originated with Dr. C. Ward Crampton, director of physical training in the public schools. Dr. Crampton said yesterday:

"The effort and the success of students to follow out the instruction in matters of cleanliness of the face, finger nails, teeth, hair and clothing *should be taken into serious consid*eration. Nothing will bring more forcibly to the student's mind the importance of removing unhygienic conditions than with the fact that he be marked for graduation upon what he is as well as upon what he knows. If this policy is followed throughout the grades there certinly will be less retardation due to physical defects of an easily remediable nature.

"Good posture, while being an evidence of vigor, has also a commercial value. Level headed business men make their choice of erect, well appearing candidates for any business position, because they know intinctively that vigor and the habit of success are behind such posture. "Too many immature weaklings are passed into the high schools every year, only to find that the work is too severe for them; and the great high school mortality is found to be due to lack of vigor in this class of students."

PLAINFIELDERS ENJOYED BROOKLYN HOUSE PARTY.

Among the many Plainfielders who spent Christmas out of town, none was more enjoyable than the family gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hardy and Mrs. S. E. Prescott, 618 Madison street, Brooklyn. A. L. Force and family were present, from the borough, and enjoyed the day and evening with several other Brooklyn friends, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy.

A tastefully decorated dinner table, loaded with good things to eat, contained a small chimney, with Santa Claus, descending the same. From the interior of the chimney ribbons were run to each guest's plate and as the presents were received hearty laughter was caused over the "Limerick" attached to each gift. At 12 o'clock "good nights" were said and Mr. and Mrs. Hardy were voted model entertainers.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX IS NOW ATACKED.

The constitutionality of the collateral inheritance tax act of New Jersey as passed in 1894 and 1908, and amended by the Ackerman bill enacted at the last session of the Leg*islature, is the subject of attack in* an action brought in the Supreme Court at Trenton by the executor of the $7,000,000 estate left by the late Wesley Hunt Tilford, of New York, in an effort to set aside a tax of $138,378.52 levied against the estate by Secretary of State Samuel D. Dickinson, acting as registrar of the Prerogative Court.

Loving Cup For Mr. Leary.

Jerome Leary, proprietor of the Iroquois Hotel, was agreeably surprised on Christmas eve by a call from a committee headed by Manager Ernest Dorflinger, of the Plainfield Baseball Club. Mr. Leary took his visitors to the parlor, and on his arrival there he was given a still bigger surprise, when Mr. Dorflinger presented him, in behalf of the club, a silver loving cup, suitably engraved.

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

Touring through the New York stores at Christmastide is, if we see into as well as look at things and people, a fruitful lesson in the philosophy of life. Everything reflects the tendency of the times, everybody illustrates the twentieth century gallop after the ever-changing, ever-ascending goddess of luxury. Floods of travellers' tales have these twenty-five years fascinated the rich with the mania for turning their houses into strictly imitation European palaces. With these it is quite beneath their dignity to even whisper of "Home, once Sweet Home!" And such is poor weak human nature that our enterprising storekeepers find it compulsory to cater to this craze for eclipsing the good old times and ways. It looks as though a vast and powerful class of our American stock are getting ashamed of American standards. What "up to date" hotel nowadays serves a simple American dinner? Why these preliminary cocktails and Frenchified frilligics that swell the bill more than the payer? Where are the sturdy sons of the stalwart Fathers who so valiantly made this American nation and died nobly, preferring to proudly maintain its independ*ence by keeping up its plain, sensi*ble and everyway admirable mode of living?

* * * *

Let the rich go their own gait; the great mass of the people, the backbone of the nation, the pith and marrow of its greatness, are not compelled to follow those whose weakness for imitating outsiders is in fact a belittling of its greatness and a pretty poor return for what its Makers have done for them. The stores show an overwhelming appetite for the gaudy, and a growing distaste for the simplicity which is the stamp of strong sense and pure taste. Our children are being demoralized by parental rivalry in decking them up as imitation princesses and dukelings. They are ceasing to be children. They scorn real toys. They whine and pine for aeroplanes that fly, locomotives that go by steam, and every kind of mimic machine that can be made to work by electricity. They see their supremely wise parents and seniors doing their worst to ge rid of their legs for walking. The human body is scorned as too slow for anything except getting cash money to save it from exercise and risk of the consequences of the one grand use it is permitted—of consuming luxurious fare which is enjoyed in proportion to its harmfulness and cost.

* * * *

A new New York restaurant opened last week under cover of holy Christmas's (two a's please) festive time. Its boastful motto "Best in the world," of course, for hotel reporters know every eating place in the universe and are juvenile enough to consider themselves the highest authorities on true taste. It has cost $4,000,000, more than a fourth of Syrian splendors, Japanese temples, royal palaces, and the supposed very heaven of Art with a big A have been plundered to dazzle the gilded dudes of Gotham the Gorgeous Magnifique. There are pergolas of black marble, "salons in the lights," statuary, sculptures, and the finest staircase "in the world." Walk up, walk up, ladies and gents! and see the Winged Bulls of Babylon "bearing pale flames on their backs." If this means that you can have steak cut to order or sizzling steak served with the oozings of its own gravy I am almost tempted to go for a thirty-five cent meal, but am likely to talk at the head waiter's demand for the tip of $9.65 for the decorations.

* * * *

Another hotel feast, said to cost $100 a plate, was gorged "after the old Roman style," though instead of reclining while eating, these imperial diners sat on "gold chairs," solid, no doubt, as high art feeders are always men of weight in a cultured community. And lo! the animal is getting his revenge on his long time subduer—the intellectual. The wheel goes round in every sphere of life, as the world complacently fancies the sun, moon and stars go dancing round it, for its sole delight. Every Hero and Hun is the Mammoth Mastodon Dazzling Saloons of Mammon is the Gorgeousest, Costliest, Spangledest Conception of Super-Barnumized Genius in the World! And think of the touching disinterestedness of it all. These are our pioneers, blazing the way to the Higher Civilization of Gluttony, which prophets have prophesied and dreamers poetized these thousands of years. All for our good, not at all for their own. And yet we have only just got to the vestibule of the corridor down which great Rome of old waltzed gaily to its doom.

An Effectual Remedy.

CHRISTMAS CANTATA AT NEW MARKET CHURCH

Members and friends of the First Baptist church and Sunday-school of New Market church attended the annual Yuletide festival on Christmas eve in large numbers. The exercises were held in the church, which was tastefully decorated with holly and greens.

Among those taking part were John Hadley, as Santa Claus, Hannah Nelson, Hazel Piddington, Edlweina Reusch, Gertrude Bunting, Maud Rupel, Frances and Josie Mitze, Emily Pirrington, Bessie Jacobs, Edith Dayton, Mary Hall, George Nelson, Fred Von Vinden, Howard Dayton, Fred and Bosworth Coriell, Linwood Hutchinson and others.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED AT CHRISTMAS PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McVoy, of West Fourth street, entertained thirty relatives and friends at a Christmas party at their home on Saturday, guest being present from this city, New York, Newark and Summit.

The home gathering was an especially happy affair owing to the prence of Dan Cupid. During the festivities the engagement of Miss Anna Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Porter, and a sister of Mrs. McVoy, to Albert Harris, of Clinton avenue, was announced. The young couple received the congratulations of all the guests No date has been set for the wedding.

BLIZZARD CONDITIONS AT NEW MARKET

The snowstorm hit New Market and Piscataway township hard. When the residents of that section awakened on Christmas morning they united in declaring that it was the biggest fall of snow since the memorable blizzard of 1888. The milkmen of the district were greatly handicapped in making deliveries, all of which were from eight to ten hours late. In many instances the milkmen were unable to travel by the roads owing to the drifts and were obliged to drive through fields to reach their customers.

Justice Rogers, however, was "Johnny on the Spot." Sunday he brought into service his snow plough and cleared the roads and sidewalks between New Market and Dunellen, thus placing the former place in communication with the outside world.

PATROLMAN VANDERWEG A XMAS EVE HERO

To the vigilance of Patrolman "Mat" Vanderwig, of the local police department, while patroling his "beat" on West Fourth street during the raging snow storm late on Saturday night, three women, residents of the West End, owe their escape from being electrocuted by a live wire which was laying directly across West Fourth street near Plainfield avenue.

The live wire which was blowing at the time caused the wire to break and fall to the ground and across the trolley tracks. Vanderweg detected the breaks while walking toward the scene by sparks from the suspended wire where the break occurred.

Approaching the wire in the middle of the tracks Vanderweg also noticed three women coming toward the wire. Realizing the impending dan*ger of a tragedy Vanderweg shouted* several warnings to the pedestrians. It was not until they were within ten feet of the wire that the women understand the warnings of the officer.

To prevent any accidents Vanderweg notified the electric light station and the power was shut off.

The women were on their way home from a shopping tour down town and were laden with bundles containing Christmas presents for their children. They were unable to ride home owing to the cars being stalled and had walked all the way from town in the middle of the tracks.

"John, I think I shall get you for Christmas one of those self-opening umbrellas."

"No; get me a self-returning one."

Rev. Ellis E. Roberson, former pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, died at his home in Passaic on Friday night shortly after 10 o'clock of Bright's disease and pneu*monia. He was pastor of the First* M. E. church in Passaic at the time of his death. He is survived by a wife and two children, Lester, aged twelve and Jennie, four. XMAS DAY SERVICES WERE WELL ATTENDED

By holding their services on Christmas day as prescribed, the Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches were favored by Providence with weather which did not seriously interfere with the attendance. But the storm which developed in fierceness as the day progressed Saturday prevented the other churches from holding the services they had planned for yesterday and only a handful of the faithful were on hand in many of them.

On Christmas morning all the services at Grace, St. Stephen's, Holy Cross and Heavenly Rest churches were attended by large congregations. Of course, the music in all of these churches was a special feature and all of it was good. At the Church of the Holy Cross, the rector, Rev. George A. Warner, preached a short sermon at the 11 o'clock service on the birth, life and Love of the Babe of Bethlehem.

Preceding the sermon Mr. Warner said that his four years of happy re*lations with his parishioners had* been happy ones and cordial and that the church and its people were in complete accord which afforded him great pleasure. The singing of the choir was noticeably good especially in Tours' communion service. The decorations in all the churches were beautiful.

BULLET FROM FLOBERT MAY RESULT SERIOUSLY

Christmas had its joys and sor*rows for Michael Eadz, a sixteen*-year-old lad, of East Fourth street. Michael received a spring Flobert rifle as one of his presents and on the day his younger brother secured the gun and started to play with it. The latter did not know it was loaded, and pointed it toward his brother in fun. The trigger snapped and a lead bullet hit Michael in the eye.

The optic is considerably bruised and inflamed, but Dr. A. H. Dundon, who is attending the boy, is hopeful that the sight of the injured eye will be saved.

Still Selling Red Cross Stamps.

The Anti-Tuberculosis Society wishes to inform the public that the Red Cross stamps will remain on sale at all the principal stores, including the florists, for the rest of this week. They are as appropriate for "thank you" messages and New Year's greetings as they were for Christmas presents. The Society took 60,000 stamps from the National Red Cross society and all which remain unsold by January 1 will have to be returned. It is hoped that the citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield will see to it that there are none left over. Fifty percent of the proceeds of the sale of the stamps will go to the support of the local sanatorium and the balance to the National Red Cross Society.

After the choristers had sung carols, they were invited into the rectory, where the rector and his wife entertained them. Refreshments were served and the Christmas tree was lighted.

Another Proud Father.

Santa Claus was a day late in stopping at the home of William Olmstead, the hustling news agent, of Watchung avenue, but "Billy" is probably the happiest fellow in town today, as on Christmas night he became the father of a little daughter.

XMAS CELEBRATION AT ITALIAN MISSION

The first Christmas celebration for the children of the Italian Mission Sunday school, was held Friday night at the mission on East Third street. It was a true Italio-American meeting, crowned with real success. Songs and recitals were given by the children, dolls, gloves and other useful articles distributed according to the merit. Everyone had his share of apples, oranges, bananas, nuts and candies.

During the evening a short address was made to the children by the missionary in charge, Theodore Boretsy. The mission was crowded and a number of people had to be turned away for lack of room. Italian and English hymns, with the accompaniment of mandolins and guitars, added to the pleasure and happiness of those present.

Those in charge of the mission work feel deeply grateful to the public and the members of the mission greatly appreciate the work of Mrs. Charles F. Dayton, chairman of the entertainment committee; Miss Ruth Bond, organist, and Mrs. Miles Roberts and Rev. Mr. Bond, who take such a generous interest in the work. Ira LaRue, Miss Dewey, Miss Griffen and Miss Newman have also been thanked for their share in the work of preparing the feast.

In the early morning of Saturday, 25th inst., Mrs. Margaret Runyon Kinsey, widow of Moses Kinsey, late of Newark, departed this life at her home, 67 Rosenville avenue, Newark. She was taken suddenly ill with a *serious attack of pneumonia on Mon*day, December 20. Shortly thereafter the disease had assumed a very virulent form and while she remained conscious nearly all the time, her attending physician was impressed with the fact that her life was fast ebbing away, and she quietly breathed her life away at 6 o'clock on Christmas morning.

The deceased left her surviving two daughters, Mrs. Oriana Taylor, Mrs. Augusta Burgess and a granddaughter, Clara Burgess. She was a sister of Mrs. John R Morrison and Mrs. Cornelius K. Compton and Nelson Runyon, all of Plainfield. The funeral took place at the late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

APPEAL FOR ASSISTANCE FOR AN UNIVERSITY

Rev. Lawrence R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, and one of the honorary vice-presidents of the Lincoln Memorial University at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., has received from Fred H. Wilson, secretary of The Lincoln University Endowment Association, an appeal for assistance. On Tuesday night, December 14, Grant Lee Hall, the main building of the university, was destroyed by fire. There was no loss of life, but the students suffered greatly through the loss of personal effects.

As a result a majority of the students were obliged to walk to their homes, in some instances a distance of one hundred miles. The university was founded by the late Gen. O. O. Howard, nephew of Rev. Mr. Howard, and both are many Plainfielders who are personally interested in the educational work being carried on there.

Hurt By Fall.

William Stine, of West Fifth street, a carpenter in the employ of Rimmer, Quigley & Cuzen, while at work in a house in the course of construction on Prospect avenue, on Friday afternoon, missed his stepping and dropped through a tier of beams. The drop was fifteen feet. Stine sprained both ankles and was taken home in a carriage where he is under a physician's care. It will be several weeks before he is able to resume work.

Calendar Plate of 1877.

J. W. Harrison, of Central avenue, is exhibiting a plate made in the Staffordshire potteries, of England, which bears a calendar for the year 1877 imprinted on it. The im*pressions of the figures are plainly* legible and make quite a curiosity. Mr. Harrison was formerly in the pottery business at Liverpool and the plate is one of some thirty-six thousands he had made thirty-two years ago.

Pastor Howard to be "At Home."

Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howard will be "at home" at 446 West Fifth street, New Year's day. This is a departure from the old established custom of having "open house" at Hope chapel and one which, it is believed, will be generally approved of by members of the chapel. For the past twenty-one years the chapel has always been open on New Year's day.

Held Christmas Day Services.

The Christmas services held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Saturday morning, were largely attended by members of the church and congregation. The full choir was present and rendered music appropriate to the day and the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, preached a brief sermon, his theme being in harmony with the day.
